BERLIN, Aug. 15—It was learned from excellent authority that the German delegation at London is almost certain to sign the French terms for Ruhr evacuation, unless there is an eleventh hour hitch.

President Ebert, it was learned, told the Ministerial Council that Germany's rejection of the London terms would mean the overthrow of Premier Herriot, which would be disastrous for Germany.

• • •

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

LONDON, August 15.—The German delegation met this afternoon at 2:30 to consider an important communication just received from Berlin. Copies of Germany's reply to France's Ruhr evacuation proposals were handed to the French and Belgians at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Germans did not finally accept the French proposals on evacuation of the Ruhr yesterday evening as reported. Instead they got in touch with Berlin and while President Ebert was conferring with leaders of the various political parties, except the Communist Party of course, Chancellor Marx, was attending services at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and praying for divine guidance while Herriot was soothing his atheistic soul by taking a walk in the park.

Premier MacDonald conferred with the Roumanians regarding the claim to German indemnity. The small nations of Europe who were on the side of the allies in the war are hovering around the London conference, waiting for whatever scraps the big fellows may throw at them.

Due to the deadlock in the allied reparations conference, President Calvin Coolidge's speech received scant attention in the London press today.

While the message received by Chancellor Marx from Berlin has not yet been made public, it is rumored that Germany will make further concessions on the issue of Ruhr evacuation, meanwhile reaching a tacit understanding with Herriot that the actual evacuation shall begin sooner than the formal protocol calls for.

WORKERS GAINING IN AMALGAMATED BOSTON STRIKE; 20 ARRESTED

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BOSTON, Aug. 15—Twenty workers were arrested in the clothing strike now being carried on here by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. It is an indication of the feelings of the bosses at the success of the strike that they are obliged to resort to the usual brutal police tactics.

I. W. W. OFFICES LOCKED UP BY COURT ORDER

Judge Takes Possession in Faction Fight

Offices of the Industrial Workers of the World were locked up Friday with great big padlocks on the doors, and deputy's from the county court in charge.

The application for an injunction against Tom Doyle and Joe Fisher, secretary and general organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, filed in the court of Judge Hurley by James Rowan, Bowerman, and others, in the factional struggle for possession of the general headquarters, was put over until next Tuesday.

In the meantime an order was issued by the court that the headquarters building should be locked until the application is heard and a ruling made on the injunction application.

Everything Quiet Until Tuesday.

Judge Hurley left the city yesterday for a week-end at South Bend, Ind., and will not return to the city until Monday.

Attorney William A. Cunnea's office knew nothing about the case except that Cunnea is expected to return from Roosevelt, Wis., on Tuesday to appear in court.

JACKSONVILLE PACT SCUTTLES MINERS' UNION

Unemployment Councils Should Be Formed

The widespread unemployment, which has impoverished at least 100,000 working class families in Southern Illinois bituminous coal fields, makes it imperative that Unemployment Councils be immediately formed among the miners, and that the Illinois Miners' Union demand the payment of unemployment funds by the coal operators.

Frank Farrington, president of district 12 of the Miners Union, put his stamp of approval on the selling out of the membership when he refused to take a definite stand for the payment of unemployment funds by the coal operators and by the government. Farrington admitted his failure to aid the miners on May 13, in his report to the convention of the mine workers of Illinois in Peoria. "One hundred and fifty Illinois mines were completely closed on the first day of May," Farrington admitted. "And there is no immediate prospect of resuming operations. There is every indication that as time advances more mines will suspend. Fully 30,000 of our men are now idle. Very few of the mines that are now open are working more than half time and the great majority of them are not working that much." Instead of advocating unemployment benefits Farrington wanted the miners to speed up their work and aid the operators by cheapening benefits. John L. Lewis and the officials of the mine workers union sold out the miners by signing the Jacksonville agreement, on Tuesday, February 19, 1923.

The capitalist papers immediately complimented the mine officials for being "sensible" by aiding the coal operators to bring on unemployment. "The Jacksonville agreement was a move to deflate the mine industry," said the New York World. "The result will be the closing down of the mines, the officials of the United Mine Workers admit, and the releasing for other industries of perhaps 200,000 men."

WORKERS PARTY SETS QUOTA OF MILLION LEAFLETS TO BE DISTRIBUTED BY MEMBERSHIP

The first million leaflets of the Workers Party containing the platform upon which William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow have been nominated are now on the printing press.

"This leaflet is to be distributed by the party units between the first and tenth of September," said Joseph Manley, campaign manager, "in the shops, in union meetings, house to house in working class sections and everywhere the workers can be reached.

"Every party branch must help distribute these leaflets. We must increase the number of leaflets from the quarter of a million we have been distributing to at least a million. We must mobilize the whole membership for this work, so that we can reach the workers with our message."

The leaflets, which contain Robert Minor's powerful cartoon on present-day American institutions, will be sold to the branches at $1.75 per thousand in lots of 10,000 and $1.50 per thousand in larger quatitities. Remittance must be made with the orders so that the printing can be financed. In those cities where there are City Central Committees, the distribution should be organized thru the City Central Committees and branches should place their orders with the City Central Committee.

It is expected that every single member of the Workers Party will get into this campaign for literature distribution with all energy and help across at least the quota set by the party, a million leaflets. It is pointed out that it is relatively easy to distribute leaflets during election campaign time.

The Workers Party has the big task this year of work for its Communist candidates and against the Coolidge-Davis-LaFollette bunch. In this work it expects and will receive the full active support of its membership.

Daily Worker to Tell Facts About Jobless Blight

THE DAILY WORKER is going to tell the truth about the blight of unemployment that is gripping the state of Illinois, especially the coal mining districts.

And, what is true of the coal fields and the big industries of Illinois, is also true of the nation as a whole.

This campaign will be carried on in co-operation with the drive against unemployment being waged by the national organization of the Workers Party.

Karl Reeve, the DAILY WORKER'S labor reporter, will go into the various Illinois coal fields, and report the conditions of the workers just as he finds them.

Fifty thousand coal miners have been out of work for months in Illinois. Reeve will go to Springfield, the headquarters of the Illinois Mine Workers' Union, and will give intimate pictures of what the long continued unemployment means to the miners.

"Bloody Williamson" County, the heart of the Illinois coal fields, where the Ku Klux Klan has been operating around Herrin and Marion, to perpetuate the bloody name of the county, will be visited.

The Middlefort Mines, of Benton, owned by the United States Steel Corporation, and the Mason, Illinois, mine, said to be the largest bituminous coal mine in the world, are on the list.

Reeve will write about the everyday lives of the workers, their home life and their economic conditions, affected by the widespread unemployment. We hope to have the first article for Monday morning's issue. Order a bundle now. Address: The Daily Worker, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Illinois.

MOROCCANS IN FIGHT AGAINST SPANISH AND FRENCH IMPERIALISM

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

MADRID, Aug. 15.—Adbel Krim, who formerly led the Moroccan rebels against the Spanish, is now leading a revolt against the imperialism of France and Spain combined, advices from Tangier today confirmed. Additional forces today left for Morocco where a new outbreak of fighting with the rebel tribesmen has extended over a large section of the battle front.

Premier Primo de Rivera is meeting with his cabinet in an effort to find ways and means of suppressing this new struggle against imperialism.

STRIKE THREAT GROWS LOUDER IN SOUTH BEND

Studebaker Men Rebel Against Wage Cut

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 15.—Possibility that a strike of the men employed at the Studebaker automobile plant here would take place was seen today by the groups of workers that gathered grumbling about the new situation that has developed in the factory.

Huge numbers of men are unemployed in South Bend, having been laid off from the big factories like the Studebaker, the Singer Sewing Machine Co., and the Oliver Chilled Plow concern.

Wages Are Cut.

To make matters worse, new machinery has been installed in the Studebaker plant, which has displaced still more men. And the condition has been considerably aggravated by the fact that not only have men been driven out of jobs, but even those who were taken back have been put on a piece work allotment basis and have had their wages cut.

The workers are angry because the employers have taken advantage of the prevalent unemployment to cut wages. Many of them are talking about striking, and the only difficulty in the way is their total lack of any organization.

Communists to Take Action.

The City Central Committee of the Workers Party, which meets tonight, will take up the entire situation and consider ways and means of directing the discontent of the workers into profitable channels. The activity of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League in the strikes at Pullman and Hegewisch has set the mark for the Communist units in all other parts of the country, and not only have they learned the value of such tactics, but they are ready to take advantage of the experience gained in participating in the struggles of the workers.

Shoe Workers Reject Cut.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 15.—The sole leather workers rejected a proposition of the cut sole manufacturers' asking a wage reduction of 15 per cent and the restoration of teh five and one-half day week Aug. 23, when the present agreement expires.

COOLIDGE SPEECH PROGRAM FOR SUPPRESSION OF WORKING CLASS IS WILLIAM Z. FOSTER'S COMMENT

NEW YORK CITY, August 15.—"A program of suppression of the working class and a free hand to the capitalists, a fitting accompaniment to the platform adopted at Cleveland and to the record of the republican party." This was William Z. Foster's summarization of Coolidge's speech of acceptance. "As LaFolette is the representative of little business and more or less unconsciously a tool of Wall Street, as Davis is the liveried servant of Morgan, so is Coolidge the very embodiment of the dictatorship of the exploiters. His every word is an arrogant insult to the working class. It has, however, the merit of being frank. No one can make a mistake about Coolidge; to support him means to support domestic exploitation and foreign imperialism."

SPEAKS TWICE ON SUNDAY IN YOUNGSTOWN

Steel Workers Rally to Our Party Standards

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 15.—With the rousing battle cry of "Communism against Capitalism!", William Z. Foster opens the campaign of the Workers Party of America in the very heart of capitalism's stronghold, Mahoning Valley, on August 17.

Foster, the candidate of the Communists for the presidency, will rally to the red standards the thousands of steel workers whom he led against the octopus of the Steel Trust in 1919.

Will Expose Labor Fakers.

The complete collapse of the so-called organization drive of the steel workers with the money left over from the 1919 strike, which showed so clearly the bankruptcy and betrayal of the workers by the labor fakers who are now trying to drag the workers, bound hand and foot, into the camp of LaFollettetism, will receive their due at the hands of Foster.

LaFollette Discredited.

The steel workers, who still remember LaFollette as the man who kept his mouth carefully shut while they were being terrorised for striking against Gary, will attend the two Foster meetings by the thousands, it is announced. Arrangements have been made to accommodate both the night and day shifts. Foster will speak Aug. 17 at Avon Park, Girard, Ohio, 3 p. m. and again in the evening at Ukrainian Hall, 525½ West Rayen Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, 8 p. m.

Fear to Debate Foster.

Wallace T. Metcalfe, leading the party drive in this district, has challenged, on behalf of Foster, the fake labor leaders here who have indorsed LaFollette, to debate with the Communist candidate the issues of the campaign, but not one of them has dared to take up the challenge. The LaFollette forces here are the curious mixture of labor fakers, pseudo-socialists, business men and the reactionary Scripps paper.

Foster will appeal for support solely to the workers on the basis of the platform of the Workers Party of America.

Revolts in Brazil Outcome of a Naval Mission Sent by U. S.

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 15.—The whole South American press is pointing to the United States government's sending a delegation of naval officers to superintend the upbuilding of Brazil's fighting fleet as the cause of the Sao Paulo uprising. The government of Brazil is expressing its indignation in no small terms at Washington's action.

Refuse to Pay Oil Taxes.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—The oil companies are refusing to pay the Mexican government the oil taxes on exports for the last quarter. They say since these taxes were destined for payment on the debt to American bankers and since payment has been suspended, that they, too, will not pay.

ORDER YOUR BUNDLE OF THE DAILY WORKER'S FIRST SPECIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE—SEE PAGE TWO

HEGEWISCH CAR COMPANY CAN'T BREAK STRIKE

Carmen Turn Back 25 Imported Workers

Twenty-five car builders from Hammond, Ind., were yesterday turned back from the gates of the Western Steel Car and Foundry Co. plant at Hegewisch, Ill., by the striking carmen who were picketing in front of the factory.

It was later discovered by the strikers from the Hammond men, who were very sympathetic, that the company had advertised for men in the Lake County News, a newspaper published in Hammond. The men were offered 42c a car which is 7c more than the men were getting before the strike and 2c more than they are demanding now.

Try to Break Strike.

The obvious purpose of the advertisement was to get men to start breaking the strike, which is getting too effective for the bosses, and later to cut their wages also.

The campaign to organize the car builders of the Calumet region took another step forward Thursday night at the meeting called in Hegewisch, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen. The meeting was attended by those striking car builders who have decided to organize a local of the union in Hegewisch. E. K. Hogan, organizer of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, was chairman of the meeting. The meeting was addressed by Tom Bell, and M. Goreta of the South Slavic Federation of the Workers Party.

Organization Growing.

This is the second meeting in the campaign to organize locals of the Carmen's Union. Both in Hammond and Hegewisch a good basis has been laid for strong locals. In the near future a meeting will be held in Pullman. E. K. Hogan stated to the DAILY WORKER that he is of the opinion that the campaign will be successful, and result in the organization of the car builders of the entire district.

The latest development in the strike at the Western Steel Car plant is the shutting down of the entire plant. It is said that the plant will open again on Monday and that an attempt will be made to hire men either from the ranks of the strikers or by importing them from other places. For the last few mornings the employment agent of the plant has been busy among groups of strikers urging them to return to work. His idea is that if he could get a few men to desert, that this would cause a stampede.

Strikers Won't Yield.

But the strikers are hardly likely to give in now when it appears that they have gotten the better of the company. Material for over 700 steel cars has been lying in the plant since the strike started, and it is calculated that this means that the company has $600,000 tied up in this way. Besides this, the overhead is piling up, and they are faced with the prospects of cancellation of their orders unless they get them out in the near future.

The strikers are confident that if they can stay out for another week that the company will be willing to grant their demands.

Mailers Gain 100 Per Cent.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 15.—With the signing of Hearst's Milwaukee Sentinel, the Mailers' union, a division of the Typographical union, is able to report a 100 per cent increase in membership in the Milwaukee local in three and one half years. They have 51 members, comprising all the English language newspaper mailrooms in the city and most of the foreign language ones.

WORKERS PARTY IN CAPITAL CITY HAS EXCURSION PLANS

At a recent committee meeting of representatives from the Washington (D. C.) Branch of the Workers Party and Young Workers League it was decided to run an excursion to Marshall Hall, Md., Aug. 24, and while there to sell tickets for the Gitlow lecture, scheduled for Pythian Temple, August 25.

FIRST BLOOD IN BIG PARTY FUND DRIVE

Two Branches Send in Their Contributions

The first response to the Party appeal for $100,000 Campaign Fund to carry on the fight for Communist principles in the election campaign reached the National Office in the form of a contribution from the Rural Ridge, Pa. branch of the Party, and the Inwood, L. I., N. Y. branch.

The secretary of the Rural Ridge, Pa., branch, B. M. Schultz, writes as follows: "You will find enclosed a money order for $75 which we raised at a picnic held for the purpose of boosting the Workers Party Campaign Fund. We are sending $25 to the District Office."

The Inwood, Long Island, Finnish branch writes as follows: "Enclosed please find money order for $55 for the Workers Party election campaign fund from the Inwood Finnish branch. Kindly acknowledge receipt of the above."

Set Good Example.

These branches have set the ball a-rolling in work to build up the $100,000 campaign fund. If all other branches of the party go to work with the same vim and vigor, we will be able to carry on the greatest campaign for Communist principles that has ever been made in the United States.

The campaign fund raised by the party will be divided between the local organization, district organization and national organization in the proportion of 25 per cent for the local, 25 per cent for the district organization and 50 per cent for the national organization, so that every unit of the party will benefit and have funds for its work in support of the Communist candidates and Communist principles.

HINDOO PRINCE UNDER MACDONALD RULE SAYS HE HAS NO OPINIONS

Maharajah Rajendra Bahadur, a Hindu Prince from Jind, India, on a tour thru America to study educational institutions and hospitals, stopped at the aristocratic Blackstone Hotel while visiting Chicago. The DAILY WORKER reporter tried to get an interview with this prince to get his views on the present MacDonald government in England and the Soviet Government of Russia. The prince was unavailable.

Mr. John Nevins, the Cook Tours representative and a member of the prince's party, told the DAILY WORKER reporter that the prince never expresses an opinion on any subject.

"But he may have an opinion on how his people should be governed," the DAILY WORKER reporter protested.

The prince never expresses an opinion on anything at all, was all Mr. Nevins would reply.

DEVER JOINS WAR MONGERS' DEFENSE DAY

Y. W. L. in Counter-Demonstration

Taking a verbal position on Defense Day which will satisfy no one, Mayor Dever succumbed very easily to the demand of the state committee for Defense Test day and appointed a committee of forty-one for the purpose of planning a city demonstration on September 12.

"In so far as the demand for a Defense Test day is being used to influence larger appropriations from the public treasury for the benefit of munitions makers, thus increasing the taxpayer's burdens, or to quicken the glory for fear of war in the hearts of our people, I am opposed to it," said the brilliant mayor.

Kidding Himself.

And while he added that "just now when the world is war weary and broken after the most deadly war in history, the appropriateness of choosing this particular time for a Defense Test day may be well questioned," he did absolutely nothing that might be construed as a defiance to the plans of the militarists and munition makers of the country to mobilize the strength of the country in peace time for war preparations.

The 65th reserve cavalry division, which has about a thousand reserve officers in Chicago, thru its Lieut.-Col. Lee Alexander Stone, announced last night that a "voluntary mobilization" of 10,000 civilians would be held in Grant Park the afternoon of September 12.

Will Counteract Militarists.

With the intention of counteracting the capitalist war preparations, the Young Workers League of Chicago, along with units in all other parts of the country, will hold its International Youth Day celebration. The place and time of the meting will shortly be announced.

WORKERS LAWS TO BE FOUGHT BY EMPLOYERS

Legislation which curbs the rights of the powers of the employers in time of strike will be presented at the Illinois General Assembly beginning January, 1925. Some of the prolabor legislation which will come before the Assembly, includes an anti-injunction bill which gives the employes his fundamental right to strike for a living wage; increased workmen's compensation; eight-hour day and minimum wage legislation; old-age pension and state insurance acts; one-day rest in seven bill; bills providing for adequate train crews on all freight trains; and a bill denying the power of the court to obstruct activities of labor unions.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce has issued a circular declaring they will fight both the humane and economic labor reforms advocated in the bills. The manufacturers declare they fear "the legislation will turn business upside down."

LaFollette Notified by A. F. of L. That He is Their Friend

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette was formally notified yesterday of the indorement of his presidential candidacy by the American Federation of Labor.

LaFollette received the labor committee, consisting of Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation; James O'Connell, president of the metal trades department, and Martin F. Ryan, president of the Railway Carmen of America, in his office at the capitol.

Morrison acted as the spokesman for the executive council of the labor federation in the absence of Samuel Gompers, who is at Atlantic City.

N. Y. Baker Locks Out Amalgamated Food Workers Men

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Bekery Shop going under the name of Harry Markovitz, 108 First Ave., between 6th and 7th Streets, New York, has declared a lockout.

The workers are picketing the shop and five arrests of pickets have already taken place—all released without fine.

The Bakers of this shop are members of the Bakers Local No. 1, Amalgamated Food Workers. This shop was under control of Local No. 1 for the past 15 years.

FIFTH ARTICLE IN THE LOVESTONE SERIES IN OUR MONDAY'S ISSUE

The "Big Three" candidates of capitalism, Coolidge, Davis, and LaFollette, are now vieing with each other in a sort of a purity contest.

That Coolidge and Davis will convince the country that the republican and democratic parties are steeped in hopeless political corruption, there can be no doubt.

But what about LaFollette? Is his record as lily white as he would have us believe? Do graft and good government mix in LaFollette's barony? Is LaFollette's machine free from corruption? How clean were LaFollette's skirts when he was governor of his model commonwealth?

And who owns and controls the state legislature and senate under the "Wisconsin plan" which LaFollette is asking the workers to apply on a national scale?

These are a few of the pertinent questions the fifth article in our LaFollette series will answer. Get this story in full in Monday, August 18th, issue of the DAILY WORKER. It will be timely and convincing.

MUSICIANS OF CHICAGO STRIKE ON LABOR DAY

According to the capitalist newspapers, the managers of the Chicago theatres, headed by Harry J. Riding, representative of George M. Cohan, and John J. Argyis, western representative of the Shuberts' theatre, declared a lockout on the musicians in the Chicago theatres because the Chicago Musicians' Federation Local No. 10 put in a demand for a 10-per cent increase in wages.

At the offices of the Musicians' Union at 175 W. Washington street, James C. Peirillo, president of Local 10, told the DAILY WORKER reporter quite a different story.

"We are going out on strike on Labor Day because the theatre managers after conferring with us for ten weeks, refused to grant us a 10 per cent raise in our wages, which we consider absolutely necessary. Mr. Riding says we are the best paid musicians in the world, in a statement he made to the Chicago press. Well, if we are, then it is about time musicians did something to get better wages.

"The public doesn't know what the musicians are up against. Our rate of wages is $60 per week. Out of the 52 weeks in a year we never average over 35 weeks of work, very often much less. Come around here any Monday morning and you will see the line of musicians waiting for a chance to work. A musician does not know what it means to have a steady job. Today he works, tomorrow he may be looking for work.

"When a new show comes to town sometimes the musicians wait from 12 to 14 weeks until the music is written and all the time the show is going on.

The picture houses such as Balaban & Katz and all the two-a-day picture houses have granted the musicians' demands. Grand Opera house gave us a 25 per cent increase. Only the musical comedy shows and drama theatres are holding out on us.

"There will be about 700 men involved in this strike and we will stick until we win because we have a just demand—a decent living wage—to which every worker is entitled."

Every time the workers make an attempt to better their conditions they are given an opportunity to learn how the capitalist press lies to help the bosses. This time it is the musicians.

This morning's papers were carrying stories about the very unjust demands of the musicians, who were going out on strike for bigger wages when they already were commanding the very best wages paid musicians in this country. They particularly stressed the statement of the managers that they would be forced out of business if they give the musicians a 10 per cent raise.

Italy Is No Piker.

ROME, Aug. 15.— Being no piker compared to the bigger powers, Italy is also to have its "defense day." For the first time in 14 years Italy's navy is starting consolidated maneuvers in the Ionian Sea today.

SHALL DAILY WORKER PRINT MARKET REPORTS FOR FARMER READERS?

The DAILY WORKER has received a communication from a Northwestern farmer asking that market reports be printed in the DAILY WORKER. What do the other rural readers of the DAILY WORKER think? Would the space which the daily market reports would occupy in the DAILY WORKER be wasted?

The DAILY WORKER would like to hear from its farmer readers, telling us whether or not they want daily market reports printed in their paper.

Every Cent Given Away Must Return Increased in Size

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Rockefeller Foundation is planning to send a check for $5,000,000 to Japan, the money presumably to be spent on a "health institution."

That is good business for John D. Rockefeller and his Standard Oil trust.

* * * * *

"John D." spends some of his surplus millions on "health" in Japan, China and other oriental countries.

Carnegie spent his on libraries.

Rosenwald offers donations for Y. M. C. A. buildings.

Morgan specializes in art institutes.

Kahn and McCormick go in for the opera.

Ward and Weeghman offered baseball teams.

All their offerings were and are merely the missionaries of their separate business ambitions.

* * * * *

If John D. Rockefeller, senior or junior, were at all concerned about the health conditions among the masses, they could best start work among those who toil around the Standard Oil wells or refineries at home.

Out in Elk Basin, Wyoming, men labor incessantly under the worst possible conditions, 12 hours per day, seven days per week. John D., Jr., sheds tears about revolting horrors in Pennsylvania's coal mines, or the Southern cotton mills, and weeps over benighted Orientals, but for his own slaves he hasn't a single tear.

No effort has ever been made to better the life of the serfs in the Standard Oil refineries, at Bayonne, N. J., for instance. When the workers have sought to do this themselves, thru wage demands reinforced by strikes, their efforts have been crushed with the full brutalizing force of capitalist "law and order."

* * * * *

The Rockefeller Foundation, with its hundreds of millions in resources, has an entirely different and sinister purpose from that always advertised by the kept press.

Standard Oil believes in expansion. It goes into every land. China and Japan, with other oriental lands, offer rich fields of exploitation. But orientals are prejudiced against the occident. That prejudice must be beaten down. Hence the riches wrung from the oil slaves of Bayonne, N. J., and Elk Basin, Wyoming, and everywhere else that Standard Oil has secured its position, are used in part as gifts to other peoples, not yet under "John D.'s" grip, in order to overcome their fears.

* * * * *

Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., reaches the same goal thru donations to prospective buildings of the Young Men's Christian Association, especially in small localities. It is good advertising. He surrounds the Sears-Roebuck name with the popular glory that accompanies philanthropy, and small town and rural prejudice against this monster mail order machine vanishes. Rosenwald specializes in Negro Y. M. C. A. buildings. The 10,000,000 Negroes of the nation make good prospective customers.

* * * * *

Andrew Carnegie, with all his millions spent on libraries, was never able to wipe out the blood that smeared his name as a result of the Homestead massacre of workers, and other barbaric attempts to keep steel labor in a 100 percent state of serfdom.

* * * * *

What John D. attempts on an international scale, Ward, the "Bread Trust" king, seeks to accomplish nationally.

New cities invaded by the bread trust resent the coming of the outsider. Local business must be protected.

Business, however, recognizes no obstacles. Numerous have been the methods used by the bread trust to overcome this local prejudice.

Ward finally hit upon the idea of using the baseball approach to the public. The Federal League was organized in competition with the National and American Leagues. Ward had his own Brooklyn team. Charles Weeghman, who had plans, and still has, of covering the nation with a chain of one-arm lunch rooms, took the Chicago team.

An effort was made to build the name of "Ward" as big as that of "Babe" Ruth, in baseball. But at the same time the Ward "open shop" policy was pressed ever more viciously in all cities where Ward bread factories already existed.

* * * * *

The big bankers do not resort very much to this sort of subterfuge. Morgan donates an art gallery to the city of New York, to divert popular attention from his latest war making maneuvers. Otto Kahn, Wall Street banker, keeps in the public eye as a supporter of Metropolitan Grand Opera, at the same time issuing literature attacking labor at every opportunity.

* * * * *

The Orientals, especially the Japs and the Chinese, will do well to ponder these facts when "John D." comes bearing his gifts. When the oil business is firmly established in the Orient, "John D." will take every cent back again, not only in extortionate prices, but in imposing the worst possible conditions upon the workers in the Far Eastern countries, even as he does in the United States. "John D." or any other big capitalist for that matter, never gave a cent away without expecting it to come back home very much increased in size.

LOEB, LEOPOLD TRIAL TORN BY GLAND WARFARE

The war of the glands continued in full force yesterday at the amusing trial of the two youthful perverts, Loeb and Leopold, murderers of the Franks solon. The defense stood four square for the proposition that the ductless glands of the slayers were not up to batting average and that their pineal glands were suffering of late with a severe attack of neuritis.

Endocrimologist on Stand.

This statement was scornfully rejected by the prosecution which summoned none other than an endocrinologist, Dr. Rollin Woodyatt, who went into long explanations as to why he was of the opinion that while it was barely possible that their thymus was defective, he was certain that their endocrines were functioning as well as they might, hot weather considered—altho, he asseverated, he had never had the good fortune to examine any of the slayers' glands.

Dickie Loeb yesterday welcomed Kid McCoy into the circle of Despatchers of the Living with a congratulatory telegram.

The capitalist newspapers last night spread the important news that Clarence Darrow had bobbed his hair.

Nine Killed in Train Crash.

LISBON, Aug. 15.— Nine persons were killed and many injured today by a collision of the Madrid and Oporto express trains.

W. P. SPEAKERS AGAIN PINCHED BY CICERO COP

Communist Candidate Is Held on $52 Bail

"Tell it to the captain," was the reply of the Cicero cop to Frank Pellegrino, Workers Party candidate for Congress, when the latter read the first amendment of the constitution as proof that he needed no permit to speak on the corner of 14th Street and 51st Avenue.

Pinched by Army of Cops.

Both comrade Pellegrino, and D. E. Earley, who had preceded him on the soap box were picked up by a squad of 7 policemen, 3 detectives and 2 motorcycle cops.

They were then escorted to the near familiar police station in Cicero, accompanied by a hooting crowd of almost 2,000 men, women and children, who shouted acrimonious phrases at the uniformed gentry.

The Evidence.

In the hoosegow, the detective presented the police captain with a copy each of the DAILY WORKER, Il Lavoratore, Italian Communist daily, and the paper upon which the first amendment to the constitution had been written, as evidence of the insidious criminal intentions of the Communist speakers. Both comrades were then released on a $52 bail each, a decrease of 50 per cent since the last arrest on that corner a week ago.

The Workers Party, far from being deterred by these petty tactics of the Ciceronian defenders of law and order, will continue to hold meetings on that same corner every Thursday night until the cops have finally learned that they can't pull the same stuff for too long.

BALDWIN PLANS BIG FIGHT FOR MINERS' RIGHTS

Findings of Commission Exposes Owners Control

Efforts to get action on the findings of the recent United States Commission to stop "the denial of civil liberties in the soft coal fields" were started today by the American Civil Liberties Union in a circular letter sent to hundreds of attorneys, ministers and local officials in the non-union soft coal districts.

The letter says in part:

Civil Liberties to Insist on Action.

"The findings of the U. S. Coal Commission, for which the government spent over half million dollars, will go their way into the archives like other government reports, unless somebody gets busy to put them into effect. We are opening a campaign in the non-union soft coal districts which we trust will result in restoring those communities to the right of exercise of ordinary civil rights of American citizens."

The conditions which the Commission points out are:

"Complete ownership of the coal towns by the companies; ejection of miners and their families from company-owned houses at a moment's notice; the payment and arming by the coal operators of deputy sheriffs who beat up and evict union organizers and sympathizers; 'yellow dog' contracts which forbid workers to join the union or discuss unionism; injunctions which forbid strikes, picketing, and meetings and the use of state constabulatory or the national guard to crush strikes."

The districts chiefly affected are western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Alabama and Utah and include a population of almost a million.

The Civil Liberties union plans to organize committees in these districts to work for the Coal Commission's program.

Tom Bell Speaks to Chicagoans Monday for North Siders

Tom Bell, former editor of the Maritime Labor Herald and organizer for the Communist Party, will speak at Imperial Hall, corner of Halsted and Fullerton, Monday, August 25, at 8 p. m., on "The Development of Communist Trade Union Activities in Canada."

Participant in the latest struggle of labor and aiding in the application of its policies, the speaker has a most interesting story for the trade unionists of Chicago.

The usual discussion, for which the North Side branch has been receiving much merited attention, will follow the main speaker.

Visitors are invited and the meeting begins promptly at 8:15.

Order Your Bundle of First Campaign Issue

MAKE Monday, Sept. 1, a real "Labor Day" for the American Communist movement, by distributing a bundle of the First 1924 Campaign Issue of the DAILY WORKER.

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY..... STATE.....

WORKERS VOTE ELECTED HIM, CALLES ADMITS

Mexico's New President Addresses A. F. of L.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—"I have been selected president of Mexico thru the expressed will of the working class of my country because from the beginning of my political campaign I said I would look for help only in the working classes and that I desired that in the political campaign the reactionary elements should remain my enemies and fight my candidacy," said president elect of Mexico, General Plutarco Calles, according to the text of his speech to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor which recently meet at Atlantic City.

"I said this was necessary because I wanted to know from the beginning where I stood," continued Calles, "and that the two candidates remain very distinct. On the one side the vindicating program of the working classes and on the other the retarding program of the reactionaries. The fight began. I have won thru the will of the workers, and my government is due to them and will be helped by them so long as I fulfill my obligations, because the working class of Mexico is waiting and watching what its leaders are doing, and will give help to those authorities that know how to guard the interests of the Mexican workers."

Supported By Communists

Calles' candidacy was supported by the organized communist movement in Mexico. The Communists, while they called upon the workers to vote for Calles, warned them that they would later find that Calles would not be able to solve any of the problems of the working masses and would finally prove traitor to their interests. They called upon the workers to support him, however, because he represented a class that was engaged in a struggle against the capitalists of Mexico, at the same time pointing out that only the workers' revolution would free them from the chains of native and foreign exploiters.

American Legion to Back Mobilization Plan of Militarists

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 15.—Whole-hearted co-operation of the American Legion with the war department and with civic and patriotic organizations in the test of the national defense, which is to be made on Sept. 12, is pledged by John R. Quinn, national commander of the Legion.

In a letter to Secretary of War John W. Weeks, made public here today, Commander Quinn declared the whole machinery of the Legion will be used to make a success of the test.

Price of Bread Goes Up in Italy.

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 15.—Municipal authorities here have decided to increase the price of bread 10 centimes (2 cents) a kilo (2.2 pounds).

Back Communist Election Campaign With Big $100,000 Campaign Fund

By C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary, Workers Party.

The Wall Street Candidates.

WALL STREET and the Big Capitalists have named their tickets. They are playing safe with two candidates—Coolidge on the republican party ticket and Davis on the democratic.

The capitalists—Morgan, Gary & Co.—want to keep things as they are. They want the industries to be run for their profits. They want to maintain their right to pile up fortunes of hundreds of millions of dollars out of the toil of the workers and farmers.

The capitalists want the government to continue to be the dictatorship of Wall Street. They want to use the government to loot the country's natural resources in the Teapot Dome fashion. They want the government to fix legislation so that they can roll up more profits. They want to shift the burden of taxation on the backs of the workers and farmers. They want high tariffs for their enrichment.

The capitalists want to use the government to protect their investments in other countries. They want a big army and a big navy so that they can fight for the right to exploit other countries.

The capitalists want the government, too, so that they can use it directly against the workers and farmers. They want to fight workers and farmers on strike with injunctions and soldiers. They want to legislate to make the farmers pay high freight rates, high interest and high costs for marketing their goods.

That is what the capitalists are fighting for. The Wall Street tickets—Coolidge, republican; Davis, democrat, stand for these things, and that is why the capitalists will fight to elect them.

• • •

The Little Business Men's Candidate.

BIG business has its candidates—Coolidge and Davis. Little business has a candidate of its own—LaFollette.

The little business men don't like the way the Big Capitalists hog the profits. The big corporations and trusts are driving them out of business. They don't like the way the Big Capitalists shift the burden of taxation. They don't want to pay the costs of a big army and navy to protect the financial investments of the Big Capitalists, nor do they want to fight for new fields of exploitation for the Big Capitalists.

LaFollette stands for the interest of these little business men—the independent manufacturer, the independent banker. With these little business men there are allied the professional men and some of the aristocracy of labor.

The LaFollette platform is not a platform in the interest of the workers and farmers. It is a platform in the interest of the little business men.

LaFollette wants to "bust the trusts." If the trusts are busted, then the little business men would flourish. But the great corporations and trusts can't be destroyed. It has been tried for twenty years and failed. They should not be destroyed, if that could be done, because they represent a higher development of ability to produce wealth.

LaFollette wants to go back to 1776. We can't go back; we must go forward.

The interests of the workers and farmers are not in what has been in the past. Their program is not to try to "bust the trusts," but to nationalize them and use them in their own interests.

The Communist Ticket.

THE Workers Party has nominated against the candidates of the Big Capitalists and the Little Capitalists a Communist ticket—William Z. Foster for president and Benjamin Gitlow for vice president.

The Workers Party ticket stands for the interests of the workers and exploited farmers. The Workers Party is for a workers and farmers' government. The Workers Party declares that the great organization for production of wealth must be taken over by the government of the workers and farmers and operated for service and not for profits of the capitalists. The Workers Party declares that the rule of the workers and farmers must be expressed thru a Soviet government and that there must be a dictatorship of the proletariat in place of the present dictatorship of Wall Street.

The Workers Party will fight for immediate relief of the unemployed. The Workers Party is for recognition of the first government of workers and peasants—the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The Workers Party is fighting for the creation of a great mass party of workers and farmers for the struggle against capitalism.

Against Coolidge and Davis, the agents of the Big Capitalists—against LaFollette, the agent of the Little Capitalists and the misleaders of the workers—the Workers Party raises the slogan of a revolutionary class party to fight for the workers and exploited farmers.

• • •

Help in This Fight.

TO MAKE this fight the Workers Party is asking the members of the party and those who sympathize with it to raise a $100,000 campaign fund, to tour speakers, to print literature and place the Communist message before the workers of this country.

Subscription lists for the Communist Campaign Fund are being sent to all sympathetic workers, who are asked to circulate them among their friends and fellow-workers.

Branches of the Workers Party are being supplied with Communist Campaign Fund stamps. These stamps come in books of $10.00 each, and each branch will be assigned a quota to raise thru its members in accordance with the strength of the branch. The stamps are to be sold to members and sympathizers. They are printed in denominations of 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00.

Help make the Communist fight. Back up the Communist challenge in the first nomination of candidates who stand for the proletarian revolution, the Soviets and dictatorship of the proletariat with this $100,000 campaign fund.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from page 1)

bination in New York. Everybody is jumping on the socialists, who have humiliated themselves until they have not a shred of dignity left. But the lower they sink the more kicks they get. The latest attack made on them by a section of their bourgeois allies is in connection with the LaGuardia candidacy on the LaFollette ticket. The Independents of the Twentieth Congressional District, who are behind LaGuardia will not stand for the placing of socialist candidates from the same district. The Harlem Peddlers' Association and the Independent Harlem Citizens League are up in arms.

• • •

THE socialists have endorsed LaGuardia for Congress but also endorsed two socialists for the state senate and the assembly. The petty bourgeois and middle class supporters of LaFollette were up in the air over this, believing that the socialists were trying to put one over on them by trying to sneak over the tape on a wave of LaFollette popularity. It is reported that LaGuardia will support the anti-socialist candidates in the fight. The American Labor Party convention which is a duplicate of the socialist party, endorsed the socialist party candidates but the LaFollette business men threaten to upset the apple cart unless they are withdrawn.

• • •

WE did not know there was a socialist party in Idaho, until a copy of the Pocatello Tribune came to hand, with the news that the socialist party of that state indorsed LaFollette. A state chairman discovered himself and got his name in the papers by coming out for the Badger State senator. The socialist party did not go back on its revolutionary principles. Oh no! It merely went along with the crowd. Couldn't possibly miss the opportunity to be in the same boat with Samuel Gompers.

• • •

TOO much pessimism! That is the trouble with the business situation, says Mr. George W. Hinman, reactionary financial columnist for the Hearst press. The banks are bursting with wealth he tells us (some of them are busting without it) there is plenty of capital, money rates are low. What is the matter with the calamity howlers? Nothing the matter except that there are a couple of millions of unemployed who cannot get a job and are therefore worrying about the prospects of supporting their families. They cannot eat on the money that is stored up in the banks and if they go to the bankers for a loan at a low rate of interest it is probable they will land in the psychopathic hospitals if not in an undertaker's parlor. Outside of that trifling evidence of "pessimism" everything is alright.

• • •

BRITAIN sends warships and troops to the Sudan to keep the workers from hurting themselves with crazy notions about independence. This kind of thing is what the noble Allies declared war on Germany for but now that the war is almost over, they are beginning to change their minds. Freedom may be good for Poland because Poland is a willing agent of the big capitalist nations. It may be good for Checko-Slavia, Jogo-Slavia, Bulgaria and the other nations whose people changed masters after the armistice but for countries under the rule of the victorious nations, self-determination was not the word.

• • •

THE Egyptians did not properly appreciate having a pacifist premier in England. They thot that a man who was so anxious to bring about peace between the capitalist nations of Europe would be equally unwilling to shed the blood of exploited colonists in the Sudan. But they know better now. And those who expect that pacifists can bring peace have another opportunity to change their minds. MacDonald sent his warships to Egypt just as readily as Stanley Baldwin or Lloyd George would. He is the servant of the rulers of Britain. Until the British workers establish the Soviet Republic in Great Britain and unhorse the capitalists, the capitalists will have no reason to be afraid of so-called labor governments.

RUSS COMMUNIST DAILY PUSHING RED CANDIDATES

Federation Back of the Campaign

The Russian Federation is conducting a vigorous campaign thru the columns of the Russian daily Communist organ, the Novy Mir, to secure a large vote for the Communist presidential and vice presidential candidates and for the success of the drive to secure new members in the Workers Party. Every day a special campaign article appears in the Novy Mir, emphasizing the slogan, "Vote for Communist candidates." Editorials also appeal to the Russian workers to vote the Communist ticket.

Join the Party.

Another slogan that may be seen daily in Novy Mir is, "Every reader of our paper must be a Member of the Workers Party." The Russian Federation is vigorously conducting the membership drive in conjunction with the election campaign.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 15.—The average age at death of printers in the Ind. Typographical union is 54. Twenty years ago it was 45.

Penetrating Analysis! Burning Criticism! Sound Logic!
THE NEW AND SIGNIFICANT BOOK ENTITLED
The World's Trade Union Movement
By A. LOSOVSKY
General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions
In this book, published in March at Moscow, and now made available to American readers, the leader of 13,000,000 trade unionists depicts, dissects, and measures the relation of forces developed before, during, and since the war.
The first book ever written dealing so comprehensively with this vital subject
William Z. Foster says:
"Here are described every political, economic, and organizational force of the world's trade unions, and their role in the fight, developed since the war, between Reformists and Revolutionists."
112 PAGES, STIFF PAPER COVER, WITH PHOTO OF AUTHOR.
FIFTY CENTS PER COPY.
Bundle orders of ten or more, 35 cents each, with special rate on larger orders.
Trade Union Educational League,
1113 Washington Blvd. Chicago, Ill.
A special edition of this book has also been published for the Workers Party. Branches and members of the party are expected to place their orders with the literature department at the same address.

Amalgamated Food Workers
GENERAL HEADQUARTERS
81 East 10th Street, New York, N. Y.
THIS IS OUR CENTRAL UNION EX-BOARD AFW EMBLEM EMBLEM
An Industrial Organization For All Workers in the Food Industry

COKOS BROTHERS
Groceries
Cigars Cigarettes
Tobacco
and Candies
1111 W. WASHINGTON ST.

Go to eat where all the rest 100% union men and women go
Deutche-Hungarian Restaurant
29 South Halsted St.
Pure Food, Good Service and reasonable prices our motto

Mueller's RESTAURANT
A good place to eat.
1010 RUSH STREET
Tel. Superior 7079
Downstairs of National Office.

George E. Pashas
COZY LUNCH
2426 Lincoln Avenue
One-half block from Imperial Hall
CHICAGO

JAY STETLER'S
RESTAURANT
Established 1901
1053 W. Madison St. Chicago
Tel. Monroe 2241

FURNISHED ROOMS, APARTMENTS AND BUNGALOWS.
REDS COMING TO WASHINGTON, D. C.
Furnished Rooms, $10 to $25 a Month.
Apartments, $25 to $60 a Month.
Bungalows, $45 to $75 a Month.
Mrs. Bateler, 32 G Street, S. W.
Washington, D. C.

RUBBER STAMPS AND SEALS
IN ENGLISH AND IN ALL FOREIGN LANGUAGES
INK, PADS, DATERS, RUBBER TYPE, Etc.
NOBLER STAMP & SEAL CO.
73 W. Van Buren St.
Phone Wabash 6589
CHICAGO
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO

Res. 1632 S. Trumbull Ave,
Phone Rockwell 5050
MORDECAI SHULMAN
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
701 Association Building
19 S. La Salle Street CHICAGO
Dearborn 8657 Central 4945-4947

MITCHALL'S
INTERNATIONAL ORCHESTRA
Union Music Furnished For All Occasions
Write for appointments to
M. MITCHALL,
(Teacher of Saxophone)
1640 W. Congress St. Chicago, Ill.

Meet us at the
Prudential Restaurant
752 NORTH AVE.
The only place to eat.

Tel. Monroe 7281
We Serve Nothing But the Best
VICTORY
Restaurant and Lunch Room
Pranos Brothers
1054 West Madison St. Chicago

MAC'S BOOK STORE
DETROIT
Full line of Sociological and Labor Literature.
Periodicals and Newspapers
27 JOHN R STREET

THE WORLD'S GREATEST TONIC for lowered vitality makes your blood tingle with joy the minute you taste it. Take a wine glass full of LIPSEY'S
BITTERS
before meals and note the improvement of your health in a few days. Order a bottle by coupon below.
LIPSEY PRODUCTS CO.
1133 Foster Ave., Chicago
Enclosed is $1.85. Please send one bottle of LIPSEY'S BITTERS at once.
Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State.....
Money Back Guarantee

ROOMS FOR RENT
Steam heated, furnished, single or double, hot water.
1801 SO. HAMLIN AVE.
Telephone, Lawndale 2215

MY COMPLIMENTS TO THE DAILY WORKER
DR. M. WISHNER
DENTIST
800 W. North Ave., Cor. Halsted St.
Lincoln 9010

Furnishings
LADIES'
MEN'S INFANTS'
Trade Where Your Money Buys the Most
Martin's
651 West North Avenue
East of Halsted St.

"Trade-Mark" Registered 157417
TAKE NO CHANCES
BUY THE ORIGINAL
THE GENUINE
THE RELIABLE
High Test "No Boil" Malt Extract
If you want purity— If you want reliability— If you want results— If you want to save time, worry and fuss—Insist on "No-Boil."
It is the original "No Boil" Malt Extract manufactured solely from the choicest Malted Barley.
For Sale by Leading Dealers
HIGH TEST MALT EXTRACT COMPANY
20 East Eighth Street Chicago, Ill.
Phone Wabash 2580
1917 North Western Avenue
6748 South Halsted Street
605 East 63rd Street
5062 Lincoln Avenue
1503 Roosevelt Road
Leiter Store Basement

Your unemployed dollars belong at the Amalgamated Trust & Savings Bank
371 W. Jackson Blvd.--Chicago
CHICAGO'S ONLY LABOR BANK

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
(Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
By mail:
$8.00 per year $4.50—6 months $2.40—3 months
By mail (in Chicago only):
$6.00 per year $4.50—6 months $2.50—3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL } Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE }
MORITZ J. LOEB ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

Foster Speaks Tomorrow

William Z. Foster opens the Communist presidential campaign tomorrow afternoon in the heart of the Steel Trust realm. On Sunday afternoon thousands of steel workers will gather at Avalon Park, Youngstown, Ohio, to hear Foster flay the candidates of Wall Street, Coolidge and Davis, and puncture the pretensions of the representative of the patent medicine manufacturers, small merchants, and the Spreckels-Vanderlip capitalists—LaFollette.

After the workers have been fed up on the platitudinous Coolidge, who points with pride to his wage-cutting, injunction-issuing, labor-baiting administration; on the cynically aristocratic Davis, who boasts of his long service on the payroll of J. Pierpont Morgan; on the unctious LaFollette, who cries for a return to the "golden past of 1776" while he makes alliances with the most corrupt and reactionary union officials and with politicians supporting republican and democratic party organization—after all this, it will be refreshing to hear the worker, Foster, proclaiming the war of the working class against all of its exploiters, the proletarian revolution, the rule of the workers thru their own councils.

William Z. Foster enters the presidential campaign under the banner of Communism. There will be no bunk given to the workers that they can emancipate themselves by voting for Foster. On the contrary, the Communist message in this and every campaign is that only the working class itself, in the most bitter struggle against the capitalist class, can abolish exploitation. The presidential campaign is merely one of the means of rallying and uniting the revolutionary will of the workers, to give it expression, and to establish in the minds of the working masses the great revolutionary lessons of the class struggle and the proletarian dictatorship. That is what Foster's meeting tomorrow in Youngtown will mean.

Exit the New Majority

The New Majority is no more. Its place has been taken by the Federation News, under the editorship of James Bruck, formerly an employe of Denny, Lane of malodorous stockyards memory, and pledged to the support of Gompers in all things.

Such are the laws of life. For a living thing to continue to exist, it must continually justify its existence. It must make itself necessary. It must be something. It must stand for something. If it is a publication it must be wholeheartedly an advocate of one side or the other in the struggles that are going on. It cannot blow hot and cold at the same time. It cannot straddle. Because the New Majority did not observe these laws it had to die.

Coming into being at a time when the Chicago Federation of Labor, its sponsor, was the foremost exponent of independent working class political action along the lines of a federated Farmer-Labor Party, the New Majority exercised quite an influence and acquired a reputation of militant progressiveness. But when the movement for a Farmer-Labor Party assumed proportions menacing to Gompers and his bureaucratic lieutenants, and when Gompers began to press down upon the Chicago Federation, threatening war—then enthusiasm rapidly waned, and by the time the great convention of July 3, 1923, came along, the fervid advocacy of a great Farmer-Labor Party had turned to antagonism. The New Majority, together with John Fitzpatrick and the Chicago Federation of Labor, repudiated its own creation and went back to Gompers.

The scrapping of the New Majority is the final seal on the re-entry of these former insurgents into the camp of their taskmasters. It is the outward sign that the change is complete, that the moral breakdown of July, 1923, has been followed by a complete invasion of the Chicago Federation and all its works by the agents of Gompers, Lane, Quesse, Olander, Neery & Co. The progressives are no more.

At the Shrine of Coolidge

Coolidge's speech of acceptance was a combination of plain talk and plain lies.

As the standard bearer of the blackest of the reactionary capitalist groups in the country and as the present incumbent in the president's office, Mr. Coolidge could deliver no other address. He has fully lived up to all our expectations.

"Cautious Cal" minces no words in serving notice upon the political doubters and skeptics that he stands for the two party system of government oppression of the working men by the employers. Of course, he hides his brutality behind a thin but enveloping smoke screen of diplomatic verbiage.

With the army of unemployed increasing by hundreds every month since he has thrown his hat into the ring for the presidency, Coolidge certainly is taking a lot unto himself and working his imagination overtime to talk of the "great revival of industry" that has taken place under his regime of oil and scandal. Restricted immigration, fake protection, and equality of opportunity is all the President can offer the working men.

The Chief Executives' speech abounds with the perennial balderdash of high tariff being a panacea for the workers and poor farmers. Mr Coolidge has in this case a weakness for accuracy in numbers. He forget to tell the country that the vicious Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act has levied an additional tribute of more than four billion dollars on the masses. The high sounding but meaningless words "co-operation and diversification" are offered the farmers.

And to boast of the Washington Conference as a peace gathering is to build out of cannons and war victims' skulls a monument to international peace. This is precisely what Coolidge did in his speech. His wholehearted indorsement of the Dawes plan to enslave Germany is another sample of the peace the capitalist war makers can bring to the world.

On the whole the Coolidge address is a notable contribution to the brazen declarations of the Yankee imperialists. He promises to "encourage American citizens and resources to assist in restoring Europe, with the sympathetic support of our government" and talks "of the mighty influence which our moral influence exerts thruout the world."

The biggest capitalist imperialist interests can stand securely on Coolidge's platform of gold and force.

The Canal Zone Celebration

American governmental, naval, military and commercial authorities are now celebrating the tenth anniversary of the official opening of the Panama Canal.

This is an historical event of the finest order. The Panama Canal has undoubtedly proved of great service to enhance the development of industry and commerce in the Latin-American countries. It has also brought closer the millions of the American continents to Asia the greatest labor market in the world.

But there is another phase in the role of the Panama Canal in history. It is significant that so great a monument to human progress, that so marvelous an engineering feat as the cutting away of thousands of miles of nature's obstacles should also serve as an agency of destruction and oppression. The Panama Canal is one of the first lines of defense and offense in the strategy of aggrandizement adopted by our imperialists. The Culebra Cut is serving as a short cut to the imperialist ambitions of our ruling clique in Asia and the Latin-American republics.

It will not be out of place at this time to recount some of the other "achievements" of American imperialism. The working men in the Canal Zone are not permitted to organize. Low wages and degrading working conditions are the lot of these. Then the treaty concluded between Panama and the United States after the fake revolution engineered by Theodore Roosevelt in Colombia enables the American government to gobble up the small republic any time it sees fit to do so. Only two weeks ago the Coolidge administration grabbed another stretch of land covering twenty-two miles belonging to Panama. The oil companies, hiding in the folds of the stars and stripes, are also celebrating the tenth anniversary. Millions of acres belonging to Panama have been gobbled up for oil by the Sinclair company, the Gulf Oil, and other American groups of exploiters.

American capitalists are clinching their hold on European resources. They have a firm grip on the South American industries and markets. They are making great strides in Asia and the near East. The tenth anniversary of the opening of the Panama canal should serve to remind our working class of the brutal aggressiveness being developed by their bosses.

Frost and Corn Prices

Reactionary politicians see, or at least they pretend so, great relief to the suffering farmers in the recent advances in the price of corn and wheat. Loud rejoicing about the predicted return to conservatism by the restless agrarians has filled the capitalist press. What justification is there for this? Have the farmers gotten relief in the new grain prices?

It is buncombe! The farmers on the whole are as bad off as ever. Prices for wheat and corn have gone up because the farmers have less of these commodities to put upon the market. Corn advanced in price yesterday above the dollar mark—but why? Because of frosts and general unfavorable conditions for the corn crop! There will be less corn than was expected—the price goes up. But to say that the higher price for a smaller product is going to help the farmers out of their hole is the rankest kind of nonsense.

The strangest thing about such propaganda is the uselessness of it. It does no good to convince the workers in the city that the farmer is all right. The farmer knows better, or at least he will know better when he cashes in on his crop. The truth of the matter, known to the capitalist class also, is that agriculture has been brought to a crisis by the capitalist system under which it must operate. And the capitalist system has no way out except the expropriation of hundreds of thousands of farmers, throwing them into the cities, there to take their place among the propertyless workers in the factories. And the only way the capitalist system has of doing this is thru the process of bankruptcy. Advance in corn prices is the response to frost, not to the needs of the farming population.

All Ready for the Industrial Registration

By JAMES P. CANNON,
Ass't. Executive Sec'y, Workers Party.

ALL the material for the new registration of the party members is now in the hands of the branch secretaries, with complete plans and directions for carrying it out. On account of some delay in the printing the time limit for completion of the registration by the branch secretaries has been extended until September 15. A large part of the value of the registration depends upon its completion within the time set. September 15 is the "dead line." No real active branch of the party will go over it.

The Central Executive Committee is laying great stress on the Party Industrial Registration and is depending upon the information which we will thus gain about the composition of our party to enable us to correctly lay out our plans and measure our forces for a number of important activities.

During the election campaign it will be our duty to raise the campaign issues in every single labor organization where we have one or more party members. It is necessary to know where our members are in the various trade unions in order that we may get in touch with them and co-ordinate their activity with the other comrades in the same union. The Industrial Registration will give us the information necessary to expedite this work.

But that is only one illustration. The Communist work in the unions must be multiplied ten times over. The Communist International in its last letter to our party told us this plainly. The work must be developed, concrete and practical, as well as general programs worked out for each trade and industry, and the whole party membership in the unions organized into a single fighting machine. The Industrial Registration, which will inform the party about the trade union affiliations of the party members, is the basis upon which this work of organization must be calculated.

The plans made for carrying thru this registration call for the active participation in the work of all the units of the party.

1. The branch secretary receives the material from the National Office. He supplies each member of his branch with a registration card and has it filled out and returned to him. He then copies the information on triplicate forms provided for this purpose and sends them to the party offices, designated on the forms.

2. The City Central Committee supervises and directs the registration in its territory. It sends speakers to the party branches to stimulate the registration and push it forward and to check up on the branch secretaries who may be lagging behind.

It orders from the National Office a supply of registration material to take care of the needs of larger branches whose initial supply from the National Office is not sufficient.

3. The Industrial Organizers, for whose work the Industrial Registration is a first necessity, push it forward all along the line and do not allow it to be sidetracked until the job is finished.

4. District Organizers supervise and direct the registration thruout every district. They make it an item in every communication to the branches during the coming month and put life into the work by means of conferences and personal discussions with the comrades responsible for the registration in their respective units.

The completion of the registration by September 15 will be a real achievement for the party. Let us all put our shoulders to the wheel and accomplish it.

LaFollette Hands Bunk to Negroes

BY KARL REEVE.

ENTIRELY as an afterthot, LaFollette comes out with a weak statement regretfully denouncing the Ku Klux Klan, and this statement is immediately followed by the appointment of G. Victor Cools as National manager to round up the colored vote for LaFollette.

LaFollette, in glaring contrast to the Workers Party, prattles about religious tolerance instead of treating the Negro as a worker fighting side by side with his white brother for emancipation from the capitalist class. LaFollette does not specifically take a stand on the vital problems of discrimination which face the Negro workers. LaFollette does not mention, let alone, offer a constructive solution for the discrimination against Negroes in housing, the use of Negroes by capitalists as strike breakers, the lower economic standards imposed by capitalists on the Negroes, the discrimination against Negroes in reactionary trade unions, the exploitation of the Negroes on the cotton fields of the South and in the industries of the North. LaFollette, barking back to his trust busting, democratic ideas, treats the Negro problem as a moral one, and does not point out that the oppression of the Negro in America serves to divide the working class and keep the capitalists in control of the government.

LaFollette is obviously guardedly "denouncing" the Klan in a belated attempt to garner votes from the Negroes. As a good politician he weighed the Southern White vote with the Negro vote and decided to cast his lot against the Klan as a more effective political move. Even so, the 15,000,000 Negroes have nothing to gain from LaFollette, and those of them who are acquainted with his past record know this.

LaFollette does not advocate a constructive program which would in any way advance the welfare of the Negro Workers. LaFollette's Wisconsin platform, which dispenses with the labor question in exactly 61 words, does not consider the Negro worthy of mention. The eight resolutions passed by the National and Illinois Conferences did not bring up the Negro question in any way.

LaFollette's statement to the Cleveland Conference for Progressive Political Action and his Wisconsin Republican Party platform, which he declared were the basis of his candidacy for the presidency, completely ignored the Negro question. LaFollette's past record regarding the discrimination against Negroes is unsavory. In 1920, when the Farmer Labor Party was considering him for candidate for President, LaFollette refused to indorse a Negro plank passed by the Farmer Labor Convention in Chicago.

Dr. Jay Peters told on the floor of the convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association last week how "William Pickens, the Negro author, went to the LaFollette progressive convention with a bunch of resolutions denouncing the Klan and was insulted and turned down by LaFollette's agents."

The Illinois state convention of the C. P. P. A., in the Auditorium Hotel, Sunday, July 27, completely ignored the problems of the American Negroes.

When asked whether there was any declaration in the Illinois State platform on the Negro question, Dennis McCarthy, state secretary of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, asked: "What Negro problem? We don't recognize any necessity for a Negro problem."

After further questioning, McCarthy said the C. P. P. A. did not recognize the necessity for discrimination against the Negro.

"Do you state that in your platform?" he was asked.

"No," McCarthy replied indignantly.

LaFollette in his anti-Klan statement says, "The one, dominant, all-embracing issue in this campaign is to break the combined power of the private monopoly system over the political and economic life of the American people. To this issue, in so far as I am able, I shall hold the attention of the voters of this country. From this position I shall not be turned aside. HENCE I DEEM IT MOST UNFORTUNATE THAT QUESTIONS INVOLVING RELIGIOUS OPINION AND OTHER QUESTIONS UNRELATED TO THE VITAL ISSUE OF RESTORATION OF GOVERNMENT TO THE PEOPLE HAVE BEEN RAISED, I AM UNALTERABLY OPPOSED TO THE EVIDENT PURPOSES OF THE SECRET ORGANIZATION KNOWN AS THE KU KLUX KLAN AS DISCLOSED BY ITS PUBLIC ACTS." LaFollette bases his objections to the purpose of the Klan on the grounds of liberty loving, of tolerance, and of freedom of religious opinion.

Victor Cools, following LaFollette's Klan statement, has been made National Manager of the Independent Colored Voters LaFollette for President Club. In his first statement, Cools cites LaFollette's statement, "I must wrong no man," and LaFollette's recent Klan statement as proof that, "LaFollette gives the colored voters the first opportunity for a square deal, because he has openly challenged the right of the Ku Klux Klan to rule the country."

In direct contrast to the weak, liberal, religious gush of LaFollette, are the revolutionary, working class statements of the Workers Party on the Negro problem. The Workers Party attacks the Negro problem on the basis of "a primary demand for full social, political and industrial equality of all races, and the solidarity of the working-class."

The Workers Party suggests: "A drive to open the doors of all labor unions which now discriminate to the full and equal admission of Negro workers, with the demand for equal wages and no discrimination in obtaining work, and for the complete organization of Negro labor with the white workers in the same unions. This involves the need of educating the white workers to eradicate the influence of capitalist propaganda which purposely plays each race against the other. We stand uncompromisingly which will wrest control from the capitalists and take over the industries for the use of the workers who

While LaFollette harps on morality, and the days of free competition, the Workers Party stands for the solidification of all workers—both white and black—into one mighty power produce all wealth.

MR. COOLIDGE—NEXT TO NOTHING

"Up to the adjournment of Congress last June, there was not a single day when, if the full and exact truth had been told about him, he would not have been revealed as a rattled and ridiculous person who would have been less out of place as a county judge than he was as President of the United States. To every close observer it has been clear that instead of a wise, strong, silent man in the White House what we really have there is as close to complete futility as any man in his position can ever get."

"In the three years he was vice-President he made neither friends nor foes. Socially and politically, he was considered hopeless. He was as near nothing as any man we have ever had in that office, and it is no secret that had Mr. Harding lived the plan was not to renominate him. That single fact is the most revealing index of the intellectual inanimation and forcelessness of the man."

And yet this man "too weak and nondescript to run again for the vice-presidency" suddenly was "pitchforked into the presidency.

"As Governor of Massachusetts and as Vice-President he had been a laughing stock for those who watched him function—a thoroly commonplace, colorless person with a neat little one-cylinder intellect and a thoroly prosaic mind. A docile product of the Murray Crane machine . . . in the matter of the Boston police strike, he had to be forced to act and did not deserve the credit he got."

"Not in the memory of any one now living has there been a President who leaned so heavily on this newspaper tendency to praise and protect, who profited by it so much, who would shrivel so quickly if he lost it, as Calvin Coolidge."

"Regularly, the insignificant, insipid, almost meaningless remarks of Mr. Coolidge are vitalized by the correspondent so as to seem human, forceful and thoughtful. The inanity and inadequacy of the man are never revealed."

(From "Mr. Coolidge" in the "American Mercury," published by Alfred Knopf, for August; written by Frank R. Kent, explaining the legend of the "strong, silent man" in the White House.)

• • •

"For Plymouth, Vermont, and for Calvin Coolidge, the individual is the thing that must do the real walking and the trade union and the governmental bureau are mere possibly necessary occasional crutches . . . The remedy for poverty is early hours of rising, long hours of labor, and the personal acquisition of personal possessions . . . The thought that without them (the trade unipn and governmental bureau) a man may remain poor has no terrors for an antique Vermonter.

"Calvin Coolidge's politics is a politics professional in the extreme . . . training in the Murray Crane school of politics in Massachusetts. Senator Crane was one of the greatest known practitioners of noiseless and in visible successful politics. He seldom addressed the Senate. His speeches were speeches into the ears of individuals . . . In his school Calvin Coolidge was an apt pupil."

(Mr. William Hard, in "Heart's International" fails to stress the speeches into Coolidge's ear which show in his subsequent stand on legislative or administrative matters. He mentions Mellon's advice on the tax bill, which Coolidge took.)

THE MOST PERFECT MURDER TRIAL

No Wonder the Young Murderers Are Laughing.

Send in that Subscription Today.

ELECTION LICKS.
By WILLIAM SIMONS.

Sam Simp pleads that presidential nominees should be allowed at least six months before being notified of the whole. Otherwise, complains Sam: "How can they have their speeches ready?"

If Sam weren't Simp, he'd know who writes the nominees' speeches.

A Communist candidate has an easy job. He stands for a program he believes in. But the others wiggle, and wiggle, and are quite uneasy.

No capitalist program is so involved, that a Communist cannot see through it.

For sale: A lotion which transforms conservatives into progressives. Only one application necessary. Davis, Coolidge and LaFollette applied it, and now listen to them.

LaFollette didn't have to be notified that he was nominated by the Simp C. P. P. A. at Cleveland. He noticed them.

La Follette needed no extra time for his acceptance speech. It was read to the Conference before the nomination.

Wouldn't it be hell if Morgan and Lamont, and their political puppets, Mellon and Hughes, stay in England so long that they lose their vote at the coming election? Catch them losing anything!

With out leading "economist and bootlegger" and "diplomat and oil hound" on the other side, why doesn't the country go to the dogs? Because they are already in control.

To try to get away from the tobogan, the S. P. are grabbing on to the tail of LaFollette's kite. As the old book says, "Folly rises but to fall."

Prominent socialists have been noticed practicing kissing Kiss Bob's feet, and kneeling before it. They say it would be adding to the impressiveness, if court costume were allowed.

They have already received some pointers from their fellow socialists and laborites across the sea.

For retrogressive Hamlets. To bolt or not to bolt. That is the question.

All's right with the world. The League of Nations Labor Bureau is still gathering information.

And who is so qualified to solve the labor problems of China as the yellow socialist, Albert Thomas?

The electoral college, a relic of the medieval Holy Roman Empire, will inevitably be scrapped in our unholy Industrial Empire, in favor of the business college.

The Big Show

Ladies and Gentlemen:—Announcing the world's greatest contest. Modern style. Guaranteed bloodless. Both members of the House of Morgan. Greatest Punch and Judy Show of the ages. Dandified Davis vs. Calculating Cal. Admission free. Costs you absolutely nothing NOW. Step right up, ladies and gentlemen. Last show for four years.

Davis announced himself as a Jeffersonian Democrat. We prefer Coolidge, who countered with "I am a Jungle Ape."

Campaign by Radio is the cry. And safe, too. The polished gentleman and aristocrat, Davis, must not be shown. And as for Coolidge, if an attempt were made to compel him to make a speech in person, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Inmates Politicians would immediately interfere.

Send in that Subscription Today.

"The idea becomes power when it penetrates the masses." —Karl Marx.

SPECIAL MAGAZINE SUPPLEMENT
THE DAILY WORKER

SECOND SECTION
This magazine supplement will appear every Saturday in The Daily Worker.

AUGUST 16, 1924.

The Labor Conference at Geneva

By A. ENDERLE.

ON the 21st of June last there commenced at Geneva the sixth international labor conference. These conferences constitute the parliament of the Labor Bureau. The present conference was given tremendous advertisement in the bourgeisie and Social Democratic press of all countries. Every day there apepared long reports over the "arduous labors" of the conference. Great rhetorical duels were "fought" and a terrible "struggle" took place over the eight hour day. The great masses are thereby purposely deluded into believing that in Geneva the interests of the working population are actually being preserved and promoted. But those who are in the know, and especially the capitalists and the reformist wire-pullers, are chuckling to themselves, for they know that the Geneva "comedy" is only being played for "the common people;" that there, instead of the welfare of labor being promoted, there is only being conducted a collaboration policy between the trade union leaders and the capitalists on an international scale, with the sole object of diverting the proletariat from the class war and from revolution.

If any one should doubt these facts he need only examine the composition and the deliberations of the conference a little more closely. The conference is composed of three equally large categories of representatives of governments, of employers and of labor (so-called). As the governments of all the participating states are purely capitalist ones, there exists already with the government and employers' representatives a two-thirds capitalist majority. But even the remaining third, the "labor" representatives, are such faithful henchmen of capital that there is never seen at the conference a proletarian front opposed to a capitalist front, but in most cases there prevails the sweetest harmony among all participants, or in so far as there are any differences whatever they are of a national character.

There lay before the conference a printed report on the activity of the Labor Bureau, the numbered of affiliated states and those states which have ratified the so-called Washington Convention. One learned from this that 54 states are affiliated to the Labor Bureau. The bulk of these belong to the League of Nations; yet Germany, which is not a member of the League, is affiliated to the Labor Bureau. The report mentions that among the important states not affiliated are America, Russia, Mexico, Turkey and Egypt. It is "hoped" that Russia will soon affiliate.

The decisions (Conventions) of the Washington Conference of the year 1910 regarding the eight hour day, unemployed, sick, accident and old age benefit, as well as regarding: regulations for the prevention of accidents and sickness, night work, children's and women's labor, etc., are, according to the report, only fully "recognized" by one state, Poland, while the eight hour day is only "recognized" that is, legally introduced, by Greece, Bulgaria, Czecho-Slovakia and—don't laugh—by India.

One percieves by this that in spite of the five years existence of the Labor Bureau, which, as Oudegeest declared in Vienna, is a child of the Amsterdam Trade Union International the Washington decisions have not yet been recognized by a single great capitalist state. But even if this were the case it would not alter the position of the workers in the least, for in those states which have "recognized" and "legally introduced" the eight hour day, more than eight hours a day are being worked. This swindle is revealed in the most glaring manner by the fact that on the same day on which the representative of the Polish government, Count Akrzynski, solemnly delivered the official declaration of his government that Poland had recognized and legally carried thru all the thirteen conventions, including the eight hour day, the telegraph conveyed the news, that the twelve hour day had been introduced in the Polish mines and smelting industry. One after another, M. Thomas, Jouhaux, Mertens, Poulton, the "labor" representatives of the Entente, expressed their enthusiastic appreciation to the Poles for their "great act in the interest of humanity." But that at the same time the proletariat of the mining and smelting industry, besides hundreds of thousands of workers in other professions in Poland, are compelled to work a twelve hour shift, was wisely not mentioned by these "labor" representatives, not to speak of raising a protest against it.

And in spite of this these Czech-scoundrels have the brazenness to carry on the world-comedy in Geneva, and to devote four days of eager debate over the eight hour day alone and to exhibit great differences as if they were fighting in all seriousness in order to obtain the eight hour day for the exploited proletarians of the whole world. But in spite of all the cunning of this crowd they were unable to conceal what are the actual differences with regard to this question. The whole concern of all delegates is nothing else but the profit of the capitalists. It is true that after the conclusion of the war and as a result of the pressure of the revolutionary masses, Germany was the first country to introduce the eight hour day. On grounds of expediency, and also in response to the pressure of their workers, the employers of other countries partially followed suit with the introduction of the eight hour day. But all of these states cautiously avoided recognizing the Washington decisions. With the restrengthening of the German capitalist class and the defeat of the proletariat, thanks to the German Social Democrats, the eight hour day was abolished in Germany de facto by a decree of the 23rd of December, 1923. "In principle" it still exists, but in practice 54.7 per cent of all proletarians in Germany already work over eight up to 16 hours daily, these figures do not comprise the miners and agricultural laborers, all of whom are working longer hours. This fact is disturbing the Entente capitalists, especially those of France and England, in the highest degree. They stand in fear of the unfair competition of Germany. And having regard to the well known ruthlessness with which the German employers have always exploited their wage slaves, in which they are backed up by the German state power with police clubs and machine guns in their attacks against the workers, the fears of the English and French capitalists are not unfounded. In this respect, the "labor" representatives and the employers' representatives of France and England are proceeding arm in arm and delivering wonderful speeches on the utility and human necessity of the eight hour day. Their sudden love for the eight hour day is based on a very real capitalist demand, i.e. upon the control of German industry. On this point cordiality ceases for all German representatives. Not only the German government representative, Leymann, and the representative of the German employers, Vogel, but also the German Amsterdamers under the leadership of the Social-Democrat, Hermann Miller, protest against this control. It is well understood that this control has as its object that no longer than eight hours a day shall be worked in Germany. And the correspondent of the capitalist "Vossische Zeitung" was able triumphantly to declare:

"As a result of the efforts of the German trade union representatives, it has been possible to have the point directed against Germany deleted from the wording of the resolution."

It would hardly be possible for the international proletariat to gain a clearer glimpse into the wretched nature of the Amsterdam trade union international and the purely capitalist character of the Labor Bureau, than thru the debates on the eight hour day which have taken place in Geneva. Once again have the Amsterdamers, on an occasion where the actual interests of labor were at stake, divided into national groups and instead of standing in one proletarian front against capital, have taken sides with the capitalists of "their fatherland" in the national competitive rivalry of capital. On the other hand this incident has proved to the whole international proletariat that the Geneva Labor Bureau and the labor conferences convened by it, are nothing else but councils at which plans are concocted for the better preservation of capitalist profits and for the most advantageous exploitation of the proletariat. If it were otherwise, then the Amsterdamers of every country would in this case have been able to do no other than stand together and to have torn the hypocritical mask from the face of the whole international capitalist class and mobilized the proletariat of all countries against the gang of capitalist exploiters. But who would expect anything of this sort from these hirelings of the employing class.

Up to the moment of writing no final decision has been come to regarding the eight hour day, but one has no need to be a prophet in order to predict that in the end a compromise resolution will be unanimously adopted and that in every country the working day will be prolonged.

It would be superfluous to go more closely into the other items of the labor conference, because here also it is the same, i.e. beautiful speeches are delivered and decisions are adopted which decieve the workers somewhat but do no harm to the capitalists. As an example, there need only be mentioned here that the question of unemployment was dealt with at great length. The conference, according to the "Vorwarts," came to a "heroic" decision in which all governments are recommended to work out "memoranda" (!!) on the problem of unemployment which shall contain proposals as to remedies. A "magnificent" help for the unemployed!

The Amsterdamers have nothing particular to boast about as to their deeds in Geneva. They therefore make the more fuss over the exclusion of the fascist trade union representative from the conference. The Amsterdamers wish by this means to give evidence of their "fight" against the fascists. Even this bit of "fame" is very doubtful, for this fascist had been allowed to take part in the sittings for ten days without being challenged and only at the moment when the shares of Mussolini and Co. had sunk to zero in Italy, did the brave heroes of Amsterdam adopt the decision to exclude this fascist labor representative from the conference. This was a great act of injustice, for even if the Amsterdamers are not fascists of the type of Mussolini they are no less as zealous representatives of capital as the former.

THE EMPLOYER

By Rudolf Schlichter

On Factory Nuclei

(A GERMAN EXPERIMENT)

By W. ULBRICHE

IN view of the discussion now going on at the Fifth World Congress on the subject of organizing the Communist Party on the basis of factory nuclei, it would not be out of place to describe the substantial German experiences in this respect.

A close examination of the organizational activity of the Communist Party demonstrates the fact that the sense of organization is as yet so weakly developed among the membership that most of the comrades consider the old form and methods of organization as natural and universally adaptable. There is a lack of conscious experience of the fact that the organizational forms and methods are rather determined by the exigencies of the political tasks of the Party. On these grounds it is essential that the most unsparing criticism be exercised in regard to the present organizational activity, while at the same time it should be pointed out that the organizational forms and methods of the social-democratic party are in keeping with their parliamentary politics. At the same time it should be pointed out that the opposite political attitude of the German Communist Party calls also for different methods of organization. Menshevism in the Sphere of Organization must be rooted out of the Communist Party. This can only be attained if in connection with every campaign and with every action, we shall note without any sentimentality our organizational defects, and hammer these experiences into the consciousness of the membership. On the basis of these fighting experiences, the Party must proceed thoroughly to transform its methods of organization and choose the necessary political and organizational measures. We are taught by German experience that in formulating theses of this kind, we must outline to the comrades the whole Course of Transformation, with all its consequences and with all its dangers. If we cover only half the ground, the comrades are still puzzled why, for instance instead of the word "factory faction" we use the "factory nucleus," and they ask us with reason as to what new thing we mean to introduce by our activity in the factory nuclei, if it does not simply mean an increase of our activity in the factory. Hence we must clearly announce the principle from the outset, that this transformation into factory nuclei means the transformation of the Party activity to the organizing of workers' fights, and that for this reason All the Party Activity must be carried out from the Standpoint of the Political and Organizational Work in the Factories. It is not merely a question of creating individual factory nucell, but of rendering the factory nuclei into the standard bearers of the Party's activity. This calls for an extensive systematic campaign in the Party. The best results were obtained by the Organizational Courses, in which a prominent part was taken by representatives from the large factories. These comrades reported to the general membership about the organizational tasks to be undertaken. The ideological hindrances were mainly overcome by means of a periodical publication dealing with organizational questions—"Partei-Arbeiter" (The Party Worker)—in which all the important organizational experiences were published.

Most of the Party organizations had no ideas as to what factories were situated in their region of activity, and where Communists were employed. Therefore, for the education of the Party, it was necesary to carry out a registration of the medium and large factories. The formation of factory nuclei was started in those factories where the circumstances appeared to be favorable. Unfortunately, we neglected to devote special attention at the outset to those factories in which we had no connections, but which were foremost in the workers' struggles, e.g. the electricity works and the railway yards. It is of importance to all movements that the Party should concentrate on the organization of the Communist railway workers and devote its best forces to the political work among the workers, employees, and officials engaged in the industry of transportation. Prominent Party officials, secretaries, editors, etc., were allocated to the important factories to promote the political activity of the Party. Furthermore, comrades were appointed as commissaries (unemployed comrades, Landtag deputies, etc.), whose task it was to engage in the construction of nuclei in their respective localities and to control the work in the factory nuclei. It was found, however, that without a definite plan and without definite tasks the transformation could not be achieved. The district committee and the local committee were then charged with the duty of working out plans for definite period and campaigns. By means of reports to the Central Committee, as well as by direct control over the more important local groups and factory nucell, the Central Committee exercised the necessary pressure on the districts.

The experience of the formation of factory nuclei has shown that it is quite possible to get at a part of the Party members in the factory while ignoring the others who live in other localities. For this reason we had to undertake the registration of the whole of our membership according to the factories where they belong. The work was carried out by residential officials, who delivered the question-sheets to the Party members in the factories thru the leader of the nucell, and if there is no nucleus in a factory it is given to the leader of the nucleus which has charge of the propaganda in that factory. The question of the collection of dues should be taken into consideration in this enrolment of Party members in the factories and in the conduct of the work of political organization. The Party member who pays his dues into the factory nucleus belongs to the Party organization of the district where the factory is located. The location of a party member should no longer be determined by his place of residence, but by his place of work. Thus the party member exercises his rights as a party member (voting in the election of delegates, etc.) not according to his residence, but according to the factory nucleus or to the local group of his place of work. Besides this, the party member is also registered in the street nucleus of the place where he lives. In the building of factory nuclei, particular care should be taken to have every member engage in some Party task under the guidance of responsible party men. Under no circumstances should the whole of the work be placed upon individual leaders, while the individual members would have the option of either carrying out the orders of the Party or ignoring them. It is only by giving a definite task to every member and by controlling the carrying out of the tasks that the factory nucell will be able to fulfil their great political and organizatfonal tasks. In case of unemployment the party member, wherever possible, should remain a member of the factory nucleus. Only in cases where the member lives too far away from the factory, he should be transferred to his residential street nucleus, or to a factory nucleus located in the vicinity of his residential district. As soon as the member obtains a new job, he must be immediately transferred to the respective factory nucleus. In case of the complete suppression of the nucleus in a given factory, it is the duty of the former members of such nucleus to continue under all circumstances the propaganda in such a factory. Furthermore, the nearest factory nucleus must render the utmost aid towards the restoration of the suppressed nucleus. The transformation into factory nuclei must find its expression in rendering the factory nuclei the decisive factor from the standpoint of influence over the official and leaders of the Party.

The transformation into factory nucell means transforming the whole work of the party. First of all, it is necessary to educate the revolutionary factory council-movement to concentrate its forces in those factories which are of decisive moment to the revolutionary movement. It is there that the factory nucell must organize the party units in every factory, thus creating a solid basis for the struggle of the local workers. The same applies to the trade-union question. Hitherto the comrades confined their activities to drawing their fellow-Communists in the trade unions into local factions; now the forces must be concentrated in those locals which are of decisive importance. Unless we capture the official trade union positions in the factories, unless we succeed in banishing the reformist influence from the factories, we cannot hope to be able to lead the working masses into the fight. A similar transformation must be effected in the technical preparations for the larger fights. Hitherto the Party stewards used to be appointed according to residence, now we must organize our hundreds in the factories. The factory is the only place where we are able to carry out the necessary technical preparations for the struggle. The political propaganda must be concentrated in the factories. Instead of the usual public meetings, we should have public factory meetings. The parliamentary deputies must make their first reports to factory meetings. The leading factory nuclei, for the purpose of quick information, should get the political material direct from the higher instances of the parties. The enrolment of members must first of all be carried out in the factories, because the strengthening of the factory nuclei is the best preparation for the fighting ability of the party. Of particular importance is the reorganization of the newspaper distribution. The present method of distributing the Communist press is by residential districts. In spite of all the technical difficulties, an attempt must be made to devise a combined system of distributing the press both thru the residential carriers as well as thru the factory distributors. The newspaper must be brought into close organizational contact with the factories. This is of paramount importance to all the political actions. The circulation of a newspaper in the factories, the influence which it enjoys and the discussion which it arouses, are bound to effect its contents. At present we find very few columns in the newspapers devoted to contributions by factory workers. In future the factory reports, workers' letters, workers' poems, etc. must occupy at least half of the space in the newspaper. For this purpose it is necessary to arrange periodical conferences of factory reporters and to give them the necessary instructions. Systematic education in this respect is essential. The same is the present method of the distribution of literature, which should be shifted from the residential districts to the factories. The best way to distribute literature is thru the factory organization. We must also transform the present method of educational work, which is also done residentially. Above all, in the large factories the nucell must arrange for educational courses for their members, as well as for larger circles of workers in the neighborhood. Our women's propaganda must be concentrated chiefly among the women who work in the factory. The women who do not work in the factory must be brot into close touch with the factory women of the neighborhood. Our women comrades must take regular part in the meetings of the factory nuclei. Our agrarian agitation must be organized on the basis of the experiences of the last fights, so that the factory nuclei should have definite rural localities where they should engage in systematic and persistent propaganda. If we succeed in this manner in establishing close contact with the country-side, the job of finding food for the workers on strike will be much facilitated. It is also necessary to organize, in the first place, the closest possible collaboration with the factory nuclei of the Young Communists. The importance of the young workers during workers' fights should urge the factory nucell to encourage the formation of the important factories; where no nucleus of the party exists the young comrades are frequently in a position to serve as a medium for communication and thus to assist in the formation of the party nucleus.

This transformation of all the essential activities of the Party should be carried out upon a definite plan. If every section of the Party will do its definite work according to the plan, if the functions of all the sections will fill in with the general plan

(Continued on page 7.)

Rhapsodical Chants

By JOSEPH KALAR.

"Clang—clang—CLANG, the whir-r and BANG of machines—
Sweat—sweat—SWEAT—white beads of blood,
On your face!
On your back!
Sreat—Sweat—SWEAT—white beads of blood!"

"You've got to work—you've got to work!
And sweat—and sweat—and SWEAT—
Crush your limbs and crush your heart,
Blind your eyes and drown your brains—
You've got to work—you've GOT TO WORK!"

"The sweat is gathering on your face in beads—
Your blood is molten steel and frozen steel,
Your soul is black with soot—
Flinty cinders in your flesh—
Cast off—throw far the whip—be Gods!"

"But who's gonna work for God now?
Who's gonna do the work for God?"

"Oh, I'm a God and you're a God
And she's a God—
And you alone are not a God o'er men,
And I alone am not a God o'er men,
So hang your whip on the wall—
Unnail the souls of men from the cross—
And be a God like me!"

"But who's gonna work for God, now?
Who's gonna work for God?"

The Shame of Our Language Problem

BY M. D. LITMAN.

In the Magazine Section of July 5th, Comarde Rostrom takes up an acre of space to bemoan an alleged wrong; mainly—the existence of an English-speaking dictatorship within the Party. Some of the "facts" pertaining to publications in foreign languages, distribution of speakers etc., which are printed in black-face type, are absolutely distorted.

The Party foreign language press is older than the English language press. Foreign language educational work has always been more evident—and national foreign-language speakers are only limited to the financial ability of the foreign-language federations. The radical movement in general in the United States, whatever party or group it may be, has always been and is now full of transplanted class-conscious workers, and in many cases small businessmen, who, by their intense activity and by their numbers, have and are occupying important offices within the Party nationally and their various districts locally. The American movement is suffering for lack of English-speaking Party members. They need not necessarily be Anglo-Saxon, but to accomplish the most work, they must speak the English Language while they are living under Capitalism and in America.

Let us not fool ourselves: There are few European workingmen or women entering the U. S. Those who are now Party members—the great majority—have been here prior to 1914. Still better, they have been members of the Socialist Party, when meetings were held in halls owned by German saloon-keepers, who would donate the "hall upstairs." If a worker has enough intelligence to become class-conscious and line-up with a class party, he surely ought to have enough intelligence to learn the language which receives the greatest use, or any other language needed in order to be most effective in the class struggle.

The world Working-class Movement being older in Europe, has produced more active foreign-language Communits than American born sons and daughters of after-civil war boom times. There is nothing alarming in that fact. The struggle in America is intensifying and American, yea, even 100 percent Anglo-Saxon Communists will not be lacking. We realize that men and women can not overnight change their language, therefore, we must permit the existence of foreign-language federations; but we must forge ahead, plowing our way into the mass of American workers and speak to them the language they know best in a manner that they will like it most.

Even tho we live under Capitalism, there is no earthly reason, why we cannot devote a little time to acquiring at least enough of the English language to be able to sit at a City Central meeting and take a part therein. Our foreign-speaking comrades are NOT held down at any City Central meeting, but they lack words when they get up to talk. Some of them are wonderful strategists, clear-thinking Communists with practical plans, but they lose themselves when they try to shape their ideas into English words. Even at the cost of missing out on a few committee meetings a month, it would be well worth the loss in that direction, if our foreign-language comrades would acquire better use of English. And if the writer would move to China, he would address the Chinese workers in Chinese, rather than ask the Chinese to learn his English.

International Language an Impossibility.

If Comrade Rostrom is a Marxist, he believes that everything undergoes constant change—nothing is static. Existence in itself, is the constancy of change. And so living languages are constantly undergoing change. Only dead languages don't change. As soon as we will begin to use a dead language, it will begin to live and change.

It is well to know as many languages as one can possibly learn. To know English, French, German, etc., is a very handy adjunct in life to any person, especially in our movement. But we must know the official, most spoken language of the land in which we live. Ido, Esperanto, etc., while being international languages, can never become MASS LANGUAGES. Not enough workers can learn one language at the same time to make any practical use of same on a mass scale in our daily class struggle.

Now as to the handicap the Third Internationale may be under, due to language trouble, Comrade Rostrom, is a little misinformed. Those Communists who have been active enough in the movement to reach the highest center of Communist activity, have mastered several languages. And if the C. I. orders that future delegates come prepared to speak Ido and nothing else, we can rest assured that Wm. Z. Foster, or Tom O'Flaherty and Ben Gitlow will speak Ido. The fact is that we must "Learn to talk Turkey" to our masters. They don't understand Ido.

This is as near to perfection as we can hope to reach at the present time on an International scale, but we can reach perfection on a National scale, if we will try to make every foreign-language comrade an English-speaking comrade.

ANATOL FRANCE

On the Foster-Nearing Debate

BY JOSEPH BRAHDY.

Dear Comrades Nearing and Foster: If anyone were to judge by the tone of your discussion recently published in the DAILY WORKER, one might easily conclude, as you yourselves do, that in your common political philosophy, or economics as Nearing calls it, you are separated thru a vast difference of political strategy (Nearing says tactics). If such a difference really exists between you, the substance of your statements does not reveal it; but it does show that you are each arguing about a different phase of our movement.

Revolutionary Sentiment.

In both articles a certain phrase reoccurs so often (in ever-changing terms) that one may well call it the leitmotiv of the discussion. Nearing speaks in six instances of revolutionary sentiment, once of revolutionary ferment, and once of radical sentiment—a total of eight. Foster refers twelve times to revolutionary, or radical sentiment, discontent, unrest, etc. The discussion really revolves around this point: Is there a revolutionary sentiment among the organized and the unorganized American wage workers?

It is your common mistake to base your reasoning to such extent upon this matter of revolutionary sentiment without coming to an agreement among yourselves (and with your readers) as to what revolutionary sentiment really is. Let us see.

(a) In 1917, when the war hysteria was already heavily creeping upon us, the Railroad Brotherhoods came, with watch in hand, to the U. S. Congress and said in substance "if by such and such time the Eight Hour Bill has not yet been passed, we'll call a complete strike of our organizations, i.e. smash American capitalism." Now, they might not have done so after all, or gotten away with it; there may have been many an understanding which let the situation appear much more tense and dramatic than it actually was. Yet it was a magnificent demonstration of fighting revolutionary sentiment on the part of the American Railroad Union men which has been barely approximated in the Trade Union history of the world, by men who are notoriously ridden by clan and church, by patriotism and politics.

(b) In the fierceness of their semi-organized class-struggle the I. W. W., American and foreign-born alike, have performed feats of heroism and sacrifice that are unsurpassed in the international labor movement; but we know that removed from the hot-bed of their opportunities their molten stream of revolutionary lava brittles in winter time into inert human matter, slowly and in utter uselessness floating thru the streets of America.

(c) Another type of worker, much more prevalent among the foreign than among the native-born is the following. He is brimful with revolutionary sentiment, he belongs to a revolutionary party, or is close to it; he brings sacrifices and takes no end of risks for it. He belongs to no Union, and doesn't want to. This type is at present disappearing.

It should be plain by now that we cannot afford to speak in a loose way about "revolutionary sentiment." We must evidently fasten a common understanding to this commonly used phrase.

A future article will analyze our American "revolutionary sentiment;" at present I proceed with my comment upon the discussion.

Revolutionary Education.

Nearing's presentation almost gives rise to the following reasoning and conception:

There is no general American revolutionary sentiment.

The few American revolutionary sentimentalists (couldn't we say that) have therefore hardly any following.

Let us establish:

"a careful course of elementary, high school, and university training. Rome was not built in a night."

* * *

It is true, Rome was not built in a night; but neither was it built thru a "careful course of elementary, high school and university training" in architecture, conducted in the wilderness along the Tiber.

However poorly, the first Roman built his shack first. It took a night, or perhaps a week. It may not seem logical but they did build first and studied architecture afterwards.

(Of course they started out with a fund of knowledge of general Mediterranean architecture; just as we have some knowledge of transatlantice Marxism and Leninsm).

* * *

It was necessary to have a shelter right away, so as to withstand the ceaseless struggle of the elements of nature. Nearing advises us

"during all of this time (of preparation—J. B.) to avoid decisive struggle which will almost surely wreck the organization."

Now, the "revolutionary movement" may avoid struggles, decisive or otherwise, that's easy. But our class can't. Because the class struggle is ceaseless and unavoidable.

While the stormy waves of the class struggle are underwashing the very foundations of social life, we could of course proceed with our graded course (leaving the rank and file quite orphaned thru the withdrawal of our embryo-experts.) We'd eventually graduate some Doctors of Revolutionary Science, who might open their offices with a shingle in their windows and a revolutionary diploma on the wall, introducing themselves to the American workers with a circular (because nobody would know of them otherwise) with an offer of up-to-date methods of conducting the class struggle.

Not for a moment can we think of detaching our comrades from the class struggle. They must study, in spare hours, when on strike, or out of work, or temporarily supported by others; but above everything else they must study by struggling along with their fellow workers. Foster is right when he says

"If the W. P. and the T. U. E. L. cannot function and prosper in the every-day political and industrial struggles of the masses, then they have no right to life."

Foster is further correct when he criticizes the exclusiveness implied in Nearing's plan where

"the only available revolutionary force is the small body of conscious revolutionists, you outline a plan for the careful education, organization and development of this precious little nucleus."

The only thing wrong is the apparent sarcasm and slight for the nucleus and its education. It may not be so very precious, but it is the best we have.

Education or Action.

With his insistence upon education Nearing creates an unfortunate prejudice in the reader's (worker's) mind. Not by overstating the case of education—that cannot be done; but by omission to state (a) the education that arises from concrete participation in the class struggle;

(b) the dynamic correlation between the education arising in the class struggle and the one arising in the class room.

The second without the first is sterile; the first without the second is but a makeshift.

This leads us to the serious shortcomings in Foster's statement; (a) in his criticism of Nearing's plea for education he does not once offer any encouragement, or a constructive proposal, leading to such education as Nearing propounds;

(b) nor does he criticize the fact that the Communist movement in America has at no time devoted even 1 per cent of its energy or finances upon such education.

* * *

A summary of our observations will lead us to the following: Nearing emphasizes the need of formal education, Foster emphasizes the pedagogic value of activity in the class struggle.

Neither of them overstate the importance of their particular phase of work; but they negate the complementary activity by understanding or ignoring it, and create thereby a picture without proper proportion.

Esthonian Rulers in Wholesale Drive on Labor Movement

REVAL, Esthonia, August 15.—The persecution of labor radicals continues. Over 230 workers' organizations have recently been suspended by the Esthonian government. During July the trial of 180 Communists who were arrested last January and have been in jail, ever since, began.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years
444 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1491 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

FURNISHED ROOM WANTED.
Single room for man. Northside preferred. Quiet. The Daily Worker, Box 9-A.

MacDonald Signs a Treaty

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN.

At last, after nearly five months of bargaining in the interests of British Imperialism, MacDonald signed a treaty with the government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republic (U. S. S. R.) We imagine he got as good a bargain as was possible under the circumstances. But that's what it was, that's what he was driving after—a bargain for his masters, the capitalists of Great Britain.

Why Do We Kick?

One might ask us a question. One might approach us saying: Look here, isn't that what you wanted? Didn't you say you wanted MacDonald to recognize Soviet Russia and begin commercial relations with her, and now that MacDonald has done it you again criticize and attack him.

To this we reply. It is not the treaty that we are particularly kicking about. Nor do we mind very much the fact that British Imperialism has been trying to get the best of the Soviet Government. This is as it should be. What else could we expect of one of the most powerful and most dangerous class enemies of the International working class? No, we are perfectly well satisfied that British Imperialism understands its interests and knows how to fight for them.

of the most profitable markets of British Capitalism.

The "City" wants the Russian market for export and investment. It has been trying to get it for the last seven years. First, by military intervention designed to over throw the Soviet Government and to put in its place some puppet capitalist proposition which would willingly sell out Russia to the capitalist masters of Great Britain.

In this the "City" failed. The workers and peasants of Russia, led by the Communist Party, and supported by the revolutionary workers all over the world stood their ground and compelled the retreat of British Imperialism.

Then they tried to compel submission of the Soviet Government by means of an economic boycott. Remember the infamous "cordon sanitaire," the iron wall around the Soviet State, which for months and months has been strangling and choking to death the economic life of the first Workers and Peasants Republic.

But with no avail. The working men of Russia starved and died but didn't surrender to the bloodhounds of Imperialism. Thus MacDonald's masters had to retreat again. They retreated slowly and gradually. They talked peace and waged war, bitter, merciless, economic warfare against the Soviet State.

Until they realized that nothing doing: They will have to come to terms with the Soviet government. So they "granted" Russia recognition and started negotiations.

MacDonald Did It!

Here we can sense the coming of an argument.

"Well, but it was MacDonald that did it, not Curzon and Baldwin!"

Yes, yes, it was MacDonald, of course, not Curzon. We know the reasons for it, too. Here they are: MacDonald did it because British Imperialism wanted it. The day MacDonald announced the recognition of Russia the "City" registered its approval by a general rise in prices of bonds, shares and stocks. The "City" said in effect:

"Alright, Mac, go to it. Fine. You made a good start. Now don't spoil it by letting the Russians fool you with all kinds of bunk about proletarian solidarity, Internationalism, Revolution, etc. Be on your guard. Remember, it is a business proposition. We want markets, profits and power. If you know how to get it for us and drive hard towards it, we'll let you stay in office and manage our affairs. We wouldn't even mind your speaking in terms of socialism. It is a good word. Give 'em a little more of it. But remember, it's a business proposition."

And MacDonald is doing it, even as well as Curzon would have done it, and perhaps a little better. Curzon has served the same masters as MacDonald is, but with other means. Curzon has been making war for British Imperialism. MacDonald is making peace for British Imperialism. Both are working substantially toward the same end.

What We Could Expect.

England's present government is a "Labor" government, isn't it? It is supposed to represent the interests and aspirations of the working class of Great Britain. It is supposed to promote those interests. This being so, what should MacDonald have done in the matter of Soviet Russia?

Russia possesses enormous material riches, inexhaustible natural resources. Also an immense amount of man-power. But these resources are dormant. To make them serve the well-being of the masses these resources have got to be developed. For this capital is needed, not capitalism, but capital; means of production.

England possesses that. It has the coal, iron, steel, and chemicals ready at hand to be used in production. It also has the trained technical manpower. It has the organization. But all this lies dormant, or, almost so, for lack of markets.

Russia and England need each other. Russia is ruled by its working class. England is ruled ostensibly by Labor, practically by the capitalists. Now, why shouldn't the workers of England and Russia strike up an alliance, pull together the resources of both countries and shoulder to shoulder proceed to the building up of Socialism in their respective countries?

We know why. Because the Labor Government of England is labor only in name. Because MacDonald and his Government are serving the interests of capitalism and not those of the workers. In short, because the present government of England does not express the aspirations of the English working class.

The real Labor Government of England is yet to come.

HIS MAJESTY'S SOCIALISTS

THOMAS GRIFFFITH
Treasurer

ALLEN PARKINSON
Comptroller

Of the King's Household

The object of our hatred, opposition and attack is MacDonald, the Labor Premier, serving the interests of British Imperialism.

And remember: not the person, MacDonald, not the individual. With him we have very little concern, but MacDonald, the head of a Labor Government betraying the class whom he is supposed to represent and fighting in the interests of the class enemies of the workers—this is the thing we are concerned with and are fighting against.

What we demand of MacDonald and his government is loyalty to the working class, devotion to its interests and readiness to fight in the cause of labor as against the cause of capital. That is, we demand of him to do things which are the exact opposite of the things he is doing now, or else, abdicate and let true servants and leaders of the workers take his place.

The Voice of the "City."

Thru MacDonald always speaks the voice of the "City," the Wall Street of Great Britain. The "City" is badly in need of new markets. It has been in this position for quite some time, in fact, since its victory over German Imperialism which marked the break-up of the Central-European economic system and the disappearance of one-

MR. GANDHI'S SWAN SONG

By EVELYN ROY.

That the leadership of the Indian nationalist movement has passed definitely out of the hands of Mr. Gandhi and the orthodox school of Non-Co-operation, was proven by the session just concluded of the All-Indian Congress Committee at Ahmedabad. This is the first official deliberation in which Mr. Gandhi has participated since his release from prison in January of this year, when he was operated upon for appendicitis, and has since been undergoing a slow convalescence. The two years which have intervened between his arrest and conviction to six years' rigorous imprisonment, have brought many changes in the program and tactics of the Indian National Congress. The Swaraj Party, headed by Mr. C. R. Das, of Bengal, succeeded in having an amendment passed to the Non-Co-operation Program, permitting those who desired to take part in the elections to the Legislative Councils, for the purpose of carrying on obstruction to the government. The elections of 1923 were contested by the Swaraj Party, which succeeded in capturing about half the seats in the provincial and All-India Legislatures. By an agreement arrived at with the Independent Nationalists, whose demands are not so extreme as the Swarajists but who occupy a centre position between the Liberals or Moderates and the Non-Co-operators, the Swarajists were able to command a small majority of votes in the Central Legislatures and several of the provinces, and to defeat practically all the government measures brought before those bodies for approval. Thus, the center of gravity of the national struggle has shifted, during the past six months, from the orthodox Gandhists to the Swarajists, who still claim to be a part of the Indian National Congress, formerly entirely controlled by Mr. Gandhi and his followers.

The release of the Mahatma from prison, by an act of grace of the Labor Government soon after the latter assumed office, was regarded as the dawn of a new era in Indian political life. The lost leader had returned to his followers; the Non-co-operation movement which had fallen into stagnation since his arrest, would be revived and become once more a powerful revolutionary force, which would sweep the Swaraj Party into the background of the struggle. Six months passed without any change in the situation, due to the feeble health of the Mahatma, and his desire to acquaint himself with the details of the situation, with which he had lost touch for two years. Private conversations with the various leaders of the National Congress, representing different schools of thought, were held at Juhu, the little seaside resort where Mr. Gandhi was convalescing, but strict secrecy was observed as to the nature of these discussions. Thus the first official pronouncement of the Mahatma was made just a few weeks previous to the Ahmedabad session of the All-India Congress Committee—the supreme executive body of the Indian National Congress.

This official pronouncement took the form of a simultaneous statement of policy on the part of Mr. Gandhi, for the orthodox Non-Co-operators, known as the "No-Changers," and of the two chief leaders of the Swaraj faction, or "Pro-Changers," Messrs. C. R. Das and Moti Lal Nehru. This statement, which followed a series of prolonged conversations between the rival factions within the National Congress, aroused a great sensation thruout India. In it, for the first time, a frank difference of opinion was expressed on the tactics and program of the national struggle, and an inability to arrive at any agreement between the two schools of thought. Mr. Gandhi reiterated his faith in the "Constructive Program" which he had laid down at Bardoli in February of 1922, and which limited the activities of the National Congress to the Charka (spinning wheel), Khaddar, (the wearing of homespun cloth), and social reform activities, such as the removal of "untouchability" of the lower castes, the campaign against the drink-evil, and village-education. The absolute boycott of government schools, law courts and legislative councils was insisted upon, as well as the boycott of foreign cloth.

To this program, the Swarajists opposed their own, which was to enter the Legislative Councils with the object of carrying on obstruction to government measures, until their demand for Swaraj (self-government) should be granted. They agreed to carry on the constructive program of Gandhism outside the councils, and to enforce the boycott of merely British, as opposed to all foreign cloth. To these modifications in his program, Mr. Gandhi could not agree, and the statement of difference was issued to the country as a means of testing public opinion before the session of the All-India Congress Committee in June, which would have to decide between the two factions.

It was the first time that Mr. Gandhi's word had been challenged upon an issue of national importance. The gauntlet had been thrown down; the leadership of the Indian National movement hung in the balance. Mr. Gandhi had declared that if his program were rejected, he would retire from politics and devote himself to social reform. The choice therefore, was clear and uncompromising. He further announced that he would submit a resolution, declaring that all persons who did not spin for half an hour a day, and who did not observe the five-fold boycott of Legislative Councils, Law Courts, Govern-

(Continued on page 5.)

Idealism Versus History

By Arthur E. E. Reade

TWO plays—one by a Fabian, one by a Communist—have recently been produced in London; each is the epic of the struggle of a woman and idealist with the world, and in both her fate is to be dutifully executed by quite polite State officials. But the worlds of Shaw and of Toller are different worlds; the characters in Saint Joan are people drawn from the world of mediaeval history; in Masse-Mensch 'the protagonists, except Sonia,' Toller states, 'are not individual characters'—they are symbols representing the forces that govern the world today, the world of the class-struggle in its most brutal reality. Hence Toller has a message for the working class, and that is perhaps why the workers have less opportunity of seeing Masse-Mensch than Saint Joan. Not that serious consideration can be given to the rash classification of Saint Joan as Fascist, on the grounds that Shaw accepts a philosophy of social despair when he seems to depict the shabbiness of the powers that be merely by contrast with the glorious courage and perfect faith of one human being, martyred without malice in her own age, and canonized by humbugs in the next.

Now whether Saint Joan be or be not Shaw's greatest work, it certainly is one of the finest historical plays ever written—in the conventional sense that an historical play is a dramatization of a "true story" from the history books; and Saint Joan is nothing more. But in it Shaw's stagecraft has so surpassed itself, and, in the present production at the New Theater, he is so nobly served by the players, that the effect overwhelms powers of criticism. The too subtle critic, failing to discern that the secret of Saint Joan is not in any obscurantist evasions but in its Homeric simplicity, seeks some explanation of Shaw's emphasis on the lives and fates of half-legendary personalities, diverting attention from his play's unquestionable historical background of social conflict—on the one side the feudal aristocracy and the internationalist Roman Catholic Church in alliance with a foreign invader, and on the other side a nationalist middle class finding its ideological expression in incipient Protestanism and personified by Joan; and so into the playwright's incidental irony is read a consistency of despair which is not likely to be supported by Shaw's preface in the edition about to be published by Messrs. Constable—if indeed there is any preference, other than the brief historical note that appears on the program at the New Theater. Saint Joan might well stand without one, because its epilogue, when the ghosts of Joan, her persecutors from hell, and a modern priest assemble to the Dauphin in a dream, supersedes the need for any prefatory argument.

If critics of the Left are to justify the mediocrity of their own understanding—a thing which the critics of the Right never bother to do—and to find the intellectual food of Fascism in Saint Joan, how is the almost helpless pessimism of Masse-Mensch to be treated? Masse-Mensch is more directly a drama of class-war; the bourgeois critics have not attacked it, for they have not understood it. There is no criterion by which a unique expression of genuine revolutionary art—that is, art created out of conscious experience of the working-class revolution—can be judged by critics humorous of analyzing the meaning of a conflict which the bourgeoisie would prefer were ignored. Happily for the "Hearthreak House" audiences who attended the Stage Society's performances the political significance—the "propaganda"—of Masse-Mensch is obscured by its pessimissm, a pessimism natural in the circumstances in which it was written, during October 1919, when the author was in solitary confinement in a cell at the fortress of Niederschoefeld, Bavaria, beginning a term of five years' imprisonment for the part he played as President of the Munich Soviet in March of that year. Masse-Mensch, says Toller in his preface, which was written two years later than the play itself in the form of a note to the producer of the Volksbuhne production at Berlin, "literally broke out of me and was put on paper in two days and a half."

Masse-Mensch consists of seven "pictures," three of which are called "dream pictures," but the whole has the effect of a nightmare by reason of its "expressionist" form. It is accepted as the masterpiece of expressionism, and, since it cannot be supposed that during those two-and-a-half days Toller occupied himself with experiments in technique, it is evident that that was the form he found most adequate to his inspiration.

The picture opens in a workman's tavern where the general strike for the morow is being planned. The comrade of the working masses—the woman, Sonia, wife of a State official reputation, "the more that you will harm the State as well as my career." The urge you feel to help society Can find an outlet in our circle. For instance, You could found homes for illegitimate children. That is a reasonable field of action, A Witness to the gentle nature which you scorn. Even your so-called comrade-workmen Despises unmarried mothers.

In the next picture, the Stock Exchange, bankers are bidding for shares in a profitable investment, National Convalescent Home, Ltd.

We call it
Convalescent Home
For strengthening the will to victory!
In fact it is
State-managed brothel.

The curtain falls on a grotesque fox-trot danced by the bankers to raise money for charity.

In the third picture, the Masses, "from eternity imprisoned in the abyss of towering towns," are crying, "Down with the factories! Down with the machines!" The woman calls the strike, and then the Nameless One comes out of the Masses and calls for arms:

The Woman. Hear me!
I will not have fresh murder.
The Nameless. Be silent, comrade.
What do you know?
I grant you feed our need,
But have you stood ten hours together in a mine,
Your homeless children herded in a hovel?
Ten hours in mines, evenings in hovels,
This, day by day, the fate of masses.
You are not Masses!
I am Masses!
Masses are fate.
The Masses in the Hall.
Are fate . . .
The Woman only consider,
Masses are helpless,
Masses are weak.
The Nameless. How blind you are!
Masses are master!
Masses are might!
The Masses in the Hall.
Are might!

The Woman. My feelings urge me darkly—
But yet my conscience cries out; No!

The Nameless. Be silent, comrade,
For the Cause!
The individual, his feelings and conscience,
What do they count?
The Masses count.
Consider this
One single bloody battle; then
Forever peace.
The Woman. You—are—the Masses!
You—are—right!

But when the battle is joined, Sonia tries to stop it, and the Masses are crying, "Treason!" "Intelligentsia!" "Let her be shot!" She is only saved from the workmen by the soldiery capturing the hall and all within being taken prisoner.

The husband comes to the condemned cell to congratulate her that she is at any rate guiltless of murder. "Guiltlessly guilty," she replies.

The Husband. I warned you of the Masses.
Who stirs the Masses, stirs up Hell.
The Woman. Hell? Who created Hell—
Conceived the tortures of your golden mills
Which grind, grind out your profit, day by day?

(Continued on Page 6)

Street Free!

By OSKAR KANEHL

Street free.
In big crowd red banners wave.
Tramways respectfully still stay.
Loudly calls the Internationale:
People, hear the signal.
Street free.

Street free.
We have hunger. Look, we freeze.
In hired-barracks we must decease.
To toil as slave we have no mind.
We take our right, where we it find.
Street free.

Street free.
Up to the gardens, to the palaces.
Where they puff, where they are in fatness.
Where by race-horses and automobiles
Before prolets they live safe and still.
Street free.

Street free.
Up to the prisons, up to the keeps.
Where class-fighters pay for heroic deeds.
Out with them. Give free them at once.
Else we fetch them. With violence.
Street free.

Street free.
Who isn't for us, is against us.
Who blocks our way, we will him rush.
Vanish and die, bankrupted bourgeoisie.
March up, proletarian army.
Street free.

—Translation, Paul Acel.

—is all strength!
I am ready.
With every breath power grows in me.
How I have longed and waited for this hour.
When heart's blood turns to words
And words to action!

If I tomorrow sound the trumpet of Judgment
And if my conscience surges thru the hall—
It is not I who shall proclaim the strike;
Mankind is calling "Strike!" and Nature "Strike!"

My knowledge is so strong. The masses
In resurrection, freed
From worthy snares woven by well-fed gentlemen,
Shall grow to be
The armies of humanity;
And with a mighty gesture
Raise up the invisible citadel of peace. . . .
Who bears the flag, the Red Flag,
Flag of beginnings?
Workman. You. They follow you.

Such is the individual at the summit of her strength, and yet, even so, only strong enough to overcome the ties of her own social-class, personified by her husband when he comes to dissuade her from damaging his nat Schools, titles and mill-made oth, would be forced to resign from o All-India Congress Committee. his resolution, if carried, would automatically exclude the Swarajists from ower, and restore the leadership of he Congress to the orthodox Non-o-operators.

MR. GANDHI'S SWAN SONG

(Contined from Page 4)

The All-India Congress Committee met at Ahmedabad— Mr. Gandhi's own province and seat of authority—on June 27, and continued its deliberations for three days. Mr. Gandhi submitted his famous "self-denying ordinance," despite the heated opposition of the Swarajists, and even that of some of his own followers, who vainly sought to reach a compromise beforehand. It was a dramatic moment; Mahatma Gandhi, the idol of the Indian people, stood at bay, defied by the opposition within the congress ranks. It fell to the lot of the Pundit Moti Lal Nehu to state the case for the Swarajists:

"We decline to make a fetish of the spinning wheel, or to subscribe to the doctrine that only thru that wheel can we obtain Swaraj. Discipline is desirable, but it is not discipline for the majority to expel the minority. We are unable to forget our manhood and our self-respect, and to say that we are willing to submit to Mr. Gandhi's orders. The congress is as much ours as our opponents, and we will return with a greater majority to sweep away those who stand for this resolution."

With these words, Pundit Nehru and Deshbandhu Das left the hall taking with them fifty-five Swarajists. One hundred and ten persons remained; when the resolution was put to vote, it was carried by 67 for and 37 against, with six abstentions. This apparent victory of the Gandhists is merely apparent; had the Swarajists remained in the hall, the resolution would have been defeated by about twenty votes.

As a result of this vote, Mr. Gandhi recognized defeat. After hurried consultation with his followers, he agreed to drop his resolution on compulsory spinning and the five-fold boycotts, making it only advisory in nature, and with these and other concessions, the Swarajists were persuaded to rejoin the session. Thus, the defeat of orthodox Gandhism is complete and final; the Swarajists have won the day and Mr. Gandhi, as leader of the Indian National struggle, has sung his swan-song.

I Arrive in America

A STORY
By JOHN LASSEN

ALL our hopes are shattered. We are not likely to land before Saturday noon; and so it is reasonably certain that we are doomed to remain aboard ship at least two days longer—that is: we of the steerage.

Swarming about the giant vessel are hosts of tiny craft, playfully wrestling with billowy crests. They seem bent on teasing the giant. They nudge his ribs. Shouts of command rend the air. The steaming colossus proceeds slowly and majestically on his way.

New York, at last!

We all hug the railing.

Someone, apparently familiar with America, ventures to explain (the optimist is by no means an extinct specie): "After they've disposed of the second-cabin pasengers, they'll surely allow us to land."

A German, on his second visit to the States, exclaims skeptically: "Not on your life!" He points to the slow pace of our steamer, adding "The first thing I'll do will be to take out my first papers. I'll pretend—I wish I were a 'citizen' now."

Everybody winks knowingly. What a splendid thing, indeed, to be a full-fledged citizen. We had ample opportunity to realize this back in Bremen. Everywhere they were given preference. Nor do they have to go to Ellis Island; they can leave the steamer at once, no need to wait until Saturday noon. Oh, what luck!

Our boat seems eager to resist stubbornly all the buffeting it is subjected to. Shrill sirens are heard. All sorts of vessels are cruising about. Spacious barges cleave the grey waters. A freight-boat passes close by. Somewhat farther away a canal boat dumps its cargo of garbage into the watery depths. Along the shore is a sand-barge . . . And a tiny pup . . . . a bouncing, yelping bit of a pup.

We all look at the dog. It symbolizes the coveted land beyond the harbor.

"This is what I call life," observes a Polish youngster, "not like in Bremen."

"That's because they fleeced us of everything," says a German, eliciting general sympathy by the story that he had been robbed of all he possessed. In his pocket he carries a document making him the owner of a bakery. Of this he is exceedingly proud; later: "a lot do I care about the kindness of my relatives. I can well enter without them.

And . . . New York!

Mysteriously lies the city before us. The sky-scrapers are shrouded in its misty cloak. Gazing at them from this distance, one cannot conceive of them as integral parts of a pulsating city,—a city which to all appearances is submerged in gloom. But there I see something ashore which is alive. It is a castle, a fortress teeming with gnomes.

"Heavens, what's that?!" exclaims a wench whose Slavic origin is all too obvious.

And the tanned Slovak from Upper Hungary, who has been in America before, immediately explains: "It's merely a house. That's how they are built here."

"Oh, yeh!' the girl murmurs, bewildered by the thot that the houses here are built differently from those in her native Trenchen.

Of course, it was the pessimist's day. Not till late in the afternoon was the steamer towed into port.

A young girl cried out: "Oh, how happy I am." She is to be met by her betrothed. A piece of good luck indeed. They are to be married right on the boat and will be permitted to leave this very day as man and wife. We were apprised of all this by a cablegram which the girl had received.

Now everybody rushed over to the other side of the vessel. Surely we must see where we land; besides, there are throngs of people waiting on the shore.

I marvel at the speed with which our luggage is carted ashore.

A Jewess is particularly agitated. "Wonder is Rebecca will come to meet me? Do you think she'll be allowed to come on board?" she inquires of a German thoroly familiar with American customs and apparently quite willing to furnish information.

"By no means. The boat is guarded like some precious treasure."

The ship's bell rings out.

To many it portends happiness.

First-cabin passengers are released immediately.

"Motor cars—not Ellis Island—await them," remarks the German.

"Does such injustice exist here; too?! exclaims the lad from Poland. "I thot that ours was the only country to tolerate it."

He read voraciously all through the journey and studied English most diligently. Very likely expects to become a millionaire. He leans over the railing, unfurling a tiny American flag: "That will be my country."

The German heir to bakerydom emits an angry snarl: "Jerusalem is your country."

The youngster deigns him no answer. He merely blushes to his very heart. Memories of pogroms suddenly stir his mind. A small village. Polish soldiery. The knout. "Clear out to Jerusalem!!" "But so many of us couldn't go there," he sadly said . . . "They're dead . . . my father among them."

Time is too short to pursue these thoughts.

Crowding and surging masses fairly sweep one off his feet.

American citizens search for their luggage. The names of favored ones are first called out. Orders are hurled thru the air. The stewards don their best shore clothes. The pier is a teeming, seething mass of humanity. Some of them elbow their way to the exit but are rudely repulsed by two guards.

The German relates that once a man and a woman were detained and deported because "they were discovered entering into an illicit relationship."

The little wench from County Trenchen whispers into the ear of her companion in Hungarian: "Do you think he noticed anything?"

She blushes to the roots of her hair.

There is an air of unusual depression and anxiety. Everyone is confronted by a dilemma, as it were. "The authorities are merciful." Thin form a Magyar, who hails from Budapest and has been thru the mill before.

The general tension and alarm gradually vanish. First-cabin passengers hurry away to the hotels of New York to rest, while those of the second-cabin find themselves on the Island;—even the Americans have left the boat.

Only the steerage passengers remain, unable to shake off the worry: "will we be admitted?"

The bride's companion tells us that "the poor thing is teribly upset because her fiance has not yet arrived."

Sad news indeed.

Only the bakery aspirant refuses to hold his tongue. "We Germans are pretty clever. I'd rather have a bride than relatives." Then, with a grin: "I've come to New York at the call of a bakery."

Whereupon all sympathy for Germany goes by the board.

A deep dusk envelopes the ship,—a greyness that gradually turns into stygian blackness. Tiny lights glimmer in the distance. And far away, somewhere near the heavenly bodies, glows brightly a crimson star.

"That over there is the top of the Singer building, and shows the exact time," explains the sympathetic German (not the bakery heir.)

We gather into small groups.

A feeling of hopelessness grips us. No one is homesick. There is one, and only one question uppermost in the minds of all: "Will we be admitted. Will the quota not be exhausted too soon? Are our documents in order? . . . ."

One calls the experienced German aside.

"Tell me," he blabbers precipitately, "won't they send me back because I'm somewhat short of the necessary $25.00?"

The German, in his good-natured way, tries to cheer him. "You need not show your money. In fact, you needn't tell the truth!" he advises emphatically. This seems to be the most sensible counsel he can give to the new entrant at the gates of the Promised Land.

"Poor bride!" says the little wench from Czecho-slovakia.

But suddenly the cry rings out "The groom is here, the bridegroom is here!"

There is genuine general rejoicing.

"If my Rebecca could only send me a note," says the Jewess with a heart-rending sigh.

Rebecca cannot send such a note. Poor Rebecca. Even here—in America—this name seems to have an odious sound.

The girls sit in a circle surrounding the 15-year-old lad from Poland. He picks up his guitar and strums sadly soul-lifting airs.

The Slovak maiden cuddles up to her companion. They lean out over the railing. They gaze at the myriads of lights—and count the number of times the star hovering over the Singer building alternates its green and crimson hue.

Then they cuddle ever closer.

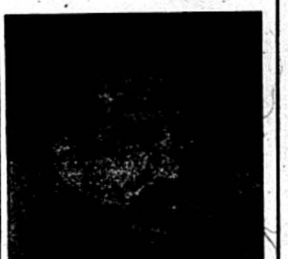
As they ascend the narrow stairs, the girl asks fretfully: "and what if they refuse to let me in?"

"Oh, you dunce!" replies the man, slaps her heartily on the back and crushes her even closer to himself.

A most convincing bit of evidence.

The plaintive voice of the guitar fills the deck.

And in the sky a crimson star glows and beckons mysteriously.



MARCEL CACHIN
Leader of French Communist Party

Idealism Versus History

(Continued from page 5.)

Who built the prisons? Who cried "holy war?"
Who sacrificed a million lives of men—
Pawns in a lying game of numbers?
Who thrust the masses into mouldering kennels,
That they must clear today
The filthy burden of your yesterday?
Who robbed his brothers of their human face,
Made them mechanic,
Forced and abused them to be cogs in your machines?
The State! You!

Her indictment weakens into words of love—but he stumbles out.

The Nameless One enters, also to congratulate her; she has no doubt recovered now from her pacifist delusions. They are to escape; two warders have been bribed, and the third, at the gate, shall be struck down. But she refuses to gain her life by this man's death.

The Nameless. The Masses have a right to you.

The Woman. What of the warder's right?

The warder is a man.

The Nameless. As yet there are no men.
On this side men of the Masses;
On that side men of the State.

The Woman. To be a man is plain, is primal.

The Nameless. Only the Masses are holy.

The Woman. The Masses are not holy.
Force made the Masses.
Injustice of possession made the Masses . . . .

You are not release.
You are not redemption.
I know you, who you are.

You are the bastard child of war . . . .

Unholy every cause that needs to kill.

The nameless spokesman of the Masses leaves the cell with the words, "You live too soon," thus echoing the last scene in Saint Joan, but with this difference: Joan fought with uncompromising and logical enthusiasm for the collective cause in spite of her associates' mean and selfish intrigues; Sonia refused to fight at all because of her private conscience.

The woman is led out and executed, and two women convicts, gossiping over the trinkets in her cell, over the coffin—"a yellow box"—that is ready for Sonia in the washroom, over the officer's golden uniform, are startled by the sound of the shots into crying, "Why do we do these things?" And Toller leaves it at that, so that an unscrupulous London producer can reverse the interpretations of Berlin and Moscow and render Masse-Mensch as the sad story of a misguided idealist who suffers for rejecting a kind husband in favor of the Masses whose leader proves a villian. The Nameless is presented as a devil incarnate; there could be no more unfair perversion of Toller's intention.

Toller explains that in his artistic capacity he questions the validity of the various social forces and relations between human beings whose objective reality he assumes in his political capacity. Yet I do not think the dramatist presenting a problem and the Communist refraining from a solution are conflicting personalities. The failure of idealism, even tho directed against the State, to satisfy the historic need of the Masses is a fact to be faced and not a problem to be solved. In recognizing this, Toller has conceived a great tragedy. An artificial solution might dissipate the tragedy of the theme, but it would seal its despair, as can be seen in The Adding Machine by Elmer Rice, which the Stage Society produced early this year. This too was an "expressionist" play, superficially a great deal more cheerful; but while it began with social satire it ended by finding a solution in individual cynicism, and that is the way of Fascism.

Bukharin's Report on World Program

TO THE FIFTH WORLD CONGRESS OF THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL

The DAILY WORKER today publishes the third installment of the report given by Nicholas Bukharin on the question of the world Communist program at the Fifth World Congress of the Communist International. Another installment will appear in an early issue.

* * *

I NOW come to the question of the new economic policy which I consider to be the most important part of my report.

First of all a few introductory remarks. After the introduction of the new economic policy, we, the Russian Communists, and also our friends, the foreign parties, almost without any exception, had a feeling that we had acted somewhat improperly, and that we ought to apoligize for the new economic policy.

New Economic Policy.

In its most subtle form, this apologist attitude consisted in our considering the new economic policy exclusively from the standpoint of political expediency, as a political concession to the petty bourgeoisie. It means that we did not think the new economic policy to be expedient and rational in itself.

This is what we thought then. Now however, we may quite conscienciously say the very opposite. The question of the new economic policy on the whole should be formulated by us in the following manner (later on I will deal with it more exhaustively): The only correct economic policy for the proletariat, the policy which insures the growth of productive forces, is the policy which we described as the "new economic policy." War-time Communism was nothing else but a corrective of this new economic policy, the necessary corrective for the political expression of the direct class war against the bourgeoisie and the petty bourgeois elements. I believe that we should state these ideas quite clearly, and for this reason, comrades, I must ask to be excused if I shall deal with these ideas in some detail.

Class Remnants Still Left.

Comrades, the fundamental facts, the fundamental phenomenon which will confront the victorious proletariat after the conquest of political power, will be the variety of the forms of economy with which it will have to deal. In no country, not even in the most capitalistically developed, are the productive forces so highly developed as to have caused the disappearance of all the immediate strata.

No Marxist will assert that the social revolution cannot come unless every petty bourgeois, every handicraftsman, every small capitalist shall have disappeared. It would be a foolish exaggeration, of the kind contrived by our opponents to make a caricature of Marxism.

We here spoke only about the tendency of the development. None of us thought that social revolution will only come when the last peasant will have disappeared, but knew that it will come when the contradictions of the capitalist system will have produced a situation on the social chessboard which will call forth revolution thru the class interests.

Thus in all countries without exception (of course in some countries to a greater extent than in others) we shall have to deal with a great variety of economic forms. And that is the main fact. With it are connected two other main facts of economic and political life.

Classes Reflect Class Economy.

The second fact is as follows: There are as many different economic forms as there are classes or rather social strata. As long as we have small enterprises we shall have small producers, as long as there are small farms in the country side we shall have peasants and as long as we have small capitalist enterprises, we shall have small capitalists and also handicraftsmen.

Thus we see that the various economic forms correspond with the various classes or strata of society. There is another main fact connected with this, which will play an important part after the conquest of political power. If we leave this third fact out of sight and out of account, we run the risk of adopting an erroneous and even harmful policy. This third factor is as important as the above mentioned two main facts, and consists in the heterogeneity of economic motives, of economic impulses. Thus, if we have different economic forms, we also have different economic motives. The motives of the peasantry differ from these of big capitalists.

The economic motives of socialized enterprises differ from those of the big peasantry. Even the economic motives of the big peasantry differ from those of the small peasantry.

What then is the main problem of our economic policy in the face of this basic problem? This main problem could be formulated as follows: it is the problem of co-ordinating and subordinating firstly, economic stimuli.

Economic Hegemony Above All.

In the face of such heterogeneity, we must of course consolidate the hegemony of the proletariat also on the economic field. What does this mean? It means that our socialized enterprises must have the hegemony in our economic life, and that the other economic forms, consequently, all intermediate motives, must be subordinate to this economic hegemony.

What makes the proletarian economic policy so complicated is—that it is not as clear and simple as Comrade Boris' conception of economic policy. If, as he says, there were no differences and no variety of forms, it would be an easy matter to establish socialism. Thus, our highly esteemed opponent gets rid of the entire transition period, for this period presupposes heterogeneity of economic forms. The transition period is the period during which the most advanced economic forms squeeze out other forms by means of competition.

Now it is clear to us that the main problem consists in subordinating economic forms and classes. This is a complicated art. But this is the only right way to look at the economic policy of the victorious proletariat. It is not difficult to understand why we cannot except complete socialization a la Boris. It would be a caricature.

Inkpot of Centralism.

I well remember that Trotsky once said in arguing with extreme centralists, that centralism consists in placing a big inkpot in the Red Square into which all the writers from the various parts of the Soviet Union are to dip their pens. Why is it impossible to carry out this complete socialization a la Boris? It is impossible because of the heterogeneity of the economic forms within our Soviet Union.

We are unable to carry this thru for technical reasons. We have not enuf organizational forces to socialize everything, even the peasant allotments. This is one of the reasons. Secondly, it is politically impossible, because, by attempting it, we would rouse the petty bourgeoisie and all the traders against the victorious proletariat. Thirdly, because to attempt to socialize everything all at once such heterogenious enterprises would require a gigantic administrative apparatus the cost of which would be higher than that of anarchic production. This played an important part during the period of military communism. This excessively centralized form of government necessitated such a gigantic State apparatus that it consumed everything. We still feel the consequences of this disease. The problem of distribution between productive and unproductive consumption is one of the most important problems of the victorious proletariat.

NEP Correct Policy.

The New Economic Policy is the only correct and true proletarian economic policy. When I speak of the only correct economic policy of the proletariat, I mean a policy based on the growth of productive forces, and a policy which encourages this growth. When from this standpoint, we make a comparison between economic policy, new economic policy, and military communism; when we compare the two forms of this policy, we come to a full understanding of the difference between them. What was military communism? It was rational consumption of existing food stores. It seized or requisitioned from every peasant and from every locality anything that was to be had, in order to provide for the army and for the urban proletariat. At that time this was the only possible policy, the first strategical position which gave us a firm footing in the economic life of the country. We seized power in economic organization, we also partly destroyed them (this too was a good thing, it is in fact a justification of the policy of military communism). On the other hand we established rational consumption of the existing food stores. That we could not give encouragement to productive forces, is self-understood. How could we encourage agriculture, if we took away all the surplus produce What motive could the peasantry have for production? We have no economic subordination of small farms, and therefore no economic subordination of the peasant class, hence no subordination of the economic stimuli of this class—hence, from the standpoint of productive forces, we had to record not an advance, but a retreat. The peasants refused to produce.

We Recognize Mistakes.

There was a great conflict between our State policy and the economic motives and impulses of these strata of the population, which made the partial existence of these economic forms impossible and roused the indignation of these classes against this policy. It is a good thing that we adopted the new policy ourselves, in making a careful survey of this matter, we recognize the economic mistakes we made and we realize what real proletarian economic policy must be like.

Apparent Radicalism of Boris.

Comrades, I should like to deal here with an argument used by Boris. His justification of the demand for complete socialization is—that every national economy is a unity, and being a unity, requires just such a policy. This sounds very radical, but in reality it is theoretical opportunism. Why? Not only is there a unity, but there is also a unity of contradictions. To a certain extent, the proletariat and the bourgeoisie is also a social unity. But there are contradictions within it, and the same may be said of all economic forms. This, in fact, is the whole problem. The bourgeoisie has co-ordinated these contradicting elements. We must have another kind of co-ordination. To deny this problem, one must assume that society represents an united whole, and not a unity in contradictions.

Further, if we regard the varieties

(Continued on page 8)

HUGHES (reclining on box containing European indebtedness to America) to MacDonald and Herriott—I hope, gentlemen, I am not in your way.

On Factory Nuclei

(Continued from page 2.)

of activity, if the party forces will be distributed according to the importance of the various functions, the party will be able to accomplish this tremendous task.

The above description of our organizational method should by all means create the impression as tho these plans have already been carried out in Germany Party. The ideological obstacles in the Party have been overcome, all the forces are now being concentrated on the work in the factory nuclei, and the party is learning day by day to concentrate its forces on the most important tasks, which are of decisive importance to the organization of workers' fights. This constitutes a tremendous step forward in comparison with the state of organization which prevailed at the time of the Fourth World Congress. May the decisions of the Fifth Congress, by taking stock of all the past organizational experiences, by elaborating the clear principles of bolshevist organizations, and by precise formulation of the immediate organizational tasks, help the various sections in furthering the organization of the revolution.

Bukharin's Report on World Program

(Continued from page 7)

of economic forms as the main phenomenon, it becomes quite clear that the most important manifestations arising out of the diversity of production are the forms of market relations. And here I think we must deal with the following prospects. In the long run as Boris says—the proletarian section of economic life, the social enterprises in industry and agriculture, will squeeze out the forms of private capitalism, the small producers, by means of competition in the markets. Formerly our idea was somewhat as follows: we have a portion of the economic life of the country; other, socially hostile, or partially socially hostile elements have the other portion, and these we shall be able to swallow up by the direct methods of state power and without market relations. In all probability, judging by empirical facts—not merely by the Russian experience, but "mutandis mutandi" by the experiences of other countries—what will actually happen will be that owing to the anarchy of production, market relations will be necessary and therefore the competitive struggle between the state forms of proletarian economy, between the socialized industries and the other forms of industry. Formally, the method is the same as under the capitalist economic system The great difference lies in the fact that under the capitalist economic system, large and medium-sized industries have almost the same economic content. What was the distinction? There was no distinction in principle. But if we have varieties of economic forms after the organization of power, the economic forms are in general bound up with the socially antagonistic content of the enterprises. If the industries are in the hands of private capital, a competitive struggle against them by the large proletarian industries will take place—a revolutionary struggle, a class struggle against the bourgeoisie. That prosaic thing, market competition, is nothing but a specific new form of the class struggle. On the one hand we have large industries with a proletarian content, and on the other, forms which have a different social content. This is perhaps the most important point we must grasp; since all doubts and misunderstandings, all attacks upon Nep and the present situation in Russia proceed from the fact that the comrades concerned fail to understand the entirely new forms of class struggle based upon economic competition. Formally, maters are almost the same as they were under capitalism, the producer received wages, the whole process goes on as in capitalist society. But the important thing is, that in spite of this formal identity, there exists a difference in principle. When we examine the economics of the proletarian dictatorship, we must bear in mind that the variety of economic forms is bound up with the variety of the social content of industry.

Difficulties of Economic Planning.

Here comrades I think belongs the idea of the development of economic planning. We formerly believed that we had only to determine the plan and the plan would mechanically be carried into effect. We now know that economic planning after the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat is difficult to carry into practice; in other words, we can only carry out economic planning to the extent that the material basis therefor exists. And this material basis for economic planning is nothing but the result of the squeezing out of backward economic forms by the superior large industries with a proletarian social content.

A certain parallel can be drawn between capitalist production in the transition period, namely, the process of the centralization of capital and the squeezing out of backward forms by market competition, the limit of which is state capitalism. The same is true with us: we have the squeezing out of backward economic forms by market competition and the centralization of industry. And the more centralization proceeds, the more is the basis for economic planning created. The limit, however, is not state capitalism, but socialism.

No Voluntary Discipline Bunk.

Here we have an entirely new conception. But I think we can safely say that only this perspective is a correct one; it is the only one which can be theoretically proved. And it is just this perspective which is the strongest weapon against every form of pessimism on this subject. The attitude: Alas! the small producer is being permitted; alas! they are permitting even the capitalists. And all the other alases, are the result of a failure to understand the phenomena. In the early stages the superiority of large industry was not so apparent, since during the process of general economic disruption it is not immediately possible to carry on large industry. The same is true of commerce, where there are machines but no demand for them, where there is no circulating capital to set the apparatus going. But as soon as competition between large industry and small industry begins, we immediately begin to perceive the extent of the superiority of large industry. The competitive capacity of large industry will therefore steadily increase. What grounds are there for pessimism? We shall certainly have crises, but these crises will disappear when we have complete economic planning. We shall in all probability have crises for many years to come, but the general line of the squeezing out of other economic forms, which do not possess a social character, is the only right one and represents the victorious prospect of our social development. The contraction between capitalist forms and social forms is a great problem, a very sinister problem. But if we grasp what I have here stated, the matter becomes quite clear. We indeed have capitalist forms, wage relations; we have money circulation instead of distribution of goods; we have banks and stock exchanges, ay, even stock exchanges, the holy of the capitalist class. We have competition and even profitmaking in our state industries. But here we can find a parallel in the military sphere. Our army is to a large extent similar to any ordinary bourgeois army. We originally believed that the structure of our army would be something quite different, there would be no compulsory discipline, but only voluntary discipline. But experience has proved that there can be no question of voluntary discipline in the literal sense of the word, although, of course we have more voluntary discipline in our army than in any other army.

The Army or the Red Army.

But various corecive measures are adopted in the army, and we cannot do without them; we even shoot deserters. This is the highest means of coercion in hands of the State. The outward structure is similar to that of the bourgeois army. But that is not the most important point. What is really the most important, is the different class character of the army.

The same applies to this economic fight. The new economic policy, which is already fairly old, has also many inherent, contradictions, not only of form and substance but also contradictions of a more serious nature, especially during the initial stage of proletarian economic policy. Our socialized enterprises and institutions are growing, but the same must also be said of petty bourgeois enterprises. The contradiction between the rationality of our economic life represented by small capitalists and private traders is growing. Thus, we have already not only a contradiction between form and substance, but contradiction between various social forms and social forces. Naturally the class struggle on the economic field will definitely solve this question.

Possibilities of Coalition.

Just a few more words to make myself fully understood on this question. I said that we will arrive at our final socialist economic order by means of various economic struggles, in which big enterprises will be in the hands of the proletariat. But the matter is not so simple, because proletarian dictatorship is able to co-operate with the small producer under his hegemony. This is very important, especially as far as the peasantry is concerned. A situation is possible in which the proletariat and the proletarian big enterprises form a bloc with the small producers, and co-operate with them. And we must be very careful not to underestimate this question of small producers as a bulwark of private trading.

After a few explanatory remarks on war communism, we shall be able to see that the new economic policy is not a corrective of war communism, but that the new economic policy is the only expedient policy of the proletariat. War communism on the contrary appears to be a corrective of the new economic policy. But why is it a corrective? Because it is necessitated not by a rational economic policy, but by direct political struggle. In many cases there are conflicts between the view-point of economic nationality, namely between the formula of the necessity of economic policy and the necessity and expediency of direct political struggle. During the rising, for instance, we destroy material values, but we do the same when defending the fatherland. If we make war on the bourgeoisie and desire also to make a clean sweep of the petty bourgeoisie, we have only to take the necessary measures for the overthrow of the bourgeoisie: we must get into our hands the sources of its natural wealth. I told you that we took away everything from the peasants. Was this necessary? Certainly but in what sense was it necessary and expedient? It was the necessity and expediency of war. Had we acted differently, we should have lost the war. And without victory in war further development was impossible. That is why military communism was essential. I reiterate most emphatically that the expediency of direct political struggle in the economic life was also bound up with the decline of productive forces. But when this political task has been fulfilled, when our power and the dictatorship of the proletariat are firmly established, and it is only a matter of bringing the productive forces into motion and to do everything to encourage them— then a policy of military communism is no longer justified. I do not raise the question, which should precede the other. With us, the policy of war communism preceded the new economic policy. It is possible that things will be different in other countries. For instance, in a country where the bourgeoisie is easily overthrown and the proletariat is well trained and disciplined, the latter will realize the expediency and necessity of the new economic policy. But when a blockade intervenes, requisition of partial requisition becomes necessary. On the whole, war communism will probably have to be applied in many countries to a lesser or greater extent. This will be necessary, because the bourgeoisie will be able to offer energetic resistance to the proletariat. But the important point is that all our parties should be able to distinguish betwen political and economic expediency and that they adapt it to the situation in their respective countries.

(To Be Continued)

HAVE YOU READ

LENIN'S

last great speech to the world's workers? If not, don't let another day go by without sending for a copy of:

"Report of the IV Congress of the Communist International"

IT IS REPORTED THERE IN FULL

Here is the offer, good to August 30th, 1924

Report of the IV Congress, with Lenin's speech	$ .75
Lenin, his life and work, by Sinoviev	.15
State and Revolution, by Nikolai Lenin	.25
TOTAL	$1.15

All of the above for 50 CENTS, if you send your check or money order now, to

Literature Department,
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Grand Opening of the

SECOND RUSSIAN CO-OPERATIVE

RESTAURANT

THIS SUNDAY, AUGUST 17th

At 760 Milwaukee Avenue

All who will attend the opening will receive a splendid dinner, at their own selection, below cost.

PICNIC

SUNDAY, AUGUST 24, 1924

—AT—

NATIONAL GROVE

Riverside, Illinois

Speakers:

BARNEY MASS, of the Young Workers League, and others

ATHLETICS — DANCING — MUSIC—GAMES — REFRESHMENTS

Directions—Take any car to 22nd St.; 22nd St. west to end. Take La Grange Car to National Grove.

Tickets, 35c Gates Open at 10 A. M. At the gate, 50c

AUSPICES—YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE OF CHICAGO
SOCIETY FOR TECHNICAL AID TO SOVIET RUSSIA

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 22 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 129. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year, Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. MONDAY, AUGUST 18, 1924 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

IDLE MINERS HAUNT CITY STREETS

Clothing Workers Back Communist Campaign

U. S. WAR LORD PREPARES TO TURN OVER COMMAND TO HIS SUCCESSOR

General John J. Pershing, or "Blackjack" as he is familiarly if not tenderly referred to by the privates in the regular army is about to surrender his post as Chief of Staff to Maj. Gen. John Hines (right) and retire from active duty. Pershing is credited with responsibility for the mobilization day plans which have caused so much excitement thruout the country.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE only way to restore the coal mining industry in the central competitive field to its former vigor, is to cut wages, declares the Chicago Journal of Commerce in a lengthy editorial. A Journal reporter, after making a study of the "black diamond" industry, very likely in the office of the coal operators, shows that coal operators are deserting the unionized sections in favor of those fields where the United Mine Workers of America have not been able to make any inroads. This results in the closing down of mines in the organized regions, with the inevitable consequence of unemployment or part-time work and increasing production in those sections where the workers have not the protection of a union.

THE solution of the problem is not what the Journal of Commerce suggests. Granting that the Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania mines were silly enuf to accept the advice of the coal-operators, to take a wage cut bringing their pay to the level of the non-union miners in Kentucky and West Virginia, what is there to prevent the scab-operators of the non-union regions from handing their employes another cut, which would give the so-called union operators another excuse for demanding that their employes stand for another slash in wages? This is a vicious circle which the miners cannot afford to travel in.

FROM the point of view of the operators the suggestion of the Chicago Journal of Commerce is full of wisdom. Cut wages, cut wages! That is their cry. But from the workers' viewpoint there is another and a better way to meet the problem, and a serious problem it certainly is. It takes no genius to realize that the best way to solve the problem is to organize the unorganized fields, and establish the six-hour day thruout the entire industry. But John L. Lewis and the reactionary officials of the miners' union are working hand in hand with the coal operators, and instead of devoting their attention to fighting the enemy, the coal barons, they are spending thousands of dollars making war on union radicals.

THE Jacksonville agreement gave the miners nothing but a scrap of paper. It is true the coal operators who come under its provisions are obliged to pay their employes the union scale when the mines are opened but there is no clause in the contract to prevent a coal operator who is running a union mine in Illinois to close down that mine and open up a scab mine in Kentucky or West Virginia. Not alone are the operators bringing misery on thousands of min-

(Continued on page 3.)

INVESTIGATION OF BOB'S CAMP REVEALS GRAFT

"Bob" Plays With Old Party Corruption

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Fifth Article.)

In the course of the campaign the LaFollette forces will do much yelling about purity in government. The Wisconsin Senator will rail against the tyranny of political machines. Another one of those perennial "final" efforts will be made to elect only good, honest, progressive citizens to office.

It is on such a program and under precisely such slogans that LaFollette has captured Wisconsin.

Yet, the facts show conclusively that the Badger state senator has become the political boss only thru the organization of a powerful machine, of a machine as effective as those against which he is now fuming. More than that, LaFollette's machine in Wisconsin is not and has not been as free from graft and corruption as he would have the world believe. Bribery, secrecy of campaign funds, the support of fake progressives and crooked "honest" men have been part and parcel of the ideal "Wisconsin Plan" of good, clean government.

Handled With Silk Gloves.

The proof that the fundamental cause for corruption in government is to be found in the private ownership of the means of production and exchange socially used, is afforded by the LaFollette regime in Wisconsin. The Democratic Herald, the predecessor to the Leader of the individual men at the helm of the administrative machinery is only a secondary factor in governmental corruption.

When LaFollette was making his entry into practical national politics, he was offered a bribe ranging from five to fifteen hundred dollars by United States Senator Philetus Saw-

(Continued on Page 6)

40,000 Illinois Miners Jobless.

The number of unemployed miners in the Illinois district is estimated at over 40,000.

SPRINGFIELD IS JOBLESS CITY, SURVEY SHOWS

Mine Barons Speed Up Few at Work

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 17. The street corners of Springfield are cluttered with idle miners who have long since given up the hopeless search for work.

Out of eleven thousand miners who have worked within a twenty mile radius of this town, fifty-five hundred are completely idle and the remaining miners are able to work only one or two days a week.

Production Speeded Up.

The mine owners in this district have taken the advice of Frank Farrington that the miners must speed up production, very seriously, and the few miners working are constantly threatened with discharge if they do not keep production above the non-union level.

The Illinois Mine Workers' Union no longer offers protection to the membership, and those who are able have drifted away to other industries or migrated to other cities, thus reducing the membership of the miners' organization. Letters are continually being sent to individual miners, over the heads of the union, by the mine owners, badgering the miners to keep up production under threat of dismissal.

Like Plague-Ridden Towns.

Nearby mining towns Divernon, Thayer, Dawson, Riverton and others, present the aspect of plague-ridden towns.

The miners in these camps have been idle for eight months. Last year they were idle for a five months' stretch, and there is no work in the mines at present, with no prospect of the mines opening in the near future. The stores in these towns, dependent for their existence on the trade of the miners, are fast going to the wall and closing up.

They have extended credit to the miners out of necessity for the past eight months, and now, unable to meet their bills longer, are going bankrupt by the dozen. The miners, therefore, are finding it increasingly difficult to buy food on credit, and their destitution is critical.

John Watt, secretary-treasurer of the Springfield sub-district of the United Mine Workers of Illinois and candidate for lieutenant governor on the Workers Party ticket, told the DAILY WORKER: "I am glad to see the WORKERS PARTY taking measures to organize the unemployed. The Communists are the only ones who have a program which will solve the unemployment problem.

"The unemployment among the miners will be one of the big issues

(Continued on page 2.)

ONE OF THE BYPRODUCTS OF FAMOUS EXCAVATION WHICH EXPOSED KING TUT

At last he has been discovered! Richard J. Powers, first president of the American Federation of Labor, considers Samuel Gompers a foe of law and order and a dangerous radical. What has Gompers to live for now since this fossil has burst into the limelight to boost "Silent Cal"?

INDICTMENT OF GARVEY BRINGS NEGRO PROTEST

By ROBERT MINOR.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—An enormous crowd of Negro people gathered in Liberty Hall here this week as an expression of protest against the second effort of the federal authorities to send Marcus Garvey, president of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, to prison.

An indictment on a two-year-old income tax report, sprung on Garvey in the midst of the second annual convention of the large Negro organization, seems to have been intended to throw a wet blanket on the convention.

It is known that the main business of the convention is the formation of an international "Negro Political Union" of Negroes of the United States, the West Indies, other black-populated islands and the African colonies where the French, British and Belgian governments are anxious to avoid political agitation among the natives.

Garvey Meets Attack.

Garvey met the attack by appealing to the masses of the Negroes of New York's Harlem to come to his support.

(Continued on page 3)

Miners! Send in Your Stories!

THE DAILY WORKER publishes today the first of a series of articles on the jobless problem in Illinois, especially among the coal miners. Karl Reeve, our labor reporter, is on the ground getting the first hand facts. This material will appear daily in these columns.

But the DAILY WORKER wants to get letters direct from the coal miners themselves; and from workers in other industries. What are the jobless conditions confronting you? How do you get along? What are the immediate problems that you face?

Write your stories to the Unemployment Editor, the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS!

I. W. W. FIGHT BRINGS OUT BIG DIFFERENCES

Issues in Court Fight Beginning Tomorrow

Issues between the contending factions in the Industrial Workers of the World are gradually being brought to light in the various documents being issued on either side.

The DAILY WORKER is in receipt of copies of a circular issued by the splitting group, the one that took the quarrel into the capitalist courts, in which the administration is denounced as leaning toward revolutionary affiliations, and the injunction is defended as necessary to avoid the charges of the capitalist press that the Industrial Workers of the World is revolutionary.

Rank and File Speaks.

The charges of use of "gunmen and gangmen," as well as the deeper issues involved, are dealt with in a statement issued by the "Rank and File Committee." Knowing that many of our readers are interested in this important controversy these documents are reproduced.

The statement of the secession group, claiming to be the General Executive Board, is as follows:

Statement of Secessionists.

"The General Executive Board have applied for an injunction restraining Tom Doyle, Joe Fisher and James Morris from continuing to hold the funds and property of the I. W. W.

"This action was decided upon by the General Executive Board after very careful consideration. We were confronted with a condition of affairs that would very seriously affect the general organization, if action had not been taken at once.

"Since the election of Doyle and Fisher, General Headquarters has been in the hands of men with little judgment and who by their actions have shown that they have not the slightest consideration for the membership or the future welfare of the I. W. W. as an organization.

"Their actions, since they have been in office, betrays them as followers of the Communists. The more we study them, the more we are convinced that they are working hand in hand with the 'liquidators' whose program is to control or dissolve the I. W. W.

"Their action with their entire time to peanut politics and building up a machine with which they hope to control the organization from the top. These men have for years practically dictated the policy of I. U. No. 110. Today they control all offices of importance in General Headquarters.

"So arrogant have they become that

(Continued on page 2)

LABOR TROUBLES IN HONDURAS BRING DOWN AN AMERICAN WARSHIP

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Sending an American warship to Honduras was not due to a revolution in progress near the capital, but is due to labor troubles, according to admissions by the United States government.

An independent American fruit trading concern, the Standard Fruit company, had difficulty in getting cheap enough labor at the port of La Ceiba, and had imported Jamaican Negroes in the hope of breaking the spirit of the native laborers. This led to a fight last winter in which one death occurred. The warship is claimed to have now been sent to the port to suggest adjustment and continued peace. As for the revolution, that is a coincidence.

SOCIETY FOR TECH AID SENDS FOURTH GROUP TO ODESSA, RUSSIA

Another group of the Agricultural Commune "Red Ray" left for Russia. It is the fourth group of the same commune to leave from Chicago. A veterinary went along with the last group to take care of the live stock which is rapidly increasing in number.

The commune is a part of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. It was granted land by the Soviet government in the Odessa district.

A group of the Dairy and Poultry Commune "Herald" is preparing to leave Chicago soon for Cherson, Ukrainia, where land was granted this commune by the Soviet government.

CHICAGO LABOR BODY EATS BIG DISH OF CROW

Lines Up With Gompers For Small and "Bob"

In spite of an heroic struggle on the part of its Communist delegates, the Chicago Federation of Labor, at its meeting Sunday, deserted the class struggle in the political field and went over to the LaFollette-Len Small camp by a vote of 132 to 18.

It was by this vote that the federation adopted the recommendation of the resolutions committee that the organization endorse the stand of the executive board of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, taken last week, in support of the LaFollette-Wheeler-Small ticket.

Three Wise Men.

The members of the resolutions committee are Anton Johannsen, John C. Flore, a Socialist, and Charles F. Wills, circulation manager of "The Federation News," formerly the New Majority.

In order to get the issue squarely before the federation meeting, Delegate Jack Johnstone, of the Painters' Union, demanded that the whole declaration be read. This was done.

Delegate Johnstone then got the floor and pointed out that several years ago, when the National Farmer-Labor Party was organized, that President John Fitzpatrick had declared that the two old parties were rotten to the core.

"In approving this declaration," said Johnstone, "you are going right down into that 'rotten core.'"

Dodged Negro Issue.

Johnstone then attacked LaFollette's labor record and his attitude towards the Farmer-Labor Party. He also pointed out how he had dodged the Negro question, showing how a Negro delegate had come to the Cleveland conference but had been refused an opportunity to be heard.

Johnstone showed that LaFollette had not attended any of the conferences that had endorsed him, that his

(Continued on page 2)

RANK AND FILE AGAINST 'BOB', FAVOR FOSTER

Amalgamated Members in Opposition to G. E. B.

By MAX SHACHTMAN.

Reports are beginning to come in which show that while the General Executive Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America has committed the organization to the broom and flag of '76 which is being lugged around the country by LaFollette, the rank and file is taking an entirely different stand.

Accustomed to working class independent action on all fields, the membership of the organization is repudiating the tin Jesus from Wisconsin and is aligning its forces with the candidates of the Workers Party of America, William Z. Foster for president and Benjamin Gitlow for vice-president.

Already a number of locals which have had the opportunity to discuss and take action upon the call of the Workers Party to the rank and file to repudiate the position of the general executive board, have followed the Communist lead, and done their share towards erasing the stain of LaFollettetism from the escutcheon of a working class organization which has a fighting record behind it.

Rank and File for Foster.

In Chicago, Local 269, a unit of 1,500 members, went on record against LaFollette and indorsed the candidacy of Foster and Gitlow with but one dissenting vote. In New York city, the executive committee of the Italian Pants Makers' Local 62, with a membership of 7,000, at its last meeting voted unconditional support to the Workers Party candidates, rejecting the stand of the national executive body.

In Rochester, the Farmer-Labor party of the city, which includes in its affiliated bodies the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, went on record in support of Foster and Gitlow. In Chicago, at a conference of the Illinois Labor party, the Communist candidates were indorsed by all the delegates present, among whom were representatives of Local 269 (which, as stated above, later ratified this action), and Local 39, one of the largest unions in the organization. This latter local has not yet taken up the question of indorsement of candidates, but the militants stand an excellent chance of reaffirming the principle of the class struggle by rejecting the "fighting faker" from Wisconsin and points east.

Schlossberg Kicking, Too.

It should not be thought that this wave of dissent is entirely confined to the rank and file, altho it receives its backbone and spirit therefrom. The latest news is that Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated, has declined to be a part to this betrayal of the idea of the class struggle upon which the union has always stood.

A clean bill of health to LaFollette

(Continued on page 2.)

UNMASK HYPOCRITICAL KRESGE AS BOSS OF COOLIE WORKERS; GIRLS AVERAGED $7.52 A WEEK

By OWEN STIRLING.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, August 17.—Sebastian S. Kresge, multi-millionaire owner of a chain of five-and-ten-cent stores, national Anti-Saloon League leader and extensive contributor to charity, stands publicly unmasked now as an octopus fattening on the lives of girls and women slaves.

Senator James Couzens has made public correspondence between himself and Kresge in which he accuses Kresge of driving girls and women on the streets thru hopelessly low wages, and calling on other wealthy men to pay for "rescue homes" and hospitals for them.

Charity But No Wages.

Kresge, according to the correspondence, wrote to Senator Couzens,

(Continued on page 5.)

ORDER YOUR BUNDLE OF THE DAILY WORKER'S FIRST SPECIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE—SEE PAGE THREE

MATTEOTTI BODY FOUND BURIED BY ASSASSINS

Mussolini Victim Was Horribly Mutilated

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

ROME, August 17.—A naked and horribly mutilated body, positively identified as that of Giacomo Matteotti, socialist deputy who two months ago was murdered for attempting to expose the crimes of the Mussolini government, was found yesterday afternoon near Crofano, a few miles from Rome. It was buried under fourteen inches of soil. A long steel file had been plunged into the breast.

Killed by Stiletto.

Last Thursday evening a waistcoat, recognized by police as having belonged to Matteotti, was found in a vault near Rome. It had been punctured with numerous holes, as if by a stiletto.

No Public Funeral Allowed.

Mussolini's official order that no public funeral may be held for the murdered socialist, and that no public honors may be bestowed upon him, is arousing the anger of the workers, who, thru their labor organizations, are planning to launch a manifesto to the Italian people to participate in a mass funeral in defiance of the Fascisti.

Mussolini has been forced to call to Rome the entire national militia, consisting of over 25,000 armed guards, to maintain order. Need for the national militia has been intensified by the discontent which is rapidly spreading among the Carabinieri, a corps of 80,000 soldiers acting as royal guards, partly because their pay had been substantially reduced by order of Mussolini.

Communists Ready to Act.

The Communist Party of Italy has decided to call a general strike of all workers on the day of the funeral. Other parties of the constitutional opposition, however, chief among them the entire socialist party, of which Matteotti was a member, have refused to co-operate on the ground that such action might "disturb the peace and general equanimity of the country."

A tremendous wave of indignation against the Mussolini dictatorship, rising even higher than the one which shook the foundations of the fascist government when the crime was committed, is expected to make itself manifest as the day of the funeral approaches.

I. W. W. FIGHT BRINGS OUT ISSUES

(Continued from Page 1.)

they have assumed the authority that rightfully belongs to the G. E. B. Anyone who dares to disagree with them either is ousted or faces a gun, a "black jack" or a mob. They tolerate no opposition.

"The General Executive Board would have had to resort to the same tactics as Doyle, Fisher and Morrison, which might have caused serious injuries or even death on either or both sides, wholesale arrests of our members thruout the country, destroyed the organization, supported the accusation hurled against it by the press, from the pulpit, and given added weight to the stool pigeons, spies and agents provocateurs who have given testimony in court during the course of trials of our members charged with criminal-syndicalism, etc.—or appeal to the courts for an adjustment until such time as a general convention may be held.

General Executive Board, Industrial Workers of the World.
J. A. Griffith,
Chas. Anderson,
Fred W. Bowerman,
James Rowan,
P. D. Ryan,
H. E. Trottler."

A general bulletin of the administration forces answers the charge of "gangsters" in the following statement:

* * *

Are We Gangsters and Gunmen?

"'Gangsters and gunmen rule headquarters.' Thirty gangsters and gunmen beat up the G. E. B.!'

"So read the telegrams and statements of the self-styled G. E. B. And in a signed statement they say again, 'thirty armed gunmen, most of whom were strangers, no doubt paid gunmen hired for that purpose, started spasping up on the G. E. B.'

"Why do they not mention the names of the men who put them out? Not one was a stranger. Every one was known to the disrupters.

"So that members may know the names of all who put the disrupters on the street we sign our names and card numbers to this brief statement, and say without equivocation: WE PUT THEM OUT!

"We ask you, the members of the I. W. W.: Are we gangsters and gunmen? Leave it over, and count us. Yours for the I. W. W.

"William Hanley, Card 194920, Sec'y I. U. 110; Arthur Linn, Card 407217, Chairman I. U. 110; J. M. Reilly, Card X-4985, Sec'y I. U. 230; Chas. Gibson, Card 273575, Chairman I. U. 230; Forrest Edwards, Card 8714; Frank Gallagher, Card 238864; Harry Dreyer, Card 344103; Sam Forbes, Card 195-843; Mike Sapper, Card 195075; Herbert Mahler, Card 169783; Wm. Hood, Card 188290; Geo. D. Ellis, Card 296062; C. A. Kent, Card 418554; Jack Martin, Card X-36015; E. W. Latchem, Card 3; and others."

Suffer from Syndicalist Prejudices.

The charge that the administration follows the Communists is, of course, far from the truth. Both sides are permeated with syndicalist prejudices that require the sharpest criticism from the Communists.

But the statement of the "Rank and File Committee" does raise the issue of revolutionary policies against the pure-and-simple job organization tendencies of the secessionists. This statement says, in part:

"Just as this fight embodies the policies of industrial unionism in the class struggle, so it is true that it did not begin yesterday, nor start from the election or retirement of some official.

"In the early years of the I. W. W., we were not much more than a propaganda group, and not a very big one at that. It was always a fear of the rebels in our organization in those days, that when some upheaval among the working class would attract a large membership into the I. W. W., it would be watered and lose its revolutionary punch. The rebels were then in a minority and unless they managed some way to hang together and keep up the revolutionary educational work, making the non-revolutionary new members absorb a revolutionary rather than a non-revolutionary policy, they would be out-voted and the organization would be ruined in the long run, as far as its service to industrial emancipation was concerned. For we must have revolutionary EDUCATION and a big ORGANIZATION in order to have EMANCIPATION.

"When we speak of this fear on the part of the rebels in the early I. W. W., we recognize and must admit as a fact that there have always been two factions, conservatives and progressives, in the organization. The one contends for purely job unionism. These fellow workers would not be bothered with the revolutionary character of the industrial union movement. If they could get a union that would function in their particular industry for wages and hours, then they would be willing to let the revolutionary class struggle on a broad scale go to the devil.

"The task of solidarity here is the fatal flaw, for if, in all industries this could work, and really advance the general standard of the whole working class—then there would be no revolutionary or other argument against it. But industrial union solidarity has never as a fact, as final working class interests as the craft selfishness and narrowness of the American Fakeration of Labor. Industrial union narrowness is likely the next mis-step from craft narrowness on the road to the struggle for revolution. We must avoid the mis-step, and on invading this area is tremendously "constructive" because we are fighting for job organization.

"The key to this controversy lies in the fact that the crisis which the rebels in the early I. W. W. feared has at last come upon us. Up to about the time of the war, the organization was, as we said before, a propaganda league directed and led by a pretty good revolutionary element, in fact the revolutionary ideal dominated the field and the purely job unionist did not control the I. W. W.

"We used to be lucky if we had five thousand members in good standing. We got all swelled up when we got to fifteen thousand about 1915 or 1916. We were simply overwhelmed when the tremendous boom of war industries, coupled with a resentment against war that was attracted by our militant anti-militarist agitation, brought tens of thousands of new members into our organization in 1916-1917. We found ourselves with over a hundred thousand members along the beginning of the war. But we were overwhelmed in more ways than one.

"Many of our best rebels were imprisoned or deported. Many others were so tickled to see members pouring into the organization that they forgot the old worry about what would happen to their revolutionary policy and made hay while the sun shone. In more than one way this greatly benefited the organization. But other things had to be considered. Among them was the necessity for looking out for this strong economic organization we were building up. War persecution had to be taken into account. We had to defend our imprisoned fellow workers, and a whole defensive movement took place that led, as Fellow Worker George Williams has pointed out, to a lack of 'spirit and aggression.'

"Side by side with this defensive tactic, and the denial of the part of force as the decisive factor in the class struggle, too much of a purely job unionism grew up. If our members will examine the history of our organization during recent years, they will see that both grew up at the same time.

"We point out that we do not oppose Rowan merely because he is an ego-maniac bent on rule or ruin. That is one reason. But we oppose Rowan because he stands for secession and a job union that will not fight in the class struggle in a revolutionary manner.

"For the same reason that we oppose Rowan and Bowerman, we are supporting Fellow Workers Tom Doyle and Joe Fisher. We are not behind them just because it is Doyle and Fisher, or merely because we think they are following the proper legal tactics, but because they are opposed to splitting the I. W. W.

"It must be clearly understood that we are not opposed to job control or large and powerful unions. On the contrary we profoundly believe that the more workers organized in unions the better. We do not share the antagonism some fellow workers feel to unions that get beyond the propaganda stage. Without large unions the workers are defenseless. But we oppose the type of union which goes over to mythical "independence" and which thinks the class struggle begins for the first time when it goes on strike and stops when it gets an agreement.

"The rank and file of the I. W. W. is opposed to splits of this kind. Really there are two kinds, because some fellow workers have another peculiar notion which has naturally come out of our growth of recent years. Not long ago this was shown by a fellow worker writing in the Industrial Worker saying that if too many workers who were not class-conscious came into the I. W. W., 'we would cut it to the bone' to save it from dilution.

"This is a very bad mistake, because if the revolutionary movement is to go onward to final success it is compelled to go hand in hand with large and growing industrial unions. To 'cut the organization to the bone' would mean for the rebels to expel all the membership who don't fully understand the theory of the class struggle. That is altogether foolish, impossible and injurious to the cause of emancipation. We would be nothing but a sect again. Let us go forward, not backward.

"To sum up: As rank and file members of the I. W. W. who believe in the class struggle for working class emancipation, we oppose Rowan and Bowerman and the others who stand for secession and independent job unionism. Secession and splits are always an injury, just as solidarity and unity is always helpful. We do not want to see these large unions without centralization with the I. W. W. We also oppose the idea of making a little revolutionary sect out of the I. W. W. before it has got a start and a chance to build up powerful unions. We oppose every split, secession or withdrawal because we are revolutionary industrial unionists, because we believe three things go together, EDUCATION, ORGANIZATION and EMANCIPATION.

RANK AND FILE IS FOR FOSTER

(Continued from page 1)

and his platform have been too much of a bone to swallow. Therefore, the G. E. B. indorsed LaFollette with the spurious plea that while the candidates for president and vice president do not come from the ranks of the trade unions, and while "we" cannot accept the economic implications of those elements of the platform which are designed to restore competitive industry, still LaFollette and Wheeler have a fine standing public (!) servants, fighting consistently for the public (!) welfare.

Against this indorsement Schlossberg voted and promised to make public a statement on the subject.

It will be recalled that Schlossberg was the author of an article showing the difference between the third party and the labor party, an article which was widely read.

The rest of the members of the general executive board, who voted the indorsement to LaFollette, know that even if the senator should finally decide in January, 1925, that the time had come for the formation of a new party, it would not be a labor party, but a third party, a party which would be a melange of petty-bourgeoisie, labor fakers, rubber-tired farmers and jobless officeholders. The labor party, they know, can only be achieved over the dead political body of LaFollette, of the petty-bourgeois leadership of the political labor movement.

By the indorsement of LaFollette, the national officials of the Amalgamated have dealt another blow to those militants who are doing all in their power to destroy the illusion of a political party of the masses, movement for class political action. Instead of helping to do this, they have succeeded in helping to nurture this danger to the American workers, and have greatly harmed the coming of the labor party.

Let the Members Speak.

The rank and file always has the last word to say, in the last analysis. In this case, it must stand plainly before its national officialdom and flatly repudiate the shameful indorsement of LaFollette. The feeble in the labor movement is clear. Either Foster or LaFollette.

The militant worker will choose, unhesitatingly, the candidates of the Workers Party.

SPRINGFIELD IS CITY OF JOBLESS

(Continued from Page 1.)

at the Peoria convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. The local unions of the miners must pass resolutions instructing delegates to the convention to demand that the mine industry take care of all of its unemployed by the payment of unemployment benefits. The organization of unemployment councils will strengthen the demands of the unemployed and make the reactionary trade union officials and the coal operators heed their program."

Howat Fought Unemployment.

The administration of Alexander Howat in Kansas faced the unemployment problem by compelling the mine owners to keep the mines open, distributing the work equally among all the miners of the Kansas district. James Mariotti, who was expelled as the Kansas district auditor for his allegiance to Howat, told the DAILY WORKER.

"The Kansas field is now shot to pieces just as the Illinois field is," Mariotti said. "But under Howat's administration the Kansas miners made every mine in the state remain open. We also refused to allow the operators to threaten or discharge miners in order to speed up production, as is done in Illinois at the present time. The most the operators were allowed to lay off a miner under Howat's contract was five successive days. After that the operators were compelled to take the miner back to work."

Mariotti produced a letter from Howat in which Alex said he had received over 95 per cent of the votes for nomination to run as president of the Kansas district, and over 95 per cent of the votes for nomination as international president in the next elections.

Chicago Labor Body Eats Big Dish of Crow

(Continued from page 1)

labor program consisted of only 60 words, that it did not deal with the vital interests of labor.

LaFollette's Friends.

He also showed how LaFollette was supported by Rudolph Spreckels, the sugar king, from California, where Mooney and Billings are imprisoned. He showed that other supporters of LaFollette are Vanderlip, the banker, and W. T. Rawleigh, of Freeport, Ill., head of a non-union $13,000,000 concern.

"These are the open shoppers backing LaFollette," said Johnstone. "If you workers believe that the interests of all are the same, then you should be for LaFollette. But if you believe that a class struggle is waging in this country, then you should be for Foster and Gitlow, the Workers Party ticket in this campaign."

Small and Klan.

Johnstone also showed that Governor Len Small was being supported by the Ku Klux Klan in this campaign, that under the Small regime a young worker was murdered in a court fight in Southern Illinois, that in this state 40,000 coal miners are idle, a problem that the organized workers of the state are asked not to discuss.

Johnstone declared that after this election is over the class conscious workers of the country will again defend

UNEMPLOYMENT RAVAGES THE MINERS' RANKS

Organization Shackled by Jacksonville Pact

The dark predictions of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district of the United Mine Workers of America, have been more than fulfilled. The fear of unemployment, with its accompanying terrors of hunger and evictions, has been set up in the hearts of the Illinois miners.

Thousands of miners have been laid off since May 1. Salesmen covering the southern Illinois territory have transferred to other states. Credit, extended by the southern Illinois stores for several months past, has been denied the starving miners. The mining towns of southern Illinois are shunned because of the contagious pestilence of unemployment.

Miner Not Migratory.

A miner is always a miner. It is a well-known fact that the miner, raised from childhood to follow the underground trade of his father, is not fitted for any other work. This inability to go into other industries makes the unemployment among the Illinois miners more serious.

In spite of the propaganda in the capitalist press that the miners are highly overpaid, the facts are that the miners, even when working, receive wages as low as those of other workers. The United States Department of Labor reports that the average daily wage of the bituminous coal miner is $4.93. The average number of days worked, including half days, is 195.7, according to the government's extensive survey. The possible earning of the bituminous miner, the department of labor finds, is only $1,171. When the miners work, which is a little over 50 per cent of the time under normal conditions, they earn an average of only 86 cents an hour.

These figures were prepared in 1921, before the unemployment crisis appeared. Instead of fighting to make the mine workers' union a force to keep up the standard of living, instead of fighting to make the operators pay unemployment benefits, the officials of the Illinois Miners' union try to cheapen production for the coal operators.

The officials of the United Mine Workers of America have continually admitted their failure to stem the tide of unemployment and to rebuild the strength of the mine union.

Call for Unemployment Councils.

Now the Workers Party and the Progressive Miners committee calls for the immediate establishment by the mine union locals of unemployment councils. The Workers Party calls for the passing of resolutions by the miners' union locals demanding that candidates for election as officers of district 12 in December, pledge themselves to fight for payment of unemployment benefits by the coal operators.

LaFollette has ignored the unemployment problem completely. In writing the labor plank in his platform, LaFollette dispensed with labor with exactly 61 words, and failed to mention the unemployment crisis.

Support Communist Candidates.

The Workers Party calls upon all Illinois coal miners to join with the rest of militant labor in support of Foster and Gitlow and the other Workers Party candidates who support the immediate formation of unemployment councils. The Workers Party demands that the coal operators be made to pay wages to the unemployed coal miners, who by their arduous and dangerous labor have accumulated the profits of the coal operators.

Hurl Indictment at Huge Negro Congress in N. Y.

(Continued from Page 1.)

In response, several thousand packed the big hall to listen to a symposium of speeches intended to reveal the reason for the government's attack on the Negro leader.

An imposing ceremony opened the proceedings, amidst music of exceptionally fine quality. Garvey, attired in the green and red robes which form the subject of so much bitter satire from rival Negro leaders, marched into the hall, escorted by a guard of honor of fifty uniformed members of the Universal Negro Improvement Association with drawn sabres, carrying the red, black and green flag regarded as the emblem of Negro nationalism.

These were followed by several women in the same uniform, also with drawn sabres, leading a large corps of Black Cross nurses, a women's auxiliary of the organization.

Applaud Speeches.

The speeches were some of the most fervent that I have ever heard, and were greeted with applause that must have sounded many blocks away. The speeches were all in defense of Garvey and in explanation of the reason for the government's effort to stop his public activities.

U. N. I. A. Organized Negroes

Dr. Jay J. Peters discussed the Negro's problem as one of survival in a world given to the law of the survival of the fittest. As animal life is born in profusion, with many dying and few surviving, so he said it had been with Negro organizations. All efforts to organize the Negro masses had been failures, and the Universal Negro Improvement Association had survived as the fittest. Dr. Peters warned his hearers that efforts were soon to be made to corral the Negro vote for a certain reactionary political machine by giving a nomination or two to Negroes who were venal politicians ready to lead their people astray.

Such reactionary Negro politicians "can be used to destroy us," said Dr. Peters, who asked all to remember that the Negro often has to fight his foes within his own ranks.

Assails Critics.

William A. Wallace of Chicago paid his sarcastic respects to those critics who take a lofty attitude toward the masses of Negroes, blaming the masses "for not knowing all they should," while at the same time the Negro children's education is getting one-fourth of the support that it should receive. People who criticize this movement of the plain Negro people "which is now battling for the program that they are trying to put over," said Mr. Wallace, are constantly misrepresenting it and when their misrepresentations were pointed out, they merely replied "Oh, we didn't know it was that way; we didn't understand it." "And yet," said Mr. Walace, "they are the ones who call themselves teachers! Take into consideration that the daily papers in the United States, or whether it be papers in Europe, Asia or where not—are talking about Marcus Garvey and what this movement is doing, and then these so-called leaders tell you they don't know what the Universal Negro Improvement Association is, and yet they pretend to tell the plain Negroes how to solve their problems. Tell those leaders that they don't know what they are talking about.

"There are thousands of Negroes in Chicago, in New York, in the islands of the ocean and elsewhere all over the world who do know and do understand what this movement is."

Sherrill Speaks.

William Sherrill, assistant president general of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, undertook in a very clear and well constructed speech to show the historical background of the movement. He said:

"The Universal Negro Improvement Association that for the past six years has been startling the world and awakening the Negroes, is not an organization that just happened." This organization is by no means an accident." The speaker continued:

Born Out of Suffering.

"It is not a thing that sprang into being just because somebody had an idea that they wanted to organise something. Not something that came to existence just because somebody decided that they wanted to put themselves forward and agrandize themselves, but an organization that was born out of the suffering and travail and the mediation of a great people that is held in bondage."

Organized to Better Race.

Claiming that the U. N. I. A. "has a program that takes into consideration every obstacle, every river that we may be called on to cross," Mr. Sherrill said it is not a group that wants one thing today and another thing tomorrow. He maintained this organization was the one which has been able to sense the deep underlying aspirations of the Negro Race and to voice them. It was formed, not for the purpose of fighting the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, but for the purpose of fighting other leaders than their own, nor for fighting Negro churches or preachers, but for the purpose of bettering the condition of the Race and to give it "a chance to express its race ideals, and to solve the damnable racial problem in the West Indies and in America and the world, and an opportunity to clear up the confusion and to stand on firm rock."

"The founders of this movement," said Mr. Sherrill, "were those who had studied the problem of the Negro not only in America, but also in the West Indies and in Africa and Europe. And in studying this problem we have found out one fundamental fact—that the Negro suffers under oppression. He suffers not only in America, but wherever he has been domiciled. Wherever he has been in contact with anybody, he has suffered in that contact."

Negro Race Still Weak.

The speaker expressed the view that we are living in a material age, and that in the midst of this materialistic society we find the Negro weak and unorganized.

"The majority group," he said, "wherever the Negro lives, is determined that the Negro shall not become a part of that majority group."

As long as this continues, he believes, just so long will the Negro find himself in oppression. He sees no solution except to give the Negro an opportunity to build for himself. He believes in putting forward such propaganda as that of the U. N. I. A. and working toward the point of establishing an autonomy of your own." The establishing of an independent Negro government over Africa is conceived to be the realization of such autonomy.

Negro Zionism?

A reporter for a Hebrew Zionist newspaper at this point whispered across the press table: "This is Negro Zionism."

Is this "Negro Zionism"? If it is, then that is a very important discovery. To him who takes his analogies in words, the analogy seems to be perfect. But I say that anybody who tosses off that near-beer comparison and then tries to build any historic conclusion on it, will go wildly astray.

Let me explain why any attempt to classify the two movements together, becomes, despite all the superficial resemblance, the wildest folly:

The Difference.

1. The Great Powers and the League of Nations can cheerfully give a few thousand Jews a chance to settle in Palestine.

2. The great imperialist governments of the world can smile happily over Jewish nationalist propaganda which takes Jewish workers' minds away from proletarian revolution.

But:

1. The Great Powers, Britain, France, Belgium—and now the United States—cannot smile over any suggestion of surrendering Rhodesia and the Rand, the Kamerun, the Congo and the Nile and Morrocco and Tunis and Algeria—to any movement for independent Negro nationalism, no matter how fantastic Garvey's red and green robes may be, nor how unseaworthy his ships.

2. The Great Powers cannot tolerate for one instant the propaganda for Negro independent nationalism in any quarter of Africa,—not even in the Negro states of Abyssinia and Liberia, especially not in the "fanatical" form in which alone this movement is found.

3. No, the Negro nationalist movement is more readily to be compared to the Turkish nationalism of recent years, than to Jewish Zionism.

Imperialists Fear Negro.

But to go back to Mr. Sherrill's speech:

"In this fight for freedom the U. N. I. A. has met with opposition. Its program has been for redeeming Africa, for turning Africa back into the hands of the black men. I see nothing wrong with that program, but those countries that control the Africa can colonies are working assiduously to see to it that the U. N. I. A. and its propaganda are kept off of African soil."

The speaker declared that Europe is bankrupt and depends now for its very life upon drawing upon the vitality of Africa. "It is upon Africa that England is depending; France must draw upon the strength of Africa; Italy depends upon its vast resources; and so with Spain and Belgium." Mr. Sherril thot that the depletion of the natural wealth of European countries, minerals, timber and agricultural fertility, was an explanation of the dependence upon Africa, "with her teeming millions of black people, Africa, rich in woods and minerals."

Paper Is Excluded.

"England," he said, "has for that reason opposed us, and is willing to put up a stiff fight against us. In some territories our organ, 'Negro World,' is excluded from circulation, being regarded as dangerous propaganda. We have a propaganda that tells the black man to aspire to come into his own. France equally objects to our work. Those who are in control of Europe have been watching us and are willing to spend much money to see to it that we are crippled in our operations.

"We have to expect that sort of thing from England. She is only trying to protect that which is hers, her civilization, the institutions that she loves, the heritage that she wishes to pass on to her children that they may continue to enjoy England's place in the world. We can see why England is opposing us. We can see also why France is opposing us." He referred to the "millions that France has stolen from" the black man, which "bring millions of dollars in raw materials into the coffers of France."

Does Not Fight Negroes.

Saying that such opposition was to be expected, Sherrill then passed to the subject of the opposition found among intellectual leaders of Negroes in the United States. "It is not our purpose to fight against other Negro organizations, whether they be church organizations or other organizations or what not," but that whatever obstacle is found in the road of the U. N. I. A. will be destroyed. "We know what it is to suffer, to be arrested and intimidated," he said.

"They have been trying to destroy the Association by misrepresenting the leader of the movement. The newspapers tried to destroy Garvey's influence by defaming and ridiculing him. They laughed and laughed and poked fun at him. And the more they laughed the closer the Negroes stuck to the movement and the more sacrifices you made to put forward the program.

Not a "Back to Africa" Movement.

"And then they tried to discourage the masses of Negroes from joining the organization by calling it a 'back to Africa' movement. They accused us of having for our purpose destroying the churches. They tried to awaken antagonism of American Negroes by pointing out that Garvey is a West Indian Negro."

Here the speaker diverged to take up the question of the leadership of Garvey, the opposition to whom he said was founded on "the jealousy of short-sighted Negroes who had been trying for 25 or 30 years to lead the Race and have never had brains enough to strike upon a real program."

These old leaders, he said, upon witnessing the remarkable following so quickly recruited by the new movement, threw up their hands and exclaimed, "How dare Marcus Garvey, a West Indian Negro, come here from Jamaica trying to tell us American Negroes how to lead our people! We, the real Americans, we will redeem the race!" they said.

"I am an American Negro," continued Mr. Sherrill, "born and raised under the Southern psychology. I know what that psychology is—its peculiar oppressive effect. And I tell you that whether Marcus Garvey had come or not I had always thot—since I was large enuf to think at all—I had always thot that the Negro who was to be a leader, that he would have to come from somewhere else than in the United States of America. And if Marcus Garvey were to go from us today, I am afraid that we would have to look for a new leader from somewhere around the west coast of Africa.

Hard to Get Leaders.

"The Negro of America raised under such conditions finds it difficult to develop the qualities of leadership. The fine material that is fit to lead the race is killed in the American environment. Here the Negro from childhood is jim-crowed, lynched, kicked about, cursed and made to conduct himself as an inferior until he has not the spirit left to be a leader.

"The West Indian Negro, on the other hand, from the cradle up develops a certain independence and a self-reliance that the American Negro never has the courage to exercise. The British government is bound to allow the development of some latitude among individual Negroes, for her position in Jamaica is such that she has to use certain types of Negroes to exercise authority over the others. Of course those who are used that way are betraying their own people—they are traitors and renegades and we despise them—but even at that, in Jamaica there is a different psychology that permits some men of independent spirit and self-reliance to develop."

Mr. Sherrill continued:

"It makes no difference where our leader comes from, you may sneer at him for not being an American. Our program is not merely to save the Negroes of America, but to save the Negroes of the world. What matters it if the leader be a West Indian, if he has the capacity and the courage to lead the Race? The American Negroes are only fifteen million—only a drop in the bucket compared to the number of Negroes in the world."

Explains "Star Line."

Referring to Garvey's "Black Star Line" steamship corporation venture, which has been the cause of a tumult of criticism from other Negro leaders as well as one indictmet and conviction of Garvey, the speaker said, "Yes that that they could convince you that Marcus Garvey was a thief and a crook, but they found you were so well organized that you didn't fall for that sort of propaganda."

He declared that Christ was executed, not for preaching a new kind of religion, but because the Romans feared that he would establish a kingdom on earth. Thus Garvey, who "had the instinct for discerning what was needed by the Race," is persecuted. He said Garvey had handled millions of dollars of the Negroes' money since he had been in this movement, and today he has no home of his own, no automobile, no riches, but lives in an humble flat and rides on street cars; and that if he had any wealth his enemies would have found it out.

Denies New Charge.

"Yet just at the time when Negroes are coming from all parts of the world to this convention, certain men land another indictment against Marcus Garvey. They say they indict him this time for making out a false income-tax return. Garvey did not. But just granting for the sake of argument that he did do it—tell me, is Marcus Garvey, then, the first man in America to make out a false income tax report?

"I don't believe that there has ever been anyone else indicted on an income-tax report. Yet when Garvey was arrested I went to see some of the officials responsible for the arrest and one of them told me that if everybody that made out a false income-tax report were to be indicted, then all of the federal officials would be working overtime for the balance of a lifetime.

Try to Hurt Convention.

"But why make Garvey the first man? Because the plans were carefully laid to embarrass this international convention, with the hope of embarrassing the Race. These men and women who are fighting for the cause of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, who are risking jail and everything else—they have no time to bother with these annoyances. The authorities are trying to drag them into court in order to keep them from doing their work for their people. It is up to you Negroes to see that those who are persecuted this way receive every protection that the Negro can give them."

A large collection for the legal defense of Garvey was raised among the audience, who clambered forward to the platform with many five-dollar bills.

A resolution was passed petitioning congress for a congressional investigation into the action of certain federal agents believed to be involved in the plan to fight the Negro organization with framed-up indictments.

At last Garvey himself took the floor to ask to be excused from making the speech for which he was scheduled, promising to make a full address on the subject later during the convention.

Won't Be Frightened.

"My enemies don't seem to realize that I can't be frightened," he said. "All these occurrences are but natural. They must occur from time to time, and little things like this indictment must be attached to the leaders of such a movement. They can send me to jail. But I can go to prison without fear. Only crooks and thieves and cowards fear to go to prison. Men with principles don't care about jails."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

ers in the central competitive field but they are following a policy, which, if persisted in can have no other result except the destruction of the miners' union. There are already 43,000 Illinois miners unemployed while the remaining 42,000 only average two days a week. Under such conditions what avails the boasted Jacksonville agreement?

* * *

THAT the labor leaders care little or nothing for the interests of union members has been amply demonstrated in the recent past, but the action of the officials of the U. M. W. of A. in the face of this serious crisis is the most glaring example of official criminal negligence. The labor leadership of the United States is nothing else but a criminal conspiracy against the interests of the rank and file. With a few exceptions it can be said, that they are the labor lieutenants of capitalism, as the late Mark Hanna described Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell, former president of the U. M. W. of A.

* * *

AND the situation in America in this respect is only different in degree to the situation in Europe. Over there, however, the labor fakers have more and better organized opposition, but everywhere they are playing the same treacherous role, of co-operation with the exploiters and treachery to the workers. The militants in the unions must organize to meet the labor fakers and free the organized workers from their clutches. Until then the problem of organizing the millions now unorganized cannot be tackled as it is evident that the present union officialdom does not intend to make any serious effort to perform that duty.

* * *

EAMON DE VALERA, leader of the Irish Republican Party, who was recently released from prison, made a speech in the west of Ireland in which he declared that he would make the Irish question an issue in the coming elections in the United States. This is nothing new. The Irish question has been an issue in the United States since the civil war but so far, the only ones to gain from the agitation were the capitalist politicians who posed as friends of Ireland before election. When DeValera was in America he played with the Democratic Party and gave the oil king, Doheny, the privilege of moving a revision in favor of Ireland at the 1920 convention which nominated Cox. In return for the honor Doheny gave $50,000 to the Irish cause. DeValera has played tricks with the Irish question like all his bourgeois associates. If he were a real rebel instead of a petty bourgeois prophet he would look to Moscow for aid and not to the capitalist exploiters at Washington.

* * *

A CORRESPONDENT who declares she is much more radical than LaFollette regrets The DAILY WORKER'S attitude toward the Wisconsin senator. The DAILY WORKER did not begin its criticism of "Battlin' Bob" only when the latter delivered his infamous attack on the Communists and their belief in the "dictatorship." The DAILY WORKER and all the Workers Party press have exposed the so-called progressives in Congress as fake progressives who did not believe in doing away with the cause of the ills of present society, by abolishing the capitalist system, but merely prescribed futile nostrums.

* * *

OUR correspondent says LaFollette's election would mean peace, the restoring of our constitutional rights, the end of corruption and stealings of government officials. What makes our correspondent think that LaFollette's election would bring peace? His past record? Woodrow Wilson was elected on the slogan, "He has kept us out of war," but no sooner was he elected than he proceeded to set the machinery in motion for war, and because of his former pro-peace mouthings he was able to dragoon the people of this country into the bloody mess much more effectively than Hughes could have done it had he been elected. Lloyd George was mobbed several times because of his opposition to the Boer war, but where was the jingo who outdid him while the storm of death and destruction was at its height? Coming down to the present time, with the waterspout of Senator LaFollette but when you hear the tale, you may shed them, too, so get your gutters ready.

* * *

EVERY story starts somewhere, and the test this introduction like a prologue to a Shavian play should become so interesting that the tale should suffer in consequence, we will introduce the yarn. The words are by Lawrence Todd. LaFollette is at the megaphone. Name of the photographer is unknown. The actresses are members of the women's national campaign committee. The scene is in LaFollette's Washington office. The leading lady, Mrs. Glenn Plumb, supported by an all-star cast. LaFollette before getting his players into action told the women that the Republican Party was born in Wisconsin in the year 1854 in a schoolhouse, sponsored by a group no larger than was standing in front of him. Then Mrs. Glenn Plumb brought on the onion, and the eyelids began to quiver.

* * *

A POORLY-DRESSED WOMAN of sixty years came into the office of the Chicago LaFollette campaign committee one day recently, said Mrs. Plumb, offering a campaign contribution of one dollar. She was in such evident need that an attempt was made to induce her to keep the money, but she stood like a rock of Gibraltar against all attempts to force the dollar on her. Her family had been burned out in Nebraska and she came to Chicago where she is employed scrubbing toilets at $14.00 a week. She would work for another ten years and then the country would take care of her. She was sorry that LaFollette had not come along in national politics before this so that herself and many others would be saved from suffering. "On that spirit the fight can be won," said the candidate. This is a nice little bed-time story.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY FINN FOR W. P. DRIVE

Chicago Branch Gives $100 to Campaign

The Finnish Federation of Workers Party points with pride to the plays they are giving thruout the country to collect funds for the Farmer-Gitlow election campaign. The Finnish Federation announces it is the only section of the party which has used this artistic and at the same time educational method of promoting the Communist election program.

At the same time the membership drive, the rasing of funds thru the Fannish branches and the regular street and mass meetings are not being neglected. The Finnish branch in Chicago donated $100 to the Fosters Gitlow presidential campaign and other branches thruout the country have responded liberally.

Order Your Bundle of First Campaign Issue

MAKE Monday, Sept. 1, a real "Labor Day" for the American Communist movement, by distributing a bundle of the First 1924 Campaign Issue of the DAILY WORKER.

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY ..... STATE .....

"MIXED DRINKS" START TROUBLE IN BOSTON, TOO

Socialists and Liberals Nearly Come to Blows

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 17.—Only twice during the entire session of the Massachusetts Conference for Progressive Political Action, assembled in state convention for the purpose of indorsing LaFollette and Wheeler for president and vice president, respectively, was some ife manifested.

The first semblance of life among the fossilized "progressives" manifested itself in a little word quarrel resulting in the unseating of Conrad W. Crooker and his group of delegates from the Liberal party of Massachusetts, successor to the Liberal Republican League, on the ground that they represent a "paper" organization. The fight was really between two "paper" organizations, since the socialist party dummies, who fought Crooker, also represent a memberless "party" in this state.

Walk Out on Socialists.

Mr. Crooker, who since LaFollette announced his candidacy, tried to play a prominent part in organizing the LaFollette forces in Massachusetts, was denied a hearing, and walked out of the convention with his followers. He issued the following statement later: "It is evident that the extreme socialist group, which apparently was in control, does not want co-operation from any other groups. I am sure that course would not be approved by LaFollette or Wheeler. Our organization will go ahead and support LaFollette, just the same."

Crooker also said that only recently he talked the matter over with Congressman Nelson, LaFollette's manager, who solicited his co-operation. Later, he said, Gilbert Roe, the regional director in New York, and George E. Roewer, Jr., socialist party national committeeman and Massachusetts campaign manager, invited his organization to participate in the state convention, but at the convention the socialists double crossed them.

Don't Want a "Third Party."

The second disturbance which threatened the peace of the solemn gathering, arose over a resolution to provide for the permanent organization of a "labor party," on November. The resolution was presented by Daniel R. Donovan, president of the Worcester Central Labor Union, and was made the center of attack by a battery of more than a dozen speakers, among whom were socialists. H. P. Redden, a delegate from Springfield, declared: "We came here to indorse LaFollette and Wheeler, but if it is the purpose to go beyond that, and form a third party, we had better quit." Peace was finally obtained when George Clark of Taunton obtained the passage of an amendment by eliminating the phrase "labor party" and merely calling for a meeting to consider the advisability of effecting a "permanent political organization."

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

OPEN air meetings in Chicago are drawing very large crowds. As high as 500 people have often been present at various meetings to listen to Workers Party, Young Workers League and Trade Union Educational League speakers.

With the election campaign on, open air meetings will no doubt be more numerous and even more successful, since the workers are in an attitude to receive working class messages.

The language branches and the English branches of the W. P., Y. W. L. and T. U. E. L. are scheduling speakers regularly, as can be seen from the above list of meetings. The city organization is furnishing speakers for these meetings.

More branches should get into the street meeting activity. Branches should try to furnish additional speakers if only to act as chairmen of these meetings. It is very important that the street meetings committee of the branch should always be certain to have plenty of literature on hand at the meetings, especially the DAILY WORKER. There have been a few unnecessary failures in this respect. Literature sells plentifully at these meetings both in English and other languages.

There is also plenty of free literature at the local office for the street meetings, and the branches shall see to it the needs call for that.

Branches which want to schedule open air meetings should give plenty of notice to the city organization and should also arrange in plenty of time for the corner to be used.

During the election campaign period the congressional district campaign committees will be expected to schedule open air and indoor meetings steadily thruout the elections campaign period.

For speakers and additional information write or telephone Martin Abern, State 7985, Room 303, 166 West Washington St.

Send in that Subscription Today.

Class War Against Imperialist War!

Manifesto of the Communist International on Tenth Anniversary of the World War.

Against War!
Against the Bourgeoisie!
Against the Social Traitors!
For the World Revolution!
For the Dictatorship of the Proletariat!
For Communism!

TEN YEARS have passed since the world-bourgeoisie unchained the hellish power of militarism. On August 1, 1914, began the greatest slaughter of human beings that the world has ever known. The ruling classes and their military strategists believed that the war would end in a few months. But the events which they themselves had brought about soon got beyond their control. Their armies, growing to unheard of proportions, entrenched themselves against one another.

The entire labor power of Europe—and the labor power of countries far beyond the borders of Europe—was conscripted to supply the necessities of the war. They created to destroy and they destroyed in order to be able to create new instruments of destruction. For four years, three months and twenty-six days this destructive and idiotic venture continued,—the venture in which capitalist society found its consummate expression.

PROLETARIAN BUILDERS

Proletarians built the engines of destruction. Proletarians and farmers used these engines of destruction. Proletarians and farmers of the various countries annihilated each other. Looking back, every one of us asks himself: How was such madness even conceivable? But still more important, still more pressing, is that other question: Is a future repetition of this mad affair threatening us?

* * *

I.

The catastrophe of the war was a long time brewing. The class-conscious workers saw it coming in advance and warned the toiling masses against it. Only revolutionary battle could have prevented the impending war and made all war totally impossible; only the revolt of the workers against imperialism. Such a revolt, even had it taken the most gruesome forms, would not have necessitated one one-hundredth, no not one one-thousandth, of the human sacrifice and the destruction of property that the war demanded.

Socialists Helped Bourgeoisie.

But the revolt did not come. Most of the socialist parties not only did not call the workers to revolutionary battle, against the war, but actually allied themselves with their governments, declared the war of their particular government to be just and righteous, and called upon the working masses to support it. Thanks only to this support on the part of the socialists, the bourgeoisie found it possible to keep the masses in check, and conduct the war.

Only as a result of the betrayal of the socialist party was it possible also to continue the war for four years. Only thru the co-operation of the social-patriotic leaders with the militaristic murderers of the oppressed did humanity lose ten million people and become burdened with many millions of cripples. Only thru the flunkeyism of Scheidemann and Ebert, of Renaudel and Longuet, of Henderson and Vandervelde, was it possible for the bourgeoisie unhindered to ruin and impoverish Europe, and to destroy everything that had been built up by hundreds of years of toil.

BLACK AUGUST 1914.

The first of August, 1914, the first day of the imperialist war, the day on which the Social-democratic leaders openly capitulated to the bourgeoisie, will remain for all time the darkest, most evil, most dishonorable day in the history of mankind.

Working men and women! Farmers! Remember what your rulers told you, what they promised you, from the first days of the war. You were told that this war would bring the common people an ensured means of livelihood. You were promised that after the war there would be no more militarist burden. You were assured that this war would be the last. Thus did the kings, the presidents, the bourgeois ministers, the journalists, speak to you. And the social democrats and the patriotic leaders of the trade unions repeated these things after their own fashion.

EMPTY ANNIVERSARY

Now, on the tenth anniversary of those days you can draw the balance. You can see how dishonorably your faith has been abused. Even the victorious countries have become incomparably poorer than they were before the war. But if the bourgeoisie has created only that is only in the nature of things: the bourgeoisie is our most irreconcilable, our most merciless enemy. But you were also cheated by these whom you had looked upon as your leaders. The Social-democrats, who through their speeches against the bourgeoisie had won the trust of the workers, flung themselves on August 1, 1914, into the camp of the bourgeoisie and used all their power, all their authority, to help the bourgeoisie continue the murderfest to the end. These are the facts. This is the unadorned truth.

Social-democrat Failure.

The Social-democrats held out a promise that as a result of the war there would be a just, democratic and honorable peace between all peoples. They lied. They consciously and deliberately deluded you. They certainly knew that the peace would be dictated by the victorious imperialists. The dishonorable war, conducted by the bourgeoisie with the dishonorable co-operation of the Social-democrats, could end only with a dishonorable peace. This peace was drawn up at Versailles, where the victorious robbers placed their iron heels upon the necks of the robbers they had vanquished, Germany and her allies were ground underfoot and dismembered.

In order to justify such an enslavement—an enslavement that is not less ruinous than the war itself, the Socialists of the victorious countries, the Hendersons, the Renaudels, the Vandervelde's and the others, repeat the parrot cry of the bourgeoisie: Germany is being punished for having desired and having brot about the war. What imposture! What idiocy! Even were it true the the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs were solely responsible for the war—is a people to be punished for the misdeeds of the government which oppressed it? Is the German proletariat to be massacred for the treachery of the German bourgeoisie?

International Greed.

The Socialists of the Entente countries believe that it is just to snatch bread from the mouths of the German workers, of their women and their children, as punishment for the fact that the German bourgeoisie annihilated these workers' brothers, husbands and fathers, or made cripples of them. But can any honest man in his right mind imagine for one moment longer that responsibility for the war rests exclusively with Germany and Austria-Hungary? Do we not know of the insatiable greed of the English bourgeoisie, the oppressors of colonial people? Do we not know of the loathsome greed of the French Bourse? Did not Czarist Russia, in alliance with France and England, strive to steal Constantinople and the Dardanelles?

The imperialist war was the result of the clash of the unleashed greed of both groups. All of them mobilized for the war. All of them hoped that, in case of victory, almost all of earth's surface would result. All strove for plunder. All of them thirsted for booty. The ruling classes in both camps are responsible for the war, for its continuation over a period of four years, for its sacrifices and its destruction, for the fact that it come at Versailles. And more than a trifling degree of responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the Social-Democratic politicians, the patriotic union leaders, bosom companions of the bourgeoisie, the hanging agents of imperialism, the socialist attornies of the Versailles peace, and brands them with the mark of dishonor.

October Saved Russia.

One country alone took no part in the disgraceful proceedings at Versailles, either as victor or vanquished. The working masses of revolutionary Russia, under the leadership of the Communist Party, had overthrown the bourgeoisie, had taken governmental power into their own hands, and had led the country out of the Hell of the war. The Bolshevik government broke down the iron doors of secrecy, which the Czarist diplomats worked, made public their secret documents which unmasked the treacherous activities of the entente governments as well as of the governments of the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs. There remains not the slightest bit of doubt, that Russia allied herself with the Entente and continued the war, as the social-revolutionaries and the Mensheviki wanted her to do—the already exhausted country would have become a British-French colony, a northern India. Only thru the October (November, 1917) revolution did Russia find its salvation!

THE GERMAN REVOLT

The toilers of Germany and Austria-Hungary, as a result of the war, became rebellious. The old dynasties were overthrown. If the German junkers and capitalists kept their property and their power after November, 1918, they can be thankful only to Scheidemann, Ebert, Kautsky and all the other leaders of the social-democracy of Germany. These same people, these same politicians, these same traitors, who for four years aided the Hohenzollern clan to wipe out the German people, were the ones who, during the late months of 1918 prevented the workers from settling with their exploiters.

The fact that the power of capitalism stood firm after the war, in a Europe that was shattered to its very foundations, is to be credited exclusively to the Second International, the watch-dogs at the doors of the bourgeoisie.

* * *

II.

There is not a single unscathed spot in Europe. Germany's economic life has been set back ten years. The various parts of the Austro-Hungarian kingdom have been separated from each other thru a process of infinite division. In the Balkan states, the situation is still worse. France is bending under her war debts and under the burden of her militarism as never before. Italy is weakened, and subject to continual convulsions. England cannot even dream of the economic power that was hers before the war. The chronic state of unemployment is eating away the body of Europe like a perpetual sore. The numerical strength of the European armies and navies is not less than it was before August 1, 1914. And the expenditures for armies, because of technical improvements, have become greater.

Farmers Hit.

The war laid a heavy hand upon the farmers of Europe, of America, of the whole world. The bourgeoisie of every country held up to its own proletariat, as a result of the war, the prospect of a boom in agriculture. It assured the farmer that after this "last war" the heavy burden of militarism would be lifted from his shoulders. The farmer was doubly deceived.

At the beginning of the war the propertied farmers sold their products at a high price and were able to pay off their old debts with cheap money, and if they appeared, in this way, to have become rich, nevertheless, thru subsequent fall in values, the farmers' profits were reduced to nothing. The economic decline of Europe diminished the demand for agricultural products and hit not only the peasantry of Europe, but also the American farmers, great numbers of whom became poverty-stricken. At the same time militarism becomes more exacting and more lavish. The burden of war assessments is threatening to break the farmer down completely.

RUHR WAR

The subsequent occupation of the Ruhr by French troops last January indicated a direct continuation of the imperialist war: the victor gave the vanquished one last kick. The occupation of the Ruhr was a new blow for the economic life of Europe, and became, above all, the means of further terrific ruin of Germany and of the proletarian masses of Germany. But this very occupation flung France into the abyss and proved that her economic power is not strong enough to maintain a military dictatorship over the heavy industry of Europe.

The blow dealt the French bourgeoisie, after all the crimes with which it glorified itself during the war, again swing its troops into action for the crime of the Ruhr? How is it possible that the working masses of France and of all Europe did not rise up to meet this new robber attack? Workers, think this question over, and it will become clear to you that only the support which the socialists in France, as well as in Germany, gave to the bourgeoisie, made possible the militarist enterprises in the Ruhr district and, subsequently, the further ruin of Europe.

Again we repeat: had the working masses of France and Germany decided to give to a revolutionary uprising the sacrifices that the occupation of the Ruhr, alone, demanded, the bourgeoisie would have been overthrown, the power of militarism shattered, and peace and labor could celebrate their triumph in Europe.

But just at such critical moments, when it is a question of the life or death of the bourgeoisie and the destiny of the workers, the social-democrats maliciously destroy the united front of the proletariat, create a spirit of uncertainty among the workers, foster a feeling of despondency, isolate the various Communist Parties, and set the pace for capitalist reaction.

"Trusted Mensheviki."

As if in recognition of the great services which the social-democrats rendered capitalism in the years that have just passed, the European bourgeoisie, as the bloody jubilee draws near, place their tried trusted and experienced Menshevik at the helm, now with partial authority, soon with complete power.

In England, at the present time, a government of the so-called Labor Party stands at the helm; in France there is a cabinet of the left bloc, which can survive only with the support of the social-democrats. In Germany the Social-Democratic Party is making itself the mainstay of a bourgeois regime. In Denmark Stauning's social-democratic cabinet is in complete control. In Belgium it is not impossible that the party of Vandervelde, who is zealously hewing out a path for himself, may come to power. Even in Italy the bourgeoisie attempts to tie Mussolini's gang and prepare for reformist relief.

Fascism, in the meantime, has made its exit; it has done its full measure of evil. In the most critical times, when the proletariat was hammering at the very foundations of the capitalist order, when the scepter of power was falling from the hands of the leaderless bourgeoisie, the Fascist bands saved the situation, in that they created a substitute for the discredited state power, sent all parliamentary and legal conventions to the devil, and took up service under the bourgeoisie to murder, to shoot and to pillage. Fascism is the chief tool of the capitalist system in the hour of most intense conflict in the class war.

The tool of capitalism next in importance to Fascism is social-democracy. In critical moments, social-democrats mobilize all their strength in order to prevent the attack of the proletariat against the bourgeois state. They condemn Fascism in long and meaningless speeches, reproach the bourgeoisie with cruelty, but at the same time they swear to the workers to keep out of the horror of a war against the bourgeoisie; they play the fool; they flatter and cajole; they poison class consciousness; they maim the will-power of the workers, and they disarm the proletariat mentally and finally surrender it to the Fascisti. This happened in Hungary. It happened in Italy. It happened in Germany.

As soon as the bourgeoisie feels assured that the revolutionary outbreak has again been warded off thru the united activities of the Fascisti and the Social-Democrats, it knows that the time has come to restore a regime that is a little less bloody, a little less provoking, a little more normal—that is to say, more obscured in the tatters of legality. At such times there is a change of scene.

But yesterday the Fascisti occupied the center of the stage,—with revolvers, daggers and burning torches,—while the Social-Democrats directed their co-operative efforts from secret corridors; today, when the immediate danger seems to be over, the bourgeoisie hurries to lead the Fascisti off-stage, and brings forth from the secret corridors the "radicals," the reformists, the Mensheviki, the apostles of legality, democracy and peace and places them in the foreground.

KEEP OFF REVOLUTION

The bourgeois says to the Menshevik: Your Fascist relatives have not kept their proper place; it is necessary to smooth out and modify the results of their work; it is necessary to wipe off the dripping blood stains; it is necessary to soothe gaping wounds with consoling balm; it is necessary to create new hopes or revive old illusions in tired minds; otherwise, despondency will turn to doubt and doubt will be transformed into the spirit of revolution. It is for this reason, for this purpose, that all the MacDonalds, Blums, Staunings, Vandervelde, Scheidemanns, and Wells's have succeeded in taking over power, or are approaching power.

Between times, militarism is automatically going ahead with its work. Under MacDonald's government new warships are being built, the making of tanks is being pushed; the air fleet is growing, the chemical implements of war are multiplying. What is all this for? For the battle of the proletariat against capital?

Militarism Must Go.

Oh, no! It is for the purpose of supporting the power of English capital over India, over Egypt, over Ireland and over the English proletariat. While making no concessions to the workers, the bourgeoisie perfect their war aeroplanes with the help of the Mensheviki; the French minister Herriot, who is supported by the socialists, is continuing the war policy and the foreign policy of Millerand and Poincare. As we Communists have claimed, responsibility for the Ruhr occupation rests not only with the bourgeoisie, but also with the social-democrats, and is to be scored also against the Mensheviki. But now the whole world perceives that the Ruhr occupation is being carried thru only as the result of an agreement between Herriot on the one hand, and MacDonald, Blum, Vandervelde, Stauning and Wells on the other. The Second International has become, before our very eyes, the International of the Ruhr Occupation.

Conservatives, Fascisti, "radicals," and Mensheviks come and go but militarism stays. It stocks up its reserve powers and increases them, it perfects its weapons, it prepares new plans, it keeps itself in check until the most burning memories of the last war have been wiped out of the minds of the people, until the social-democrats have been successful in propitiating the working masses with the idea of the inevitability and permanency of the bourgeois state. Then it will find it possible openly to start out on the path of new world theft. Then the hour for a new imperialist war will have struck.

Poles Got Freedom But Workers Get It in Wage Cuts

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 17.—Employers in the heavy industries in Polish Upper Silesia are serving notice of a 30 per cent wage cut.

They also tried to lengthen the working hours, but the government has forbidden this. The bosses declare that they have no objection to the workers quitting after eight hours, but wages will be paid accordingly.

While Germany is starving for coal, Poland has more than she can take care of, but is putting such huge prices on it that the Germans can buy more cheaply from England and get better coal.

Send in that Subscription Today.

LITHUANIANS UNITE MEMBERS BEHIND W. P. ELECTION CAMPAIGN

A general membership meeting will soon be called by the Lithuanian Federation to promote the Foster-Gitlow presidential campaign, according to Roy Kinars, secretary. The "Vilnis," Chicago's most-weekly Communist newspaper, and "Laisve," the Lithuanian Communist daily paper, published in Brooklyn, are being used as the shock forces in the campaign among the Lithuanians to carry the Communist message during the election campaign. A general membership meeting was held recently in Brooklyn at which the principle subject was promotion of the new party program and the Foster-Gitlow election campaign.

Party Athletes' First Games in N. Y. Big Success

The first athletic games of the Workers' Sport Alliance of America were held in conjunction with the picnic of the Workers Party, District No. 2, in Peasant Bay Park, Bronx, N. Y., on Sunday, August 10. The games of the newly organized workers sport organization were bigger than had been expected.

A hundred athletes took part in the games and an enthusiastic crowd of approximately 2,000 comrades witnessed the stunts of the working-class athletes.

The following nationalities were represented among the contestants: Americans, Finnish, Swedish, Czecho-Slovak, Jugo-Slav, Greek, Italian, German, Armenian and Jewish.

The games were as follows:

Running Series—100 Meters, 400 Meters and 800 Meters.

First Prize—I. Peasnen, Brooklyn Finnish Workers A. C., 10.2 points.

Second Prize—A. Abrahams of the same club, 12.2 points.

Third Prize—L. Wax, Athletic Club Vesa of Harlem Finnish Br. W. F., 220.2 points.

Runner up was William Lindfors of Athletic Club Toverit, Jamaica, L. I., 307 points.

Throwing Series—12 Bl Shot; Discus and Javelin.

First Prize—A. Holpainen, Brooklyn Finish Workers' A. C., 212.35 points.

Second Prize—E. Lahti, Brooklyn Finish W. A. C., 188.27 points.

Third Prize—K. Kilpi, F. P. W. A. C., 194.44 points.

Fourth Prize—R. Kauppinen, B. F. W. A. C., 191.05 points.

Runner up—I. Harjanne, Athletic Club Vesa, 182.11 points.

Jumping Series—Running Broad, Hop, Step and Jump and High Jump.

First Prize—M. Hiemala, 287.53 points.

Second Prize—J. Paasnen, 220.96 points.

Third Prize—K. Kilpi, 219.83 points.

Runner up—A. Holpainen, Athletic Club Vesa, 213.9 points.

Medley Relay (100, 200, 400 and 800 Meters).

First Prize—Finnish A. C. team. Time, 3 min., 58.7 sec.

Second Prize—Athletic Club Vesa. Time, 4 min., 11.2 sec.

Third Prize—Athletic Club Toverit. Time, 4 min., 18.4 sec.

Fourth Prize—Athletic Club Kamraterno. Time, 4 min., 41.2 sec.

Fifth Prize—Y. W. L. of New York. Time, 4 min., 42.3 sec.

Three-Mile Run.

First Prize—K. Arhuri, B. F. W. A. C. Time, 17 min., 41.4 sec.

Second Prize—O. Hack, Vesa. Time, 18 min., 10.1 sec.

Third Prize—Wm. Relander, Vesa. Time, 18 min., 12.4 sec.

Fourth Prize—J. Inkapol, Vesa. Time, 18 min., 14 sec.

Fifth Prize—W. Hill, B. F. W. A. C. Sixth Prize—Aino Wuori, Vesa.

Runner's 70-Meter Dash.

First Prize — Hilja Saxlin, Vesa. Time, 9.4 sec.

Second Prize—Lena Soderman, Kansakunra A. C. S. I. N. Y. Time, 9.8 sec.

Third Prize—Aino Wuori, Vesa and Minnie Boulovich, Czecho - Slovak Workers' Federated Women's Assn. Time, 10.4 sec.

Runner up—Comrade Miss Brynnesky of the Czecho-Slovak W. F. G. A. Time, 10.6 sec.

Women's Relay—4x50 Meters.

First Prize—Harbor S. I. N. Y. Juniors (Miss L. Ed. Soderman, Miss).

Second Prize—Harlem Juniors, of Y. W. L. 37.4 seconds.

The Mariners' Harbor Juniors won all prizes in children's track race.

All workingclass athletes who would like to join the Workers' Sport Alliance of America, should write to Ed. Miska, Secretary, 638 East 138th Street, New York.

Long live the Red Sport International!

Socialist Speaker Beats Hasty Retreat at Communist Query

After having spoken for about an hour on the soap box of the socialist party for the candidacy of LaFollette for president, Lena Morrow Lewis very carefully folded her tents and skipped away, one eye on the clouds and the other uneasily surveying a member of the crowd who wanted to ask a question.

More specifically, J. Durko Siegel, a member of the Workers Party Douglas Park English Branch, raised a hand when "Comrade" Lewis had done with her talk, and said that he wanted to ask a question of the speaker. Lewis, who has had the embarrassing experience before, looked to the sky and said:

The Strategic Retreat.

"I think it's going to rain pretty soon and I won't be able to answer any questions."

Saying which, she beat it, leaving the task to the 17 workers who composed her crowd.

The Scene of Battle.

The retreat occurred on the corner of Homan and 12th Sts.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 17.—Following almost four years of inactivity in Indiana, the prohibition party came to the front here today with a full list of presidential electors and a state ticket, minus an attorney-general.

Petitions will be passed for the signatures of 500 voters, necessary to put the ticket on the ballots. Not only strict enforcement of prohibition laws but also on tobacco will be asked in the platform.

CAPELLINI GETS SQUELCHED FOR LEWIS MANEUVER

Miners' Local Repels Fake Progressive

By BLACK DIAMOND.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKES BARRE, August 17.—Rinaldo Capellini of District 1, U. M. W. of A., who was adopted by John L. Lewis into the official family of the latter's union, has just suffered an ignominious defeat at the hands of approximately 1,000 of his constituents.

The Charter Stunt.

It all happened when Capellini attempted to Lewisize the members of Local Union No. 699, of Edwardsville, by revoking the charter. Later he and the District Executive Board decided to return the charter, with the provision that the president and the two secretaries be barred from office for a period of one year. Of course, the officials thought that to do this would put them in a position to seize control of the local, but if they ever had such illusions, disappointment must be their lot after today's meeting.

Capellini did not come to the meeting himself, and if the sentiment of the men at the meeting today can be taken as a criterion, it would not be safe for the one-time "supposed" radical to go to Edwardsville in the near future.

He was represented at the meeting by the International Board member, an International Organizer and a District Board member, the latter acting as chairman.

Can't Kid Miners.

In opening the meeting, the chairman announced that the meeting was called under the instructions of the District Executive Board, to nominate candidates to succeed the men now deposed and that the election would be held at a later date or as soon as ballots could be printed, but the miners present were in no mood to be bridled. They gave the officials to understand that there would be an election at this very meeting and that instructions to the contrary would have no standing at this meeting.

Officials Re-elected.

The officials then got their heads together and decided to allow the election to proceed without the formality of a printed ballot, and the slate picked by the friends of the deposed officers, all of whom were placed in nomination by Stanley Edmunds, the deposed president, were elected by an almost unanimous vote. It was impossible to count the vote for the Edmunds slate, while the three votes registered for the Capellini slate were greeted with boos and jeers.

There was never any doubt about the result from the time that Edmunds entered the hall, for as soon as his friends saw his face coming thru the door they rent the air with three rousing cheers for EDMUNDS. As the presentation of names of the candidates for consideration similar outbursts were heard.

Capellini, therefore, in his first attempt to stop anyone else from doing the things that made him famous, fell flat and the defeat will undoubtedly make him hesitate before attempting to repeat his Lewis stunt again. Edmunds was deposed and therefore, under the ruling, could not be a candidate, his victory was complete and with the men now elected to office he can retain virtual control of the local union.

Myerscough Refused Floor.

Thomas Myerscough, who was expelled from the union at the instance of Lewis and his henchmen and who is now working in the mines in this district, was present at the meeting. Myerscough attempted to get the floor to ask a question, evidently believing that he was unknown in this region, but the chairman declared that Myerscough was not a member of that local union and could not be on the floor. This aroused the ire of the men in the hall who kept insisting that Myerscough be allowed to speak, but not having any desire to disturb the meeting, and give the officials a chance to charge "outside influence," Myerscough asked that they desist.

Soviet Government Published 18,000,000 Text Books in 1923

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—Ten billion pages of printed matter have been issued by the Russian government printing house the past five years. Starting in 1919 as a small office issuing war propaganda, it now specializes in textbooks, which formed half of its 1923 output, and of which it issued during that year 18,000,000 copies.

Its slogan for next year is "Literature for the Village," and its program is to supply the thousands of village reading rooms which have been established during the past two years with material relating to peasant needs, and also simple literary introductions to Russian classics and world history. It claims now to be the largest publishing house in the world, in the number and size of its books.

Send in that Subscription Today.

The World of Labor - Industry & Agriculture

PAPER WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE FOR THE UNION

Injunction Immediately Granted of Course

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

Manistique, Mich., Aug. 17.—Paper-mill workers on strike at Manistique are enjoined by court order from picketing and other peaceful means of furthering their cause. Company guards are using unusual violence without judicial restraint. The dispute arose when the workers formed Local 135, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite & Papermill Workers late in June. Two women and 11 men workers were fired for union activity. The strike began July 16. The anti-union firm is the Filer Fiber Co. The injunction is being ignored by the strikers.

This "Farmer" Was Radical" Like Bob Until Cal Got Him

WASHINGTON, August 17.—Herbert F. Baker, of Michigan, chairman of the Farmers' National Council and candidate of the railroad labor organizations for the republican nomination for governor of that state, has definitely lined up for Coolidge—thereby throwing the progressive forces in Michigan into great confusion. The Farmers' National Council and Baker personally, have fought every act and policy of the Coolidge administration. They stand for public ownership of railroads, steamship lines and the grain and live-stock marketing system. Baker has been a participant in numerous conferences here in recent years, whose object was the formation of a radical farmer movement. His announcement for Coolidge is considered by his friends to be merely strategic, but a majority of the railroad labor men seem inclined to repudiate him if he stands pat.

WOULD STOP FOREIGN PRESS

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 17.—Congressman Albert Johnson of this district, author of the Immigration Bill passed by the last Congress, attacked the foreign language press in speeches here. He says that their attacks on his Immigration Bill are so violent as to be almost a plea for war on this country. He predicts that unless these attacks cease it will be necessary for the government to suppress the foreign language press.

The Truth is Out!

BERKELEY, Calif., August 17.—Now it's the war that caused the victory of the Labor Party in England. Professor Arthur Percival Newton, of the University of London, told the Berkeley Public Spirit Club so, anyway. As a piece of great news Professor Newton also confided that labor now takes the principal place in British government.

COMMUNIST REALISM NOT DREAM OF AFRICAN REPUBLIC WILL BE NEGRO WORKERS EMANCIPATION

AN OPEN LETTER TO MARCUS GARVEY, By GORDON W. OWENS.

THE Universal Negro Improvement Association of which you are the founder and president general, is the largest Negro mass organization in the world. Much credit is due you for your genius and ability to organize so many millions of Negroes in one organization.

The goal of the U. N. I. A. to establish a Negro republic in Africa, where dissatisfied Negroes residing in the U. S. A., and other countries, may emigrate to, in my opinion, appears to be unsound, unscientific and improbable of fulfillment.

Garvey's Goal Utopia.

In advising the Negro citizens of the United States not to fight for social, civil and political equality, but to concentrate their energies on Africa, where the Negroes will eventually go, you are advising your race to give up the real for the shadow.

The twelve million Negroes in the United States are native born, English speaking and entitled to every right and privilege enjoyed by the white citizens.

The Negroes should fight for, demand and take same, regardless of the Ku Klux Klan, southern crackers and other white Negro baiters in this country.

Capital Cause of Race Hatred.

The prejudice against Negroes is fanned and kept alive at the behest of and by the white employers, and capitalist class, who regard both the Negro and white workers as so much cattle, to be exploited to produce profits for them. The white employing class are a small minority of the white population. By creating animosities between the great mass of Negro and white workers, they can more effectively rule, rob and exploit both groups of workers.

These white capitalists have their white thugs, gunmen, dicks, police, men and soldiers to intimidate white workers striking for higher wages, shorter hours and better living conditions.

Klan Used to Break Strikes.

The murderous Ku Klux Klan vents its hatred on white labor organizers by tarring and feathering and murdering them. The capitalists' courts issue injunctions against white strikers, prohibiting them from peaceful picketing.

In view of these facts, the lot of the white workers is not much better than that of the Negroes, over whom the capitalists exercise a terrorism to keep them servile and ready to be used as strike breakers against the white workers.

Negro Emigration to Africa Childish.

These capitalists, who use the Negroes to their great advantage, would prevent and stop an emigration of Negroes from the United States, the same as the capitalists and planters of the south tried to prevent and stop, and to some cases succeeded in doing so, the migration of Negroes from the south to the north.

Garveyism Expects the Impossible.

To expect the white imperialist powers, England, France, Italy, Belgium, Spain and Portugal, who dominate and control all of Africa, with the two exceptions, Abyssinia and Liberia, to voluntarily give up their holdings and allow the exploited native workers to have the gold, silver, copper, mahogany, oil and the other raw materials so valuable to the imperialist powers, is to expect the impossible.

These imperialist powers, with their poison gas, bacteria germs, liquid fire, submarines, radio controlled battleships and aeroplanes will fight for the right to continue to rob and exploit the people of Africa.

Liberia, the lone Negro republic of Africa, in constant fear lest England or France gobble her up also, is forced to refuse admission to members of the U. N. I. A.

Communist Realism for Negro.

The hope of the exploited Negroes of the United States and elsewhere lies in the Communist movement. Communism will wipe capitalism and imperialism from the face of the earth, and with the overthrow and destruction of capitalism will also go wars, race riots, animosities and the other ills suffered by the working people all over the world.

Mr. Garvey, in place of meekly submitting to the Ku Klux Klan, you must advise your followers to unite and join hands with the white revolutionary and Communist workers, who are fighting the same foe that the Negroes must fight, the whole capitalist class. The Workers Party of America is leading the fight for emancipation and freedom for Negro and white workers of America. Negro workers must rally to the ranks of the Workers Party.

Happy Marriage is Reason for Arrest of German Communist

MUNICH, Aug. 17.—The fact that the wife of the Communist leader Dr. Frank went on a hunger strike in the Munich prison recently, was known to lead a very happy married life with her husband was enough to bring about her arrest by the reactionaries of Bavaria.

When her husband was arrested an alleged illegal meeting of the Communists, Mrs. Frank started from Berlin for Munich to be near her husband. When she left Munich, she was arrested. The only charge against her was that "she was known to be happily married and that it was therefore natural to assume that she knew about his plots." Finding nothing incriminating the police finally had to release her.

Australian Co-ops Prosper.

One-fifth of all the families in Australia are buying or manufacturing co-operative goods. There are 365 flourishing co-operative societies there according to the All-American Co-operative Commission. These societies supply 190,000 heads of families with the necessities of life, and represent an investment of $27,500,000.

The most remarkable development in Australian co-operation is the rapid growth of producers' co-operative societies. Sixty-three per cent of all the societies reporting belong to the producers, and manufacture a wide variety of goods for co-operative consumers' societies as well as for export trade. Twenty million dollars is now invested in these co-operative productive societies, and all of them are reported as paying regular interest on their share of capital in addition to a co-operative dividend.

Russian Coal.

MOSCOW, August 17.—The People's Commissariat of Foreign Trade, after carefully examining the question of developing the export to the near eastern countries of Donetz coal, has drawn up the necessary measures to encourage this trade. It has been found that the Russian coal will have to compete with the Turkish not so much in quality as in price, for the latter product is cheaper than the former.

Russia-Turkey Agreement.

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—A consular convention has been signed between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Turkey. The Russian monasteries at Galata are to be returned to the Soviet government, as they are part of the Russian state property. According to the latest information, there are still about 8,000 Russian emigrants in Constantinople.

APPEARANCE OF TOM MYERSCOUGH PALES OFFICIALS

Enlist the Bosses' Press to Spread Lies

By BLACK DIAMOND.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKES BARRE, Pa., August 17.—Shades of fear have cast their shadows over the heads of the officials of District 1, United Mine Workers of America and Thomas Myerscough is held responsible. This because the appearance of Myerscough was made on the same day and at the same meeting that a severe beating was administered to the officials by a local union of about 1,500 men of whom about 1,000 in attendance.

Kept Press for John L. Lewis.

The following day the papers in the Wyoming Valley, the name by which this section is known, came out with an article nearly two columns in length, announcing that an "enemy" was in the region to organize a dual movement.

It further announced that Myerscough was expelled from the organization in District 5 for dual union activities, and goes on to prove he is an enemy to the miners' union, because he is not side by side with John L. Lewis in the battle scarred fields of West Virginia.

Circular Slandering Myerscough.

The circular, signed by John B. Gallagher, a traveling auditor for the union, warns the locals against allowing Myerscough to appear before them. Admitting that there are differences of opinion existing, Gallagher says he believes these can be adjusted without the presence of the Pittsburgh radical.

He also quotes at length from the tirade launched against Myerscough at the Indianapolis convention by Lewis, but he does not add that Myerscough was denied the right to answer the lies contained therein.

Myerscough in an interview later said that he was in the anthracite field to work and that at present he is employed as a laborer ir one of the mines in District 1, and that he would exercise his right as a member of the union, unless he was again expelled."

These Countries at Foot of Class in Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A survey of labor codes shows that Spain, Portugal, Chile and Colombia are the latest to begin a general revision and modernization of their labor laws.

In Spain a ministerial order set up a special committee instructed to report within four months a complete classification of all measures relating to industrial accidents, conditions of labor, labor inspection, disputes and official organizations and services. Employers and workers are represented by one member each. Redrafting of existing laws will be part of the work. A similar commission has been created in Portugal.

A labor draft code, introduced in the Chilean congress in 1921, has been brought to the front by a change of administration, and heads the program of the new president.

In Colombia an inter-parliamentary commission has been authorized to draw up a code of modern laws, with a measure for development of agriculture and creation of a farm land bank.

Co-operative Auditing.

A non-profit, non-capital stock co-operative is being organized under the name of the Illinois Agricultural Co-operative Association for the purpose of furnishing an auditing and accounting service for farmers' co-operatives. Membership in the association is to be restricted to co-operative associations, farm bureaus, and other agricultural organizations. Reports and comparable data will be compiled covering the operations of co-operatives of similar nature, and provision will be made for the exchange of experience and information.

Send in that Subscription Today.

UNMASK HYPOCRITICAL KRESGE

(Continued from page 1)

asking him to contribute $1,000 toward a $50,000 Salvation Army rescue home and hospital for girls and women at 130 West Grand Blvd. here. After the exchange of one letter each, in which the senator asked Kresge for figures on the wages he paid his employes, Senator Couzens wrote a letter containing the following paragraph:

"I would much prefer talking this over with you to writing a letter, and if you wish I will come to your office, or you can come to mine. For I think you can do much more for girls and women by paying them better wages than you can by subscribing $1,000 to rescue them after they have gotten into trouble."

Averaged $7.52 Per Week.

The other letters bring out the fact that the average wage paid by Kresge in his chain of stores—not the minimum, but the average wage—was $7.52 a week at the time he wrote. They bring out also the fact he gave employment wherever possible to girls and women living at their parents' homes or with a husband, so that men or women earning wages from some other company would help support his slaves. Kresge also in his second letter whimpers about being made ill by his responsibilities.

Couzens a Wiser Exploiter.

Senator Couzens favors sustaining the economic system by which Kresge, and others in various degrees like him, enrich themselves. He is, of course, simply more realistic in his methods, agreeing at the same time that there is need for a certain number of "rescue homes" of the kind in question. If the destitute and desperate employes of the country's Kresges are "rescued," they will not be so apt to rebel, in the senator's opinion.

The senator himself owns $60,000,000 in tax exempt securities.

In reference to Kresge's quitting charity work, Senator Couzens in one of his letters says: "Men with means such as you have should continue taking interest in matters of this kind." And it is exactly in the same spirit that he says, later in the same letter, "Families will surely take care of their own if they have the wherewith to do it, and it is up to such men as you and I to see that they have it."

Waited Nine Years.

Moreover, the letters which Senator Couzens now makes public have lain hidden in his files since 1915. He has kpown Kresge's practices for many years. He denounces him now only to serve his own political purposes. R. N. Holsaple is superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, and has been leading the opposition in this state to Senator Couzens' campaign for renomination. Senator Couzens in attacking Kresge is attacking the source of this opposition.

"I have no quarrel with Mr. Holsaple. He is merely the hired man of Sebastian S. Kresge, who puts up most of the money for the Michigan Anti-Saloon League," Senator Couzens said in explaining his making the letters public.

Economic Interpretation of Temperance.

In this connection it is interesting that it has been reported that Kresge's championship of prohibition is even more a matter of business with him than a matter of having a veil of purity to hide behind. It is reported he began to talk prohibition many years ago when the manager of one of his stores in local option territory told him prohibition increased five-and-ten-cent store sales. After the Volstead act was in effect, also, he made large profits on sales of whisky glasses, bottle openers and beer bottle caps until publicity caused him to take those articles off his counters.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

Coolidge Can't Fool Negroes.

To the DAILY WORKER:—According to The Chicago Tribune, of August 12, a Mr. Charles R. Gardner of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., has sent a letter to Kautious Kalvin Koolidge, asking him to use his influence to prevent the possibility of a colored man being nominated for congress.

Gardner sent this letter to the president because, without elimination because of race or color. The president also states that he has taken an oath to support that constitution.

Negro citizens are denied the ballot in most southern states, are segregated and jimcrowed in residential sections and on public conveyances; are jimcrowed in the government departments at Washington where some are employed; are denied the right to marry whom they please in many states.

These and many other violations of our constitution which Kautious Kalvin Koolidge has taken an oath to support, go merrily on, and he is as silent as a sphinx concerning them.

This piffle of the president about our constitution, and the Negro's right to run for office, is merely bait for the Negroes' vote in the November election.

Of course, if Coolidge is re-elected, he will do as all his predecessors have done—forget all about Negroes until election time, when another sop will be thrown to them.

The Negroes, 95 per cent of whom are wage workers, should vote for the candidates who really represent the working class. These candidates are Foster and Gitlow of the Workers Party.

Until Negroes do awaken and vote the Workers Party ticket, their votes cast for the candidates of the capitalist parties, as far as benefiting Negroes, amount to so much chaff for the wind to sport with.— Gordon Owens.

The Right Idea.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I herewith enclose the receipts from a campers' dance, held in this city, August 9.

The "Red Beach" camp colony is situated on Lake Erie, about six miles from here, populated by the Finnish members of the party, coming from district camp 7.

Altho we have our bellies full of lamb stew at present, while enjoying the beauties of nature, we fully realize the cruel fact that unless we keep our class organs properly financed to fight and resist the open shop plans of "Hell-Maria Dawes & Co.," there soon will be a time when camping in this beautiful shore of Lake Erie will be rather monotonous and irritating on our empty stomachs.

For reasons mentioned above, we are organizing festivals and dances and donating the money where it will do the best work in the class struggle. We therefore help the DAILY WORKER and send all receipts totaling $124.00.

We are yours for the fighting Communist daily, The DAILY WORKER, "The Red Beach" campers.

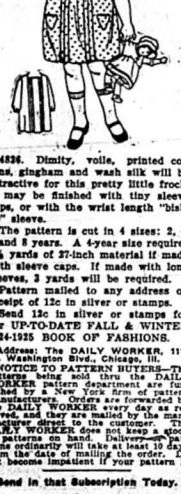
By JOHN HILLBERG.

Send in that Subscription Today.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A PRETTY APRON.

A NEW DRESS FOR A LITTLE MISS.



4640. Figured cretonne with bindings of black sateen is here portrayed. One could also use unbleached muslin with embroidery, or chambrey in a contrasting color for trimming. Lawn, cambric and percale are also desirable and serviceable materials for this apron.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, medium, large and extra large. A medium size requires 2¾ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

4826. Dimity, voile, printed cottons, gingham and wash silk will be attractive for this pretty little frock. It may be finished with tiny sleeve caps, or with the wrist length "bishop" sleeve.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. A 4-year size requires 2¾ yards of 27-inch material if made with sleeve caps. If made with long sleeves, 3 yards will be required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS.—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

Send in that Subscription Today.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

ALABAMA JAILS BEAT INMATES DESPITE LAW

Claim Investigation Report Is False

By JACK METTE

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 17.—New investigations are demanded following the report of cruelties inflicted on prisoners in the Alabama prison at River Falls and on the chain gangs of the state. The prisoners claim they are beaten and knocked around by guards notwithstanding a law in this state against using the lash.

Letters Destroyed.

The men are cowed into silence by fear of terrible beatings and worse. Communications to the outside hinting at ill treatment are destroyed and the writer severely punished.

The prisoners claim that the report of Dr. F. P. Blair, appointed by the governor to investigate their complaints, was false. They demand that the governor appoint more than one man. They have evidence to convict guards and other minor officials who are inflicting punishments on them contrary to law. So far the governor has not appointed the investigating committee. The press and public are demanding action.

New York Cities Revolting Against Prison Made Goods

(By The Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—A fight has broken out between various New York communities and Sing Sing prison officials because the towns refuse to buy prison made goods. A list of 19 cities and 442 towns and villages which have bought nothing from the prison for over three years has been made public by Superintendent of Industries at Sing Sing, John P. Mead.

Under the state law all communities in need of such goods must purchase prison products or get a written release from that obligation. Sing Sing officials have had to close down temporarily their knitwear factory because of the boycott on prison goods. Now they threaten reprisals against public officials in the various communities. Prison officials take the position that the state must either invalidate bills paid for products bought in the open market or else institute proceedings against responsible officials of the communities that have gone into the open market.

4,065 Miner Orphans in Penney.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Fatal accidents in the coal mines of Pennsylvania between 1916 and 1922 have made 4,065 children fatherless, according to a report of the state inspection board. The majority of these accidents have been shown by the United States bureau of mines to be preventible, but operators have found it easy to replace miners, so that the necessary precautions have been neglected.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dentist Service for Workers
445 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
GRT CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

DON'T MISS THE NEXT ISSUE
THE DAILY WORKER MAGAZINE
SATURDAY, AUGUST 23rd, 1924
ONLY SOME OF THE CONTENTS:
1. "Results of Fifth Congress" ..... By Alexander Bittelman
2. "The Situation in Bulgaria" ..... By G. Dimitrow
3. "Cologne—Eisenach—London" ..... By Arthur Rosenberg
4. "Culture Versus Life" ..... By A Teacher
5. "On My Way to Russia" ..... By Anna Porter
6. "The Passing of Pittsburgh Plus" ..... By I. Ramirez (Gomez)
7. Verse: (a) "The Chant Prophet" ..... By Josef Kalor
(b) "Workers" ..... By James H. Dobson
8. "Power"—A Play in One Act ..... By Charles Ashleigh
ORDER NOW!
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year $3.50...6 months $2.00...3 months

By mail (in Chicago only):
$6.00 per year $4.50...6 months $2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, MORITZ J. LOEB.....Editors

.....Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

Another Fake Peace

Is the war finally over? Bourgeois publicists, from the reactionary Chicago Tribune to the socialists, see in the adoption of the Dawes Plan the establishment of "peace." Now, at last, the peoples of the world are to live in harmony and industrious labor, warble the pacifists and jingoes in unison.

It is another fake. The leopard cannot change his spots, and capitalism cannot avoid war. The so-called peace was but a continuation of the politics of war—just as the on-coming war will be the logical outcome and continuation of the policy of the Dawes peace. Peace and war are the interchangable aspects of capitalist imperialism and exploitation.

Capitalist war merges into capitalist peace and back again, just as naturally as the Dawes report is the "official policy of the United States" one day, entirely unofficial and informal on the next, and then again the official policy. The capitalist papers change the tune from day to day, but the keynote is always the same—Morgan rules. War-peace, peace-war, is a formula that Morgan can handle with equal facility.

There will be no peace on earth until capitalism is abolished. Until that day there will be war—war between the nations, instigated at the will and for the profit of capitalists, which must finally be turned into the civil war between the exploiters and the exploited. All "peace" that is proclaimed until that time is false.

The Musicians' Wages

Musicians used to consider themselves "professional men," not workers, just as many teachers and intellectual workers still do. But capitalism, thru its ruthless greed for surplus value, forces the most conservative workers of all kinds to realise their common foe and resort to common tactics to fight—sooner or later they must come to the strike, which in turn leads to other methods of struggle.

These observations are called forth by the news that the Chicago Federation of Musicians is going on strike on Labor Day to enforce its demand for 10% increase in wages from the musical comedy shows and drama houses in this city. The employing theatrical managers seem to be organizing an "open shop" drive, under the leadership of Geo. M. Cohan, who has become rich thru writing silly songs that wave the "red, white and blue," wail about Broadway, and proclaim the virtues of 100%ism. Cohan's affinity to a 100% Americanism seems to put him in unalterable opposition to a 10% wage increase.

All of which shows that the theatrical business follows the same laws as the steel industry. And all of those who work for wages are forced, sooner or later, to recognize this fact and to organize themselves for struggle against the employing class.

Wood and Gold

Again the news dispatches carry the name of Lieut. Osborne C. Wood, son of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor of the Philippines. And again the stories are of fabulous winnings on Wall Street, in transactions carried out by cable, supposedly bringing his "winnings" over the million dollar mark.

If there are any workers so simple-minded as to believe that Wood, or any other bourgeois blockhead, can become a modern King Midas overnight, producing gold to order over the cables, for these such stories will be acceptable. They take the place of the tales of Grim and Hans Anderson, or the "Thousand and One Nights." But if one is interested in reality rather than fairy tales, it is evident at once that, in Wood and his gold, we have another of those instances of public position being cashed in thru the hurry-up methods of a Wallingford.

The origin of Wood's million is yet shrouded in mystery. If we might hazard a guess, it will ultimately be traced to manipulations in American imperialism, and the merciless exploitation of starving natives in the fabulously rich colonial possessions of the United States. Until some public benefactor comes along who can disclose the actual facts, the workers will beg to be excused from believing the fantastic stories of the capitalist press. Between young Wood and his million lie connections that involve the whole fabric of the rule of American business in South America and the Far East.

Sit right down and send in your order for the First Communist Special Campaign Edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, August 30. The order blank appears on another page. Use it!

Matteotti Haunts Mussolini

With the finding of the mutilated remains of Matteotti, murdered Italian deputy, the long-suffering working class of Italy has found a symbol around which to crystalize its rage, grief, and burning hatred against Mussolini and his Fascist brigands, accumulated thru three years of murder, arson, and rapine perpetrated by these hangmen of capitalism against the toilers.

And again the socialists are attempting to play their historic role of lightening rod to divert the anger of the masses. The party to which Matteotto belonged has refused to co-operate in the public funeral arranged as the beginning of a desperate struggle against his murderers.

Fortunately the Italian workers have the Communist Party of Italy, which has issued a call for a general strike on the day of the funeral, and which is taking the lead in the tremendous wave of indignation that is sweeping the masses of Italy into revolt against their murderous oppressors. If our Latin brother workers have fully learned the lessons of the last years, then not only Mussolini, but also his cowardly accomplices, the socialists, will soon be swept away.

"The Golden Mean"

The Milwaukee Leader, mouthpiece of decadent socialism and noisy progressivism, a la LaFollette, is again in a quest for the holy "golden mean."

Mr. Victor Berger takes the DAILY WORKER to task for its series of articles on the politics and economics of the LaFollette movement. He protests that on the one hand an extreme right journal says "LaFolletteism is Socialism" and that on the other hand, the DAILY WORKER, the expression of the extreme left, says that LaFollette and Wheeler are capitalist candidates. Then the lone socialist congressman brings solace unto himself by declaring that "the golden mean is in the right place. The truth lies between the two extremes."

This explanation is typical of the mechanical, fossilized formulas to which the Bergers, Hillquits and O'Neals, have subjected the socialist movement in America. The fact of the matter is that there is a grain of truth in the criticism of LaFollette by the New York Commercial, the extreme right newspaper. If the New York Commercial would say that the socialism of Victor Berger and his supporters is LaFolletteism, then it would be correct. With this agent of big business the truth stands on its head.

All the DAILY WORKER is doing in its LaFollette series is to put this truth right on its feet. We are showing that the socialism of what was one the socialist party, is today unadulterated LaFolletteism. We are likewise showing that Messrs. LaFollette and Wheeler are committed to a continuation of the present system of the private ownership of the means of production and exchange, of the present economic system of wage slavery thru the private ownership of capital. At the very moment that Mr. Berger fired his broad side on behalf of the "golden mean," the most trusted lieutenants of LaFollette in the Milwaukee Leader's own state of Wisconsin were protesting vehemently at those questioning their being "fiercely individualistic." In Wisconsin the LaFollette boosters insist that "the progressive program was devised to protect the rights of the individual."

We do not take particular delight in getting under the skin of those who buried the socialist party corpse at Cleveland on July fourth. Yet, we cannot help feeling that Berger and his aides are especially grieved because, in making our case, we have used their own findings and testimony, as they themselves have repeatedly presented it in their campaigns of yesterday against LaFollette.

Haunted Cities

Industry is slowing down. Unemployment grows. Down state in the Illinois coal fields it is estimated that 40,000 miners are idle. In the big cities the jobless army hovers continually about the gates of the shops and factories. The jobless wait and wait and wait for the "opening" that never comes. In the small towns, especially the mining towns, the idle workers just haunt the street corners. They have no other place to go. The whistle on the mine tipple doesn't blow, calling them to work. There are no other jobs. They just hang about and wait. The small bank account disappears, credit at the store exhausts itself, hunger sets in at home.

This condition is labor's big problem this year. It is Illinois labor's biggest problem right now. This must be given thorough consideration at the state convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor to meet next month at Peoria. Delegates now being elected to go to the Peoria convention should be instructed to push this issue, and demand that something be done.

Up to the present time the Workers Party is the only organization that has taken up this problem seriously. The Communists have taken the initiative in the drive to protect the jobless. But this matter must be considered by the whole of organized labor. Action will only be secured as a result of tremendous pressure upon those in power from an aggressive rank and file movement. Workers! Unite in fighting the growing spectre of unemployment that haunts the land!

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

A new member for the Workers Party is a new recruit to the revolutionary army. Become a recruiting sergeant for Communism.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

Bukharin's Report on World Program

Editor's Note.—Here is the concluding installment of the report given by Nicholas Bukharin on the question of the world Communist program to the Fifth World Congress of the Communist International. This will be followed by the supplementary report made by the German Communist, August Thalheimer. It will appear in an early issue of the DAILY WORKER. Bukharin said:

* * *

Comrades, I am coming to the end of my report. But I should like to say a few words on the agrarian question. This question was very fully discussed at our congress. We have before us Comrade Lenin's theses and the results of the work of our various commissions. Nevertheless, I should like to say a few more words. There is a certain tendency within our ranks, which, I think, constitute a considerable danger. On this question there was a very great difference between the Second and the Third International. It is certainly true, that the Second International paid very little attention to the agrarian and peasant question. But there is already a tendency among some of our comrades to deduce from our attitude towards the peasantry, that in agriculture, there is no difference between small and big enterprises. These comrades contend that we need only organize the peasant parties or re-organize our own parties on a proletarian-peasant basis. In the face of this tendency, we must state most emphatically that we adhere to the principle of big enterprises in agriculture. We believe that the development of big agricultural enterprises is the only means to increase agricultural production. But the solution of this problem is different now than in the pre-war period. Before the war, during the period of so-called healthy capitalism, our main task consisted in getting rid of all relics of fuedalism, of sweeping away all obstacles which stood in our way. We asked: Does victory belong to big or small production? Contrary to the revisionists, we said: Big production is more progressive than small production.

Well, we are now in different epoch. Our task does not consist in prognosticating the development of agriculture. Our task is to find an ally and we must adopt a different orientation to be able to break down the power of capitalism. For this purpose we are even entitled to parcel out farms at the expense of big landed property, in order to secure an ally. For this is the main point. At present, it is not a question of prognosticating if big enterprises are superior to smaller enterprises, but, of finding means to overthrow capitalism. This is our present orientation, and everything else is based on it. To win over the peasantry, we must be able to give it something, in accordance with the nature of the various countries and the social importance of the peasantry in these countries. For the high price we have to pay now for the progress of revolution, we will be compensated later, when we shall have the pre-requisites of dictatorship—the entire industry in our own hands. Then we shall be able to introduce more progressive forms of agriculture. Why? With your permission, I will make a very important but purely theoretical remark. One of the greatest contradictions in capitalist system, especially during the last decades of capitalist methods of production, consisted in the gulf which existed between industry and agriculture. During that period we witnessed an ever-growing disproportion between the growth of production in the industry and the growth of productive forces in agriculture. Why? I am unable to give a detailed answer to this question. The most important phenomenon in this connection is the appearance of a new factor, the so-called absolute-rent. Comrades will find this subject fully explained in the third volume of "Capital." But this is an absolute fact. Thus, the obstacles in the way of technical progress, of the application of modern machinery in agriculture are connected with absolute rent in agriculture. And that is why we have disproportionate development.

Agriculture was, so to speak, under the yoke of industry. We can and shall free agriculture from this yoke to the extent in which we get rid of this disproportionality of capitalist methods of production. If from the view point of economic rationality, we stand to lose something by parcelling the estates of big landowners, we shall be compensated, and compensated generously, thru the abolition of absolute rent, thru co-operation with the peasantry and the systematic intervention of socialized industries in agriculture. I think that in this connection, we must bear in mind what Lenin said in his last article. We had a special form of so-called agrarian socialism in the country-side even in the time of capitalist prosperity. This was a very peculiar ideology. It had its material basis in the growth of peasant organizations which were under the hegemony of big landowners, priests, etc. There were agricultural syndicates, co-operatives, and various other forms of organization, as in Denmark, for instance. It is on this basis that the so-called agrarian and co-operative socialism developed. All this, of course, was utopian. To believe that tendencies coming from this side would develop into Anti-Capitalist organizations, was a semi-capitalist illusion. But now, after the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship changes the situation in this respect. The former development of all these institutions, was the only possible development in a capitalist organism and under a capitalist state power. All these institutions became part and parcel of the organism and economic body of the capitalist state. But, under proletarian dictatorship, when industries are socialized, the growth of these institutions (wherever it is possible to replace the hegemony of the big landowners, etc., by the economic hegemony of the proletariat) means that these institutions become part and parcel of the proletarian economic body.

That is why this question has a very different aspect in the epoch of proletarian dictatorship. And this is very important.

Comrades, we believe that in accordance with the decision of the Fourth Congress, we must also have a tactical strategic section in the plan of our program. I think that we shall have to discuss this section of our program a little later, when the commission will have made some headway in its work and when the final or almost final draft will be before you. I think it will be more expedient to do this after the discussion, for I hope that there will be a discussion.

To re-capitulate my main ideas: I think that the reports presented at the Fourth Congress must be the basis of our new attitude towards this question. What is actually new is the declaration of our philosophy and the more comprehensive treatment of the new economic policy which I propose should be regarded as the economic policy of the victorious proletariat.

This is the most important part of my report, and I think that in drawing up our plan, we must elaborate these points very carefully in order to clear away the misunderstanding on this subject. I am absolutely opposed to raising the question of the elaboration of the program. I think we shall do the right thing if we go from here with the approval plan which the congress shall decide about the discussion, and if we leave the final decision to the next congress.

What we need now, are definite lines for our future activity. It is not an easy proposition, but this should not alarm us. We will elaborate this program, provided that comrades show a little interest in it. Surely it cannot be that the critical capacity of the International should be centered in Boris alone. This lack of interest in theoretical questions which was always a characteristic of reformist tendencies, is a dangerous symptom. Nearly in all parties, including the Russian Party, lack of interest in theoretical questions was always a sign of opportunism. We must do our utmost to combat theoretical opportunism and scepticism. There are enough forces in the International to solve even theoretical problems. (Applause).

LaFollette Plays with Old Party Corruption

(Continued from Page 1.)

yer of Wisconsin. A certain Charles T. Pfeister, who held many positions of trust and confidence in moneyed and manufacturing corporations, was charged with bribery, fraudulent granting of franchises, and other crimes against the public. Pfeister and Senator Sawyer try to bribe La Follette to "fix things" up with the judge who was to try his case, Judge Siebecker. LaFollette's brother-in-law.

Of course, LaFollette refused the bribe and openly declared that Sawyer had attempted to buy him. But that is where this case of rank corruption ended. Sawyer was never prosecuted. LaFollette never did anything to secure a criminal indictment against Sawyer. And Pfeister, member of the firm of Pfeister-Vogel and Company, which has for years been promoting a blacklist against organized labor while it was at the same time supporting the so-called "good government" league, also escaped harsh treatment. This bitter foe of the workingmen was handled with silk gloves in the "Model Commonwealth." Recently Mr. Pfeister became associated with Judge Backus, a member of the LaFollette machine, in the board of directors of the Milwaukee Sentinel, a Hearst publication.

Not Free From Corruption.

When LaFollette was governor of Wisconsin, he had the opportunity he is now seeking as president to banish graft and corruption from government. How successful LaFollette was as a purity crusader in his gubernatorial career and to what extent La Follette would bring "clean" government to Washington if elected president, can best be seen from the conditions which prevailed in his state when he was governor.

If we examine the files of the Social-Democratic Herald, the predecessor of the LaFollette mouthpiece, the Milwaukee Leader of today, we find the following description of "clean" government under "Battling Bob's" governorship:

"The so-called half-breeds, or, the followers of Robert M. LaFollette, are by instinct, make-up, and past history as wicked a set of grafters as their stalwart brethren ever dared to be. As a matter of fact, there is a constant flux from the stalwarts to the half-breeds and vice-versa, according to how the jobs and the graft that was to be gotten, reached around—for the men who did not get any, immediately turned reformers." Even Herbert Zilmer, one of the present leaders of the stalwarts, was one of the original LaFollette men and original half-breeds in Milwaukee.

"The office of sheriff made a stalwart of him. The present leader of the half-breeds, Fred C. Lorenz, was formerly a friend of Payne and Pfeister. Otto Seidel, one of the self-confessed grafters, ran on the half-breeds' ticket last fall. And all in all, there is not the least doubt in anybody's mind that the half-breeds are in no way or shape better than either the Stalwarts or Democrats. Only they happen to have the district attorney on their side." (August 12, 1905).

And in the Milwaukee Sentinel of October 1, 1905, we are given the following insight into the reign of honest government in the model commonwealth: "The grand jury which has been in session since early in June, probing graft in city and county governments, made its final report to Judge Brazee of the Municipal Court at ten o'clock last night and was discharged. Twenty-four indictments were returned with its final report, as follows:

"William Murphy, former alderman of the third ward, two indictments, charged with perjury in connection with testimony against two 'reformers' before the grand jury.

"One of the sensations of the evening was the indictment against William Murphy. It will be remembered that several days ago Murphy wrote a letter to the grand jury saying he was ready to furnish it with some information. He was summoned, but as soon as the jury ascertained that he had evidence of bribery to furnish against two 'reformers' and LaFollette leaders, the jury excused him. He told his story, 'Bob' to the newspapers, and the jury, finding public sentiment aroused, thought best to let the former alderman testify, especially since for weeks the district attorney had been trying to get Murphy to testify on graft.

"Murphy went before the jury and said that four of the so-called 'reformers' had given him $400.00 for his vote for the Wells tunnel grants. He also charged that another 'reformer' had given him, through his agent, $50.00 for his vote for a sidetrack."

The orgy of corruption in LaFollette's Wisconsin commonwealth, particularly when "Battling Bob" held undisputed political sway, is summed up in this fashion by the Social-Democratic Herald, of October 21, 1905.

"The bribery, stealing and open debauchery in Milwaukee was such that even the bribers could not stand it any longer. Public opinion compelled the district attorney about two and a half years ago to ask the criminal court for a grand jury. Since then several indictments have been returned. Over a hundred city and county officials have been indicted. They have been indicted for almost any crime that public officials could possibly commit."

Campaign Funds Are Secret.

Despite all the demands of the La Follette forces for publicity in congressional and senatorial campaigns, these "progressives" have not been so anxious to put such policies into effect in Wisconsin where they are masters of the political situation. In the Milwaukee Journal of January, 3, 1922, we are given the following indictment of the LaFollette machine:

"For nearly two years the Wisconsin Progressive League worked in the state to bring about the LaFollette-Blaine victory. The league now says it was 'educational' and it has failed to file a record of its expenditures. No one knows to what extent money influenced the primary, nor the source whence the money came. The LaFollette candidates filed personal reports for the period of the campaign only, but nothing is disclosed relative to the prolonged period of preparation."

Backs Capitalist Politicians.

In essence, LaFollette's political machine is like the political machines of the corrupt and reactionary cliques dominated by the biggest capitalist interests. The Wisconsin senator has been a rather glib talker for many years against big whips, bosses, and machines utilizing their hold on the government either for service to big corporate interests or for their own ends. Looking into LaFollette's actual doings over a span of years in politics and power, we find that his machine has served to build gods and make bosses out of as many tools of the big exploiters as have the machines of the democratic and republican parties.

Thus the Milwaukee Leader of March 14, 1918, unfolds the following tale of "Battling Bob" placing himself squarely behind the worst type of employing class politicians and tools:

"So Senator Robert Marion LaFollette, according to the Free Press, places himself squarely back of the candidacy of James Thompson.

"That's an old story. 'Bob' placed himself squarely back of Isaac M. Stephenson in his day. 'Bob' placed himself squarely back of Jim Davidson a little later. 'Bob' placed himself squarely back of Francis E. McGovern. 'Bob' placed himself also squarely back of Irvine Lenroot, and 'Bob' placed himself squarely back of Paul O. Husting as a 'fair-minded' Democrat.

"We could mention a dozen other prominent politicians in Wisconsin behind whom Robert M. LaFollette 'placed himself squarely.' With the exception of those who have died—all of these proteges of 'Bob' are great jingoes, reactionaries, and profiteer patriots today. As a matter of fact, every one of them, after Robert M. LaFollette had placed himself squarely behind him, turned clear around and placed his right foot squarely upon the solar plexus of 'Bob' with telling effect.

"The only exception to this rule that we know of just now, is Colonel John M. Hannan, 'Bovy's' purveyor of good will and who sticks to him with remarkable fidelity. But it is not quite clear whether John is squarely behind 'Bob' or 'Bob' squarely behind John.

"And now Robert M. LaFollette places himself squarely behind Mr. Thompson. This gentleman at least cannot disappoint 'Bob' much. Thompson already promises the most vigorous prosecution of the war, and, therefore, if he wants to be consistent he must oppose 'Bob' after election."

Among the progressive saviors or honest men in capitalist government with whom LaFollette associated himself at one time or another, in his program or whom the LaFollette machine supported are the following men who blossomed out into supine servants and vigorous defenders of the blackest employing class interests: Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana; Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa, author of the Esch-Cummins act; Hiram W. Johnson, of California; the fake Teapot Dome investigator, Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin; Miles Poindexter, Washington; Gifford Pinchot, now governor of Pennsylvania; William Allen White, of Kansas, and Medill McCormick of International Harvester Trust fame.

Finally, at this very moment, the difference between the cogs in the wheels of the LaFollette machine and the active supporters of, and workers for, Coolidge in Wisconsin, are so thin and so vague, that Mr. Arthur Evans, was led to the following view of the situation in the Chicago Tribune of August 14:

"Thus the Coolidge movement in Wisconsin is being directed largely by elements quite as closely identified with the progressive legislation that made the state famous ten and twenty years ago, as were the present LaFollette captains, and even closer.

"The 'regulars' scorn the word 'conservative' in this state, and they make much of saying the active Coolidge workers here are advanced, constructive, and up to all Wisconsin's standards of progressivism."

New Russian Film

The Beauty and the Bolshevik is the title of a new, fascinating Red Army romance, that has arrived in the United States from Russia and will be shown at the Lenox Theater, 111th Street and Lenox Avenue, New York, August 22nd to 29th.

Story Based on Civil War.

This story is based on the events in Soviet Russia toward the end of the Civil War. A Red Army brigade settles down after four years of fighting in a little village—there it becomes the center of the village life. It brings joy to the poor and rouses the resentment of the rich landowners.

The Red Army soldiers are sequestered in the homes of the villagers. Kombrig Ivanov, the Red Army Commander, finds himself housed in the home of a rich priest—Kulak. And, as inevitably happens, there is a young daughter—the Beauty.

Courting With the "ABC of Communism."

In a short time Kombrig and the Beauty find much in common. The Red Commander interests her in communism and they are seen together making love with Bukharin's "ABC." And then, as you would expect, Kombrig asks for her hand in marriage.

Marriage Old and New.

As an orthodox bourgeois young lady, she proposes a high church ceremony, with full ritual. Kombrig, however, has thrown off the superstitions of the past and insists on a civil marriage.

A break is imminent. . . .

How Kombrig finally wins the Beauty, the ingenious scheme he carries out, can best be known by seeing the latest Russian Art Production, The Beauty and the Bolshevik.

The picture is replete with stirring scenes of the Red Army in action, of the struggles between the poor peasants and the rich landowners and many other events typical of the new life in Soviet Russia.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 22 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates for President: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER. For Vice-President: BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 130. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $5.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. TUESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

PATERSON MILL STRIKE GAINS

Demand State-Wide Drive for Unemployed

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

CHANCELLOR MARX had a better reception in London, from the international bankers than he will have on his return to Berlin, if the nationalist press is any criterion of German feeling. Marx is warned that the London agreement would not receive the necessary two-thirds majority in the Reichstag. The nationalists of Germany, however, like their prototypes in France, having no aims except the interests of their particular capitalist group, can be purchased for a price and the bankers are so anxious to put the Dawes plan across that they are willing to mollify the tempers of the nationalists by favorable concessions. The only real opposition to the Dawes plan in Germany is coming from the Communists.

• • •

THE European Socialists are solidly lined up behind the Dawes plan. Dawes, the strikebreaker! Dawes, the organizer of the Minute Men of the Constitution! International solidarity after all does not mean much to the Socialists. In America Berger is against the Dawes plan. Berger is supporting LaFollette. The New York Nation is for the Dawes plan. The Nation is supporting LaFollette. So far neither LaFollette nor Samuel Gompers have, to our knowledge, commented on the Dawes plan. Can the American Federation of Labor support the Dawes plan and at the same time fight Dawes, candidate for vice-president on the Republican Party ticket? Can LaFollette remain silent on the Dawes plan while attacking Coolidge, who gave the Dawes plan his blessing from the start? Not very probable, but the Wisconsin senator will attack it for purely electioneering purposes as Harding did the League of Nations.

• • •

THERE is still an opportunity for wide-awake Americans to make money, provided they keep their eyes open. A former Irish-American saloon keeper in New York, walked down to Wall Street and bought 5 per cent Imperial German war bonds hoping in a vague sort of way that they would be worth real money some day. He invested $275 in 50,000,000 marks worth of those bonds. Today his bonds are worth $87,500. Others were equally fortunate or even more so. That is one of the ways money is made. If an ex-bartender was able to make a profit on a thousand bonds, on a mere guess, how much did the bankers who were on the inside make?

• • •

ONE of the "profound" statements made by Calvin Coolidge in his speech accepting the nomination for president, is the following: "Very early in their search for a sound method of self government the American people discovered that the only practical way to secure responsible political action was by the formation of parties." It seems to us that political parties existed in England when the fathers of this country were discussing the Declaration of Independence. But that is a Coolidgeism. It will go down with the morons.

• • •

A REVOLUTION in Spain is considered imminent. Regardless of what Alfonso tells the New York Times reporter in the presence of Mr. Moore, the American ambassador (who calls Alfonso the "Chief" and his son, the Duke of Alba, "Jimmy") there is trouble brewing. "Morocco will be to to Alfonso, what Sedan was to Napoleon III" writes one of the Spanish politicians who was exiled by Primo de Rivera and afterwards escaped from his place of captivity. The Moroccan venture is becoming increasingly unpopular and Spanish republicans are becoming more dar-

(Continued on page 2)

Damage Laid to Nationalists.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 18.—Damage to the Sudan railway line, which was at first attributed to washouts, was said today to have been caused by anti-British agitators. What truth, if any, there is in this report, has not yet been ascertained.

Mussolini Sneezed.

SYRACUSE, Italy, Aug. 18.—Two earthquake shocks were felt here today. There was no danger.

SHUT-DOWN IS NEAR COMPLETE IN FIRST WEEK

Ten Thousand Out and Ranks Grow Hourly

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 18.—The strike of the workers in the broad silk mills of this city now embraces 10,000 men and women, after a week's struggle, and every hour more mills are closing down.

It is estimated by strike leaders that the middle of this week will see the total shut-down of all broad silk mills in Paterson.

Strike at Zero Hour.

On Tuesday, Aug. 12, at the precise moment the hour-hand registered 10 o'clock in the morning, 5,000 weavers, in response to the strike call of the Associated Silk Weavers, brought their looms to a stop and walked out.

Shop meetings were held in the vicinities of the various mills affected and organization of the far-flung picket line was under way.

At 12 noon every unaffected shop was picketed by strikers and all afternoon additional shops came out.

In the evening of Tuesday the picketing was continued, with more recruits. Wednesday the response was surprising even to the strike leaders—many of them old-timers who have been thru the succession of struggles here since the great strike of 1913.

Strike Gains Rapidly.

On Thursday it was evident to even the most optimistic of mill owners that the strike was rapidly gaining and that something had to be done to stop it. In the afternoon picketing mob attacked a striker, who defended himself. The police arrested the striker, who was held under $1,000 bail for the grand jury on a charge of felonious assault.

The police beat the arrested striker after he was taken to jail. The strike committee appointed a subcommittee to visit the mayor and protest against the police methods. The mayor announced in the capitalist press that he would gladly welcome the strike committee, but when they called Friday morning the mayor's office boy announced that Hizzoner was out of town and not expected back until Monday.

Strikers Are Enthusiastic.

A number of enthusiastic mass meetings have been held, attended by thousands of strikers. Most of the addresses have been by local speakers, who exhorted the strikers to spread the movement to every mill in the city. Adolph Lessig, who was active in the series of strikes that made Paterson famous in the history of labor struggles in this country, is the local leader and is ably assisted by a group of experienced rebels who know how to conduct an aggressive strike. As chairman of the daily mass meet-

(Continued on page 3)

WILL SMALL WAIT ON DAWES?

TWO "SOCIALISTS" IN THIS YEAR'S RACE FOR N. Y. GOVERNOR

George R. Lunn, the present lieutenant-governor of New York state and former socialist mayor of Schenectady, N. Y., is acceptable to the democrats as candidate for governor to succeed "Al" Smith. There is very little difference between the socialism of Lunn and that of Norman Thomas, who is running on the socialist ticket.

INDICTMENT OF CAMPBELL HITS "LABOR" GOVT.

By CHARLES ASHLEIGH.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Aug. 6. (By Mail.)—"Well, just look at all those red flags," said Michael Gold to me, when we went down to Trafalgar Square to see the great anti-war demonstration of the Communist Party of Great Britain. "They'd never allow that in the States."

"Yes," I replied, "there is a bit more leeway here, perhaps, than in America. But don't count on it too much. If you really start treading on the bosses' toes, they'll hit back quickly enough, in Britain as in any other place."

And now, behold, I have the opportunity of saying, "I told you so."

For, within a week of that convention, the police had raided the party

(Continued on Page 6)

ASSASSINATION OF MATTEOTTI AROUSES LABOR

Thousands in March to Defy Fascisti

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Aug. 18.—Within an hour after the mutilated body of Ciscomo Matteotti, the socialist deputy who was the victim of the Fascist terrorists he dared to denounce, had been found buried at Scrofano, twenty thousand workers, with a group of Communists at their head, were marching thru the streets of Romé, singing the "International" and "The Red Flag."

Everywhere in the ranks of the marching, singing workers were members of the Young Communist League of Italy, carrying the emblem of the Communist International.

"Down With Mussolini!"

From the dense crowds that thronged the pavements, shouting applause of the marchers, rose cries of "Down with Mussolini!" "Down with the murderers of the workmen!"

To the little town of Scrofano, fourteen miles from Rome, where the body of the martyred deputy had been found with a long stiletto plunged thru the breast, workers and peasants brought tribute of flowers.

But more significant than the praise of the dead is the hatred of the living Fascist murderers, now rising to a fierce flame among the Italian workers.

Workers Ready for Action.

For three years the Italian proletariat has been restlessly discontented with the petty army officials intrenched in the seats of the government. With the murder of a member of parliament for his threat to expose the infamous crimes of the Fascist leaders, this discontent crystalized into loathing. The discovery of the brutal methods used by the official murderers of state, and the final fastening of responsibility for the crime on the leaders of the government, brings the Italian workers to the point where they are ready for action.

"Prepare to strike!" is the watchword which the Communists are passing among the laborers.

Fascisti for Terror Reign.

With the end of the dictatorship a matter of only a few months at most, Mussolini is putting forth every effort to bolster up the government. Fascist organs such as the Impero of Rome are crying for a return of the death penalty for active political opponents and the installation of firing squads in public squares and in the busiest streets to quell outbreaks of disorder.

Mussolini, at a grand council of the party a few days ago, definitely allied himself with the right wing of the Fascisti, who have been quarreling among themselves over the degree of reaction in which the party could indulge and yet maintain its supremacy. Right wing leaders have long insisted that another St. Bartholomew's eve is necessary before order can be restored in Italy.

Catholics Join Blackshirts.

The united approval of the pope and the Fascist leaders attends the formation of the new political association called the "Italian National Center," formed at Bologna a few days ago. The organization attempts to unite all Catholics favorable to the Fascisti. With this party it is hoped to deal a death blow to the Popular Party, an anti-Fascist organization led by the

(Continued on page 3)

DENNIS BATT JOINS THE REPUBLICANS; HE IS ONLY RED IN FACE NOW

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Aug. 18.—Dennis E. Batt, former national leader in the Proletarian Party, present editor of the Detroit Labor News and professed "revolutionist," has abandoned all his former pretensions by entering the elections on the republican party ticket in Michigan.

At the last meeting of the machinists' union, of which he is a member, Batt announced: "I am a candidate of the Detroit Federation of Labor for the state legislature."

"From what party?" came a question from the floor.

"Well, you see—er—hum—er," stammered Batt, red in the face, "there is no other party than the republican, and—er—hum—So I—hem—ha—according to the decision of the Detroit Federation—er—gave my consent to run on the republican party ticket."

KANSAS LABOR SKATES FORM SCAB COUNCIL

Civil War Fostered in Carpenters' Union

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 18.—Building contractors, Building Trades Council, and the Central Labor Union of Kansas City have united their forces against the carpenters. They have organized a scab union of carpenters, the result being that the labor movement of this city is being torn asunder in what is shaping up to be the most disastrous jurisdictional quarrel in the history of the building trades.

The carpenters have been on strike since the middle of June. It is a stupid, ruinous, jurisdictional strike. No wages, working conditions, or new agreement, are involved, just a suicidal battle between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers for control over the hanging of sheet metal doors, window sashes, and "dim. "Get

(Continued on page 5)

LABOR 'FRIEND' MAY HELP CAL'S PAL CELEBRATE

Governor Is Silent at His Kankakee Home

Will Governor Len Small, indorsed for re-election by the Illinois State Federation of Labor and the Chicago Federation of Labor, attend the republican vice-presidential notification ceremony for General "Hell-an'-Maria" Charles Gates Dawes to be held tonight in Evanston?

Will Governor Len Small, whose virtuous labor record was extolled at Sunday's meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor, join hands with notorious reactionaries in paying homage to the arch-labor hater in America, General Dawes?

These are questions that are being asked by the workers of Illinois, who have just been informed that among those who will be present at the notification tonight, together with "Uncle Joe" Cannon, "Blackjack" John J. Pershing, Major General James G. Harbord and other figures in the reactionary old guard of the republican party, is to be the indorsee of the official labor movement of Illinois, Len Small.

All Evade Question.

This is the question that is being evaded by the national campaign manager of the Socialist Party, J. Mahlon Barnes, by the national executive secretary of the same organization, Mrs. Bertha Hale White; by Oscar Nelson, the Chicago labor faker and by John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

The question is being evaded by Len Small himself!

When Mahlon Barnes was asked by the DAILY WORKER if he didn't think the Socialist Party had been placed in a peculiar position by Small's probable presence at the notification of the would-be Fascist leader in America, Dawes, in view of the fact that Small was now its gubernatorial candidate, he replied that he hadn't thought about that.

Mrs. White, executive head of the party which Debs called upon to keep the red banner high, refused to com-

(Continued on page 3)

MINERS URGING JOBLESS FIGHT ON ILL. LABOR

Contrast Rich Mansions with Workers' Hovels

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 16.—The unemployment in the Illinois mine fields will be the paramount issue on the floor of the Peoria convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor on September 8.

Tom Parry, of Divernon, elected as a delegate from Local Union No. 146, of the United Mine Workers, told the DAILY WORKER today.

"Dozens of local unions will present resolutions demanding that class collaboration cease and that labor union officials immediately take steps to shorten the work day and demand that the mine operators take over the burden of caring for their unemployed workers," Parry said.

Must Start Unemployed Drive.

Freeman Thompson, president of Sub-District Four, also a delegate to the Peoria convention, said:

"The unemployment, both among the miners and industrial workers of the cities, has become so acute that the state convention of the Federation of Labor must take drastic action to solve this problem.

"The unemployed must organize into unemployment councils, and must be kept in the trade unions if organized labor is to meet the crisis.

"The organization of the unorganized workers will help solve unemployment, and an organization drive must be started by the Illinois convention."

Farmers In Same Boat.

The entire Springfield mining district is stricken with severe and long continued shut-downs, a one hundred mile auto trip thru Thayer, Divernon, Virden, Girard, Auburn and Chatham revealed.

These towns are owned by the coal companies and the miners, unable to pay rents, are tied to their employers thru heavy debts.

A few mines have been dismantled and sealed up, and the others have worked only a score of days in the last year. The farmers, burdened by poor market prices and high freight rates, are almost as badly off as the miners. The miners, seeking in vain for work in the cities, are returning to their homes in despair. They welcome the Workers Party program as the only solution to the unemployment crisis. The Farrington machine has sold out to class collaboration and the Ku Klux Klan is attempting to divide and disrupt their organization.

Only One-Industry Towns.

The towns around Springfield are purely one-industry towns, mining being the sole occupation outside of farming. Thayer has a population of 1,242. Every man in town is em-

(Continued on page 3)

EAST MEETS WEST AND THE NORTH MEETS SOUTH AT INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF COMMUNIST WOMEN

By SADI AMTER.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, July 12.—(By Mail.)—The International Conference of Communist Women met in Moscow, with 148 delegates from all over the world and hundreds of visitors from Moscow and all Russia. Just as in the Comintern Congress, here east meets west and north meets south and all colors and races are represented.

A presidium was elected including Comrade Clara Zetkin, a Chinese delegate, a Turkish delegate, four Russian delegates, and one each from several other countries, in addition to the honorary presidium consisting of Comrades Zinoviev, Krupskayia, Trosky, Tomsky, Bucharin and Pepper.

Women From All Parts of Globe.

Here were delegates from all quarters of the globe: from China and Korea; from France and Belgium; from Poland and Norway, North and South America, England and Turkey, Rumania, Armenia and Turkestan. Here were women of all races and all colors, come to discuss the problems of the proletarian women in all countries and to listen to reports to women of

(Continued on page 5)

ITALIAN FASCISTI KILLED IN CLASH WITH WORKERS OVER THE SLAYING OF DEPUTY MATTEOTTI

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

ROME, Aug. 18.—Two members of the Fascisti were killed and ten carbiniers were wounded during a pitched battle here today between black shirted forces and workers.

The discovery of Matteotti's dead body has aroused the Italian workers to a pitch of fury that has never before been equalled in Italy.

Mussolini is afraid to risk a major engagement just now. He is hoping that the socialists will help him in staving off a revolution, as they saved the Italian capitalists in 1921. But the Communists are very active, and their success in organizing mass demonstrations has even surprised themselves.

The carbiniers in many instances, where the Fascisti clash with the workers, show a tendency to sympathize with the workers. A nation-wide upheaval against Mussolini is expected at any moment.

Miners! Send in Your Stories!

THE DAILY WORKER publishes today the second of a series of articles on the jobless problem in Illinois, especially among the coal miners. Karl Reeve, our labor reporter, is on the ground getting the first hand facts. This material will appear daily in these columns.

But the DAILY WORKER wants to get letters direct from the coal miners themselves; and from workers in other industries. What are the jobless conditions confronting you? How do you get along? What are the immediate problems that you face?

Write your stories to the Unemployment Editor, the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS!

ORDER YOUR BUNDLE OF THE DAILY WORKER'S FIRST SPECIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE—SEE PAGE THREE

ALL AFRICA IN REBELLION, IS GARVEY REPORT

Full Rights Demanded by Negro Communist

By ROBERT MINOR.
(Staff Writer Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, August 18.—A flash of light was thrown upon the international character and wide political interests claimed by the convention of Negro peoples of the world, now in session here, under the auspices of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, when Marcus Garvey, president of the organization, interrupted the proceedings to read to the delegates two dispatches, one telling of an uprising of natives of the Sudan in Africa and the other of the defeat of both the French and the Spanish troops by natives of Morocco.

The large Negro audience, composed of a thousand or more Harlem Negroes and also of delegates from many colonies of colored population, from the West Indies to the French and British possessions in Africa, shook the roof of Liberty Hall with their cheers and shouts of joy.

Greats Importance of Revolt.

"Some of us may not know the tremendous import of this movement," said Garvey, his face beaming with delight. "Lack of knowledge of what we are doing accounts for a great deal of misunderstanding, as expressed by some of our critics.

"The international character of our movement and its determining purposes are so marked that we cannot but feel happy and glad when certain things happen which are in accord with the spirit in which we are working. Now and then things occur in which our movement is especially interested—especially things that are happening in Africa, for we must remember that our supreme purpose is to free and redeem the African continent for the colored people who are entitled to have it and to work out their destiny there.

"Now, some things have been happening there which are of great interest and importance, and yet which some people do not pay much attention to because they do not realize the significance of them. Yet they are events which show the immense work that the association is doing. They show that we are dealing with a sentiment that cannot be destroyed—the growing and persistent sentiment for African freedom and redemption which is behind our organization.

All Africa Afire.

"You should know that every section of Africa has stirred itself to this same sentiment, which grows and spreads thru all the colonies. Morocco is in rebellion, the Sudan, East Africa, West Africa—all of the peoples there are responding to this great urge for liberation. I have just received a letter from South Africa which states that the downfall of General Smuts in South Africa was absolutely due to the activities of the natives.

"And the Moors. The Moors are beating Spain, and they have shattered her armies until they have practically upset the government of Spain which is now in a precarious condition."

After Mr. Garvey had read the two dispatches from two afternoon newspapers, and after the demonstration was quieted, the convention passed into consideration of a plan for the formation of the proposed "Universal Negro Political Union." It must be explained that the Negroes use the term "universal" in the sense of "international." The operations of the proposed union would, according to indications gathered from the speeches, be of an anti-imperialist nature thruout all colonial and semi-independent Negro countries, but as to their nature within the United States there is less clear indication as yet. There is some reason to think that the leaders intend to operate in the United States on the basis of selecting individual candidates on Republican and Democratic tickets who are supposed to be "good" to Negroes' interests—in short, the same plan which Gompers has so disastrously applied to the labor union movement. But it is impossible as yet to make sure what the domestic policy of the Negro Political Union will be.

Communist Moves for Equality.

An attempt was made by Mrs. Olivia Whiteman, Communist delegate, to have the appeal to governors of southern states, which was passed the day before, reopened for reconsideration.

"I make this request," said Mrs. Whiteman, "because I notice for one thing that the resolution says that the Negroes do not seek social equality. Now I don't think there is a man or woman here who does not think that he or she is the social equal of any white person on earth—or at least I hope there is no such person here." While attempting to read her remarks, which she had written out, Mrs. Whiteman was ruled out of order. She then handed to the press table her statement, which reads in part:

"I for one intend to fight for the equality of my people—any kind of equality, and every kind of equality, everywhere—including social equality.

W. P. For Social Equality.

"I am not a republican, as so many Negroes are. And I am not a democrat. I am a Communist, a member of the Workers Party. And in that political party we believe in and practice the dignity of the Negro people as the equals of anybody. As a Communist I could not give my consent that the Negro should give up his demand for social equality, or to consent to any limitation of the equality of the Negro.

"'Social equality'! Well, what is social inequality? That means Jim Crow! That means being kicked and cursed around as an inferior, and being exploited more and paid less than the white person, and lynched if we don't get off a sidewalk for some bully with a white face.

"I think we are obliged, for our own dignity, to reconsider this matter. I also think the resolution is mistaken in being addressed to the southern authorities instead of Negroes."

Requests Correction.

William A. Wallace, a Chicago leader of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, today told me that he believes I did him an injustice in reporting his actions in the convention during the debate on the Ku Klux Klan resolutions.

"Facts are facts," said Mr. Wallace, "and you have a right to print them. I don't object to the facts you printed, but when you expressed your view of my amendment, that it completed the surrender of the Negro's manhood rights, you certainly were not fair. You should have taken into consideration what my purpose was. I intended in a diplomatic way to accomplish the very thing that you contend should be done—that is, to overcome the completely weak resolution of Bishop McGuire.

"When the objection was made to my amendment 'condemning' the Klan, it is true that I consented to change it to read 'we protest against the atrocities and brutalities alleged to be perpetrated,' etc., but this was only for the purpose of diplomatically doing something to strengthen the stand we were to take."

"But, Mr. Wallace," I said, "what I mainly referred to was the assurance you were giving that the Negroes would not demand 'social equality,' which I contend is a term behind which the white ruling class robs the Negro of any sort of right they desire to take away from him."

Doesn't See Point.

Mr. Wallace replied:

"Even tho he sees fit to use that term for the purpose you state, nevertheless I contend we do not have to accept his interpretation of the phrase, but rather concentrate our efforts on a social standard that is applicable to both, automatically creating an equality of social basis."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

ing in their agitation for the overthrow of the monarchy.

* * *

VICTOR BERGER has a rather novel idea of running a column. Only very rarely does he write anything original beyond an introduction to a clipping from some other paper. In a recent issue he quotes a certain Frank Putnam on the Dawes plan. Berger is opposed to the plan, not because it adds new burdens on the German workers, but because it imposes new burdens on the "mighty German race!" This is about as far as the Socialism of Victor Berger really ever got. Scratch a Socialist of the Berger type and you will find a potential Fascist. Like another Anglo-Irish alleged radical, writing in a Hindoo sheet on the Irish and Indian questions, who weeps over the spectacle of his "race" fighting each other and asking that "God rest the souls" of the foolish statesmen who signed the peace treaty with England in 1921, Berger is for a united front in Germany of the workers and capitalists against the allies.

* * *

THE radical movement in all countries has suffered from an overdose of these muddleheaded bufoons, but the longer they are tolerated the worse for the movement. Berger was always an eye-sore in the Socialist Party, but anything went in that organization, with the inevitable result. Berger was not against the war for the same reason that Karl Liebknecht was against it in Germany. Berger was merely against the Allies and realised that when America entered the war on the side of the Allies, the Kaiser's goose was cooked.

* * *

RACIALISM, nationalism, or any other superstition that divides the workers of the world against each other, has no place in the Communist movement. Anybody suffering from any of these diseases should not be tolerated in a position where he is allowed to mislead the workers with a perversion of Communism. Nationalism is one of the evils we must fight. Religion is another. Color and race distinctions are others. It is true that the fight on the part of the Irish nationalists and the Hindoo nationalists and the colonials against the big capitalist nations should be supported by Communists, but for a Communist to blubber about his "race" and talk of unity of workers and capitalists is an entirely different matter.

* * *

THE Irish struggle against the Black and Tans supported by the Irish labor movement, offers a good example of the folly of the working class sacrificing themselves in bourgeois quarrels. After the treaty crushing the Free State was signed, both factions, those who were opposed to the wording of the treaty and those who favored it, entered into a compact which was to eliminate the Irish Labor Party from the political field in the coming elections. The workers were told to sit back and let the battle over the treaty be fought free from "class issues." The workers, after their big sacrifices, were rewarded with insults, by both factions. Since then Republicans and Free Staters have united in local cases to rob the workers of their standard of living. It is sheer treason to talk of a united front of all Irishmen against the British Empire. There must be a united front of all Irish workers and peasants against British rule. There can never be a united front of all classes in a capitalist country except to the disadvantage of the workers.

* * *

THE Chicago Federation of Labor was always slow in making progress, but it travels mighty quick the other way. The culmination of that body's orgy of treachery to the working class had its culminating point last Sunday when the LaFollette-Small ticket was endorsed against the protests of the Communists, the only faction to stand for the principle of working class political action. The Socialists as usual were first in treason to the interests of the workers. The progressivism of the Chicago Federation of Labor has been washed away. It did not take long to do the washing. Fitzpatrick and Nockels had to choose between the Gompers wrath and the cozy snugness of a position basking in the sunlight of capitalist approbation and the security of fat salaries, more than necessary to renew the portion of the pants most worn by labor leaders.

* * *

DURING the discussion at Sunday's meeting of the Federation, an alleged radical, Anton Johannsen, took occasion to reflect on the sincerity of the Communists who supported the Foster-Gitlow ticket on the ground that they were employed by the Workers Party and therefore paid to support the ticket. Communists, said Johannsen, never turned down a chance to go to Moscow. Johannsen added that if Russia is so very good and America so very rotten why don't they stay in Moscow? If Johannsen had any originality he would invent something newer than that in the form of a retort uncourteous. That is what the capitalist say to the worker who demands a higher wage: "If you don't like this job, why the door is open." This Babbitry passes vogue with the average "dumbell," but it should be beneath Mr. Johannsen. However, when an anarchist hits the tobogan he travels faster in a downward course than a reformed rouge who gets religion and goes in the general direction of Christ.

* * *

MR. JOHANNSEN is an unphilosophical anarchist. He poses as a skeptic and sneers at the passing show, but perhaps there is method in his madness. A man who is able to command a salary of $100 a week from the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, for organizing sales, according to Mr. Johannsen, does not find his radicalism so much of a liability. And Mr. Johannsen would resent the suggestion that he will vote for Coolidge and Dawes, or Davis and Bryan or LaFollette and Wheeler or whatever capitalist combination his paymasters are behind, merely because he is working for the Automobile plutes. During the July 3rd conference, in the midst of the confusion caused by Fitzpatrick's desertion of his position on independent workingclass political action, Johannsen sagely whispered into the writer's ear: "This fight is made for nothing else except to save the jobs of two men." The two men were Fitzpatrick and Nockels.

* * *

MEN like Johannsen may feel that the workingclass are unappreciative of their sacrifices. Therefore they desert the class struggle and go over to the enemy, not openly as labor leaders used to do once upon a time, but in the newer and more respectable fashion. At one time, not so very long ago, it was considered a crime for a labor leader to go over to the master class. But it is no longer a crime. The labor fakirs have built themselves a philosophy in which they clothe their treason. It is the mantle of respectability, and it is known as class collaboration. From Gompers down to the socialist party there is a united front open or unanavowed. And it is not surprising to find a frothy wind bag of an ex-anarchist joining the anvil chorus.

MORGAN GETS STRANGLEHOLD ON GERMANY

Socialists and Bankers Clinch Dawes Plan

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

LONDON, August 18.—What may turn out to be a second treaty of Versailles was signed in London when the German and French delegates to the London Conference agreed on the conditions for the evacuation of the Ruhr, the only obstacle in the way of putting the Dawes plan into operation.

The reparations protocol was signed by the Allied and German representatives. Premier Ramsay MacDonald having done good work for capitalism was ready to go away for a vacation. The bankers and their political lackeys, were getting ready to leave London. There was an air of optimism everywhere. The bankers had won.

Bankers Accomplish Purpose.

It took a month's hard work for the bankers to accomplish their purpose. But they have plenty of time. Important factors in the peace-making were the American ambassador Kellogg, Col. James A. Logan and the Socialist premier, James Ramsay MacDonald.

The manner in which MacDonald co-operated with the bankers who were responsible for the bloody war which the erstwhile pacifist opposed was a testimony to the elasticity of that gentleman's political creed.

Depends on German Workers.

The German Reichstag is expected to pass the necessary legislation on August 15, so that the Dawes plan can be set to work at once. The DAILY WORKER has already made it quite clear that operation of the Dawes plan depends on the German working class. It is out of their flesh and blood the profits must come to pay the reparations, and the millions the international bankers will receive in commissions for floating the $200,000,000 loan.

From the point of view of practical politics in the immediate sense the successful conclusion of the London conference is a feather in the hat of Ramsay MacDonald. He now stands high in the estimation of the international bankers. Perhaps none of the leaders of the bourgeois parties of England could accomplish what he has for high finance.

MacDonald, Socialist, was able to call Premier Herriot, radical Socialist, comrade, and send greetings to President Ebert of Germany, also a Socialist. There was the picture of Social democracy "doing its stuff" for the international bankers and the latter are not unappreciative.

To Start Evacuation Soon.

In order to dull the sharp edge of nationalist German resentment, the French have agreed to start withdrawing the troops immediately after the Dawes plan starts to function.

It is reported that the visit of Charles Evans Hughes to Paris and particularly his conversation with Poincare, has smoothed the way for Herriot in the French parliament. Hughes was able to tell Poincare that the United States government was behind the Dawes plan and any French statesman who succeeded in overthrowing the Herriot government by an appeal to French chauvinism, would find a bill collector from the United States at his door, very shortly asking embarrassing questions about the French debt. This club knocked belligerency out of Poincare with the result that he sent Louis Lucheur to London to inform Herriot that if the latter insists on a year's time to evacuate the Ruhr, Poincare's opposition in parliament would not be serious. That is the way the political situation stands at present and it is not expected that the French nationalists will dare the wrath of the United States government.

Chicago's High Cost Of Living Greater Than Any U. S. City

The cost of living in Chicago has gone up higher than in any other city in the United States, according to the latest survey of the department of labor. The cost of living in Chicago is 72 per cent higher than it was in 1914.

"Eternal City" Fascist Propaganda.

MILES CITY, Mont., Aug. 18.—The Trades and Labor Council of this city has gone on record as condemning the film entitled "The Eternal City." This picture, which is advertised as a modernization of Hall Caine's novel, is in reality a vehicle for anti-labor and Fascist propaganda. The action was filmed in the nation ruled by the black shirts, and shows, among other things, a dagger hurled at a worker's door, bearing a warning against strikes, and also shows a close-up pose of Mussolini.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

Prince's Cards Show Fate That Awaits MacDonald Rule

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, is spending his idle hours at Deauville, the French summer resort for the parasite rich of Western Europe and the United States.

The only job the prince has on his hands is waiting for his father, the King of England, Emperor of India, and a lot of other titles, to die, so that he can step into his shoes.

The prince drinks whisky sodas until he can't ride a horse without falling off, divides his nights between the dance palaces of London and Paris, and leads the usual dissolute life that lost King Manuel, of Portugal, his throne, with Alfonso, King of Spain, next on the list to go.

* * *

The prince tried to week-end at Le Touquet, on the Normandy coast, while the real ruler of the Empire, Premier James Ramsay MacDonald, patched things up in favor of the Dawes reparations scheme across the channel, in London. The prince isn't worried over the so-called "labor" rule that MacDonald is giving England. As long as MacDonald rules, the prince knows that the next coronation ceremonies will go ahead, in Westminster Abbey, according to the customs of a thousand years.

The prince's main worry was that Le Touquet was rather dull, so he motored over to Deauville, the flashy surroundings of which are more suited to his royal tastes. He had a hard time breaking into the Casino, the Mecca of Europe's gamblers, but he got in, not because the proletarian door tenders knew him, but because he had "friends" on the inside.

* * *

The cables tell us that the prince played baccarat, with bad luck, and then changed to chemin de fer at tables where there were women in large numbers. Here the prince continued to lose at 20,000 francs ($1,000) per clip.

* * *

The Chicago Tribune's Foreign News Service says that the prince "had an unpleasant expression when he lost." This was no doubt due to his inability to display any worthwhile agility as a gambler before the women present.

It is certain that the loss of the money did not bother him. Why should it? The funds for the royal family, totalling many millions annually, are provided by the liberal financial policy of the socialist secretary of the exchequer, Philip Snowden, whose recent budget received the unanimous applause of Britain's greatest bankers.

* * *

But it is most significant that at the hour the prince was losing money, of which he had never earned a cent, at $1,000 per throw, Premier MacDonald was closing the London Conference with what the capitalist press refers to as a "noteworthy" incident. MacDonald was bidding farewell to the capitalist diplomats of the continent, who had joined with him in enslaving the workers of Germany, for years to come. Then the Associated Press correspondent reports what happened as follows:

"The signing of the documents was ended and the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, was shaking hands all around. When he came to Chancellor Marx (Germany), the prime minister, still gripping the chancellor's hand, led him to where M. Herriot, the French premier, was standing, surrounded by friends.

"Without a word, so the story goes, Mr. MacDonald lifted M. Herriot's right hand and joined it with that of Dr. Marx. Then he stepped back, smiling genially, while the Frenchman and the German tightened the grip and shook hands cordially."

* * *

It has thus remained for a "labor" premier, with the shadow of a gambling prince awaiting to be king in the background, to cement the capitalist ties between France and Germany, for the further mutual enslavement of the workers and farmers of both countries.

Marx is fighting for the triumph of the rich exploiters over Workers' Rule in Germany. Herriot is doing the same in France. They unite their forces, to better crush labor in both Germany and France, and they have the blessing of J. Pierpont Morgan, the Strikebreaker President of the United States, Cal Coolidge, and the "British "labor" premier, MacDonald.

* * *

Over on the continent the prince risks another $1,000 at the Deauville gambling tables. He loses.

So the MacDonald "labor" government in Great Britain must lose, because it is not labor, it does not fight to win for labor.

MacDonald may read his government's fate in the cards that turn up for the prince at the French gamblers' resort.

* * *

And he may read his own fate in the fact that the rank and file of the Labor Party is in revolt against his policies. Twenty-two branches of the Labor Party are demanding affiliation with the Communists in resolutions sent to the next Labor Party Congress.

CLEVELAND READERS, ATTENTION!

Picnic and Song Festival

AT

PINNISH PICNIC GROUNDS,

Lorain Ave. and W. 117th

SUNDAY, AUGUST 24, 1924

PARTICIPATING ORGANIZATIONS:

Bohemian Singing Circle Star, Hungarian-American Singing Society, Ukrainian Children's Club, Lithuanian Lyric Society, Slovak Singing Society, Freiheit Dramatic and Singing Society, Ukrainian Dramatic Club, Finnish Singing Society, Hungarian Children's Club.

Come and bring your friends. Take Lorain 117th car and walk five blocks south. If you can sell tickets, notify John Fromholz, 8806 Clark Ave., and same will be mailed to you. Refreshments on Grounds.

BENEFIT GERMAN WORKERS' RELIEF

ADMISSION 10 CENTS

AUSPICES, FRIENDS OF SOVIET RUSSIA.

CLERGYMAN WITH OBSCENE TONGUE FLAYS PACIFISTS

Rotarians Have Mental Garbage for Desert

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Lieutenant Colonel John H. M. Dudley, pastor of the First Congregational church of Elizabeth, N. J., speaking at a Rotary club luncheon recently, outdid "Billy" Sunday in the picturesqueness of his vocabulary, as he "threw) the hooks" into the Communists, pacifists and all those who opposed another capitalist war.

The reverend disciple of the Lord frothed at the mouth as he combed the vocabulary of obscenity for expressions filthy enough to convey to his hearers the thoughts that dominated his mind. A few excerpts from his speech, taken at random, will suffice to give the DAILY WORKER readers a mental picture of this religious maniac.

He Swore by Jesus.

"The pacifists are radicals and the Communists are pacifists. They don't like these United States because, God damn it, we make them work." This from a sky pilot who never did a day's work in his life.

"There is an insidious and growing group who believe in the dictatorship of the proletariat. They are all pacifists. I don't mince words about these birds. Why, it makes my blood boil when I think of these dirty, lousy, long-haired people who want to divide up the country."

Lots of Them.

After the holy man wiped the froth from his mouth, he continued: "They are honeycombing the United States. You will find them in your homes, in your drawing rooms, yes, perhaps in your bedrooms, drinking tea with your wives and daughters. They are everywhere. Look in the telephone book. There are a thousand and one societies spreading Communism.

"The wheels of progress have been stopped by a few men in congress. It began seven years ago in Tampico, Mexico, when Soviet agents hatched a plot to go into the western states of this country and by getting into politics, create a bloc in congress." Then as he seized his glass he danced and shrieked, his face livid and flecks of foam flying from his mouth in all directions, he sputtered:

"And now, by Christ, they've done it!"

Out for Blood.

Even the Rotarian babbitts were getting a little bit nervous. War is all right at a distance, but to have a lunatic paint its virtues to them while enjoying a good dinner was not at all to their taste. The chairman pulled the sky pilot's coat tail, but he took that for encouragement, and he blasted away at that section of the population which believes that, if possible, the people should be given an opportunity to die a natural death.

After informing the now thoroly frightened Rotarians that there were 400,000 Communists in the United States, he shouted: "Do you want a dictatorship of a drove of pigs substituted for a government of decent men? For God's sake, get out and vote!"

He denounced the Christian Century, a Protestant publication, for defending the Soviet government and offering "to join hands with those damned scalawags."

The Rotarians applauded vigorously at the end of the speech, evidently glad the ordeal was ended. Some of them said he had it all over on Billy Sunday and that he was the type of preacher the country needed, the kind that would "send the God damn pacifists to hell."

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

WM. Z. FOSTER

What do you know about him?

When speaking to your neighbors, friends and shopmates and urging them to support and vote for William Z. Foster, the working class candidate for president, at the coming election, you will have to tell them what Foster has done for the labor movement. For this we recommend Foster's book:

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY

"THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE AND ITS LESSONS"

The story of the steel workers fight for organization and recognition, led by William Z. Foster.

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY

of this wonderful story sent to any address for

$1.00

Regular price of this book is $1.75. Order at once, while the supply lasts! Remember: AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY.

Literature Department,
Workers Party of America
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

STEEL WORKERS GIVE SUPPORT TO COMMUNISTS

Thousands Enthused at Big Foster Meetings

(Special to The Daily Worker)

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio., Aug. 18.—Enthusiasm for this year's Communist campaign, and support of its national ticket, was rampant, up and down Mahoning Valley today following the two big mass meetings addressed by William Z. Foster, presidential candidate, here yesterday.

The drive for the Communist candidates, in this big steel district, is now under way and will know no let up until election day.

Those two meetings Sunday were the biggest and most enthusiastic turnouts of Mahoning valley steel workers in recent years," was the manner in which Wallace T. Metcalfe spoke of the Foster gatherings, one in the afternoon at Avon Park, Girard, and the other at night in the Ukrainian Hall, Youngstown.

Foster closed this speech with a ringing declaration that the Workers Party is the revolutionary vanguard of the working class. He appealed for members, and many applications were received. The largest collection ever taken in the Mahoning valley at any party gathering was taken.

At Avon Park two thousand steel workers from Warren, East Liverpool, Girard, Youngstown and the various valley steel towns were present. Before the speaking the crowd was entertained by a Bolsheviki band composed of Workers Party members. "Bill" White, the "Red" steel worker of the valley, was chairman. The labor officials of the Youngstown unions who have indorsed the candidacy of LaFollette were interested listeners to Foster's speech.

Foster spoke for two hours, in the course of which he flayed both old parties. He spoke in detail of the part that LaFollette is playing to bolster up a dying faith in the decadent system of capitalism. He showed that the fake accusations given by Coolidge and Davis for the recurring crises of the present system are no explanation at all, and that the explanation given by LaFollette tends to confuse the workers even still more. He stated that all three ignore the basis of these crises, which is the fact that out of which develops all real opposition to the power of capitalism.

The speech of the Communist candidate brought out the fact that the high sounding phrases of LaFollette are meaningless when it comes to a struggle with capitalism. He pointed out that LaFollette will stand against the workers and with the failing system of the capitalists. In this connection he characterized the capitalist ownership of the government and their use of this instrument for the continued exploitation of the workers as being "adaptable" to their every need. When government shows its corruptness to the naked gaze of the workers, then along come the LaFollettes, MacDonlads and Scheidemanns to confuse the workers by indicating that it can be reformed. Foster said: "The function of the LaFollettes is make capitalism livable for the workers—that is, to delude masses of them into supporting it because of some alleged tendency toward reform."

He went on to show that when the workers are in a revolutionary mood the capitalists make use of a Mussolini, while on the other hand they use a MacDonald or a LaFollette to confuse them. Foster drove home the fact that because the big capitalists oppose LaFollette it is no proof that he is for the workers' interest. They opposed the German social-democrats, whose party at one time was underground, but it was eventually the social-democracy that saved the same capitalists and their system. It is the function of the MacDonalds, Eberts and LaFollettes to protect the capitalist system after the conservative politicians have been discredited.

Foster outlined the program of the Workers Party. He showed the necessity for the dictatorship of the proletariat and the organization of Soviets. He advised his audience why they should vote for the Workers Party ticket, indicating that it was not because we believe that it is possible to accomplish reforms thru the capitalist governmental machinery, but rather so that our representatives could raise their voices in behalf of the workers and appeal to the workers over the heads of the capitalist legislators. He urged them to go to the polls and protest against the capitalist system, for, he said, "we look upon this as a favorable time to build up the Workers Party. Because the masses are now thinking of the various political problems and are inclined to listen to Communist principles." We are not telling the workers that they can buy out the capitalist industries. We know this cannot be done. The capitalists would never give by mere sale the industries which are yielding them their golden profits. Neither are we telling the workers that we can legislate the industries out of the hands of the capitalists. We are not so foolish as to believe that just because the majority of the people might vote for socialism that thereupon the capitalists would give up their control. On the contrary, we know that they will never relinquish their grasp, majority or no majority, short of the most desperate struggle."

MINERS URGE FIGHT FOR JOBLESS

(Continued from page 1)

ployed in the mine of the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Company, which employs 560 men at normal capacity.

The mine has been completely shut down with the exception of less than a score of days, for the last three years. The Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Company is owned by the Webster and Shaw syndicate, located in Boston, which in turn could probably be traced to one of the large trusts or railroad combines.

This company owns mines in South Wilmington, Thayer, two in Herrin, two in Benton, one in West Frankfort, and two in Orient, among others.

All except one in Orient and the South Wilmington mine have been completely closed down for many months. The two working, run only an average of a day and a half a week.

Ex-Congresseman on Easy Street.

On the way to Thayer, we passed the mansion of Ex-Congressman Ben Caldwell, who was elected to congress on the strength of his ability to remember the name of every person he ever shook hands with. The Springfield mining district presents the aspect of one acute problem being telescoped into another. In spite of the boasted rise in wheat, prosperity is a long way from reaching the farmers of Sangamon county. They have been unable to realize a cent in profit on this year's crops.

As we drove thru the heart of this poverty stricken mining and farming country, with the miners blighted with long continued unemployment and the farmers impoverished, we passed two homes whose inhabitants were decidedly not impoverished. Ex-Congressman Caldwell's was one of them.

United Front in Sangamon.

"Caldwell is a millionaire banker," Watkins told me. "He boasted when he ran for election that he was a 'dirt farmer.' He made his money, however, farming the farmers in politics and in business."

The other home we passed, which is still able to provide the family with a good chicken dinner every night, is the home of Frank Farrington.

"Farrington has another home in Indianapolis," Watkins said. His Springfield home, nestling prettily in the suburbs, is merely an added convenience for him when he is out of Indianapolis. Caldwell milks the farmers, and Farrington gouges the miners. The United Front of Sangamon county!

Fake Labor "Friend" May Help Cal's Pal Celebrate Tonight

(Continued from page 1)

mit herself, in reply to a similar question.

Maybe Case for Sheriff.

Oscar Nelson didn't care to make any comment, and John Fitzpatrick answered: Governor Small is an American citizen. He can come and go as he sees fit.

"And if he does anything wrong, the sheriff can get after him," and he laughed at his own facetiousness.

Small Leads the Evaders.

But Small himself led the evaders, crudely and ineffectively. Questioned over the long distance 'phone for confirmation of the report that he would attend the ceremony, he answered by saying: "I have been laid up with bad eyes for the past two weeks and I don't think I will be able to go."

"Have you received an invitation?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"Will you go to the ceremony if you are physically able?"

The Governor Hangs Up.

Snap! and the receiver was hung up. He simply refused to reply. After persistent ringing, his secretary replied and would not make a single statement one way or the other.

Small was telephoned to at his home in Kankakee, his home town, where the Central Labor Union, affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, has placed him on the unfair list to labor!

With whom will Small, the candidate of "labor" and the Socialist Party in the state of Illinois, hobnob when he goes to Washington?

As notorious a gang of labor haters and reactionaries as were ever gathered will rub shoulders with Len Small from the platform. There will be the arch-militarist, John J. Pershing; Major General James E. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, a Morgan-controlled firm, which is now being sued by the Federal Trade Commission for violating the anti-trust law; "Uncle Joe" Cannon, hoary, dyed-in-the-wool reactionary leader of the house of representatives for many years, will come up especially from his home in Danville, and Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, leading figure of the fake "farm bloc."

There will also be Frank W. Stearns, financial angel of Calvin Coolidge and owner of department stores in Boston where girls are driven like coolies.

And together with them will be the finest collection of American Legionnaires, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Loyal Legionites, bankers, manufacturers and miscellaneous anti-labor figures that ever met at one time.

Is this the gathering that will be attended by the "labor" candidate for governor?

Is this how far the united front against the Communists extends?

Debs stands by the socialist party. The socialist party indorses LaFollette for president. So does the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, Gompers included. So also does the Chicago Federation of Labor, led by the man who only yesterday, it seems, said that both old parties were rotten to the core, John Fitzpatrick. The same John Fitzpatrick leads in the indorsement of Len Small as labor's candidate for governor of Illinois. Len Small stands cheek by jowl to the author of the infamous Dawes plan, head of the Central Trust Company of Illinois—Morgan's bank—and leader of America's potential Fascisti, the Minute Men of the Constitution, "Hell an' Maria" Dawes. Dawes is the running mate of Calvin Coolidge on the ticket of the republican party.

Debs, Hilliquit, Gompers, LaFollette, Walker, Fitzpatrick, Small, Dawes, Coolidge: all united against the candidates of the Workers Party of America.

The symbol of this betrayal of the workers into the camp of the capitalist parties is the attendance of Small at the notification ceremony of Dawes.

What do the workers say?

Still Shooting Skyward.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The retail cost of food in the United States increased three-fourths of one per cent in July, as compared with June, while there was also an upward trend in wholesale prices during the month, it was announced from the department of labor today.

INJUNCTION IN I. W. W. CASE UP IN COURT TODAY

Seceding Group Won't Make Statement

"I want it clearly understood that neither I nor any other individual or body will make any statement concerning the controversy in the organization," J. A. Griffiths, leading figure in the group of the Industrial Workers of the World which has split off from the regular organization, replied to the DAILY WORKER reporter in answer to a request for a statement. "I absolutely refuse to be quoted on anything at all."

Not a Word.

Not only do Griffiths and the others associated with him refuse to make any official statement of their case, but they refuse even to say if they have issued credentials to delegates, issued dues or initiation stamps, prepared to issue an official organ, or done any of the other matters that a regular organization does.

Tom Doyle, head of the "regular" organization of the I. W. W., could add nothing to Griffith's refusal to speak. The seceding group keeps its activity secret from outsiders and none but they has any talking as to what work is being carried on or what plans have been made to carry on such work.

Injunction Comes Up Today.

The suit for injunction, in which the Griffiths-Rowan-Bowerman group request the court to prevent the Doyle-Fisher group from continuing in office as the official administration of the Industrial Workers of the World, comes up this morning in the court of Judge David. Both sides will appear with counsel and the injunction will either be denied or made effective.

Italian Workers March in Defi to Mussolini's Fascisti

(Continued from page 1)

syndicalist, Don Sturzo, editor of Il Popolo. Because Don Sturzo had been a priest, the Popular Party attracted large numbers of liberal Catholics, and it has for that reason been the object of special attack from the Vatican, in open alliance with the Fascisti.

The leading spirit in the Italian National Center is Mattei Gentile, former minister of education, whose policy of compulsory religious training in the schools last year led hundreds of students to strike.

Benito's Plan Fails.

An attempt on the part of Mussolini to legalize the blackshirts—which is an army outside of an army—by uniting it with the regular army has been frustrated by the open refusal of the regulars to have anything to do with the Fascist militia, which is composed largely of criminals.

The seaport workers of Genoa, up to now a stronghold of Fascism, have struck to show their sympathy with the strike of the miners in the Valdarno district, center of the militant workers of Italy.

Red Flag Reappearing.

The Fascist emblem is disappearing from the streets. For the first time in three years, the red flag is flung out without fear.

Cicero Comrades Attend Open Air Meeting Tonight

Notwithstanding the fact that four speakers of the Workers Party and Young Workers League were arrested in Cicero for speaking on street corners without permit by the Cicero authorities, who wink an eye at the real law breakers, gamblers and moonshiners, the Workers Party membership in Cicero has decided that open air meetings shall go on as usual.

The arrest of our comrades by the Cicero authorities has drawn a great deal of sympathy and support from the workers in Cicero to the Workers Party. Therefore, seeing the gain made in membership by these open air meetings, they will go on.

There will be an open air meeting tonight at 7:30 at West 14th St. and 49th Ct. and every succeeding Tuesday after that. Every Thursday night we will hold open air meetings at West 14th St. and 51st Ave.

Cicero comrades make a note of these dates and be on the spot to help make these protests a success.

British Empire Shakes.

MALTA, Aug. 18.—A light earthquake shock was felt here today. Malta is the seat of the British naval base in the Mediterranean sea.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

PATERSON SILK STRIKE GAINS

(Continued from Page 1.)

ings, he reports the progress of the strike, naming mill after mill that falls into line, amid great enthusiasm.

H. M. Wicks of New York city addressed a number of mass meetings. He first spoke on Friday evening before the strike and made such an impression that the strike committee requested him to come here and remain during the struggle in order to assist in the work.

The local reptile press, particularly the Paterson Evening News, which professes to speak in the interests of labor, has consistently misrepresented the strikers' position, and in reporting the speech of Wicks referred to "foreign agitators." At a tremendous mass meeting held Friday morning Wicks excoriated the local press and told the strikers, many of whom are foreign-born workers, that it was so-called foreigners who built the industries in this country. He referred to the various waves of immigrants that have been swept upon the shores of the eastern industrial states. First the Scotch-Irish, then the Germans, then the Scandinavians, all of whom, in times of depression, were able to escape from the industrial hells by migrating to the unsettled west. But the later immigrants were not able to escape in that way, so they were compelled to remain and fight, as they are fighting at this time in Paterson. Wicks then read a list of names of proprietors of silk mills, showing that there were as many foreign names among them as among the strikers, but the capitalist press never refers to them as "undesirable foreigners." His remarks were received with prolonged cheering.

Workers Party Members Active.

A number of members of the Workers Party are on the strike committee and are proving in action that Communists can be relied upon to conduct a genuine, militant struggle in the interests of the demands of the workers. They are also active on the picket line, where mass picketing is the order of the day and is proving most effective.

This is in marked contrast to the small remnant of the I. W. W. that remains disgruntled because of the success of the Associated Silk Workers' Union, this group, calling itself Textile Workers' Industrial Union No. 10, issued a silly leaflet admonishing the strikers to "have no faith in leaders" and boasting that if the leaders try "their usual tricks" they (the I. W. W.) will denounce them at the proper time.

The strike is unique in that there are no outstanding leaders, the work being carried on by the small group of rank and filers, under the leadership of the weaver, Lessig, himself one who works on the job along with the other slaves. And it comes with grace from the I. W. W. to endeavor to cast suspicion upon these men, considering the record in Paterson of the notorious Frederick Blossom, for years one of the local eminences of the I. W. W.

The strike is definitely on the offensive and advancing from one victory to another. Many of the other trade unionists, even of the conservative type, are taking an active interest in the struggle, knowing that Paterson, because of the unspeakable conditions in the silk mills, is one of the black spots in the American labor movement, and are anxious for victory for the silk workers in order to get some semblance of unionism in Paterson.

U. S. Labor Department on Job.

One John A. Moffett, representing the United States department of labor, former reactionary president of the United Hatters, has been in town a week interviewing the mill owners, and on Friday sent a communication to the officers of the union submitting a proposition that the strikers accept the principle of a "neutral" arbitration, and that a committee for the purpose of arbitration be formed, consisting of three representatives of the strikers, three from the mill owners and a man to be selected by the United States department of labor.

This is viewed as an effort on the part of the strike breaking government to come to the rescue of the mill owners in their present plight. If the workers should accept such a proposition they would have to immediately return to work while the arbitration committee indulged in months of procrastination, until the fine militant spirit of the strikers is dissipated, and then render a decision making permanent the hated multiple loom system, against which the strike is being waged.

At a meeting of the strike committee Friday night a reply was sent to the representative of the department of labor to the effect: "The organization is willing to meet employers, but cannot accept any proposition that would cause the strikers to return to work before their demands are met."

This move on the part of the flunkey of the notorious Coolidge scabherding government will be used to the best advantage by the capitalist press, and charges of disloyalty made against the strikers, but on counteract this a series of strike bulletins is to be issued and distributed all over town, impressing upon the workers that there is no disloyalty except disloyalty to the working class.

For Communists this offers a splendid opportunity to expose the government of the United States as the enemy of the working class.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

CHICAGO STREET MEETINGS.

The Workers Party and the Young Workers League are now running their street meetings in the seven congressional districts where comrades are now getting signatures to petitions. In Cicero and Englewood we are having trouble with the police and intend to fight it out. Notices of all our street meetings will be in the DAILY WORKER every few days.

Tuesday, August 19.

W. 14th St. and 49th Ct.—Auspices, Cicero Workers Party and Young Workers League branches.

Roosevelt and Ogden—West Side Y. W. L.; Peter Herd, speaker.

Wednesday, August 20.

Belmont and Wilton Ave.—Auspices, North Side Workers Party.

Max Salzman and Tom Bell will address a meeting of the workers at the National Biscuit company, at Marquette Hall, 1940 W. Roosevelt Road, tonight. Young workers are asked to support this meeting.

TONIGHT, 8 P. M.
CITY CENTRAL COMMITTEE MEETING
Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.
Most important matters to be taken up.
- (1) Our Election Campaign.
- (2) Daily Worker Membership Drive.
- (3) Industrial Activities.
- (4) Other work of Local Chicago.

Delegates of all party branches, secretaries of T. U. E. L. groups and District Election Campaign managers must attend. Visitors are invited.

BRANCH SHOWING 'EM HOW TO GET THE SIGNATURES

Douglas Park Builds Up Election Machinery

Below are the instructions and methods being used by the Douglas Park English Branch in carrying out the Elections Campaign work, especially in the matter of obtaining signatures to the petitons to get Workers Party members on the ballot in Illinois. As can be noted, every member of the branch is enlisted actively in the work. This branch is under the direction of comrade Rose Karsner who also has charge of the work in the Sixth Congressional district. Other Branches, we believe, can profit by following this method, or a similar one, in getting the Party and Y. W. L. members on the job in the Workers Party Election Campaign, and we therefore reprint the Douglas Park instructions for that purpose.

This Branch has 30 members.

Its Campaign Committee, consists of 5 members.

The 30 members were divided into groups of 6, according to where they live. The Secretary of the Branch made out 5 cards, each containing 6 names and addresses.

The 5 members of the Campaign Committee constituted themselves into Group Captain.

Each Group Captain got a card with 6 names and addresses on it, and each Group Captain got a piece of map with 12 precincts on it.

Each Captain then divided his 12 precincts among his six members, giving each member about 2 precincts to cover.

Each Captain then made out Assignment Cards for each member. On this card he put down exactly which precincts the member is to cover, giving each street by name and from where to where.

It was agreed that each Captain is to personally visit those members who were not present at the meeting and give them the assignment card as well as the platform, the Daily and the Petition Blanks.

Each Captain is also to follow up each one of his six members and see that he does his work.

The Captains will report to their Secretary regularly, and the Secretary in turn will report to the Manager. The Branch pledged itself to 400 signatures, making about 12 signatures for each member.

Too Much for Cops.

To the DAILY WORKER—The comrades of Dillonville, Ohio, had a very successful picnic, with an attendance of over 400 people. There were games, dancing and other features of entertainment. The comrades had such a good time that it aroused the ire of the cops around here, and they simply had to pinch some of our fellows and fine them. All receipts went to the Young Workers League.—Joe Kobylak, Jr.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.
Send in that Subscription Today.

Order Your Bundle of First Campaign Issue

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER, the candidate of the Workers Party for president of the United States, opened the Communist drive for the White House, in an enthusiastic rally of steel workers, yesterday, at Youngstown, Ohio. That is only the beginning.

The first Special Communist Campaign Edition of the DAILY WORKER will be dated Saturday, August 30, out just in time for Labor Day, Sept. 1. Get into the campaign! Distribute a bundle of this special issue. Send in your order today on this blank!

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN
DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 5½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....
ADDRESS .....
CITY..... STATE.....

Making History

"One advantage possessed by the strikers is that they have an energetic and fearless daily newspaper devoting extensive space to the conflict—THE DAILY WORKER"
—From "The Nation," May 14th.

Nothing that has happened in labor history in many years has meant so much to the workers everywhere as the establishment of

THE DAILY WORKER
America's Great Labor Daily

If you believe we are doing a big work help by getting the workers everywhere to read

The Daily Worker Every Day

Order a bundle of sample copies to give away in your shop, factory or office and among your friends.

Get a supply of Subscription Blanks

THE DAILY WORKER,
1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Enclosed please find $..... for..... months subscription to THE DAILY WORKER.

Name: .....
Street: ..... Flat: .....
City: ..... State: .....

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By Mail—
1 year $6.00
6 months $3.50
3 months $2.00

IN CHICAGO
By Mail—
1 year $8.00
6 months $4.50
3 months $2.50

MASSACHUSETTS C. P. P. A. EVADES A LABOR PARTY

Convention Repudiates Independent Action

By JOHN J. BALLAM.

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

BOSTON, Mass., August 18. —The convention of the Massachusetts Conference for Progressive Political Action, which met here Sunday, Aug. 10, 1924, at Franklin Union Hall, and was attended by about 150 delegates representing such bodies as the League for Democratic Control, Committee of 48, Socialist Party, labor unions, met to endorse LaFollette's ticket and proved that the claim of the yellow socialist politicians, that the LaFollette movement will eventually bring a Labor Party, is nothing but bunk.

Everything went along pretty smoothly, the convention listening to Chairman Clark's opening address in which he said: "The present 'progressive' movement is a movement of all forward-looking men and women of all shades of political belief, united in a bond of service, men with great hearts who exalt flesh and spirit over dollars and cents."

Thanks Capitalist Press.

All committees were appointed by the chairman with the exception of the campaign committee, which was selected by a committee appointed by the chairman. A number of resolutions were introduced, including the indorsements of Senators LaFollette and Wheeler, indorsing the platform adopted by the national conference of the C. P. P. A. at Cleveland, July 4, and the list of LaFollette electors given out by Chairman Clark. Sent greetings to the Grand Army of the Republic, and thanked the capitalist newspapers of Boston for their fairness to the Massachusetts progressive movement and for their generosity in giving them space.

Another Betrayal.

Everything went along smoothly until the resolutions committee reported a resolution recommending that a state convention be held Nov. 21 to consider the advisability of forming a state labor party in Massachusetts. Delegate after delegate took the floor, claiming to represent labor, and said that if the resolution passes it will harm our united action and that they came here to work for LaFollette and Wheeler and don't want anything else. Those who defended the resolution did it in cowardly fashion, without openly declaring for a labor party, but pointed out to the delegates that the resolution did not mean that they were really pledging themselves to form a labor party, but merely asking for a conference to discuss the advisability of forming a labor party on Nov. 30.

The New England organizer of the socialist party, Mr. A. Weisboard, said:

"We have been promised a labor party ever since we are with this conference, since 1922, and always this thing is postponed."

The socialist attorney, George E. Roewer, Jr., who is the campaign manager for LaFollette in this state, appealed to the delegates to put all differences of opinion aside and to work for LaFollette. The resolution was finally amended after one hour and a half of debate to read:

"That a conference shall be called of all organizations affiliated with the Conference for Progressive Political Action in Massachusetts to consider the advisability of forming a permanent political organization."

The resolution was passed in this form.

George Roewer appealed for the immediate raising of a fund of $20,000 and received $63 in cash.

FURNISHED ROOMS, APARTMENTS AND BUNGALOWS.

REDS COMING TO WASHINGTON, D. C.
Furnished Rooms, $10 to $25 a Month.
Apartments, $25 to $60 a Month.
Bungalows, $45 to $75 a Month.
Mrs. Bateler, 32 G Street, S. W.
Washington, D. C.

MY COMPLIMENTS TO THE DAILY WORKER
DR. M. WISHNER
DENTIST
800 W. North Ave., Cor. Halsted St.
Lincoln 9010

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND
CARL BRODSKY
1123 Broadway, New York City
Tel. Watkins 3626.

Thalheimer Adds To World Program Report

Editor's Note:—In this issue we begin the publication of the supplementary report of August Thalheimer, the German Communist, on the World Communist Program before the Fifth Congress of the Communist International. Thalheimer made this report in co-operation with Nicholas Bukharin, whose address on this question has already been published. Thalheimer reported as follows:

* * *

By AUGUST THALHEIMER.

COMRADES: As Comrade Bukharin has already explained, my task will not be to present another entirely separate report, but to supplement his report mainly by dealing with the discussions which have already taken place. It has become evident that agreement will be possible on all essential points. I will briefly recall the controversial points which played a part at our last congress, and the position we have now reached. The first question which was discussed was the question of accumulation, that is to say, Rosa Luxemburg's theory of accumulation. We have agreed not to formulate this for the program, but to formulate a program which will reach above and beyond these theoretical differences. We have not done this from any personal motives, but because a theoretical discussion must be fully worked out before one can reach conclusions, and make the whole question clear. We were also influenced by the fact that both of us, Bukharin and I, were in disagreement with Kautsky's explanation of imperialism. There would have been no advantage therefore in discussing all these theoretical differences.

PARTIAL DEMANDS

The second question, and perhaps the most important controversial question discussed by the last congress during its debate on the programs, was the question of whether transitional and partial demands should be included in the general program of the Communist International or not. This question was decided by the Fourth Congress, which resolved that the definition of the nature of and necessity for transitional and partial demands should be placed in the general program, while the particular application of these demands in relation to concrete questions, should be left to the national programs. It is well known that Comrade Lenin was in complete agreement with these decisions, and as their theoretical correctness has already been established, we do not see any reason to alter them.

Lenin on Partial Demands.

The necessary principles had already been laid down in the program debate which took place in 1922, and which were supplemented by Comrade Lenin in relation to transitional and partial demands. The principle laid down was that transitional and partial demands cannot be excluded so long as the bourgeois has not been conquered, and the dictatorship of the proletariat has not been entered upon and firmly established.

Now no facts of this kind have occurred since the last congress. The bourgeoisie is not yet conquered, and therefore we can see no reason for leaving out these transitional and partial demands for our program.

I shall chiefly deal here with the debates which have so far taken place in the program commission, not with particular details, but with what is of value in throwing light on the debates, and in simplifying future discussion. I shall take the points in the order in which they were discussed in the commission.

The first question which was discussed, and which Bukharin dealt with very fully, was the question of the different forms of the transition to Socialism, especially the concrete questions of the N. E. P. and of war Communism, in so far as both these questions have a general application. With regard to the question whether N. E. P. could have any application to other countries beside Russia as a transition to Socialism, there was no differences of opinion in the commission, everyone was in full agreement with the views developed by Bukharin. On the other hand, there was considerable discussion of the question of war Communism and the part which it might have to play in other countries—whether it would have any part to play, and if so, how large a part. In short, the question we discussed was: Is war-Communism a necessary preliminary stage to N. E. P. or not?

The N. E. P.

The second question which was dealt with, was that regarding the formula with which the fact that N. E. P. is of general application should be expressed in the program. The conclusion reached was that one cannot of course, insert N. E. P. into the program in a concrete form; the form "N. E. P." itself cannot be mentioned, but the important point is to get its essential meaning into the program.

What are the essential characteristics of N. E. P.? They are: Calculation according to capitalistic methods; retention of the functions of money; retention of the form of trusts; continuance of banks and exchanges. In short, the combination of the organizational forms of capitalism with the fundamental transformation of their social significance. It may be of some interest to note here these general forms of the transition to Socialism, as we regard N. E. P., are already sketched out by Marx. I refer here to the third volume of "Capital," and to Marx's notes on the Gothe program, where he says that in the transition to Socialism we would at first have to adapt ourselves to the economic forms left behind by capitalism, and that we shall only be able to proceed to full Communism at a further stage of development, when we have eliminated those forms also.

WAR COMMUNISM

Now as to the question of war Communism, which I must defend a little against Comrade Bukharin. What is the true nature of war Communism? It can be defined as a rational centralized method of distribution, adapted to the necessities of war. The essential pre-requisite for it, is that the resources which make economic organization possible, should be present. It is necessary to lay particular stress on this fact of the existence of resources. The policy of military Communism could never have been carried out in Russia without the resources which czarism had left behind it.

What is the distinguishing mark of war Communism from the economic point of view? Abolition of money, highly centralized control, no private trading, the crippling of the small trader, and the requisitioning of agricultural products. In order to decide whether war Communism should form a feature of our program, it is necessary to remember that war Communism was not evolved from any theoretical program drawn up beforehand by the Russian Communist Party, but simply developed out of the necessities of revolutionary strategy. What were these necessities? They were mainly two: The First, to drive out the bourgeoisie from all those positions the economic strength of which could be utilized in the political struggle. All the strongholds of economic power which were destroyed, were not destroyed simply from the economic point of view, but from the point of view of revolutionary strategy, the end being the complete defeat of the bourgeoisie. And the necessity for this action endures so long as the power of the bourgeoisie is not really broken. It remains until the bourgeoisie has been subjugated, and placed under the control of the working class, the dictatorship of the proletariat. That is the first aspect.

Mass Supply Army.

The second essential function of war Communism, is to supply the army and the urban industrial population with food. This function must of course be closely related to the fact that requisitions of agricultural produce are not made until the peasants have had the land handed over to them by the industrial workers, so that the requisitions taken from the peasants could be regarded as a return given by them to the working class in exchange for the land they have received.

If we are attempting to reach a general formula for the relation of N. E. P. to war Communism, we must realize quite clearly that N. E. P. would never have been possible in Russia unless it had succeeded a preliminary stage of war Communism. It would not have been possible because the will of the bourgeoisie, and their resistance, had first to be broken, and very thoroly broken, before they were ready to submit to the leadership of the working class. Therefore we may assert that a longer or shorter period of war Communism must precede the N. E. P. in future revolutions. If to be further asked how war Communism and N. E. P. are also on the result different conditions, I think we may consider the following aspects of this question:

The decision as to how far war Communism can or must proceed, will depend upon the particular conditions in a given country, and also on the international conditions in which the proletariat of a particular country seizes power, that is to say, on how much fighting is necessary before the bourgeoisie is subjugated to the leadership of the working class.

National Variations.

Naturally this will and must vary in different countries. It will depend upon the strength of the working class as against the bourgeoisie and the petty bourgeoisie. It will also largely depend upon the international situation. Obviously a proletarian revolution which takes place in a country where the neighboring countries are already nearly ripe for revolution, and which defeats its adversaries, not in the course of a period of years, but in a much shorter time, and is able to consolidate its power, will have to adapt and alter both the forms and the duration of war Communism.

NEP VARIES

It is equally clear that the forms of the New Economic Policy will also vary in different countries, and that the general plan, the general scheme, the outline of the N. E. P. in different conditions. It is both possible and probable that in countries where the capitalist system is highly developed and is much greater in proportion to the pre-capitalistic, peasant stage of production than it was in Russia, the N. E. P. may be developed much further than it has been here in Russia. The form in which N. E. P. is developed depends very much upon the stage towards which the industries taken over by the proletarian revolution have developed. It depends upon the degree to which industry has been centarlized, its strength in proportion to that of peasant production, its technical organization, its relation to finance, to petty bourgeois capital, etc. All these aspects must be taken into consideration.

Naturally we cannot lay down all the concrete adaptations of this kind in our program. That would be impossible, for nobody can foresee them. We must be content to lay down the essential principles of the New Economic Policy, as the general form of the transition to Socialism, and the essential principles of war Communism, as the adaptation of economic necessity to the requirements of revolutionary strategy; that is to say, war Communism must be regarded from the aspect of the defeat of the bourgeoisie, the conduct of a civil war, and of possible rewards of intervention.

The commission unanimously agreed that the transition to Socialism must be laid down in the program from these points of view.

Divisions in Working Class.

A second question which was discussed was that of the various divisions of the working class. A full report was given to the program commission of all the various groupings of the working class, in relation to its political tendencies, groupings, and parties. The main point on which stress was laid here, was naturally that of the part played by the aristocracy of labor in a period of imperialism, its relation to the superior imperialistic power of certain countries, and the relation of the aristocracy of labor to opportunism and the opportunistic tendencies in the working class. But, in considering these points, it was also realized that it was not only important to distinguish these various divisions, but equally important to make it clear that these divisions are of a transitory and merely temporary nature, since the main line of development is at present proceeding in a direction which will obliterate these differences, and level down the various subdivisions of the working class into a common economic position and a common ideological attitude, thus drawing them nearer together. It must not be forgotten, in considering all these groupings, that above and beyond them there exists the fundamental identity of interest of the working class as an economic class. It is this fundamental unity of the working class, founded upon its place in the machinery of production, which must be our starting point when we set out to pass over all the divisions and differentiations of the working class, and to unite them under a single leadership, the leadership of the Communist Party.

(To Be Continued.)

MOORS FEEDING SPANISH TROOPS ON LEAD DIET

Alfonso Does Lizard's Crawl at Deauville

MADRID, Aug. 18.—Disaster follows disaster in the Spanish Moroccan campaign. The Spanish forces are in a critical position, and it is not expected that they can hold out much longer.

The visit of the dictator, Primo De Rivera, did not have the effect of spurring the enthusiasm of the troops. Stories of King Alfonso's animadversions at Deauville and other French watering places and his amors with American debutantes while the soldiers are picking Moroccan fleas off their half-starved bodies is not contributing to their peace of mind.

French Backing Moors.

The Moors are not letting them die of boredom. It is reported that the French are secretly financing the natives, and of course as soon as the Spaniards get driven out the French will walk in. The latter have had better luck in subjecting that portion of its colonial empire than the less efficient Spanish monarchy. Republics can give old monarchies cards and spades in the art of enslaving colonial peoples.

The Spanish position along the River Lau is in a critical condition. The Moors are attacking it from a Spanish village which they recently captured.

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

Wednesday, August 20.

Suffolk and Grand Sts.—Speakers: Margaret Undjus and Jewish speaker.
10th St. and Lenox, Ave.—Speaker: Joe Brahdy.

Thursday, August 21.

Intervale and Wilkins Aves.—Jewish speakers.

Friday, August 22.

14th St. and Irving Place—Harry Winitsky.
Jefferson and East Broadway—Sam Nessin and Jewish speakers.
110th St. and 5th Ave.—Juliet S. Ponyts and others.
Grand and Brook Ave.—George Siskind and Baum.
Graham and Varet Streets—Jewish speakers.
Grand and Roebling Streets—Speakers: John Marshall, Mary Hirtman.
Stone and Pitkin Aves.—Ben Levy, Simon Pelshin.
52nd St. and 5th Ave.—Speaker: Joe Brahdy.
125th Ave. and 42nd Street—Speakers: I. Potash, Sparer.
25th St. and Mermaid Aves.—Mitchell and others.

Saturday, August 23.

28th St. and 8th Ave.—Speaker to be announced.
161st St. and Prospect Ave.—Speakers: W. W. Weinstone, Marcy.
Grand St. Extension—Speaker: Pascal Cosgrove.
Stone and Pitkin Aves.—Primoff, Fannie Warshafsky.
Union Hill, New Jersey.

Tuesday, August 19—Speaker: Harry Winitsky.
Saturday, August 23—Speaker: Jack Statchel.

CHICAGO PARTY ACTIVITIES.

Lithuanian Comrades, Take Notice!

Lithuanian Branch, No. 2, of the Workers Party, will hold a general membership meeting Thursday, Aug. 21, at Sovick Hall, 1900 So. Union Avenue.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

DON'T MISS THE NEXT ISSUE
THE DAILY WORKER MAGAZINE
SATURDAY, AUGUST 23rd, 1924
ONLY SOME OF THE CONTENTS:

1. "Results of Fifth Congress"....By Alexander Bittelman
2. "The Situation in Bulgaria"....By G. Dimitrow
3. "Cologne—Eisensach—London"....By Arthur Rosenberg
4. "Culture Versus Life"....By A Teacher
5. "On My Way to Russia"....By Anna Porter
6. "The Passing of Pittsburgh Plus"....By I. Ramirez (Gomez)
7. Verse: (a) "The Chant Prophet"....By Josef Kalor
   (b) "Workers"....By James H. Dobsen
8. "Power"—A Play in One Act....By Charles Ashleigh

ORDER NOW!
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

I. W. W. IN DRIVE ON WHEAT FIELDS OF NORTH DAKOTA

Governor Tries to Stop Wobs' Campaign

By H. R. MARTINSON.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FARGO, N. Dak., Aug. 18.—The "wobblies" are organizing in North Dakota, preparing to fight for decent working conditions, and wages.

The governor of the state is issuing proclamations, calling up state, county and village officials to protect "honest" workingmen and farmers from the workers who dare to demand a wage that will at least pay their fare to the lumber camp or to a cheap bunk and "coffee and" in some eastern city.

Machinery Saves Labor.

And in a North Dakota wheat field they are demonstrating a wonder harvesting machine that cuts, shocks and stacks the grain in one operation. With this machine the farmer can cut his grain without the aid of the man formerly hired to do the shocking.

The demonstrators promise still more saving of labor at threshing time. Several teams to "buck" the grain to the threshing machine and several men to "pitch" the grain into the separator would cut the threshing crew in two at least.

The organization of the workers of the harvest field will not be stopped by a governor's proclamation, but neither will the elimination of the harvest hand by the perfection of the machine be stopped by the organization of the One Big Union. The harvest and threshing crew cannot stand being cut in half many more times and still remain in a position to demand even a job.

Clothing Situation Dark.

Clothing production in Chicago for the first six months of 1924 has declined considerably below the same period of 1923, reports Dun's Review, after a survey of that industry on a national scale. Manufacturers are making but little for stock, and orders are very slow. No unemployment relief is in sight for the fall season.

The number of building permits issued in Chicago for July was 1,350; the number issued for the month of June was 1,506. The figure for July, 1924, is below that of 1923.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

Farmer Likes DAILY WORKER.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I am a Communist in a sea of bourgeois conservatism, and farm here near the southern end of Vancouver Island. This island is very mountainous and heavily timbered and is therefore, not particularly a farming country, but considerable dairy and poultry farming is carried on in the more fertile areas. The farmers here as elsewhere, are reduced to a very low level indeed, and all farms are heavily over capitalized.

Your fine paper, the DAILY WORKER, fills a long-felt want with me and the magazine section is especially admirable.

NATHAN P. DOUGAN.

Cheers for Business Manager.

All hats off for the DAILY WORKER! Today's papers came busting into town on the N. W. flyer at 7:10 a. m., nearly three hours ahead of the Chicago Tribune. Hats off! Bully! Fine! Put a red mark somewhere in the office for the business manager.

Say, boys, DAILY WORKERS sold like hot cakes.

Gee, I was in clover—three hours ahead of the Chi rag. Hurrah! That is the kind of action that kits the bull's-eye. You can't beat it. And think of it, on Monday, too. Hurrah!

The Tribune boys looked at me stunned. I wondered where they came from. I told them maybe it was an aeroplane went over. That is sure management.

Yours for the revolution,
GEORGE P. PARTRIDGE.

"Bob" Idol of Middle Class.

To the DAILY WORKER—I am trying to round up a few subs for you in the home town of "Bob," the Moses that is supposed to lead the people out of the wilderness. Altho I am not supporting the idol of the middle class, it would be the best thing that could possibly happen in this country if he should be elected, as it would bring about a clearer conception of the real class struggle to those that are poisoned with the middle class ideas.

Your position is correct in the present political fight, and I will do what I can to further the cause of a clear-cut working class fight.

Yours for a real workers' republic.
—W. L. Forrest.

Farmers Want Daily.

To the DAILY WORKER—I was with the Western Progressive Farmers (Chautauqua people) over part of the state. In the Big Bend country wheat belt the average crop is about three bushels per acre, and the farmers are bankrupt. However, some of these people will take the DAILY WORKER as soon as they are able to raise enough money.

I will do my best to work for the DAILY WORKER.

Yours for Communism and for the success of the Workers Party.—John H. Weppler.

Belgians Emigrate to France.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 18.—A large number of industrial workers here are emigrating to France. It has been estimated that as many as 25,107 workers have left for France during the year of 1924.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

RUBBER STAMPS AND SEALS
IN ENGLISH AND IN ALL FOREIGN LANGUAGES
INK, PADS, DATERS, RUBBER TYPE, Etc.
NOBLER STAMP & SEAL CO.
73 W. VanBuren St.
Phone Wabash 6680
CHICAGO
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO

Go to eat where all the rest 100% union men and women go
Deutche-Hungarian Restaurant
29 South Halsted St.
Pure Food, Good Service and reasonable prices our motto

BATTLE RAGES IN BOB'S CAMP IN NEBRASKA

Foster Speech in Omaha Will Expose Dissension

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 18.—The quarrels which have already developed in the "La Follette movement" in Nebraska threaten a lively session, if not a split, in the state convention of the conference for Progressive Political Action which has been called to meet at Grand Island on the 19th.

The dispute started at the first meeting called in Lincoln when the railroad brotherhood group attempted to exclude what is known as the "Beebe-Green-Taylor faction" on the ground that La Follette wanted no one who participated in the St. Paul convention. Taylor boasted that he had "led the farmers out of the St. Paul convention" and on the strength of this statement (a plain prevarication, as he led only himself out) he was allowed to attend in the convention along with Beebe and Green, who stuck through the St. Paul convention and accepted membership on the national committee of the Farmer-Labor Party.

Fight Over State Ticket.

Epithets and accusations between the opposing factions were immediately featured in the local swppapers. The Taylor faction made a march on its opponents by proceeding to nominate a state ticket. Meanwhile Frank Harrison, who had conducted "Hi" Johnson's unsuccessful race for the republican nomination, was appointed district campaign manager for La Follette with headquarters at Lincoln. Harrison immediately announced that there would be no state ticket of candidates on the La Follette ticket.

Taylor thereupon hastened into print with a ringing declaration to the effect that "no Californian is going to dictate to me, a Nebraskan!" (As St. Paul he complained of communistic dictation.)

Nebraska Communists Call Meeting

And so the fight goes merrily on. It is to be hoped that the educational value of this political quarrel will not be entirely lost upon the workers and farmers of Nebraska. The "La Follette Illusion" has blinded the eyes of the multitude in this agricultural state. Coupled with this are a set of election laws which make it impossible to place the names of Foster and Gitlow on the ballot. For this purpose, a convention of 500, who enroll in a new party, is required. Since the Workers Party does not have as yet that many members in the state, the Communist candidates are denied the right of political franchise.

The task of the Communists in Nebraska is thus made a difficult one. Denied the right of political franchise and compelled to struggle against this nauseating La Follette illusion, backed by politicians and labor fakers of the most discredited sort, Communist propaganda in Nebraska is beset with difficulties.

The task of communists is to overcome such obstacles, and so on August 31st, the workers in Omaha will have the opportunity to hear the Communist presidential candidate, William Z. Foster, tear the mask off the La Follette illusion. The unmasking will take place at the Eagles Hall, 17th and Cass Streets, at 8 P. M. Twenty-five cents will secure the right of admission to those who are lucky and get there early enough to get in.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Send in that Subscription Today.

Ashamed
It brought him untold misery; yet only he himself, was to blame

HE had neglected his teeth so long that he was actually ashamed to visit his dentist. And like so many people, he kept putting it off.

Finally he became so sensitive about their appearance that in conversation he habitually distorted his mouth in an effort to hide them from view.

A reasonable effort on his own part—combined with a little conscientious use of his tooth brush and the right dentifrice—might have saved him this humiliation. But he even neglected these things. He was uncomfortable wherever he went.

Listerine Tooth Paste cleans teeth a new way. At last a dentifrice has been found whose polishing ingredient that really cleans safely and without injury the enamel—a difficult problem, finally solved.

You will notice the improvement even in the first few days. And you know it is cleaning safely.

So the makers of Listerine, the safe antiseptic, have found for you also the really safe dentifrice.

What are your teeth saying about you today?—LAMBERT PHARMACAL CO., Saint Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE TOOTH PASTE
Large Tube—25 cents

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

IMPRISONED FOR SEEKING LABOR LAWS IN INDIA

Urging Reforms Crime in MacDonald Empire

The four prisoners condemned by the Judge at Cawnpore, India, to four years rigorous imprisonment on the charge of "seditious conspiracy" for having attempted to organize a political party of the Indian working class, are now denied the rights and status of political prisoners, previously accorded them.

Thinking perhaps that the world has forgotten these victims of Labor imperialism and bureaucratic tyranny, the Indian jail authorities have reduced the four prisoners to the status of ordinary criminals!

Hitherto they have been accorded certain privileges, such as the right to wear their own clothes, buy their own food, and receive a few harmless books and other comforts from their friends. Now even these small privileges are denied them and they are kept on ordinary prison fare, forced to do prison duty and to wear prison clothes.

We wonder if the British proletariat, so jealous of its own liberties, will permit this to pass unchallenged at the hands of the Labor government.

Urge British Workers Protest.

The only crime of these four young students is that of having advocated the full political, social and economic emancipation of the Indian workers and peasants by the organization of a political party based on certain fundamental economic demands, such as the right to organize, the recognition of trade unions, an eight-hour day, minimum wage, insurance against illness, old age and death, protection to women and child labor—in fact, the very things that the British Labor Party claims to inaugurate in Britain. These demands have been damned by the Cawnpore judgment as "conspiracy to overthrow the government of the king-emperor."

Immune From Law!

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Robert J. Owens, federal prohibition agent made a dreadful mistake and raided the home of one of Chief Justice Taft's relatives. Robert J. Owens is dismissed now, by order from Washington, and the liquor (pre-prohibition, genuine) taken from the home of Hugo Gilbert deFritsch has been returned to the family cellar. The owner's wife is a relative by marriage of William Howard Taft, "chief justice" of the United States Supreme Court.

LABOR SKATES FORM SCAB COUNCIL

(Continued from page 1)

the window trim or strike," was the order from Hutchinson, which started this stupid internecine war that is becoming national in scope. And if not stopped, it will involve the entire labor movement.

On July 10 this scab Carpenters' Union was organized and given B. T. C. working cards. Sidney Barton, a discredited Iron Worker, was made president. He occupied a similar position two years ago when a dual union was organized to smash the plasterers. So, as a president of a scab union, he has had experience.

Sidney Barton has stated publicly that he has been promised moral and financial assistance from 15 International Unions, and that similar scab Carpenters' Unions have been organized in Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Topeka, and Forth Worth. He is also responsible for the statement that Donlin, President of the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L., has advised Gompers that if the carpenters are not expelled from the A. F. of L. that the other building trades unions will withdraw.

Under Police Protection.

The members of this scab union are working on five of the biggest jobs in the city and are protected by the police. The carpenters stand alone in their fight. All of the other unions either openly support the B. T. C. in organizing this dual union, or silently acquiesce in this ruinous struggle under the camouflage of being neutral.

The Trade Union Educational League is not neutral, be they painters, carpenters, or sheet metal workers. They condemn this internecine war and openly accuse all those active in it, Donlin, Hutchinson, the B. T. S., and C. L. U. of Kansas City, et al, of playing the bosses' game for personal advancement. The only question with these officials is one of power, per capita tax. The greater the per capita tax, the greater this power. Not power of the union, but their own personal power. And in order to gain that, they are willing to jeopardize the interests of the workers.

With the centralization of the building industry, and the great change made in construction by modern improved methods, trade lines cross each other and unions by craft become contradictory, creating confusion among the workers, involving them in struggles against each other. With the present state of development, the craft form of organization stands in the way of the advancement of the workers. Their interest lies in the solidification of their ranks.

The present jurisdictional fight is a natural sequence, not only of the primitive form of organization, but of the total lack of social vision on the part of the rank and file as well as the leaders. It is doubtful if there is any other group of workers in the American labor movement so lacking in class consciousness and so imbued with capitalistic-democratic illusions as the building trades mechanics. Yet, when in conflict with their employers they are exceptionally militant.

The Autocrat Hutchinson.

Hutchinson, of the Carpenters, is one of the worst autocrats in the labor movement. He is the narrowest type of craft unionist. He believes in crushing every union that will not bend to his will. His attitude is rule or ruin. That is, within union circles. With the employers he is different. He believes in class collaboration in dealing with them, and jurisdictional disputes when dealing with his fellow unionists. "Get the window trim or strike," is his answer to the conflict with the sheet metal workers. "Set up an arbitration board," is his answer when in conflict with the boss, or else he will sign up an agreement, as he did in Chicago, without consulting the rank and file at all.

This tyrannical attitude, however, does not excuse the setting up of dual unions to scab on the carpenters. Dual unionism is not new in the American labor movement. The building trades, however, has been singularly free from this destructive maneuver. Now they are going the dual unionists one better—they have organized a dual union to scab on another union, while they preach about the sacredness of craft autonomy.

This inconsistency is natural. Years ago jurisdictional disputes were fought out by the crafts involved. The other unions contenting themselves by acting in a conciliatory manner. But now, with the centralization of the industry, the employers will not allow the other unions to be neutral. They demand protection against these jurisdictional fights. The result is that craft autonomy in its pure sense is broken down and the other unions are forced to take sides.

A board of jurisdictional awards is created, controlled by the employers. They decide against the carpenters. The carpenters quit the Building Trades Department, the local building trades council, and in many instances, as in Kansas City, the local Central Labor Union. It becomes a per capita as well as a jurisdictional dispute. The other unions organize against them. The result is what we see in Kansas City today.

The Trade Union Educational League agrees with the carpenters in refusing to accept this or any other decision from the Boston Jurisdictional Award, but from a different motive. The carpenters' officials refused to accept the award because it was not the one they wanted. The T. U. E. L. would refuse because it is a class collaboration scheme and therefore, detrimental to the interests of the workers. Amalgamation is the only solution for this problem from an organizational point of view.

The solution of the whole problem, however, is to turn the militant spirit of the building trades workers into revolutionary channels. To make them conscious of the class struggle. This is the work of the militants in the building trades. The class struggle versus class collaboration, is the issue.

Grand Rapids Labor Plans Fight Against Prison-Made Dresses

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 18.—The union label committee of the local Trade and Labor Council is beginning to wage an organized campaign to kill the sale of "Happy Home" dresses and aprons by the Wurzburg Dry Goods Company of this city. The goods are a typical prison product and organizations of every kind will be solicited to refrain from buying the garments. The conditions under which prison products are made will be given widest publicity and stress will be laid upon the necessity of demanding the union label.

Death Rate of Business.

There are 2,300,000 firms in business. Of these about 15,600 die every year. Forty-three businesses have died every day for the last ten years. The following table shows the average life of Manufacturing Businesses:

Flour and Grist Mills	10.7 years
Hosiery and Knit Goods	10.0 "
Clothing	9.2 "
Iron Works	8.6 "
Boots and Shoes	7.5 "
Cigars and Tobaccos	7.5 "
Lumber and Timber	7.0 "
Carriages and Wagons	7.0 "
PRINTING	6.7 "
Furniture	6.5 "
Brass, Copper and Bronze	5.4 "
Drugs	5.4 "
Automobile	5.0 "
Creamery Goods	5.0 "

The average life for the 14 leading lines is 7.2 years. The average for 213 other lines is 6.8 years; making the general average for manufacturing concerns 7.0 years.

Improve Your Property
Damaged Buildings Restored
LOANS TO IMPROVE
New Floors, Fronts, Shelving
MID-CITY CARPENTER SHOP
[illegible] Irving Ave. Sedgw. 1258

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

4841

4829

A GOOD SUIT FOR A SMALL BOY. 4829. This style of suit has been generally accepted as one that insures comfort and is boyish. The model here shown may be made of linen, ratine, seersucker, serge or jersey.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 3-year size requires 2¾ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is not received promptly.

4841. Chintz in a pretty pattern, dotted percale, gingham or lawn would be good for this style. It is also nice for tub silk, linen and ratine.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 4¾ yards of 32-inch material. For collar, pocket and sleeve facings of contrasting material ⅛-yard 40 inches wide is required. The width of the dress at the foot is 1¾ yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service
[illegible]

BLACK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MEET HERE

Negro Bankers Dine, Play Ball, Dance

While the exploitation of the Negro race by members of the prosperous middle class, black and white, is under fire from the members of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, in convention in New York, the National Negro Business League, an organization characterized by Claude A. Barnett of the Associated Negro Press as the "Black Chamber of Commerce," is preparing for its twenty-fifth anniversary session, to open Wednesday morning at the Wendell Phillips high school.

Here are the items on the agenda:

A banquet in honor of the executive officers on Tuesday night at the Vincennes hotel; a float parade Wednesday morning; a ball game among the delegates on Thursday; a public reception and ball at the Coliseum Friday night; a farewell dance at the University clubhouse on Friday.

Chief among the speakers will be Roscoe Simmons, nephew of Booker T. Washington and organizer among Negroes for the republican party.

Mr. Simmons was one of those who helped to quiet the audience of colored women at the biennial session of the National Association of Colored Women last week, when that organization was thrown into a turmoil by the militancy of a Negro who objected to the policy of segregation pursued in the government bureaus at Washington.

The National Negro Business League was founded in 1899 by Booker T. Washington, advocate of a policy of compromise and pacifism among the Negro race in its struggle against its oppressors.

Your Union Meeting

Third Tuesday, August 19, 1924

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting.
21	Bricklayers, 912 W. Monroe St.
58	Carpenters, Diversey and Sheffield.
141	Carpenters, 1023 E. 75th St.
272	Carpenters, Moose Hall, Chicago Heights.
1786	Carpenters, Springfield and 26th.
402	Engineers, 180 W. Washington St.
535	Firemen and Enginemen, 5433 S. Halsted St.
542	Federal Employes, Great Northern Hotel.
	Glove Workers' Joint Council, 1710 N. Winchester Ave., $130 p. m.
5	Hod Carriers, 225 E. 15th St., Chicago Heights.
6	Hod Carriers, 814 W. Harrison St.
81	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
	Metal Fire and Oilers, 357 N. N. Clark.
147	Painters, 1913 W. Randolph St.
180	Painters, N. E. cor. California and Madison.
184	Painters, 5414 S. Halsted St.
191	Painters, N. W. cor. State and 55th.
275	Painters, 220 W. Oak St.
521	Plasterers, Elliott and Ogden Ave.
502	Plasterers, Monroe and Perio Sts.
4	Printing and Die Stampers, 19 W. Adams St.
724	Railway Carmen, 75th and Drexel Ave.
1047	Railway Clerks, 9 S. Clinton St.
2219	Railway Clerks, 509 W. Washington.
703	Teamsters, 159 N. State St.
7	Waiters, 234 W. Randolph St.
111	Upholsterers Union, 180, W. Washington St.
39	Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Keddie and Ogden.
152	Amalgamated Clothing Workers, 1534 N. Robey St.

(Note: Unless otherwise stated, all meetings are at 8 p. m.)

Cal's Men Lie Again.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Two officers of the "company union" maintained by high-collar men in the post-office department have started a report that Coolidge has virtually assured them of favorable consideration, after election, of a scientifically drawn postal pay increase schedule. This rumor is repeated by the Republican national committee, and is inflated by the Hearst wire service to be the start for a generous postal salary move by the man who vetoed the salary bill on June 7.

Officers of the postal employes' national unions state that no assurance has been given by Coolidge, no conference has been proposed, none is to be expected, and no truce with Coolidge is to be made. The 200,000 postoffice workers are out to defeat Coolidge because he not only cheated them out of a fair wage, but slandered them into the bargain. They do not consider his word worthy of credence.

HOLD WORLD WOMEN'S CONGRESS

(Continued from Page 1.)

all countries and to take back with them the decisions, advice and the inspiration of the conference.

Clara Zetkin, the old war horse, now weak and white, but still alive with her unconquerable idealism and enthusiasm, is the founder of the international women's movement. For thirty years she has been a ceaseless worker in the battle of the proletariat, against the exploiter, and the women's international is one of her latest and finest achievements.

The peasant women all over Russia, from the Ukraine and the Caucasues, from the Volga and the Don Bas, were represented. They told of the educational and cultural work among the peasant women, who formerly could not read or write, and were as much without rights as the women of the orient.

Women Praise Proletarian Revolution.

The Russian proletarian revolution has completely changed the status of women, both industrial and peasant, all over Russia. The rights of the women in Russia are exactly the same as those of the men, and this means not only before the law, but in the shops, factories and trade unions. There are special laws for working women, such as the prohibition of night work and dangerous work, and maternity laws providing two months' rest before and after birth. Therefore the 22 Russian delegates have much to tell to their sisters from bourgeois countries, where the power is still in the hands of profit-gorged and blood-stained capitalists.

The Women of the Far East.

Comrade Casparava, in charge of the eastern section, gave a detailed report on the problems and struggles of the proletarian women in the near and far east. She said in China and Japan there is complete disenfranchisement of women, and a state of virtual slavery exists because of the illiteracy of the women and their absolute subjection to the heads of the household. In China women are bought and sold, and upon marriage become the complete property of their husbands. In Japan a woman is punished with thirty days' imprisonment for participating in a political movement. Thus the fight in these countries takes the form of a fight for the emancipation of women from barbarous marital and suffrage laws; the fight for education, the stamping out of prostitution, as well as equality with men.

But even in these backward countries the women have already resorted to strikes in industry, altho in Japan at present there are only 5,000 organized women. In November and December three textile strikes took place in which 8,000 women took part, 70 per cent of the Japanese peasants are hired laborers and semi-proletarians. In China in 1923 there were 35 strikes involving 40,000 women.

The problems affecting the women of other eastern countries like India and Korea are practically the same; that is the fight for education and the emancipation of women from ancient and barbarous customs.

Problems Facing Western Women.

In western countries, particularly Germany, we find a different situation. Here the feminist fight is a thing of the past. Here it is a question of the class struggle. The German proletariat is on the eve of taking power. The German women both in industry and in the home must be mobilized for the final struggle. The German proletarian women must stand solidly in the ranks with labor and by their numbers and power add to the fighting capacity of the entire working class.

In Germany, France, England and America, the question is—therefore one of organization. The question of the shop nuclei becomes one of paramount importance. The shop nuclei must be organized and spurred on to activity. They must begin at once the work of awakening the self interest of women in the shop. The question of wages, hours, shop conditions, equal pay for equal work with the men, shop committees etc., must be brot before the workers. The Communist women nucleus in a shop must be in constant touch with the women's committee of the party and this, in turn, with the central committee.

Tenant Leagues and Co-operatives.

Communist women must also form fractions in such proletarian organizations as tenant leagues and co-operatives and work actively within them, in the struggle; at the same time showing the workers the necessity for even greater and greater efforts toward organization.

The conference discussed and adopted the women's delegates meetings as one of the best means for reaching the masses in the factories, awakening their self interest and pointing out to them the need for organization and class consciousness.

How Meetings Are Conducted.

The following method is used in the delegates' meetings: The Communist nucleus in a shop after a certain amount of canvassing and personal contact with the women workers calls a meeting for discussion. Out of this meeting should be elected a committee built around the Communist nucleus to where all shop grievances should be taken. The committee should arrange, thereafter, regular meetings and get into contact with other shop committees for joint meetings of delegates elected at their shop meetings. The delegates should hold office for several months. Then the delegates elected in each shop contact is established with all the women workers in a factory district, thus reaching the masses of women in industry.

At the conference all the difficulties of this procedure in capitalist countries were pointed out, but since the move for the seizure of power will come out of the factories. The dangers involved must not deter us from organizing the millions of women in industry in the best way we know.

"Comrade John Pepper, C. I. representative, must be given credit for his clear arguments for the delegate system, about which there was considerable misunderstanding. The Russian delegates were at first inclined to believe, that, while the women's delegate system has worked splendidly and with flaming spontaneity among Russian women, since the element of power, that the plan would be difficult or impossible in capitalist countries. The delegate system won out and is incorporated in the organizational thesis.

Factory Workers Greet Conference.

Women delegates from a number of Russian factories greeted the conference. With great enthusiasm they told the foreign delegates of women's work in Russia, what the revolution had brought to them and their interest in revolutionary work abroad. It is nothing short of miraculous to hear these women of factory, shop and field speak with knowledge and confidence at large meetings of foreign delegates. They were answered with storms of applause and a pledge of the conference to take up more keenly than ever, the work or organising the world proletarian women for the proletarian revolution.

Lenin's Widow Attends Conference.

At the conference appeared a little woman with great calm eyes and gray hair. Her black cotton dress was almost the same. To hear her speak is a delight and to see her once is never to forget her. She is Krupskayia (wife of Lenin) and her big heart and fine mind fit her ideally for the place she holds—organizing homes for homeless children.

Krupskaya spoke of Lenin's great faith in the masses and the proletarian instinct. Lenin said that future society will be built out of the collective will and the collective life of the masses who free to think and act will by their own creativeness organize the new world.

"To the masses"—that is the slogan of the congress of the Communist international—that is the slogan of the Women's Conference; that is the slogan of the Youth International. Reach the masses of the workers. Awaken their understanding of the class struggle. Show them the hopelessness of capitalism. Teach them the spirit of solidarity. Teach them that in organization lies strength! The victory of the entire working class is approaching, but we must prepare for it; we must be ready to take power and to hold power when that time comes. Three great tasks lie before us. "Organize, organize and organize."

YELLOW PRESS JOINS ATTACK ON MYERSCOUGH

Bosses Sheets in Fear of Progressive Miner

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 18.—Capitalist papers in the Pennsylvania mining districts have come out in great big headlines, screaming "A Radical Attempts to Invade Miners' Union." John B. Gallagher, international auditor of the United Mine Workers' union and reactionary labor leader, in panic stricken frenzy, has issued two printed circulars of warning to miners. All because Thomas Myerscough, a progressive miner, was seen at a union meeting of Mineral Springs colliery, Local No. 113.

Stanley Edmunds, former president of the Woodward Colliery Local No. 699, enlisted the services of the officials of the Mineral Springs in a search for Myerscough. The officials of the Mineral Springs, after a thoro search, made life a little more comfortable for the terrified reactionary leaders when they assured Edmunds that Myerscough was not employed there.

All this publicity that is given Thomas Myerscough has started the miners thinking, and the rank and file miners are more anxious than ever to hear what Myerscough has to say.

BOOKS OF THE MONTH

The World's Trade Union Movement.
A course of ten lectures on this most important subject, by A. Losovsky. $ 50

A Short History of the American Labor Movement.
A brief and simple summary of the aims and achievements of the labor movement from the end of the 18th century to the present day, by M. Beard.. 1.50

The Great Steel Strike, and its Lessons.
The story of the strike lead by William Z. Foster; illustrated. By W. Z. Foster (reduced price) 1.00

The Proletcult.
What is this proletarian education? What is its aim and how does it seek to accomplish it? by Eden and Cedar Paul 2.50

The Next Step.
A plan for Economic World Federation, by Scott Nearing. Paper, 60 cents; cloth 1.00

Americanism, a World Menace.
An exposure of the mottres and methods of politicians, big business men and their creatures in the U. S. and a warning of their danger to the whole world, by W. T. Colyer. Prefaced by Tom Mann 1.50

Looking at Life.
A civilized attitude toward life is revealed in this book, by Floyd Dell 2.00

The Goose Step.
A study of American education. Who owns the colleges and why? Are your sons and daughters getting education or propaganda and whose propaganda? by Upton Sinclair.
Paper 1.00
Cloth 2.00

Crucibles of Crime.
"One of the most shocking books imaginable. It should be read by everybody," says N. Y. Globe. By Jacob F. Fishman 2.00

The Goslings.
A study of the American schools, by Upton Sinclair.
Paper 1.00
Cloth 2.00

First Time in History.
The Russian Revolution as seen by Anna L. Strong 2.00

Shall It Be Again?
America voted peace and wanted peace but America went to war. How? Why? And shall it be again? By John Kenneth Turner 2.50

LITERATURE DEPARTMENT
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year: $2.50...6 months $2.00...3 months

By mail (in Chicago only):
$8.00 per year $4.50...6 months $2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL } Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE }
MORITZ J. LOEB Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Shall Courts Choose Union Officers?

When Judge Hurley opens the case of the Industrial Workers of the World in the county court today, the issue that will really be raised is whether the officers of a union shall be chosen by capitalist judges.

One group in the Industrial Workers of the World has appealed to the machinery of capitalist democracy, against another group in the Industrial Workers of the World and asks for an injunction on behalf of one against the other.

If the injunction is granted, what will be the attitude of the members of the I. W. W. who find new officials chosen for them by Judge Hurley? A partial answer to this question is found in a resolution adopted by the Building Construction Workers Industrial Union No. 330 of the I. W. W., Chicago branch, which says on this point:

"That all industrial unions, branches, and members refuse to recognize any and all officials appointed by any or all capitalist judges."

Every class-conscious worker will applaud this decision of the Building Construction Workers. No organization of workers that makes the slightest pretensions to revolutionary or working class principles, can for one moment accept the interference of a capitalist court in its internal affairs. Injunctions against workers were made to be disobeyed. A thousand times is this true of an injunction that attempts to name the officials of a union.

Schlossberg Stands Up

Joseph Schlossberg, secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, has taken his stand against the betrayal to the LaFollette bi-partisan combination. And as he rises to speak we see a labor official who stands head and shoulders above all his calculating and opportunist associates. Of all prominent leaders with revolutionary antecedents, Schlossberg is the only one outside the Communist movement who has refused to follow Debs and Gompers into the quagmire of capitalist politics.

At the time when the line-up for the campaign was not yet clear, and when the Hillman administration was walking the tight rope of non-committance, they very cleverly played up Schlossberg's opposition to entanglements with a "third party" of the bourgeoisie as a means of sabotaging the St. Paul convention. They made use of Schlossberg's known integrity and the extensive trust placed in him by the membership in order to pave the way for their present surrender to LaFollette without even the "third party" attachment.

But Schlossberg's determined opposition has proved stronger than the cleverness of a Hillman. The membership of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America will support Schlossberg in his denunciation of the LaFollette swindle. The plans of the pussy-footing aspirants for respectability in the administration of the A. C. W. of A. will come to a smash-up on the revolutionary aspirations of the rank and file of the union.

Socialists Support Small

Did Debs know that his endorsement of LaFollette was going to take him into the camp of Len Small, head of the republican party ticket in the State of Illinois? Whether he knew it or not, that is what has happened. When the issue of LaFollette was brought into the Chicago Federation of Labor at its Sunday meeting, it carried with it—as it does practically everywhere—the principle of endorsing not only LaFollette but other capitalist candidates generally, in this case Len Small in particular.

The Communists made the fight against the Small-LaFollette combination. The issue was a clear one that the workers can understand. Whether the worker is clear enough in his own mind as yet to break with LaFollette and Small, when his official leaders are pulling him in the other direction, still he understands and sympathizes with the Communists. How pitifully different is the position of the socialists into which Debs has helped to lead them!

Committed to LaFollette, the socialists still pretend that they will not go into the republican party with Small. But when faced with the issue in the Chicago Federation of Labor, of joining the Communist fight against the betrayal, or helping the Len Small forces, they unhesitatingly spoke and voted for the endorsement of Small. The socialists have joined the republican party in Illinois.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Restoring World Trade

Tho the ink is not yet dried on the Dawes pact, many financial experts are in a race to pronounce the acceptance of the new reparations scheme as a step heralding the advent of a new, vigorous revival in world trade.

The failure of the London conference to break up in the fashion of several of its predecessors will, no doubt, serve to delay the overthrow of the Herriot ministry in France and the MacDonald government in England. As to its effect on the political situation in Germany, one must hazard a guess with far more caution. Then the likely prying loose of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia from their militarist alliance with imperialist France does not appear just now to be a force making for European political stability.

Without doubt the first effects of a huge Anglo-American loan to German industrialists will be towards a revival in German industry. If Germany is to foot the bills and mortgages fixed for her by the Dawes plan, this revival will have to be strong enough to enable her to export a sufficient quantity of her commodities which will bring about for the Reich a favorable international trade balance. In the last resort international loans and debts are met in the terms of a transfer of commodities.

Granted, then, that the Dawes plan works to perfection in bringing about an industrial revival in Germany. What of the effect of such a revival on American and British industry? What will the revived, increased German competition in the Latin-American and Asiatic markets mean to American manufacturers and exporters? What will a new and steady flow of German commodities into the European continental market mean to British tradesmen and industrialists?

If the German revival is real enough to enable it to export sufficiently for its payments to the General Reparations Agent, then its effect on American and British industry will be detrimental. Since the declaration of war in 1914 American and British capitalists have had the world markets all to themselves, with practically insignificant German competition. There is no use in blinking the fact that a restored powerful German industry will compel these capitalists to cede considerable ground to their German competitors. At home, in England and America, this conflict for new and old markets between the various national groups of capitalists will mean only lessened production. At best, therefore, the Dawes plan will tend to produce a shifting rather than an increase in the volume of world trade and industry.

Colonizing Europe

The true economic import for the world of the Dawes Plan is to be found, not in the "revival of German industry," but in the conditions under which this revival is sought. German industry is to be revived under conditions of denationalization of the railroads, hegemony over the German financial system by an inter-Allied central bank, and the loading of the burden of the plan upon the working masses.

Translated into plainer words, this means that Germany is to become an industrial colony under the joint administration of the allied powers united by the leadership of J. P. Morgan. The dangers of German competition to allied capitalism are to be avoided by reducing German industry to the the position of subordinate units of British, French and American industry. German capitalists are made silent partners in world capitalism by giving them a small share of what they sweat from the German masses. The products of German industry are then to be available for the allied capitalists, not in the shape of competition, but in the form of a tremendous weapon for beating down wages and living conditions of British, French, and American workers and destroying their labor organizations.

Will this gigantic scheme of world imperialism work out as Morgan and Dawes think? No, it will not. For the fundamental contradictions lying at the basis of the capitalist system are working untouched within the whole Dawes plan, which intensifies them rather than diminishes them. And, above all, the pressure that is called for upon the working masses, by the operation of the Dawes plan, guarantees the rapid growth of the forces of revolution, their crystalization under the leadership of the Communist International, and the European revolution in the not distant future.

How the capitalist press howls when American Communist delegates go to Moscow to confer with their comrades of other countries on the best way of waging the class struggle to a successful conclusion. But when the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, J. P. Morgan and other American bankers and military men go to London to confer with capitalists from other countries on the best means to exploit the workers of the world, songs of joy are sung over the prospect.

The international bankers, after their success in putting the Dawes Plan over on Germany, would like to clean up on Russia. How they would relish getting their hands on the enormous wealth contained in that great country. But the Red Army and the Communist parties of Europe stand in the way.

Ramsay MacDonald believes that the London conference made for peace. The war mind was defeated, he said. But while Ramsay was talking thusly, his warships were hastening to Egypt to shoot peace into the revolting Egyptians. Ramsay is for peace where the capitalists want it.

A new member for the Workers Party is a new recruit to the revolutionary army. Become a recruiting sergeant for Communism.

Indictment of Campbell Hits "Labor" Government

(Continued from Page 1.)

headquarters, and had arrested John R. Campbell, the editor of the "Workers' Weekly," official organ of the Communist Party of Great Britain. Campbell, who was editor of "The Worker," of Glasgow, the weekly British organ of the Red International of Labor Unions, had just come down to London to edit the "Workers' Weekly," owing to the fact that Palme Dutt, its regular editor, had been ordered into the country for a rest, after a severe nervous breakdown.

A Capitalist Charge.

The charge against Campbell is that of "seducing members of His Majesty's Forces from their allegiance." The charge is based on two articles, appearing respectively in the numbers of the "Workers' Weekly" dated July 25 and August 1. These were the special anti-war numbers. In the July 25 number there was an "Open Letter to Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen." In this letter, the members of the forces were urged neither to fight in capitalist wars, nor against the workers in industrial disputes, but to fight with the workers against the master class. They were also expressly urged to refuse to fire upon workers, if so ordered, in industrial disputes. The article in the issue of August 1 was of a similar character.

Today, at the Bow Street Police Court, Campbell appeared before the magistrate for his hearing. Formal evidence was offered by Detective-Sergeant Parker, chief of the Special Branch (the anti-Red section) of Scotland Yard, of having arrested Campbell and of having seized and carried away documents from the Communist headquarters.

Under $1000 Bail.

Thereupon the Prosecution requested an adjournment of seven days, which was granted. Bail, in two sureties of one hundred pounds each, was allowed, and the necessary formalities having been complied with, Johnnie Campbell—as he is known to hundreds of friends and admirers—limped briskly from the Court to the street, where a small army of press photographers awaited him.

When I say that Johnnie has hundreds of friends and admirers, I am not using an empty complimentary phrases. Campbell is well-known, especially among the Scotch workers. He is known nationally among the militant workers as editor of the fighting "Worker," and he is known to the workers of his native city of Glasgow, and to the Scotch workers generally, as a courageous and effective organizer and speaker. When the stalwart workers of the Clyde heard of Johnnie's arrest, I fear their comments were of such a nature as to prevent their literal reproduction in any public journal.

Campbell is a bright, clean-shaven man, of slightly under medium height. He is 29 years old. He limps because both his feet were blown off in the war.

Was War Hero.

That is the irony of it! During the war, Johnnie performed an act of cool gallantry which won him notice and reward. He leaped forward to pick up a German bomb and hurl it back towards the enemy. At the moment he got there, it exploded, and both Johnnie's feet were gone! He walks without a cane, the stumps of his feet—the heels are left—thrust into ordinary shoes; and all that shows of his injury is a slight limp in his quick gait.

And this is not all; for Johnnie also received a bullet thru the neck while fighting for democracy.

And this man, who is being charged with seducing the allegiance of soldiers, has the coveted Military Cross, as well as a string of medals gained in action! It will be an interesting trial, when it gets going!

Lansbury Goes Bond.

The two bondsmen for Campbell were Edgar Lansbury, son of the well-known George Lansbury, and Alexander Gossip, veteran general secretary of the National Amalgamated Furnishing Trades Association. Edgar Lansbury is a member of the Communist Party; Gossip is not.

In the meantime, the British Communist Party is concerned in securing another printer for their official organ. They state that their present printers, after a visit from Scotland Yard, cancelled their contract with the party. It looks like being a tough job to find another printer.

Workers Disgusted With Mac.

Coming at this time, when Left-wing dissatisfaction is growing in the Labor Party and the trade unions, the arrest and trial of Johnnie Campbell should have a tremendous effect. The Communist Party of Great Britain believes that this example of Labor Party Government tactics will alienate hundreds of militant workers, who will rally to the Communist Party as being the only real expression in Britain of a fighting revolutionary policy. Stress is laid on the fact that, since the war ended, there were no prosecutions of the Communist leaders or press by the old capitalist governments. It was left to the Labor government to resume the good old game of Red-baiting.

Next week, I hope to send to the DAILY WORKER an account of the trial.

NOTE:—Since this was written by our correspondent, the news has arrived—see DAILY WORKER, August 14—that Comrade John Ross Campbell has been freed by the MacDonald government due to the pressure of the left wing trade unionists of England.—Ed.

An Unsavory Saviour - -

By Jay Lovestone

THE recent sessions of the London Reparations Conference have brought many American diplomats and bankers into prominence. Before Europe and the rest of the world fully pays the effects of the decisions arrived at by this gathering of the saviors of capitalist imperialism, many more of these Yankee lords of dollar diplomacy will be in the public eye.

Who Is James Logan?

Just now there is one man who is in the forefront and who is not so well known. This man is James A. Logan. The foreign dispatches have time and again declared that Mr. Logan and Ambassador Kellogg, the unofficial American observers, have saved the conference from going to pieces.

Most of the American "observers" and performers need no introduction to the workers and poor farmers of this country. To the capitalist governments of Europe the banking and powerful corporate connections of nearly all of our government officials and bosses serve as the passports.

Ordinarily the question who is John Doe or Jack Roe in diplomacy has no special interest to the American working masses. But today the tale is quite different. Here we have a man playing so important a role in the development of the foreign policy of the strongest employers' government and yet he is one unknown to the great masses of the city and rural areas.

Careful investigation will shed welcome light in replying to the above-raised question.

An International Pawnbroker.

James A. Logan in every way represents that type of American diplomat that is just now coming into his own. Mr. Logan is a skilled, experienced, well-trained, international pawnbroker of American capitalism. Mr. Logan has an alert ear for capitalist politics and a keen eye for capitalist militarism. If it is true that the politician is one who has an ear to the ground and that a statesman is one who has his eye to the future, then this unofficial American observer at the London Conference is the very personification of the soldier-statesman combination, the very ideal type in whom American imperialism must and will pin its faith in order to extend its sway over the world's resources.

James A. Logan talks little and does much. To the European diplomats, bankers and government officials Colonel James A. Logan is no novice. He is an old-timer at the game of serving the billionaire folks back home while occupying the honorable post in the Washington government's foreign department.

Ten Years of "Unofficial Observing."

Colonel Logan has been functioning as an "unofficial observer" for our imperialists for the last ten years. From September, 1914, till the time the United States officially entered the war on the side of the Allies, Colonel Logan was the unofficial observer of the Wilson administration, the Chief of the American Military Mission, with the French Army. Upon America's official declaration of war against Germany, the "unofficial" Colonel Logan became the official Assistant Chief of Staff at the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces.

After the Armistice was signed Colonel Logan went back to his unofficial capacity and status. This time the Colonel developed a new specialty in rendering service par excellence to the Wall Street financial gourmands. Soon Logan became the principal aid to Herbert Hoover in the so-called relief affairs in Europe. Colonel Logan now assumed the job of field-directorship of the intricate and sinister activities which, under the guise of humanitarism, were responsible for fanning the flames of counter-revolution and spreading the plague of capitalist reaction over the continent.

A White-Guard Savior.

Colonel Logan was the brains of the Hoover relief machine which organized the successful counter-revolution against the Hungarian Soviet Republic and which was responsible for the bloody outrages perpetrated by the Rounanian and Horthey white guards against the workers and farmers of Soviet Hungary.

Our "unofficial observer" is a bear at work for the gangmen of international capitalism. While hiding his dastardly campaign against the class-conscious workers and exploited peasants behind the hypocritical relief activities of Herbert Hoover, Colonel Logan also served as the European representative of the United States Grain Corporation. In this instance, Colonel Logan was charged with the all-important task of co-oridnating the operations of America's swarm of so-called technical advisers to the various puppet states and governments that arose as a result of the infamous Versailles Treaty.

In other words, this job, stripped of all its diplomatic camouflage, had just one purpose: Colonel Logan was the adviser and overseer of these little weakling governments in order to save the exploiting classes of the various areas involved from Bolshevism, from Communism, from the rule of the working and farming masses thru Soviet Republics.

Officially and on paper the American capitalist government, thru Colonel Logan, was rendering humanitarian aid to these mushroom militarist republics. Unofficially and actually, in the field, the American capitalist government, thru the same Colonel Logan, was giving financial and technical help and direction to these tyrannical cliques ruling by the grace of the bayonets from the Quay d'Orsay, the gold from Wall Street and at the expense of the blood and misery of millions of defenseless workers and farmers in Central and Southern Europe.

James A. Logan—Big Stick Statesman

The Colonel was also the American representative in the financial and communication sections of the Supreme Economic Council when that imperialist body had as its supreme function the organization and maintenance of the "cordon sanitaire," the ghastly starvation blockade against Soviet Russia.

For two years Logan was the adviser to the American Relief Administration of Herbert Hoover in Soviet Russia. This is the organization which the Soviet Government was compelled to watch so carefully in order to prevent the spread of counter-revolution at a time when the Russian masses were struggling against a most devastating famine.

At the close of 1919 Colonel Logan was made assistant American unofficial delegate to the Reparations Commission. When the full unofficial delegate, Roland W. Boyden, resigned last year, Colonel Logan was called on to take the latter's place. Today he is filling it admirably—for the big bankers.

Colonel Logan is also a graduate from the Army War College. He began to wield a big stick for the ruling class in the days of McKinley by serving as a captain of volunteer troops on duty in the Philippines.

Colonel Logan is that type of unsavory savior of capitalism that the American imperialists are now placing in every country in order to hasten and insure their conquest of the world's resources and industries.

IMPERIALISM IN THE NEAR EAST

Federated Press Review.)

The Great Betrayal by Edward Hale Bierstadt is frankly anti-Turkish propaganda against the ratification of the treaty concluded between the United States and Turkey. The author presents a great deal of data regarding the near eastern situation, particularly the much exploited Armenian questions and the burning of Smyrna. Everything is anti-Turkish and one-sided.

The author is anxious to prove that the United States naval officers and others who have shown pro-Turkish attitude have taken that stand to secure oil concessions. He also suggests that there is a well-organized pro-Turkish propaganda in the United States. Both charges may well be true. However, he forgets to mention the anti-Turkish propaganda carried by various dubious agencies and the churches.

The Turks are interested in developing a pan-Turanian movement to unite the racial elements in the near east and central Asia. Pan-Turanianism is as dangerous as Pan-Slavism, a state not for love of the poor Armenian alone but to check the Pan-Turanian movement.

"The mere possibility of a Pan-Turania is a danger to be considered very seriously, and guarded against with utmost care," Bierstadt writes. "By setting up an independent Armenian state from the Black sea to the Mediterranean not only would justice be done Armenia, but a barrier would be erected which would reduce this chance to practically nothing."

It is rather unjust for the author to classify the people of Asia as barbarians because of atrocities committed by the Turks on Armenians. Without pleading for the Turks, it should be considered that Christian peoples allowed and legally justified the Amritsar Massacre in India, the concentration camps in South Africa. They have accorded very unpleasant treatment to the Jews all over the world and tolerated the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. They are not in a position to class the people of Asia as barbarians.

Where the author has dealt with economic imperialism and its influences in the near east he has done very well. Freed from his nationalist and narrow religious conceptions, he might have come to the conclusion that not Turkey but imperialism and the economic order is the cause of near eastern and other troubles.—T. D.

The Great Betrayal, by Edward Hale Bierstadt; Robert McBride & Co., New York, $2.50.

The Modern Way

By HENRY GEORGE WEISS

Jesus the worker came back to earth
And he walked in the marts of trade;
His feet were sore, and the clothes he wore
Were the kind that were "ready made."
He stopped for a job at the labor pen
But the masters thought him old;
His beard was long and he wasn't strong
Enough to coin them gold.
Jesus the worker starved day by day
In the heart of the cities' greed,
And his bowed, gaunt form, and his clothes all worn
Were the voices that spoke his need;
But the churchmen passed him and never saw
The dainty drunk aside,
And the city "can" for the "son of man"
Was the only place to bide.
Jesus the worker went tramping the roads
And pleading the rights of men
To work and bread—they dubbed him a "red"
And shipped him to the "pen."
The guards all call him a desperate guy,
A tough nut to the core.
Two years on jute—the lousy brute!
He won't last two years more!

Send in that Subscription Today.

THE RURAL TOBOGGAN

Nowadays it is an event of genuine rareness to be treated to an accurate or truthful view of agricultural conditions. The last report on the economic condition of the farming population, issued by the Agricultural Foundation of Sears-Roebuck and Company, is a notable exception to the recent literature on this subject. Its contents merit the attention of the workers and bankrupt farmers, particularly in view of the countless rural remedies being peddled by political hawkishers these days.

For many years farmers with varied forms of title to some land, depended for the relatively certain portion of their income upon the growing land values. For instance, between 1910 and 1920 there was a huge increase in this direction. During the war period land prices more than doubled. In other words, the agricultural industry saw an increase in the price of its land and shared in the general rise of prices experienced by the manufacturers of industrial commodities.

But for the past nine years this source of the farmers' income, which has been most stable and has counterbalanced the losses and stagnation of his receipts from the production of dairy and animal products or sundry crops, has been on the toboggan. The price of land has not been a source of income, and has ceased being an asset to the farmers for nearly ten years. As a matter of fact, all the increases that farm lands have experienced in price after 1916 have already been squeezed out of them.

Today the farmers must meet their ends out of the income received by them in the production of crops and other items. In this the farmers are at a special disadvantage for agriculture, being less developed than industry, is bound to suffer in the exchange of commodities. Besides, the tremendous advantages enjoyed by the owners of the industrial means of production and exchange turn their centralized control of the railways, the grain elevators, the shipping facilities, put the agricultural producers at still greater disadvantages.

It is obvious that not until the workers on the land and the workers in the mills and mines get together to own and operate collectively all the means of production, agricultural as well as industrial, will the rural masses be spared from their present hardships arising out of the contradiction between the private capitalist ownership of the machinery of production and exchange and its social use.

Our present social inequality materializes the upper class, vulgarizes the middle class, and brutalizes the lower class.—Mathew Arnold.

The absurdities of capitalism are becoming as apparent every day, to even its own champions as its iniquities have been apparent for decades past to socialists.

Nothing useful can be poured into a vessel that is already full of what is useless. We must first empty out what is useless.—Tolstoi.

Society is composed of two classes—those who have more appetite than dinner, and those who have more dinner than appetite.—G. B. Shaw.

No pretence can be so ridiculous as that the laws were designed as a protection for the poor and weak against the rich and the powerful.—Burke.

He that will not reason is a bigot; he that cannot reason is a fool; he that dare not reason is a slave.—Drummond.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 26 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 131. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

RISE AGAINST FASCISM IN ITALY

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THERE is about as much harmony between the LaFollette and Socialist party forces in New York as there would be between two cats tied together by a rope and strung over a fance one on each side. The East New York Independent Voters' League endorsed the candidacy of Daniel Gutman for member of the Assembly in the 22nd Brooklyn District. The socialists have named a candidate for this same district. Here in Illinois Len Small is flirting with General Hell an' Maria Dawes and the socialists are on pins and needles.

• • •

THE socialist party leaders are very much at home in the company of Mr. Dawes. But the workers see in him a strikebreaker. In fact Dawes is the angel guardian of the socialists of Europe. He is the chosen instrument of the international bankers at this moment to bring about capitalist normalcy in Europe, and in the European socialists, Mr. Dawes found willing allies. But for the requirements of political expediency, the socialists would not attack Dawes for his strikebreaking speeches. Half a dozen American labor fakers can show him a strikebreaking record that would knock his pipe out of his mouth. Len Small can associate with Dawes and still have support of the labor fakers. The labor fakers are not able to frighten Small. The governor has them where he wants them and they dare not squawk. The socialist party must go along with the political burglars no matter where they feel like roosting.

• • •

THE latest news from the political front is to the effect that the famous Dennis E. Batt, editor of the Detroit Labor News and member of the Proletarian Party, is running for Congress in the State of Michigan on the Republican ticket. Batt is one of the gentlemen who thot the Workers Party was not revolutionary enuf. From the P. P. to the G. O. P.! Yet it is not surprising. These petrified dogmatists who are suffering from mental congestion as a result of swallowing intellectual food they cannot digest, usually wind up in the enemy's camp or else become cynical addicts of some "anti" philosophy, which permits them to sit down and watch the class struggle muddle along, while the cynics grin at the stupidity of the workers. The monthly sheet of Batt's party, the Proletarian, winds up a stupid collection of political rubbish and clumsy lies with the slogan: "In this year of political confusion the Proletarian Party hews to the revolutionary line let the votes fall where they may." Of course it is a case of "sour grapes." The wee party led by the ex-cobbler, has neither the membership nor the energy to make a campaign.

• • •

THE Socialist Labor Party is another freak organization that hates the capitalist class much less than it hates the revolutionists. This is typical of all reformers. The S. L. P. appreciates the services of the capitalists in preparing the ground for the coming of socialism according to the constitution and it only fears that the confounded revolution will not wait long enuf, at least until Arnold Petersen, the "Silent Cal" of the S. L. P. is over the draft age. This unknown pie card artist would have no excuse to draw his $50.00 a week if the party that supports him did

(Continued on page 2.)

28 STRIKERS IN CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS

Belleville Clothing Workers Firm

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 19.—The courtroom of Judge Crow here was filled to overflowing by miners and industrial workers at the opening of the trial for contempt of court of 28 striking girl members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and local labor leaders.

The workers are charged with contempt of court in violating the injunction of the labor-hating judge which was granted to the Charles Meyers plants factory against which over 100 girls are striking.

Cop Refuses Dirty Work.

A policeman, Henry Reichling, is also on trial for contempt, following his refusal to do the dirty work of the clothing manufacturers and the St. Clair county officials.

The 100 girls struck last week after Samuel Auerback, vice president of the company, refused to confer with Local Union 107, A. C. W. of A., following the expiration of the six months' agreement.

A few days ago a free-for-all fight was started by Auerback when his strike breakers roughly handled the pickets. They fought back vigorously until now the strike is 100 per cent effective, and the factory is closed down.

Boss Weakening.

Auerback, seeing the situation he is in, tried to effect a compromise with the striking girls last night without success. The wages paid to the strikers, ranging from between $7 and $20 a week, is one of the points of controversy. Auerback is trying to institute the open shop.

Despite the fact that the Amalgamated is not a part of the American Federation of Labor, the local group of that body, the Belleville Central Trades and Labor Council, meets tonight to discuss the strike, and the conference will be addressed by Karl Reeve, labor reporter for the DAILY WORKER.

A. F. of L. Co-Operates.

Among those cited for contempt are included Al Tell of the Common Laborers' Union, William Christopher, business agent of the Trades Council; Winter of the teamsters, William Zinger of the Amalgamated and the girl leaders of the strike.

Police Chief Charles Arbergast was obliged to serve the writs himself, when Henry Reichling declined to aid the scabs and their employer.

The entire labor movement of Belleville is supporting the fight of the striking girls.

Imperialist Route Near Completion.

MEXICO CITY, August 19.—Only four hundred miles of tracks are lacking to complete the railway from New York to Buenos Aires, an important factor in the American Empire.

BELLEVILLE BOSSES FAIL TO BREAK UP AMALGAMATED STRIKE

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 19.—The trial of 28 strike leaders and labor men now progressing here in the St. Claire county courthouse is the third effort of the Charles Meyers & Co. plant to break the strike of the Amalgamated by court action.

Two weeks ago William Zinger, Arthur Schwalb and Floyd Snyder were arrested, charged with rioting, and are now out on $1,000 bail each. Their only offense was picketing.

Last Wednesday three girls, Florence Conklin, Irene Keim and Lucille Boyce, were arrested, charged with assault after the riot in which 25 were hailed to court for having violated the anti-picketing injunction. The girls are also out on bail.

DISRUPTION OF NEGRO MEET TO BE ATTEMPTED

Minor Exposes Surprise to be Sprung Today

By ROBERT MINOR
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—I have learned today that a further attempt toward disrupting the international convention of Negro peoples, now in session here, will be made Tuesday morning in the form of a letter written by a former official of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, under the auspices of which the convention is held.

The ex-official is Gabriel M. Johnson, once known as "supreme potentate" of the Negro association. He resigned several months ago and went into the employ of the Liberian government as consul in British West Africa.

The complaint of the one-time "supreme potentate" is that the Negro association neglected certain of its representatives after these had gone to Liberia in its behalf, and that he himself has been unsuccessful in collecting from the organization $7,250 which he claims is due him.

The springing of this letter as a surprise on the convention is one more of a series of attacks made in the past eighteen months.

Attacks Are Many.

That there has been a systematic and persistent attempt to destroy the organization, is indicated by many incidents. Last year's convention was entirely prevented by the imprisonment of the leader, Garvey, for three months. After Garvey was thrown into jail on a charge of misusing the mails, the judge, the prosecutor and the chief witness for the prosecution immediately went to Europe where they could not be reached for proceedings for the release of the prisoner.

Garvey Defends Himself.

Garvey is quoted as saying that three attorneys whom he engaged to defend him conducted themselves in

(Continued on Page 6.)

Send in that Subscription Today.

GLENN YOUNG, KU KLUX RAIDER, GOES ON TRIAL IN WILLIAMSON COUNTY

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 19.— With a martial setting about the city court here, S. Glenn Young, Klan raider of Williamson county fame, was scheduled to go to trial here this afternoon with some of his associates, on the first of many charges growing out of the riot here in February.

Armed deputy sheriffs searched all persons entering the court room for arms.

BATTLES MARK WORKERS' RAGE AT MUSSOLINI

Communists for Action in Matteotti Case

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, August 19.—Workers from every corner of Italy are pouring into the city by the thousands. They are arriving on foot, in open trucks, in railroad cars so crowded that there is hardly room in them to stand.

They are here to attend the public mass funeral which the parties of the opposition, under the leadership of the Communists, are arranging for the body of Giacomo Matteotti, socialist deputy who on June 11 was murdered by the Fascisti.

Funeral in Defy of Mussolini.

The government has not rescinded its decree that no public honor may be paid to the dead Socialist. The mass funeral which is to be held on Sunday is an act of open defiance of Mussolini's regime.

Pitched battles between workers who are holding anti-Fascist demonstrations, and black-shirts who have been ordered to put down all outbursts against the government, have taken place in nearly every large city of Italy since the mutilated body of Matteotti was discovered at Crovfano. At Naples, where blackshirts raided a protest meting, ten carabineers, fighting on the side of the workers, were seriously wounded.

Carabineers Join Opposition.

The carabineers have gone over to the side of the opposition almost as a body.

In spite of the strict censorship decrees, the Italian press is openly inciting to revolt against the Mussolini dictatorship. "Unita," the Communist daily, published in Milan, has for weeks made insistent demands for more revolutionary action than the refusal of opposition deputies to attend the sessions of Parliament until the national militia has been dissolved. It has pointed out to the workers that this move, which serves as a formal protest, must be backed up by militant aggression on the industrial field and in the field of every-day life.

"Avanti," organ of the Maximilists, a party oscillating between alliance to the Second and the Third Internationals, is demanding that all parties of the opposition become active against the government. "It is time to come down from Aventino hill!" is their rallying cry.

The reference is to the historic hill overlooking Rome, on which, legend goes, the so-called "neutrals" in the battles of ancient Italy—those whose sympathies were definitely with one side, but who refused to take part in the actual struggles—would remain to await the outcome of the fights.

"Avanti" Coming Back?

By its open hostility to the government, "Avanti" is showing once more something of the revolutionary spirit which it lost when Serrati, its former editor, went to Moscow to attend the sessions of the Third International, leaving Pietro Nenni, brother-in-law of [illegible], in charge. In order that Nenni might continue his work within the Maximalist body, Mussolini ordered Serrati arrested at the Italian border, and thrust into jail. A show of impartiality was made by the Fascist premier by the subsequent arrest of Nenni, who was released within a few days and allowed to resume editorship of the paper.

Rome is tense with excitement while preparations go on for the removal of the body of Matteotti to the city.

Killed In Coal Mine.

LYNCH, Ky., Aug. 19.—Five men, three white and two Negroes, are dead here today, the result of a falling roof in the United States mine. They were killed instantly when tons of slate came down on them as repairs were being made.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

France Will Recognize Russia, Says Rakovsky; America To Come Next

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, August 19.—Karl Radek, leading figure in the international Communist movement, in commenting today upon the result of the London Reparations Conference, declared that "Germany has become a colony of Anglo-American capital, from whose table France, using the bayonet as a fork is trying to pick up the left-overs."

Christian Rakovsky, head of the Soviet delegation, which negotiated two treaties with the British in London, has arrived home.

France Will Recognize Russia.

"French recognition of the Soviet government is inevitable," said Rakovsky, commenting upon the Russo-British agreement. "But today the United States is the conservative capitalistic country in the world, masking under democratic principles.

"The American government defends the interests of great capitalists and is striving to secure guardianship over all Europe. The Soviet Russian social system appears to be the only obstacle in the way of the American capitalists, who seek to take up positions of unlimited influence in Europe.

Sees Change Coming Here.

"But a change is noticeable in America, too. A third American political party is the best proof.

"American recognition of the Soviet government after the American election is not absolutely improbable."

MINERS WAGE STIFF BATTLE ON OPEN SHOP

Operators' Production Plans Are Halted

(By The Federated Press)

The stiff battle waged by the United Mine Workers against an attempt to extend the open shop in northern West Virginia and western Kentucky appears to be throwing a monkey wrench into the operators' plans for an early resumption at a lower scale.

Reports received by Black Diamond, leading journal of the industry, indicate that the district union has become much more aggressive in West Virginia.

For 100 Percent Union.

Large mass meetings are being held to build up morale in the districts under attack by the open shop forces. A recent miners' meeting at Scotts Run numbered close to 6,000. Speakers declared "We will not stop until Monongalia county -- and West Virginia—is 100 per cent union. But it is not necessary to try violence."

Local authorities giving the time-honored excuse that they fear violence have been recruiting more deputy sheriffs and ask for additional state police. There are now 3 details of state police in Monongalia county.

Operators Get Injunctions.

Meanwhile the Brady-Werner Coal corporation and the Shriver Coal Co. have obtained temporary injunctions against the United Mine Workers restraining the union from using force, threats, violence or intimidation at their mines which are being operated

(Continued on page 3)

BRITAIN FOR BLOODY WAR ON SUDANESE

MacDonald Declares Gun-Rule for Natives

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, August 19.—James Ramsay MacDonald, the pacifist-socialist premier of Great Britain, the North of Ireland and the Dominions beyond the seas, sent a stinging note to the Egyptian government, which is unsurpassed in brutal disregard of human rights by any official document sent by one government to another since the Austrian government delivered its famous ultimatum to Serbia in 1914.

This note was immediately followed by the declaration of martial law in the Sudan. Coming on the heels of the London conference, where MacDonald took such a prominent part in bringing an accord between the leading capitalist powers, his action against the Sudanese gives a glimpse at the new "pacifist" policy of capitalist imperialism, which means peace among the big robber nations and, a free hand in the exploitation of colonies. This is the policy of world capitalism at the moment. At least this is the orientation at which the wise heads among them are aiming.

Officials Arrested.

Native agitation against British rule has reached its greatest intensity in Port Sudan, where several Egyptian officials have been arrested by the military.

Proclamation of martial law followed warning by the British government to Egypt that the British are responsible for the Sudanese government. MacDonald's note charges the Egyptian parliament with making exaggerated claims against his majesty's government and with blaming the British troops for disorders.

The British Labor Party government is surely going from bad to worse. The psalm singing socialist, MacDonald, has out-Curzoned Curzon.

Another Victim of Industrialism.

BRAZIL, Indiana, Aug. 19.—Robert Stewart, sixty, of Center Point, was crushed to death today at the Big Ben company, coal stripping pit when he fell under the dinky engine he was operating.

Millionaires' Boats Wrecked.

A number of expensive pleasure craft were wrecked or sunk at Chicago's millionaire summer colony about Lake Geneva and Williams Bay in the "worst storm in 20 years."

MINE SHUTDOWNS FORCING THE ILLINOIS MINERS ONTO FARMS AT THREE DOLLARS PER DAY

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer of The Daily Worker)

THAYER, Ill., August 19.—Two men lolled on a bench in front of the general store in Thayer. Altho they wore noticably new overalls and Watkins jocularly saluted them as a couple of farmers, their sturdy, set faces revealed them as miners. They had taken a job on a nearby farm for four dollars a day pitching hay.

"We couldn't last out the day," said one of the men, an Italian with a fierce mustache. "The sun was unbearable to us

(Continued on page 2)

DAWES SPOUTS AGAINST ALL G. O. P. ENEMIES

Hell-an'-Maria Praises the Dawes Plan

General Hell-an'-Maria Dawes, strikebreaker extraordinary, Morgan banker and allround lackey for the American capitalist class, delivered his speech accepting the nomination for vice-president of the United States on the republican party ticket, last night at his residence in Evanston.

The speech was a tirade against all those who seek to block in the slightest degree the plots and plans of the American capitalists. All those who are not with the republican party are dangerous to the United States.

Mr. Dawes did not even hint at the corruption uncovered by the various investigations that catapulted Daugherty and Daugherty from the Coolidge cabinet against the wishes of honest Calvin Coolidge and exposed the majority of that worthy's cabinet as traffickers in the country's natural resources, bribers and grafters.

Low Taxes for Business.

The wrath of the Morgan banker was directed against those who favored higher wages for the workers and lower freight rates for the farmers. He was loud in his praise for the administration that lowered taxation and lessened the drain on capital actively employed in productive industry.

He praised Calvin Coolidge for his fearless common sense and his "indifference to the demagogues" who have criticized him.

The doughty general leveled his attack on LaFollette, and curiously enough charged the Wisconsin politician with being a dictator and with running a one-man show, with being an extreme radical and many other crimes attributed to the Communists by the senator.

Dawes did not pay much attention to the democratic party, branding it as a fence straddling organization that would meet the fate of all organizations that try to straddle in a real fight.

Realizing that the great majority of the LaFollette leaders are as bitterly opposed to socialism as the general himself, Dawes spread the red color over the LaFollette party.

Calls "Bob" Borer, Umph!

The Wisconsin senator was accused of boring from within the republican party, using the cloak of republican to mask his designs. LaFollette made a similar charge against the

(Continued on page 3)

GRANT INJUNCTION TO HALT MINIMUM WAGES LAW IN BOB'S STATE

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 19.—The District Court here today issued a temporary injunction restraining the operation of the Wisconsin Minimum Wage Law.

The order holds that the law insofar as it applies to adult women is unconstitutional. A case came into the court as a result of the Folding Furniture Company of Stevens Point, protesting against the State Industrial Commission.

The corporation charges that the Minimum Wage Law of Wisconsin is in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment, thru its enforcement of the twenty-five cents an hour wage for adult women. The argument of taking property without due process of the law and the violation of the sacredness of the freedom of contract are the mainstays of the furniture company's case.

It is said that if the injunction will be made permanent, the State Industrial Commission will, in all likelihood, prepare to take steps for securing a Supreme Court hearing on the matter.

Miners! Send in Your Stories!

THE DAILY WORKER publishes today the third of a series of articles on the jobless problem in Illinois, especially among the coal miners. Karl Reeve, our labor reporter, is on the ground getting the first hand facts. This material will appear daily in these columns.

But the DAILY WORKER wants to get letters direct from the coal miners themselves; and from workers in other industries. What are the jobless conditions confronting you? How do you get along? What are the immediate problems that you face?

Write your stories to the Unemployment Editor, the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS!

ORDER YOUR BUNDLE OF THE DAILY WORKER'S FIRST SPECIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE—SEE PAGE SIX

BOSTON STRIKE OF CLOTHIERS IS SUCCESSFUL

Left-Wingers Rally to Workers' Support

By JAMES J. LACEY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, August 19.—The situation here in the strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America is completely in the hands of the strikers. Shops previously unorganized since the lockout of 1920, at the peak of the open shop drive, have succumbed, and already favorable settlements affecting nearly half of the 4,500 strikers makes certain that the successful termination of the strike is only a matter of days.

Called originally to enforce the agreement already in existence that was not being lived up to, the strike spread to shops hitherto impervious to any organization drive. The workers in Macullar Parker Co. and E. R. Smith Co. factories, both in Cambridge, walked out the second day of the strike.

Strike 100 Per Cent Effective.

They were followed the next day by the clothing workers employed in the shops of Sammett & Wasserman, Revere, and Peavey Bros., at East Boston, 100 per cent.

The background of this strike is interesting. For some time all has not been well with the bosses. Sammett & Wasserman in particular have had a tough time in enforcing a scab shop condition. Last winter they had to have recourse to the capitalist courts. An injunction was secured from a complaisant judge against interference by union workers, but this was not sufficient, the factory being moved to Revere in order to secure a non-union labor supply. These ineffective efforts to prevent organization have had but one result—organization that includes the last man in the shop.

Can't Divide Races.

The enthusiasm and solidarity displayed by the workers in the Kondazian factory is interesting in view of the circumstances of this particular case. Kondazian, one of the weakest employers in the trade, has made a practice of operating on a nationalistic basis. Alleging discrimination against the Armenians, Greeks and Syrians, he has imported his labor direct—the raw material. This untutored labor importation had their first taste of American institutions in the sweatshop and from the police in the service of their countrymen.

The story is told of Kondazian financing the local Syrian church. On the Monday following his donation of $500 for the relief of the distress of his nationals, he handed his nationals a wage cut.

Picketing Continues.

Despite mass arrests of those carrying on at the picket line, picketing demonstrations continue with the greatest enthusiasm and solidarity. Twenty were arrested on the second day and 25 on the third. Despite the large force of police on hand tonight, the largest demonstrations were held and no arrests were made. This goes to show that the bosses are beginning to realize that the workers on strike cannot be intimidated or their forces broken by any show of force or coercion on the part of the police.

Communists in Forefront.

Members of the Workers Party were among those most active on the picket lines, among the first arrested. The Armenian and Greek comrades along with the rest of the Communists bore the brunt of the burden. At the mass meeting Joseph Schlossberg addressed the strikers amidst the greatest enthusiasm. At next day's meeting John J. Ballam, district organizer of the Workers Party, spoke to the clothing workers.

Great enthusiasm continues unabated and the work of the left wingers is an inspiration and source of strength.

SICK IN COLORADO SWELL THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN TREASURY

Thru Comrade Ella Reeves Bloor, who is carrying on party work in Colorado, the National Office of the Workers Party is in receipt of a remittance of $10.75 collected for the Communist campaign fund by the inmates of the Jewish Consumption Relief Society Sanitarium at Denver, Colorado.

Comrade Bloor writes that the inmates of the sanatorium are interested in the campaign of the Workers Party and when a subscription list reached one of their members it was immediately placed in circulation and the sum mentioned above was collected to show the support of the revolutionary candidates of labor.

MINERS FORCED ONTO FARMS

(Continued from Page 1)

because we aren't used to any work besides mining. At that we were lucky to land a job on a farm. Most of the farmers around here pay three dollars a day to their help. You can only pick out an odd job of a day or two here and there to help out during the few weeks of the threshing season."

Miner Must Stick to Mines.

The two "farmers" were plainly "all in" from their brief hay-pitching experience. They complained particularly of the sun, altho the day was not unusually warm. "A miner is not fitted or able to do farming work," was their verdict. The very fact that the miners are seeking to enter other trades is proof of their desperate plight. A miner would go idle for months, if he could keep the wolf from the door, rather than go thru labor above ground, which is agony to him.

Divernon is a deserted village. The Madison Coal Company mine, employing in normal times 825 men, has worked 29 days in the last year. The men here were laid off in a particularly vicious way. "We were told that we would be laid off for 60 days," a miner told the DAILY WORKER. "We whiled around town, tinkering with our lawns and resting up, believing the mine would open when the company had promised. This was over a year ago." At the end of that 60 days the company told us another 60 days, and this has kept up for over a year. Thus we were kept from seeking employment in the cities, and now no jobs can be found."

Find Chicago Just as Bad.

Recently the men, driven to desperation, flocked away to the cities, hoping to be "absorbed in other industries," as Farrington naively put it. But the men have already begun to crawl back to town, further in debt and slightly more desperate. "They tell us to go out and grab a job at some other work," a Divernon miner, who had sought work in Chicago, said, "but we simply can't do it. There are no jobs to be had."

Divernon is in the mood of a cow chewing its cud. Divernon, and thousands of other Illinois mining towns, are sullenly thinking it over. They know, as used as they are to weeks and sometimes months of unemployment, that this is no ordinary lay-off.

Apart from their unanimous and violent condemnation of Frank Farrington, the miners react to the severe industrial depression in oddly varying ways. Some of them, not a few of whom have foreign names and whose ancestors learned mining in European countries, claim there are too many foreigners in this country. "Ellis Island ought to be completely locked up for ten years." Others claim there are too many miners, and the initiation fee of the union ought to be raised.

K. K. K. at $10 Per.

The Ku Klu Klan has been taken up as an amusing fad, as a diversion to get their minds off their troubles, by some of the miners. The Klan, with its cowardly robes sweepingly starched to give the impression of purity, is conducting an organization drive in the Springfield mining district at $10 per "klectokon." Hundreds of miners have been flocking to Klan picnics and demonstrations.

But these confused manifestations are only gropings for the real solution to the unemployment problem. And when the miners see the real solution, they fight for it like grim death. The DAILY WORKER is well liked by every miner I met who has seen it. The Workers Party solution to the unemployment problem, placing the burden on the owners of industry and the makers of profit, is daily gaining new converts in the Illinois coal fields.

For Communist Program.

"We are ready to form unemployment councils," a Divernon miner told the DAILY WORKER. "We are ready to accept the Communist slogan of workers' control of industry. We are ready to demand the shortening of the work day instead of the restricting of the union, because we know the Communist program is the only true solution to our vital problems."

'AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

not place a presidential ticket in the field every four years. That is the only contribution this bunch of reformers and social patriots makes to the labor movement.

* * *

A FEW evenings ago, a member of the Hobo's organization mounted a chair on Madison Street, and distributed little cards advertising a debate which was scheduled to be held that evening in the Hobo College on Washington Street. He had a good voice, and attracted quite an audience, while across the street an S. L. P. man was cursing the Hobo for encroaching on his territory. The S. L. P. man talked something like this: "Them hobos keep telling you jokes and funny stories. Then they pass the hat. They don't believe in amusement for the masses as a whole. They tell you jokes and go thru your pockets. They are like the capitalists. They are exploiting your workers. They tell you about religion. Who cares about religion?" And so on.

* * *

AFTER the Hobo got thru announcing his meeting he quit and the crowd that surrounded him walked along toward the Hobo hall and stopped to listen to the S. L. P. man. As soon as the crowd arrived,—a poorly dressed crowd of unemployed workers, the orator took out the S. L. I classic on taxation. "Who pays the taxes?" he shrieked. The socialists say you pay the taxes. You don't the capitalist pays the taxes. Foster might tell you who pays the taxes but who is Foster? I'll tell you who Foster is. He led a strike of a half a million steel workers and they got licked. Now, a leader who loses a strike must not amount to much. That's Foster. The Workers Party is controlled by two men, Foster and Ruthenberg. They are against La Follette because LaFollette attacks them. LaFollette lined up with the labor leaders because the Communists betrayed the workers. Now, any party that is controlled by two men cannot amount to much. You, comrades,' shaking his finger at the unemployed "will be led by the Workers Party into reformism. Beware!"

* * *

A LITTLE distance down the street was another man on a soap box giving a talk on prohibition. He held that the curse of prohibition descended on us because the American workers abused their rights. They drank too much. Now they have to chase bootleggers around for a shot of moonshine. "Do you remember the day," said the speaker, while he looked around with a playful smile on his lips, "when you went to work with that big limburger cheese sandwich under your arm and you went into the saloon and got that big schooner of beer?" A person apparently of Teutonic origin developed a phantasy over this. As if seized with a sudden attack of tonsillectomy of the inguinal adenopathy, his tongue gently wandered over his outer lips, while the speaker sang the praises of the near past and hurled curses at near beer. I thot the speaker was a booster for the Anti-saloon Leage but in a bundle which lay at the base of his soap box, I could see several I. W. W. pamphlets.

* * *

FOUR persons are reported killed in clashes between Moslems and Hindus at Mandalay, India. This is the work of British agents who fear that unity between the members of both religions would mean the end of British rule in that rich country. Religion has been used for generations to divide subject peoples and also to prevent workers of different creeds from presenting a united front to the enemy.

* * *

UPHOLDERS of religious superstitions have made much of the fact that Nathan Leopold, one of the slayers of the Franks boy is a professed atheist. Clergymen rushed into print trying to prove that lack of belief in God was responsible for his commission of the crime. Since then several murders have been committed thruout the United States, murders just as cruel as the Franks murder. That the publicity attending these crimes was not so great, is not due to the lack of revolting detail but to the comparative obscurity of the criminals.

* * *

WITH the single exception of Leopold all the other criminals are members of some religious denomination. But no clergyman has rushed to print warning parents against sending their children to church or advising husbands to keep their wives away from preachers, because the court records show that several hundred wives have been seduced by clergymen in the past few years, not to mention hundreds of choir girls, but because religion has a strong grip on the minds of millions of workers and the churches are strong bulwarks of the social order, when a moron preacher gets caught the misstep is attributed to the devil's tricks. Or slayers of the Frank boy, is a prook the Old Testament too seriously.

* * *

TWO thousand Hopi Indians in Hotevilla, Arizona, are finishing their nine day snake dance ceremonial, which is expected to bring rain to the drought ridden Indian country. In New York, Marcus Garvey parades, dressed in multi-colored garments and guarded by troops of his fictitious Ethiopian Empire with drawn sabres. The Hopi Indians may hop until doomsday and no rain will come until the clouds are ready. And the snake dance of the Indians is not more ridiculous than the buffonery of Marcus Garvey and his "Back to Africa" movement. Negro workers who are conscious of their class as well as of racial oppression have a job on their hands in bringing the movement led by the mountebank Garvey back to earth.

USE EMPLOYEES OF COMPANY TO GET SIGNATURES

Potter Offers Pedigreed Dog for Names

By OWEN STIRLING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 19.—Not long ago the Detroit Edison Co., a wealthy public utility, refused to contribute to the United Spanish War Veterans' $75,000 fund, the alleged purpose of which was to propagandize Michigan in the interest of law and order, in the fashion of militarist organizations.

The company gave as its reason that its rates and income were fixed by the Michigan public utilities commission and that any contribution it made would therefore be reflected in its rates and would be paid involuntarily by the consumers of current.

The veterans, however, asked in a letter to a member of the public utilities commission if it was the commission's position to oppose work such as the United Spanish War Veterans hoped to carry on. A member of the commission replied that on the contrary the commission encouraged contributions to funds such as the one in question. This letter, used as a club, obtained a large contribution from the Detroit Edison Co.

Potter Has Great Scheme.

And now comes W. W. Potter, chairman of the same public utility commission, as candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Michigan. He is opposing the present governor, Alex J. Groesbeck, who appointed him to his post and who is seeking re-nomination.

It is the public utilities commission which regulates the operations also of interurban bus lines as common carriers in this state. It is necessary for a candidate for governor to file petitions containing about 7,000 names. Chairman Potter mailed batches of his petitions to public utility concerns, believing he was in a strategic position to obtain their services in his campaign.

One batch of petitions reached D. L. Dimmick, Detroit, manager Hickey Motor Bus Co. Dimmick gave the petitions to about 35 drivers to obtain signatures. To stimulate the drivers' activity among passengers in behalf of Potter, Dimmick offered a pedigreed dog as a prize to the driver obtaining the most names. Bus fare for a passenger on a bus was cash plus signatures on the dotted line, unless the passenger rebelled.

And so year after year the public offices are filled.

FRANCE IN DEAL WITH SPANIARDS AGAINST ALFONSO

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PARIS, Aug. 19.—At a conference here between members of the French government and of the factions of the Spanish opposition, an attempt is to be made for the abdication of King Alfonso and to allow the queen mother to rule Spain until the heir to the throne is of age, was decided upon.

Fear Workers' Anger.

The effort is an attempt to throw dust in the eyes of the discontented workers of Spain by removing only King Alfonso, whose signing of the decree of Primo de Rivera, abolishing constitutional rights, has infuriated the workers and endangered the security of the monarchy.

The French are interested in preserving the monarchy because they fear that the workers, once aroused, may not stop with the establishment of a bourgeois republic, but might set up Soviet rule.

Reason for French Support.

It is understood that if the new liberal faction comes into power in Spain, it will reward its friends in France by giving the French concessions in that part of Morocco which is under Spanish rule.

Arabs in Morocco who have been fighting Spanish domination are subsidied by France, who hopes to gain possession of the whole of the province. Morocco is one of the richest agricultural districts in the world.

Japan Not Out for Philippines.

MANILA, Aug. 18.—Representative Inouye of Japan, who is visiting Manila, made a statement, according to the Philippine Press Bureau, in that "Japan has no intention grabbing the Philippines even if the United States turns her loose. As a member of the Parliament of Japan, I know that my country has never entertained the thought of adding the Philippines among her colonies. All talk about Japan taking over the Philippines the moment the United States grants her independence is absolutely groundless."

Overfed Dowagers of Chicago Would Gloat Their Eyes on Prince

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the flabby, be-jeweled dowagers of the great rich in Chicago are worrying whether the Prince of Wales will pass this way on his approaching journey to his ranch in Canada.

Extraordinary advances to the gambler-drunkard heir to the British throne, now being bulwarked by the MacDonald "labor" government, are being made by none other than William R. Dawes, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce.

* * * *

Altho this is supposed to be a republic, altho the United States is supposed to have freed itself from the British king, 150 years ago, the worship of a royal title is as deep-rooted as ever in this country's ruling class.

The workers of Chicago may soon see their open shop oppressors donning silken knee breeches and silk stockings, and, in company with their overfed wives, crawling on their bellies before the prince at some blow-out of the local "400" along the Gold Coast. This will no doubt be heralded in the yellow press as an indication of the "upstanding democracy" of the prince.

* * * *

They have been debating for quite some time in the British Labor Party as to whether a stand should be taken for the abolition of the king. The militants demand a fight against king and capitalism. The MacDonalds take the stand that "The king can do no wrong." So the king is allowed to remain. The Russians settled this question for themselves when they got rid of the czar and all his retinue. Most of the Russian ex-princes and ex-dukes are now working for a living; not playing chemin de fer with the painted ladies at the Casino gaming tables, at Deauville, France, losing at the rate of $1,000 per clip.

* * * *

The so-called "labor" premier, MacDonald, is working overtime in an effort to keep the British Empire intact, serving repeated ultimatums on the Egyptians for instance, and proclaiming martial law in the Sudan, in order to hold the natives in leash to the British throne, just as much as they were ever enslaved to a blood-lusting Pharaoh.

All this while the heir to the throne remains at the tables until six o'clock in the morning, losing $10,000 to an unknown Stephen Lynch, of Atlanta, Ga.; while a Jules Mastbaum, Philadelphia movie magnate, wins $4,000 from the prince. But MacDonald will see to it that the prince doesn't go broke.

More important is the news that the prince spends his sleeping hours, until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at the villa of Ralph Pulitzer, publisher of the New York World, which has built its circulation on the subscriptions of New York's working class population. Getting up at five o'clock in the afternoon, the prince sees a polo game, the sport of the rich, and then returns to the gambling tables, while workers are crawling early to bed to store up energy for the next day's grinding toil.

* * * *

But Pulitzer isn't alone in his kow-towing. Hearst is not to be outdone. Hearst's expert in the doings of the idle rich, who writes under the name of "The Dowager," has nearly a column in the local Herald-Examiner, telling of the efforts to bring the crown prince to Chicago, and putting pep into the drive for inviting—nay, urging—his highness to come on, if only for a day, on his way to Canada.

* * * *

This stinking mess should turn the stomach of America's workers. Thru their stomachs, if not thru their brains, the workers will learn the real nature and make-up of the capitalist class that they carry upon their shoulders, bent beneath the heavy load.

* * * *

"Towards Communism!" is the cry of British labor, fed up on a fake labor premier, MacDonald, and gorged to the full on a useless royal aristocracy. Let the workers of America join their British comrades in the struggle to wipe out this ulcerous capitalist social order. Rally the masses under the slogan, "Forward to Communism!"

FORD FOR SENATOR BOOMLET FLOPS; WORKERS PARTY TO NOMINATE A STATE TICKET

By OWEN STIRLING

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

DETROIT, Mich., August 19.—Henry Ford's sharp notification to the secretary of the state of Michigan that he will not permit his name on the primary ballots September 9 for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator opens widespread guessing on who paid petition circulators $1,600, at 4c a name, to fill the Ford petition.

Backers Kept Secret.

Peter Fagan, secretary, Michigan public utilities commission, ordered the petitions printed. He is the only backer of the brief boom known by name. The R. L. Polk Co. of Detroit, which supplied canvassers, said it was sworn to keep secret the names of the financial backers. Ford said he had no idea of their identity.

It is generally conceded that the Ford movement was intended to start a landslide against Senator James Couzens and others. If Ford could have been maneuvered to defeat Couzens, it was believed that John W. Smith, who has resigned as postmaster in Detroit to try to be mayor, could have defeated Joseph A. Martin, who resigned as acting mayor of Detroit to conduct his campaign.

Workers Out to Get Mayor.

Detroit workers are vitally interested in the defeat of Martin for mayor. Martin got his political start as commissioner of the department of public works when Couzens was mayor. He was a strike-breaking commissioner. As acting mayor he has given his support solidly to the Detroit street railway commission in its efforts to smash the union on the municipal street railway lines. No mayor in Detroit's history has been so bitterly hated by trade unionists as Martin.

If Henry Ford had become a candidate for senator, it would have had a noticeable bearing on the fight for mayor. Ford's defeat for senator by Newberry in 1918 may have shattered his political nerve.

Senator LaFollette for president and Herb Baker for governor are certain to poll heavily in spite of the fact that Baker is supporting Coolidge.

W. P. to Choose Slate.

The Workers Party will have a state convention in Detroit Sept. 7-8 and name a slate for the ballot in November.

In Defense of Religious Freedom.

BEE-ORLUK— (Krimea)—The Krimea Military Tribunal held court in this small Tartar village. Captain of the border guard, Nazukin, was accused of confiscating and burning up the Koran (holy book of the Mohamedans), the property of a Tartar peasant. The court found the accused guilty of unconsciously discrediting the Soviet government which proclaimed full religious freedom. He was put on probation for 18 months. The trial was conducted in the Russian and Tartar languages.

WITH RAKE AND MOVIE 'CAL' HITS THE FARMER VOTE

Straw Vote Shows He Will Carry Plymouth

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 19.—Photographers were busy here today "shooting" Silent, Cal Coolidge, as armed with hand-made wooden rake he proceeded to gather in the farmer vote via the movies.

Like everything Calvin does, his farming was real. As if accustomed to dirt he became a "dirt" farmer just as soon as he hit his father's farm. Some say that a perfectly good farmer was spoiled when Mr. Harding died. But for that stomach-full of crabs, Calvin would now be spending his evenings whittling away on pieces of a stick in the village drug and general merchandise store.

Like a dutiful father, Colonel John Coolidge, he got the title like Dawes got his, left a little patch of hay for the president to gather. The Coolidges believe in making their hay while the sun shines.

The hand made rake was presented to the President by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts. While Coolidge is not a rake to any great extent, the farming implement is considered quite typical of the man who went from the oil lamp of his father's humble home to the oily atmosphere of Washington. The rake is made of wood.

President Coolidge hailed the acceptance of the Dawes Plan with joy. He quietly remarked: "Now there is a good chance for us to collect the six billion dollars Europe owes us." A perfectly short and crisp businesslike phrase. And just like "Cal."

There is no doubt but Coolidge will carry this village.

COMPERS STUDIES UNITY MOVES OF WORLD'S TOILERS

Moscow and Amsterdam Negotiating

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—American Federation of Labor officials are keeping an eye on the efforts now being made to secure a merger of the Moscow, or Red, International Federation of Labor Unions, with the International Federation of Trade Unions which has its headquarters in Amsterdam. One of the most interesting developments, from the American view, is the proposal that the British labor movement shall act as the go-between for the Moscow and Amsterdam bodies. Conclusion of the Russo-British treaties has quickened British hopes that the respective labor bodies may likewise come to terms of peace and cooperation.

Irish Stand Aloof

But in Ireland these hopes are not yet entertained, according to a statement made at the Irish Labor and Trades Union Congress at Cork on Aug. 5. Thomas Johnson, chairman of the congress and leader of the Labor Party group in the Free State parliament, declared, in answer to a question as to why the Irish body had sent no fraternal delegate to the congress of the Amsterdam international, held in Vienna, that the rivalry between the "red" and the "yellow" labor internationals in Europe had split the trade union movement from top to bottom. The policy of the executives of Irish labor, he said, was to stay out of the controversy. If they sent delegates to the meetings of either one, then they had best send delegates to both.

HUGHES BACK; IS PROUD OF DAWES PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Secretary Hughes, returned from his negotiations in London, Paris, Brussels and Berlin, refuses to make any further predictions as to the success of the Dawes scheme. He stands on his New York statement that the economic plan will be carried through regardless of the military evacuation of the Ruhr.

Hughes Will Speak

Coolidge campaign strategy includes a series of speeches by the whiskered secretary of state, it is reported here. These speeches would be made in the middle west and would be devoted to claiming credit for Coolidge and Dawes for the peace they claim Europe will have this summer. Not even the fake efforts of Ramsay MacDonald and Herriot will be recognized as having contributed towards putting the shackles of the Dawes plan on the body of the international working class.

Still Chasing the Sun.

RANGOON, India, August 15—Major Zanni, Argentine world flier, hopped off at 7:50 o'clock for Bangkok, capital of Siam. Weather conditions were excellent.

Send in that Subscription Today.

I. W. W. COURT FIGHT DRAGS UNTIL MONDAY

Cunnea Still Unable to Appear in Hearing

The court fight of the contending factions of the Industrial Workers of the World continues to drag.

Another postponement, this time until next Monday, was ordered by Judge A. J. Sabath, in the Superior Court, in the hearing on the injunction demanded by the Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman group against the officers representing the administration forces, Joe Fisher and Tom Doyle. The case was up again yesterday.

Attorney John A. Ryan, representing Attorney William A. Cunnea, informed Judge Sabath that illness prevented Cunnea from appearing in court. Sabath instructed Ryan to inform Cunnea that he will be expected to appear next Monday.

In spite of the insistence of T. B. O'Connell, attorney representing the injunctionites, that Judge Sabath render a decision, the judge refused to handle the case until the appearance of Attorney Cunnea in court Monday.

This means that the Industrial Workers of the World headquarters will remain, securely locked, under court orders, until Monday. In the meantime the membership is rapidly being made acquainted with the situation that has developed in their organization, and a genuine interest in the case was manifested in yesterday's court session.

In the courtroom and in the corridors members of the I. W. W. crowded about, eager to learn the developments in the case. There was much indignation voiced with the Griffith group for handling an internal organizational matter thru the courts.

A member of the I. W. W. for the last eight years, who wishes his name withheld, told the DAILY WORKER reporter that Griffith will not be upheld by the organization in bringing this matter into the capitalist courts. "Our members are against such procedure, and even the small following they had was lost to them thru vention in about 90 days, and our vention in about 09 days, and our membership will decide this case for themselves."

An effort was made to get an expression of viewpoint from the representatives of the other side. They refused to express any opinion. Their attorney, T. B. O'Connell, said he didn't know what the outcome would be, and expressed a hope that next Monday's court session would render a decision.

Mexican Workers Strike.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—Twelve thousand textile workers in Mexico City are on a three-day strike to protest the lockout of 250 workers. Lack of raw material was the reason given for the lockout, but the workers have proved that there is plenty of raw material to keep the factory running.

INJUNCTIONS AGAINST STRIKING WORKERS IN LA FOLLETTE'S COURTS

The sixth article on "The LaFollette Illusion" will appear in tomorrow's DAILY WORKER.

We will show how the bosses own the state assembly and senate in LaFollette's "Model Commonwealth" and how the workers have not the slightest say in the management of the state administrative machinery in Wisconsin.

Labor legislation and the demands of the workers have met the same rough treatment at the hands of LaFollette's forces in Wisconsin as they have in the other forty-seven states and in Washington where the capitalist politicians make no pretense at so-called progressivism.

And in Wisconsin, despite LaFollette's noise about the usurpation of the powers of government by the courts, the workers have been suffering from injunctions, costly litigation, and hostile judges.

These and other startling facts about LaFollettelism in practice will be revealed in Thursday's article. Don't miss it.

LAST BIG MILL QUITS AS MEN JOIN STRIKERS

Paterson Silk Workers Decline Arbitration

By H. M. WICKS.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 19.—The Daugherty Silk Mill, the last big mill that had not yet joined the silk workers on strike here, was struck by its 400 workers, making the strike of the Associated Silk Workers one hundred per cent effective.

At the same time, the strikers rejected the proposal of the United States department of labor representative, John A. Moffett to arbitrate the demands of the workers with the manufacturers.

This offer was refused because the manufacturers have at no time shown any inclination to conciliate the workers, and it is most likely that their proposals would mean the abrogation of the principal demands of the strikers.

Mexican City Aids Strikers.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, August 19.—Because the city authorities of Vera Cruz are helping the union bakers win their strike, the merchants associations all over Mexico are threatening to close their shops and the chambers of commerce are encouraging them. Vera Cruz permits the striking bakers to use the prison ovens. All others are shut down.

Send in that Supscription Today.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

BUSINESS MEN OF NEGRO RACE MEETING TODAY

League Has Reactionary Backing

The National Negro Business league, which opens its annual sessions in the Wendell Phillips high school today, is receiving from the capitalist press of the country a measure of ovation accorded no other Negro organization in the country.

When Negroes who have taken prominent part in the sessions of the Business league die, the local Chamber of Commerce invariably passes a resolution expressing its grief. The organization yesterday received a message from the Chamber of Commerce of Richmond, Va., expressing their regret at the death of Giles B. Jackson, several times a delegate to the conventions of the league.

Negro Workers Should Examine Fact.

These facts alone should make workers of the Negro race, who have looked to the business league as a help to the solution of the race problem, stop to think.

Here is the way in which Harry J. Barrymore of the Boston Transcript, a paper notorious for the long series of lies it published about the Michigan anti-red raids of 1922, wrote concerning the initial meeting of the league in 1899:

"It pleased me to see how brave the Negro could be, and how patient. I waited for outbreaks of protest against white oppression, and especially against recent white cruelty, but heard none. . . . . Regarding material advancement as a basis of every other sort of progress, the convention listened eagerly to accounts of Negroes, once poor, who had now built houses, bought land, opened places of independent business and established solid bank accounts."

Interlocking Connections.

There are the closest of connections between the National Negro Business League, Tuskegee Institute and the Urban League. With a single exception—that of Dr. J. C. Napier of Nashville, Tenn., who served a term as president of the business association—every president of the National Business League has at some time been president of Tuskegee Institute.

T. Arnold Hill, executive secretary of the Urban League, has been prominent in the conventions of the business association. This year Jesse Thomas, head of the Urban League in Atlanta, Ga., is bringing a group of Negro business men from his city to address the convention.

Who is behind Tuskegee Institute, and who is behind the Urban League?

Behind Tuskegee.

Most of the board of Tuskegee Institute are white men who have grown enormously rich thru the operation of huge factories. Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck and Co., mail order house, which pays its girl slaves at the rate of $17 a week, is on the board of Tuskegee. So is Seth Low, former mayor of New York, one of the most reactionary mayors that that reactionary city has known.

Behind the Urban League, a clearing house of Negro labor, are such concerns as the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, a militant open shop concern; Armour & Co., of Chicago's slaughter hell, and Henry Ford.

Reservoir of Scab Labor.

The Urban League has for years been the great reservoir of black scab labor, from which Chicago and Detroit, especially, have drawn their strikebreakers.

The outstanding achievement of the business league during the 25 years of its existence has been the formation of a million-dollar finance corporation, which makes loans to Negro business men. Of the capital at the disposal of the Negro Business League, $400,000 comes from capitalist open shop concerns. This money passes thru the hands of Mayor R. R. Moton, budget manager of the league, who is also head of Tuskegee Institute.

Munroe N. Work, a regular attendant at the sessions of the business league, is working in the research department of Tuskegee, and is compiler of the Negro Year Book. Forrester B. Washington, formerly professor of Howard University, was at one time head of the Urban League of Detroit.

Can Be Militant.

Just how militant presidents of Tuskegee Institute can be when, as presiding officers of the business league, they take charge of the sessions of the conventions of Negro business men, can be shown by the fact that the appointment last year of Major William Ward, Negro doctor, in charge of the veterans' hospital on the grounds of Tuskegee Institute, was a procedure unusual enough to arouse the wrath of the local Ku Klux Klan, who raided the hospital and paraded thru the grounds of the institute.

There is a story which goes the rounds of the militant Negroes who know something of the workings of the Business Men's League. There is no way in which the truth of it can be determined. But it is significant that the tale is heard again and again, and that it is always told with the same details. This is the story:

Beginning of League.

When 25 years ago Negro business men began coming to banks for the purpose of borrowing capital, white bankers, anxious to learn what they could about the financial backing of their borrowers, asked Booker T. Washington to form a league of business men—a centralized organization thru which they could discover the exact volume of Negro business in the country. Booker T. Washington called upon Negro business men in all cities to form local business leagues, to compile statistics and to send delegates to a central body. This was the beginning of the National Negro Business League, which is celebrating its silver jubilee today.

MINERS WAGE STIFF BATTLE ON OPEN SHOP

(Continued from Page 1.)

non-union. This appears to be the usual attempt to prevent picketing.

One of the arguments used by the companies to obtain the injunction was that a non-union miner had been assaulted by the wives of strikers.

At the Arnetville plant of the Wheeling Coal & Coke Co., 27 miners went on strike and joined the union, insisting upon the full union scale. This plan has been operating on a non-union basis for the past year.

Try Evictions.

In Kanawha territory where operators recently announced a non-union basis with lower wage scale, the chief activity of the companies appears to be securing eviction orders from the courts to turn union miners who refuse to work on a non-union basis, out of the company houses.

The Cloverburg-Kanawha Coal Co. employed the Smith Detective agency of Charleston to secure possession of two houses of miners who refused to work at the reduced scale. The detectives set the household goods of these families on the road.

Operators Fail to Open.

Similarly the West Kentucky Coal Co. is reported as progressing very slowly in its efforts to get the former union mines of the St. Bernard company going on the company union plan. At its Providence district mines, about 100 miners are working while over 1,000 union men are on strike. Five or six officers of the Kentucky national guard have been sent by the governor to keep an eye on the situation.

Dawes Spouts Against All G. O. P. Enemies

(Continued from Page 1.)

Communists for their effort to establish a Farmer-Labor Party.

The general is against the League of Nations and upholds the democratic party for its invitation to the people of this country to again enter "that fog of debate" which ended with Harding's victory in the 1920 elections. Some people thought debates have a tendency to dispel fogs.

Having learned the views of the citizens of the United States on the League of Nations, which was a thumbs down verdict, the republican administration coolly proceeded to run Europe in behalf of the bankers, and this policy Mr. Dawes refers to as an "act of courage."

Act of Courage.

"If the president and the secretary of state had evaded this duty and precipitated the question of official representation for debate, delay and nonaction, into the United States senate, the United States would have had no part in the last desperate but successful effort to find a common ground of agreement for a new peace in the world, if indeed but for their action there would be any peace at all."

The general favored the world court for the League of Nations, which is a difference in name only. He then proceeded to calm the fears of the nationalistic jingoes whose interests and those of the international bankers do not jibe, that the United States was under no necessity to appeal to the world court unless it found it profitable to do so.

Hot Air Merchant.

The Dawes speech was a typical piece of demagoguery, only to be expected from that much touted blatherskite. He did not attempt to discuss the real issues affecting the country. He ranted against "demagoguery," an art of which he is master, denounced the democrats for favoring the League of Nations, while he favors the world court. This is not a difference, but merely a distinction, but it is practically all the difference there is between the democratic and republican parties.

Albert W. Jeffries of Omaha notified Dawes of his nomination, in a speech which was a mixture of bible pounding, spread eagle and childish inanities that would disgrace a Salvation Army street corner orator.

No more than Dawes, Jeffries did not mention the oil scandals or the general orgy of graft in Washington.

Send in that Supscription Today.

PAN-AMERICAN LABOR BODY MEETS DEC. 5

Gompers Losing Strangle Hold on Latins

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.— The fourth congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor will be held in Mexico City on Dec. 3, according to an announcement made today by Canuto Avargas, Spanish language secretary of the federation.

Why Convention City Changed.

At first the convention was scheduled to be held in Guatemala at the close of December. Disturbed economic and political conditions in this Central American republic make impossible the holding of this gathering there as previously arranged.

The committee in charge of all arrangements for the conference is also anxious to attach as much significance to it as possible by holding the conclave simultaneously with the inauguration of the Mexican President Calles, who is himself a member of the Pan-American Federation of Labor.

Samuel Gompers, who is chairman of the executive committee charged with organizing this gathering, is planning to utilize this occasion of holding the convention at the same time with the inauguration of Calles, toward increasing his hold on the various Latin-American unions affiliated with the Pan-American Federation of Labor.

Revolt Against Gompers Hegemony.

Recent months have seen a growth in the opposition to Samuel Gompers' domination of this Pan-American body. The failure of Mr. Gompers to help the Mexican oil workers striking against the British corporation, "El Aguila," has especially been instrumental in producing dissatisfaction with him amongst the Mexican trade unionists.

Duluth, Minn., Comrades, Attention!

William Z. Foster, Workers Party candidate for President of the United States, who has recently returned from a trip to Soviet Russia, Germany, England and France where he studied labor conditions, will speak at Woodman Hall, 21st Avenue West and First Street, at 8 o'clock, Friday.

At these Foster meetings the comrades are given an opportunity to hear about the workers' movements in European countries from a comrade who has visited them recently and studied their labor problems.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

On Sunday, August 24, at 10 a. m., at Richmond Park, the Grand Rapids City Central Committee of the Workers Party will hold a picnic and entertainment. All comrades are invited to attend and bring their friends.

VETERAN SOCIALIST BELIEVES DEBS WAS PLAYED FOR SUCKER

Another old admirer of Eugene V. Debs gives LaFollette's distinguished fugleman the cold mitt because of his betrayal of the principles for which he battled bravely for years in lining up with Gompers, LaFollette, Spreckels & Co. In a letter to the DAILY WORKER, D. D. Harper of Huntingdon, W. Va., writes as follows:

"Comrades—There has not been an election for 15 years that I haven't had Debs' portrait in my window. I have loved him for years, and I have looked forward to the day when he would assist in the overthrow of this system, but when I read that he had endorsed LaFollette, my blood ran cold to think that a man that had been punished as he has by this rotten system would get down on his knees and say, 'Master, please give me a few crumbs.' That put the crimp in me. I don't think that he sold out, but I think that they gave him an all-day sucker, and that soothed his mind. The poor old man, in his second childhood, bowed to the rotten system."

CHINA IN TREATY WITH SOVIETS IN SPITE OF HUGHES

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, August 19.—Minister Schurman is coming home from Pekin, to report to Secretary Hughes on the failure of Hughes' attack on the Russo-Chinese treaty affecting the Chinese Eastern railway. Hughes warned foreign minister Koo, at Pekin, that the United States would hold China responsible for the American claim of $4,000,000 for running and maintenance of the railroad during allied intervention in Siberia. Koo replied that all claims affecting the railroad would be discussed with Russia and China jointly.

It is reported that the Russo-Chinese agreement provides that the Russian government and the Chinese government shall run the railway, which formerly was run by a company owned by Russia and operated by a mixed board. Henceforth the president of the road and three-fifths of the management will be named by Moscow.

Whiskers Don't Scare China.

Schurman is to explain how it happened that Hughes' displeasure was not sufficient to stop this advance of the Chinese government toward close alliance with Russia.

Send in that Subscription Today.

FEARS NEW WAR COMING BETWEEN U. S. AND JAPA

Preacher Trembles Le Christ Get in Bad

(By The Federated Press)

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 19—a new war coming, between the whit and yellow races?

New evidence that Japanese natio al pride has been deeply injured as that war against the United State may be brought about, in consequenc of the exclusion of Japanese immigra tion from this country on grounds o color, was laid before the Feder Council of Churches' institute on in ternational relations, here, by Dr. Wm Axling, for 23 years a missionary o the Northen Baptist church to Japan

Race Issue Complication

"Men and women, not only o Japan, but all up and down the Orient", he said, "are wondering if the hour has struck when the yellow race must organize itself under a yellow flag and fight for its place in the sun. They are asking if the way in which the recent exclusion act was passed by Congress is the white man's challenge to the yellow. . . .

"The baring of Japan's heart reveals the sobering fact that her reaction to America's exclusion move is not so much resentment as it is a dire disappointment and poignant grief that a friend feels when a friend has failed to play fair. Discrimination against her on racial grounds goes to her heart like steel.

"Japan is not thinking of herself alone. She is thinking of American-Japanese relations through the years yet unborn. She is considering the future of the Pacific. Her vision is scanning the future relationship of the Orient and Occident, of the yellow and white races.

Sky Pilotry Hit Hard

"This legislation has its tragic fashion put Christianity on trial in Japan. It has raised in many minds great question-marks against such central Christian truths as a divine Fatherhood, a world brotherhood, justice, fair play and good will toward men of every race. It has struck the Christian movement in the Japanese empire a staggering blow, and plunged the evangels of the Gospel into a dark Gethsemane."

Two Corpse Dispatchers Agree.

Hearing that Kid McCoy had called him an upstart and callow youth, Dickie Loeb replied, "I'm afraid I will have to plead guilty to being a young upstart, because I certainly have not been mellowed by nine matrimonial experiences."

The capitalist press is all excited.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

"Trade-Mark" Registered 157417

TAKE NO CHANCES
BUY THE ORIGINAL

THE GENUINE
THE RELIABLE

High Test "No Boil" Malt Extract

If you want purity— If you want reliability— If you want results— If you want to save time, worry and fuss—Insist on "No-Boil."

It is the original "No Boil" Malt Extract manufactured solely from the choicest Malted Barley.

For Sale by Leading Dealers

HIGH TEST MALT EXTRACT COMPANY

20 East Eighth Street Chicago, Ill.

Phone Wabash 2580

1917 North Western Avenue
6748 South Halsted Street
605 East 63rd Street
5062 Lincoln Avenue
1503 Roosevelt Road
Lefler Store Basement

Printed on a fine grade of paper, 12 inches by 18, suitable for framing or posting in your window.

FOSTER'S PICTURE

Should be in the home of every worker in America —because he is the only Presidential Candidate representing the class conscious workers.

THE DAILY WORKER

will be the best, the most incessant worker for

Foster For President

The only way you can secure this special

PICTURE OF FOSTER

is by getting some of the

4 MONTH SPECIAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS (For new subscribers only) $2.00

Get a New Reader for the DAILY WORKER, a Big Picture of Foster for Yourself and One for the New Subscriber.

USE THE COUPON

THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

I have sold a Special 4-Month Election Campaign sub. Please send me FREE the picture of Foster.

Name .....
Street .....
City ..... State.....

New Subscriber's
Name .....
Street .....
City .....
State .....

LA FOLLETTE BUSTS F.-L. P. OF NEBRASKA

'Progressive' Bob Kills Progressive Party

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA, Nebr., August 19.—Robert M. LaFollette, alleged champion of the oppressed, has scored his first "victory" in his program of smashing the state Farmer-Labor parties. With the resignation of the state chairman of the Progressive Party of Nebraska, the Rev. J. L. Beebe, the first of the "legally recognized" state Farmer-Labor parties has been buried.

To go into the details of the factional struggle leading up to this denouement would be useless. The so-called "LaFollette movement" in Nebraska, with its quarreling politicians and self-seekers, is but a replica of what the LaFollette illusion has created thruout the nation—a gathering place for political vultures and discredited labor fakers.

Beebe's Swan Song.

In announcing his resignation as chairman of the Nebraska party, Rev. Beebe stated that in his opinion, "the best interests of the LaFollette and Wheeler movement will be served by committing the progressive party to the dust, in the hope that out of the coming election there may come a national progressive movement free from all bitterness and strife."

He further stated that "unscrupulous politicians from the old parties disregarded the distinct character and mission of the progressive party. The party has thus become a ruined and mongrel organization."

Local capitalist newspapers which had previously denounced Beebe as a "Communist" expressed their jubilation by giving prominence to Beebe's resignation in their news columns.

Foster Speaks August 31.

The Communists recognize in the LaFollette illusion the greatest enemy that the workers and exploited farmers have at this moment. It is for that reason that Nebraska voters are urged to hear William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, expose this illusion. This opportunity will be accorded them when Foster speaks in Ohama, Sunday evening, August 31, at the Eagle Hall, Seventeenth and Cass streets. Party members and sympathizers are urged to get their tickets at the district campaign headquarters, which are located in Omaha at 206 Crounse Block.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Night and Morning to keep them Clear and Healthy
Write for Free "Eye Care" or "Eye Beauty" Book
Murine Co., Dept. H. S., 9 E. Ohio St., Chicago

Res. 1632 S. Trumbull Ave.
Phone Rockwell 5050

MORDECAI SHULMAN
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
701 Association Building
19 S. La Salle Street CHICAGO
Dearborn 8657 Central 4945-4947

WM. Z. FOSTER

What do you know about him?

When speaking to your neighbors, friends and shopmates and urging them to support and vote for William Z. Foster, the working class candidate for president, at the coming election, you will have to tell them what Foster has done for the labor movement. For this we recommend Foster's book:

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY
"THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE AND ITS LESSONS"

The story of the steel workers fight for organization and recognition, led by William Z. Foster.

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY
of this wonderful story sent to any address for $1.00

Regular price of this book is $1.75. Order at once, while the supply lasts! Remember: AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY.

Literature Department,
Workers Party of America
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

Workers Party Issues Declaration of Policy

NOTE: The following declaration of policy was adopted by the C. E. C. of the Workers Party before the June 17th Convention. It has been read before various membership meetings. It is now printed for close study by the members of the Workers Party.

* * *

AFTER consulting the Executive Committee of the Communist International the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party makes the following declaration:

1. The United States of America is at present going thru a great social and political crisis which is bound to become more and more aggravated. The agrarian crisis causing the bankruptcy of millions of farmers and, at the same time, causing many others to completely get into the clutches of banks; the oil scandal which has accelerated the process of disintegration of both capitalist parties, all this is setting in motion tremendous masses of workers as well as of the urban and rural petty bourgeois population. The efforts of these masses to establish a third party represent their endeavor to emancipate themselves from the domination by the trusts and their political machines. But the capitalist class will undoubtedly endeavor to retard this movement by establishing the leadership of petty-bourgeois politicians over the third party movement; it will make an effort to place it into the hands of old politicians bound by thousands of threads with the capitalist class. The petty-bourgeois movement can play a progressive part only when it will follow the lead of the working class. If it will be led by the petty-bourgeois politicians it will fall under the domination of banks and trusts, even if it is participated in by working masses, for nowhere in the world was the petty-bourgeoisie capable of being its own leader. This compelled the Workers Party to strive by all means to enter this broad current of the masses in order to assist the masses of the petty-bourgeoisie in detaching themselves from the capitalist class, in order to organize the most advanced elements of the workers in the ranks of the Workers Party and in order to thus create the forces necessary for the future struggle for power.

Must Become Mass Party.

2. With this task before it, the Workers Party must not for a moment forget that the leading force in this struggle which will transform the country of trusts into a country ruled by labor will be the working class. The first task of the Workers Party is to become a mass Communist Party of workers. It can fulfil this task only by most actively participating in the establishment of a labor party which will embrace all elements of the working class willing to conduct a policy independent of the capitalist class and be establishing a bond with the farmers who are at present in a state of strong fermentation. These two independent tasks—the task of building around the Communist Party of a broad class labor party and of establishing a bond between the labor party and the poorest elements of farmers—have developed in the United States, thanks to the peculiarities of historical evolution, as one problem, namely, the building of a common party of workers and exploited farmers. In many states Farmer Labor Parties are already springing up. This peculiarity of the situation which does not permit a separation of the task of creating a Labor Party from the task of coming into closest contact with the farmers, requires of the Workers Party special methods. The American Communists must establish within the Farmer-Labor Party a strong consolidated labor wing including the agricultural wage workers. This wing shall lead the exploited farmer masses instead of falling under the influence of the petty-bourgeois character of the latter.

Must Correct Mistakes.

3. The Workers Party which immediately after it has been established was capable of emerging from the stage of agitation and propaganda and of taking up with great energy the political struggle, has still made a series of mistakes which must be corrected if we do not wish to hand great injury to the entire Communist movement in America and to the struggle of the working class for its emancipation. Altho the conditions of the labor aristocracy in America have grown worse after the war, altho the economic depression which has already begun will render it still worse, altho the labor aristocracy constitutes a minority of the working class of America, the Workers Party failed in developing sufficient pliability in manoeuvering with regard to the so-called progressive elements and did not devote, and does not yet devote, due attention to the work among the workers organized in labor unions. We must maintain a close contact and work with the Left Wing within organized labor, but in so doing we must not forego our independence of political action and our complete freedom of criticism. The above mentioned reasons the Workers Party did not yet succeed in becoming the center of the discontented elements in the labor movement. The main task of the party in the near future will consist in trying to recover what was lost in this respect, to create a real basis in the labor union movement, in order to lead the masses of the workers. Only by creating a powerful working class base will the Workers Party be able to play the leading part in the movement which had assumed the form of Farmer-Labor Parties and to exercise its influence upon the farmer masses. This influence must be broadened by direct work of the Workers Party among the farmers, which must be increased in the future. As to the task of influencing the farmer masses, the Workers Party has not only insufficiently drawn the line between itself and the petty-bourgeois elements which endeavored to establish a petty-bourgeois Third Party, but the Workers Party has to a certain degree itself fallen under the influence of petty-bourgeois elements. The statement of the Communist secretary of the committee which has issued a call for the Conference of June 17th, Comrade Hathaway, to the effect that the Farmer-Labor Party will not pursue utopian Communistic objects, but will, on the contrary, strive after realistic aims, is a sample of conduct inadmissable for a member of the Communist Party. The Executive Committee of the Communist International expressed its surprise that the C. E. C. of the Workers Party did not answer this statement by removing such a member from his post, and did not show to the Party as a whole that the Communist Party and the Communists, when forming a bloc with the petty-bourgeois elements, must so much more sharply underscore their views instead of disavowing them.

Shows Danger in Alliances.

4. At the Conference of June 17th, the task of the Workers Party must be to warn the workers and farmers of America against the danger of an alliance with a petty-bourgeois Third Party with a man of the LaFollette type at its head, which party will become not the means of emancipating the toiling masses from capitalist domination, but a new means for duping these masses. In principle the Communist Party does not only not reject an alliance with the petty bourgeoisie, but, as have done the Russian Bolsheviki, it is ready to make an alliance for the common struggle against the rule of the bourgeoisie, with petty-bourgeois parties, when they pursue a revolutionary policy. The LaFollette movement, however, has not decided to really break with the capitalist class and the capitalist party. An alliance with the LaFollette movement would not serve the liberation of the petty-bourgeois masses from domination by capital. This can be reached only thru the sharpest criticism of the policies of politicians like LaFollette and Magnus Johnson, thru endeavoring simultaneously to create an alliance with such elements of farmers and petty-bourgeoisie which manifest that they are truly striving for an independent policy against capitalist parties and against capital. To support the petty-bourgeoisie when, in its vacillation, it manifests a tendency to split from big capital, is the duty of revolutionary workers. Such support, however, must express itself not in being dragged after the petty-bourgeoisie as its tail end, but in showing it the way, and pushing it to the left, in criticising its half-heartedness and lack of decision.

5. The Workers Party must strive at the Conference of June 17, to establish a Farmer-Labor Party which would take upon itself to develop the forces directed against both capitalist parties and the capitalist order as a whole. The Workers Party must nominate and put up a fight for Communists as candidates for President and Vice-president of the United States on such an independent Farmer-Labor ticket. If this should be refused, the Workers Party must then propose to the Conference and support the nomination of at least a determined and reliable respresentative of the workers for president and of exploited farmers for vice-president. The Workers Party must submit to the Conference a program which would combine the immediate demands of city and rural workers with the demands of the toiling farmers against exploitation by capital. If these propositions will be rejected the Workers Party must declare to the Conference: "You have confidence in LaFollette or other similar politicians; we have none. But we are ready to support such candidates as LaFollette provided: (1) They immediately break with the republican or democratic parties issuing a specific clear declaration to this effect; (2) they accept the program of the Farmer-Labor Party in full; (3) they come to the conference and assume specific obligations to work under full control of the Farmer-Labor Party; (4) they accept the control of the Farmer-Labor Party over their campaign funds."

LaFollette Sticks With Bosses.

LaFollette will not break with the capitalist class; he will not submit to control by the Farmer-Labor Party. Our offer will prove this and show to the masses that our position is not due to partisan ambition, but is a desire to prevent the Farmer-Labor movement from becoming a mere bridge in the career of a capitalist politician who will later sell out the masses as has happened many times in the history of the United States.

The principal strategical problem of the Workers Party at the June 17th Conference will be, not refusing all co-operation with the LaFollette Third Party movement, to maintain contact with the masses of workers and poor farmers willing to form a Farmer-Labor Party. In case a split is forced upon the Workers Party by the Right Wing of the Conference thru the complete refusal of our program, the restriction of the autonomy and independence of the Workers Party, the expulsion of the Communists, or thru any other reason, every effort shall be made to include the farmer-labor masses in the split. In case of a split the question of whether or not the Workers Party shall act altogether independently, in its own name, in the election campaign or whether it shall launch a campaign under the name of the Farmer-Labor Party will depend largely upon whether or not it is successful in the split and will depend on how far it maintains contact with the working masses represented at the June 17th Conference.

7. The aim to strive at is not to split the Left Wing from the Labor Party as quickly as possible in order to form this split off party into a mass Communist Party. But we must strive to unite the Left Wing grow within the Labor Party and at the same time at taking in its most advanced and revolutionary elements into the Workers Party.

Establish Bond With Masses.

8. The election campaign of the Workers Party must aim at broadening the working class basis of the Workers Party, at increasing the movement for Farmer-Labor Party and at establishing a bond with the masses of exploited farmers.

9. The C. E. C. maintains however, that it is highly desirable that the Workers Party, alone or eventually combined with the Left elements of the workers and farmers into one radical Farmer-Labor Party, should make every effort to nominate its own candidates in at least the most important states containing masses of industrial proletariat and exploited farmers and develop an energetic election campaign.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party of America.
Wm. Z. FOSTER, Chairman,
C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary.

NOTE:—Comrade Hathaway explains that the statement referred to was not written by him but by the chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, who is not a Communist, and that it passed thru his hands merely as a matter of routine. He states further that of he had noted the paragraph complained of he would certainly have objected to it.

* * *

As to the Situation in the American Workers Party:

IN connection with the declaration concerning the general political situation which is being published by the C. E. C. of the Workers Party after consulting the Communist International the Executive Committee of the Communist International makes the following statement:

The Executive Committee of the Communist International deems it necessary to address itself to the American comrades reminding them of the necessity for harmonious work between the group of Comrade Foster and that of Comrade Ruthenberg. The controversies now prevailing between these two groups are due to the weakness of the Party, to the great problems now confronting it and especially to the situation in which, so far, no other Communist Party had been placed. If the group represented by Comrade Ruthenberg and Pepper has made the mistake of not realizing sufficiently the dangers besetting the party on the long path leading to securing the co-operation of petty-bourgeois masses, the comrades gathered around the other group, such as Comrades Hathaway and Cannon, have made a number of declarations which show that in their efforts to secure influence on the petty-bourgeoisie they failed to maintain the Communist position. Only when the Party broadens its proltearian basis and clearly develops its Communist character will it be able to secure influence on the masses of the farmers.

The Executive Committee of the Communist International calls the attention of the C. E. C. also to the dangerous tendencies signalized by the articles of Comrade Lore and some of his followers who, in their estimation of the problems of the Communist International, in their estimation of the Labor government of England and of the events in Germany are manifesting remnants of views of the Two and a Half International. The C. E. C must carry on an ideological campaign against such a tendency.

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

TAIL END OF 'DEM' TICKET SAYS HIS 'YES'

Bill's Brother Charlie W. Puts Stuff on Air

LINCOLN, Nebr., August 19.—Party lines were disregarded in the notification ceremony of Charles W. Bryan, brother of the anti-Darwinian exponent of Ku Kluxism, and candidate for vice-president of the United States on the Republican ticket.

There is a growing belief among the capitalist politicians that the elections will not give either one of the presidential candidates a majority of the electoral votes, thus throwing the selection of president into the House. Should the fortunes of politics throw Bryan into the White House farsighted politicians,—farsighted so far as their general interests are concerned—deem it the better part of valor to be on friendly terms with Bryan who would probably get the LaFollette vote.

There being no outstanding issue between the Republicans and Democrats except the very elusive speculation as to which party contains the most finished gang of crooks, there is no reason why nomination ceremonies should not be non-partisan.

In fact there is no good reason why La Follette and his merry men should not get on the fun, seeing that he also differs with his political competitors on the question of more or less dishonesty.

Are You Young in Spirit?

If you're young (in spirit) and have thirty-five cents, be at the Hebrew Institute, Taylor and Lytle Sts., on Saturday, August 23, at eight o'clock, where the Young Workers' League, Marshfield branch, will hold a novel affair. The proceeds will go to the "Young Worker" and the Branch is determined that the dance shall be a huge success. There will be games and surprises and many novel features and a good time is assured to all.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20.

Italian Cicero, Circolo Giovanile Hall, 14th St. between 51st and 50th Ct.
Italian Terra Cotta, 2475 Clybourn Ave., 2rd floor.
Scandi-City English, Orden and Taylor.
Czecho-Slovak No. 2, 2548 S. Homan Ave.
Czecho-Slovak Cicero, Masaryk School, 57th Ave. and 22nd Place, Cicero, Ill.
Douglas Park Jewish, 2420 W. Roosevelt Road.
Roumanian Branch, 254 Clybourn Ave.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 21.

Finnish Branch, 2409 N. Halsted St.
South Side English, 2201 S. Wabash Ave.
Scandinavian Karl Marx, 2723 Hirsch Blvd.
Russian, 1962 W. Division St.
11th Ward Italian, 2453 S. Oakley Blvd.
21st Ward Italian, 511 N. Sangamon St.

Lithuanian Comrades, Take Notice!

Lithuanian Branch, No. 2, of the Workers Party, will hold a general membership meeting Thursday, Aug. 21, at Sovick Hall, 1900 So. Union Avenue.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22.

Ukrainian No. 2, Ukrainian Educational Society, 1901 Stephen St.
Polish North Side, 1902 W. Division St.
Lithuanian No. 5, Milda Hall, 2142 S. Halsted St.
Greek Branch, 722 Blue Island Ave.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23.

Meeting of All Party members in Local No. 270, A. F. W. of L., Room 307, 166 W. Washington Blvd., at 2:30 p. m.
Meeting of all Party members of Food workers at the Local Office, 166 West Washington St., 6:30 p. m.

* * *

CHICAGO STREET MEETINGS.

The Workers Party and the Young Workers League are now running their street meetings in the following congressional districts where our comrades are now getting signatures to petitions in Cicero and Englewood we are having trouble with the police and intend to fight it out. Notices of all our street meetings will appear in the DAILY WORKER every few days.

Wednesday, August 20.

Belmont and Wilton Ave.—Auspices, North Side English Branch.

Local Boston Open Air Meetings.

Sunday afternoons, Boston Common Mall, Tree No. 7 at 4 p.m.

Tuesday, Warren Ave. and Tremont Sts., outside Scenic Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Friday, Pemberton Square on Court House steps, at 8 p. m.

Good Speakers, Questions and Discussions. Party members are urged to attend.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

GERMAN CABINET MEETS TO HEAR LONDON REPORT

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Chancellor Marx, Foreign Secretary Stresemann and other German delegates to the London reparation conference, arrived home today and immediately went into conference with President Ebert.

Later President Ebert summoned a Cabinet meeting to get a report on the London agreement and the senior committee of the Reichstag met to arrange for a Reichstag meeting to enact legislation to put the Dawes plan into operation.

Chancellor Marx and the Foreign Secretary will make a report on the reparations conference at a plenary session.

Already England Gets Busy.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Russian English treaty has already begun to liven things up in England, according to announcement made by Philip Snowden, Labor Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"The Royal Mint is striking 40,000,000 silver half-rubles for the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The bullion has been purchased by the Soviet Union. The agreed charges for manufacture are based on the charges made for analogous services to colonial or foreign governments, and allow a fair profit to the Mint. The manufacturing charges are met by the Soviet Union on each shipment of 5,000,000 pieces, half in advance and half on delivery in Russia."

Wife Gets Walloped.

ESCANABA, Mich., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Fred Embs was suffering seriously today when her husband went on a rampage of temporary insanity and wounded her before blowing his own head off with a shotgun.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

Thursday, August 21.

Intervale and Wilkins Aves.—Jewish speakers.

Friday, August 22.

14th St. and Irving Place—Harry Winitsky.
Jefferson and East Broadway—Sam Nesin and Jewish speakers.
110th St. and 5th Ave.—Juliet S. Ponyts and others.
125th St. and Brook Ave.—George Siskind and Bandy.
Graham and Varet Streets—Jewish speakers.
Grand and Roebling Streets—Speakers: John Marshall, Mary Hartman.
Pitkin and Pitkin Ave.—Ben Levy, Simon Felshin.
42nd St. and 5th Ave.—Speaker: Joe Brandy.
13th Ave. and 42nd Street—Speakers: I. Potash, Sparer.
25th St. and Mermaid Aves.—Mitchell and others.

Saturday, August 23.

25th St. and 8th Ave.—Speaker to be announced.
161st St. and Prospect Ave.—Speakers: W. W. Weinstein, Martin.
Grand St. Extension—Speaker: Pascal Cosgrove.
Stone and Pitkin Aves.—Primoff, Fannie Warshafsky.

Union Hill, New Jersey.

Tuesday, August 19—Speaker: Harry Winitsky.
Saturday, August 23—Speaker: Jack Statchel.

Los Angeles, Attention!

Sunday, August 24th will be a gala day for the comrades of Los Angeles. Everyone will attend the joy-ride and picnic at Tepange Canyon Beach where there will be games, entertainments, dancing and refreshments galore. Tickets 75c including transportation. Trucks and autos will leave from corner Soto and Brooklyn Aves. at 9 in the morning. Directions to the picnic: Follow Santa Monica Beach road to first new concrete bridge—its just the other side of bridge.

Not Bad, But Rough.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Aug. 19.—"He isn't bad, judge; he's just rough," pleaded Mrs. E. E. Cornwell for the release of Michael Fisher, whom she had charged with striking and beating her. Fisher was knocked off his feet when she paid his fine of $50.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

COOLIDGE LIE ON DEFENSE DAY IS EXPOSED BY BELL

General Requests Bosses to Send Workers

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Gen. J. Franklin Bell, military engineer member of the commission government of the District of Columbia, is chairman of the Mobilization Day arrangements here. In an official statement, urging immediate lining up of the true patriots for the goose-step demonstration he says.

"The call that has been issued by the War Department for Defense Day covers males between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive. The official estimated population of the District is 486,936. Of this there are 118,175 between the ages of 18 to 45 inclusive.

Bosses—Stand By!

"The minimum quota for the District of Columbia for Defense Day is 30,000. This constitutes 25 percent of the whole and likewise 25 percent of any individual group. Heads of institutions should patriotically see to it that there is an enrollment of not less than 25 percent and that it should be done quickly."

Exposes Coolidge Piffle

This demand on employers to muster 25 percent of their hands takes no account of the desire of the employes to go on parade. It is a flat contradiction of Coolidge's claim that the performance is to be wholly voluntary and that nobody has proposed to bring civilians generally into it.

Two Hurt In Auto Crash.

ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 19.—Dr. David N. Conner, 46, and his son-in-law, Robert Hilburt, suffered serious injuries when their auto was struck and demolished by a Big Four engine at Markleville.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

YOUNG WORKERS PLAN DRIVE ON BIG FACTORIES

First Conference Held Is Big Success

By AL SCHAAP,
(Special to the DAILY WORKER)
City Organizer, Young Workers League, Local Chicago.

The first general conference of all officers of the Young Workers League of Chicago, attended also by many militant members, was a success.

This conference was called by the Chicago City Executive Committee of the Young Workers League for the purpose of enrolling the entire membership behind the program of action adopted at the last city convention.

With the slogan, "Into the Factories," plans for reaching the young workers were brought before the meeting. Comrade Al Schaap, city organizer, directed the attention of the conference to the campaigns conducted by the Workers Party and the necessity for the membership of the Young Workers League to get behind them. He also pointed to the need of broadening the activities of the organization thru the means of a constant house-to-house campaign for membership and subscriptions to the official organ of the league, the Young Worker.

"Moving" the branches into the vicinity of factories was recognized as a method to establish a closer contact with youth labor.

The question of Mobilization Day and International Youth Day were discussed, and the league will make all efforts to point out to the young workers of Chicago the significance of these days.

The Young Workers League of Chicago will carry on an intensive anti-mobilization week drive, beginning with a mass meeting on International Youth Day, Sept. 7, 8 p. m., in the Northwest Hall, North and Western Aves., and continuing thruout the week, with extensive open air meetings near factories until Mobilization Day. Thru these activities the Young Workers League will draw to itself the attention of the young workers in this city.

A class in "Work of the League" will open shortly in the month of September. The students of this class will be selected from the various branches.

Comrades Garver and Barney Mass rendered reports on industrial work of the league, pointing to the oncoming economic situation and the need for intensive activity by the Y. W. L.

Women After Youth.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—A patriotic meeting in co-operation with the Daughters of the American Revolution is announced by the San Francisco club of the National League of American Pen Women (not jail birds) to join in the propaganda by the D. A. R. against racial and liberal movements.

A letter from the D. A. R. denouncing the Youth movement as "the most dastardly of all the old-world evils that have been brought to our shores" and as "aiming at the heart of our most sacred and most foundations, destroying the moral fiber of our boys and girls," will be used by the local Pen Women as a text to denounce radicalism and preach reaction.

SHOE WORKERS PICNIC

This year's annual picnic of the Joint Council No. 3, of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, will be held at Atlas Park, 5025 N. Crawford Ave., on Sunday afternoon and evening, August 31. An elaborate program has been arranged by the committee. Baseball, racing, games, and dancing to the tunes of the music by the well-known Jansen Orchestra.

The committee extends its heartiest invitation to all the shoe workers and their friends to attend this picnic.

Admission 50 cents. Crawford Ave. cars stop at the grove.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

New York, Attention!
THE FIRST GREAT FILM FROM SOVIET RUSSIA
"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"
Produced by Proletkino (Moscow)
In co-operation with the Red Army
A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest
8 DAYS
AUGUST 22 TO 29, INCLUSIVE,
At the
LENOX THEATRE
111th Street and Lenox Avenue
Added Film Feature
"RUSSIA IN OVERALLS"
One Performance Nightly Starting at 5:30 P. M.
Saturday and Sunday 3 Performances at 3-5, 7-9, 9-11
ADMISSION - - - - - 50c

DE VALERA OPENS FIGHT ON FREE STATE CABINET

Republican Killed at Big Mass Meeting

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DUBLIN, Aug. 19.—One Irish republican was killed by Free State troops following a meeting at Ennis, County Clare, at which Eamonn De Valera, leader of the republicans, delivered a speech.

De Valera did not offer any program on which the fight for independence would be based. He appealed to the patriotism of his audience, protested against the partition of Ireland, admitted that temporarily they may be forced to submit to certain things, but would never willingly stand for a king.

Sinn Fein Not Republican.

The late Arthur Griffith, who was the organizer of the Sinn Fein party and the brains of that organization up until the time of his death shortly after the signing of the treaty in 1921, did not believe in a republican form of government for Ireland, and even De Valera was quite willing that the Irish question should be settled on the basis of dominion home rule. His "Cuban interview," which started the war between himself and Judge Cohalan in America, showed his frame of mind.

Since then De Valera has changed his mind and now he is leader of the bourgeois republicans, who in their attitude on the labor question are just as reactionary as the Free Staters. The leaders of the republicans now protesting that James Connolly, the Communist, who really was responsible for the Easter week rebellion, was not one of them. The object of this propaganda is to convince the business elements that the republican party is perfectly safe and can be trusted.

Australian Iron Workers Aid Germans Thru Red Workers Aid

BRISBANE, Queensland, Aug. 19.—The Ironworkers' annual conference at Brisbane, attended by delegates from all the Australian states, carried the following resolution after listening to an address from the International Workers' Aid on assistance to the German workers:

"That the council of the Federated Ironworkers' Association make a donation to the German workers' relief fund as a token of international solidarity with the German working class in its struggle against allied and German imperialism.

"Further, we hope that the German workers will soon overthrow the degradation, misery and suffering now in operation, and crown their heroic struggle against capitalism with success by establishing a German workers' republic."

It was decided to recommend to the branches of the association throughout Australia to assist the German workers' relief fund.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

HOOVER IN PROPAGANDA MOVE FOR SHIPPING TRUST TO CUT WAGE STANDARDS OF SEAMEN

By LELAND OLDS

Will the hard won standards of American seamen be protected if the republican administration is given a new lease in November? Secretary Hoover's department of commerce publishes an article on wage costs of foreign and American ships in which it carries on the anti-labor propaganda of American shipping owners. The article gets wide circulation in Commerce Reports, the weekly publication of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

"That American shipping is handicapped," says this article, "can be seen from the fact that wage scales ranges from 44.8 per cent to 216 per cent higher than the wages paid on foreign ships. That cheaper operating costs must come in the near future is evident from the rapid development of motor ships."

Seamen's Wages Given.

A table accompanying the article shows that the lower labor costs of foreign vessels are based on exploitation of seamen which can only be described as wage slavery. This table gives the monthly wages on British, Japanese and American ships as follows:

	British.	Jap.	U. S.
Monthly Wage.
First mate	$92	$101	$185
Second mate	70	73	165
Third mate	60	51	150
Able seamen	39	19	68
Ordinary seamen	27	8	48
Chief engineer	105	137	260
Second engineer	92	97	165
Third engineer	70	73	—
Oilers	—	30	73
Firemen	42	21	65
Trimmers, coal passers	39	18	60

In addition to the comparable occupations listed, the British vessels carry a carpenter at $50, a boatswin at $46, a donkeyman at $46 and a fourth engineer at $50; the Japanese a doctor at $81, a purser at $44, four quartermasters at $29 each, a carpenter at $37, a boatswain at $44, a fourth engineer at $51 and a number of cadets and apprentices. The steward's department with five men on the British boats costs $182 a month, with nine on Japanese crew of 61 costs $1,566 and the American $426.

U. S. Sailor's Best Paid.

Taking the full quota for manning an 8,500-ton dead-weight coal-burning steamship, the British crew of 39 costs $1,783 a month in wages, the Japanese crew of 61 costs $1,566 and the American crew of 41 $3,465. Crews of a similar ship registered under other maritime countries are: Norway, 42 men, cost $1,100 a month; Netherlands, 38, $1,632; Sweden, 40, $1,821; France, 45, $1,319.

Aside from the extremely low wage paid Japanese seamen, the outstanding fact in the table is the low rate at which foreign countries obtain their responsible officers. This illustrates the tendency in older countries for the pay of skilled employes to come down until they are economically on the plane of the laborer.

Boss Propaganda for Decrease.

One fact which takes most of the kick out of the government's employers' propaganda against seamen's wages is that these wages represent less than one-sixth of the cost of operating such ships.

SONG FESTIVAL IN CLEVELAND NEXT SUNDAY

Interesting Program Assured by Committee

A great International Song Festival for the benefit of the starving workers in Germany will be held under the auspices of the Friends of Soviet Russia, Sunday, August 24, at Finnish Grounds, Lorain Ave. and West 117th Street.

Participating organizations: Bohemian Singing Circle Star, Hungarian-American Singing Society, Ukrainian Children's Club, Lithuanian Lyric Society, Slovak Singing Society, Freiheit Dramatic and Singing Society, Ukrainian Dramatic Club, Finnish Singing Society, Hungarian Children's Club.

Take Lorain-117th street car and walk five blocks south.

Refreshments on grounds. Admission, 10c a person. Children free.

Capitalist Paper Predicts Wage Cut For Illinois Miner

Pointing out that approximately half of the 300 Illinois mines are closed, the Industrial Digest, a magazine published here for bankers, manufacturers, investors and capitalists generally, warns employers that "conditions point to a period of declining wages and a corresponding multiplication of trouble for manufacturers and other employers of labor. . . . Wages must drop along with other items. . . . The Illinois miners cannot operate at a profit with union men and union wages."

The magazine concludes with the ominous statement that the workers are getting too much and must accept a cut in wages. The only alternative, it appears, is a united fight against wage cuts and increases in hours.

Says Majority of A. F. of L. Executives Won't Vote for LaFollette

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—John J. Keegan, former organizer for the International Association of Machinists, and formerly a member of the United States Employes' Compensation Commission, today made public a letter to Samuel Gompers, declaring that six of the eleven mebers of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor which recently endorsed the LaFollette-Wheeler presidential ticket at Atlantic City, would not vote for these men in the election.

Keegan said he heard "six members of the executive committee plainly and emphatically state that they were not going to vote for Robert M. LaFollette."

Detroit Comrades Outline Work for Big Fall Campaign

A meeting of all the members of the Workers Party will be held Monday, August 25, 1924, in the House of the Masses, at 8 p. m., where the following questions are to be taken up for discussion.

a. The Party Program of Action and how it is to be carried out most successfully.

b. The political campaign in Detroit and vicinity and man yother local questions will come up for discussion.

In view of the fact that the Party Program of Action is the most effective program ever brought to the attention of the membership, it is expected that every party member will be present at the meeting.

Jobs on the Skids.

PHILADELPHIA, August 19.—According to the monthly review of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, employment in representative plants in Pennsylvania and New Jersey continued to recede in July and total wage payments again declined.

In New Jersey declines were noticed in boot and shoe factories and at pottery plants. Automobile parts, jewelry and novelties also slid down the incline.

Far North Is Explored.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 19.—Major R. N. Hobbs, World War flyer and member of the Victory Beach flying station on Lake Winnipeg, has just returned from a 2,000-mile trip thru the north country, during which 1,700 photographs were taken of hitherto unexplored lands. The flight, which was taken under orders from the department of the interior, was for the purpose of getting material from which reliable maps could be made.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

FRENCH CHAMBER IS EXPECTED TO SUPPORT HERRIOT

Teeth of PoincareWrath Pulled by Plutes

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Premier Herriot is not expected to have very hard sledding with his Dawes plan agreement when the chamber of deputies opens next Thursday. As already reported in the DAILY WORKER, the Poincare opposition, according to well-authenticated information, is not liable to prove vigorous.

The Dawes plan is a well thought out scheme to restore capitalism in Europe to stability. Of course this is an impossible task. But drowning men are known to grasp at a straw, and there is no doubt but capitalism as an economic system is on its last legs.

What the Dawes plan may do if it gets going is to postpone the inevitable for a time.

The German capitalists have the assurance of getting a $200,000,000 loan and the satisfaction of being again accepted into the international family of robbers. But Germany must pay under the Dawes plan $200,000,000 in reparations the first year and $450,000,000 later on. Not such a pleasant prospect for the German workers, who must foot the bills.

Premier Herriot did a good stroke of business for his masters. How proud the socialists who suported the French LaFollette must feel when they learn that the French capitalists receive 900,000,000 francs in reparations the first year, besides a guarantee of coal and coke deliveries for the next thirty years, far beyond what she could expect thru her occupation of the Ruhr. And more important still from the point of view of calming French fear of a German war of revenge, is the knowledge that this guarantee is backed by the bayonets of Britain and the United States.

Congratulations For Kellogg.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The most congratulated man in England today is Ambassador Kellogg, who took a leading part in the discussions that led up to the agreement to put the Dawes plan into operation, and particularly the agreement between France and Germany on the evacuation of the Ruhr.

While Kellog was not officially representing the United States government, his words carried great weight because the European politicians knew that he spoke for his government which, in turn, carried out the desires of the big American bankers without whose co-operation a settlement would be impossible.

That Ambassador Kellogg is playing for the German vote in the United States can be judged from his support of that Germany be allowed to choose the bankers who are to float the loan.

There is some dissantisfaction in liberal circles due to the ability of France to block the operations of the transfer committee which is to handle the German reparations funds. When the sum in the hands of this committee reaches 5,000,000,000 marks, above what can be distributed in reparations, this excess will go to the German budget unless one of the committee should appeal. This one is certain to be France.

Germany is certainly in the hands of receivers, but the German capitalists are willing to swap their dignity for an opportunity to make profits.

Italy did not figure very much in the conference. Mussolini did not dare come to London, fearing labor demonstrations because of his murder of Matteotti.

Member of Anthony Wayne Family Much Madder Than Tony

(By The Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—A circular has been sent out to state regents of the Daughters of the American Revolution by Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president general, in which Mrs. Cook denounces the youth movement as being aimed at the heart of "our most sacred and moral foundations," and declaring that schools, teachers and school literature are being affected by dangerous pacifist propaganda. In reply, Milton Fairchild, chairman of the Character Education Institution, declares the charges to be unfounded. He said he had investigated Mrs. Cook's "evidence," and it was worthless.

Omaha Branch of the Party Gaining Among The Workers of City

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

OMAHA, Neb., August 19.—Things are "picking up" with the Workers Party membership in Omaha. At the last meeting of the English branch three applications were received, and the Jewish branch is also showing promising signs for growth.

Street meetings will be held every night from Aug. 18 to 23. At these meetings LaFollette's pretension to the leadership of the workers and farmers will be exposed and the program of the Communist Party presented as the only hope of the toiling masses in this country. Stanley J. Clark of St. Louis will do the heavy oratory, with David Coutts assisting as chairman.

The last street meetings, at which District Organizer J. E. Snyder was chief speaker, were highly successful, and if the supply of "street voices" can be kept up the meetings will be held as often as possible right up until cold weather. Snyder is now busy lining up the Foster-Gitlow campaign in Iowa, where he will be winding up a busy week in Sioux City.

There is but little hope of getting the names of Foster and Gitlow on the ballot as Workers Party candidates in this Bryanized state, but the district promises to make up for it in organization work.

All together for Foster and Gitlow and a mass Communist Party in America, and don't forget that William Z. Foster speaks in Omaha on the 31st.

DICK AGENCY IS USED IN KILLING SMALL BUSINESS

Woman Used in War on LaFollette's Friends

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—Startling exposures of the corrupt practices of detective agencies are again brought to light in a suit brought by the Pico Register company of Kansas City against the United Autograph Register company of Chicago.

Charlotte Dillon, a bookkeeper for the Pico firm, testified that she was placed there by the Midwest Detective Agency with the object of wrecking the firm. She was employed by Harry Boyle, then superintendent of the detective agency. He ordered her to take the position of bookkeeper for the Pico Register company.

She had access to all the files from the company and all letters from the United Autograph Register company she took to Boyle. She also received orders for deliveries of Pico company products, which she disregarded or changed around, thereby causing general chaos in the business. As a result the Pico Register company went to pieces.

Miss Dillon also admitted that she worked for three years for the Burns Detective Agency.

Luis Gets Effusive.

WASHINGTON, August 19.— Luis N. Morones, chief labor skate in Mexico, has telegraphed the chief labor skate in America, Sam Gompers, thanking him for the reception they handed out to Kid Calles, recent victor in the Mexican presidential bout. Gompers was invited to come over and have some hot tamales with Luis at any time he desired.

Five-Day Week Frowned On.

TORONTO, August 19.—A proposal for a 5-day week was reported unfavorably by the Law Committee of the International Typographical Union in convention today. It was sponsored by New York and opposed by Western delegates. Kalamazoo, Mich., will get the 1925 convention.

MITCHALL'S
INTERNATIONAL ORCHESTRA
Union Music Furnished For All Occassions
Write for appointments to
M. MITCHALL,
(Teacher of Saxophone)
1640 W. Congress St. Chicago, Ill.

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND
CARL BRODSKY
1123 Broadway, New York City
Tel. Watkins 3626.

OSBORNE C. WOOD WINS FORTUNE IN WALL STREET

Success at Roulette Swells the Swag

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Aug. 19.—His many friends in the underworld are congratulating Osborne C. Wood, son of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor of the Philippine Islands, on his latest success in adding $300,000 to his already large fortune made in the Wall Street stock market.

Mr. Wood is to be seen nightly at the gaming tables in Biarritz. He is living a gay life and useful work is the farthest thing from his mind.

Started in Manila.

While he was in the Philippines with his father, young Wood made something like a million on the stock exchange. Threats of investigation did not bother the young man. His father had sufficient influence with Silent Cal to call off the bloodhounds and furthermore a quiz of young Wood did not promise very much in the way of political ammunition for the election campaign.

With the $200,000 won by him at the gambling tables, Mr. Wood's fortune is now estimated at $1,500,000.

Gold In Cast Iron.

The stock that brought the young American his good luck is United States Cast Iron Pipe. This was the stock he hit from Manila when he cleaned up the million. It is not likely that Osborne C. Wood would recognize a piece of cast iron pipe if he saw it on the street. He is reported as having an ambition to enter the diplomatic service. A few more successful gambles and he will be fully qualified.

Your Union Meeting

THIRD WEDNESDAY, AUG. 20, 1924.

No.	Name of Local and place of Meeting.
28	Amalgamated Clothing Workers, 1544 N. Robey St.
179	B. & R. 1 W. Stone Derrick, 180 W. Washington St.
131	Belt Line Federation, 62nd and Halsted.
2	Brick and Clay, Village Hall, Lansing.
10	Carpenters, Western and Lexington.
242	Carpenters, 5443 S. Ashland Ave.
250	Carpenters, Blacker's Hall, Lake St.
643	Carpenters, 180 W. Washington St.
1693	Carpenters, 1638 Halsted St.
1784	Carpenters, 1638 Halsted St. H. Fehling, Rec. Sec'y., 2253 Grace St. Irving 7507.
1922	Carpenters, 6414 S. Halsted St.
2289	Carpenters, 113 S. Ashland Blvd.
14	Carvers (Wood), 1619 N. California Avenue.
	Cigarmakers, 215 S. Ashland Blvd., 7:30 p. m.
798	Electricians, 127 N. Francisco Ave.
85	Engineers, So. Chicago, 11405 Michigan.
2	Firemen's Assn., 159 N. State St., 2 p. m.
451	Firemen and Enginemen, 9118 Commercial Ave.
	Hod Carriers, District Council, 814 W. Harrison St.
10	Janitors (Mun.), Keddie and Belmont.
5	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
366	Machinists, 818 W. 55th St.
478	Machinists, 3802 W. Madison St.
830	Machinists, 1182 Milwaukee Ave.
815	Maintenance of Way, 3324 S. Halsted St.
	Marine Cooks, 357 N. Clark St.
22	Moulders, 2800 W. Madison St.
54	Painters, Sherman and Main Sts., Evanston.
624	Painters, 180 W. Washington St.
893	Painters, Moose Hall, La Grange.
972	Painters, Odd Fellows Hall, Blue Island.
5	Plasterers, 910 W. Monroe St.
18653	Poultry and Game, 200 Water St.
346	Railway Clerks, 318 W. Washington St.
225	Railroad Trainmen, 612 W. 59th St.
900	Railroad Trainmen, 64th and Union Ave.
931	Railroad Trainmen, 159 N. State Street, 1:30 p. m.
73	Sheet Metal, 714 W. Harrison St.
723	Teamsters (Soda), 220 S. Ashland Blvd.
733	Teamsters, 220 S. Ashland Ave.
777	Teamsters, 6359 S. Ashland Ave.
8	Wall Paper Crafts, Chicago and Western Aves.

JAY STETLER'S
RESTAURANT
Established 1901
1053 W. Madison St. Chicago
Tel. Monroe 2241

FIRST SHOWING OF RUSSIAN FILM IN NEW YORK CITY

Beauty and the Bolshevik, the new Russian dramatic film, will be shown in New York for the first time in an 8-day run at the Lenox Theatre, 111th street and Lenox avenue, August 22nd and 29th inclusive. It will open up Friday night with special Russian music on the program. The price of admission has been made reasonable in order to obtain the widest audience. The theatre seats 1800 and it is expected that from 15,000 to 20,000 people will see the film. Tickets on sale at the following places: Epstein's Drug Store, 1674 Madison Ave.; Sterns Jewelry Store, 1337 Wilkins Ave.; Novy Mir Book Store, 231 E. 14th St.; Russky Golos, 64 E. 7th St.; Freiheit, 152 E. Broadway; Katz's Drug Store, 78 Graham Ave.; International Workers' Aid, 208 E. 12th St.

Demands for tickets have already been made and all those who are anxious to see this picture should purchase their tickets in advance. The price of ticket is 50 cents.

NEW PLANS MADE TO HELP Y. W. L. GO OVER THE TOP

Cicero Party Branch Has Novel Idea

At the last membership meeting of the party in Cicero, it was decided to tax each member of the party with either one dollar, the money to go for the Young Workers League organization fund, or with a new member for the league. This campaign is to last until August 28. At the expiration of that time a membership meeting will be held at the Lithuanian Liberty Hall at W. 14th St. and 50th Ct., at which every member of the party will be called upon to either come across with the dollar or to register the new member. A prize was also offered to the member that procures the most members to either the Young Workers League or to the Junior Section. This prize is a valuable book.

As far as unofficial reports are concerned, it is said some comrades are bringing in as many as a half a dozen new members to either the League or to the Junior Section. From all the indications it seems that the Young Workers League out in Cicero, the town of the Western Electric Company, is going to become a real factor. The publicity they have been getting from having their speakers arrested will surely aid in the growth of the League. As is always the case wherever the League is strong the Party will also grow. On with the work, comrades!

Work Less Than 48 Hours.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.— Sixty per cent of the union printers employed by members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association have a working week under 48 hours, the International Typographical union announces.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

COKOS BROTHERS
Groceries
Cigars Cigarettes
Tobacco
and Candies
1111 W. WASHINGTON ST.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A SIMPLE PRACTICAL APRON.

4831. Here is an apron style that is easy made and one that will launder readily. It may be made of rubberized or cotton gingham, of percale or seersucker, or of drill. If two aprons of this model are made at one time, the backs can be sewed together and used as an apron when the fronts are worn out or faded.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3¼ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A POPULAR SPORTS STYLE.

4823. Here is a good blouse with a comfortable neck line, which will please the outdoor boy. It may be made with wrist length or elbow sleeves. Madras, linen, English broadcloth, soiette or silk could be used for this model.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. If made with long sleeves, a 12-year size will require 2⅝ yards 27 inches wide. With short sleeves 2¾ yards is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert, Dental Service for Years
Tel. Hiland 1836 Near 7th Ave.
845 SMITHFIELD ST. Cor. Arthur St.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

PICNIC
SUNDAY, AUGUST 24, 1924
—AT—
NATIONAL GROVE
Riverside, Illinois
Speakers:
BARNEY MASS, of the Young Workers League, and others
ATHLETICS — DANCING — MUSIC—GAMES — REFRESHMENTS
Directions—Take any car to 22nd St.; 22nd St. west to end. Take La Grange Car to National Grove.
Tickets in advance 35c, at the door 50c Gates open 10 A. M.
AUSPICES—YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE OF CHICAGO
SOCIETY FOR TECHNICAL AID TO SOVIET RUSSIA

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year — $3.50—6 months — $2.00—3 months
By mail (in Chicago only):
$8.00 per year — $4.50—6 months — $2.50—3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, MORITZ J. LOEB — Editors — Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

Dawes Sees Red

The eminently respectable and "sane" Mr. La Follette was taken by Mr. Dawes, in his Evanston speech last night, as the text for a sermon against the reds. While it is very seldom that we can proclaim an identity of interest with LaFollette, yet such occasions do arise at certain points, even if for opposite reasons. This is one. The reds must repudiate LaFollette even more emphatically than the polite Senator can disclaim the red banner. Dawes is merely playing a demagogic trick when he accuses Mr. LaFollette of being a red. Mr. LaFollette is eminently correct when he insists that there is no fundamental difference between himself and Mr. Dawes.

The fact that LaFollette has corralled the remains of the socialist party in his entourage, of which Dawes tries to make capital, is no count against the respectability of the Wisconsin Messiah at all. Just the opposite! If Chester Wright, the wriggling non-entity who once edited the socialist New York Call, can so reform as to become confidential adviser of Gompers, why should not Hillquit become a chief of staff for a capitalistic presidential candidate on the same conditions? And as for Debs' hysterical words about keeping "the red flag waving," Dawes should not take a sick man so seriously; the fact that the red flag has been definitely abandoned for the national colors and the slogan of "Back to '76" entirely offsets any temporary sentimentality that produces a ritualistic reference to an emblem of past disrespectability.

No, Mr. Dawes, you cannot get away from the real issue between yourself and Mr. LaFollette. Both of you stand for exactly the same system of exploitation of the working class and the toiling farmers. Both of you stand for "American institutions" that perpetuate the system. But the real difference is this: Dawes stands for the bold and open proclamation of capitalist rule, while LaFollette would prolong its life by throwing a protective camouflage about it.

Sooner or later the capitalist class will be delighted to have the LaFollettes to fall back upon as chloroform for the rising working class. And in that time Dawes will strike hands with LaFollette in the common cause that, even now, they hold close to their hearts.

Bryan Blesses Wall Street

The Bryan Brothers, political vaudeville artists extraordinary, have been converted to J. W. Davis, Morgan's lawyer, as the "highest type of progressive democrat." William Jennings says he was mistaken when he opposed Davis before the nomination—that was before his brother received the vice-presidential nomination, which could not, of course, have been foreseen. Everything is different now. Davis has been absolved from the sin of being on Morgan's payroll and embodying Bourbonism generally.

All in all the developments in the presidential campaign are most entertaining. Who could have imagined that so many of these bourgeois politicians of ours would give such public display of stupidity and venality? If the whole show, from the reluctant disclosure of graft and the common hushing up, down to the participation of Lea Small in the Dawes celebration and the conversion of Bryan to Davis, had been planned and staged by the cunning Bolsheviks to disillusion the masses, it could not have been better done. Faced with the terrific exposures that these politicians are making of themselves, we must feel modest indeed at the little mite that we can add to their work.

As for Bryan, he was always a political mountebank, and little else could be expected of him. He is an ignorant, stupid, reactionary demagog, of just the type that is most useful to Wall Street for the very reason that he makes loud outcries against it but always carrier out its orders in the last analysis.

Loyal Gompers Men

Gompers has no supporters today more servile than the leaders of the Chicago Federation of Labor. When they started back to Gompers a little over a year ago, the left-wingers predicted that they would go all the way and more, a prediction that was protested by some of our optimistic friends.

But when the Chicago Federation is afraid even to endorse LaFollette until the word has come from Gompers, although central bodies and local unions all over the country were at least independent enough not to wait for Gompers to tell them to surrender to the middle class but did it on their own hook—when the Chicago Federation cannot even go to LaFollette without Gompers' permission—then indeed the retreat of Fitzpatrick & Co. can go little further.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

Gompers' Pan-Americansm

On December third there will be held in Mexico City the fourth conference of the Pan American Federation of Labor. This gathering will assume additional significance because of its being coincident with the inauguration of President Calles.

One of the most pressing needs of the American workers, of the working masses of the United States and the Latin American countries, is a genuine Pan American Federation of Labor. Politically, most of the Republics south of the Rio Grande are vassal states in the thrall of American imperialism. Economically, the Latin American Republics are at the mercy of the Yankee industrial magnates and financial oligarchs. Today Latin America is a hinterland for the sinister maneuvers and aggressive campaigns of the exploiting class of the United States.

Under these circumstances the workers of both continents, more than ever before, face a common danger and a common enemy. Only common action can save the workers of North, South and Central America from being doomed to degrading wage slavery. A Pan American Federation of Labor is undoubtedly a step in the proper direction. But any Pan-American Federation of Labor in which Mr. Gompers is boss and which works according to the dictates of this field marshal of the employing class in the ranks of American labor cannot help towards freeing the workers from the capitalist rule now oppressing them.

In fact, Mr. Gompers has been a silent partner to and at times an active participant in nearly all the shameful affairs of the American imperialist clique. Mr. Gompers has found the ravages of American exploiters in Haiti as making for satisfactory conditions. His interest in the liberation of the Philippine Islands from the Yankee imperialists is limited to a narrow desire to "save" the American workers from Filipino competition. The titular head of our trade union movement is today lined up with Gary, Schwab, General Tripp, Pershing, and Secretary of War Weeks in its militarist maneuvers set for September twelfth, Defense Day.

It is high time that the working masses of the United States and Latin America did get together into a fighting Pan-American Federation. All steps in this direction will be hopeful signs of progress. Yet it is sure that the complete banishment of Gompers' influence in the Latin American labor organizations will have to be a prerequisite to the organization of such a united fighting body. The revolutionary workers of both continents should take steps immediately to rid themselves of the Gompers scourge and to build a real Pan-American industrial and political federation.

READ THE DAILY WORKER

The Minister Is Embarrassed

Jacob Gould Schurman, United States Minister to China, is returning to America to overcome a terrible embarrassment. He was so embarrassed that he just couldn't stay in Pekin any more; he had to come home and talk to Hughes about it.

It seems that the Far Eastern situation is getting a little muddled. Where before there was unity of policy and action on the part of the "great powers," the capitalist nations with big guns, and a common bullying of China, there is now a "deplorable lack of solidarity" and a great deal of independent action by the representatives of the various powers. Schurman, as the representative of Morgan, the world's ruler, wants to get this straightened out.

But the real embarrassment, the cause of the sudden trip home for comfort and advice, is the appearance in Pekin of a full-fledged ambassador from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Until the appearance of the Soviet representative, all diplomats in Pekin had been ministers only, a studied insult to the Chinese, according to diplomatic etiquette. Now this same diplomatic red-tape proclaims that when an ambassador appears he becomes the "dean" of the foreign representatives, and their spokesman in dealing with the Chinese Foreign Office.

Horrors! Diplomatic etiquette is sacred and cannot be lightly scorned! Neither is it thinkable that the United States should deal with China thru the Russian ambassador! What a dilemma! What an embarrassment! What a humilating position! There was nothing for Schurman to do but to come home for instructions. And now Hughes must decide which is the lesser evil—to break the usages of diplomacy, or to abandon the insulting treatment of China as an inferior power not entitled to an ambassador.

READ THE DAILY WORKER

Is it merely a coincidence that Grand Duke Nickolas of Russia was dug out of his cellar in Paris and given almost half a page in the Chicago Tribune immediately after the Dawes report was accepted?

Now that the American bankers have written a new treaty of Versailles it is about time for our patriots to take down Washington's Farewell Address and shed a tear over it.

The DAILY WORKER is telling the real story of the unemployment situation thruout the country. And the truth will move the world.

New "subs" for the DAILY WORKER will help swell the audiences at the Communist campaign meetings.

New members for the Workers Party will mean more comrades to help carry on the work of the American Communist movement.

MacDonald---The Christian Martyr and Imperialist

By TOM BELL.

RAMSAY MAC DONALD, leader of the British Labor party, Christian "socialist," premier of his Britannic majesty's government, member of the ruling clique of the Second Socialist International, and apologist extraordinary for British imperialism, has delivered a confession of faith in one of the capitalist organs of Chicago. Under the heading, "MacDonald, Premier, Tells Socialist Aim for British Empire," there is collected the most appalling collection of gibberage masquerading as the program of the British workers organized in the Labor party. Thruout the entire article there is no one word that would offend the sensibilities of the most hard-boiled capitalist. MacDonald breathes devotion to the cause of the bourgeoisie against the workers and for the preservation of the capitalist system as represented by the British empire.

The leading idea thruout is the necessity of applying the principles of Christianity to modern society. And MacDonald poses as the modern Christ that is trying, in the midst of all the temptations of the devil, to bring humanity back to the virtuous life of the early Christians. "Socialism," says the apostle, "signifies a reasoned and resolute effort to Christianize government and society." How joyful the capitalists of Britain must be to find that MacDonald, while pursuing the imperialistic policy of Baldwin and Curzon, takes care to camouflage his course of action under the humanitarian phrases of religion. The cynical gentlemen of the bourgeoisie snigger to themselves as they read this trash which is meant for consumption by the workers of the empire alone. So long as MacDonald continues to be a willing tool in the hands of the rapacious and blood-stained rulers of the British empire they are perfectly willing to allow him to proclaim himself a disciple of the Christian martyr.

But in spite of his caution, MacDonald lets the cat out of the bag when he states: "Socialists want to conserve capital. They are second to none in their appreciation of its worth. If they disliked it, they would let it go on destroying itself. They want capital conserved and saved from abuse." In common with the other major parties of the Socialist International, the leadership of the British Labor party have shown themselves to be the best defenders of the capitalists and their ownership of the means of wealth production in times of crisis. The MacDonald gang has not been called upon as yet to murder thousands of workers to preserve the capitalist system, as their German prototypes were in 1918 and since then, but their record since they came into power in Britain has shown that they are also perfectly willing to commit this crime against the workers if called upon. So anxious are the British Socialists to "conserve capital" that they abandoned the capital levy plank in their program as soon as they were installed in power. Even the so-called left wing of the Labor party, the "wild men from the Clyde," agree with the increase of armament, as is shown by the statement of William Johnston, labor M. P. and editor of the Glasgow Forward: "We are in favor of the armaments extension program because we are not Tolstoyans or Doukobors." MacDonald also states in his recent interview that he did not oppose the building of the naval base at Singapore as a whole because there is already a naval base there, and he did not think it necessary to build an addition to it at the present time. On examination it is difficult to distinguish between the policy of Curzon and MacDonald.

The clash of interests between the rival capitalist cliques of France and Britain over the hegemony of Europe, and particularly the exploitation of Germany, shows MacDonald as a firm supporter of the interests of British capitalism. He does not take into consideration the fact that the application of the Dawes plan to Germany will be successful only at the expense of the agony of the German workers. He merely sees in it a fine weapon against France since it will force the French evacuation of the Ruhr and lead to an alliance of British and American capital against the imperialistic aims of the French capitalists. MacDonald, the pacifist and Christian gentleman, to persuade Herriot to agree to the demands of the Morgan bankers regarding the loan to Germany invited him to witness a great demonstration of the naval strength of Britain.

France has the strongest army in Europe, while Britain possesses the strongest navy. Herriot, the so-called radical socialist, rules for the capitalists of France and relies upon the army to gain consessions, while MacDonald, the pacifist Christian socialist, rules for the imperialists of Britain and uses the navy as a threat to France to secure the hegemony of France to the desires of British capital. The advent of MacDonald to the premiership of Britain has changed nothing in the imperialistic policy except that he uses "Christian" phrases which the Curzons and Churchills of Britain are too blunt to use. A continuation of imperialistic policy for the rulers of the empire, and "Christian" phrases to fool the workers and petty bourgeoisie, is the essence of the policy of MacDonald.

The so-called labor government of MacDonald is a farce. It is a liberal government pursuing the same aims as the imperialists of Britain have always stood for. MacDonaldism is the same cancer as ate out the vitals of the Second International and led them to support the war in 1914 and become the oppressors of the working class on behalf of capital when the workers menace the rule of the capitalists. MacDonaldism stands for the undisturbed rule of the capitalists, for the crushing of strikes, for the shooting of Hindu workers and the arrest of Indian Communists, for daring to organize a workers' political party, for using stool pigeons against the British Communists; in a word, for the subjection of the British workers and colonial slaves to the rule of British capital. In this work he relies upon the navy to intimidate rival imperialist cliques, on the police and emergency powers act (martial law) for the subjection of the workers and Indian peoples, while in American capitalist rags he poses as a Christian martyr.

Disruption of Negro Congress Attempted

(Continued from page 1)

such a manner that he was forced to throw them over and to defend himself. He has charged from the public platform that two members of the supreme council did all in their power to keep him in jail.

The result of the leader's incarceration and the consequent failure to hold a convention last year was the serious weakening of the organization, persons not over-friendly to the association claiming that its dues-paid membership was depleted to 15,000 in financial standing, altho they say that 400,000 or more Negroes in all parts of the world count themselves as members. The official claim is of five million members.

Great Powers Interfere.

The next attack upon the Negro working class organization, which its opponents call the "back-to-Africa" movement, had peculiar international complications. The Negro republic of Liberia on the West Coast of Africa was chosen as a point of approach in an ambitious plan to colonize some American Negroes in Africa, to attempt to strengthen the existing Negro states in that continent and to spread from there an intensive Negro nationalist propaganda for the redemption of Africa from French, British, Belgian, Italian and Spanish imperialist rule thru independent self-government of the black inhabitants now under colonial rule.

The Universal Negro Improvement Association last winter applied to the Liberian government for permission to colonize 3,000 American Negroes on Liberian soil. This application was finally refused by the Liberian government in February, this year, the Liberian president giving as one of his reasons for the refusal, that he is keeping his mind on the obligation of Liberia to the Great Powers." Garvey openly charges that the rebuff was not an act of an independent Negro government, but was put thru under orders of the colonial offices of France and England and the minister of the United States, all of which powers are keenly anxious to prevent any Negro nationalist movement spreading in Africa and thus endangering colonial rule.

Accuses DuBois.

Garvey declares that Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, famous Negro author and editor of the official organ of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, became an instrument for inducing the Liberian government to declare that no vises would be granted the members of Garvey's organization. Garvey also charges that DuBois made himself useful to those imperialist powers who wish to hold Liberia under intimidation. Garfrey says the little Negro republic is heavily in debt to French and British bankers, and that these bankers and their governments, together with the American government which is now trying to edge into the colonial opportunities of Africa, keep the Liberian government in constant terror and under absolute dictation of its policies.

DuBois Represented Cal.

Dr. DuBois went to Africa about the beginning of this year. President Calvin Coolidge gave DuBois, thru Secretary of States Hughes, credentials to represent the United States government as "Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary." In this capacity DuBois attended the inauguration of the Liberian president, on which occasion he spoke as transmitting "the personal word of Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States of America, by the hand of Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State." Dr. DuBois told the ceremonial gathering that it was a "special mark of the President's favor." He has since written of it editorially as "a gesture of courtesy; a little thing, merely a gesture, but one so fine and one so unusual that it was epochal."

Mr. Garvey considers that the event was neither fine nor unusual, but only a very coarse and ordinary act of imperialist governments in the policy of flattering, cajoling and terrorizing the leaders of a people they wish to hold in subjection. Dr. DuBois retorts that Garvey is "either a lunatic or a traitor" in his appeals to southern white elements to support the African colonization scheme, and that Garvey, in order to win such support, surrenders the rights of the Negro in this country.

Imperialists Exposed.

At any rate it is evident that the imperialist governments which hold African colonies under subjection, were responsible for the attempted exclusion of the U. N. I. A. from African soil, and together with the United States government coerced the Liberian government as Garvey charges. Coolidge, while attempting to imprison Garvey and to destroy the mass organization, appoints DuBois as official spokesman for American capitalism before an African government that is being coerced.

One of the attacks upon the Universal Negro Improvement Association has been made in the past few months by Negroes who have had more or less connection with the organization in the past, and who used the past connection as a ground for going into court and suing the association for large sums of money claimed as due them for services. The courts have invariably, and with a seeming zest and enthusiasm, granted judgments for large sums to everybody who has brought suit, thus having bled the treasury of the organization for more than $30,000 within the past few months. It appears that no one who has taken the trouble to drag the association into court has been refused a judgment. Sums of $1,000 to $3,500 have thus been obtained by persons whose very vague "services" to the organization were of only a few days or weeks duration.

The claim of Mr. Johnson for $7,380 seems to be of similar nature to the other claims "for services rendered." In charge,

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 22 1924
LIBRARY

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 132. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

OFFER UNEMPLOYMENT PROGRAM

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

HENRY FORD, Thomas Edison and Harvey Firestone, three of the biggest industrial barons in the United States, stopped at Plymouth, Vt., to pay their respects to President Calvin Coolidge. Henry and Calvin are great friends ever since the latter promised to let the former have Muscle Shoals for a "flivver." The deal did not go thru but that was not Coolidge's fault. Henry was duly grateful and withdrew his candidacy for the presidency and came out for Calvin.

• • •

TO show his regard for Mr. Ford and also perhaps to induce the flivver king to throw some cash into the Republican treasury, Coolidge presented the Detroit manufacturer with a family heirloom to be placed in the Wayside Inn, a Massachusetts tavern made famous by Longfellow's sagas and bot recently by Ford. It was a sap bucket that had been used in the Coolidge maple bush for 25 years. "I never have received anything since I was married that I appreciated so much" Ford replied. Coolidge has not yet been presented with a gavel by a New England labor faker, which is surprising, in view of the fact that he claims credit for breaking the policemens' strike. Labor fakers usually appreciate such services.

• • •

WHILE Coolidge was governor of Massachusetts he was never a popular figure. In fact the police strike saved him from the political dump heap. Ever since that incident a myth has been carefully cultivated until this puny, weasel-souled Puritan has become the Little Father of millions of empty-headed Americans who take their thinking from the headlines in the capitalist press. Coolidge is a very useful man to the capitalists. He hits on all six cylinders for them all the time.

• • •

THE Gaelic American, organ of the secret Irish political machine known as the Clan-na-Gael, is out for LaFollette, principally because of his opposition to the Ku Klux Klan. The Clan-na-Gael, was organized ostensibly to help free Ireland from British rule, but it has never been anything else than a capitalist policital machine to place aspiring Irish politicians in office. The Gaelic American supported Al Smith for the Democratic nomination for president. Had Smith succeeded, that paper would now be singing the praises of the Democratic Party. What a crazy-quilt conglomeration?

• • •

THE French foreign office announced that no further evacuations of German territory was planned by the French until after the chamber ratified the London agreement. The capitalists know how to play the game in order to enable the German delegation to the London conference to show something tangible in return for signing a treaty turning the country over to a set of receivers, the French only at the instigation of the British, evacuated a few small and unimportant towns in the Ruhr. Then to mollify the Poincare diehards Herriot on his arrival in France issued the above statement.

• • •

BRITISH troops killed three hundred Waharis triBesmen in Trans-Jordiana. The rest were driven from towns they had occupied. The British fleet is hurrying to Egypt to pump British democracy into the rebellious Sudanese. Ramsay MacDonald is a fine pacifist. He is also a Christian and attends religious services regularly. Killing is supposed to be against the tenets of pacifism and also against the law of the Christian God. But capitalism like Jehovah will have no other gods before it and pacifism simply means that the big capitalists should stop fighting each other. Killing natives is perfectly all right, good sport and not so dangerous.

• • •

NAIVE optimists were of the opinion when Ramsay MacDonald assumed office that a new chapter would be opened in the history of the British Empire. Perhaps a new chapter has been opened with the name of Ramsay MacDonald at the top, but the reading matter is of the same old pattern MacDonald is running the empire for those who own it just the same as his predecessors have done. MacDonald does not believe in the overthrow of the capitalist system. He is as much of a socialist as Morris Hillquit or Victor Berger. The New York Freeman, a liberal weekly, now defunct, in its issue of March 5, this year, commenting on the advent of

(Continued on page 3)

UNEMPLOYMENT AND KLAN ARE ISSUES IN ILL.

Daily Worker Series Is Read by Miners

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 20.—I met John Watt, secretary of the Springfield sub-district of the United Mine Workers' union in the sub-district office, 221½ South Fourth Street.

He showed me clippings from the local papers announcing that the "Red" presidential candidate, William Z. Foster, will speak in Springfield September 4 as a counteraction to the La Follette, labor day speaking of the trade union officials.

James Mariotti, who was expelled as district auditor of the Kansas miners because he is a Howat man, came in and compared Farrington's Illinois activities with Howat's Kansas administration. Then John Watkins of Thayer came in and arranged to drive me over to Thayer.

Reeve is Welcomed.

We drove thru the pretty Sangamon county farming and mining country, sixteen miles south to Thayer, on the road to St. Louis. Watkins introduced me to the miners as "The DAILY WORKER reporter who was put out of the Peoria convention by Frank Farrington." This episode is well known to the Illinois miners. It was the best introduction I could possibly receive. I have not found one miner

(Continued on page 5)

MILLIONS FOR MOBILIZATION DAY

Drawn by Callaghan, Federated Press Staff Cartoonist.

GARY TO PERSHING: "We'll have Cal give 'em a patriotic thrill Sept. 12 and they'll forget where we come in."

ABOLITION OF CAPITALISM IS AIM OF WORKERS PARTY, SAYS WM. Z. FOSTER TO DAILY WORKER

William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president of the United States, who left last night on his western tour, was finally backed into a corner, just before his departure, by the reporter of the DAILY WORKER, and an interview demanded. Reluctantly turning from his desk, at which he had been busily answering a large stack of letters, Foster submitted.

"What purpose have the Communists in participating in the election campaign?" was the first question.

"First and foremost, to rally the workers against all parties that stand for the capitalist system," said Foster. "So long as the wage earners can believe that any hope exists for them in any party except a strictly proletarian organization, just so long the class struggle will be abortive, the employers will build up more power, and the conditions of the workers worsened in every way. We use the election campaign to educate and organize the workers, and to break them away from capitalist ideas in all their forms."

The Ultimate Goal.

"What is the ultimate goal of the Workers (Communist) Party?"

"The complete abolition of the capitalist system, destruction of the rule of the beorgeoisie, establish the rule of the workers in alliance with the working farmers expressed in the dictatorship of the proletariat, organized into workers' councils (soviets), and the reorganization of social and economic life on a communal basis."

Main Issues.

"What are the main issues that confront the workers and farmers in this campaign?"

"The one big issue before the workers and farmers is this: Shall the capitalist class continue to use the machinery of government to suppress and exploit the workers and farmers! Or shall the workers and farmers, thru their class organizations, take this power out of the hands of their class enemies!"

"How does the dictatorship of the proletariat differ from the Fascist dictatorship in Italy?"

Two Dictatorships.

"The proletarian dictatorship rests upon the broad masses of the workers and fights for their interests; the Fascist dictatorship is against the broad masses, is exercised by a small class in the interests of the smallest class—the capitalists. They are opposites. They are deadly enemies and represent fundamentally antagonistic classes."

"What is the intention of the Dawes plan, and what effect will its operation have upon the German and upon the American workers?"

"The intention of the Dawes plan is to definitely clinch Morgan's present control of the capitalist world. Its operation will make the German workers slaves of the international bankers, while the products of their 10 and 12-hour day will be used to break down the living standards of British, French, and American workers. The intention is to convert the German working class into international strike breakers, and destroy the labor movement of the world."

International Leadership.

"Does the Workers Party accept the leadership of the Communist International?"

"Yes. Every effective group in society has its own international center, for all social questions are international and can only be solved by international organization. This is especially true of the problem of the workers. The capitalists have their League of Nations, their International Conferences, their Second International of socialists and their Amster-

(Continued on page 2)

BOSSES GATHER TO PERFECT PLOT AGAINST MINERS

Herrin Scene of Meeting of "Open Shoppers"

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 20.—The terrific crisis that grips southern Illinois, with more than 200 mines shut down completely, and almost all working one or two days a week only, throwing 40,000 to 50,000 miners out of work, has forced the employers to call a conference to consider the proposition.

The coal companies and the large consumers of coal in the state have representatives meeting here today to discuss the problems arising out of the situation.

It is expected that the purpose of the conference will be disclosed in the shape of a demand for a statewide "open shop" drive against the miners, to reduce them to the status of the exploited and suppressed nonunion miners of the south.

Watch Case Workers Strike.

SAG HARBOR, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Six hundred employes of Joseph Fahys & Co., manufacturers of watch cases, went out on strike today for maintenance of the old scale of wages, which had been cut from 8 to 10 per cent. All the men are skilled.

LaSalle Is Scab University.

Textbooks and other printed matter of the LaSalle Extension University in Chicago are done almost entirely by non-union shops.

BOSS' JUDGE HANDS OUT SENTENCES TO STRIKING WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20.—William Christopher, business agent of the Trades and Labor Assembly of Belleville, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $200, and 14 other strikers and labor leaders were fined from $50 to $200 by Judge George Crow today for defying his anti-picketing injunction against the striking members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America here.

The Trades and Labor Assembly met here last night and organized for the purpose of fighting the manufacturers' association, which is attempting to force the open shop on Belleville.

Two Millions Out of Work

LA FOLLETTE'S COMMONWEALTH IS ANTI-LABOR

Legislature and Courts Work Against Workers

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Sixth Article.)

In LaFollette's "Model Commonwealth," Wisconsin, the state legislature, the senate and the courts are in the hands of the employing class. This ownership of the government by the bosses of Wisconsin is essentially the same as it is in the other forty-seven states of the union and in the national capital.

The state assembly and senate have voted down bills sponsored by the organized workers. The courts have declared remedial legislation unconstitutional. The workingmen have suffered greatly at the hands of the courts thru long and costly litigation.

Time and again the Wisconsin governors, elected thru the aid and support of Senator LaFollette, have used their powers of appointment to public office against the workers.

Who Owns Wisconsin?

As a survey of "Who is Who in Congress?" recently made by us, we found that the employing class has

(Continued on Page 6)

T. U. E. L. DEMANDS FIGHT AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT AND MISLEADERS WHO PLAY WITH CORRUPT POLITICIANS

The Trade Union Educational League has issued the following statement on the growing unemployment crisis:

Unemployment is growing worse and already grips some two millions of workers. Especially in the mining fields of Illinois has it been intense and bitter, and continues to grow worse each day. The employers are deliberately intensifying it, hoping thereby to cripple the Union.

The "labor leaders" at the head of the State Federation of Labor and District 12, United Mine Workers of America, spend their time playing politics with Len Small, the corrupt republican, instead of organizing the workers and helping fight for relief and improvement of conditions.

The state government, feeling secure in their possession of the allegiance of labor officials, calmly ignores the suffering of the workers and makes not even a gesture of sympathy. For the unemployed workers who are starving, and for the employed workers whose conditions are threatened with destruction by the growing mass of unemployed ready to take their jobs, there is no recourse left except to organize their own battle, and lead it against employers, corrupt government officials and misleaders of the union.

In this situation the Trade Union Educational League pledges its full and whole-hearted efforts to the fight against unemployment, and calls upon the workers generally to rally in a real battle for improvement of the terrible conditions now prevailing.

Demand that the union officials take action in organizing deputations to governmental bodies to make demands.

Organize local unions and rank-and-file workers into unemployed councils to make demands thru demonstrations, meetings and deputations to governmental bodies.

The unemployment program of action, to be effective, must include the following points:

Work or maintenance at union rates of wages, the funds to be obtained by taxation of the industries involved, and by graduated taxation on profits, relief to be administered by bodies selected and controlled by the workers.

Direct grants from the state government for relief, to be administerd by the workers.

Action by the United Mine Workers of America on a national scale, both to demand relief and to organize relief actions of the miners themselves, thru the union machinery, with safeguards of rank-and-file administration of funds.

Demand the six-hour day and the five-day week, without reduction in earnings.

The Trade Union Educational League.

GARY DELEGATES WILL BRING MILITANT PLAN TO STATE LABOR MEET

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

GARY, Ind., Aug. 20.—At the regular meeting of the Central Labor Union, the delegates to the Indiana Federation of Labor convention were instructed to introduce and fight for the adoption of resolutions calling for amalgamation along industrial lines, for the organization of the unorganized, and for the recognition of Soviet Russia. A motion carried also instructed the officials of the C. L. U. to draw up a resolution in opposition to the mobilization project of Sept. 12.

HUGHES PEEVED AT SOVIETS FOR GETTING TREATY WITH CHINESE; U. S. DOLLAR DIPLOMACY IS HIT

By LAURENCE TODD.

WASHINGTON, August 20.—No wonder Secretary Hughes is calling Minister Schurman home from Peking. The biggest disaster that American dollar diplomacy has suffered in many years has come to light in Schurman's territory, and Charley wants his minister to explain.

There has reached America the text, given out in China, of the series of special agreements reached between the Chinese foreign minister, Dr. Wellington Koo, and the ambassador of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, Leo Karakhan, in pursuance of the Russo-Chinese treaty of May 21.

These agreements cover the control of the Chinese Eastern Railway, the refund of the Russian share of the Boxer indemnity, and the fate of the Russian White Guard troops who were taken into the Chinese army and police force after the return of Soviet control to Vladivostok. Diplomatic Washington discovers that China has received back from Russia many valuable concessions extorted from her by the czars, but she has yielded in return the effective control of the railway across Manchuria. This railway is the key to power in the Far East. The Soviet Union gets it.

Text of the Treaty Here.

Some weeks ago there was published the text of the treaty of Peking, which set forth that the Soviet Union "agrees to the redemption by the government of China, with Chinese capital, of the Chinese Eastern Railway, as well as all appurtenant properties, and to the transfer to China of all shares and bonds of

(Continued on Page 4.)

SHERMAN SPY AGENCY BACKS DOWN IN CHALLENGE ON ITS ESPIONAGE FOR EMPLOYERS

(By The Federated Press)

BABSON PARK, Mass., August 20.—Business men lolling in the $10 a day Babson clubhouse spent several hours discussing an unexpected thrill developed by the exposure of the Sherman Service, inc., as a full fledged industrial espionage concern of the familiar gunman-dick-provocateur type.

The exposure which was dimmed home when the trapped Sherman manager defaulted on his comeback, came at the 11th annual business conference conducted by Roger Babson's statistical organization at Babson Park near Boston.

Dick Spreads the Gravy.

S. F. Fannon, director of public service of the Sherman Service, had delivered an address full of high moral tone and quotations from scriptures, but referring only vaguely to the specific "service" performed by Sherman.

When Fannon finished, Henry Dennison, owner of the big Dennison pa-

(Continued on page 3)

"BIG BIZ" OWNS BOB'S LEGISLATURE

THE Wisconsin Assembly and Senate are owned and controlled by the business and employing class interests of the state.

In the 1921 senate there were only four mechanics out of forty-two members. In the assembly there were, at that time, only seven mechanics, in a body of 100 members.

The State Legislature has made it a practice to kill many bills proposed by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor.

In the courts the workers are treated with total disregard. In fact, the State Federation of Labor has gone out of its way to condemn the hostility of the Wisconsin judiciary to organized labor.

OPEN UP TRIAL OF 28 WORKERS IN BELLEVILLE

Labor Stands Firmly Behind Strikers

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20.—Organized labor here is lined up solidly with the striking employes of the Charles Meyers Pants factory, which has refused to renew a six months agreement with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, local union No. 107.

The strike of the girls who under open shop conditions were forced to work for an average of ten dollars a week is to be the chief topic of discussion at the Central Trades and Labor council in the union hall tonight. The DAILY WORKER reporter has been invited to speak.

Boss Broke Agreements.

The strike occurred when the Meyers factory broke their agreement with the Amalgamated to extend a wage increase at the end of the present six months' agreement, which expired some weeks ago. When this agreement was signed, the eight-hour day was installed, the union was recognized, and it was agreed to confer on an increased wage scale at the end of six months. Samuel Auerbach, vice president of the company, how ever, suddenly switched, refused to meet the union officials and declared he intended to run an open shop. The girls were immediately called on strike, and every employe responded.

Judge George Crow, who last week granted an injunction against picketing, is well known in Belleville as a labor hater. He has granted injunctions against labor before, in the Bell Telephone strike five years ago and in a more recent strike of road builders. Crow draws his support from the conservative farmers of St. Claire county.

Trial vs. Movies.

The trial has thrown the movie shows here in eclipse. Not only was the courtroom crowded today with the mothers and fathers of the arrested girls, but with scores of members of organized labor. The corridors are filled with workers unable to gain admission to the trial.

Judge Crow is a red-faced, puny little man with glasses, resembling Judge Foell, the side of the Chicago garment bosses, except that Crow snaps out his orders in dictatorial "I will not be denied" fashion. Crow finally started the trial after postponing it four hours yesterday. He blooded he had another case to think over, but one miner said, "Crow is a fast liver, and no doubt was out on a booze party last night. He is probably sobering up."

"You're not allowed to crack a smile in the courtroom," one of the defendants told me. "Crow will put you right out. The trial is a farce. Every one knows Crow works hand in glove with the Meyers management."

Cop Refuses Scab Duty.

The testimony developed that Police Officer Henry Reichling, who was assigned to strike duty by Chief of Police Charles Arbergast, refused to obey the orders of Sam Auerbach, and was reprimanded by the chief. Auerbach came running out of his factory, it developed, wildly excited, demanding that Reichling escort the strikebreakers into the factory and act as general servant to the pants factory. Reichling, while he said he was always ready to do his duty, was not paid by the city to act as a strikebreaker. For this he was cited by Crow at the instance of the police chief for contempt of the anti-picketing injunction.

Those hailed to court for trial before Crow, include Al Teel, William Sinner, William Christopher and other representatives of the Belleville Trades and Labor Assembly.

Negro Is Delegate.

Arthur Renfro, one of the defendants, who is a well-educated colored lad, has been honored by the Amalgamated local union as a delegate to the Trades Assembly.

Other defendants include Lucille Boyce, president of Local Union 107, Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Alice Jones, secretary; Mary Hearen, Katherine Frazier, Louise Wherley, Anita Reisser, Adele Sointene, Alice Huber, Lillian Boyce, Lucille Mueller, Mary Straubinger, Emilia Schwartz, Florence Conkling, Arthur Renfro, Anna B. Schwalb, Helen Schwartz, Lilian Fuchs and George Kraus.

Altho most of the strikers are girls, the few men working in the plant have come out with the girls, making the strike 100 per cent effective. After last week's and failure to import strikebreakers, Auerbach closed the doors of the factory and gave up trying to operate.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition Saturday, August 30.

LEGIONAIRES HIT ITALIAN COMMUNIST DAILY HERE FOR DENOUNCING MUSSOLINI ACTS

The fearless denunciation of the outrages of the Mussolini government, and of similar terrorist methods employed against workers in this country, which has been the policy of such foreign-language papers in the United States as the Communist "Il Lavoratore," is striking fear into the hearts of the foreign-born scissorbills, who advocate stricter censorship of the foreign-language press.

Hot Under Collar.

On the warmest night in August, members of the Flower City Post of the American Legion, in Rochester, N. Y., most of them of Italian birth, met in the city armory to denounce Italian workers who advocate international unity with the oppressed masses of Italy. Hot under the collar and perspiring patriotism from every pore, these foreign-born Legionaires passed a resolution asking that the authorities keep sharp watch on "certain foreign-language newspapers, whose policy is unpatriotic and even revolutionary."

Of the unqualified loyalty of the Italian workers of the Flower City Post, the country need have no doubts," said the officers of the Legion.

AN INTERVIEW WITH FOSTER

(Continued from Page 1.)

dam agents, and their international Chambers of Commerce, etc. The working class has but one international center, the Communist International in close alliance with the Red International of Labor Unions. The Workers Party, in common with every really revolutionary group of workers the world over, participates in and follows the leadership of the Comintern."

"Professor Harper, of the University of Chicago, delivered a lecture yesterday, saying that the Communist policies in Russia have failed. In your recent trip to Moscow, what were your observations on this question?"

Conditions of Workers Better.

"The Russian revolution is a success. All the dismal predictions of university professors and counter-revolutionists for the past seven years have not been able to change this fact. The conditions of the workers are steadily improving as the Soviet Government gradually builds up the new industrial structure in the place of the ruined capitalist system. It has been a long hard up-hill struggle. But hard as it has been it is the road that the entire world's working class must travel. The capitalist system is broken down and cannot be repaired. It must be abolished root and branch and the Russian workers have shown the workers of the world how to do the job."

The Workers in Germany.

"Germany is a capitalist country; did your observations show the Germans are better off than the Russians?"

"Quite the opposite. Russian industry is steadily on the upgrade, and working and living conditions follow steadily; but German industry is going more steadily downward, and the German workers are today living under much worse conditions than the Russian. And whereas in Russia, all is hopeful energy, in Germany under the capitalist dictatorship, the workers are losing all hope, and can only change this condition thru following the Russian example."

"And now," interrupted Foster, as the reporter began to shoot more questions at him, "you'll have to quit for today, so that I can get some work done."

WILL HOLD W. P. MEETING DESPITE VIOLENCE THREAT

Business Man Behind All Arrests in Englewood

"Get out of my office! If I catch you or any one else advocating Sovietism on the streets of Englewood, I'll personally, physically, stop the meeting, beat up the speaker."

In righteous wrath, Charles Richard Edrington, past commander of an American Legion post, and present business manager of the Englewood Business Men's Association, threatened to out-bolsh the bolsheviks by perpetrating illegal personal violence.

He's Tough.

His words were addressed to a Workers Party member who had heard that it was the Englewood Business Men's Association which had made the complaint that resulted in the arrest, last Thursday, of Clarence Miller and George Maurer for speaking on the street corner.

But before allowing himself to be evicted, the visitor asked whether the threat of violence would take advantage of a traffic regulation to stop us from advocating the W. P. program on the streets of Englewood. The answer was, "You bet! Indeed I think the court won't dismiss the case next time."

Free Speech, But—

"Then you don't believe in free speech really?"

"Yes I do, but not in Sovietism."

But neither the arrests by the cops nor the puny threats of Mr. Edrington will stop the Communists. A meeting is to be held tonight in Englewood by the party and the Young Workers' League, at 63rd and Green streets. It may be obliged to move to another corner, or elsewhere, but it is written that the event will come to pass. Preparations have been made for an appeal in case of arrests.

SPEND YOUR MONEY WHERE IT WILL BE HELPING THE DAILY

When buying ladies', men's, or infants' furnishings, go out of your way if necessary and visit Martin Pawlan's at 651 W. North Ave., a store where you can buy as cheaply and as well and yet know that you are helping the DAILY WORKER. Comrade Martin Pawlan has been a constant advertiser in the DAILY WORKER and he deserves the patronage of every friend of our paper.

Comrade Pawlan announces the removal of his store from 723 W. North Ave. to new and better quarters and is not located at 651 W. North Ave.

Look for "Martin's" ad in any Saturday issue of our paper. Cut it out and remember the new address, 651 W. North Ave.

Send in that Subscription Today.

GAS WORKERS TO DISCUSS RAISE IN PAY TONIGHT

Union Officers Report on Wage Conference

Members of the Gas Workers' Union will meet tonight at 180 W. Washington St., to discuss the new contract being submitted to the People's Gas Light and Coke Company and which calls for an increase of 10 per cent in their wages.

The officers of the union have been negotiating with the officials of the People's Gas Light and Coke Company for this increase and will make their report to the membership tonight.

The union officers and the company officials will meet again on Friday.

Woman's Party Bars Negro Speakers at Memorial Services

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y., Aug. 20.—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is emphatic in its denunciation of the national woman's party because Negro speakers were excluded from the memorial services to Inez Millholland. They sent the following telegram to Alice Paul, leader of the woman's party:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in the name of 100,000 Americans, white and colored, protests against the cowardly capitulation to race prejudice by the national woman's party at the grave of Inez Millholland, an active member of our association in her lifetime, who would have repudiated such a position as you have taken. If capitulation to race prejudice is to be the price of election of women to office, we sincerely hope that every one of your candidates will be defeated in the coming election."

Hitch in Dawes Plan.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Fear that the German working class will rise in their wrath against the Dawes plan is considered responsible for the reported refusal of the great banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. to participate in the $200,000,000 German gold loan. The ostensible reason is continued French occupation of the Ruhr.

The occupation of the Ruhr bears most heavily on the German workers, and the House of Morgan fears that a great revolt of the enslaved German proletariat cannot long be avoided.

Information that Morgan may refuse participation in the loan came from an authoritative source.

Owen Young, colleague of General Charles G. Dawes, left for Paris to help put the plan in operation.

Painters Get Wage Increase.

Chicago painters will receive a wage increase Monday of 25c an hour, making their standard wage $1.50 per hour. This increase will affect all Chicago painters.

FOSTER'S TALK IN YOUNGSTOWN ANGERS PLUTES

Big Communist Campaign Puts on Steam

The opening shot fired by William Z. Foster in his campaign for president of the United States on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket, in the city of Youngtown, Ohio, the heart of the steel teritory, was echoed thruout the United States by the capitalist press.

"Foster urges Soviet United States," screamed a headline of a Youngstown, Ohio, capitalist paper, commenting on Foster's speech in that city.

Watch the Headlines.

Headlines and stories with the campaign speeches of Foster and Gitlow will now be a feature of many capitalist newspapers. This week William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the Workers Party, will start on their long speaking tours.

These tours will cover the entire country from coast to coast and will run right up until the day before election.

The value to our party in these meetings is tremendous. They can be utilised to get our revolutionary message across to the masses of workers, and infuse a new enthusiastic spirit into our membership and to add many new members to our party ranks. From now on a list of the immediate meetings of Foster and Gitlow will be carried in the DAILY WORKER. All cities should immediately furnish the campaign manager with the location and time of the Foster-Gitlow meetings.

FOSTER'S DATES

Minneapolis, 9th Ave S. and 8th St.—Thursday, Aug. 21, 7:30 p. m.

Duluth, Woodman Hall—Friday, August 22.

St. Paul, New Labor Temple, 416 N. Franklin St.—Saturday, August 23, 8:00 p. m.

Milwaukee, Tippecanoe Park—Sunday, Aug. 24.

Sioux City—Friday Aug. 29.

Des Moines—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Omaha—Sunday, Aug. 31.

Kansas City—Monday, Sept. 1.

St. Louis—Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Ziegler—Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Springfield—Thursday, Sept. 4.

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

GITLOW'S DATES

Newark—Friday, Aug. 22.

Trenton—Saturday, Aug. 23.

Washington—Monday, Aug. 25.

Richmond, Labor Temple—Sunday, Aug. 24, 8 p. m.

Reading, Veteran Firemen's Hall, 612 Franklin St.—Tuesday, Aug. 26, 8 p. m.

Scranton—Wednesday Aug. 27.

Binghamton, Lithuanian Hall—Thursday, Aug. 28, 7 p. m.

Buffalo Friday, Aug. 29.

Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 880 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Daleytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.

Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.

Pittsburgh, Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St.—Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Bellaire—Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Canton—Friday, Sept. 5.

Akron—Saturday, Sept. 6.

Cleveland—Sunday, Sept. 7.

New York—Tuesday, Sept. 9.

C. E. Ruthenberg executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Two of these meetings already arranged for are:

Boston, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1, Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.

New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermansen's Hall, 158 Crown St., 8 p. m.

DISTRICT ORGANIZER OF WORKERS PARTY IS ON STATE-WIDE TOUR

Arne Swabeck, District Organizer of the Workers Party, is making a tour visiting all party units in the state to solodify the organization and prepare the branches for the necessary work to be done in the election campaign as well as to take up the problem of unemployment, particularly among the miners.

Comrade Mother Bloor will later be toured for public campaign meetings visiting the same points; beginning about September 1.

District Organizer's Schedule: Springfield, Aug. 21; Kincaid, Aug. 22; West Frankfort, Aug. 24, morning; Johnston City, Aug. 24, evening; Benton, Aug. 25; Christopher, Aug. 26; Zelgler, Aug. 27; St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 28; Madison, Aug. 29; Belleville, Aug. 30; Mascoutah, Aug. 31, afternoon; O'Fallon, Aug. 31, evening; Benld, Sept. 1, and Livingston, Sept. 2.

Other points to be announced later. In several instances where smaller towns are closely located the branches will meet jointly in one city. All members of the Young Workers' League are expected to attend these meetings

The Riga Liar on the Cable Puts Russia in the Limelight Again

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Riga liar is on the job again.

This time his name is Donald Day, of the Chicago Tribune News Service, and his lie is headlined, "Russian Troops Kill Five As Mobs Beg for Food."

The Chicago Tribune has won a world reputation on the expertness of its news liars at Riga, the Latvian capital, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Helsingfors, not to mention Western European capitals.

* * * *

The truth gets a slight chance, however, in an interview cabled direct from Moscow by the correspondent of the New York Times, Walter Duranty. It gives the views of Fanny Hurst, the American author, now in the Soviet capital, who asks the question, "Why is it that as one approaches Russia, the people try more and more to frighten you back home?"

* * * *

She reviews the attitude toward her proposed trip to Moscow as follows:

"In London they said it was an easy and safe trip.

"In Paris they shook their heads doubtfully.

"Berlin told you ominously that it was a foolhardy undertaking.

"By the time I got to Riga the people were saying I would be carrying my life in my hands all the time."

* * * *

Of course, "the people" to whom Fanny Hurst refers are the sources of news, especially in Riga, of the foreign correspondents. These are "the people" who have been getting their attacks across against Russian Soviet Rule for the past seven years, but luckily without avail. Fanny Hurst, herself, tells what she found in Moscow, as follows:

"Yet Moscow is as quiet and orderly as any place in the world. It was really disappointing when I mustered up courage for a real adventure."

Duranty reports that "similar comment was made by an English woman member of parliament, Susan Lawrence, who remarked disappointedly that the crowd in Red Square waiting to visit Lenin's tomb seemed so passive and obedient, quite different from what she had expected."

* * * *

But if Fanny Hurst and Susan Lawrence couldn't find the killings, robberies and scandals that are rampant any day of the week in Chicago, New York, London, Paris or Rome, they, nevertheless, found much that was really worth while to interest them.

Fanny Hurst pays an especial tribute to Russian youth, and thereby confesses the stability of Soviet Rule in Russia. She says:

"What struck me most was the way everything this country (Soviet Russia) stands for is centered around youth.

"Not only nine executives out of ten you meet are young, but you feel tremendously that the whole country has been put in the hands of the growing generation to make or mar it after their own pattern. . . . .

" . . . . There is youth's tremendous vitality, youth's hopefulness and youth's power to work miracles, because it does not know that impossibilities are impossibilities.

" . . . . And they are all so desperately in earnest, these youngsters, so absorbed in their own affairs.

"Of one thing I am certain, it is the most interesting country in the world."

* * * *

But that isn't the kind of news that gets on the first page. At least not in these days. This news will jam the first pages, in every country just as soon as the spirit of the Russian youth, in building their own future, spreads to other lands.

* * * *

The last paragraph of the Donald Day story betrays its purpose. The Tribune correspondent has the peasants of Russia starving and then draws its conclusion that "exports must be radically curtailed if Russia intends to feed itself this coming winter. This should prove welcome news to American farmers, whom the Bolsheviks undersold in Europe a year ago."

No doubt the Tribune correspondent, in putting his little fake on the cable, whistled to himself, "That ought to get a few more votes for Coolidge."

But the hard facts of the bitter life of the bankrupt American farmer will soon drive him against the whole Coolidge social system. The every day struggle will force the youth, the workers, the farmers of the United States, to extend their hands in comradeship to the youth, the workers and the farmers of Soviet Russia. That will be a bad day for the subsidized politicians and the kept press defending things as they are.

DULUTH, MINN., READERS, ATTENTION!

Come and Hear

WM. Z. FOSTER

Workers Party Candidate for President of the United States.
Indorsed by the Executive Committee of the Farmer-Labor Party.

J. O. BENTALL, Chairman.

WOODMAN HALL
21st Avenue West and First Street, Duluth, Minn.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1924, 8 P. M.

Everybody Welcome! Questions Invited.

Mr. Foster has recently returned from a trip to Soviet Russia, Germany, England and France, where he studied labor conditions.

Auspices, Duluth City Central Committee, Workers Party of America.

MORGAN'S LOAN TO GERMANY TO GET CAL'S YES

Billion and Half to Be Total Investment

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 20.—After some hesitation due to fears over a delay in French evacuation of the Ruhr, U. P. Morgan and company has finally decided to float its share of the $200,000,000 reparations loan.

It is understood that the United States government will make an official appeal to the country to arouse popular support for and subscriptions to this loan.

Morgan's Man Servent.

Those who have observed closely the attitude of the administration point to the fact that Coolidge has already indorsed Morgan's plans in a speech the president delivered last April in New York. Besides, it is common knowledge that every step taken by the American unofficial observers and bankers at the London conference was in full accord with the policies proposed by Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

As soon as Andrew W. Mellon returns from his European "vacation" the federal government will make public its acceptance of the program of support for the Morgan loan. Mr. Mellon has been charged with the task of preparing this program for the administration.

$200,000,000 Only a Part.

Financiers and political observers are well aware of the fact that the initial $200,000,000 loan to be floated by J. P. Morgan & Co. and other bankers is only a small part of the loans that the United States will be called upon to fill in order to restore German industries sufficiently to enable the Reich to meet the French reparations bill. German municipal securities, industrial bonds and smaller national reconstruction loans will, soon after the $100,000,000 reparations loan is taken up, be put on the American financial market.

It is estimated by some observers of international finance that the United States will be called upon to invest a total of more than one and a half billion dollars in German municipal, government, industrial, public utility and railway bonds and securities. It is this likelihood of so gigantic an investment in Germany by capital that has attracted the large number of leading American bankers to European capitals in the last few weeks.

Bankers Flooding Europe.

Only two days ago Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, the biggest bank in the world, which is a Rockefeller-Morgan institution, sailed for Europe. The Guarantee Trust Company, the Corn Exchange Bank, the Bankers Trust Company and other leading New York financial institutions are all well represented in Europe today. Besides, Mr. Harris, one of the leading figures in New York Central Railway operations, is now in Germany studying the possibilities of American capital getting a dollar-proof grip on the German railway system.

Ambassador Kellogg and Colonel James A. Logan, who were the unofficial observers representing the United States at the London conference, are sure that the American share of the reparations loan will be floated without any difficulty. It is their opinion that a government appeal should be made in behalf of this Morgan loan only it it develops that its success would be jeopardised without such vigorous official action by the government.

Cal Will Be Good.

Messrs. Kellogg and Logan have notified the administration that the ample guarantees asked for by the American bankers have been given by the allied powers when they accepted the Dawes plan without amendment. The American banking interests point to Coolidge's statement in his speech of acceptance in which he said: "I shall do what I can to encourage American citizens and resources to assist in restoring Europe, with the sympathetic support of our government," as the basis of American official policy towards all the European loans that Wall Street bankers will float in the United States.

In the meanwhile, the machinery for floating the Dawes-Morgan loan is being carefully prepared, both in Europe and in the United States. Herriot has received the approval of his plans by the French cabinet. Chancellor Marx is tightening the screws on the reichstag and the German industrialists are fully prepared to put the Dawes plan into operation immediately.

Mexican Labor Temple.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—The Mexican Federation of Labor has successfully floated bonds for $200,000 among the workers to build a large labor temple in Mexico City.

VICTORY SEEN IN ENDING OF BOSTON STRIKE

Ninety Percent of Men Already Working

(By The Federated Press)

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Agreements have been signed between the settlement committee of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the men's garment manufacturers of Boston resulting in the return of 90% of the 4,000 workers who struck August 10 account of failure of some smaller manufacturers to abide by the 1921 agreement.

Union officials charged that these employers were encouraging the sweatshop by sending work into private homes. Fifty shops were affected by the walkout.

Strike Ends Soon.

The end of the strike is in sight, according to Jack Blume, manager, local joint board. The strike has been marked by rough work on the part of Boston police who put into effect a new ordinance designed for strike use legalizing the arrest of persons obstructing "free foot passage" on the sidewalks. Several small riots occurred as police interfered with pickets and crowds of orderly sympathisers. Twenty-six men and two women strikers were arrested by the police and one man was stabbed.

Blame Cops for Violence.

Union officials place the blame for violence on the shoulders of the police who have been fomenting trouble ever since the beginning of the strike. The prisoners were released on bail furnished by the organization.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

the British Labor party to office has the following to say:

"PROBABLY, as many British prophets agree, the moribund Liberal party will sooner or later give up the ghost, bequeathing, we fancy, a good part of the residue of its wits to the Labor brethren, and its worldly goods to the Conservatives. Thus there will be a united front against the powers of the Left, and all that the right thinking leaders will then have to do is to find the Socialist party. If Continental experience is a guide, Socialist parties once in office are likely to be impelled so far to the Right that they cannot see Karl Marx thru the most powerful telescope. We note that Mr. MacDonald has already reported a plump naval bill which over a score of the pacifist comrades from the Clyde and other reddish districts could not bring themselves to vote for. He is finding that his job is the premiership of the British Empire, not of the Trade Union International, and he is compelled to do precisely what any of the rest of us would do in such a position."

WHAT the Communists have repeatedly called to the attention of liberals and reformers has been amply borne out by the conduct of the British Labor Party since its assumption of office. The machinery of capitalist governments cannot be used to emancipate the workingclass and until the workers scrap the capitalist machinery and organize their own organs of government, the first steps in the development of a Communist society cannot be started. This means nothing else but the dictatorship of the workers, after the Russian model. Trotsky is not building battleships or organizing armies to fight the Hindus or blow Egyptian towns into smithereens. He is not building airplanes to fight over foreign markets. It is true Russia has a good war machine. But the difference between the British war establishment and that of the Soviet is not one of form but of purpose. The Soviet war machine is for the purpose of defending the proletarian revolution while that now under the direction of Ramsay MacDonald is in existence to protect British capitalist interests against the designs of other capitalists, to keep the natives of Britain's foreign colonies under the iron heel and to crush the workers of Great Britain should they revolt against their capitalist government.

THE GRAND DRAGON of the Ku Klux Klan for the Realm of Indiana, a millionaire coal operator, by name Stephenson, is now "spilling the beans" on the Kluxers. Stephenson was ousted from the Klan by Imperial Wizard Evans. This is certainly a filthy mess. It is safe to say that a more consummate gang of grafters never stepped in shoe leather. The sellers of fake oil stock who take the dimes from the "widows and the orphans" are models of rectitude compared to these lecherous swindlers who take advantage of the mental bankruptcy of the brain-poisoned 100 per cent American who pay $10 to join this organization. Up until the time Stephenson was dropped by the Klan, Indiana alone sent over $3,000,000 to Atlanta in dues, half of which was supposed to be returned to Indiana.

ACCORDING to Stephenson no accounting has ever been made of the Klan funds in Atlanta, the national headquarters. Not alone does Stephenson charge misappropriation of funds against the Klan heads in Atlanta but he plainly hints that orders came from the big chiefs to Indiana grand dragons to murder certain men in political life who had refused to accept Klan instructions. "The Klan officials called me to Atlanta on September 12, 1923, and laid before me certain things they wanted done to Capt. William S. Coburn, who afterwards was murdered. I refused to be a party to their plans and returned to Indiana." It seems that what Stephenson claims he was not willing to do was done by others.

THIS man Stephenson owns several profitable coal mines in the State of Indiana. He organized 350,000 members into the Klan in that state including practically two-thirds of the members of the miners' union, and the union officials, most of whom were former members of the Socialist Party. While attending the last international convention of the United Mine Workers of America, I with several other Communists attended an open meeting called by the Ku Klux Klan to protest against the union rule excluding known Kluxers from membership in the union. The chairman of that meeting read a document sent by the Grand Dragon of Indiana, this same coal operator Stephenson, stating the Klan position on the miners' union. The Klan according to this document was opposed to strikes and favored the setting up of joint committees of coal operators and miners. This was done at several mines and where strikes did break out these committees under the direction of the Grand Dragon coal operator, helped to smash the strikes.

THE position of Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan brot very real benefits to Stephenson. With 350,000 men at his command in Indiana, he had his finger on the public pulse and was on the way to become an important political factor. As it is, he wields tremendous influence. Stephenson did not stress the religious issue in Indiana, he claims, but set his morons the task of cleaning up vice and arresting bootleggers. He organized a state constabulary. He established an espionage system with central headquarters in Columbus, Ohio. His machine had "wheels within wheels." He had visions of becoming the Imperial Wizard or better still using the organization to jimmy his way into the White House. But it happened that Hiram Evans had the same ambition, so there was a clash. Stephenson, the coal magnate, was too successful, in organizing Klansmen so now the murder is coming out. But there are no indictments. The reason is obvious. Big Business may criticise the Klan, but it sees in that murderous organization a very useful weapon against the workers and it may need it some day. Only here and there in local cases are they interfered with.

THERE is no reason why people should be gloomy any longer. Unemployed workers hanging around Madison and Wells Streets waiting for the "job" edition of the Daily News, should drive away dull care. What if their stomachs approach their backbones with dangerous speed. The Coo-Coo girls are on the job and they guarantee to dispel gloom at first sight. These girls are employes of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and they came to the conclusion, —perhaps after attending a cabaret performance with their masters—that what this country needs is a good dose of Pollyannaism. If this movement spreads as rapidly as it should—it has all the qualifications for success, being thorgly stupid—the workers will find plenty of consolation in the smiles of the Coo-Coo girls. That is, unless the workers go "Cuckoo" with hunger.

KU KLUX KLAN HAND SEEN IN MINER MURDER

Worker Leaves Pregnant Wife and 2 Kids

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

DOWELL, Ill., August 20.—While on his way to the coal company's office here, a miner whose name is not known, was cold-bloodedly shot down in the middle of the road by two bullets fired in quick succession.

Leaves Pregnant Wife.

The miner was on his way to get the miserable pay check that is now the lot of the coal digger when he was fired on. Ten minutes later he died in the arms of his wife, surrounded by friends. He leaves a pregnant wife and two little girls.

The murderer was caught with his gun in his hands and he is in jail now, awaiting trial. The workers here would not, however, be surprised to learn that the killer is to be released since his father killed a man not so long ago and was freed in a few hours.

K. K. K. Suspected.

It is rumored that the crime was instigated by the Ku Klux Klan which is playing its double game of appealing to the miners to join and persecuting those who are wise to their purpose.

AMERICAN DIPLOMACY IN CHINA NEEDS NEW SUIT OF CLOTHES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, August 20.—The recognition of Soviet Russia by the Chinese government and the consequent stiffening of the Oriental spine against American imperialism is responsible for the calling of American Ambassador to China, Jacob Gould Schurman, to Washington for a conference with Hughes and Coolidge.

Schurman will lay before the president and Hughes an exhaustive report on conditions in China and the Orient.

The harmony which existed in the Far East after the Washington arms conference is now non-existent. Foreign diplomats in China no longer cooperate but follow the general policy of "every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Another and more serious complication than the growth of diplomatic independence on the part of the representatives of capitalist governments in Pekin is the entrance of Soviet Russia as a dominating figure in China.

The Soviet government in sending a fully accredited ambassador to China added to the difficulties of the United States. As the policy of the capitalist governments has been to send ministers instead of ambassadors to China, the Soviet ambassador became immediately on his arrival the dean of the diplomatic corps having highest rank and according to usage in Pekin, would be the spokesman for the corps in any dealings with the Chinese Foreign Office.

In the case of the United States any dealings with China thru the Russian ambassador would be tacit recognition of the Soviet government.

Troy, N. Y., Journeymen Tailors Give Support to Max J. Sillinsky

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Journeymen Tailors' Union of Troy has pledged its support to Max J. Sillinsky for general secretary of the national organization in the election soon to take place, and has sent the following letter to all locals of the union:

"Troy, N. Y., Aug. 16, 1924.

"To the General Membership of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America.

"Greetings — Journeymen Tailors that have common sense for the broad masses of tailors will vote for Max J. Sillinsky.

"It happens that we know our situation in the shops from coast to coast, but a few are too cowardly to admit it.

"There often appears an article in the Tailor, by Delamaine. It reads 'The Mind.' That reminds one of the Gypsy card reader. The old gentleman is reactionary and cares nothing for the broad masses of our tailors in the shops.

"A Texan tailor writes, sore because they cannot go to Russia, where Haywood is, but he mistakes it for sore that we have to tramp from shop to shop and ask the boss for a job, without protection as to wages and conditions. The situation is such that the tailors are in a pitiful plight.

"Now, brothers and sisters, vote for Max J. Sillinsky. Follow Troy, N. Y. We voted almost 100 per cent for Max J. Sillinsky.

"Brothers, please read this letter at your meetings and do justice to yourselves. Let's be alive in our organization.

"Fraternally yours,

"H. LERMON, President.

"L. DE LUCIA."

RICHARD M. WHITNEY, NOTORIOUS STOOLPIGEON, DIES OF HEART FAILURE IN NEW YORK CITY HOTEL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 20.—An attack of heart disease eliminated one of the most despicable stoolpigeons that ever dragged his slimy trail across the American map, when Richard M. Whitney, director of the American Defense Society, succumbed in the Hotel Pennsylvania here a few days ago.

He was in the city making preparations for participation of his organization in the Mobilization Day exercises. As a matter of fact he was the whole organization.

Whitney first broke into print shortly after the Bridgeman Communist raid. He ran a series of articles on the "Red Menace" in the Boston Transcript, a paper with which he was connected. Afterwards he went to Washington and blackmailed the politicians for funds with which to keep his bureau functioning. He was in close touch with William J. Burns and no doubt shared the graft with that worthy and his millions.

Since Burns was driven in disgrace from his berth in the Department of Justice, Whitney and the other buzzards who live on the offal dropped into their hungry maws by the capitalists, experienced lean times. The red-light, booze-fighting days of the "jolly good fellow" Harding era were at an end, when the illumination from the Teapot Dome sent the male and female prostitutes that surrounded the G. O. P. administration running for cover.

Paterson Gets Labor Bank.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 20.—The number of labor banks in the country has been increased to 34 with the opening of the Labor Co-operative National Bank in Paterson. Why Paterson should be plagued with this new tool of labor fakers has not yet been explained.

NO DAWES PLAN FOR SOVIETS; PLANNING COMMUNIST ECONOMY

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—Commenting on the recent successful conclusion to the Anglo-Russian treaties, and declaring that Soviet Russia would never accept loans under the conditions similar to those which the Allies were imposing on Germany, the official organ, Izvestia, says:

"There is no need to contrive for schemes like the Dawes plan. We have our own tasks, namely, to create an economic plan for the Soviet Union. Our plan needs no alien aid to help it along."

Strike for Payment of Wages.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—As a protest against non-payment of four days' wages, all the workers of the Tehuantepec railroad are on strike. The railroad offered 60 per cent cash and the rest in notes, but the workers refused these terms.

More Jobless in Mines.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 20.—Unemployment among the coal miners in Indiana is increasing by leaps and bounds. The latest survey shows that 7,328 miners are out of work in Indiana, in addition to those reported laid off in the last report, Chief Inspector C. Littlejohn announces.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

REPORT GERMANS WILL CONCUR IN DAWES PROPOSAL

Communists Alone Are Against It

BERLIN, Aug. 20. — "The London Conference agreement was an appeal to the heart rather than to the head," said the German delegation's report on the parley, parts of which were made public today. This is an attempt to assuage the feelings of the workers of Germany towards accepting the Dawes proposal, which is intended to enslave them in the interests of Anglo-American capital.

Servant of Reaction In U. S. Senate Kicks The Old Oaken Bucket

(By the Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Senator LeBaron B. Colt of Rhode Island is dead, and the senate committee on immigration loses its rebellious chairman, who refused to agree that a ban on the coming of a new labor supply from southern and eastern Europe to the mill towns of his state was bad for the mill owners. Year after year, with all the patient stubbornness he had developed by long service on the federal bench, he fought the rising tide of anti-immigration sentiment in congress. He has died, convinced that the business magnates have made a fatal mistake in yielding to this sentiment.

Senator Colt never voted for a progressive measure unless his republican old guard associates were convinced that it could not be beaten. He was one of the most consistent reactionaries ever sent to Washington by the Aldrich-Brayton organization. He had perfect manners and used the choicest English.

SPY AGENCY BACKS DOWN

(Continued from page 1)

per plant, near Boston, asked the speaker if the service did not employ spies and was it not, in spite of the attractive colors in which it had been painted, carried on by putting operatives under cover in clients' plants.

Fannon Denies Spies Charge.

Fannon replied that of course they didn't use spies; that if spying meant bringing capital and labor together by the innocent Sherman harmonizations they would admit it, but not in the popularly accepted sense of the word, for Sherman operatives were conciliators and carriers of light and truth.

Dunn Challenges Fannon.

Finally, when Fannon had successfully parried several of the business men, Robert W. Dunn charged him with deliberately misleading the audience. Dunn, who has written a book on industrial espionage, in collaboration with Sidney Howard, charged the Sherman Service specifically with strikebreaking, disruption of labor unions, use of gunmen and of the roughneck type of operator rather than the trained angel of conciliation described in the Sherman advertising booklet.

He also charged them with being the same sort of agency as the Corporations Auxiliary, the Bureau of Industrial Relations in which Jim Cronin, the Philadelphia molders' union official, was recently exposed, and a score of other union-breaking, strike-breaking agencies wearing similarly innocent titles.

Reads Sherman Record.

Dunn read from the report of the Interchurch World Report on the steel strike, showing the instructions by the Sherman to its operatives to stir up feeling between nationalities and to resort to acts of violence, and recalled how the Sherman had been indicted in Chicago for these crimes. He pointed out that their work was well known in the Lawrence strike of 1919, in the Kirschbaum strike in Philadelphia against the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and in dozens of other labor conflicts.

Fannon first tried to brush the matter lightly aside by saying he had heard of such charges against the Sherman when it was the Sherman detective agency, but never since it became an "industrial engineering and co-ordination bureau." Dunn replied that all the acts he had cited were performed since that name was changed in 1918.

Spies "Thoroly Criminal."

Roger Babson, reading the serious-ness of the charge, asked Fannon to tell them plainly if the Sherman ever used what were known in the labor movement as spies. Babson termed the use of spies "thoroly criminal."

Fannon then began to crawl, saying he had only been with the firm 14 months, and that Mr. Sherman would be glad to appear and refute the charges.

It was agreed that Fannon should produce Sherman at the round table discussion next morning. Dunn was asked to come and present his charges.

Spies Back Down.

Next morning at the conference the business men found no Fannon, no Sherman. Instead a messenger with a letter from the agency charging that "the radical elements" present at the previous day's session had insulted Fannon; that the Sherman Service was not on trial and that it would not dignify the ramblings of the questioners of the day before.

The matter was referred to the conference. It was agreed that the Sherman Service should be dropped from the discussion. "It has not accepted the opportunity," declared the chairman of the meeting. "The question has been sidestepped."

FRENCH CABINET IN UNANIMOUS APPROVAL TO DAWES PROPOSAL

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The French cabinet today unanimously approved the work of the French delegation to the London reparations conference, which adopted the Dawes-Morgan plan for the enslavement of Germany.

DON'T MISS THE NEXT ISSUE

THE DAILY WORKER MAGAZINE

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23rd, 1924

ONLY SOME OF THE CONTENTS:

1. "Results of Fifth Congress"..... By Alexander Bittelman
2. "The Situation in Bulgaria"..... By G. Dimitrow
3. "Cologne—Eisenach—London"..... By Arthur Rosenberg
4. "Culture Versus Life"..... By A Teacher
5. "On My Way to Russia"..... By Anna Porter
6. "The Passing of Pittsburgh Plus"..... By I. Ramirez (Gomez)
7. Verse: (a) "The Chant Prophet"..... By Josef Kalor
   (b) "Workers"..... By James H. Dobson
8. "Power"—A Play in One Act..... By Charles Ashleigh

ORDER NOW!

THE DAILY WORKER

1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

A Challenge!

THE Harlem Branch of New York City challenges every Workers Party Branch in the nation to send in an order for at least 100 copies of the first campaign issue. This branch has ordered 200 copies for distribution.

Act at once! Take this up at your next branch meeting. Every branch will be glad to send for at least 100 copies.

Let us roll up a big circulation for the First 1924 Communist Campaign issue of the DAILY WORKER. Use this blank.

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY..... STATE.....

Printed on a fine grade of paper, 12 inches by 20, suitable for framing or posting in your window.

FOSTER'S PICTURE

Should be in the home of every worker in America —because he is the only Presidential Candidate representing the class conscious workers.

THE DAILY WORKER

will be the best, the most incessant worker for

Foster For President

The only way you can secure this special

PICTURE OF FOSTER

is by getting some of the

4 MONTH SPECIAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS (For new subscribers only) $2.00

Get a New Reader for the DAILY WORKER, a Big Picture of Foster for Yourself and One for the New Subscriber.

USE THE COUPON

THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

I have sold a Special 4-Month Election Campaign sub. Please send me FREE the picture of Foster.

Name .....

Street .....

City ..... State.....

New Subscriber's

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

TALLENTIRE HAS GOOD MEETINGS ON COAST TOUR

Workers Listening to Communist Message

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., August 20.—"Meetings on my trip since leaving Omaha have been most successful," said Norman Tallentire, Workers Party speaker and organizer, upon his arrival here after a short tour thru the west, addressing gatherings on the anti-war stand of the Communists.

S. P. Branch Joins W. P.

In Denver, an enthusiastic crowd met in the Jewish Labor Lyceum, at which Tallentire spoke under the chairmanship of J. A. Ayres, recent recruit to the party. A few days previously the socialist party branch here had swung into the Workers Party.

In Salt Lake City, the meeting, the small, created much enthusiasm and will result in the revival of the party unit.

Five hundred gathered in Symphony Hall to cheer the Communist International in Los Angeles at the Tallentire meeting. Excellent preparations had been made by Comrade Emanuel Levin. The meeting in San Francisco, under the chairmanship of Jack Carney, editor of Labor Unity, was equally successful.

Portland Interested.

One of the best meetings was held in Portland, Oregon, where 200 workers showed their keen interest in the Communist message by remaining until the end of the meeting, 10:30; the comrades later voted it one of the best meetings in recent months.

Collections taken at metings have been very good and showed the renewed interest that the workers in the west are taking in the message of the Workers Party.

Tallentire still has Seattle and Vancouver to cover.

Active at Bentleyville, Pa.

Every Sunday at 1 p. m. a class on the program and constitution of the Workers Party will meet at the home of Adam Getlo. Everybody welcome.

A meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Council for Protection of Foreign-born will be held on August 30, at 7 p. m., at the Bentleyville Miners Hall.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Views of Our Readers

N. D. Farmers for Communists.

To the DAILY WORKER — The statement is often made that the farmer is not ready for Communism. Well, let's see how that holds up against what happened in Williams County, North Dakota.

At the convention of the Non-Partisan League, Andred Arnholt for sheriff at the June Primary recived very vote, total votes 50. Ben Fedge for County Treasurer received 37 out of 50 and A. C. Miller for House of Representatives received the highest vote of all.

More Communist propaganda among the farmers showing up LaFollette's past record will soon end his influence. What we need is more literature showing up LaFollette.

Harvest has just started. Threshing will be on in about two weeks. Then we are going to use some of the bankers' money for the campaign of Foster and Gitlow.—A. C. Miller.

Call on Workers to Write.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I would suggest that the DAILY WORKER carry more word pictures of Communistic factories, agricultural communes and a co-operative system of distribution.

We must instill our Communistic principles into the minds of the people.

Therefore, let every worker, who can express himself, contribute to our educational program.

Hail, to the DAILY WORKER and its staff and let's help all we can.

M. HUMPHREY.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

New York, Attention!

THE FIRST GREAT FILM FROM SOVIET RUSSIA

"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"

Produced by Proletkino (Moscow) in co-operation with the Red Army

A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest

8 DAYS

AUGUST 22 TO 29, INCLUSIVE, At the

LENOX THEATRE

111th Street and Lenox Avenue

Added Film Feature

"RUSSIA IN OVERALLS"

One Performance Nightly Starting at 8:30 P. M.

Saturday and Sunday 3 Performances at 2-5, 7-9, 9-11

ADMISSION - - - - - 50c

Thalheimer Urges World Communist Program

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the closing installment of the report of August Thalheimer, German Communist, on the question of the World Communist Program, made to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International. This concludes the publication of the joint report made to the congress by Nicholas Bukharin and Thalheimer. In future issues we shall report the discussion and decisions on this report. Thalheimer said:

* * *

WE also reported upon the various types of countries. It had been decided similarly by the Fourth Congress that this description of the different countries should be made as an introduction to the national programs, and that it should be made from the point of view of revolutionary strategy, of the conquest of political power. Comrade Varga spoke on this subject, and has also submitted a draft of the descriptions. The assertions considered here were as follows:

First, the aspect of economic development, including the following three questions: 1. Whether a country may be expected to develop further under the capitalistic system or not; 2. Whether a given country has already reached its highest stage of development, or passed it; 3. The problem of the Soviet States where the proletariat has already seized power, and broken down the capitalistic framework.

Secondly, the classification of countries according as to whether they are the exploiters or the exploited in imperialistic politics; whether they are partially or wholly independent of the great imperialistic powers.

Thirdly, the class structure of the various countries, and the relative strength of the various classes in each country, of course, with special reference to the working class.

Attitude Toward Second International.

During the discussion special stress was laid upon one point which is important for us in defining our own standpoint in distinction to that of the Second International, namely the fact that one must very carefully differentiate the development of a country from the point of view of revolutionary strategy, from its development from the point of view of Socialism. The aspects which determine the transition to Socialism are not the same as those which determine the transition to revolution. In considering the question of the transition to Socialism, the important features are the technical and economic stage of industrial development, the degree of centralization, and the proportionate strength of industrial in relation to that of other non-capitalistic forms of production in the same country.

A typical instance of the way in which these two points of view can be confused, is provided by Kautsky, and showed itself in a particularly blatant way in his treatment of the question of the Russian revolution. For in Russia we can see, with the greatest clearness, the difference between the two aspects.

Russia Far in Advance.

Where revolutionary development was concerned, our experiences have shown that Russia was far in advance of all other countries. But as soon as political power had been conquered, it soon became evident that Russia was backward, where the evolution of Socialism was concerned. These two circumstances are closely related to one another. The comparative backwardness and lack of economic development in Soviet Russia, i. e., the large proportion of peasants to industrial workers, produced the peculiar character of our revolution, namely the union of the proletariat with the peasants. It was this union which made the country ripe for revolution, and it is also this union which is producing the greatest difficulties in the present period of transition to Socialism.

To turn now to the agrarian question. The commission received a detailed report on the agrarian program in its relation to the general program. Lenin's theses on the agrarian question at the Second Congress, and the theses of the Fourth Congress, were taken as a foundation. The points discussed were the following:

The attitude which should be adopted towards the various bourgeois projects for agrarian reform, such as that of dividing up large estates for the benefit of poor peasants. The question was asked, what should be the attitude of the Communist program to bourgeois plans of this kind?

The Communist Parties cannot afford to take up an attitude of neutrality or of opposition to plans of this kind, least of all when they have already gained a hold on the masses; but, on the other hand, they be dragged along at the heel of a movement of this kind, they must take up the only possible attitude, which is to drive such movements further forward, and to put forward demands which will force them on towards revolution. For instance, in relation to the bourgeois schemes for agrarian reform, the demand should without any compensation being paid for it to the owners of the large estates. It is typical of all these bourgeois projects of agrarian reform that the division of land is never suggested except in exchange for compensation. We must hold firmly in our program to the demand that distribution of land should always take place without compensation.

Study Slow and Fast Tempo.

It was further discussed whether this attitude was equally suitable to a slow as well as a fast revolutionary tempo, whether it was required because a slowing down in the tempo of revolution had been accepted. The commission decided here that this was not the case. The fact that we are obliged to join in these movements is indicated by the revolutionary situation itself. Then the question of small and large scale farms was discussed, with special reference to the views represented by revisionists like David. Superficially it might appear that by supporting the division of land at the present moment, we were approaching, in some respects, the point of view of these revisionists, but that is not the case. We look at things from the point of view of revolutionary strategy. David looks at them from the point of view of reformist politics. We define our own attitude by declaring that we take our whole stand on the necessity for large scale farming. In agriculture as in other forms of production, we aim at the development of large-scale production. This means of course, that we do everything that is possible, politically and economically for this end, but we must lay stress upon it as our fundamental standpoint, because it is the standpoint necessary for the development of Socialism.

Then another point which is of a certain amount of importance among Social Democrats. You are aware that among the Social Democrats the antagonism which exists between the urban worker as purchaser, and the peasant as seller of food, has been made much of in the last years. And the stress laid upon this antagonism was a means towards uniting the urban worker with the bourgeoisie against the smaller peasantry. What have we to say about this? Of course we have to admit that antagonism between the worker and the peasant does exist, where the price of food is concerned. But the difference between the worker as purchaser and the peasant as seller of food is nothing in comparison to that antagonism between the workers and the peasants together on one side and the great capitalists and big landlords together on the other. Thus far we can submit false views of the Social Democrats, to a thoro revision.

Raise Land Nationalization.

The question of land nationalization, and the part it should play in our program was also discussed. With regard to the nationalization of large estates there is nothing to be discussed. The only question that arises is to how far the principle of nationalization should be extended. Should it be extended to small and medium-sized properties? On this question the commission decided to leave the matter open, and not to mention the nationalization of small and medium-sized properties, but to indicate in the program that profiteering and speculation in land should be prohibited by law. To elucidate this further, let me point out that with regard to small and medium-sized properties, we can exercise the same control by different legal methods. One can extend the principle of nationalization by law to the small and medium-sized properties, and declare that the peasant is not the owner of his land, but is permitted to enjoy only the use of it, thus limiting his powers of selling it or giving it away. Or one can say just the opposite, as in the German agrarian program, i. e. that the possessions of these poor and middle peasantry, will not be touched, and the one can add all sorts of legal restrictions preventing buying, selling, giving away, or inheriting land. We have indicated the latter method as the most suitable one in general, because in the west of Europe the conception which the small and middle peasantry have of property is far more deeply rooted than was the case in Russia.

Then, comrades, there is still the national question. The features of the national question were also explained by Lenin and cleared up in the theses of our international congresses. I will not mention the points to be settled; I will mention only the points which were discussed in the Program Commission. There were two essential points. First, how far shall the Communist Parties of oppressed nationalities make use of the right which our program gives them of national self-determination even to the point of secession; that is, how far or under what circumstances shall they apply this program slogan practically and politically? Well, comrades, the point of view which must serve as our criterion can only be a general point of view—that the national ponts of view must be entirely subjected, under all circumstances, to the point of view of the international class struggle. All these various questions must be concretely solved from this point of view.

Take Up Self Determination.

The second question was whether the slogan of the right of self-determination was sufficient for the solution of all national questions. It was pointed out that a number of nationalities existed in countries like the United States, where there is an extraordinarily mixed population; which shows that the slogan of the right of self-determination cannot solve all national questions. Then there is the race question. The Program Commission was of the opinion that the slogan of the right of self-determination must be supplemented by another slogan: "Equal rights for all nationalities and races." The Program Commission also discussed whether or not the program should contain a definition of the conception of a nation. The Commission came to the conclusion that it was practically impossible to find a definition for the conception "nation" which would satisfy all requirements, and that for the requirements of our fight it is only necessary to have a political definition, so that we may know where we can intervene and where we can not. Of course, everything depends upon whether or not the working class of the country raises the national question. If the national question is a vital one for the working class, if it is vital for the workers and peasant-proletariat, then it is naturally vital for the Communist Party and must not be neglected.

A further question which was discussed in the Program Commission was the question of the new form of the bourgeois governments. Fascism was discussed as a form of government on the one hand, and the Labor-Party-government on the other. The various types of Fascist government were discussed, and we came to the conclusion that Fascism had already developed various national types. For instance, Italian Fascism, its forms of development and forms of government, is not identical with German Fascism, its struggle for development and its methods of wielding power. Here national differences exist.

The next matter that was discussed was what the next stage after Fascism would be. Various speculations were, made. Must Fascism be eliminated directly by the proletarian dictatorship, or could intermediate stages arise? Comrades, the Commission was of the opinion that we cannot prophesy about this question but must leave it open, because various possibilities exist.

Also Discuss Intellectuals.

Then the question of the intellectuals was discussed. I will not report on this question, since it is a special point on the agenda.

Then on the role of the party, on which subject Comrade Kuusinen spoke. I will mention the following points which arose from this discussion: We all agreed that the conception of the role of the party as represented in the Communist Manifesto is obsolete and the matter must be changed accordingly.

We had quite a thoro discussion on the question of democratic centralism, especially on the question whether or not we should retain this expression. Certain criticisms were made of this expression from the point of view that it does not sufficiently express the synthesis and harmony of these two conceptions—centralism and democracy; and that it ought to be replaced by a better expression. But after a long discussion on the subject, the Commission decided that we must unconditionally retain this expression because it had been clearly and precisely defined, particularly by Comrade Lenin.

The commission also made an analysis of the organizational conceptions which had been put forth by Comrade Rosa Luxemburg. The historical background of these conceptions were discussed, and the Commission came to the conclusion that these conceptions are now obsolete and are no longer advocated by anyone. The fact which caused these conceptions to become obsolete and which compels us to modify them, is that before the Russian Revolution no one, including Rosa Luxemburg, could conceive the organization question from the point of view of the armed uprising. But that was the decisive question for the Russian conception of the organizational question.

Popular vs. Class Party.

In connection with the question of the Communist parties, another question was discussed, namely Popular Party and Class Party. Comrades, this question played a certain role also among the Social Democrats, who represent themselves as the Popular Party, that is, as the party which unites within itself the working class and all other toilers. We claimed to be a Popular Party, but in an entirely different way. The claims to be the Popular Party in that we, as the revolutionary class party of the proletariat, assumed the leadership of the toiling classes. While the Social Democrats and the parties of the Second International consider to be their role as a Popular Party is something entirely different. It is the subordination of the interests of the proletariat to the interests of the petty bourgeoisie, and the subordination of the interests of the petty bourgeoisie to the interests of the large bourgeoisie—in other words, it is partly a reformist, partly a conservative, and partly a reactionary Popular Party.

Comrades, another point that was discussed was that of the Communist philosophy. Comrade Bukharin has already spoken in detail on this subject. The only question which was discussed in the Program Commission was how far must we go into detail in this question. Shall we give a more or less detailed declaration or shall we restrict ourselves giving a brief and precise statement of the standpoint of the Communist Party on this question. We decided to do the latter and to say at the proper place: "The Communist Party bases itself on the standpoint of dialectic materialism."

The last point, the strategy and tactical principles, have not yet been discussed in the Commission. One part of the debate has been anticipated here, and the other part will be discussed in the Commission.

My conclusion I will state: I believe that it is of significance for us that in the Program Commission it was shown that no fundamental differences exist within the Communist International, that no fundamental differences were expressed in the Program Commission. Hence Comrade Bukharin and I are of the opinion that this Congress should accept the draft of the program as outlined here in essentials, and as it will emerge from the Commission, so that it can be sent out as the official draft of the Communist Party to all its sections for further consideration, amendment and discussion. When this is done, then either an Enlarged Plenum or the next Congress should definitely adopt the program in its final form.

CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, WORKERS PARTY, REBUKES WRONG POLICIES IN PRINTERS' UNION

THE Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has examined into the policy followed by Comrade H. M. Wicks and a few other Communists in the recent election in the International Typographical Union. It finds that these comrades openly supported for office various reactionary candidates, including the notorious labor faker, James M. Lynch, for the position of international president. It finds further that these comrades took this action entirely upon their own initiative and without consulting the party committee. The Central Executive Committee has examined Comrade Wicks' explanation, which is to the effect that this action was taken in order to defeat Howard, the reactionary who has been president of the I. T. U. in the recent past. The C. E. C. considers as entirely unsound the explanations and arguments of Comrade Wicks. Because Howard is a traitor to the rank and file of his union is absolutely no reason why Communists should support against him another traitor, equally bad or worse, the capitalist henchman and ex-Tammany politician, Lynch. In the recent elections the Communists in the I. T. U. should have nominated a candidate of their own, or, if they were unable to do this, should have fought both Lynch and Howard and exposed their treachery. The C. E. C. categorically condemns the policy championed by Comrade Wicks as rank opportunism and as highly detrimental to the Workers Party. It cannot and will not be tolerated on the part of Communists.

CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA,
William Z. Foster, Chairman,
C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary.

Are You Young in Spirit?

If you're young (in spirit) and have thirty-five cents, be at the Hebrew Institute, Taylor and Lytle Sts., on Saturday, August 23, at eight o'clock, where the Young Workers' League, Marshfield branch, will hold a novel affair. The proceeds will go to the "Young Worker" and the branch is determined that the dance shall be a huge success. There will be games and surprises and many novel features and a good time is assured to all.

CHICAGO ENTERTAINMENTS

Sunday, August 24—I. W. L. picnic, National Grove.
Monday, September 1—T. U. E. L. picnic, Altenheim Grove.
Sunday, September 7 — International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.
Sunday, September 21—Volunteer Affair.
Sunday, October 12—Foster campaign meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).
Friday, October 17—John Reed Memorial meeting.
Saturday, October 25—Freiheit ball, Ashland Auditorium.
Friday, November 7—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.
Sunday, September 7 — International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.
Sunday, September 21—Volunteer Affair.
Wednesday, December 31—T. U. E. L. dance, West End Hall.
Wednesday, January 21—Lenin Memorial meeting, Ashland Auditorium.

Y. W. L. and W. P. Members in Food Trades: Attention!

A special meeting of the party and league members of the food trades has been called for Saturday night, Aug. 23, at 7:30 p. m., in Room 307, 166 West Washington St.

There is the utmost need of a thoro discussion on the matter of food trades program and policy of the party in the food trades. There is much confusion prevailing and therefore not the necessary and expected activity among the comrades.

At this meeting we shall have a complete discussion of the program of the T. U. E. L. and party in the food industry, of the past activities, efficiencies, etc., in an effort to clarify the minds of the comrades on the program, policy, etc., and program for the work in the city will be presented.

We expect every member in the food industries to be present on time at this meeting and to contribute his share in the discussion.

Fraternally yours,
WORKERS PARTY,
LOCAL CHICAGO.
MARTIN, ABERN, City Secy.
A. OVERGAARD, Ind. Org.

Los Angeles, Attention!

Sunday, August 24th will be a gala day for the comrades of Los Angeles. Everyone will attend the joy-ride and picnic at Tepange Canyon Beach where there will be games, entertainments, dancing and refreshments aplenty. Tickets 75c including transportation. Trucks and autos will leave from corner Soto and Brooklyn Aves. at 9 in the morning. Directions to the picnic: Follow Santa Monica Beach road to first new concrete bridge—its just the other side of bridge.

HUGHES PEEVED AT SOVIET RULE

(Continued from Page 1.)

the said railway." The amount and conditions of the redemption price were to be settled at a later conference between the two governments. Meanwhile the two governments were to draw up an agreement for the provisional management of the railway. It is this provisional agreement which has just come to light, and which justifies Mr. Hughes in pulling a long face.

In the first place, the road is to be run by a board of ten men, half of whom are to be named by each government. A Chinese is to be head of the board and director-general, while a Russian is to be vice-chairman and assistant director-general. When the board is deadlocked on any question, the two governments must settle the issue. But the board must select a Russian citizen to be manager, and a Chinese and a Russian as his assistants.

Control Railway Situation.

Next, the budget and estimates are to be in the sole custody of a board of five auditors, three of whom shall be named by Moscow, acting jointly with the board of directors. This joint board will then stand at eight Russians and seven Chinese, thereby enabling the Russians to determine how much money shall be spent. This is the real control of the whole railway situation, since the effort of the road will be turned by this majority to restoring thru traffic to Vladivostok from all of Manchuria, and to diverting it from the Japanese-owned South Manchurian Railway which runs south to Darien, a greater distance to seaboard. Japan suffers not merely a political and moral setback, but a serious commercial loss, by this Russian victory.

Secretary Hughes has played the Japanese as against the Russian game, in the orient, while trying to keep China safe for American commercial and banking exploitation. This railway deal is a slap in the face for his anti-Russian policy, and injures the prestige of American trade thruout Manchuria and north China.

What hurts him quite as much, perhaps, is the fact that the Boxer fund restored by Russia is to be spent for Chinese education under joint Soviet and Chinese supervision. All expenditures must be approved by the one Russian and two Chinese members of a special board. This sounds like an opportunity for the teaching of young Chinese in the light of the Russian social revolution. It has endless possibilities.

Will Dismiss Czarists.

And then there are the butcher officers and Cossacks of the czarist armies who took refuge in Chinese military and police service. Minister Koo has notified Karakhan that all of these will be dismissed—"as they constitute by their presence and activities a menace to the safety of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics."

There are other agreements, dealing with the restoration of government property such as legations and consulates, and the submission of Russian nationals in China to Chinese law and Chinese courts. But the big things are the capture of the railway, under the "temporary" arrangement, and the notification to Mr. Hughes that henceforth he must discuss with the Moscow and Peking governments, jointly, his $5,000,000 claim, announced some months ago, against the railway for its upkeep during the years of Allied intervention in Siberia.

RUSSIA IN PLAN FOR FINANCIAL STABILIZATION

Soviets Outline New Monetary Policy

The text of the address made by Sokolnikoff, Soviet Russia's financial commissary, at the Russian financial conference in the last week of June, just received here, contains the following summary outline of the financial purpose and policy of the bureau:

1. By means of the stable currency to overcome the isolation of the economic activity of the farmers and to strengthen the devlopment of big industry on the basis of an organized market.

Retain Key to Market.

2. By the regulation of the money traffic to retain the key to regulating the entire commodity market in the hands of the state.

3. By means of a suitable budget and credit policy to reconcile the interests of the state as a whole with those of the state industrial organizations, and to bring the development of big industry into permanent agreement with that of small farming.

4. From a financial policy based on realities to proceed to an economic policy likewise based on realities.

Won't Surrender to Blockade.

5. Financially to organize and mobilize the internal forces of the country in such a manner as to eliminate the possibility of a surrender to the capitalistic blockade.

While Germany is being enslaved by the Dawes pact, swallowing the poison which it thinks is a good financial injection, Russia is definitely laying out a program for the stabilization of its finances, which means the betterment of the conditions of its working masses.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 21.

Finnish Branch, 1326 N. Halsted St.
South Side English, 2201 S. Wabash Ave.
Scandinavian Karl Marx, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.
Russian, 1902 W. Division St.
11th Ward Italian, 2439 S. Oakley Blvd.
21st Ward Italian, 1125 S. Sangamon St.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22.

Ukrainian No. 2, Ukrainian Educational Society, 10701 Stephenson Ave.
Polish North Side, 1902 W. Division St.
Lithuanian No. 5, Milda Hall, 3142 S. Halsted St.
Greek Branch, 721 Blue Island Ave.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23.

Meeting of All Party members in Local No. 275, C. W. A., at Room 307, 166 W. Washington Blvd., at 2:30 p. m.
Meeting of all Party members Food Trades Group, at Room 307, 166 West Washington St., 6:30 p. m.

CHICAGO STREET MEETINGS.

Thursday, August 21.

63rd and Green Sts.—Auspices Englewood branch; speaker, Clarence Miller.
14th and 21st Ave., Cicero—Cicero branches; speaker, D. E. Earley.
Douglas Park Jewish; speaker, Max Shachtman.
Jewish Auspices Polish branch; speakers in English and Polish.

Friday, August 22.

Roosevelt and Central Park—Auspices Douglas Park Jewish; speaker, D. E. Earley.
Lawrence and Sawyer — Auspices Irving Park W. P. and Y. W. L.; speaker, Peter Herd.
North and Rockwell—Auspices North West branch; speaker, Sam Hammersmark.

Saturday, August 23.

114th and Michigan—Auspices Pullman branches; speakers, Edwards and Gaines.
Division and Washtenaw—Auspices N. W. Jewish.
Dickson and Division, near Milwaukee—Auspices Polish branch.
Halsted and Maxwell (700 south)—Auspices Greek branch; speaker, George Mayer.
Roosevelt and Central Park—Auspices Douglas Park Jewish; speaker, Max Shachtman.
26th and So. State Sts.—Auspices South Side branch; speakers, Gordon Owens, North Avenue and Orchard—Auspices German-Hungarian branches.

* * *

To All Party Members.

Dear Comrades—A special membership meeting of Local Chicago, Workers Party, has been called for Wednesday, Aug. 27, at 8 p. m., at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. Members of the Young Workers League are also to be present.

This membership meeting is a combination elections campaign and DAILY WORKER meeting. Reports on the progress of the election campaign in Chicago will be given and also of the progress being made in the DAILY WORKER and membership campaign drive.

Joseph Manley, national campaign manager in the elections, will report on the progress of the campaign for Foster and Gitlow nationally. In addition to the reports that will be made on the state and local activities.

Earl Browder, editor of the Labor Herald, will report on the DAILY WORKER and membership drive.

Every branch has to make sure that its DAILY WORKER agent is present and every member of the branch campaign committee.

Already excellent progress is being noted in the matter of getting the petitions signed to place the Workers Party candidates on the ballot.

We are getting many new members and greater efforts must be expended to increase the DAILY WORKER circulation in its special drive.

Every member of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League on the job. Be at the membership meeting Wednesday, Aug. 27, and help do your share in the campaigns.

Fraternally yours,
WORKERS PARTY,
LOCAL CHICAGO.
MARTIN ABERN, Secy.

The World of Labor — Industry & Agriculture

KENTUCKY MINE OWNERS PLEDGED AGAINST UNIONS

Sign Contract Not to Hire Organized Men

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 20.—A contract by which the mine owner promises not to employ any union miner, in return for which the mine owner promises among other things not to join any union is in force in southeastern Kentucky fields, according to the United Mine Workers of America. The union makes public the following one-sided anti-union contract which owners force on their workers in some of the fields:

Spill Sweet Sounds.

"In order to preserve to each man the right to do such work as he pleases and for whom he pleases and the right to payment in proportion to services rendered, and to preserve the natural and constitutional right of individual contract, to preserve to each individual the fruit of his own labor and to promote the interests of both parties hereto . . . employer, and . . . employe, agree as follows:

Won't Hire Unionists.

"That so long as the relation of employer and employe exists between them, the employer will not knowingly employ or keep in his employment any member of the United Mine Workers of America, the I. W. W., or any other 'mine labor' organization, and the employe will not join or belong to any such union organization, and will not aid or encourage or approve the organization thereof, it being understood that the policy of said company is to operate a non-union mine and that it would not enter into any contract of employment under any other conditions; and if when said relation of employer and employe at any time or under any circumstances terminates, the employe agrees that he will not then or thereafter in any manner molest, annoy, or interfere with the business, customers or employes of employers, and will not aid or encourage any one else in so doing.

"Witness the following signatures this, the.....day of....., 192..."

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

FURNISHED ROOMS, APARTMENTS AND BUNGALOWS.

REDS COMING TO WASHINGTON, D. C.

Furnished Rooms, $10 to $25 a Month. Apartments, $25 to $60 a Month. Bungalows, $40 to $75 a Month.

Mrs. Bateler, 32 G Street, S. W. Washington, D. C.

FURNISHED ROOM WANTED.

Single room for man. Northside preferred. Quiet. The Daily Worker, Box P-A.

DENNIE BATT'S PAPER IN ATTACK ON ONE FAKER WHILE SUPPORTING COOLIDGE BACKER

By OWEN STIRLING
(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., August 20.—Under the caption, "For a Mess of Pottage," the last issue of the Detroit Labor News, organ of the Detroit Federation of Labor, carries a justifiable attack on former labor union bureaucrats who are using their former labor alignments for prestige in the ranks of one or the other of the Wall Street parties.

Among the former bureaucrats named are William B. Wilson. The Detroit Labor News comments in part as follows:

"The most prominent of these to sell their prestige for a mess of pottage is William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor and long ago general secretary of the United Mine Workers. Mr. Wilson expected that the labor movement would take without question his statements regarding the progressive character of John W. Davis. Fortunately Mr. Gompers and others are as well aware of Davis' record as Mr. Wilson is, and his preposterous claims for the democratic presidential nominee have been exposed.

"Mr. Powers, one-time leader of American labor, is another gentleman who is trying to warm himself by the dying embers of the fire of his reputation. He differs from Wilson in that he is endeavoring to gain support for the republican candidate."

Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

The Detroit Labor News is committed to the program of the Conference for Progressive Political Action. On page one of the same issue it carries a political story containing the following paragraph relating to the conference's gubernatorial candidate in Michigan:

"The candidate for governor, Herbert F. Baker, is also satisfactory to the overwhelming majority of unionists of the city and state. In addition he has the farmers and many business men's organizations behind him. Mr. Baker is a real dirt farmer and has proven by years of service in the state legislature his devotion to the interest of the toiling masses."

Baker for Coolidge.

But Baker, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, is supporting for re-election Calvin Coolidge, strikebreaker and also savior of the Teapot Dome corruptionists.

The Detroit Labor News editor does not include Baker with Wilson and Powers. Many trade unionists in Detroit are wondering what it is all about.

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND

CARL BRODSKY

1123 Broadway, New York City
Tel. Watkins 3626.

Your Union Meeting

THIRD THURSDAY, AUG. 21.

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting.
	Allied Printing Trades Council, 59 E. Van Buren St., 6:30 p. m.
271	Automobile Cloth Workers, 409 S. Halsted St.
227	Boiler Makers, 2040 W. North Ave.
83	Bricklayers, 1932 Milwaukee Ave.
14	Brick and Clay, Shermanville, Ill.
186	Brick and Clay, Glenview, Ill.
42	Carpenters, 113 S. Ashland Blvd.
62	Carpenters, 6418 S. Halsted St.
241	Carpenters, 1440 Ems St.
434	Carpenters, South Chi., 11037 Michigan Ave.
584	Carpenters, Ogden and Kedzie.
2103	Carpenters, 754 W. North Ave.
180	Drug Clerks, 181 S. Dearborn St., Room 1327.
134	Electricians, 1507 Ogden Ave.
795	Electricians, 7475 Dante Ave.
715	Electricians, 9223 Houston Ave.
429	Firemen and Enginemen, 38th and Campbell Sts., 7:45 p. m.
269	Hod Carriers, South Chicago, 8701 E. 92nd St.
60	Janitresses, City Hall, Hearing Room.
18	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
54	Ladies Garment Workers, 1214 N. Ashland Ave.
100	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
12	Leather Wokers, 810 W. Harrison St.
233	Moulders, 119 S. Throop St.
	Painters' District Council, 1446 W. Adams St.
371	Painters, Dutt's Hall, Chicago Heights.
2	Pianos and Organ Wkrs., 180 W. Washington.
281	Plumbers (Railway), Monroe and Peoria Sts.
724	Railway Carmen, 75th and Drexel Ave.
504	Railway Clerks, 8138 Commercial Ave.
14872	Sign Hangers, 810 W. Harrison St.
12	Slate, Tile Roofers, 1224 Milwaukee.
110	Stage Employes, Masonic Temple, 10:30 a. m.
	Steam Fitters, 180 W. Washington St.
742	Teamsters, 9206 Houston Ave.
784	Teamsters (Dairy), 220 S. Ashland.
110	Upholsterers, 180 W. Washington St.

(Note—Unless otherwise stated all meetings are at 8 p. m.)

I. W. W. Attorney Arrested in Speech on Centralia Men

By Defense News Service.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 20.—Free speech has become an issue in Ellensburg. Attorney Elmer Smith of Centralia was arrested there on the evening of Aug. 16 while speaking about the Centralia tragedy on a side street, and was charged with interfering with traffic, altho there was no traffic on that street. Smith was found guilty of the charge, and was fined $20 and costs. He appealed the case and was released on bond. Then he made a public announcement that he would return to Ellensburg at an early date and make another attempt to speak there, and to test his rights under the guarantees in the United States Constitution.

No ruling has yet been made by the state supreme court in the disbarment proceedings against Smith because of his criticism in public speeches of Judge John M. Wilson, who tried the Centralia defendants at Montesano in 1920. The 90-day limit within which the court must rule expires Sept. 6.

Send in that Subscription Today.

International Youth Day Celebration in Detroit on Sept. 7

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—"Youth Day," in Detroit will be celebrated by a grand international picnic Sunday, Sept. 7, at Campbell's Grove, end of the Mack car line.

John Edwards, one of the American delegates to the Y. C. I. Congress, will be the main speaker. There will be races, games and a number of carnival features, including an array of Ku Klux and Fascisti dolls that are to be swatted with base balls by budding Babe Ruths. Music for dancing will be furnished by a specially selected union picnic band.

An exhibition soccer ball game will be played by the Y. W. L. branch 2, soccer team.

Grounds will be open from 9 a. m. until midnight. In case of heavy rain the celebration will be held at the House of Masses, corner of St. Aubin and Gratiot Aves.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

E. W. RIECK LUNCH ROOMS

Seven Places

62 W. Van Buren | 42 W. Harrison
169 N. Clark | 118 S. Clark
66 W. Washington | 167 N. State

PHONES, HARRISON 8616-7

Specialties: E. W. Rieck Boston Baked Beans and Brown Bread
Fine Soups and Fresh Made Coffee
Commissary and Bakery:
1612 Fulton St. Phone West 2549

COMMUNIST RIPS INTO SOCIALIST PARTY IN BOSTON

Ballam Boosted for Governor

By JAMES J. LACEY
(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BOSTON, August 20.—Pemberton Square, Boston, for a long time the hidden burial place of the "socialist" party "organization" here, was given an injection of Communist propaganda by the soap boxers of the Workers Party that woke it up from a deep slumber of several years standing.

The speaker, comrade Hubert Riley, as the chairman said in presenting him, required no introduction to Boston working-class audiences. For over 30 years he has been soap boxing in the ranks of the fighters for the proletarian revolution.

200 Dailys Distributed

Riley spoke for two hours and, held the continued interests of his hearers who numbered over 600, for that time. At the close of the meeting over 200 Daily Workers were sold or given away to those who because of unemployment were unable to buy.

Reviewing the course of the labor movement of the last few years and using his own experiences as a guide to future action Riley exploded the myth of the LaFollette Messiah in a manner that left no doubt in the minds of his auditors as to LaFollette's insincerity. Completely unmasked as a traitor and menace to the working-class LaFollette's endorsement by the socialist party was shown up as a fitting end for that organization for the last few years of a mis-spent life of prostitution and betrayal.

Enthusiastic About Foster

The candidacy of Foster and Gitlow was received with great enthusiasm. In the course of his talk Riley stated that—"If John Ballam"—(our district organizer here and Communist candidate for governor), "was elected governor, his first act would be to disarm the state guard and to hand over the rifles to the workers in the factories with the instruction—'these factories are yours boys—hold them for yourselves'". This statement gave those in the audience a real insight as to the limits of political action as seen by the Communists.

The whole socialist party—all seven of them—came out of the their place of concealment and for the first time in some years came in contact with the masses.

The questions they asked displayed their complete disassociation and dislocation from the progressive movement of the workers.

Comrade Riley paid his respects to the traitors and betrayers from Hillquit down—thru Oneal, Roewer and Bearak to Levenberg—who was one of the minor yellows present.

The crowd was in no mood to tolerate any socialist party nonsense or trickery, and at the close of our meeting smothered them under a heavy barrage of criticism and contempt.

Wobblies Co-operate With Party

Several wobblies aided the comrades in charge of the meeting in selling literature and the whole crowd at all times was interested and sympathetic. This square is to be a regular meeting place for our party speakers during the campaign, and a goodly group of party prospects is growing up here around the Communist platform.

As well as the Pemberton Square meetings on Friday evenings, we will hold our regular Sunday meeting on Boston Common Mall at tree number 7 at 4 P. M. and at Warren Avenue outside the Scenic Auditorium on each Tuesday evening.

Mexico's Laws Are Better Than Deeds Workers Discover

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—The the Mexican government requires private companies to pay three months' wages to workers discharged without cause, this same government is firing thousands of its own employes without even a day's notice, without the three months' wages and without even the 70 days' back pay which it owes them. President Obregon is eager to leave something in the treasury for General Calles to prevent United States imperialism from throttling the nation.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND KLAN ISSUES

(Continued from Page 1)

who had a good word to say for the officials of district 12. They warm up to the subject of Farrington with real feeling, and "thief," and "grafter" are the prettiest names they call him.

Thruout the long auto rides the miners pointed out to me the largest mines in the district—all shut down.

Ramshackle Hovels.

Thayer is typical of the mining towns of the district. The lawns and gardens are well kept, but this is a sign of poverty, rather than otherwise, as it shows that the miners, due to unemployment, have plenty of time on their hands to trim their lawns. The houses are all one story, with two small rooms, and there is no inside plumbing. The backyard toilets and backyard pumps are without exception the only facilities supplied by the Chicago, Franklin and Wilmington Coal Company, which owns the houses as well as the only industry in the town.

I was scheduled to go to Divernon, but the only auto found going there was a party of three young Ku Klux Klansmen, who were first going to the Klan picnic in Girard. So I piled in and went eight miles further south with them to Girard. On the way they talked about the Klan, and gave me an application to join. I meekly suggested that I didn't want to join as the Klan had a tendency to divide the workers and lynch too many people, but they good naturedly told me there is good and bad in all organizations.

3,000 at Klan Picnic.

Three thousand people were at the Klan picnic in Girard. The large majority, it seemed, were there out of curiosity and to find a little amusement. Some of the younger men were streamers declaring, "I'm looking for a girl," and some of the girls had similar streamers stating, "I'm your vamp." It was like a cheap carnival, with a merry-go-round, hot dogs and dancing.

I tried to discuss the Klan with some of the men, but they are very cautious about showing their attitude toward the Klan. Reverend Charles Tate, a hick-town preacher, was speaking from the bandstand. He made a mealy mouthed speech, declaring the Klan believes in the principles of free speech and tolerance on which the republic was founded, and pleaded, "True, we exclude the Negro, the Catholic and the Jew, but can't we have at least one 100 per cent American organization in this country?" There was almost no applause.

Klansmen Fill Up.

At four o'clock the three "tertle" Klansmen had enough and we drove across country northwest to Divernon. There I talked with a group of miners that Tom Parry called together on his front porch. I was again congratulated for the honor of being put out of the Peoria convention by Farrington's machine. Several of the miners were subscribers to the DAILY WORKER.

They talked about the political situation, and chuckled over the contradiction of the Illinois Federation of Labor officials indorsing Len Small and LaFollette at the same time. They told me about a Klan celebration a few weeks ago on the Divernon public square when a few rowdies, incited by the speaker—a Protestant preacher—beat up a Catholic priest.

Klan Confuses Workers.

"The Klan will die out," one of the men said. "It is a bad one, but it has nothing to live for. It has no purpose to serve except to confuse the workers."

It is gratifying to learn that the workers are really reading the articles written by the DAILY WORKER staff. It has been noticable thruout the trip so far that the mining camps are no longer isolated from the events in the world of militant labor. The miners—thru the DAILY WORKER—are as well informed as most of the Chicago comrades, and have the Workers Party program and the militant labor news at their finger tips.

Two miners drove me to Virden, where I was to take the traction back to Springfield. They pointed out to me the Nason mine at Virden, which employs four hundred men. "We are working there one day a week," said one of the miners. "It keeps us eating, anyway, but we are going into debts hundreds of dollars.

"The Virden mine is the one where there was a famous riot at a strike twenty-six years ago when several men were killed."

Keeping the Wolves Away.

I asked this miner what he would do if the unemployment keeps on much longer, now that the stores have refused further credit. "If we can't work days we'll have to work nights," he replied grimly. "I have a gun at home and if the operators don't give me a chance to keep the wolf from the door by working, I guess I can do it with the gun."

An incident at the Virden traction station revealed the real sentiment of most of the miners toward the Klan. The local car to Girard was waiting at the switch for the northbound Springfield car. A plump, ruddy-faced miner, spitting tobacco juice copiously, came out of the station and went over to a dejected Negro. He handed him a ticket to Girard.

Miners Not Pro-Klan.

I went over to him and asked, "Are you taking this fellow to the Klan picnic?" "Yes, by God," he answered. "I say everybody has the right to enjoy himself. I believe in free speech and equality for everybody, and I'd just like to see those — try to touch him."

My car came along and I had no further time to get the man's name. I was told the Negro had been fined one hundred dollars by the magistrate of the town—a Kluxer—for "drunkenness," and because he had no money, was working around the town cleaning streets to pay off his fine. He had to work one hundred days to pay it off—altho it is a common thing for a white man to go on a Saturday night spree and nothing is said.

I looked in the Springfield papers this morning for news of a riot in Girard or headlines saying, "Beastly Negro, assaulting white girl at Klan picnic, lynched by mob." But there was no riot reported, so my tobacco chewing friend must have "gotten away" with his little equality expedition.

Farrington-Mine Barons' Chorus.

The following letter is significant, because it shows the results of Frank Farrington's declaration that the only remedy for unemployment in the Illinois mine fields is the speeding up of production by the Illinois miners. It it noticeable that Farrington and the coal operators sing an identical tune. The letter, given the DAILY WORKER by the miner who received it, follows:

Mr. John Serena, Ck. No. 62,
Sangamon Coal Co.,
Springfield, Illinois.

Dear Sir—In standing on the screen on Tuesday, August 5, I caught a car of coal under your check number that contained a very small per cent of lump coal. The percentage of lump in this particular car was so small that the company cannot realize out of the car of coal the amount of money it cost to hoist it to the top.

You no doubt know that screenings and egg coal have to be sold at a loss to the operator. (This is a lie.) This means that if you shoot your coal all to pieces the operator cannot continue to operate. We are trying to help you, and if you expect us to help you, you have to help us by loading good coal. We want to employ you as much as you want to be employed, but you have to help yourself as well as the company by giving us a grade of coal that we can sell. In other words, whether or not this mine operates depends on you as much as on any one else, and you are not fair to yourself and the other employes of this company by loading the grade of coal that you are putting over the screen.

The mine manager and face boss are willing to help you at any time. If you do not know how to place your shots to get the best results, ask them and they will help you.

Think this over and make up your mind that you will be better off in the end by giving more attention to the grade of coal that you are loading.

Very truly yours,
SANGAMON COAL CO.,
(Signed) R. J. Wilcoxson,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Send in that Subscription Today.

RUSSIAN FILM FEATURES RED ARMY REVIEW

Red Army Aid Made This New Film Possible

The new feature comedy film, Beauty and the Bolshevik, which is to be shown this month at the Lenox Theatre, 111th street and Lenox avenue, August 22nd to 29th inclusive, has been made with the co-operation of the Red Army Brigade. The film is a romance between the commander of the brigade and, the daughter of a rich farmer of the village in which the Red Army settles after four years of severe warfare.

The activities of the Red Army in the village are the background for this romance and many stirring scenes of the army in action, fighting the white guards or helping the village poor, provide many thrills in a picture that holds the interest from the very first moment to the last. A review of the picture in the labor press has declared it to be a view of the revolution in miniature.

The film is a comedy—not of the American slap-stick variety—but of high character which treats the romance with rare subtle humor, and brings much hilarious laughter in many of the beautiful scenes in this unusual romance. In addition to this picture, "Russia in Overalls," a new graphic picture of Russian industrial development, will be given.

Send in that Subscription Today.

RUBBER STAMPS AND SEALS
IN ENGLISH AND IN ALL FOREIGN LANGUAGES
INK, PADS, DATERS, RUBBER TYPE, Etc.
NOBLER STAMP & SEAL CO.
73 W. VanBuren St.
Phone Wabash 6680
CHICAGO
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO

HERE THEY ARE!

Special Combination Offer

Take them along on your vacation.

OFFER GOOD TILL AUGUST 15TH

No. 1.

Deportations Delirium of 1920, by Louis F. Post.....$1.50
The Government Strikebreaker, by Jay Lovestone.....1.50

Total.....$3.00

Special sales price $2.00.

No. 2.

Capital Today, by Cahn.....$2.00
Positive Outcome of Philosophy, by Dietzgens.....1.50
Industrial Revival in Soviet Russia, by Heller.....1.50

Total.....$5.00

Special sales price $2.50.

Both combinations to any one address, including postage $4.00

Single books at regular price. Any two books selected at 33 pct. discount

Send for them before you start out.

Literature Department,
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A GOOD STYLE FOR THE WOMAN OF MATURE FIGURE.

4835. Silk alpaca and embroidery are here combined. One could use figured and plain silk, linen or cretonne.

The pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 4¾ yards of 40-inch material, if made of one material. It made as illustrated, it will require 1¾ yards of figured material 18 inches wide, and 3⅝ yards of plain material 40 inches wide. The width at the foot is 2¾ yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL AND WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A DAINTY FROCK FOR A SMALL GIRL.

4827. Printed crepe and crepe de chine are here combined. This is a good style for dimity, pongee and cotton prints.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. A 2-year size requires 2¼ yards of 27-inch material. Collar and cuffs of contrasting material requires ⅝-yard 27 inches wide.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

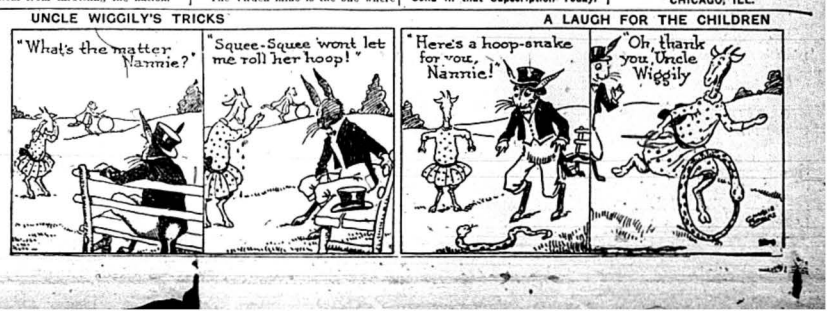
Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service
105 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1901 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS — A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN



THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
(Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year	$3.50....6 months	$2.00....3 months
By mail (in Chicago only):
$7.00 per year	$4.50....6 months	$2.50....3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL } Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE }
MORITZ J. LOEB Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1922 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

200 Advertising rates on application.

Watch This Reconstruction!

From the American Civil Liberties Union we learn of efforts now being made by the attorney general to overhaul the department of justice and give it more of a "normal," less of a state-of-siege like appearance.

If what Mr. Stone has said is the truth, then at least sixty agents of the department of justice have been dismissed since his appointment. The red-baiting division of this department is being cut down. Furthermore, our learned attorney general is also replacing professional detectives by law school graduates. Outright co-operation with so-called patriotic societies in their anti-labor and open shop propaganda is also reported to be in growing disfavor with the new department of justice head.

It is yet too early to say definitely whether this reorganization of that department of the United States government, which serves as the invisible underground link between the biggest business interests and the most responsible governmental figures, will serve to increase its efficiency in rendering service to the employing class. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to give the new system a chance to work.

All we do know is that at bottom the substitution of ignorant, inefficient, easily detected detectives with smooth, cultured, highly trained law students, is not in itself a boon to the workers. Under Stone's rule, as well as under Daugherty's rule, the department of justice and all the other departments in the United States government are securely in the hands of the big bosses. No one can disguise the fact that as long as this condition prevails the lawyer-detectives may prove even more deadly effective against the working men than the incompetent gang of bootlegging stool pigeons formerly in the employ of Burns.

At this time there is one thing certain about the reorganization of the department of justice. As a result of the dismissal of some of these scab herders and spies, the private detective agencies will redouble their efforts to demoralize and disrupt the workers' organizations. Many of these stray watch dogs of the open shoppers will be employed by the private agencies as special "radical," "red experts."

The probable transfer of the army of stool pigeons from the Washington payroll to the roster of private, scab, detectives agencies should put every labor organization on extra guard against these dangerous parasites and against such a poisonous influx.

Lese Majesty in Wisconsin

Chafing under the iron dictatorial rule of La LaFollette machine, Lieutenant Governor Comings strongly protests against the senator's endorsement of Governor John J. Blaine.

Lieutenant Governor Comings is running against Blaine, the present incumbent in the gubernatorial office, for the high honors of chief executive of the state. Mr. Comings feels that his own chances have been seriously hurt by LaFollette's endorsement of his opponent. He therefore throws back in "Battling Bob's" face the plea the latter made when he was running for district attorney in Dane county without the approval of the political higher-ups of those days.

"I know no reason why I should consult you. I have been out in the country consulting the people," is the Comings answer to LaFollette, the big boss of Wisconsin politics. These are the very words used by LaFollette when he was fighting the bosses in 1880 and seeking to become the state boss himself.

This defiance of LaFollette is really lese majesty in Wisconsin. In the Badger state LaFollette's word is law. As a lover of the purest of democracy, Mr. LaFollette has set up a dictatorial political machine in his state, excelling in bossism the machines of nearly every other state in the country. Worse than that. By endorsing Governor Blaine, LaFollette is making an attempt to continue his iron hold on the state machinery. And in making this attempt LaFollette is supporting a governor who has time and again shown distinct hostility to the workers. We need but recall the attitude of Governor Blaine in the controversy over the abolition of the National Guard.

Mr. Comings had better beware not to lose his head on LaFollette's political execution block. To remind the senator of Blaine's being an enemy of genuine progressivism is to be wasting valuable time. LaFollette has misused phrases for too many years to be scared by such talk. Battling Bob has entered the ring for Blaine because he is convinced that the governor is better fitted than Comings and the best fitted to keep intact the system of fraudulent progressivism now holding sway in Wisconsin.

Exploiting the Negroes

It is not only the white capitalists who exploit the Negro workers. The black capitalists get their hand in the game also, even tho they have no billionaires among them to dramatize their part in grinding down the Negro workers. But there is another exploitation going on among the Negroes, that is brought sharply into the foreground this month by the convention of the Marcus Garvey organization in New York. It is the exploitation of the desire for emancipation, by turning this desire toward a Utopian "back to Africa" project instead of organizing for emancipation here in America; by substituting a lot of hocus-pocus about making God and his angels in the form of Negroes, instead of fighting for the rights of the Negroes here on earth as a part of the working class; by diverting the whole movement of awakening dark-skinned workers into the blind alley of evasion of the pressing problems in America for the bright dreams of migration to another continent.

To the extent that Negroes have achieved organization, and have been jolted out of the old ways of thought, some good has come out of the Universal Negro Improvement Association. It is not suggested for a moment that Negro workers should cease from activity in this, and in all other mass organizations which contain large numbers of workers, and present the opportunity for these workers to crystallize themselves as a definite group, advancing definite demands, outlining a definite program directed towards connecting up the struggles of the white and black workers into one common struggle. But when class-conscious Negro workers enter into such movement as the Garvey aggregation, they must do so with the definite objective always in mind, of injecting the issues of the class struggle, of showing the Negro workers the fundamental hostility of all capitalists, black and white, to their interests—and the fundamental unity of interests of the white and black workers.

The dramatics of Marcus Garvey, under cover of which he sabotages the struggle against the Ku Klux Klan, while he builds up a petty-bourgeois circle of "leaders" with a vested interest in subduing the class struggle in America with the opiate of emancipation thru running away from this continent, are another form of the exploitation of the Negro. Only thru struggle against such ideas and against such leadership will the Negro workers be able, in co-operation with their white brothers, to abolish exploitation.

Help the Garment Workers

Part of the great battle of the clothing workers to halt the "open shop" drive, but hitherto given little attention, is the splendid battle being waged in Belleville, Illinois, by the local organization of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Yesterday the DAILY WORKER told the story of this fight, which should rouse the admiration of all militant workers, and will continue to assist with all its power to win the battle.

But, of course, the real winning of the fight in Belleville depends upon the union men and women in that town and in the vicinity, not only the clothing workers, but all others. Especially it is the opportunity and the duty for the members of the Workers Party and of the Trade Union Educational League to throw themselves wholeheartedly into the fight. It is in just such battles that the party tests out its members and decides whether or not they are worthy of being members of the Workers Party. Those who are real Communists will be in the front ranks of such fights as that of the clothing workers in Southern Illinois.

Why have the officers of the Illinois Federation of Labor not called a state-wide conference to work out plans of action to fight against the terrible unemployment? Because they are too busy trying to elect Len Small, agent of the mine owners. Meanwhile the bosses are not idle. They meet to lay plans for the "open shop." The rank and file must get busy and force action.

LaFollette will promise to bring the workers back to the early days of capitalism and competition. Foster will urge the workers to look forward to the downfall of capitalism and the establishment of a new order of society where the machinery of production and distribution, developed under capitalism, will be used for the welfare of the workers and not for their enslavement.

William Z. Foster, during his career of service to the American workers has two outstanding achievements to his credit, the organization of the packinghouse workers and the steel workers. Thru the treachery of the labor fakers these two great efforts were sabotaged. Foster is a strike organizer and a union builder. His opponents on the capitalist tickets are strike breakers and union smashers.

Martial law has been declared in Egypt. Who brings WAR thus into the front page news again? None other than the "pacifist" MacDonald, premier for the "Labor" government of Britain! Every day the fakers are forced to expose themselves more and more.

William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow stand for Communism in the United States. They stand for the right of all to have access to the machinery of production. They stand for the right of every worker to life and the means whereby to sustain life. They stand for the abolition of the slave system, the capitalist system.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Class War Against Imperialist War!

Editor's Note.—Dangers of new wars are set forth in gripping form in the Manifesto of the Communist International on the tenth anniversary of the World War. The facts set forth are of intense interest right now, with the agreement of German capitalists to the enslaving terms of the Morgan-Dawes reparations plan. The DAILY WORKER today publishes the third section of this Manifesto, as follows:

* * *

Against War!
Against the Bourgeoisie!
Against the Social Traitors!
For the World Revolution!
For the Dictatorship of the Proletariat!
For Communism!

III.

THE Versailles peace treaty and the last imperialist war are pregnant with the seeds of another war. The ruling classes of France are coming to feel, more and more strongly, that the reign of terror they have created in Europe cannot continue much longer. The French bourgeoisie—reactionary, and "radical"—stand in equal fear of German revenge, but at the same time they are challenging it and preparing for it. The German bourgeoisie, which is willing to come to an agreement at the expense of the people, is for its own part waiting impatiently for the hour of revenge to strike. The antagonism between England and France in Europe and in the colonies is coming to a head. Diplomatic treaties and pacts are, it is true, acting as a screen for this process, but they are not retarding it. The military program of both of these states, particularly the program with for the creation of air fleets and the manufacture of the chemical means of war, is really being planned out for the coming war between England and France. While Herriot and MacDonald are lovingly cooing at each other, the general staff in Paris is working out the plan for the coming aeroplane attack on London, and the British state is busying itself with the plan for a counter-attack.

The smaller states of Europe are behind the great powers in strength, but not in avarice or in all-nature.

The small states which existed prior to the war have forfeited the last remnant of their independence, while the new states, which were carved out of the war, are born into the world with the iron ball of dependence chained to their feet. At the command of the great powers, the medium-sized states and the small states are grouped together in various ways. The states which are located in central Europe feel themselves drawn toward France, as a prisoner feels himself drawn to his jailer. The small states on the coasts of Europe bend the knee to England. The choice between two lashes is being made by the small states, not on the basis of desire, but on the basis of their situation taken as a whole. The last war demonstrated to a sufficient degree how violable neutrality is. Without a particle of doubt, a new war would within a few days after its outbreak draw the majority of the small states into the bloody maelstrom. The militarists of the countries of the little entente, of the Balkan states or the Baltic states is a source of help for the great powers and at the same time a source of danger in the relations which these small states have with one another.

The more sharpened the world's antagonisms have been growing for a long time, but it is unwaveringly following the line of conflict between the interests of British imperialism and the interests of the United States. During the past two years it has seemed as tho a lasting agreement had been achieved between them. But this is only the ruin of Europe, was the fore-runner of the commercial and industrial crises which are now approaching. The productive forces of America must seek a constantly widening outlet to the world market. The export trade of the United States can develop only at the expense of the trade of Great Britain, and the American merchant marine and military fleet can develop only at the expense of the British fleet. The period of agreement between England and America must develop into a period of growing antagonism between these two countries, and this, in turn, means the danger of a world-war of proportions yet unknown.

The antagonism between Japan and the United States is retaining its full degree of acrimony. The earthquake in Japan upset the balance of power between the two countries, but the enmity has not become less bitter. The exclusion of Japanese immigrants from the United States has lent the imperialist battle in the Pacific Ocean something of the character of a racial struggle. In the event of a clash between the United States and Great Britain, Japanese militarism will undoubtedly play a more active part than it played in the last war.

The fact that the unified wealth of the bourgeoisie of the United States constitutes a great danger in the world situation. The temporary isolation of the United States, designed in order that its ill-gotten wealth might be digested, is coming to an end. North American capital requires expansion in all directions. One of these paths leads to the South. Pressure on Mexico is bound to become stronger, and at the same time there are sure to be further intrusions into South America; European capital will be forced out and the complete subjection of these countries will follow. The militarism of the United States will inevitably take on a more active and a more progressive character, not only on the American continents, but also on the seas.

The progress of the revolutionary movement in the orient during the course of the past ten years is giving to the imperialist domination of these colonies, more and more, the character of open militarist violence.

The illusions of constitutionalism, the hopes of compromise with a rule of violence, which the subject masses of India have cherished, are now vanishing. The parties of nationalist liberalism and petty bourgeois utopianism are being swallowed up in oblivion. The revolutionary movement is permeating the country more and more and is attracting constantly widening masses. There is need of a firm, centralized, revolutionary party, to strengthen these movements and deal a death blow to British imperialism.

In dismembered China the imperialist powers have introduced, thru troops of mercenaries, a regime of masked military occupation. The struggle of the Chinese people for unity and independence is at every step meeting with the opposition of the Japanese, the American and the European robbers. MacDonald's ambassador in Pekin insisted on the punishment—for purposes of "teaching a lesson"—of the Chinese soldiers who were taking a walk in a part of the city where only white exploiters have the right to walk. The hatred of the many millions of Chinese are beating with righteous anger, with barely suppressed hatred. Here, as in India, a revolutionary organization is springing up as a result of bitter trials and repeated effort, which can be pronounced in China from foreign deposits and also from its own.

France, which has advanced the borders of its colonies, is making desperate attempts to multiply the sources of its imperialism, and to this end it is subjecting not only the Arabs, but also the Negroes, to the rule of capitalism. The military training of the colored peoples is designed not only to build up a reserve power for future wars, but it is hoped that the black and yellow regiments will also be a useful tool in the hands of the bourgeoisie for the crushing of the proletariat in Europe.

The widening of the horizon of militarism means the widening of the horizon of the revolution.

LaFollettes Stole Is Anti Labor

(Continued from Page 1.)

at least three hundred and twenty-three, out of the four hundred and thirty-five, congressmen who are either directly or indirectly associated with, or serving the ruling clique. In the Senate, the big interests have at least seventy-nine out of the ninety-six members on their side, either thru economic or social control.

In the state of Wisconsin, where LaFollette is the big political boss, the situation is nearly the same as in Washington, where Coolidge is the chief executive. On the basis of an investigation made by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, as reported in its 1921 convention proceedings, we find the following roster indicating who is who in the senate and assembly of the model commonwealth.

There were at that date in the Wisconsin senate, one auctioneer, four bankers, one cheesemaker, one contractor, one doctor, five farm owners, one insurance man, two real estate men, two retired capitalists, two publishers and journalists, one lumber man, four manufacturers, two merchants, one public service agent, two salesmen, eight lawyers, and only four mechanics. At the same time there were represented in the assemble the following occupational divisions: one architect, four bankers, two clerks, three contractors, three corporation officials, one doctor, forty-four farm owners, one hotel keeper, two publishers, ten lawyers, one live stock buyer, four lumbermen, seven merchants, four real estate dealers, six retired capitalists, three salesmen, two insurance men, one fisherman, and only seven mechanics.

Thus we find that out of a total personnel of forty-two senators, there are only four members of the working class, and that out of a hundred and ten assembly men, there are only seven members of the working class.

The State Federation of Labor, which is extremely friendly to and a strong supporter of LaFollette, was rather charitable to the Wisconsin senator when it characterized this ownership of the state government by the employing class as follows: "In the Senate there were nine members who can be classed as friends of labor. And four who cannot be relied upon for full support, but not antagonistic. The rest were entirely out of harmony with labor's program and should be classed as representing the interests of capital."

"In the assembly there were thirty-five members who considered considerably reliable in the interests of labor. . . . The balance sixty-five members, may be classed as ultra-reactionary and absolutely controlled by special interests."

"The same reactionary speaker of the house that presided in 1919, was again elected in the 1921 session and his efforts in the interests of big business were plainly shown on several occasions during the session."

Serves Middle Class.

In the view of Mr. John Ballard as expressed in the Outlook for September 5, 1923, this employing class ownership of the senate and assembly in the state of Wisconsin is to be explained as follows: "Business of the kind that is represented by manufacturers' associations is in the main against LaFollette and his policies, but business in the person of the man with moderate capital is with 'Bob' both in little towns and big ones. The teaching profession and the professions generally, the white-collared workers, and the women vote for him every time they have a chance. Probably two-thirds of the college men of the state are with him and most of the alumni and undergraduates of the University of Wisconsin have for years given him a fervid and faithful support. A cross section of the so-called LaFollette faction would not look much like the Kansas farmers who marched thru the aisles of the Democratic National Convention in 1896."

"To a lesser but steadily increasing extent the same middle class emancipation from old party ties has gone on in the other states over which the LaFollette influence has spread."

Workers' Enemies Given Jobs.

Wisconsin has seen an avalanche of state laws to regulate the corporations. These laws have not lessened the power of the trusts by an iota, the LaFollette machine has on many occasions appointed corporation lobbyists to important posts in the government where they could to most damage the working men. Only recently LaFollette's pet, Governor Blaine, made the notorious grain elevator and insurance lobbyist, C. H. Crownhart, as a supreme court justice.

In his appointment of Eugene Wenger as district attorney of Milwaukee and George B. Skogme as assistant district attorney of the same city, Governor Blaine flatly disregarded the recommendations of the organized workers of the state.

Thus we find the Officers' Reports to The Wisconsin State Federation of Labor Convention, held at Wisconsin Rapids, July 15-18, 1924, declare: "We regret to say that no recognition of labor has been given in the selection of lawyers to fill the important office of judge. In this regard labor was encouraged to entertain a hope, but was finally ignored."

It is particularly significant to note that when an attempt was made to regulate the private detective agencies, Senator Howard Teasdale of the LaFollette machine and Senator Ben Gettleman, one of Blaine's lieutenants, saved the day for the bosses and killed the proposed measure to weaken the strikebreakers of the state.

Workers Disregarded by Legislature.

The much-vaunted "Wisconsin Plan" may suit the middle class property owners. This does not make it at all suitable to the working men. In LaFollettania, as in the other states where the capitalist class is supreme, the legislature has little regard for the needs and demands of the working class. From the latest available Officers' Report to the Wisconsin Federation of Labor Convention held at Superior on July 17-20, 1923, we learn of the following frankly anti-labor attitude of the state assembly and senate:

"The legislature as a whole, could not be termed a real progressive body. The majority of the senate lived up to its reputation of conservatism and seemed to take a keen delight in defeating progressive legislation. The assembly was vacillating and uncertain, at times voting as real progressives, then again displaying the most reactionary tendencies in opposing wholesome legislation."

We cite the following as some of the leading labor measures killed by the LaFollette legislature:

" bill (501-A) providing for eight hours work on public works in the state, city, or county and minimum wage.

A bill (31-A) seeking the eight-hour working day on all state printing.

A bill (46-A) to extend the one-day in seven rest law.

A bill (469-A) the Car Shed Bill, requiring railroad car shops or other concerns manufacturing or repairing cars, to provide buildings that will protect employes from heat, rain, cold, snow, etc.

An unemployment compensation measure (53-A) to stabilize employment.

An old age pension bill (287-S).

A bill to abolish private detective agencies.

A bill (28-A) sponsored by the State Federation of Labor to limit the hours of work to eight per day in mills, factories, and manufacturing establishments.

Courts Used Against Workers.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court has been particularly hostile to the workers. Every annual report of the officers of the State Federation of Labor abounds in evidence of this hostility. We recall the instance where a boy, 5 years of age, Jerome Ptack, met his death thru the negligence of one Kuetemeyer. A jury rendered a verdict in favor of the father of the boy for $3,500. The judge reduced the sum to $1800. The Supreme Court acting on the appeal of the insurance company, further reduced the amount to $1,000. The State Federation of Labor, commenting on this action of the judges against the jury, declared in its specially prepared pamphlet on the case entitled "The Wisconsin Supreme Court's Queer Slant on Life."

"The Wisconsin State Federation of Labor cannot dictate to the Supreme Court of Wisconsin what its construction of law shall be, but it can protest against an illegal and inhumane principle being given the force of law; it can and does protest against a principle which in many cases will render the statute giving a cause of action for wrongful death of a child nugatory; and it vigorously protests the invasion by the court of the constitutional right of trial by jury. We wish to state in no uncertain terms that we consider the interference with the verdict of the jury by the Supreme Court in this case an usurpation of the function of a jury."

One of the main reasons given by the Supreme Court for reducing the amount rendered in the first verdict was the fact that the father had intended to send the boy to school. Consequently, the court reasoned, the father was not deprived of any income thru the death of his son. In the eyes of these judges, it was a crime for the father to plan to send his son to school. Apparently workers must be penalized for attempting to secure an education.

Protesting against the burden placed on the workers thru costly litigation in courts, the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor convention held on July 15 to 18 this year, declared: "The whole matter has become in litigation for years, and we do not know how many more years these cases will be dragged. Compare these with the rapidity with which courts act in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes."

Organized labor in Wisconsin has been especially bitter in its protests against costly litigation in the courts. The workers have suffered especially in compensation cases. We learn from a statement by R. G. Knutson, member of the State Industrial Commission, appearing in the report of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor for 1922, that: "In the eleven years in which the compensation act has been enforced, during which time over 100 appeals have been taken by workmen, there has not been a single case in which an injured workman ever got a cent thru an appeal."

From the 1921 convention proceedings of the State Federation of Labor, we learn to what extent the workers have been suffering from injunctions in LaFollette's model commonwealth. We cite the following resolution adopted apropos this abuse:

"Whereas, four of our brothers, members of labor unions of Rhinelander, are confined in the county jails of Oneida and Langlade counties, having been sentenced to imprisonment on charges of contempt of court by Circuit Judge Reid, following the issuance of an injunction against the paper mill workers, and in behalf of the Rhinelander Paper Co.

"Whereas, these four brothers, Peter J. Christ, Matthew Jetracke, Victor Venne, and Steven Shelbrack, have sacrificed their liberty in a struggle against oppression by a greedy corporation, therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, July 19, 1921, in the city of Manitowoc, that we extend hearty greetings to these brothers who have preferred prison bars to submission to autocratic impositions and assure them that organized labor will continue to devote its energies to eliminate industrial and judicial injustices."

Finally, in 1922, the State Federation of Labor was compelled to pass a special resolution against the courts of Wisconsin along the following lines:

"Whereas, we are of the belief that some judges hold shares of stock and have financial interests in companies, firms, and corporations, and

"Whereas, by the holding of such shares of stock and having such financial interests they are very apt to be prejudiced in their judgments and decisions, therefore be it

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this convention that such a condition is not consistent with justice, especially in cases arising out of strikes, such as injunctions and assault and battery cases."

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

NOV 22 1924
Labor Party Nominates Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 133. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

COAL BARONS PLOT WAGE SLASH

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE leaders of the Ku Klux Klan in Texas are on the anxious seat. Faced with rebellion in their own ranks and the aroused opposition of those who have in the past cowed before the invisible night prowlers, the Grand Wizards of the Klan are flooding the state with money in an eleventh-hour attempt to avert disaster. Even Klan leaders admit that practically every state office will go to the anti-Klan forces with the exception of the governorship. They still have hopes that Robert, the Klan candidate, will beat Mrs. Ferguson, who is making a strenuous campaign against the Klan.

• • •

IT appears that the hooded order has passed the high point of its career. The defeat of the Klan in Oklahoma by even such a disreputable politician as J. C. Walton, former governor of the state, the civil war in the Klan of Indiana and the unfavorable publicity received by the Klan during the Democratic convention, put the hooded order on the defensive. In Texas, the propaganda of the Klan was directed against Catholics, Jews and Negroes. Now, they appeal for the Jewish vote and claim they have nothing against anybody's religion. The new foe of Americanism is liquor, according to the Klan. The change in policy followed a visit from Hiram W. Evans, Imperial Wizard. If the Klan suffers defeat in Texas, it will affect the fortunes of the organizations thruout the country.

• • •

PITY the poor Baroness Ottily de Ropp, Russian noblewoman, who is noble no longer because the wicked Bolsheviks took away her title and told her to work or fight. Her beloved country is now ground down under the atheistic and Godless heels of Bolshevism. And unless we look out, sobbed the Baroness, our society ladies will have to go to work and the cake eaters and lounge lizards will have no one to play with. Poodle dogs will have to be sent to the Home for the Protection of Homeless Canines and romance will be shorn of its wool. This sorrowful picture was delivered to the hard-boiled members of the Inglewood Chamber of Commerce, according to a report in the Los Angeles Times. The reporter did not say whether the Baroness was pretty or much worse for wear, so we assume for lack of better evidence that her pulchritude went by default.

• • •

REPORTERS as a rule are more concerned with appearances than with fundamentals, and failure to describe the lady's figure leads us to the conclusion that no wicked Bolshevik threatened to turn over the Red Army to Grand Duke Nicholavitch in return for her smiles. She took a wicked wallop at the American Communists which is quite unfair of the lady, as we never bothered her much. We spend $1,000,000 a week pumping

(Continued on Page 4.)

ACTORS' EQUITY TO JOIN STRIKE OF MUSICIANS

Managers to Get More Than They Bargain For

LABOR DAY, Sept. 1, will see the closing down of all the musical comedy and drama theaters in Chicagoo unless a ten per cent increase in wages will be granted to the musicians.

The actors in these theaters, all members of the Actors Equity Association will come out in one solid United Front to help the musicians.

Musicians Stand Pat.

Traveling musicians, members of the National Musicians' Union, will be ordered to keep away from the Chicago theaters during the strike.

James C. Petrilla in speaking of the impending strike said: "Wonderful spirit and determination is shown by our members to carry on this fight to a finish. The statement in the bosses' press that a break is expected in our ranks is only a hope fostered in the minds of the managers. There is no basis for this. All our members are in the fight and will stick tight until we get our increase."

Houses That Have Settled.

The Chicago Theater, the Roosevelt, the Senate, McVickers, in fact all two-a-day moving picture houses have settled with the union granting the 10 per cent increase in wages.

BOB'S STATE GIVES LABOR POOR WAGES

Progressivism Proves Delusion for Toilers

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Seventh Article.)

"For years the liberals, social reformers, and purifiers of capitalism have held up Wisconsin as the outstanding experiment in American pure democracy.

Today Senator LaFollette points with pride to his achievements in Wisconsin, his "Model Commonwealth." He is fighting to win the presidency in order to extend the progressivism and blessings of his heralded "Wisconsin Plan."

But Wisconsin's "pure" democracy and "genuine" progressivism have failed dismally in doing away with the suffering and hardships of the working men and poor farmers.

Wisconsin's workers are amongst the worst underpaid in the country. Here the workers suffer from long hours more than in most of the other states. The Badger state is one of the most powerful strongholds of the open shop movement. Here, where LaFollette is the uncrowned king, the trade union movement is very weak.

Low Wages and Long Hours.

If working conditions are to be accepted as a sound criterion of genuine progressivism, then LaFollette's Wisconsin experiment is a sham and a delusion to the laboring masses.

According to the findings of the latest 1919 census of manufacturers, the average monthly cost of labor, or wage per month, in the manufacturing industries in the United States is $96.50. But Wisconsin falls well below this average wage for the country as a whole, with an average monthly wage of only $91.69. Thus

(Continued on Page 6.)

Send in that Subscription Today.

POWER COMPANY GIVES CONTRACT TO SCAB MINES

Union to Feel Need of Complete Union Field

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—Contracts for 350,000 tons of coal to be consumed during the coming year by the Northern States Power Company will not bring work to union miners of Illinois, but to miners in the open shop territory of the east, according to contracts awarded by the company.

Northern States Power is the largest public utility in the northwest, and with the exception of the railroads the biggest consumer of steam coal in that region. Its contracts for 300,000 tons of screenings go to four dock companies importing eastern bituminous coal via Duluth and Superior, chief among them the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

Illinois Miners Will Feel Blow.

A recent order of the interstate commerce commission raised freight rates on Illinois union-mined coal by 28 cents in order to give coal imported via the lakes a better chance to compete. The new rates, which favor nonunion eastern coal, go into effect Sept. 10 and are expected to render it more difficult for Illinois mines to keep going.

MINERS DEMAND STAND ON UNEMPLOYMENT BUT LA FOLLETTE IS QUIET

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20.—Over half the miners in the Belleville coal district are shut down, with 7,000 miners out of work. Due to the shutdown in the mines of the Belleville Sub-District 7, the sentiment of the miners is swinging away from Robert M. LaFollette, who completely ignores the unemployment crisis, toward the class-out Workers Party program to eliminate unemployment.

Wives of the miners in some cases here are taking in washing in order to keep their suffering children alive. "I don't know what the poor devils do," the proprietor of a shoe store on Main street here told the DAILY WORKER. "We can't advance them any more credit, because the wholesale houses have shut down on us. The miners are going heavily into debt. Some of them have enlisted in the army camp near by—Scott Field. But the married men are so heavily in debt to the stores and their landlords that they can't pull up and leave. Besides, unemployment prevails thruout the country, and it would do no good to move."

Frank Farrington is in St. Louis, stopping at the luxurious American Hotel. He is said to be touring nearby Illinois mining towns in the interest of LaFollette, but everywhere the sentiment expressed is, "What is your stand on unemployment?" Farrington will have a good tall explaining to do when confronted with the silence of LaFollette on unemployment.

ASK REMOVAL OF COLOR BARRIERS IN LABOR UNION

Police Friction Said to Be the Result

TRENTON, N. J., August 21.—Walter White, assistant secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, says that an appeal is being made to the leaders of organized labor in Trenton to take part in an interracial conference for the purpose of removing the present police and industrial discrimination against the Negroes.

White said that the color barrier which exists in some of the Trenton labor unions, as in other cities, was partly responsible for the friction here. The N. A. A. C. P. recently urged the American Federation of Labor to act on its former declaration for equality in the labor unions, regardless of color.

Davis Recuperating from Speech.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—John W. Davis is spending the morning at his home, Locust Valley, Long Island. He is said to be recuperating from the speech which he inflicted on the ears of radio fans when he was "notified" of his nomination.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

LAFOLLETTE'S STATE FAR BEHIND

THE average monthly wage in Wisconsin is below the average monthly wage in the manufacturing industries of the United States as a whole.

Wisconsin, which is FOURTH in the proportion of workers employed in corporation-controlled manufacturing industries is TWENTY-NINTH in the monthly wage earned by the working men employed in these industries.

The proportion of workers employed forty-eight hours a week or less in Wisconsin is smaller than in the United States as a whole.

In the Badger state, where LaFollette has for years engaged in tirades against the evils of monopolized industry, the open shop movement is most powerful and the trade union movement is, comparatively speaking, weak.

MINERS LIVE IN DECREPIT OLD HOUSES

Stories About Lovely Homes Are Untrue

By KARL REEVE
(Special to The Daily Worker)

DIVERNON, Ill., August 20.—The cry of the enemies of labor that Illinois coal miners are attractively and comfortably housed was exploded here in a talk with Tom Parry, delegate from local union 146 of the Illinois miners' union and many other miners.

"The company owned houses here," said Parry, "are typical of the company houses in the Springfield and Belleville coal mining towns. The houses are mere shells of one story, with two small rooms. In Divernon these houses were erected wholesale on a contract basis. They contain no plumbing, no running water, no bathroom of any kind. We use backyard toilets and backyard pumps."

Why They Appear Good.

"The casual visitor," continued Parry, "coming into Divernon looks at the well kept lawns and says, 'My, isn't lovely to be a miner!' But the houses are made of unfinished lumber. The people who look over our flower and vegetable gardens do not realize that we pay $13.50 a month for these little shacks. They do not know that the Madison Coal Company offers a bonus to the miner who keeps his lawn and the outside of his house the most attractive.

"This monthly bonus is paid for by the miners many times over in higher rents which the company charges on the strength of the attractive exterior. By means of the monthly bonus the company keeps up the show for outsiders and establishes the reputation of supplying good houses to the miners. But in reality it is a damnable scheme to make the miners keep their own rents high, and create a false impression among the general public.

Mine Shut Down.

The Madison Coal Co., formerly employing every able bodied male in Divernon, has not only been shut down for three years almost steadily, but has sealed up the mine so that no work is in prospect for the immediate future. This mine is one of the biggest mines in the Springfield district.

Miners here complained to the DAILY WORKER reporter that when the mine was working they were classed as wild agitators when they demanded that the unsafe squib method of blasting, which kills many men yearly who could be saved by safe methods, be eliminated. They asked for the fuse system, which is but much more expensive but which is safer for the miner. The company for a long time refused the request until forced to give in.

Now they arbitrarily seal their mine without deigning to notify the miners when they will start up, and without paying unemployment benefits.

SUGAR MILLIONAIRE CALLS ON RICH TO SUPPORT LAFOLLETTE AND WARD OFF RULE OF LABOR

PASADENA, Calif., Aug. 20.—At a gathering of 2,000 wealthy citizens of Pasadena, Rudolph Spreckels, sugar millionaire backer of LaFollette, made some interesting disclosures of the exploiters who fatten on the ignorance of the masses in his appeal to them "to be good masters lest their slaves revolt."

"History has taught us," he said, "that when the ruling classes become arrogant and greedy and unmindful of the masses who toil 'for them' the masses rise in their wrath, wipe out their oppressors' institutions and confiscate their wealth."

He called the republican and democratic parties one party that was operated from the central station in Wall Street.

He told how Requa, former dollar a year oil administrator, had graduated into the vice-presidency of the Sinclair Oil Company at $50,000 a year salary.

In his speech he proved conclusively that LaFollette was their candidate and aimed to retain a system of society that will keep them masters and the workers their slaves.

Send in that Subscription Today.

Illinois Coal Barons Begin Fight to Smash Union Wage Scale

HERRIN, Illinois, the stamping ground of the infamous Ku Klux Klan and one of the great coal mining centers of the United States, yesterday was the scene of a conference that means much to every coal miner in this state. This conference attended by coal operators and railroad magnates met to consider ways and means of inducing the union miners of Illinois to accept a reduction in wages.

Back of this plot is the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the organization that howled for the blood of the Herrin miners who settled accounts with murderous strikebreakers and gunmen in 1922. These profit-thirsty coal barons intend to make profits out of their mines if they have to walk over the bodies of the union miners of this State in doing so.

While Frank Farrington and his henchmen are busy trying to elect Len Small, the capitalist candidate for governor, the coal barons are meeting to wage war on the union of which Farrington is president. Why is not Frank Farrington holding a council of war with the officials of his organization to meet the challenge laid down by the coal operators?

Coal miners of Illinois! Read the special dispatch from Herrin, in an adjoining column and decide for yourself whether or not a serious danger confronts you as a miner and the union of which you are a member.

Write to THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill., and tell us what you think of this latest and most dangerous scheme of the coal barons.

Fight Injunction!

DEFY COURTS, ADVISE REDS TO WOBBLIES

No Judge, Only Members Can Name Officers

An appeal to the I. W. W. membership to violate any injunction that pretends to tell them who their officers shall be, was issued yesterday by the Red International Affiliation Committee, composed of members of the I. W. W. who favor affiliation to the Red International of Labor Unions. This document is of especial interest in view of the fact that on Monday the courts will be considering the application for injunction by Bowerman, Rowan, and others, asking that they be named officers of the Industrial Workers of the World. The appeal follows:

Down with the Injunction and the Injunctionites!

(An appeal to the rank and file of the I. W. W. by the Red International Affiliation Committee.)

The action of the Rowan-Bowerman faction of the I. W. W. in appealing to the capitalist courts to give them control over the organization, is one of the most reactionary deeds of any union in years. Their attempt to justify such reaction by pleading that there was no alternative is both ridiculous and dishonest. They ignored the remaining course, the only course for any revolutionist or even any union man, of appealing to the membership. By this flouting of the membership and turning to the capitalist government these injunctionites have destroyed themselves with every honest worker. The I. W. W. should and will expel them.

Why An Immediate Convention?

We recognize that there are two elements among the I. W. W. membership, the revolutionaries and the non-revolutionary job unionist element. We recognize that some of the latter element, the workers who—however honest—do not perceive the whole class significance, the political import, of the whole clash between the two factions, nor see in the application for an injunction an action which brands any who are involved in it as disrupters and traitors, may

(Continued on page 2.)

FOSTER URGES ILLINOIS MINERS TO FIGHT BOSS PLOT TO SLASH WAGES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket, arrived here today. He is scheduled to speak tonight at a big open air meeting in this city.

Comrade Foster was asked for his opinion on the conference of coal operators, railroad magnates and other capitalists held in Herrin, Illinois, to discuss ways and means of overcoming the crisis in the coal industry at the expense of the miners.

Foster said: "The conference held in Herrin marks the formal opening of a fight on the part of the coal operators backed by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce to break the union wage scale and ultimately smash the miners' union. The attempt must be met by the most vigorous opposition on the part of the union miners.

"This is not an isolated instance. It is part of the gigantic conspiracy on the part of the capitalists to smash the unions and establish the open shop. In carrying out this plot they rely for assistance on the reactionary labor leaders who have already given ample evidence that they are perfectly willing to join the masters in a united front to save the capitalist system."

Foster speaks tomorrow night in Woodman's Hall, Duluth, and on the following evening in the Labor Temple, St. Paul.

• • •

GITLOW IN NEWARK.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEWARK, New Jersey, Aug. 21.—Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice-president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket will speak here tomorrow evening. This will be the first of a series of meetings that will carry the Communist candidate for vice-president thru the important industrial centers of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York.

COAL BARONS MEET TO FIGHT MINERS' UNION

Demand Union Wage Scale Must Be Slashed

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 21.—The first shot in the carefully planned campaign to slash the wage scale of the Illinois miners was fired here when a conference of coal operators, business men and railroad owners met under the auspices of the Herrin Lions Club. The shot, however, did not hit the mark, as the officials of the miners' union did not put in an appearance, and their cooperation was considered of great importance.

A fake investigation, instituted by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, was recently made of the coal situation in Illinois. This investigation showed conclusively that the coal industry in Illinois is in bad shape and the only solution of the problem in the eyes of the Chamber of Commerce is to slash the wages of the coal diggers.

The DAILY WORKER has already discussed this boss scheme and warned the miners against paying any heed to it.

Bosses' Argument.

The argument of the operators is that the union wage scale enables the operators in the non-union mines in Kentucky and West. Va., to drive them out of business. But if the Illinois miners submit to a wage cut there is nothing to prevent the non-union coal owners from giving their slaves a proportionate cut.

The coal operators attended the Herrin conference in large numbers. Judge A. D. Morgan was master of ceremonies.

Mr. William Sneed, representative of the Miners' union in the district, sent a letter to Judge Morgan, in which he refused to participate in any conference met to consider a reduction in wages, but was willing to put up a united front with the operators to secure lower freight rates on coal.

A certain F. C. Honnold, was the chief spokesman for the coal operators.

Blames the Diggers.

He told the audience that 200 of the Illinois mines were shut down and 197 only working two days a week. The cause of this was the high wage scale of the Illinois miners which prevented coal operators from competing with Bituminous operators in territories where the miners worked for a lower scale.

It was not the part of wisdom, the Doctor declared, to write a non-competitive wage rate into the contract. This of course should be left to the whim of the employer. What good is a high wage scale to a miner if he has no job? In the interests of the community he should accept a reduction.

Dr. Honnold came out clearly for war on the miners' union, when he said that collective bargaining as now practiced had broken down and some other method must be adopted. "Joint collective bargaining," he said "has proved to be an inadequate system. There would seem to be clear evidence of a need for another method or some change of procedure."

According to the representatives of the coal operators, the railroads and the "public" the coal diggers were to blame for everything. "Take it out of the miners" "hides," was the slogan

(Continued on page 3)

HIRED ONE WEEK AND FIRED THE NEXT, WOMAN STEALS FUR COAT, CONFESSES AND DECLINES PAROLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Her husband ill in the east, Mrs. "Billy" Welsh came to San Francisco and tried to secure work so that she could send for him. An employment agency got her a job at $75 a month. Ten dollars of this went to pay the agency's fee; $20 more to buy uniforms and aprons the employer demanded. A few days later she was discharged—her employer had found another nurse at $10 less a month. Desperate and dazed, Mrs. Welsh stole a fur coat belonging to the woman. As soon as she had recovered her balance, she realized her predicament, returned the coat and gave herself up. Now, she she is offered probation, she insists on going to prison, as otherwise her young brother, who is struggling to make his way in the world, would have to pay for the coat, which the woman refused to take back.

McKEES ROCKS VICTORY CHEERS CAR STRIKERS

Hegewisch Car Builders Determined to Fight

By JACK McCARTHY.

The efforts of the Western Steel Car and Foundry Co. to get scabs to replace the 500 striking car builders was not successful yesterday. The rumor that the company was trying to get scabs for a higher rate than the strikers are demanding brought the striking workers to the picket line in full force, yesterday morning. These workers remained on picket duty for several hours.

The news of the victory won by the striking car builders at McKees Rocks, Pa., had a good effect on the Hegewisch strikers.

The Western Steel Car & Foundry Co. at Hegewisch is a branch of the Dressed Steel Co., at McKees Rocks. The car builders at McKees Rocks are now receiving 41 cents for each car as a result of their victory instead of 35 cents.

Trying to Get Scabs.

The Western Steel is now offering 42 cents a car to scabs to take the place of the strikers while the demands of the strikers are 40 cents a car instead of 35 cents, which they were receiving before they struck.

The strikers after a five weeks' battle are still determined to carry on the fight to successful conclusion. E. K. Hogan of the International Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, is carrying on a campaign to organize the workers in the Calumet District. Last night a meeting was held in Stanchick's Hall, Pullman, to organize the workers in the Pullman plants.

Send in that Subscription Today.

NEW ESPIONAGE MOVE ON FOOT TO COW WORKERS

Smoke City to Get New Secret Service Unit

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 20.—The new intelligence (secret service) unit established here, headed by Colonel Charles McGovern, smacks of an organised attempt to further persecute and cow the workers of Pittsburgh.

Among the duties it boasts of are the following:

"It will ferret out the locations, the addresses and the activities of enemies of the United States, thru counter-espionage.

"It will keep track of all enemies of the United States in the big industrial area, and will report to its chief daily.

"It will have charge of a censorship here, and will co-ordinate its activities with those of the United States intelligence bureau and with all state, city, county and township officers."

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

New York, Attention!

The First Great Film from Soviet Russia

"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"

Produced by Proletkino (Moscow) in co-operation with the Red Army

A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest

8 DAYS

Aug. 22–29, Inclusive

At the

LENOX THEATRE

111th Street and Lenox Ave.

Added Film Feature

"Russia in Overalls"

Continuous Performance from 7:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Saturday and Sunday 3 Performances at 3-5, 7-9, 9-11

ADMISSION - - - - - 50c

ADVISE WOBBLIES DEFY INJUNCTION

(Continued from Page 1.)

be misled by Rowan's constitutional quibbles and the plausible lies of stool pigeons.

For this reason we have previously appealed to the I. W. W. membership to vote for a special convention, fully representative of all the membership of all the unions, to be called immediately by waiving all red tape, to give the organization a set of officers not subject of dispute. We still insist that this is the only way a serious split can be avoided.

But we are face to face with the alternative of at once bowing to the capitalist dictatorship, of accepting the officers appointed by the capitalist court—or of telling the injunctionites they can have the chairs and desks and the key to 1001 West Madison Street if the capitalist court gives these to them, but we, the membership shall recognize the officers elected by the membership until the membership, and not a capitalist judge, choose other officers.

Mistakes of Doyle and Fisher.

Communists and Red Internationalists have had and continue to have grievances against the Doyle-Fisher administration. It has been weak and tolerant and event protective toward these disrupters who are now putting them in our office and trying to destroy the I. W. W. They shielded Raddock and Bowerman from charges of gross dishonesty largely because these men carried on an anti-Communist campaign. If Doyle and Fisher had taken a firm and clear-cut revolutionary stand from the beginning of their administration, these union wreckers and Communist baiters would have been nipped in the bud. Their puppetship only strengthened the hand of these elements who go to a capitalist judge for help. They have even identified themselves with the anti-Communist "crusade" of Rowan-Raddock-Bowerman and company. Doyle and Fisher are still withholding from the membership the appeal for affiliation sent by the Red International of Labor Unions.

But Communist members of the I. W. W. and all who adhere to the revolutionary principles of the Red International of Labor Unions, can give but one answer to those reactionaries in the I. W. W. who appeal to capitalist courts to tell us to whom we shall pay our dues. We shall ignore and shall violate any and every order of capitalist courts which tells us whom we shall recognize as officers of the I. W. W. and to whom we shall pay our membership dues.

To Hell With the Injunction!

The I. W. W. does not consist of a few chairs and desks at 1001 West Madison street, or even of the money in the bank—so greedily eyed by these union-wrecking injunctionites. The I. W. W. consists of the workers who adhere to it for revolutionary or for economic reasons. It will live in spite of disrupters and injunctions as it remains united in action. The capitalist courts cannot kill any part of it that does not believe in capitalist courts.

Communists and Red Internationalist will not recognize any order of the capitalist court naming as "real officers" of the I. W. W. those who are not chosen by the membership. We call upon every member of the I. W. W. to tell the capitalist court and those who have appealed to it, to go to hell.

Down with injunctions and all injunctionites!

Down with capitalist government and all who appeal to it!

Let the revolutionary elements everywhere organize groups to hold the I. W. W. together and to affiliate it to the Red International of Labor Unions, the world organization of revolutionary workers!

(Signed):
The Red International Affiliation Com.
Harrison George, Chairman,
H. R. Richards,
Mike Novak.
1514 West Madison St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Attention! UNEMPLOYED COMRADES

To Get The Workers Party Candidates on the Ballot, we must have workers to canvass for signatures from house to house. Unemployed comrades are urgently requested to give us their services during the day for this important work.

Mike March, of the Mid-City English Branch, I. A. Davidson, of the Northwest Jewish Branch and Comrade Cahn of the Douglas Park English Branch, have done especially good work on getting signatures in their districts. Comrade Mike March was given three petitions and after a few hours of canvassing, brought them in completely filled, seventy-five signatures to his credit. He is continuing good work.

A good way to get signatures is to have a little stand at a busy corner in charge of a comrade. We have printed quarter-size posters that can be used for this work. The poster reads:

"Are you a Citizen? If so, sign here to put the WORKERS PARTY ON THE BALLOT."

Obtain these posters from the Campaign Manager or from members of the Executive Committee of your district. You can also get them direct from the local office, Room 303, 166 W. Washington St.

Be sure to get signatures for the state petitions at the same time that you circulate the district petitions.

UNEMPLOYED COMRADES, report to your District Campaign Manager or to this office for assignments of territory.

Ida McCarthy, Secretary,
Campaign Committee.

Coal Barons Get Together to Fight Coal Miners' Union

(Continued from Page 1)

at this conference of labor skinners.

Railroads Defended.

Then the railroad owners had their say. C. E. Spens, vice-president of the Burlington system, defended the present freight rates on Southern Illinois coal, showing these were established by the Interstate Commerce Commission and were very reasonable.

Prices for coal were higher at union mines than at non-union mines he declared. Another railroad representative, D. J. Roe, of the Illinois Central agreed with Mr. Spens. He also held that the coal diggers were to blame.

The coal diggers of Illinois have been presented with the Jacksonville agreement, which in the hands of the operators is only a scrap of paper. A wage scale but no work. The union operators of Illinois close their union mines rather than pay the union scale and open their scab mines in Kentucky or West Va., where they will not be bothered by a union scale. It's quite simple for the operators.

Lewis Has the Solution!

But not so simple for the union miners. What are they going to do about it? John R. Lewis has no solution for the problem except to kick 200,000 coal diggers out of the industry or else have the miners tighten their belts until the next wave of "prosperity" hits the country. In the meantime the miners can eat grass.

If John L. Lewis was a real labor leader and not a tool of the operators he would have the highly paid organizers who now loll around the hotels in small country towns or else engage on red hunting crusades, go into the unorganized fields and organize the coal diggers into unions. He would bring the power of a solidified union to bear on the coal industry and force the 6 hour day on them. The 6 hour day would make jobs for the 200,000 superfluous miners that are now in the industry according to Lewis.

Picnic in Philadelphia.

A monster picnic will be given by the Russian Community House, Sunday, August 24, on Bradley's Farm, 92nd St. and Vance Ave., near Hog Island. To get to the picnic take Subway No. 37, stop at 87th St., where a committee will meet you.

MOSCOW, Aug. 21.—Three hundred thousand workers thruout the Ukraine are united in nine large housing co-operative unions, which are repairing war-ruined houses. They expect soon to construct new dwellings.

SECOND WEEK OF PATERSON STRIKE OPENS

Silk Workers Arrange for Settlements

By H. M. WICKS
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 21.—Anticipating a break in the ranks of the manufacturers, the striking silk workers, who have been able thus far to outmaneuver their bosses, have adopted a resolution which opens the way to the bosses for a settlement of the strike.

The resolution, which was adopted by the strike committee of the Associated Silk Workers, at its regular meeting last night, reads as follows:

To Prepare For Settling.

"The strike committee of the Associated Silk Workers in regular meeting assembled, taking invoice of the strike situation, declares that the strike is effective in the entire industry. We have demonstrated the ability of our organization to withdraw the labor power from industry in order to remedy our just grievances.

"At all times we are, and have been willing to terminate the struggle but the manufacturers have demonstrated their inability to work as a concerted body. Among the manufacturers are many who have expressed a desire to come to terms with us. In view of the situation, we hereby resolve, that the settlement committee proceed to make individual agreements with those manufacturers willing to concede our demands. This committee to establish headquarters Friday morning and announce publicly its readiness to make settlements and thereby bring order in the industry.

"(Signed) The Strike Committee."

It is expected that many mills will settle immediately, altho some will remain recalcitrant.

Strike in Second Week.

The strike, which is now in its second week, shows every sign of victory ahead. The only mills now operating are the small cock-shack affairs, where the whole family of the petty boss slaves from morning till night over antiquated machinery in order to eke out a miserable existence.

The height of the strike has come with the walk-out of the workers in the Doherty plant, which not only added about half a thousand men to the ranks of the strikers, but also achieved a moral victory that makes the move more significant.

Mass Picketing Continues.

Mass picketing of the struck plants continues unabated and it is expected that the peak of the strike will be reached tonight.

A complete stoppage of the industry, the main objective, has been realized. The buys season is at hand in the mills, and the end of the strike depends entirely upon the endurance of the mill owners. Every day the mills are idle means ever greater losses, so many of them are anxious to get their workers back on the job, regardless of the blandishments of a few of the stubborn ones who are trying to create an organization of silk mill owners to wage a concerted fight against the union.

Strike Will Soon End.

Indications are that this strike will be a short one. But the union, during the struggle, has gained thousands of new members, organizing the workers as fast as they come out. At the end of the strike the union will be stronger and have the situation well in hand so that at the first sign of opposition a strike can be again called.

203 FILIPINO SCOUTS FIRED AND JAILED

Demand for Equal Pay Brings Jail Terms

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MANILA, P. I., August 21.—Two hundred and three Filipino scouts have been discharged from service and sentenced to five years of military imprisonment. The United States court martial trying these Philippine soldiers at Fort McKinley charged them with refusing to obey orders.

They were also charged with belonging to the Philippine Scouts Union which has been fighting for better conditions and equal pay with white soldiers.

Will Produce Unrest.

The extraordinary severity of the penalty inflicted upon the Filipinos is expected to produce widespread discontent among the seven thousand Filipino scouts and among the population in general. All the native soldiers were seeking was equality of pay, a right to share in the limited bonus provided for by Congress, and a removal of some of the especially objectionable conditions under which they have been serving.

The political leaders here view this harshness of treatment accorded the natives as an answer of General Wood and the Coolidge administration to their demands for national freedom.

All observers are agreed here that the decision of the court martial will be a factor making for a stronger hatred of the American imperialist administration in the islands by the entire native population.

ATHLETICS FEATURE Y. W. L.-TECHNICAL AID PICNIC SUNDAY

Communists, young and old, will participate in all the athletic events which will be given at the Joint Picnic this Sunday. The picnic will be held under the auspices of the Young Workers' League of Chicago and the Society for Technical Aid for the United Socialist Soviet Republic at the National Grove, Riverside, Illinois.

The feature will be a tug of war, with the following combatants:

FIRST EVENT.
Maplewood Branch Y. W. L. vs. Liebknecht Branch Y. W. L.

SECOND EVENT.
North Side Branch Y. W. L. vs. West Side Branch Y. W. L.

THIRD EVENT.
Johon Reed Branch Y. W. L. vs. Hirsch Likert Branch Y. W. L.

FOURTH EVENT.
Luxembourg Branch Y. W. L. vs. Illytch (Lenin) Branch Y. W. L.

After these events are staged the branch winning against all others will fight a grand tug of war against the Technical Aid. It will be interesting to see the Y. W. L. huskies match up against these Russian Giants.

In addition to the program offered there will also be games for the junior section as well as a Fat Man's race, three legged race, apple races and also special races for girls and women.

It's Risky Business, This Trying to Talk to the Planet, Mars

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, America's most powerful radio is being carefully tuned in preparation for the master effort to communicate with the planet Mars.

Tonight, a group of eminent scientists, headed by Professor David Todd, of Amherst University, will anxiously await the result of their studiously planned experiment.

* * * *

But what a lot of trouble these scientists may be storing up for things as they are on this Earth of ours!

The planet Mars is millions of years older than the planet Earth. None other than Captain T. J. J. See, professor of methematics, U. S. Navy, and government astronomer at Mare Island, holds that not only Mars but also Venus are inhabited like "Mother Earth."

* * * *

Since life is an evolutionary development, the Martians with several million years the start of the inhabitants of the Earth, ought to have something worth while communicating to us.

All physical conditions on Mars are the same as on the Earth. All information possible shows that development on Mars has been much the same as on Earth.

* * * *

What a jolt it would give the present presidential campaign if the Martians would radio a laugh at us, over the 35 million miles that separate the two planets, telling us that the last vestiges of their capitalist social order, still defended on Earth by all except the Communists, had disappeared from their midst about a million years ago.

It would open the eyes of the subject masses on Earth, for instance, to learn that the Martians accomplish all necessary labor during a two-hour day, spending the remainder in useful leisure; that child labor existed during a dark age recorded only in the most ancient histories.

Co-operation will have been carried by the Martians to a high point of highest perfection. The "free competition" of a LaFollette will have become a forgotten economic theory, while the sacred privilege granting the rights of private property supersedence over human rights will have been relegated to some forgotten King Tut's tomb.

All forms of religion will have been consigned to the realms of mythology. The Martians would no doubt find the recent world war, in which ten millions were slain in the name of Christianity, the subject of interesting study.

The Martians might radio that William Jennings Bryan, who still believes that the Earth was created a few thousand years ago, according to the Biblical fiction, ought to be put in a bug-house, along with "Brass Tacks" Dawes and "Cautious Cal" Coolidge, who believe, as "Willie" Hohenzollern did, when he was Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, that the present capitalist class rules thru divine right: that is, thru the privilege granted them by some God who sits on a golden throne off somewhere in the sky. Since the Martians live on a planet that has been travelling thru space a good many years longer than the Earth we inhabit, they may inform us that they have never come across such a throne anywhere.

* * * *

The Martians would be very much interested in Coolidge's "Mobilization Day," in September, when it is planned to display the power of the people of the United States to kill the peoples of other nations. Having long since abolished capitalism, and with it the wars of capitalism, the Martians would scratch their heads several times over when they hear about the frantic efforts of the different nations to improve on death rays, poisonous gases, air fleets, submarines, battleships and other instruments of murderous warfare, to be used not only against the peoples of foreign lands, but against discontented workers at home if necessary.

* * * *

If the scientists gathered about Professor Todd can get the facts, they will no doubt learn that all the inhabitants of Mars live in peace, having a world-wide federation of their own, long since established.

This will be good news only to the Communists upon this Earth. For they alone urge a world-wide federation of peoples. They alone struggle for the complete abolition of the capitalist social order, for the advance of civilization, for the New Day, that has no doubt long since dawned for the inhabitants of Mars.

* * * *

Science is tireless. It will not be balked by time, space or tradition. It reaches out for new fields of research.

If this thing happens, that communication will be established between Mars and Earth, the news that comes thru 35 million miles of space will be good news for the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, confirming all the theories on which they are building their better future. The news that the Martians may send us will be very bad news for all those trying to maintain things as they are in this black capitalist age upon this Earth of ours.

EXPECT PACKED HOUSE AT NEW RUSSIAN FILM

New York to See Beauty and the Bolshevik

The BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK, a Red Army romance and the first of the dramatic films showing the new life in Russia, is attracting wide-spread attention. This picture is toghave an extensive showing all over the country and is opening for 8 days' run at the Lenox Theatre, 111th St. and Lenox Avenue, from August 22nd to the 29th inclusive.

Red Army Brigade in Picture.

The picture was made in Russia by the Proletkino. The film tells the story of a Red Army brigade which in the course of entire white activity is quartered in a typical Russian village. The village is real. The mixed feelings of the village population upon the arrival of the soldiers is well portrayed. The peasants in the caste are real peasants as no actors were necessary and some of the most wonderful types have been screened without the slightest use of make-up. Obviously for the rich peasants and middle-class peasants represented in the picture, actors, and good ones were employed.

The picture is specially well made and filled with subtle humorous touches. American audiences will enjoy seeing Kombrig, the bald-headed red commander hero, wooing and winning the beauty, a rich farmer's daughter of the village.

New Yorkers are the first to see this new feature comedy film of Soviet Russia.

Rockford, Ill., Press Pic-nic.

Rockford, Ill., is preparing for a grand celebration at its Press Pic-nic at Illinois Park Sunday, Aug. 24. The arrangements committee promises many amusements and entertainments. Bring the whole family. Fun and games for the kiddies, dancing for young folks and a rich program of entertainments for all.

All the proceeds from this pic-nic will be divided evenly between the DAILY WORKER and "Ny Tid" the Swedish party organ.

FOSTER INVADES S. P.-LA FOLLETTE 'OPEN SHOP' CITY

Milwaukee to Hear Communist Message

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Aug. 21.—Continuing his mid-western trip in which he is carrying the message of Communism to tens of thousands of workers, William Z. Foster, candidate of the Workers Party for president, will invade the stronghold of Robert M. LaFollette and his aid, Victor Berger, when he speaks in Milwaukee, Sunday afternoon, August 24, at Tippecanoe Park.

To Quiz Socialists.

Foster will have some very pointed remarks to direct at these two representatives of the small manufacturers and professional men. He will show how Berger fills the same place in American political life as that of Scheidemann and Noske in Germany, how by his pink paint of socialist labels and phrases he delivers the masses of workers who are really against capitalism, over to the forces of the exploiters.

Foster will point out that Berger is now supporting the same LaFollette whom for years he has been denouncing, while LaFollette has not changed one inch in his bitter opposition to everything that smacks of socialism. He will ask the workers of Milwaukee if they really want to support the man who thinks that nothing is wrong with America except a few crooks in office, and who stands for private property in the basic industries of the country as the foundation of American government.

Why is Milwaukee "Open Shop?"

Foster will ask the Milwaukee workers why it is, if Berger and LaFollette are such good "friends" of labor as they pretend, that Milwaukee is such a classic "open shop" town. Why is it that the unions are less organized in Milwaukee than in any other city of like size in the country? Why is it that 65 per cent of the building trades are non-union? Why is it that the National Exrectors' Association, the notorious union-smashing organization of the Steel Trust, with Walter Drew as its head, has one of its offices in Milwaukee? Why is it that the labor movement of Wisconsin finds it more difficult to get consideration of its problems from the LaFollette state government than it would from a reactionary machine?

These will be some special questions for Milwaukee, which will accompany Foster's exposition of the Workers Party platform, and the goal of the workers and farmers government which it sets forth for the American workers. Foster's other dates in the near future are as follows:

FOSTER'S DATES

St. Paul, New Labor Temple, 416 N. Franklin St.—Saturday, August 23, 8:00 p. m.
Milwaukee, Tippecanoe Park—Sunday, Aug. 24.
Sioux City—Friday Aug. 29.
Des Moines—Saturday, Aug. 30.
Omaha—Sunday, Aug. 31.
Kansas City—Monday, Sept. 1.
St. Louis—Tuesday, Sept. 2.
Ziegler—Wednesday, Sept. 3.
Springfield—Thursday, Sept. 4.

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

GITLOW'S DATES

Trenton—Saturday, Aug. 23.
Washington—Monday, Aug. 25.
Richmond, Labor Temple—Sunday, Aug. 24, 8 p. m.
Reading, Veteran Firemen's Hall, 612 Franklin St.—Tuesday, Aug. 26, 8 p. m.
Scranton—Wednesday Aug. 27.
Binghamton, Lithuanian Hall—Thursday, Aug. 28, 7 p. m.
Buffalo Friday, Aug. 29.
Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 280 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.
Daisytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.
Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.
Pittsburgh, Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St.—Tuesday, Sept. 2.
Bellaire—Wednesday, Sept. 3.
Canton—Friday, Sept. 5.
Akron—Saturday, Sept. 6.
Cleveland—Sunday, Sept. 7.
New York—Tuesday, Sept. 9.

C. E. Ruthenberg executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Two of these meetings already arranged for are:

Bolton, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1,
Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.
New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St., 8 p. m.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.
445 ALLEGHENY ST., 2nd or 3rd AV. 1401 FARMERS BANK BLDG.

DISSENSION IS RIFE IN CAMP OF LAFOLLETTE

Machinists and Garment Workers Reject Bob

By MAX SHACHTMAN.

News of the withdrawal of George L. Berry, president of the International Pressman's Union, from the LaFollette campaign; of the dissatisfaction on the part of the treasurer for LaFollette's labor end, Warren S. Stone, of the locomotive engineers; divisions in LaFollette's ranks in New York, and the withdrawal of another local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, mark the latest developments in the campaign of the Wisconsin senator.

Berry, who had haunted the democratic national convention in search for the vice-presidential nomination on the basis of a strike-breaking record in his own union, has now come out for John W. Davis, in spite of a pledge to LaFollette made three weeks ago.

Stone Is Sore.

Warren S. Stone, in spite of the ever-persistent statements that he will stick to the LaFollette campaign, because of a resolution passed at the last convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, he had arrogated to himself the power to dispense the funds of the organization as he saw fit. And he spent lavishly, to the tune of at least $50,000, to boost La Follette, but with one good eye always towards the vice-presidential nomination on Bob"s slate.

LaFollette, always careful about giving any representation to labor that was not absolutely imperative, chose, instead, Wheeler. For this, Stone will probably never forgive him, his statements of allegiance to the contrary notwithstanding. But "Bob" is not worried.

Even "Young Bob," in touching upon the rumored resignation of Stone, relegated it to unimportance by saying: "It would be without significance even if it occurred insofar as it would indicate his being out of sympathy with the campaign."

New York Difficulties.

In New York, the perinally hopeful Socialist Party has managed to worm itself into a number of strategic positions in the local Conference for Progressive Political Action. In calling a local conference, they overlooked the Tammany Hall politicians who are in control of the New York portion of the American Federation of Labor.

When the call for the conference was issued, the leaders of the Central Labor Council of New York sent out a circular letter in opposition to the meeting. And all of Abraham Tuvim's declarations that "the incident is trivial" will not hide the fact that Tammany Hall leaders do not intend to join in with the S. P. fakers who hope that the local conference of the C. P. P. A. may possibly endorse Norman Thomas, socialist candidate, for governor. Tuvim is the manager of the labor division of LaFollette in New York.

"We want to endorse as many friends of labor as possible and the candidates most popular among the members of the unions," said John Coughlin, secretary of the Central Labor Council of New York. This means the continued endorsement of Tammany Hall or G. O. P. fakers with LaFollette carrying off the presidential endorsement laurels.

Amalgamated Local Protests.

Best of all comes the news that Local 86, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Pittsburgh passed a resolution after careful discussion, condemning the action of the General Executive Board in endorsing the Wisconsin messiah.

"The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local 86, Pittsburgh, Pa., condemns the attempt of the official labor leaders to lead the workers into the middle class LaFollette camp. And we emphatically protest against the action of the General Executive Board of the Amalgamated endorsing the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket in violation of the repeated expression of the membership through our national convention in favor of a class labor party."

The wave of resentment and condemnation of the arbitrary action of the Hillman administration in flopping for petit bourgeois leadership is sweeping one local union after another.

In Johnston's Own Camp.

In the camp of William H. Johnston, chairman of the Cleveland convention of the C. P. P. A., and president of the International Association of Machinists, protests are being heard. As a double wallop at the Johnston machine and the political chameleons of the Chicago Federation of Labor, Local Union 390, of the International Association of Machinists, at its last meeting, overwhelmingly voted down any endorsement of Robert Marion and Burton Kendall.

Merrily They Roll Along.

In the meantime the campaign of LaFollette rolls along merrily. The slightest tinge of radicalism is being expunged from the records in an effort to cleanse himself from the odium of his past and present affiliation with the Socialist Party.

Labor, official organ of the railroad brotherhoods, and authoritative mouthpiece for LaFollette, reports that preparations are being made to meet the charge of LaFollette's supposed anti-war stand. Since the speech largely on the speech made by him at St. Paul in 1917, the LaFollette camp is reminding the electorate that this speech was proved to have been purposely misquoted and that LaFollette was not a pro-German or an anti-war man.

The press is away with another of the excuses being given by alleged radicals for their support of LaFollette.

Ignores Labor Organ.

The latest stunt of the "progressives" is the announcement that they will support Senator Thomas Walsh, Democratic senator from Montana, for re-election. This is the newest blow to the budding independent Farmer-Labor party movement. The Farmer-Labor party of Montana has its own candidate for U. S. Senator, but that means nothing to the Wisconsinite.

Nor does he take into account for a single moment the fact that the Montana State Federation of Labor in its convention during the first part of July, 1924, drew up a resolution condemning this same Senator Walsh as an enemy of labor and author of the infamous criminal syndicalism law of the state.

But labor's opinion doesn't count very much with LaFollette. Only Robert Marion LaFollette counts with him.

Act to Boycott Italy.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—The red transport workers of Vera Cruz and Tampico will boycott the Italian exhibition vessel, Italia, which is expected soon. They are doing this because of the fact that Mussolini's government is universally considered by the workers as an enemy of the working class.

UNEMPLOYED WORKERS GET DELEGATES INTO FRISCO LABOR BODY

(By The Federated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—A new departure was made by the San Francisco Labor council when it voted to accept two unemployed men as fraternal delegates at each meeting, to learn at first hand the conditions of the unemployed. The men will be selected from the so-called "slave market"—the employment office region on Howard St., where men out of a job congregate.

WORKERS CLASH WITH FASCISTI ON MATTEOTTI

Thousands Rallying to Attend Funeral

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Aug. 21.—The pouring of workers and peasants into the city continues.

Spectators here recall the Fascist march on Rome of almost two years ago, which thrust Mussolini into the dictatorship after he had been outlawed by decree of the liberal government.

Workers Rally.

Between that demonstration and the uprising of today there is this difference—that the men and women now storming Rome to take part in the public burial of Giacomo Matteotti in defiance of the government decree are not petty army officers, but delegates of labor unions, representatives of student bodies, Communist leaders, boys and girls carrying the emblem of the Third International.

Mussolini has called into the city 40,000 of the national militia—the blackshirts. The Fascisti of Lazio, a government stronghold, are mobilizing to come to Rome for a counter-demonstration. The force of armed guards stationed about the jail in which are imprisoned the Fascisti convicted of implicity in the murder has been doubled.

Denounce Fascist Rule.

The right hand of the body of Matteotti was missing when the corpse was discovered. Government officials answer that worms ate it away. The workers know that worms do not eat bones.

Hatred of the blackshirt regime has reached fever heat. Demonstrations against the dictatorship flare up all over Italy. In Milan, fifteen Fascisti were wounded when they attempted to intimidate soldiers of the regular army who had hung the picture of Matteotti in the city armory. Naples, where two years ago the Fascist march on Rome was organized, is witnessing parades of the workers, who shout denunciation of Fascist rule. Gaetano Mussolini was burned in effigy.

The government made a gesture of impartiality by the imprisonment of fifty of the national militia for disturbing a protest meeting. All of the fifty were released next day.

Strike For a Day.

Work will be suspended for the day in every town thru which the body of Matteotti passes when, after the funeral at Rome on Sunday, it is carried to Badia Polesine, the birth place of the murdered deputy. Workers will gather at the railway stations to pay tribute of praise to the dead, and tribute of hatred to the living criminals intrenched in the seats of the government.

Birth Controllers Create Branch.

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 21.—Mrs. Anne Kennedy, secretary American Birth Control League, has organized a branch of the national body in Oakland.

Better Rooms for Labor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—The Marine Engineers' Beneficial Assn. has moved into new San Francisco headquarters, including ah office, lounge, card room and billiard rooms.

AMERICA SABOTAGED RUHR EVACUATION IS CHARGE OF GERMANS

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Charging that America sabotaged the chances for the immediate evacuation of the Ruhr by supporting France, Germania, Chancellor Marx's organ, today printed a leading article, which added:

"Crusader Wilson was turned out by a servant of Mammon. Apostle Dawes preached a new bible, but the salvation work serves only business; Europe is under the heels of American capital. It is a pity the great American nation lacks the making of a great humane gesture."

Foreign Secretary Stresemann today made a detailed report on the London reparations conference to the reichstag foreign relations committee.

FRENCH RILED AT MACDONALD'S DOUBLE DEALING

Jekyll-Hyde Role is Revealed in Letters

PARIS, Aug. 21.—That James Ramsay MacDonald, socialist-pacifist premier of Great Britain, and the rest of His Majesty's realm, played a Dr. Jekyll-Hyde role at the London conference is revealed thru a letter addressed to France and Belgium, made public immediately after the conference terminated, urging the immediate evacuation of the Ruhr.

The French nationalists are in a terrible rage and even Herriot's supporters are compelled to admit that it is a piece of sharp practice which British diplomacy excels in.

Was With France.

While MacDonald thru the weight of his influence, openly on the side of France during the German-French conversations over the evacuation of the Ruhr and agreed to the year's term within which the last of the French troops should be off German territory, secretly he tried to put France in a position where she would be obliged to evacuate immediately or else bring down on her head the wrath of international bankers.

The British capitalists see in the French Ruhr occupation a tremendous danger to their commercial position. It threatens their coal and iron industry. Therefore, to get the French out of the Ruhr at the earliest possible moment is a matter of the utmost importance for the British government.

Was Pleased Then.

What angers the French most is the fact that the letter tho dated last Saturday was written prior to MacDonald's speech at the close of the conference at which he expressed gratification at the happy solution of the Ruhr exacuation question.

Most of the Paris papers express furious resentment against MacDonald's trickery. The Communist papers point out that despite the peace protestations of the statesmen representing the rival capitalist nations, that they are at each other's throats and that another war would result unless the workers joined hands across the international frontiers, kick the capitalist governments into the discard and establish Soviet Republics in Europe.

It is reported that Leon Blum, socialist deputy, will be rewarded for his collaboration with Herriot with the post of ambassador to London.

CALIFORNIA FREE SPEECH CASE JURY OUT ONLY FIVE MINUTES; RENDERS VERDICT "NOT GUILTY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 21.—E. G. Moffitt, who was arrested while speaking at an open air meeting held in San Pedro on July 6 under the auspices of the American Civil Liberties Union was found not guilty of disturbing the peace by a Los Angeles jury. This meeting was held for the purpose of protesting the inactivity of the police department and the district attorney's office in investigating the raid on the I. W. W. hall in which women and children had been scalded and seven men tarred and feathered by a mob.

Mr. Moffitt was arrested on the 6th of July and nine days later, after he had procured a writ of habeas corpus, the charge of "maliciously, unlawfully, etc., disturbing the peace" was preferred against him.

The prosecution charged Mr. Moffitt with having alluded to the Police Department as "skunks, degenerates," etc., language unfit to be used at a public meeting. It was also charged that he had called Jack Diamond of the District Attorney's Office "a stool pigeon employed by the police" and "unfit to be a father or a husband." The police officers stated from the stand that loud and boisterous language had been employed, altho when Mr. Moffitt questioned one of the officers, it was replied that he spoke no louder than the other speakers and there was no disturbance at the meeting. When asked to demonstrate Mr. Moffitt's demeanor, the officer waved his arms somewhat.

Reverend Robert Whitaker, Professor Gallagher of Southwestern University, Marta Divine of the I. W. W., Emanuel Levin, Mrs. Frymier and Anna Cornblath of the Workers Party were among the witnesses called for the defense. They all testified positively that the term "stool pigeon" was prefixed with "alleged" and that this was the only one of the terms that were charged by the officers that was used. They said that no boisterous or loud language was employed.

The jury was out no longer than five minutes when they came back with the verdict of "Not Guilty." Several members of the jury inquired where the meetings were held. The only trouble with these case, according to one of the witnesses, is that all this propaganda is spread only among twelve people.

The War Is Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Grand Army of the Republic doesn't know the Civil War is over. They have protested against the coinage of a memorial half dollar to commemorate the valor of Confederate soldiers in the Civil War.

ONE BIG UNION SEEKS SPLIT IN NOVA SCOTIA

Big Danger to Militant District Seen

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, Aug. 21.—The one big union of Winnipeg is active in this district among the coal miners in an attempt to split the miners' union and form an O. B. U. organization here in place of the United Mine Workers to which the miners belong.

The O. B. U. representative is Ben Legere, one-time vaudeville actor, whose splitting activity in the labor movement is known in Western Canada, among the textile workers of Lawrence, and now in Nova Scotia. The O. B. U. hopes that the disgust of the rank and file of the miners with the reactionary machine of John L. Lewis will enable them to split the district and bring the miners into the O. B. U.

Militants Must Remain in U. M. W.

Since Lewis cancelled the charter and deposed the officers of the district the O. B. U. has been speculating on the possibilities of utilizing the resentment of the miners against these actions for a split. The first appearance of the O. B. U. in the district was after the rank and file convention held last May. But the hopes of the O. B. U. that the convention would split from the U. M. W. were disappointed because the rank and file delegates decided that the correct course of action to pursue was to stay inside the U. M. W. and fight along with the militants of the other districts to defeat the Lewis machine.

Communists Oppose Split.

The latest move of the O. B. U. is to advocate the calling of a rank and file convention for the purpose of breaking with the U. M. W. and transfering the local unions into "units" of the O. B. U. This plan was outlined in a recent number of the O. B. U. Bulletin. Some miners who have not recovered from their infatuation with the O. B. U. scheme in 1919 have given a willing ear to this propaganda.

The consequences of a split on the part of the miners would be terrible. Lewis has been unable to crush the militant spirit of the miners in spite of his strike-breaking tactics, and the blacklist applied by his friends the operators. If the O. B. U. succeeds in splitting the ranks of the miners it will accomplish just what Lewis and his gang want: the destruction of the solidarity of the miners. The conditions prevailing in the district at the present time threaten the crushing of the miners if they attempt to split. The vast majority of the miners are working only half time, and many of them get only ten days' work a month. In this situation it is quite easy for Lewis to arrange for the operators to shut the mines for a while and then open them to only those miners who are willing to abide with the decisions of Lewis. The check-off collection of union dues will be used as a weapon by Lewis in this method of weeding out the militants of the rank and file.

Lewis Anxious for Split.

The history of the miners of District 18 should be sufficient to prevent the miners of Nova Scotia embarking on an O. B. U. adventure. In spite of the fact that the overwhelming majority of the miners of District 18 went with the O. B. U. in 1919, the U. M. W. officialdom was able to crush them in co-operation with the operators and the Canadian government. The net result of the split in District 18 was the blacklisting of the militant leaders, and a weakening of the solidarity of the miners. After three years the miners found that they had to again take up the fight inside the U. M. W.

It would be much easier for Lewis to crush the miners of Nova Scotia in the event of a split. They have gone thru a series of struggles, and periods of unemployment, since 1922 that have robbed them of any funds to conduct a struggle against a blacklist. The British Empire Steel Corporation owns 90 per cent of the mines in the district and it can be relied upon to co-operate with Lewis to smash the miners. The Provincial and Federal governments will aid the corporation in this as they have in the past sent troops against the miners when asked to do so by the corporation. The split will simply isolate the militants from the rest of the miners, because the majority of the miners in the western part of the district will stick with Lewis. The net result of the split adventure will be the smashing of the militant leaders of the rank and file. They will be blacklisted and drivgn from the union and the district leaving the backward miners at the mercy of the Lewis machine.

Miners Learn by Experience.

The lessons of District 18, of the bitter period of 1909 when the miners were split into two factions and crushed by the operators as a consequence, and the fact that the O. B. U. could not maintain the organization of 40,000 workers that it had following the Winnipeg strike of 1919, shows that if the miners follow the O. B. U. in this adventure they will simply be courting disaster. The only force that can prevent this is the militants organized in the Miners' Progressive movement, and the rank and file leadership of the Communist Party.

LABOR NEWS GARBLED IN KEPT PRESS

Contractors' Statement Given Prominence

Edward Harris, secretary of the Painters' Union, Local No. 184, asks the DAILY WORKER to correct an erroneous statement made by the yellow press about his union.

These papers gave prominence to a statement by Fred W. Armstrong, manager of the Citizens' Committee, that 53 per cent of the painters in Chicago would not come under the new scale of wages.

They are the painters working for the Landis award contractors who will remain working under their old scale of 95c an hour.

The statement was worded in such a way as to give the impression that the union permitted two different scales of wages for its membership. This is not true.

For two years the Painters' Union has been fighting the Landis award contractors and no union man is employed by them.

All the members of our union, about 12,000 in all, work under the regular union scale of wages which will be $1.50 an hour beginning Monday.

Wage Cuts of Ten to Forty Per Cent Bring Out Watch Workers

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 21.—All the employes of the Waltham Watch Co. except the machinists who are waiting international sanction are on strike against wage reductions ranging as high as 40 per cent. The strike began August 10 and involves approximately 2,000 of the 2,950 employes of the company.

The wage cut ranges from 10 per cent to 40 per cent with an average of 25 per cent. The company claims that wages have been out of line with prices and the Waltham chamber of commerce is supporting the company, condemning the strike as entailing waste of revenue to the company, the strikers and the city.

Repeat Charges Against Hughes.

MOSCOW, Aug. 21.—A high Soviet official today charged that Charles E. Hughes and Premier Herriot agreed upon a concrete anti-Soviet policy by both countries during the former's European trip.

Send in that Subscription Today.

A Challenge!

THE Harlem Branch of New York City challenges every Workers Party Branch in the nation to send in an order for at least 100 copies of the first campaign issue. This branch has ordered 200 copies for distribution.

Act at once! Take this up at your next branch meeting. Every branch will be glad to send for at least 100 copies.

Let us roll up a big circulation for the First 1924 Communist Campaign issue of the DAILY WORKER. Use this Coupon.

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $2.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY ..... STATE .....

FOSTER'S PICTURE

Should be in the home of every worker in America —because he is the only Presidential Candidate representing the class conscious workers.

Printed on a fine grade of paper, 12 inches wide by 16 inches high. Suitable for framing or pasting in your window.

THE DAILY WORKER

will be the best, the most incessant worker for

Foster For President

The only way you can secure this special

PICTURE OF FOSTER

is by getting some of the

4 MONTH SPECIAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS (For new subscribers only) $2.00

Get a New Reader for the DAILY WORKER, a Big Picture of Foster for Yourself and One for the New Subscriber.

USE THE COUPON

THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

I have sold a Special 4-Month Election Campaign sub. Please send me FREE the picture of Foster.

Name .....

Street .....

City ..... State .....

New Subscriber's

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

LAFOLLETTE IS REPUDIATED BY MACHINIST LOCAL

Members Kill Motion to Endorse "Bob"

Local 390 of the International Association of Machinists by an overwhelming vote, defeated the attempt on the part of the William H. Johnston followers to endorse the LaFollette-Wheeler combination as their candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency of the United States in the coming election.

The LaFollette forces used the customary anti-Communist propaganda in speaking for the motion. They brought up the argument that the entire officialdom of the A. F. of L. was for LaFollette and that the members should adopt the Compersian policy.

Stands by Principles.

The great majority of the members, however, pointed out that local 390 has stood for independent working class political action for several years and would not now desert its principles. August Plambeck, one of the progressives who worked in Wisconsin, pointed out that it was one of the worst states in the union for machinists despite the fact that LaFollette has complete control of the political machinery of Wisconsin.

The role of the Proletarian Party members during the discussion was amusing. While they pointed out the true character of the LaFollette movement, they refrained from voting on the question and delivered their usual tirade against the Communists. For this they were highly praised by the LaFollette supporters.

Elect Progressive.

August Plambeck was elected delegate from the local to the next convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Duncan MacDonald, former secretary of the Illinois Miners' Union, and also former president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, was nominated to fill the latter position, by local 390.

Your Union Meeting

FOURTH FRIDAY, AUG. 22, 1924.

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting
122	Blacksmiths, 64th and S. Ashland Avenue.
488	Boiler Makers, 105th and Avenue O.
494	Boiler Makers, 56th and Halsted.
595	Boiler Makers, 62nd and Halsted Streets.
192	Electricians, 19 W. Adams St.
365	Engineers (Locomotive), Madison and Ashland.
866	Engineers, 180 W. Washington St.
674	Firemen and Enginemen, 5426 Wentworth Avenue.
25	Fur Workers.
118	Hod Carriers, 1880 Sherman Ave. Evanston.
4	Lithographers, 628 S. Ashland Blvd.
227	Bakers and Confectioners, 3420 W. Roosevelt Road.
	Building Trades Council, 180 W. Washington St.
	Carpenters' District Council, 805 S. State St.
1	Carpenters, 175 W. Washington St.
2303	Carpenters, 4939 W. Halsted St.
15	Carpenters, (Sleeping Car), 912 Capitol Bldg., 10 a. m.
3	Electrotypers, 175 W. Washington Street.
26	Granite Cutters, 180 W. Washington St.
190	Machinists, 113 S. Ashland Ave.
492	Machinists, 55th and Halsted Streets.
746	Machinists, S. E. cor. Lexington and Western.
1225	Machinists, 53rd Pl. and Halsted Street.
6	Metal Polishers, 119 S. Throop St.
78	Pattern Makers, 119 S. Throop St.
210	Plasterers, 180 W. Washington St.
593	Plumbers, 5212 S. Halsted St.
130	Railway Carmen, Blue Island, Ill.
1207	Railway Carmen, 52nd and Robey.
517	Railway Clerks, 8 S. Clinton St.
101	Watchmen (Stock Yards), 3749 S. Halsted St.
9	Electricians, 2901 W. Monroe St.
94	Glass Workers, Emily and Marshfield.
	Ladies' Garment Workers, Joint Board, 328 W. Van Buren St.
113	Machinists, 113 S. Ashland Blvd.
126	Painters, School and Penfield Ave.
612	Plumbers, 9251 S. Chicago Ave.
110	Sheet Metal Workers, 810 W. Harrison Street.
998	Railway Carmen, 11405 Michigan Avenue.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

WM. Z. FOSTER

What do you know about him?

When speaking to your neighbors, friends and shopmates and urging them to support and vote for William Z. Foster, the working class candidate for president, at the coming election, you will have to tell them what Foster has done for the labor movement. For this we recommend Foster's book:

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY

"THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE AND ITS LESSONS"

The story of the steel workers fight for organization and recognition, led by William Z. Foster.

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY

of this wonderful story sent to any address for

$1.00

Regular price of this book is $1.75. Order at once, while the supply lasts! Remember: AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY.

Literature Department,
Workers Party of America
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

Class War Against Imperialist War!

Editor's Note.—Dangers of new wars are set forth in gripping form in the Manifesto of the Communist International on the tenth anniversary of the World War. The facts set forth are of intense interest right now, with the agreement of German capitalism to the enslaving terms of the Morgan-Dawes reparations plan. The DAILY WORKER today publishes the fourth section of this Manifesto, as follows:

* * *

Against War!
Against the Bourgeoisie!
Against the Social Traitors!
For the World Revolution!
For the Dictatorship of the Proletariat!
For Communism!

IV.

IN a veiled form, the forces of the war are ruling humanity even today. What is the new solution of the reparations question, the "experts' report," but the application of war methods to this fundamental economic problem? America, whose coffers are filled to overflowing with European gold, is supporting the military strength of France and is dictating to Germany a period of economic subjection as a punishment for its own defeat. Only born idiots can imagine that the "experts' report" is a peaceful, democratic, pacifist solution of the problem. As a matter of fact, the entente is dictating its agreement with a pistol thrust at the head of Germany. We are told that the restoration of the economic standard of Europe is made possible only thru the free play of the forces of capitalism; they tell us that in order to damn the idea of an economic organization based on socialism. But as a matter of fact the basic problem of the economic life of Europe is being solved with the help of continuous military violence against Germany, which but a short time ago was the leading capitalist country of Europe.

The German bourgeoisie is in agreement with this transaction, because, with the help of foreign capital and, in extreme need, with the help of foreign force, it hopes to complete its subjection of the German proletariat. It is constantly placing heavier burdens upon the workers; it is wrenching from them the last of the gains they made during the revolution; it is lengthening the working-day; it is speeding up production; and by these means it hopes to force the German workers, under the conditions of the new methods of technical and productive concentration, to put up with all the sufferings, privations, and miseries of the early period of factory life. The enervating and crushing of the German proletariat serves the bourgeoisie of Europe, by permitting them to hold the Damocles' sword of German competition over the heads of the working masses. Finally, American capital is being put to the task of "controlling" Europe with the help of its experts—which means, really, to govern Europe, in exactly the same way that a few American magnates control dozens of trusts and railroads. At the same time the American capitalist is planning, with the help of his European profits, to sway the "leaders" of the American working class, its aristocracy, which is led by the greatest of all yellow traitors, Gompers, and to crush relentlessly millions of proletarians, under the threat of a new flood of immigration from ruined Europe.

This monstrous plan for the enslavement of the European working masses thru Anglo-Saxon capital with the aid of French militarism, has been accepted and furthered by the members of the parties of the Second International. The Socialists of the entente countries are providing a sanctimonious excuse for the robber politics of its bourgeoisie, with whom it is marching shoulder to shoulder. The Social-democrats of Germany are figuring that the re-establishment of a strong capitalist order will bring them victory over the Communist menace.

At the same time, it explains its collaboration with the German bourgeoisie referring to the "necessity of resisting outside pressure." Amid the hue and cry about Communist plots and an "international Cheka," there is unfolding itself before our very eyes a brutal capitalist plot against the workers of Europe and of the whole world. The organizing spirit of this plot is finance capital, with its general staff in New York and its partners in London. The most important and significant work is given over to the marshals of the French Bourse. As supporters, defenders and advocates of this plot, appear the Social-democrats and the members of the Amsterdam trade-unions. The experts in treachery are coming to the aid of the experts in capitalism.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

Bolshevism into the helpless population, she says. She displayed a button, a red button which should convince any moron that she was telling the truth. It flaunted on its face the mysterious initials, Y. C. I. Mysterious! Bah! Not to the Baroness. To prove that she was on the inside of things, she deciphered the code. Y. C. I. meant Young Communist International and the Young Workers' League of America were the wicked urchins who carried out the instructions of the Y. C. I.

* * *

THE Baroness almost talked like an American when she petulantly asked the assembled Babbits what were they doing to stem the tide of propaganda that now flooded the country. When she told the business men that 800,000 peasants were executed in Russia in one year, the members of the Chamber of Commerce immediately felt for their jugular veins to see if the next drink of whiskey would go down alright.

* * *

HOW many of our readers look on the United States navy in the light of an international strike-breaking agency? Recruiting posters show beautiful pictures of palm trees and orange groves, lush mountains, placid seas and fertile plains. But the sailors on board the United States cruiser Galveston at Ceiba, Honduras, if they do any thinking at all, realize that the difference between the Baldwin-Felts strikebreaking agency and the United States navy is one of degree or form. The cruiser Galveston was sent to Honduras to quell a strike, which the cruiser did. The capitalists welcomed the ship and the workers had to chose between getting their heads blown off or going back to work for the American capitalists who gave the orders to the Galveston.

* * *

MAJOR George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen's union, who was refused the vice-presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket tho supported by the A. F. of L. executive committee, will support the Davis-Bryan ticket in open defiance of Gompers. The Central Labor Union of New York refuses to co-operate with the local conference for progressive political action because it fears the socialists may get something out of it. It will not be put in a position where it will have to endorse Norman Thomas for governor. Dr. Thomas is doing everything in his power to convince the labor fakers that the socialists are just as harmless to the capitalist system as James Ramsay MacDonald. But the labor fakers are suspicious. They are afraid the socialists will grab off the funds. All in all, LaFollette is going to have a hard time keeping his united front from dividing up.

* * *

IT was a mean trick of General Dawes to splash the red paint over the LaFollette banner. In the first place, it was not fair to LaFollette. In the second place, it was unfair to the socialists. The Wisconsin senator is as much opposed to socialism as the socialist party is and Hell an' Maria knows it. But "everything is fair in love or in war" and politics is war. We are anxiously awaiting Mr. LaFollette's reply stating that he has nothing in common with the socialists, except a mutual desire to get their fingers on the Administration pie. It would not surprise us to see Gompers come out with another wallop against the socialists and suggest to LaFollette that he would gain more than he will lose by dropping them into the sewer.

* * *

IN Europe the capitalists use the social democrats because the latter have millions of followers among the workers and the petty bourgeoisie. The European capitalists would prefer to do business with politicians of the old school, but they must recognize the inevitable and as the socialists are more than willing, the plutes have no kick coming. Here in the United States the situation is different. The socialist party is a party of leaders without followers. They are not willing to lead the masses to revolution. They have given up that idea if they ever held it, so they join the LaFollette bandwagon, on which they expect to ride to respectability and prosperity. LaFollette will use them and in return for their assistance to his machine, the renegade socialists will be given a chance to get into the house of representatives on the so-called progressive ticket. But LaFollette could afford to drop the socialists and he would not lose much. The greater part of the socialist vote was never anything else but a LaFollette vote.

* * *

MAYOR Hylan of New York, may run for governor of the state. His backer is William Randolph Hearst. Hylan claims to be a progressive and until John W. Davis delivered his acceptance speech, and Governor Smith announced he would not be a candidate to succeed himself, there were rumors that Hylan would support LaFollette for president. But it was not to be. Hylan, who was at first opposed to Davis as a Morgan man, decided to support him. The New York mayor is now angling for the nomination for governor. Being once a union railroader and the railroad brotherhoods in New York having demonstrated at the Albany conference of the C. P. P. A. last week, that they would not support Norman Thomas, the mayor believes he could collar the labor vote.

* * *

WHAT is a perfect hanging case? You will have to ask State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. That worthy appears to have a hanging complex. Wherever a dead body is found anywhere within the limits of his jurisdiction, Mr. Crowe takes down his trusty noose and looks at it lovingly hoping that before many moons it will decorate the neck of some human being. When the Franks case broke and the murderers confessed, Crowe rubbed his hands gleefully, muttering "a perfect hanging case." He has repeated that phrase several times a day since. His assistants have contracted the habit. A man with such a strong desire to get a rope around some fellow human's neck should not be at large. It is only a question of time when Crowe may lose his judicial poise and go on a hanging spree. Or he might join the Ku Klux Klan.

* * *

BRIGADIER General Van Horn Moseley, commandant at Fort Sheridan, has been named defendant in a suit for divorce. According to the General's wife, the brave warrior deserted her more than two years ago. It happens that the general is a leader in the mobilization day plans of the war department. Whether he can wage war on his wife and at the same time defend his country against the Communists is a moot question. An interesting fact connected with the divorce proceedings was discovered when the general admitted that the court kept notice of the suit secret for fear the pacifists would use his predicament against Moseley because of his "defense" activities. "Birds of a feather flock together."

Русская Вечеринка

This Saturday night, at the Soviet School, 1902 W. Division St. Why, can't you make it out? What's it all about?

Well, it's the newly organized Ilitch Branch of the Young Workers League celebrating in honor of its organization.

Besides that it is the first Vecherinka of the season. There will be a picnic next day, given by the Y. W. L. and the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, but the Ilitch youngsters do not want to miss their fun in case of a rain on Sunday, so they won't take any chances and are going to have a Vecherinka on Saturday. Tickets for the picnic will be sold at the Vecherinka.

Come along.

KU KLUX KLAN IN ATTEMPT TO COW TRENTON NEGROES

Black Workers Living in Tiny Hovels

(By the Federated Press.)

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 21.—The Ku Klux Klan of Trenton and vicinity plans to turn Labor Day into a gigantic demonstration in behalf of the hooded order. A huge parade is being arranged for Hamilton township, adjacent to Trenton, and the Klan spokesmen are making the grandiose claim that they will have 100,000 persons in line.

Want to Cow Negroes.

These Klan preparations are regarded ominously by Trenton Negroes. Klansmen have been applauding the "shoot to kill" orders which Commissioner of Public Safety George B. LaBarre issued to policemen dealing with alleged disorderly Negroes. It is charged that both the police and the Klan are attempting to cow the southern Negroes who are employed in the open shop steel mills and factories of this community.

In fact, LaBarre is issuing his fulminations against these southern emigrants, who have swelled the Negro population of Trenton from 4,000 to 8,000. The only overt act of any consequence to which the commissioner can point is a fight which Owen Broner, a former overseas soldier, had with two policemen, which resulted in the death of the Negro A. E. F. man and the wounding of the two policemen. The minor affray occurred when Howard Bangefield, Negro physical instructor in the Negro public schools, thrashed a white man who resented his using a certain diving platform at a public swimming pool. The white man struck the first blow.

Many Negroes Unemployed.

Many black and white workers have been laid off in the Trenton mills and factories recently. Some of the southern Negroes have been charging that Trenton industrial conditons had been misrepresented to them. They say they were given to understand they would have steady employment if they came north.

Among the corporations employing many Negroes are the American Steel and Wire Company, the John L. Mott Iron Works, the Roebling Wire Mills, National Radiator Company, Cook's Linoleum Company and pottery and rubber concerns.

Housing conditions for these Negro newcomers to Trenton are deplorable. A virtual system of segregation exists thru the refusal of landlords to rent homes to Negroes in the better districts of the city. It is not uncommon to find an average of three persons crowded into each room.

Send in that Suspcription Today.

Government Printing Office Workers Out For Higher Salaries

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Employes in the government printing office here have asked for a flat wage of $1.10 an hour, with 20 per cent additional for night work.

George H. Carter, public printer, offers a sliding scale ranging from 90 cents for compositors, to $1.15 for the highest class of linotype and monotype operators, with 15 percent added for night work. A flat scale of 90 cents per hour became effective, under act of Congress, on July 1 last. Hence the compositors would get no increase if Carter's offer were accepted.

Negotiations between the committee of employes—all of whom are members of Columbia Typographical Union, and Carter and his aids, are now beginning. Senator Smoot and Congressman Kiess of Pennsylvania, of the joint committee of Congress which deals with printing, will consult with Carter and give him final instructions.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

APPEAL TO BROOKLYN BAKERS TO GET TOGETHER AND LAUNCH UNITED FRONT FIGHT ON NON-UNION SHOPS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 21.—A misunderstanding has arisen here between the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union and Bakers' Union, No. 163, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which if continued threatens to wreck the organization of the workers in the baking industry.

The following is an open letter by the Bakers' Section of the Trade Union Educational League, to the workers of Coney Island and Brooklyn and calling upon them to insist upon a United Front of all organized bakers to fight their real enemy, the bakery bosses.

The open letter follows:

To the Workers of Coney Island and Brooklyn!

The organized workers in the baking industry are faced with a deplorable situation. About 60 per cent of the industry is under the so-called open shop which is constantly and steadily spreading.

The large bakeries, such as Ward Baking Co., General Baking Co., Shultz Baking Co., Cushman and Gottfried, are non-union, it is the small cellar bakeries that are unionized. The Bakers' Trust is gradually putting the small baker out of business, thus more firmly establishing the open shop thruout the industry.

The organized bakers in Greater New York are scattered and divided. A section is organized in the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and another section in the Amalgamated Food Workers Union, an independent organization.

Both are labor unions striving to better the lot of the workers in the bakery industry, both are struggling bitterly against the greedy bosses, both are worthy of the support and co-operation of every worker and every workers' organization.

For the last six weeks the Bakers Union No. 163, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has carried on a publicity and organization campaign by leaflets and open air meetings.

In this campaign, the object of which is to organize the non-union shops, a serious mistake is being committed. The mistake is twofold—first is carrying on a campaign against the Amalgamated Food Workers, a section of organized bakers outside of the conservative American Federation of Labor, and, second, in trying to disorganize organized bakers instead of organizing the non-union shops.

This campaign tends to weaken the general organization of the bakers and promotes demoralization within the union ranks, and creates a state of war among the organized bakery workers.

The Bakers' Section of the Trade Union Educational League feels it a duty to call the attention of the organized bakers and the workers of Coney Island and Brooklyn to this unjustified and injurious campaign by one union against another, which promulgates a brother warfare, detrimental to the best interests of the bakers and the organized labor movement.

Such a campaign must stop! War among the Bakers must go! The Bakers of Greater New York must learn by the experiences and follow the example of the Bakers' locals in the Bronx.

The Bronx Local No. 169, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and Local No. 164, affiliated with the Amalgamated Food Workers, have for some time inaugurated a United Front policy. One union will not try to take organized shops away from another, which the Brooklyn American Federation of Labor bakers are trying to do in their present publicity and organization campaign, especially, conducted in Coney Island.

It must be definitely recognized that the organization of the Bakers in the American Federation of Labor and the organization of bakers in the Amalgamated Food Workers is the deed of the workers in the baking industry. Both Unions are bona-fide labor organizations, irrespective of the conditions and agreements the two unions are enforcing.

Both Bakers' Unions must accept and establish the policy of the United Front thruout Greater New York as proposed by the Bronx Locals for the specific purpose of preserving their organizations, organizing the non-union shops and finally joining together to defeat the sinister influences of the Bakers' Trust and check the open shop drive in the industry.

We therefore appeal to the organized bakers and to the workers of Coney Island and Brooklyn to put a stop to this war within the organized ranks of union labor in the baking industry.

Support the bakers' unions by buying union made bread, no matter whether organized in the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers of the American Federation of Labor or organized in the Amalgamated Food Workers. Demand the United Front among the organized bakers.

BAKERS' SECTION,
Trade Union Educational League

ED. GARBER
QUALITY SHOES
FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN
2427 LINCOLN AVENUE
CHICAGO
Telephone Diversey 5123

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.
FRIDAY, AUGUST 22.

Ukrainian No. 2, Ukrainian Educational Society, 1970 Steinmetz Ave.
Polish North Side, 1902 W. Division St.
Lithuanian No. 5, Milda Hall, 3143 S. Halsted St.
Irving Branch, 722 Blue Island Ave.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23.

Meeting of All Party members in Local No. 1?5, A. F. W. of L. at Room 307, 166 W. Washington Blvd., at 2:30 p. m.
Meeting of all Party members Food workers at the Local Office, 166 West Washington St., 6:30 p. m.

CHICAGO STREET MEETINGS.
Friday, August 22.

Roosevelt and Central Park—Auspices Rykov Y. W. L. speakers, D. E. Earley.
Lawrence and Sawyer Auspices Irving Park Y. P. and Y. W. L.; speaker, Peter Herd.
Halsted and Rockwell—Auspices North West branch; speaker, Sam Hammermark.

Saturday, August 23.

111th and Michigan—Auspices Pullman branches; speakers, Edwards and Jones.
Division and Washtenaw—Auspices N. W. Jewish.
Dickson and Division, near Milwaukee—Auspices Polish branch.
Halsted and Lake (700 south)—Auspices Greek branch; speaker, George Halas.
Roosevelt and Central Park—Auspices Douglas Park Jewish; speaker, Max Shachtman.
20th and So. State Sts.—Auspices South Side branch; speaker, Gordon Owens.
North Avenue and Orchard—Auspices German-Hungarian branches.

Tells Why He Suicides.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—"I am a sacrifice to unfair industrial conditions. I die as a protest against a system under which I cannot earn a living," said John Biddlecome, 52, a suicide here. He was without a job for a long time and had no money.

ARREST TURNS OUT TO BE A SOCIAL CALL

Cicero Cops Try the Soft Soap Suds

The Young Workers League again held an open air meeting in Cicero. And the cops were with them. The cops we have ever with us.

Clarence Miller spoke to the several hundred workers gathered at the corner of 14th St. and 49th Ct., telling them of the coming unemployment, the approaching war and the Communist candidates in the elections campaign, when a husky cop pulled him off the soap box, telling him the chief of police wanted to talk to him on the phone.

Milly Siegel, chairman of the meeting, mounted the platform and gave a short talk on "free speech" in the United States. A few minutes later the wagon rolled up and both comrades were ushered in for a free ride to the police station, while the crowd hissed and yelled at the police.

Singing Jailbirds.

On the way the two Young Workers sang to the cops. They sang "Tramp, Tramp, Keep on a-Tramping," "The Preacher and the Slave," and had just finished the "Red Flag" when they reached the station. The cops, who had listened, interested in spite of themselves, recollected their duty and gruffly told them to "cut out that singing while you're in the building." "Yes, sir," they answered meekly.

But when they went upstairs, it developed that "they are not under arrest. Chief of Police Swoboda just wanted to come to an agreement about where these street meetings should be held."

Captain Quite Cordial.

Followed a social chat of 15 minutes during which Chief Swoboda (which, by the way, is Russian for freedom) threatened that if we didn't stop our meetings on the main street of Cicero he would send down a brass band to play on the opposite corner and take away our crowds. He wheedled us to "co-operate with the police," even offering to give C. Miller a nickel with which to call him before each meeting and tell him on which block the meeting was to be held. And, what is more, they promised police protection since a rather overripe tomato had met the back of Miller's shirt during his talk.

When the Cicero comrades, who had rushed around and rustled up a half of respectable size, arrived, they found that the "arrest" of the two league members had turned into a "kidding fest."

The sum total of the affair was that the Cicero police, in giving permission to the Workers Party to hold their meetings on any street except 14th St., acknowledged their defeat in the struggle waged between the party and the Cicero authorities since the beginning of the open air season.

W. Va. Grocers and Tobacco Trust in Conspiracy Charge

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Grocery companies thruout the coal fields of West Virginia, members of the West Virginia Wholesale Grocers' Association Company, are cited by the federal trade commission in a "squeeze" game with the American Tobacco Company, the P. Lorillard Company and the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company in a complaint filed here.

The association and the tobacco combine are charged with having conspired and taken action to compel sell tobacco to certain jobbers who sold the goods at prices lower than were fixed by the conspirators.

Reading, Penna., Readers!
Attend and Advertise Among Your Friends
MASS MEETING
— in —
READING HOSE HALL,
612 FRANKLIN STREET
TUESDAY, AUG. 26, 8 P. M.
To Be Addressed by
BENJAMIN GITLOW
Communist Candidate for Vice-President of the United States.
Your shopmates, they know it, will want to attend. It's your job to see to it that they're invited and that they come. Admission free.

DON'T MISS THE NEXT ISSUE
THE DAILY WORKER MAGAZINE
SATURDAY, AUGUST 23rd, 1924
ONLY SOME OF THE CONTENTS:

1. "Results of Fifth Congress"....By Alexander Bittelman
2. "The Situation in Bulgaria"....By G. Dimitrow
3. "Cologne—Eisenach—London"....By Arthur Rosenberg
4. "Culture Versus Life"....By A Teacher
5. "On My Way to Russia"....By Anna Porter
6. "The Passing of Pittsburgh Plus"....By I. Ramirez (Gomez)
7. Verse: (a) "The Chant Prophet"....By Josef Kalor
   (b) "Workers"....By James H. Dobsen
8. "Power"—A Play In One Act....By Charles Ashleigh

ORDER NOW!
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

The World of Labor: Industry & Agriculture

An Eventful Year in British Trade Unionism

By J. T. MURPHY.

DURING the last twelve months an entirely new attitude has been adopted by trades union officialdom of Great Britain towards the criticisms levelled by the Communist Party. I say "new" in the sense that a great change has been made, and not from the point of view of originality. Two years ago a handful of Communists at the Trades Union Congress succeeded in making an exhibition of the trades union leaders. For months the Communist Party had been campaigning in the union against the lack of real leadership, the sectionalism in union organisation, etc. We were demanding a greater centralisation of power in the hands of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress in order to bring greater forces into action in time of strikes. We had succeeded in getting a resolution thru one of the unions supporting our proposals and it came before the Congress for discussion.

Then we witnessed an amazing spectacle. Smillie of the Miners Federation was in favor, tho somewhat half-hearted about it, Hodges of the same organisation opposed it. Clynes of the General Workers opposed it. Thorne, a leader of the same organisation, was in favor. And so it went on from union to union. The leader of the union who was on the General Council was in favor. The leader of the union who was not on the General Council was against in all cases. And everybody could see that all of them were really scared at what was implied and preferred to speak of the Council as an instrument for peace. Of course the proposals were defeated but the parade of these people on the platform was something to be remembered. It was evident that for the first time the Communists had got them on the run.

The Bureaucrats Retreat.

The next year they were better prepared with changes of their own along the lines of making inquiries and testing the feelings of the union membership to see how far they would go. The Communists came to the attack again and it was due to their attacks on the trades union leadership that the "Back to the Unions Campaign" was initiated. Since the transformation of the old Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress into the bolder sounding General Council of the Trades Union Congress these attacks as well as the position into which the trades unions had drifted, made it imperative that the Council should function in a much larger fashion.

The characteristic weakness of the Council is due to the fact that it was never intended to function as a fighting organization. While all the big unions such as the Miners Federation with its million members, the Railway Union with its 350,000, the Transport Union with its 400,000 were all affiliated, they never let any of their power go into the General Council, they always reserved autonomous rights to decide what was best for their union and took care at any Trades Union Congress that no decision would be taken committing them to any general action which might involve joint struggles. Joint propaganda? Yes. Joint strike action? No. They safeguarded this position still further by always selecting the chairman of the Council from one of the weakest unions, say from the Bootmakers Union or the Musicians Union. Never have they given the weight and prestige of one of the big unions to the leadership of the Council and the whole union movement.

The new critics caught them unready but without power to put anything thru. Had the Communists rested content with criticising the actions of the Council they could have been treated as disruptionists and denounced, but to face a proposal that Daily (the Council) should have more power and responsibility was an awkward proposition which had to be dodged. They dodged it by referring to the rank and file of the particular union, knowing quite well that there were sufficient interests at stake in the unions to get the proposal turned down.

Side-Tracking the Unemployed.

But it was clear to them that something more must be done. The Unemployment Movement had become a factor during 1922 that they could no longer ignore. Again the Communists were busy denouncing them for the isolation of the unemployed and demanding that they take action for joint campaigns of employed and unemployed workers. They had given lip service to the unemployed at previous congresses, permitted an unemployed worker to address the Congress, taken up a collection and wished them good luck. This would not do. They were being denounced and losing prestige. Fortunately for them at this stage the Secretary of the General Council, Mr. Bowerman, was retiring. He had never been anything more than an ornament and it was a general relief to everybody that age was solving a problem for them. A new General Secretary was needed and the meeting this new opposition with well thot out counter moves. They found the man in Mr. Fred Bramley.

Enter Fred Bramley.

Bramley is no fool. He is clever in all trade union affairs and has a fairly intimate contact will all phases of the workers movement. He is a member of the Parliamentary Trades Union and is a chairmaker by trade, tho how many years ago it is since he worked at this job I do not know. For years he was a Clarion Van propagandist when Blatchford was pioneering "Britain for the British." Later he became a union branch secretary, made himself acquainted with the co-operative movement and the Labor Party. He claims to be "moderately advanced" and as everyone knows, this type is very valuable for negotiating with the "Left." He can always tell them that "he thoroly understands and admires them, and will help them to the best of his ability to work out 'practial' proposals."

So the 1923 Congress introduces us to Mr. Bramley as the General Secretary and the first experiments in the "new Policy." He at once proceeded to take out the sting of the Communist contention that the General Council isolated the unemployed. There was danger that the joint Council proposal which had been pressed upon them was going to be ignored and a further justification of Communist criticism would be placed on record. Bramley averted that and set to work not only to discount our criticism but to take the sting out of the unemployed's propaganda. A Joint Council? Certainly. A joint campaign on behalf of the unemployed? Certainly. The negotiations were spread over several months in which the whole sting in to extract from the unemployment proposals any sting which might appear to be "too revolutionary" and give it the color of "practicability." The final outcome is

"The Unemployed's Six-point Charter," which reads:

We Demand:

1. "Work or effective maintenance for all unemployed workers," and increased government assistance to be provided thru the trades unions. All unemployed relief to be completely dissociated from Poor Law administration.

2. "The immediate development of government schemes of employment to absorb the unemployed in their own trade at trade union rates of wages and conditions."

3. "The establishment of state workshops for the purpose of supplying the necessary service or commodities to meet the requirements of government departments.

4. "The reduction in the hours of labor necessary to absorb unemployed workers, the normal working day or week to be regulated by the requirements of the industry.

5. "The establishment of occupational training centers for unemployed workers, providing proper training with effective maintenance, particularly for unemployed boys and girls and able-bodied ex-service men.

6. "The provision of suitable housing accommodations at rents within the means of wage earners, and the proper use of existing houses."

Only on one of these demands did the unemployed force the hand of Bramley from generalities to a specific demand and that was on the scale of unemployed pay. In the leaflet issued to explain the "Charter" an effective piece of propaganda is conducted which throws a vivid light on social conditions in England. It asks the question "What is effective maintenance?" and answers by comparing costs of the maintenance of criminals and inmates of Poor Law institutions. It says:

"Mr. Neville Chamberlain informed the House of Commons on August 1, 1923, that the cost per head in Poor Law institutions was £3 8s—5s—3¼d per year.

On Poor Law scale two adults would cost	£176
Two children (equal to one adult)	88
Total cost per annum	£264
Total cost per week (approx)	£ 5

"Mr. Bridgeman, late Home Secretary, informed the House of Commons on August 2, 1923, that the cost of maintaining a convict in H. M. Prisons was £111 per year.

On the convict scale two adults would cost	£222
Two children (equal to an adult) cost	£111
Total cost per annum	£333
Total cost per week	£6, 8s

"The Unemployed Workers have suggested the following scale for unemployed maintenance:

Man and wife, per week	£ 3—
Two children, per week	—18s
Total cost per week	£ 3—18s
Or an annual cost of	£202—16s

"The question arises: Are Unemployed Workers entitled to maintenance equivalent to that provided for Poor Law Inmates and convicts in H. M. Prisons?"

This is really good propaganda, but it will be observed that Bramley has successfully avoided committing the General Council to the scale as a demand and hid himself in generalities as a means of escape when challenged as to whether this is the demand of the Trades unions.

The other leaflets are not so specific as this one. They are similar to the demands as quoted above. The Unemployed Organisation and the General Council conducted joint meetings and demonstrations with these as their platform. But coincident with the campaign, the Labor Government initiated a measure for the abolition of "the gap" in unemployed insurance pay. This gap means that unemployed pay was made for a number of weeks, say twenty-six weeks, and then the unemployed worker received nothing from the state insurance for a period of three weeks.

The Idea behind this was to drive the workers to "really look for work." The effect was to drive to the boards of guardians for Poor Law relief. The unemployed seized hold of this grievance to make great demonstrations to the guardians. Now that the "gap" is abolished the unemployed receive unemployed insurance pay all the year round and the agitations at the Boards Guardians are accordingly diminishing. So between the action of the Labor Government and the policy of the General Council the sting has been taken out of the unemployed agitation and it has become quite constitutional and peaceful.

The Trades Councils' Movement.

A similar maneuver has been conducted in London to the agitation for the re-invigoration of the Trade Councils. Again on the initiative of the Communist Party a movement was set going to make of these local organisations of the trades unions a rallying center for activity and struggle. Trades Councils arose early in the nineteenth century as local combinations of unions in strikes and lock outs. They unite the unions of all industries in the council. They paved the way to the Trades Union Congress and at first were constituent parts of the Congress, but with the national trades unions became a force, they feared that these local combinations operating in the National Congress might be instrumental in checking the power of the growing bureaucracy in the unions and on the motion of Jodrell Burns, who pleaded that many unions were being represented twice over in the Congress thru the Trades Council, they were disaffiliated.

The national unions thus scored a big victory and for many years the Trades Councils were either isolated or turned into electoral machinery for parliamentary aspirants. Two factors helped to revive interest in them again after the war. The growth of the Labor Party and the sectional decline of the unions. The Labor Party is based on the unions and as it grew in power the leaders became exceedingly conscious of the fact that without a strong individual membership subscribing to their program their position as leaders in politics was precarious. The enormous number of middle class people anxious to join the Labor Party encouraged them to launch the campaign for individual members as distinct from mass affiliation of the unions.

This led to the neglect of industrial matters by the Trades Councils during a period when the unions were suffering heavy defeats thru sectional action. The Communist Party pointed at once to the fact that they had machinery to hand in the Trades Councils for uniting the workers in common struggle and made capital out of the fact that the Labor Party had contributed to the weakening of the situation by concentrating the Trades Councils on electioneering at the expense of the industrial struggles. The agitation spread until a few months ago a national conference of Trades Codncils was held in Birmingham led by Comrade Pollitt, an executive member of the Communist Party. This conference demanded reaffiliation to the Trades Union Congress amongst a number of other demands, both political and industrial. Again Bramley on behalf of the General Council, countered the proposal by calling a conference of the Trades Councils "with a view to the better co-ordination of the work of the Trades Union Congress and the Trades Councils." This was a most cleverer move than that adopted by his predecessors who had wanted to stamp out any such activity from the beginning.

The conference met and Bramley presented them with a series of proposals which ignored the principal demand of the Trades Councils and yet made a very plausible alternative. Instead of direct affiliation to the congress, he argued that it would make the congress too cumbersome and it would be better if the National Committee of the Trades Councils set up at the conference were represented on the General Council. In addition, in order to destroy the impression that the councils were of no value to the Trades Union Congress, they should become the means of distributing the literature of the congress, and joining with the General Council in trades union recruiting campaigns in the various localities. The Trades Councils are discussing these proposals at the present time and no doubt will have made a decision by the time of the Trades Union Congress in September. Their weakness lies in the fact that the trades unions control the union funds and they have no sufficient resources to develop rapidly in opposition to these maneuvers. With a few slight modifications, it is most probable that Bramley's proposals will carry thru and once more the reformist elements will have at least temporarily drawn the sting from the agitation.

The Left Wing Program.

A third big development is the response of the General Council thru Bramley again to the agitation for a left wing program in the union movement. During the last twelve months there has grown a considerable ferment amongst the trades union leaders. Such men as Hutchinson of the Engineering Union, Hicks of the Building Workers' Union, Purcell of the Furnishing Trades' Union, Bramley of the Locomotive Engineers' and Firemen's Union, Cook of the Miners, have been ventilating their views in the columns of the "Labor Monthly" and the "Workers' Weekly" on the need for a left wing program and a new direction for the Trades Union movement.

Bramley thought things over, searched in a business-like way thru the records of the Trades Union Congresses and sorted out the resolutions of national importance that had been passed by succeeding congresses stretching over a period of years. Then, combining his research work with the more recent decisions, he crystalized them into a program which he proposes to place before the Trades Union Congress as its "Charter." Some of the demands appear most revolutionary, but the Charter must not be regarded as having anything to do with the means of getting the demands into operation. But first read:

"The Workers' Charter."

1. Nationalization of the land.
2. Nationalization of the railways.
3. Nationalization of mines and minerals.
4. Hours of labor — a legal maximum working week of 44 hours.
5. Legal minimum wage for each industry or occupation.
6. Pensions for all at the age of 60.
7. Pensions for mothers with dependent children.
8. Adequate provisions for unemployment, with proper maintenance for the unemployed.
9. Establishment of training centers for unemployed boys and girls, with the extension of training facilities for adults during periods of depression.
10. Provisions of proper housing accommodation.
11. Improved facilities to be provided by the state from elementary schools to universities.
12. The extension of state and municipal employment for the purpose of prompting social necessities and service.

* * * *

There have been resolutions passed affirming each of these demands at one time or another in the Trades Union Congress.

The Charter will no doubt be passed at the next Trades Union Congress. All the propaganda thunder will have thus been stolen from the 'left' and their complaints dismissed by reference to the Charter. It will drive them to the issue of constitutional versus unconstitutional action. The Trades Union Congress led by the General Council will say "Here is our program of demands. It is impossible to secure them without the people vote for them thru parliament. It is the duty of those who now complain to awaken the unions to a sense of its parliamentary responsibility. Practically all the unions in the Trades Union Congress are affiliated to the Labor Party and we should strengthen its hands by a powerful campaign in the unions. The alternative is unconstitutional action against which the Trades Unions have set their face. Unconstitutional action means acting contrary to the rules and regulations of the unions and we are the custodians of these rules and regulations. Do you suggest that we should break our own trade union laws established thru many years of struggle?"

The "Charter" therefore represents a clever move to place the whole of the left wing in the trades union movement into an awkward position, with most of their immediate demands agreed upon insofar as they have put them forward as program demands for the unions. When placed in relation to the Unemployed Charter and the Trades Council proposals it represents the culmination of twelve months' strategy against the awakening left wing of the unions. Parallel with it there has been a consistent campaign against strikes and for industrial peace, goodwill between the workers and the employers. At the same time the General Council has been tolerant towards the unofficial strikers while dissapproving of their actions. For example when the capitalist press came out with a vicious campaign against the Communist Party and the strikers during the recent unofficial strike on the railways, Bramley issued a statement to the effect that this was a useless and misleading campaign and that it was unjually found that workers did not go on strike for fun. Invariably there was a good foundation for every strike other than mere agitation. In every one of the strikes of recent date, he stated, the workers who struck their work had been and were suffering under intolerable conditions and if those who complained of the strikes really wanted to see these unofficial outbreaks stopped they must join with the unions round the conference table and remove the grievances by improved conditions of labor.

The Minority Movement Arises.

This rapid changing of position, of stroke and counter stroke is leading us quickly to exceedingly important developments. The formal acceptance of the demands from the left wing of the movement has its limits. To accept them may mean for a time that the central authorities in the Trades Union Movement has succeeded in driving the left wing to new positions. But acceptance has also its obligations. And the limits of their policy are nearly reached. This is made clear in the splits of Bramley concerning the unofficial strikes. Here he is brought up against the actual struggles of the workers against the bosses and has to call to the employers for help. So long as the demands of the left were within the limits of propaganda and inter-union relations he had scope for maneuvering. Now he must appeal for "goodwill" where there is none. The failure of the bosses to come to his aid simply intensifies and strengthens the position of the left wing in the unions who are insisting on a fighting policy and organising their agitation in the development of what has become known as the Minority Movement.

This movement is the result of the initiative of the Communist Party. Starting with the most important industries, such as mining, engineering and transport, the party propagated the idea of organising the union locals on the basis of immediate demands such as improvement in wages, shorter working hours, nationalization of certain industries, etc. In the mining industry the campaign has been particularly successful and the Party can say without hesitation that the election of A. J. Cook to the secretaryship of the Miners Federation of Great Britain is directly due to its initiative thru the Miners Minority Movement. The measure of our progress in the Engineering unions is indicated in the success of Comrade Tom Mann in the recent ballot in the Engineering Union for Parliamentary candidates. Mann topped the poll.

But more significant still is the development of shop committees in the railway workshops which led to the recent unofficial strike. For more than two years the men working in these workshops have been the victims of the inter-union wrangling between the craft unions and the National Union of Railwaymen. The Communist Party declared that the only possible means of combatting this state of affairs was to create workshop committees and use them as a driving force against the union bureacracy. The strike came before the workshop committee organization had spread thruout the country. From the point of view the strike may be deemed premature. But with this point of view we are not particularly concerned. True the strike was defeated, but it has given an impetus to the campaign for the shop committees and exposed the leaders of the unions as treacherous reformists.

What answer can the General Council of the Trades Union Congress or the trades union bureaucracy give to this new development. It is useless to accuse the Minority Movement of the aim to smash the trades unions for they are continually campaigning for new leaders and slowly getting them. It is useless also for them to reply that they have put the demands of the Minority Movement on their program, for the demand of this movement is to fight for the program as well as to propogate it. A number of leaders are already affected by this new development and are sensitive to any accusations against their willingness to fight. The coming Minority Conference to be held in August of this year will be of immense importance and will indicate how far we have got in the development of this oppositional movement. It proposes on the basis of a common program of action to unite all the minorities into one big Minority Movement. If it is successful in this task the fight between the 'left' and the 'right' is likely to become hotter and hotter, within a comparatively short period and affect the Labor Party profoundly.

The Labor Party "Left."

Immediately after the last general election and the formality of the Labor Government things pointed to the formation of a left wing in the Labor Party out of the Scottish members of parliament from the Glasgow I. L. P. This project was scuttled thru the inclusion of Wheatley in the Labor Cabinet. By this means MacDonald took the sting out of it, and its actions became more and more feeble. At the recent Conference of the Independent Labor Party, at which all its members were present not one offered the slighest criticism to MacDonald's betrayal of Socialism. It was profoundly clear from that moment that any opposition to MacDonald would have to begin in some other direction. The failure of these leaders drove the issue back to the masses themselves.

The Minority Movement is the answer. Rising out of the economic struggle under the leadership of the Communist Party it forms the foundation of the oppositional movement to MacDonald's Labor Imperialist Government. This is the section of the working class movement which is the first to feel bitter resentment against the union bureacracy and the Labor Government. At first it is stronger against the union bureacracy than the government and for that reason digs itself deeper into the Labor Movement. It feels that it is the union bureacracy that is letting them down in the actual fight before the Labor Government is called into action. For this reason the movement surges against the union leaders before it reaches the government driving some to fight for and some to fight against them. Those leaders who want to line up with the workers develop a resistment against the government because they feel that it is making the situation more difficult by the continual pleas concerning the difficulties of a Minority Government. These are becoming susceptible to the criticism of the Communist Party and begin to feel that their interests are bound up with a left ward movement. That the fact that the Labor Party is composed in the main of all these unions causes a draught within its ranks which would rapidly fan the flames of discontent were it not for the moderating influence of MacDonald's excuse—that he has not a majority in parliament. This is the one big factor which militates against the rapid development of a left wing force in the Labor Movement directed against the Labor Government. If the Labor Government does not try to hold on to office longer than next year's budget we shall not see a very large political opposition in the Labor Party for a considerable time, and the oppositional movement will be directed against the Trades Union bureacracy which in turn will endeavor to give it a political direction by holding out the golden dream of what will come when Labor has really a majority in parliament.

This latter manouver is the only reply that the Bramleys can give to the growing Minority Movement in the unions. To a large extent it will carry weight in the minds of the workers but it will not stop the movement growing. On the other hand it will help the Communist Party to give the Minority Movement a deeper political consciousness. The Communist Party is the only body which has nothing to fear from these developments and everything to gain. It is laying the foundations of a revolutionary opposition to reformism in a manner characteristic of British Labor thruout its history. The Labor Party itself sprang from the trades unions as their experience destroyed their belief in the capitalist parties. Today the revolutionary opposition to reformism is developing in similar fashion as the actual experiences of the unions show the futility of reformist policy and leadership.

The Trades Union Congress, meeting in September, will be able to look back upon an eventful year and be brought face to face with new developments in all the large unions. It will try to escape under the influence of its parliamentarians. The voice of the Minority Movement and the Communist Party will be heard. The parliamentarian reformists will succeed in carrying the Congress with them without leaving any lasting impression. The Congress will pass and the forces I have described will take their course leading to a first class battle between the protagonists of Reform versus Revolution for the leadership of the labor movement.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A STYLISH SEASONABLE MODEL.

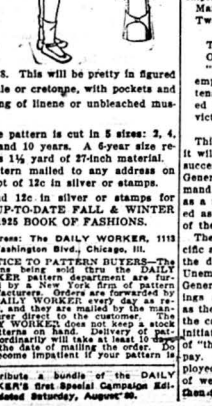
4838. Figured and plain crepe are combined in this style. The ..... may be finished without the cape, and with short or long sleeves.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 5¼ yards of one material 40 inches wide if made with cape and long sleeves. If made as shown in the large view it will require 3⅝ yards of plain material, and 1⅝ yards of figured material 40 inches wide. The width of the skirt at the foot is 1¼ yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A PRACTICAL APRON FOR MOTHER'S HELPER.



4828. This will be pretty in figured percale or cretonne, with pockets and binding of linene or unbleached muslin.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 1¼ yard of 27-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Calles Stays Awhile.

HAMBURG, August 21.—President-elect Plutarco Calles of Mexico will stay here until Friday, when he will go to Berlin to be received by his friend, President Ebert. A good time will be had by all.

From Alphone to Gaston.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—Chancellor Siepel of Austria today sent a congratulatory message to German Chancellor Marx on his supposed success at the London conference. Siepel thinks it guarantees world peace at last!

Send in that Subscription Today.

MURINE
For Your EYES
Night and Morning to keep them Clean, Clear and Healthy
Write for Free "Eye Care" or "Eye Beauty" Book
Murine Co., Dept. H, 8 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year	$3.50...6 months	$2.00...3 months
By mail (in Chicago only)!
$8.00 per year	$4.50...6 months	$2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL } Editors
WILLIAM P. DUNNE }
MORITZ J. LOEB Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1922 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

War Makers Busy

While all the peace conferences, raparations gatherings, reconstruction confabs, and universal justice sessions are going on, the capitalist world war makers are working overtime preparing ammunition and infernal machines for the coming war.

The Skoda Works, in Europe, the munition plants of France, the cannon factories of England and the airplane manufacturers of Germany and Italy are now operating at a feverish pace, piling up huge supplies of destruction.

In the United States, while unemployment is gripping every basic industry the munition factories are busier than ever. The findings of the Department of Commerce, 1923, Census of Manufacturers just issued, dealing with ammunition and related products, affords most instructive evidence of the energy with which our war makers are setting the pace in preparing the country for the next conflict.

The last biennial Census of Manufacturers tells us that the establishments engaged primarily in the production of ammunition and related products reported a total output valued at more than fifty-one million dollars. This is a rate of increase in the total as compared with 1921, the last preceding census year, of nearly fifty-three per cent. The rate of increase in the value of ammunition and related products was sixty-two and a half per cent.

The number of working men producing ammunition in the United States has increased twenty-five per cent within the last two years; the cost of materials nearly seventy-five per cent.

Since the last Census of Manufacturers there have been held at least half a dozen international peace gatherings of first magnitude. While the employing class phrase-mongers were attempting to hide the imperialist intents and purposes of the ruling class behind a smokescreen of poisonous words, the munition makers were plying their trade more prosperously than ever.

This apparently strange contradiction is a grim reality confronting the workers today. This situation is a sad commentary on the likelihood of the international bankers and industrialists being able to bring peace to the world for even a limited number of years. While the meaningless words of an impossible peace are being uttered, the seeds of an impending hellish war are being sown.

Towards Splendid Isolation

In an address delivered before the Institute of International Politics of the Federal Council of Churches, Samuel G. Inman, a student of Latin-American problems, pointed out the great dangers to the United States of its being isolated by a united Latin-American opposition.

No one can overestimate the seriousness of this danger to the workers and farmers of the United States. Our imperialists are driving at such a headlong pace towards world domination that, in time, they are bound to win universal hatred. Such a "victory" will necessarily be the signal for a new world conflagration. Not only in Latin America, not only in the Far East and in Asia Minor, but also in Europe the American capitalists are rapidly extending their sway.

Our exploiters have at this moment an investment of more than $7,000,000,000 in the markets and industries of the lesser industrially developed and the war-stricken countries. Handsome profits and fabulous dividends must be collected on these giant investments of the surplus value wrung from the American workers by our exploiting class. Security, in the terms of vassal governments, control of the natural resources of the country, and mortgages on the basic industries, is an essential guarantee demanded by our imperialists before they invest a single dollar.

Therein lie the dangers of the United States achieving this goal of splendid isolation, Sooner, rather than later, the hatred of the world will be won by our imperialists along with their domination of the markets and industries of the other countries. This means that the very working class whose products were taken from them to be invested by their bosses in the foreign lands, will be called upon to fight for the safety of these investments, for the continuity of the flow of dividends to the very class that is exploiting the masses of every country.

The times demand that the workers of the United States and the Latin-American countries get together with the working masses of all the other countries for organized united action against the serious menace of another world slaughter that will with certainty follow the presently brewing sharp conflict of interests among the various national, capitalist imperialist groups.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

Miners Must Fight

Meeting in Herrin yesterday, the coal operators and their lieutenants make public the object of their plottings for the past two years—smash the wage scale of the miners and destroy their union.

Frank Farrington, by playing around with the utopian schemes of class collaboration, with such buncombe as the talk of super-power plants as the cure for the miners' ills, and by joining hands with Lewis in putting across the three-year contract in such a fashion that it puts a rope around the Illinois miners' necks—Farrington has, by these and other methods, carefully prepared the way for the operators' conference in Herrin.

Of course, the union officials do not dare to sit openly into the Herrin conference. They will put up a bluff of fighting it. But they have nothing definite to offer. They continue to talk about co-operating with the bosses, they continue to propose collaboration schemes, that mean nothing except profits to the bosses. But what the miners need is a fighting leadership, district and national, that will go out and organize the miners 100% and then cut down the working day to 6 hours and the week to 5 days, without reduction of earning capacity of the miners.

Wisconsin No Exception

Much valuable ink and oceans of words have been spilled by our liberal political innocents and malcontents about the great panacea that LaFollette's "Wisconsin plan" has proved to the workers.

All talk to this effect is as empty as it is loud. The Wisconsin plan of government is originally the same plan functioning thruout the country; the plan whereby the employing class utilizes the state machinery to oppress the workers and cripple them in their struggle for better employment and living conditions.

Thruout the country, Wisconsin and the other 47 states included, the court system is the pivotal point in the whole governmental organization being used against labor. Fresh evidence of this condition being a scource of grave difficulties for the workers in LaFollette's state is revealed thru the issuing of a temporary injunction restraining the operation of the Wisconsin minimum wage law.

We see no cause for holding that the minimum wage of twenty-five cents an hour for adult women, as ordained by the Wisconsin minimum wage law, is a source of substantial relief to the working class. But the Wisconsin district court, at Superior, found it necessary to brand even this insignificant measure a violation of the constitutional provision guaranteeing the sacredness of the free dom of contract and private property. It is plain that in the Badger state, as in all the states where the reactionaries make no pretense about the progressive character of their administrations, the interests of the propertied class are held far above the welfare of the working masses.

In the light of an unbroken series of such experiences as the above with the Wisconsin judicial oligarchy, LaFollette's continuous talk about the tyranny of the court is quite useless. Our judicial oligarchy will be made impotent only when the entire system of government dominated by the employing class is gotten rid of by the exploited workers and the dispossessed farmers. The ownership of the means of production and exchange and of the governmental machinery by the bosses is alone responsible for the sufferings of the workers at the hands of the courts, legislatures, and executive bureaus.

It is this sore spot that LaFollette not only refuses to remove, but thru his economic and political program is seeking to perpetuate. His sham battles in the courts are no signs of friendship for the workers. They are that much dust thrown into the eyes of the working men. Fundamentally Wisconsin is as much a tool in the hands of the exploiters as any other state in the Union.

More evidence on the Russian Bolsheviks! Maj.-Gen. Basil Tscheslavsky, formerly an officer in the Czar's army, is now working as a guard at the Western Electric Company's plant at Hawthorne. This is an outrage. Perhaps the publicity in the capitalist papers may mark a turning point in his fortunes. He would make a good substitute for a poodle on the Gold Coast.

Several hundred empty pocketbooks were found on the Dawes lawn in Evanston the morning after the notification ceremonies. The DAILY WORKER reporter did not lose the dollar and ten cents he had in his pocket, because he stayed away from Evanston when he heard that prominent republican politicians would attend in great numbers. Look out for political pickpockets.

T. V. O'Connoro, chairman of the United States shipping board, discovered that Coolidge is a friend of labor. He signed the "forty-eight hour week" bill for women when he was governor of Massachusetts. That was about the time he smashed the Policemen's Union with the aid of Samuel Gompers.

Labor fakers are a drug on the political market these days. They can be had for the asking. La Follette has the largest collection. John W. Davis has some outstanding samples and even little "Cal," the most prominent strike breaker of them all, can boast of several stalwarts.

After Coolidge assumed the presidency he was visited by Samuel Gompers and a committee from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. Gompers assured Coolidge that while he voted the democratic ticket, he considered a republican perfectly reliable and not at all dangerous to business.

Bob's State Gives Labor Poor Wages

(Continued from page 1)

Wisconsin holds the unenviable twenty-ninth place in the ranks of the monthly wages paid the working men of the various states.

This low wage is significantly painful when one realizes that it is in no way due to a lack of industrial development. In Wisconsin 92.6 per cent of the workers engaged in manufacturing industries are employed by corporations. Wisconsin ranks fourth in the United States in the proportion of workers employed in manufacturing industries owned by corporations, but ranks only twenty-ninth in the average monthly wage paid to these working men.

Since this investigation was made Wisconsin wages have declined sharply. For all industries, according to the April, 1924, United States Monthly Labor Review, the average weekly wage in the Badger state was $26.87 in December, 1920. Today, according to the June Report of the Wisconsin State Industrial Commission, the average weekly wage for all workers is only $23.93.

While the wages are low, the hours of labor are long in Wisconsin. For the United States as a whole the proportion of wage-workers in the manufacturing industries having forty-eight hours or less of labor per week is 48.6 per cent. But in LaFollette's "Model Commonwealth," only 31.3 per cent of the workers engaged in the manufacturing industries have a forty-eight hour week or the average eight-hour day. Tho tenth in the number of men engaged in the manufacturing industries of the country, Wisconsin ranks only thirty-ninth in the proportion of its workers in these industries laboring forty-eight hours a week or under.

Cost of Living Mounting.

With all the smoke raised by La Follette and his forces about trust-busting and monopoly-stifling, the cost of living has been rising in Wisconsin as steadily as elsewhere.

Taking July, 1914, as a base of one hundred, as the normal point, the Industrial Commission of Wisconsin has found the cost of living to have risen in the state at least 61.7 per cent on July 1, 1924.

And the April, 1924, United States Monthly Labor Review tells us that Milwaukee, Wisconsin's leading city, is among the six highest cities in the increased retail cost of food. In February, 1924, thirty-three cities ranked lower than Milwaukee in the rise of the cost of living since 1913.

Open Shop Movement Powerful.

Wisconsin is one of the banner states of the open shop movement of the country. Let us consult the secret minutes of the regular quarterly meeting of the Milwaukee Employers' Council, held on June 6, 1921, to get an idea of the extent of this anti-labor crusade. We quote verbatim:

"The Milwaukee Employers' Council is at present composed of twenty-eight industrial groups, representing a total of six hundred and sixty-two plants and approximately sixty thousand employes on wages.

" . . . All the principal industries are represented and we are organizing new groups every month. At present the council represents considerably more than half of Milwaukee's industrial strength.

"The object of the council is the establishment and maintenance of the open shop in the Milwaukee industrial district. . . .

"Members of council groups receiving this report, who may know of other open shop employers not yet members of a council group, will confer a favor by notifying the proper delegate or the undersigned.

"J. M. Bell, Secretary Manager."

This report goes on to boast of the Milwaukee Council having membership in the notorious national open shop organization, the League for Industrial Rights, and of playing an active part in the fight against the job printers for a forty-four hour week and in the strikes of the tailors and sheet metal workers.

Turning to the May, 1924, "Members' Supplement—Freedom in Employment" published monthly by the Milwaukee Employers' Council, we further find that: "The printing industry is now overwhelmingly open shop in Milwaukee, and in due course we expect to see the allied photo-engraving and electrotyping industries follow suit. We shall not rest until this is accomplished."

This same bulletin then, speaking for the anti-union employers, announces: "In Milwaukee we actually have a large proportion of open shop in building construction; perhaps sixty-five per cent; but we have a timidity, a lack of principle, a disregard for the public welfare and a general apathy to overcome in certain groups of our business men, in order to increase this percentage and put this building industry on the same basis with our other great industries."

And in its June, 1924, supplement the Milwaukee Employers' Council proudly declares: "The Milwaukee Branch, National Metal Trades Association, is apparently leading the country in its apprenticeship work. We are so informed at least, by George W. Jones of the open shop Review, who spent a week in Milwaukee in May.

"This kind of work is of the utmost importance to the open shop. Other industries are greatly in need of such work—notably the building industry, which in Milwaukee must soon do something constructive, either in minor apprenticeship work or in adult intensive training. The apprentice movement in the metal trades should help other movements to get started."

Smashing the Unions.

The terrific drive these open shoppers have been waging against the workers was roundly denounced by the State Federation of Labor in its 1923 convention in a special resolution from which we produce in part:

"The railroad owners have set out to wreck the shop crafts unions by organizing scab unions or so-called company associations of employes, and are endeavoring to compel all shop crafts workers to join these scab unions, by threatening discharge and visiting other punishment upon the workers for failing to join these scab unions, and

"Whereas, the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo Railways in Wisconsin are at present engaged in this insidious plan now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor hereby serves notice upon the railroad owners that the visitation upon the workers of these unfair and outrageous conditions will not be tolerated."

Private detective agencies do a flourishing business in Wisconsin strike breaking. Mr. L. B. Lamfrom, who was counsel for the Milwaukee Employers' organization at the height of its offensive against the workingmen in 1921, was at the same time also the attorney for the infamous Russell Detective Agency.

Testifying before the Milwaukee Fire and Police Commissioner on October 17, 1921, Walter G. Russel, the head of this scab-herding agency stated that his firm now employs twelve hundred detectives, and answering the question as to what line of work these agents do, said: "If you ask, do we do strike work, yes. Do we put men in factories to report information to the heads of firms? I would say yes. Do we have men in unions? Yes."

Allied With Open Shoppers.

Not only do the enemies of the workers meet with no opposition from the progressive LaFollette government in Wisconsin, but this government covertly and overtly aids and abets their anti-labor activities.

Describing the proceedings of the State Federation of Labor Convention, the Milwaukee Sentinel for July 22, 1920, said: "Administrative bodies were flayed for alleged failure to prosecute employers who, labor says, violate the provision compelling the advertisement of the fact that a strike is in progress when labor is imported to fill strikers' places."

At its 1921 convention the State Federation of Labor was forced to protest against open shop construction in the erection of high schools. The special resolution against this policy of the government read:

"Whereas the carpenters of the Fox River Valley District Council consisting of those cities from Fond du Lac to Green Bay, inclusive, have been on strike since the first of May, fighting against the so-called 'Open Shop' which the contractors are endeavoring to impose upon them, and

"Whereas, the Ludolph M. Hanson Construction Company, one of the largest contracting firms of the Fox River Valley, trying to force the so-called 'Open Shop' on the carpenters, is building a $450,000 high school in the city of Two Rivers; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the State Federation of Labor here in convention assembled appoint a committee of three . . . to visit the high school job in Two Rivers as soon as possible to use their influence to persuade the above firm to use fair labor on their construction work."

Trade Union Movement Weak.

Since LaFollette has for years been posing as a defender of the interests of the workers, it would be in order to expect a strong trade union movement in the state where his word is law. Nothing of the sort is the case. The Wisconsin trade union movement, tho—as many occasions showing hopeful signs of militancy and genuine progressivism, is lamentably weak in numbers and strength to resist the aggression of the highly organized open shoppers of the state.

From an official 1920 convention proceedings we learned that in the year 1919-1920, before the fierce open shop drive was launched, the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor had a total affiliated membership of only 51,645. Of these a maximum of 30,977 were men in the manufacturing industries of the state. At this time, there were, according to the findings of the United States Census of Manufacturers, 263,949 wage earners employed in the manufacturing industries of Wisconsin. Compare these figure with the fact that the Milwaukee Employers' Council alone represented sixty thousand or more than half of the industrial strength of the leading industrial city in the state.

Of course, even this strength of the trade unions was reduced by the vicious open shop drive of 1921, as can be seen from the following report on membership made to the 1922 convention of the State Federation of Labor:

"The affiliated unions show a decrease of but sixteen per cent in membership at the close of the year, as compared with the same months of the previous year. . . .

"The fiscal year has closed with many unpleasant memories to the workers and their families due to unemployment and to the desperate efforts of capital to annihilate their organizations. . . ."

How helpless the Wisconsin workers are despite their heroic resistance, before the open shoppers of La Follette's state is thus vividly described as follows in "The Next Step"—A Program of Construction, Proposed by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, J. J. Handley, Secretary-Treasurer: (Page 4)

"Employes who have been prominent in union activities are being discharged all over the state, not because there is no work for them, but in order that the employers may put into their places workers from other cities. The dismissed employes, in their turn, must leave their homes and families and go on to other cities at great expense to themselves and at the risk of increasing the unemployment of these cities."

This is the freedom enjoyed by the workers in LaFollette's "Model Commonwealth."

INDIANA LA FOLLITES WILL VOTE IN STATE FOR OLD PARTY TICKETS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 21.—LaFollette Progressive Party in Indiana will steer clear of the state issues and conduct a "purely La Follette-Wheeler campaign," according to the Wisconsin senator's chieftains attending the state convention of third party delegates here today.

A. F. Bentley, of Paoli, state chairman of the Indiana Progressive Action League, who presided at the opening session of the convention, declared LaFollette-Wheeler men would "vote in the state election on their old party affiliations."

Protect the Poor Bondholders

By EARL R. BROWDER.

A VALIANT champion has been found for the rights of the oppressed holders of railroad bonds! It is none other than the weekly publication, Labor, organ of the railroad unions. The unions and their paper are popularly supposed to be fighting for the interests of the workers in the railroad industry, of those workers who are all exploited by capitalism. But that is an illusion! What they are fighting for is "justice;" and "justice" is seen as something in common between the bondholders and the workers as against another "factor" in the railroad industry known as "watered stock." The labor movement, my children, we are told, is not a class struggle of the workers against the exploiters—it is a movement of the bondholders and workers against those who take dividends "unfairly" from both.

This is the moral of an editorial in the current issue of Labor. Dealing with a merger by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, which will result in increased dividends to common stock, Labor says:

"Bondholders, who paid real money for their securities, get no increase. Their dollars are working dollars, not speculative dollars, and therefore in the same class as the employes, but most of their owners haven't sense enuf to know it."

"Real money" is in the same class as "employes," the dividends which it extracts from the surplus labor of the workers' "honorably earned wages," and but for the stubborn lack of common sense on the part of the misled bondholders this common interest, which transcends all other economic and social factors, would bring the bondholders and workers into the same common organization.

A balder statement of the balderdash that fills the heads of our "labor leaders" would be hard to find. It is the same crude class-collaboration bunk that the railroad shop unions are peddling to their members in the infamous "B. & O. co-operation plan." It is the same philosophy that underlies the treacherous surrender to La-Follette and the sabotaging of the Farmer-Labor party. It is the thot which causes the leaders of the railroad unions to surrender the demands of their membership for better wages, and to submit to arbitration, labor boards and similar schemes to oppress and rob the railroad workers.

Against this poison class of class collaboration that turns the unions into auxiliaries of capitalism, into "company unions" in all but name, which threatens the very life of the labor movement if it is not uprooted and thrown out—against this insidious invasion of bourgeois thot which is paralyzing the labor movement, the workers have only one rallying center.

This center of opposition to class collaboration is the left wing, with its militant program of amalgamation of the isolated craft unions into powerful industrial organizations, of the organization of the unorganized by means of a great modern campaign prepared on a mass scale, of the launching of a class political party of Labor, of the organizational alliance internationally with the revolutionary workers of all the rest of the world.

Railroad workers! If you do not wish to unite with the bondholders, you must unite with the amalgamationists and left-wingers and adopt their program. If you are against this disgusting class collaboration, then you must adopt the policies of class struggle. Out of the swamp of B. & O. plans, of alliances with Wall Street thru "labor banks," of LaFollettism and class collaboration, the only clear course is that pointed out by the Communists.

The War for Democracy

By W. J. WHITE

HE fought for democracy and to make the world safe for the plutocracy.

The August sun was beating down on his convulsed form, as it twitched and jerked under the force of an epileptic fit. Saliva spewed from his lips as nature endeavored to restore his poor bruised body to its normal functioning. The charge of shrapnel that had burst his skull like an egg shell had been more merciful to his comrades who now rest in their graves over which bloom the poppies of Flanders fields.

Women were calling on the men to go to his relief. Shuddering they stood viewing with drawn and distorted faces this semblance of death, which has always caused our race to look with horror upon those stricken.

This poor torn, battered and warped wreck of humanity whose struggling to feed, had sent tingling thrills of joy and pride thru the breast of some glad mother, now lay convulsively struggling back to his burden of misery and woe. A mother patted his poor shrapnel torn head upon her lap, while another put a cup of water to his froth flecked lips. He shrank back from the fanning of his cap, that another in her sympathy had taken up, and was trying to cool the sweltering brow, as tho she had struck him a mortal blow.

No greater lie was ever given to the world than that man is naturally bad. No greater curse can be perpetuated than the one the priests and preachers foist upon a long suffering people that men and women are bad by nature.

This poor twisted and distorted wraith of humanity as he struggled back to consciousness was surrounded by humanity in whose every move the lie was given that man is naturally bad. Sympathy was personified in every move as men chafed his torn limbs trying to restore the arrested circulation. No question there on his, alien birth. No sarcastic comment on his bearing a name that ended in ski.

He fought to make the world safe for democracy.

* * *

Curses on his lips sounded like the anthem of some mighty organ. His swearing sounded like some epic poem. His face shone in the light of the electric lamp like some saint of old sworn to go forth to find the holy grail. He too had fought for democracy. He had gone out to make war to stop wars. Wounded and down and out he had fallen on the streets of an Eastern city from hunger. In another month he been discharged from the hospital hardly able to stagger to the street. Born on the soil and in America, his dead mother a member of one of the families that had come over in the Mayflower, he stood in that old village tin shop passing out the identification papers that showed who and what he was, damning to hell and back, the system that made him a pauper-wanderer on the face of his native land, while the men who had had charge of the funds that should have taken care of such as he, were at large, after having stolen millions.

He had fought to make the world safe for democracy, but he cursed the democracy he had saved, to hell and back.

Individually man is a weak being, but strong in union with others.—Condorcet.

Revolutionary changes always begin in the minds of men.

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

YALE UNIVERSITY NOV 22 1924 LIBRARY

5 CENTS Including Saturday Magazine Section. On all other days, Three Cents per Copy.

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. H. No. 134. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 5 Cents

COMMUNISTS FIGHT DAWES PLAN

UNTIL HE BURSTS

Drawn especially for the Daily Worker by K. A. Suvanto

Every Day, in Every Way, He is Growing Bigger and Bigger

MINERS SUFFER IN SHUT DOWNS OF COAL PITS

Demanding Joint Action with Railroaders

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

O'FALLON, Ill., August 21.—The United Mine Workers' Union here has been unable to cope with one tenth of the cases of destitution demanding immediate aid. Special relief funds of sub-districts and local unions have been exhausted.

The miners' co-operative stores have been forced to suspend, and the miners are able to exist only on the charity of their neighbors, their vegetable gardens, and by going heavily into debt.

Sent To Poorhouse.

One miner, Joe Sturts, was sent to the County Poorhouse at Belleville, and after being there a week was transferred to the St. Elizabeth Hospital in Belleville. He is dying and his mind has been deranged thru his sufferings.

Even Davis, now 86 years old, the oldest resident of O'Fallon, who had to quit mining coal six years ago, is completely destitute and the local union has no funds to carry him. The local union here took up a collection for Davis at a recent meeting, but the miners were so penniless that only $1.50 was raised for the aged veteran of the union.

O'Fallon, its wide streets shaded with broad spreading trees, located in rich farm territory, is typical of the mining towns of the Belleville sub-district. O'Fallon lies between Belleville to the south and Collinsville to the north. All three towns are an hour's trolley ride from St. Louis. Altho suffering is acute in O'Fallon, Belleville is just as bad off and Collinsville is in worse shape.

800 Out of 1,000 Idle.

There are 1,000 miners in O'Fallon, and over eight hundred of them are completely idle. The hundred and fifty who are working work less than three days per week.

Phillip Hosler, recording secretary of local union No. 705, the O'Fallon miners' local, said to the DAILY WORKER, "Our local union borrowed five hundred dollars from the sick benefit to be used as a special unemployment relief fund, but it was all quickly used up."

"Our co-operative store has a rule that one hundred dollars is the limit of credit. We were forced to give up the store because many of the miners used up this credit and some of them we allowed to go beyond it."

Find Work Nowhere.

As in all other mining towns visited the miners who went to other towns looking for work are returning unsuccessful. Fred Gill, his father, Geo. Gill, and George Greenall departed a few weeks ago in a flivver to seek work in the west. George Gill has written home to his wife that he is on the way back, unable to find work after travelling all over the Western Coast.

Ed Creed has returned from Detroit where he had a bitter experience looking for work for three weeks. "I had to line up along the fronts of the auto-factories with two or three hun

(Continued on page 2)

Miners! Organize Your Fight Against Wage Cuts, Unemployment

(Statement by the Trade Union Educational League.)

WHEN the Lions' Club of Herrin called a conference of coal operators and employers to discuss ways and means of "restoring the mining industry to full operation," every union man in Illinois knew that this was but the opening gun in a campaign to slash the wages of the miners, reduce them to a non-union basis, and actually to destroy the miners' union. The Herrin meeting was a council of war against our union.

The miners must mobilize their own strength against this attack, and must work out PLANS FOR FIGHTING AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT and against the "open shoppers."

Our recent convention at Peoria failed in this, because Farrington made similar proposals—that we work cheaper and produce cheaper coal, and compete with non-union mines in West Virginia. Farrington has no other program to offer, and he did not want the delegates to develop a program. The miners will not accept such a ruinous proposal, but instead must work out a program of action, or else be defeated by the wage-cutters.

It is necessary that the miners have a conference WITH ONLY ONE ORDER OF BUSINESS—THE FIGHT AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT AND AGAINST THE WAGE SLASHING CAMPAIGN.

Demand such a conference from the officials of the union!

Send as many delegates as possible to the State Federation of Labor Convention, Peoria, September 8, and demand that the State Federation also act in the matter. Send your delegates to Peoria.

MINERS! YOU MOST ORGANIZE YOUR FIGHT AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT AND AGAINST WAGE CUTS!

The Trade Union Educational League.

MORGAN PLOT IMPERILLED IN REICHSTAG ROW

Famous Report May End Days in Museum

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, August 22.—Herriot's speech helped to put the Dawes Plan over in the French chamber of deputies but it may be the cause of its demise in the German reichstag.

That the United States is obligated, owing to its commitments at the London conference, to use armed force on Germany to compel the latter to pay the $625,000,000 yearly indemnity under the Dawes Plan, was the remarkable statement made by the French premier, in seeking endorsement of the London agreement.

The French chamber of deputies supported Herriot, despite the vigorous opposition of the Communists. The socialists true to their role of betrayers, supported the errand boy of the international bankers.

Chancellor Threatens.

The decisive battle in the Reichstag opened today over ratification of the Dawes reparation plan agreement. The government threatens the country with dissolution and a plebiscite unless the necessary two-thirds majority is given to the agreement.

On the opening of the Reichstag the Communists took the lead in fighting the scheme to reduce the German workers to industrial peonage. So great was the turmoil that the sitting was adjourned until 5 o'clock.

Ruhr Surrender.

The nationalists have decided unanimously to reject the London agreement on the Dawes plan.

The surrender of the government on the evacuation of the Ruhr rendered possibility of a Reichstag victory doubtful. On this issue the nationalists claim that the German delegates broke their promises before they left Berlin for London. The German delegates, however, were not the first to change their minds after imbibing the atmosphere of Buckingham Palace. Wise heads point out what happened to the great American prophet of democracy, Woodrow Wilson, once he passed inside its portals.

Without the endorsement of the German Reichstag, the Dawes plan is like something all dressed up and no place to go. Until the German workers begin to dig for it, it is as useless as a brand new fur coat in the torrid zone.

French Communists Attack Plan.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Marcel Cachin, leader of the French Communist Fraction in the chamber of deputies, delivered a bitter attack on the Dawes plan and on American imperialism at this morning's session. He said that Dawes represents American imperialism "in a most direct personal and concrete fashion."

"The new American policy is not very disinterested," M. Cachin continued. "It has strictly an economic basis. The Americans hope to find an enfeebled European market where they can impose their conditions. They must have healthy markets to which they can export, hence the Dawes plan. They have no sympathy for Europe or for the working class of this or any other country including their own."

Hits Hostility of Hughes.

Comrade Cachin declared that the speech delivered by Charles Evans Hughes at the Pilgrim Club was hostile to Soviet Russia.

"American statesmen are hostile to Red Russia," continued Cachin, "both from a class spirit and because they do not wish to see Russian wheat flooding the world's market."

He also exposed the hypocrisy of American claims to pacifism and pointed to the great United States navy as proof that America is committed to dreams of world domination.

Poincare Does Not Attack.

Owen D. Young, Wall Street banker, and James A. Logan, Jr., American observer with the reparations commission are all set to start the Dawes plan working.

Herriot's victory in the chamber of deputies was not won by as wide a margin as his friends expected. As was predicted, Poincare did not attack him, which probably saved him from defeat.

REPTILE PRESS ASSAILS STRIKE AT PATERSON

Last Resort of Defeated Silk Mill Owners

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 22.—The necessity for a strong working class press is being forced upon the minds of the ten thousand silk strikers of this city by the vicious hostility of the local kept press, particularly the Paterson Evening News.

During the strikes of 1913, 1919 and 1920 the News professed to be "fair" to the strikers and published many of their declarations without distortion.

But from the very beginning of the agitation for the present strike it has been the outspoken champion of the manufacturers and the local Chamber of Commerce. It has been a sort of replica of the notorious Hearst publications, professing liberalism and friendliness for the workers in order to get a circulation, then selling its support to the first high bidder. Evidently the News has gained sufficient prestige to be valuable to the manufacturers; the manufacturers have paid the price and the prostitute editors debase themselves to order.

Enemy Demoralized.

The success of the strike has thrown the manufacturers into a panic and completely demoralized their forces, until their only means of defense is recourse to the press. Every day the newspapers, the Chamber of Commerce, certain city officials and other prominent individuals have constantly harped about the ranks of the strikers breaking, only to have to admit their predictions wrong.

At a tremendous mass meeting held every day in Turn Hall the strike leaders keep the spirit of the strikers at a high pitch and dispel the lies of the enemy so effectively that the press tried to incite the mayor of the city and Chief of Police Tracey to intervene on their behalf and suppress the "out of town agitators."

FOSTER HANDS WALLOP TO LABOR FAKERS AND LA FOLLETTE IN DULUTH

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 22.—William Z. Foster, presidential candidate on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket arrived here today from Minneapolis, where he addressed a large open air meeting last night. Foster will speak tonight in Woodman's Hall, Duluth.

"While great numbers of workers and exploited farmers are led astray by the LaFollette, small business propaganda, there is a rapidly developing Communist sentiment among the masses," said Comrade Foster. "The nostrums of LaFollette and the conglomeration of bankers, brokers, real estate sharks, labor fakers and renegade socialists that support him offer no solution for the issues that confront the workers. Only the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a Workers and Farmers government will pave the way for a real solution of their problems."

When shown a copy of the DAILY WORKER containing the story of the big Paterson silk strike Comrade Foster said: "Good. It looks as if the workers were developing a more militant spirit. And have you noticed" he said to the reporter, "that in all these important strikes the labor bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor is as silent as the tomb. They are too busy hobnobbing with the capitalists or enjoying the balmy breezes of Atlantic City."

Comrade Foster will speak tomorrow in St. Paul and in Milwaukee on the following evening.

West Frankfort Coal Loaders May Strike For Cutters' Wages

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Aug. 22.—Altho the 400 striking cutters in the Orient Mine No. 2, near here, were granted their demands and went back to work last week, it is thought here that the trouble is not yet permanently settled.

The coal cutters struck for 13 cents a ton and won their demands. This mine, which is now the largest in the world, has installed new machinery which loads and cuts the coal, replacing hand labor.

The loading men are now dissatisfied, as they are making a flat rate of $10 per day, whereas the cutters, under the new scale, average more. It is not unlikely that the loaders will soon strike for an increased wage.

Cicero Cop Held for Topsy.

Policeman Benjamin Delaney of Cicero, charged with assault with intent to kill Rosetta (Topsy) Duncan, was today ordered held for the grand jury by Justice Henry Williams.

Send in that Subscription Today.

NEGROES WON'T FIGHT KU KLUX KLAN, GARVEY

Communist Proposals Declined by Meet

By ROBERT MINOR
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 22.—The convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association here on Monday afternoon heard the reading of the official communication of the Workers Party of America on the question of the Ku Klux Klan, refused to table it, and decided to regard it as "a friendly communication to be answered in the same spirit."

Then after a discussion that threw a strange light upon the vast chasm of misconceptions, dangers and potentialities that divides the field of labor in the United States on the race question, the convention sent an answer to the Workers Party refusing to change its attitude toward the Klan.

Garvey Klan's Defender.

Notwithstanding any "friendly spirit" that may gloss over the surface of his remarks referring to the Communist Workers Party, the fact remains that Marcus Garvey thru this second act of restraining the Negro's hand from striking at the Klan, has taken upon himself the role of chief defender of the Klan, which the Workers Party fights and will fight to extermination. Mr. Garvey admitted in his speech that the Klan kills and ter-

(Continued on page 3)

PITTSBURGH A. C. W. A. CONDEMNS OFFICIALS FOR SUPPORTING BOB

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 22.—Protesting the action of the General Executive Board, Local 86, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, passed the following resolution at its last meeting:

"The subserviences of the republican and democratic parties to the Wall Street plutocracy and their use of the governmental powers to crush strikes and to suppress the the labor movement, has awakened the workers of America to a consciousness of the need of independent working class political action and created a widespread sentiment in favor of a class Farmer-Labor party. But the C. P. P. A. betrayed the interests of the working class and surrendered to the independent LaFollette candidacy. La Follette represents the independent bankers, merchants and manufacturers and the LaFollette movement may at best result in a new party which will be dominated and controlled by the middle class and will exploit the workers in the interests of the middle class. The LaFollette slogans, 'Bust the Trusts' and 'Back to 1776' offer a quack remedy which could bring no good to the working class.

"In view of this, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local 86, Pittsburgh, Pa., condemns the attempt of the official labor leaders to lead the workers into the middle-class LaFollette camp. And we emphatically protest against the action of the General Executive Board of the Amalgamated endorsing the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket in violation of the repeated expression of the membership thru our national conventions in favor of a class Labor Party."

Resolution Committee:
Louis Cohen,
Sam Shore.

What local is next?

LAFOLLETTE IS BUSTING F. L. P. OF MINNESOTA

Even Mahoney Now Sees Bob's Disruption

The Minnesota Farmer-Labor Party which has been created at the cost of so much work and sacrifice by the workers and farmers of that state is in danger of disruption. Not by Communists, who are so often charged with being disrupters, but by LaFollette and his followers.

The Workers Party, because it is in earnest in its desire to create a great mass farmer-labor party in the United States, has refrained from making nominations in opposition to the farmer-labor party in those political divisions in which real farmer-labor parties exist, as in Minnesota, Washington, South Dakota and a number of smaller political divisions. It is supporting the farmer-labor parties in these places.

In contrast to this let those workers who are suffering from the illusion that the LaFollette movement will create a Farmer-Labor Party read what is happening in the state of Minnesota. Wm. Mahoney tells this story in an editorial in the Minnesota Union Advocate:

THE LA FOLLETTE COMMITTEE AND THE FARMER-LABOR PARTY.

The LaFollette state committee for Minnesota has been organized, and while it is composed mostly of

(Continued on page 2.)

O'FLAHERTY'S COLUMN APPEARS ON PAGE 4 OF THE MAGAZINE TODAY

Thomas J. O'Flaherty's daily column, "As We See It," appears today in Page Four of the Saturday Magazine Section. Look for it.

What Is Dawes Plan?

WHAT does the Dawes Plan mean to the workers of Germany and the workers of the world? The DAILY WORKER will publish in its Monday morning issue an official statement by the Communist International on this atrocious scheme of the international bankers to enslave the German workers, and use the misery of these workers as an entering wedge to break down the conditions already secured by the workers of all countries. Do not miss next Monday's issue.

GITLOW'S ANTI-WAR TALK PALES NUTMEG PLUTES

Foster to Speak in Berger's Burg

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., August 22.—"Down with war, up with Soviet!" This headline appeared on the page of a New Haven Conn., newspaper, following a meeting addressed by Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party.

Gitlow's speech to this meeting, which was part of the Workers Party country-wide Anti-War week, is a forecast of what he will say on his election campaign tour starting now.

"Not the defeat of imperialism, but protection of property interests of a certain few private individuals and corporations—like the 'House of Morgan,' Rockefeller and others—was the cause of the World War. Neither the workers of the United States or Europe wanted the war to fight each other."

Workers' Co-operation

"It was the result of competing vested interests, and another war is inevitable unless the industrial workers and poor farmers get together and take control of the national government. The Workers Party has this end for its goal and in addition advocates the necessity of international co-operation between the workers of all countries to refuse to fight in capitalist wars."

Gitlow's indictment of Coolidge, Dawes and Davis, was merciless. He flayed the tin soldier Dawes as a puppet of the 'House of Morgan,' and used by them to fasten upon the German workers the Morgan-Dawes plan of debt collection. Gitlow entertained his audience with his thrusts at Davis the Morgan lawyer.

Abolition of Capitalism

He concluded his speech with the declaration: "Nothing can prevent war but the abolition of the capitalist system. The destruction of capitalism can only be accomplished by the organization of the workers and working farmers into Soviets. The establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat and international co-operation between a Soviet America and Soviet Russia and Europe.

Comrade William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president on the Workers Party ticket, will leave for Milwaukee after his meeting in St. Paul on Saturday night. Foster's Milwaukee speech is looked forward to with especial interest because it will be delivered in "the only Socialist city in America" according to the publicity of the almost defunct socialist party.

The Milwaukee meeting will be held in Tippecanoe Park, on Sunday afternoon. The following is a list of Foster and Gitlow dates:

FOSTER'S DATES

Des Moines—Saturday, Aug. 30.
St. Paul, New Labor Temple, 416 N. Franklin St.—Saturday, August 23, 8:00 p. m.
Milwaukee, Tippecanoe Park—Sunday, Aug. 24.
Omaha—Sunday, Aug. 31.
Kansas City—Monday, Sept. 1.
St. Louis—Tuesday, Sept. 2.
Ziegler—Wednesday, Sept. 3.
Springfield—Thursday, Sept. 4.

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

GITLOW'S DATES

Washington—Monday, Aug. 25.
Richmond, Labor Temple—Sunday, Aug. 24, 8 p. m.
Reading, Veteran Firemen's Hall, 612 Franklin St.—Tuesday, Aug. 26, 8 p. m.
Scranton—Wednesday Aug. 27.
Binghamton, Lithuanian Hall—Thursday, Aug. 28, 7 p. m.
Buffalo Friday, Aug. 29.
Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 880 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.
Daisytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.
Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.
Pittsburgh, Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St.—Tuesday, Sept. 8.
Bellaire—Wednesday, Sept. 3.
Canton—Friday, Sept. 5.
Akron—Saturday, Sept. 6.

Dust Proof Slip Covers to protect Your Furniture

Call or Phone.
Illinois Slip Cover Co.
Not Inc.
Warwick Bldg., 551 E. 47th St., Chicago
Telephone Atlantic 0601
Estimates cheerfully given everywhere

For a Good Time Go To the International PICNIC Sun. Aug. 24

A. HENDERSON will speak at this picnic

Shimkus Band will play for the dancers

Kareckas Grove
123rd St. and Union Ave.

Auspices: Workers Party Pullman Section C. C. C.

Directions—Take State Street car south, "119 Morgan"; get off on Union Ave. and 119th Street; walk to 123rd Street.

CUSTOM TAILORS
Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing of All Kinds
PARIS QUI CHANTE
E. Abboti and V. Cardillo
1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

CLEVELAND, OHIO
CHIROPRACTIC AND ELECTRO-THERAPY
As intelligent and revolutionary workers you have freed yourselves of the trammels of capitalistic religion and politics. But you probably still adhere to the greatest and most harmful superstition, cloaked as a science—MEDICINE. People who know refuse to be practiced upon with knife and powerful drugs. When ill they resort to (drugless) NATURAL METHODS of treatment.
For a speedy recovery and your health's sake see
Dr. J. J. SCHOLTES
2838 West Twenty-fifth St., Cor. Wade
Phone Linc. 5340

LA FOLLETTE SMASHING F.-L. P.

(Continued from page 1)

persons who have been identified with the Farmer-Labor movement, the committee has no official connection with the party. In organizing the committee, LaFollette's manager in Minnesota, John F. Sinclair, in consultation with others issued a call to a select list of persons.

At a conference of these persons, a state committee was selected and plans made to conduct the campaign. A paid representative has been named for each district who will devote his entire time to the promotion of the LaFollette campaign, which includes the congressional and senate candidates indorsed by the LaFollette conference.

The report has been circulated that a vigorous effort will be made to sell membership certificates for $2.00 each, and half the money raised will be expended in the state. It is announced that local clubs will be organized in every district.

This entire plan of organization will be promoted without any regard to the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Party or its official organization, except that it will depend almost entirely upon Farmer-Labor supporters and voters for its money and active workers.

In states where there is no independent party progressive organization, the program mapped out by LaFollette forces will result in building up an effective machine, and will serve to unify the progressives behind the ticket. But in Minnesota it will have the effect of creating a dual movement with its inevitable duplication and friction.

For six years the farmers and workers and other progressives in Minnesota have been building up an independent political organization. Thousands of dollars and years of sacrifice have resulted in creating a widespread and independent third party sentiment. This has been crystalized into party organization that is equipped to function in both state and national activity.

But the LaFollette national committee has settled on a national plan of campaign, and state movements of progressives are not going to be considered in putting this plan into operation. The ticket will be filed as independent by means of petitions and will appear on the ballot as such.

In states like South Dakota where the LaFollette electors are already nominated on the Farmer-Labor ballot, and likewise in Montana, the LaFollette ticket will be filed by petition as independent. In Minnesota, where official standing has been attained by the Farmer-Labor party, and it is but a mere formality to place electors on the ballot, advantage will not be taken of this opportunity by the LaFollette ticket.

Two years ago the Farmer-Labor party was afflicted with a duplication of organizations and factional groups which greatly added to the expense, confusion and friction in the campaign. To avoid a repetition of this unfortunate situation the Farmer-Labor Federation was formed. This undertaking has encountered the most obstinate opposition by self-seeking individuals who have misrepresented and obstructed the full development of the Federation.

This year a worse situation is encountered. A predominating national movement has come into the state, and is now preparing to alienate the moral and financial support of the Farmer-Labor movement. It will lead to a division of the active workers if the LaFollette program is carried out. It will mean that workers and supporters will have to determine where to throw their force.

HOT PUPPIES! SUNDAY WILL SEE PICNIC OF THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE AND TECH AID SOCIETY

Everybody out to the National Grove this coming Sunday. What's on? What a foolish question! why, of course, the Young Workers League and the Society of Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. Rain or shine you're guaranteed a wonderful time. A snappy program is being made by the city sports and social director. On the list of enjoyments are bowling, music and dancing for the youth. A real jazzy jazz band will pour out the wonderful jazz music into the flowing atmosphere. The main speaker of the afternoon will be Barney D. Mass of the Young Workers League.

Chief among the sports of the afternoon will be a tug-of-war between the branches. The winning branch will receive a prize. Then the all-star Y. W. L. team will tug against the allstar Russian team. Here's the lineup of the branches: Karl Liebnecht vs. Maplewood, West Side vs. North Side, Hirsch Leckert, vs. John Reed, Rosa Luxemberg vs. Illyitch, and Ryker vs. Mansfield.

The other branches will compete if present with full membership. There will also be some races. A first class program will be given by the cream of the Communist movement, two of the "Junior Groups." The meals will be taken care of by the Russians so your food is being taken good care of. Owing to the Prohibition Law no kimmel or vodka will be allowed into the picnic grounds.

TONIGHT: Entertainment by Ilitch Branch, Y. W. L., at the Soviet School, 1902 W. Division St.

MINERS SUFFER IN SHUT DOWNS

(Continued from Page 1.)

dred men," said Creeds, "and out of those hundreds of men, the employment officies would choose only three or four men, or mostly none at all. I tried the Ford plant and many others and altho I have worked at the auto trade for several years was unable to secure a job."

Company Owns All Mines

Practically all of the mines in O'Fallon, which include the Prairie, Carbon, St. Ellen and Tin Can mines, are owned by the Henderson-Fisher Coal Company, which has extensive mine holdings in the Belleville district. Dr. Ed. Tripple, who is the Fisher and Henderson company doctor, was also called in to examine Joe Sturts.

Sturts pleaded with his friends, "If you take me to the poor house I'll die," but there was no money to supply his needs and he had to go. Hosler hinted strongly that Sturts was not at all well taken care of at the country farm. "There are all men nurses there," he said, "and they do not bother much with the inmates. But his sick benefit with the union had run out, and we are out of funds.

"After a week at the county poor farm I saw that Sturts was getting no attention and removed him to the St. Elizabeth hospital. His mind was all right when he entered, but now I am told he is mentally deranged. The only treatment they gave him so far as I can find out is morphine, in little white pills. He is in bad shape, and we don't know what to do with him."

Must Ally With Railroaders.

Hosler said that, "The miners will never get any further than they are at present until they make agreements with the railroad unions not to ship any scab coal. The Chamber of Commerce of Indiana is trying to arrange to have freight rates on coal arranged so that scab coal can be shipped into Belleville and other union coal mining towns and sell it cheaper than the union coal can be sold right on the spot."

"The non-union fields must be organized," Andrew Young added, "and the amalgamation of the basic industry unions must be effected in spite of the reactionary miners' officials who are at present standing in the way."

FOSTER TO EXPOSE LA FOLLETTE RECORD IN MILWAUKEE, SUNDAY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 22.—That Governor Blaine's stand on taxation will get him the vote of Big Business was the charge made by Miss Ada L. James, in a severe attack on the governor issued from Madison.

"Governor Blaine tells how much he has done for labor, but if you would know what labor thinks of Governor Blaine read the following paragraph taken from the official report read at the convention of the Federation of Labor, July 14, 1924.

"'Governor Blaine is strong for a federal child labor amendment, but he never lifted a finger to protect the children of Wisconsin when Bill 242-A, regulating the employment of children, in the state, was pending.'"

This reactionary governor has the endorsement of the alleged friend of labor, Senator LaFollette.

When William Z. Foster speaks at Milwaukee, at Tippecanoe Park, next Sunday afternoon, he will expose Senator LaFollette and his reactionary cohorts and the anti-labor record of the LaFollette machine in Wisconsin. The meeting is expected to be attended by thousands.

Picnics This Sunday.

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Finnish Picnic Grounds, Lorain Ave. and W. 117th St., Sunday, August 24. To get to grounds: Take Lorain 117th St. car walk five blocks south.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Picnic given by the Russian Community House, Sunday, Aug. 24, on Bradley's Farm, 92nd St. and Vance Ave., near Hog Island. To get to the picnic take Subway No. 37, stop at 87th St., where a committee will meet you.

Rockford, Ill.

ROCKFORD, Ill.—Press Picnic at Illinois Park, Sunday, Aug. 24.

BACHRACH ELOQUENT IN PLEA FOR MERCY TO LEOPOLD, LOEB

Walter Bachrach, attorney for the defense, today waxed eloquent in his appeal to the court and jury for mercy to the two millionaire slayers of Robert Franks, Leopold and Loeb.

Mercy was asked on the grounds that Leopold was a paranolac, had a severe case of schizophrenia, and was afflicted with ill-functioning of his pineal, thymoid and ductless glands.

The yellow rags await the decision with three special editions a piece.

Dawes States Issue; It Is the War of 'The Top' on 'Underneath'

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, every worker and every farmer in these United States should ponder the statement of Charles Gates Dawes, republican vice-presidential candidate, made at New York City.

Some Henry Dubb, who still clings to the republican party, rushed up to the living embodiment of "Brass Tacks," rushing thru the Grand Central Station, and tried to tell him something about the "feeling underneath among the great masses." The name of this deluded individual is lost even to the fleeting pages of the daily newspapers, but the reply of "Hell-an'-Maria" should be remembered and studied for a long time to come.

* * * *

Republican Vice-Presidential Candidate Dawes said: "Don't care anything about the feeling underneath. I'm going at this thing from the top."

* * * *

That is about as clear a statement of the fundamental position of the Capitalist Dictatorship that rules America, and that is seeking imperial sway over the world, as can be made.

Dawes doesn't care what the workers think. Dawes doesn't care what the farmers think. Dawes only knows that the interests of his class can best be conserved by the working and farming masses kneeling as slaves at the footstool of the big business interests, accepting without question the orders of their masters.

Dawes doesn't believe that the workers and farmers should do any thinking. This should all be done by the big capitalists, whose views will be handed down to the masses by the kept press, the kept pulpits and the kept institutions of learning, and other avenues for the spreading of information.

* * * *

William Jennings Bryan says that, "The more Dawes talks the better the democrats will like it."

Bryan's candidate, Davis, Morgan's lawyer, and Bryan's brother, Charles, candidate for vice-president, are as much for the capitalist dictatorship as is either Dawes or Coolidge.

But where Dawes is outspoken, like a Mussolini, a Horthy, a Noske, or some other bloody assassin of labor, these democrats, so-called, camouflage their position in the high-sounding phraseology of "democracy."

* * * *

If Dawes only talked, Bryan might be right. But Bryan found out, at the Madison Square Garden convention, that big business does more than talk. Even Bryan was forced to swallow John "Wall Street" Davis.

* * * *

Dawes is American Fascism in politics and in business. Dawes organized his "Minute Men of the Constitution" on the basis that every army of the capitalists, or of any other ruling class, is organized for unquestioning obedience to "The Top."

Dawes went to Europe to help carry on the war to save Morgan's millions. Dawes is the vice-presidential candidate of the biggest organized effort to save the Morgan social system in this country. Dawes intends to be vice-president, along with Coolidge as president, if the power of organized gold can keep his party in power.

If the masses "underneath," whom Dawes despises, peacefully win power, Dawes will be among the first to help rally the armed forces of the American capitalist state to prevent the workers from retaining that power. He will call on the police, the state militia, the federal troops to fight to keep the ownership of things in the hands of "The Top;" to prevent this ownership and control from falling into the hands of those "underneath." He will join his class in doing in a big way what Coolidge did in his small way in breaking the strike of the Boston policemen.

* * * *

Dawes has made the issue of this political struggle clear as crystal in the two short sentences, which are here repeated:

"Don't care anything about the feeling underneath. I'm going at this thing from the top."

* * * *

And U. S. Senator Robert Marion LaFollette, also a candidate for president, still belongs to this Fascisti Republican Party of Morgan, Coolidge and Dawes.

Not only does LaFollette still belong to the Coolidge-Dawes party, but his presidential campaign is using its strength, wherever possible, to crush every effort of the workers and farmers to organize their own class political expression—especially their Farmer-Labor Parties.

This is true even in Minnesota, where the Farmer-Labor forces, glimpsing the meaning of the class struggle, have carried the state twice in elections to the United States senate.

* * * *

Coolidge and Dawes are the outspoken Fascists.

Davis and Bryan are Fascists with a thin veneer of fake "democracy" that can easily be scraped away.

LaFollette and Wheeler are the stalking horses of Fascism, boring from within the ranks of labor, to lure the workers and farmers away from their own class interests and into the Fascist camp, when the life of capitalism is threatened.

* * * *

In this campaign there is only one party fighting for the class interests of labor. This is the Workers Party.

There is only one set of candidates voicing the uncompromising struggle for the victory of labor; the Communist candidates with William Z. Foster, for President, and Benjamin Gitlow, for Vice-President.

Workers! Fight for your class in this campaign under the Communist standards. Fight against the Fascism of Wall Street in all its various and deceiving forms.

WILL OBSERVE MARS IN ITS EARTHWARDS SWOOP HERE TONIGHT

LOWELL OBSERVATORY, Flagstaff, Ariz., Aug. 22.—Claims that valuable observations will be made of the planet Mars in its earthward swing tonight and Saturday were made by heads of the Lowell Observatory staff here today.

While a great deal of the facts of Mars are already known, it is still desirable to know more accurately the extent and composition of Martian air, the temperature of different portions of the planet's surface and the surface and causes, if possible, of changes in the surface features, seasonal and otherwise.

It is claimed by Washington experts, however, that very little will be accomplished by the observations tonight and tomorrow. In the meantime the scientific world awaits the results of the experiment with eagerness.

Sunday Picnic in New Jersey.

Hudson County, N. J., comrades who have not met in many months will meet again at the Hudson County Workers Party annual picnic on Sunday, Aug. 24, at Zeman's Park Hackensack Plank Road at the foot of Lewis Street. How to get to the park from New York: take Hudson Tubes, get off at Summit Station, take Blvd. bus and get off at Lewis Street. Walk one block west.

RATIONAL LIVING

Edited by Dr. B. Liber, the Well-Known Health Teacher

THE ONLY MAGAZINE considering the workers' health and explaining health in the light of the class-struggle.

—A Radical Illustrated Monthly devoted to health conservation and exposing dishonesty in all healing professions.

Its attentive readers need no doctors. No school, no cult. Sane teacher, safe and devoted guide. Disease prevented, health simplified, life beautified. Truest, cleanest, most honest magazine. No paid advertisements accepted. Learn how to live today, what mistakes to avoid and correct!

1. Current Issue—Editorials; Vacation, Labor and Health, Posture at Work, The Healers, Diet of Workers, Child Care, Examinations, Normal Sex Life, Exercise, Cancer—40 cents.

Previous Issues:

2. Diabetes and Insulin, The Movements of the Eyes, Rational Healing, Sex Life, Tuberculosis—30 cents.

3. Good and Evil, by S. D. Schmalhausen—Mind, by Vaile, and by Mary Dudderidge—The Healers, a new Medical Novel—Normal Sex Health—Monotony at Work—Fatigue—Rational Healing—Autosuggestion, by E. Tompkins—Children and Parents—Painful Menstruation—Vegetarianism—40 cents.

4. Rational Healing—The Arc of Innocence, by S. D. Schmalhausen—Philosophy of the Hike, by W. H. Hull—The Center of Eyesight, by Mary Dudderidge—Labor and Health (Mining)—Child Care—Normal Sex Life—Vegetarianism—The Healers—40 cents.

5. Debate on Chiropractic—30 cents.

6. The Truth About the Abrams Methods (Best Investigation) — What is Cancer? How to Prevent and Cure It—40 cents.

All six numbers together, $1. Regular subscription, $2.00.
Second enlarged Edition of

THE CHILD AND THE HOME

By Dr. B. Liber

Most modern nideas on the bringing up of children, by a physician and teacher—Common Errors — Practical Advice—Instances in Family Life—Sex, Health and Food problems—120 pages.

Cloth, $2.50; paper, $1.50. Together with subscription to Rational Living, cloth, $4.00; paper, $3.00.

The New and Unique Book

AS A DOCTOR SEES IT

By Dr. B. Liber

Powerful, interesting. Illustrated with 44 pencil sketches by the author. 173 stories, chances into the intimate life of all kinds of people, mainly workers. Sex Life, Birth Control, Effects of the Short Results of the War, etc.—Received as a revelation by the press everywhere—208 pages. Cloth, $2.00.

Together with subscription to Rational Living, $3.50.

Subscription to Rational Living and copies of both books: $5.50 or $4.50.

Address:
RATIONAL LIVING
61 Hamilton Place New York

National Grove
RIVERSIDE, ILLINOIS.

Directions—Take any car to 22nd St.; 22nd St. west to end. Take LaGrange Car to National Grove.

TICKETS IN ADVANCE 35c, AT THE DOOR 50c
GATES OPEN 10 A. M.

Young Workers League of Chicago
PICNIC
Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia
Sunday, August 24

Speakers:
Barney Mass
OF THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE, AND OTHERS

Athletics — Dancing — Music — Games
Refreshments

FORCE CHICAGO LABOR TO LINE UP ON WAR DAY

Anti-Workers' Concerns "Volunteer" Service

The biggest industrial and financial concerns in the loop district of Chicago will oblige their employes to participate in the line of march on Mobilization Day, Sept. 12, it was learned today.

The proposal to instil patriotic and war spirit bunk into the craniums of the white collar slaves sounds good to the bosses who can exploit the feelings engendered in their workers by sweating them just that much harder.

They "Volunteer."

Among the loop houses that have "volunteered" are the Continental Commercial Bank, Illinois Merchants Trust Co., State Bank of Chicago, Balaban and Katz, the Commonwealth Edison Co., the People's Gas, Light & Coke Co., Carson Pirie Scott and a number of other anti-labor concerns.

The plan for the exercises of the slaves includes a barbecue lunch for 10,000 map, bands that will wheeze out patriotic jazz, fireworks for the mentally subnormal, and 1,000 floating balloons that will bear the grand girofl's 'merican flag.

Doctor Will Throw Bull.

To top the program, Lieut.-Col. Lee Alexander Stone will deliver a short—thank you—address for no particular reason whatsoever. In private life the gentleman is a physician.

The workers whose minds will be poisoned by this capitalist militarism will enjoy the relief of a day off.

Telephone Monroe 2284

Genova Restaurant

ITALIAN-AMERICAN

1238 Madison Street

N. E. Cor. Elizabeth St.

Spaghetti and Ravioli Our Specialty

Special Arrangements for Parties on Short Notice

Garvey Balks at Fighting the Ku Klux Klan

(Continued from page 1)

rorisers Negroes. Mr. Garvey has read to the convention long articles published by the Klan sneering at the Negro as similar to "baboons and monkeys."

Mr. Garvey admits from one corner of his mouth that the Klan is a reactionary terror organization against the Negro, while with the other corner of his mouth he tells his followers that they cannot attack the Klan with even so much as words. Mr. Garvey says, "Don't let the Communists trick you."

Who Tricks Negro?

The Communists say, "War to extermination against the Klan," and Mr. Garvey says, "Don't fight the Klan." Pray, Mr. Garvey, who is tricking the Negro—the Communists or Mr. Garvey?

In announcing the receipt of the communication from the Workers Party, Mr. Garvey told the assembled thousand or more visitors and delegates that the association "has a very liberal platform" and has at all times been open to addresses from democrats, republicans and socialists, and is now addressed by Communists. "At our last convention," he said, "we were addressed by Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, a Communist, who sought to indoctrinate us with her views. We gave Mrs. Stokes a hearing. Some people thought that we should not have done that because we are not interested in the philosophy of Communism. But I thought it was but right that we should have Mrs. Stokes present her views. Now we have a communication from the Workers Party criticising us for what we have done in the matter of the Ku Klux Klan and asking us to reconsider the resolutions that we passed.

"Altho the communication is rather long, I shall ask the secretary to read it to us.

Negroes Are Under Dogs.

"Let me say, however, that while we belong to the group of 'under dogs,' which includes the members of the Workers Party, still we are a group of peculiar 'under dogs' within that group. Even among 'under dogs' there is prejudice. Now you take no matter what group, and there is, thrust out, that eternal question of differences. I say this irrespective of what class of people it may be.

"I dare any white man, be he worker, middle class or capitalist calss, to tell me that deep down in his heart he does not feel any different from the Negro. And if he tells me that he does not feel himself to be any different from the Negro, I will tell him that he is a damn liar. I say so irrespective of whether it is the right type or the wrong type of white man—he feels himself to be a little different from the Negro. Now I ask this organization not to be tricked by the capitalist class, or by the working class, or by the democrat or the republican, or the socialist or the Communists.

"Sympathize" With Communists

"We have sympathy for the Workers Party. But we belong to the Negro party, first, last and all the time. We will support every party that supports us, and we appreciate the attention the Workers Party has given us in sending this friendly communication. But the Communists have a long time ahead of them before they can do anything for themselves in this country. When they get there we will be for them. But meantime we are for ourselves.

"We, as a group that is crushed, have sympathy for the working man of the white race. But, brother, listen to me—he is crushed by his own brother, the capitalist of his own race. He is suffering from a different kind of crush from the kind we are getting.

"It is all right to have sympathy, but when anything happens, watch your step! You will find that the socialist white man is a cousin to the republican white man, and the republican is a brother to the democrat. And I think you will find that the white Communist is a brother to them if anything happens. They will none of them stand by and see their own brother perish and die.

"You Are 'Negroes."

"But the white Communists claim that they have an interest in common with the Negro people. Very well, we are glad to see they are looking for the interest in common, but when the time comes and somebody has to get out of the way—Negroes, watch your step!

"You are Negroes, and I want you to remember that at all times."

After the reading of the Workers Party communication, which was listened to with breathless attention, Dr. Jay J. Peters of Chicago hastened to get the floor. He said that ever since his entrance into the organization he had been fighting first the philosophy of the socialists and then that of the Communists. He contended that neither one of these understood the psychology of the Negro, and that this communication of the Workers Party was "the same long-winded talk that has been handed out by all of them." Peters added that "now and then we find a white man who seems to have a different way of considering the Negro, but on the whole thruout the white race we find the self-same condition and point of view."

Motion to Table Lost.

A motion was then made to table the communication from the Workers Party. President Garvey immediately objected, saying:

"Now this is a communication that was sent to us, and it needs a cautious reply. It is a very important question that is dealt with here. I think we ought to consider it as a communication sent to us in a friendly manner. I think we must discuss it in a concrete and friendly manner and give it a reply in the same spirit in which it has been sent to us. I think we have to deal with it in that way."

The motion to table the communication having been withdrawn, Garvey proceeded:

"If I understand the communication correctly the people of the Workers Party want us to be more emphatic and positive in dealing with the Ku Klux Klan. They want us to condemn the Klan for the crimes it commits on the Negro. Now I want to say that the mobs that kill and burn Negroes are members of the working class."

The speaker continued:

Workers In Mobs.

"When you add up the total of killings of Negroes by the Ku Klux Klan in a whole year in Louisiana, Texas, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, you will find that the total number pales into insignificance when compared to the killings committed by the working class right in Omaha and Chicago and Tulsa and East St. Louis. Now we know that the people who are lynching in the South belong to the working class.

"We know that the lynching and the beating up and the running out of town everywhere is done, not by capitalists, but by people of the working class. Now we have to be careful what we do about this. We agree with the white workers that they are crushed and exploited and oppressed by the capitalists, but that is only the work of their own brothers.

"When the republicans go out of power and the democrats go in, we find that the two agree all the same on what to do to the Negro. And when the socialists succeed in destroying the democrats and the republicans we find that they are of the same blood, of the same flesh, of the same race, and that their attitude toward the black man is the same. And when the Communists shall have come into power and destroyed the democrats and republicans and the socialists, I think their attitude will be the same toward the black man. So we must be very careful how we handle this thing.

Everybody Is Okay.

"We are with everybody," said the speaker with a smile and gesture of irony that brought laughter. Then, sobering the crowd's mood with a grave expression, he added:

"We can't afford to be against everybody in this whole country. That's the situation that we are in in regard to this Ku Klux Klan business. Let the Communists go to the Jew and the Catholic with their proposal to fight the Ku Klux Klan. The Jew can fight the Klan because the Jew can stand by himself, and nobody can cut off his meal ticket, because he has his own economic strength. The Jews and the Catholics have their own resources of employment, but the Negro has not.

"When you Negroes fight the Ku Klux Klan and then you go back, you find that you are cut off, and you can lie down and die and perish. That is why you don't fight the Klan. Let the Jew and the Catholic fight the Klan.

"I think it is all right to let the white groups fight among themselves. The more rogues fall out, the more the other people can get their dues. And therefore I would advise the Workers Party to send their communication to the Jews and the Catholics, and advise them to fight on, and fight on, and fight on."

Offers Resolution.

Freeman L. Martin, an attorney of St. Louis, then offered the resolution addressed to the Workers Party of America, as follows:

"Resolved, that we appreciate your proffer of counsel in this matter and your offer of co-operation in what you term a common fight, but we beg to advise that the position taken by this convention represents the point of view best calculated to serve our interests."

Speaking on the resolution, William A. Wallace of Chicago said that a few months ago the Communist International had sent instructions to the Workers Party of America to intensify the work among the Universal Negro Improvement Association," and that the communication from the Workers Party should be appreciated in the light of that alleged incident. He indicated that he did not find the attitude of the Workers Party objectionable on the question of the Negroes generally, but that the Party was carrying out instructions to "look for numbers." He then cited one of the numerous high-power propaganda slanders against Soviet Russia which appeared recently in the capitalist press in the form of a fake news report of a "Jewish exclusion act" passed by the Russian government. Mr. Wallace swallowed this propaganda lie as tho it had been the truth, and reasoned from it that when the Communists get control of America, "they can say also to the black man, 'you can get out.'" He estimated that "the workers of today are the capitalists of tomorrow, and they are all white, and they all say to the Negro, 'you stay in your place.'"

Wallace Confused.

Mr. Wallace later in conversation with me said that he formerly thought that the Russian government was largely made up of Jews, but that the item in the newspapers saying that an exclusion act against the Jews had been passed by the Russian government convinced him that it was all a mistake about Jews having any power there.

There was no Communist delegate present when the Workers Party communication was brought up.

OIL STRIKE IN MEXICO GROWS: PLANT CLOSES

1,500 Sympathizers in Aid to Strikers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TAMPICO, Mexico, Aug. 22.—The strike of the oil workers of the Mexican Petroleum company is spreading rapidly.

The entire plant at Tampico is now shut down. All shipping has been suspended. Fifteen hundred sympathizers are helping the strikers and are on active picket duty.

Prevent Resumption of Work.

So far the request for military protection has been turned down, on the basis that there is no need for it. Strikers succeeded in preventing Roy Silent, the general superintendent of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transit Co., from entering his plant in order to arrange for the resumption of operations with strikebreakers.

There is every likelihood that the strike will spread to other oil corporations. LaCorona (La Royal Dutch subsidiary) has been presented with the oil workers' union demands. Unless these are granted without delay the strike will be extended to this company within a few days.

Solidarity Is Magnificent.

The spirit of solidarity shown by the striking workers and the sympathizers in other industries is magnificent.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND

CARL BRODSKY

1123 Broadway, New York City

Tel. Watkins 3625.

Oregon Kluxers To Show Faces In Big Parade

VANCOUVER, Wash., Aug. 22.—In this suburb of Portland, Oregon, the K. K. K. plans a demonstration on Aug. 23, in which 10,000 members will parade. As they do not plan to indulge in any tar and feather, flogging or lynching parties that evening, they will leave their masks at home.

The K. K. K. is on the decline in Oregon. It supported the three county commissioners who were recently recalled in Portland as the result of a graft and bribery scandal in which they were involved. And it lost out.

Its candidate for the senatorial nomination on the republican ticket ran a very poor fifth, while Baker, the anti-labor mayor of Portland, was a poor fourth. Baker loves the K. K. K. and the power trust as much as he hates the workers.

MY COMPLIMENTS TO THE DAILY WORKER

DR. M. WISHNER

DENTIST

800 W. North Ave., Cor. Halsted St.

Lincoln 9010

Tel. Monroe 7281

We Serve Nothing But the Best

VICTORY

Restaurant and Lunch Room

Prenes Brothers

1064 West Madison St. Chicago

THE DAILY WORKER

GOES WITH

FOSTER AND GITLOW

TO YOUR CITY!

TO assist the campaign managers and committees at the Foster, Gitlow and all campaign mass meetings of the Workers Party—as a part of the first Communist political campaign.

THE DAILY WORKER WILL UPON REQUEST PRINT A SPECIAL LOCAL EDITION FOR YOU!

THE entire front page (as in the adjoining miniature) will be covered with local news, a local headline and a large streamer ad of your meeting—AT A COST LOWER THAN YOUR ADVERTISING.

THIS is part of the plan of the National Workers Party Campaign Committee. The Daily will help build your local—your local can build the Daily—We can build the Workers Party.

How many thousand will your local order?

WRITE OR WIRE FOR FULL DETAILS.

THE DAILY WORKER.

1113 W. Washington St. Chicago, Ill.

MINIATURE LAYOUT OF SPECIAL EDITIONS OF THE DAILY WORKER FOR FOSTER AND GITLOW MEETINGS

SPECIAL NEW YORK EDITION

THE DAILY WORKER REFLECTS THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT.

THE DAILY WORKER

Communist Candidates for President: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER For Vice-President: BENJAMIN GITLOW

FOSTER SPEAKS IN N. Y. FRIDAY

MASS MEETING HERE IN SUPPORT OF WORKERS PARTY CAMPAIGN

COMMUNIST PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE HAS LONG RECORD OF SERVICE TO LABOR

William Z. Foster, candidate on the Workers Party ticket for president of the United States, needs no introduction to masses of this country. Never has any American been able to look back upon a record so full of earnest and able service to the working class. Never has the American working class had a leader from whom more could be expected in continued devotion and able leadership in the immediate and future struggles. That the ablest organizer and most tireless worker in the American labor movement is now on the ticket of the Workers Party in the coming elections is proof a hundred-fold that the only party of labor will enter the campaign militantly and with all the energy the thousands of adherents of independent working-class politics can command.

Foster's speaking tour of the country has brought each day new hundreds of working men and women into the fold of the Workers Party campaign.

A real leader and organizer of the working class, Foster is an ideal candidate to head a labor party political ticket. He is no mere formulator of phrases and ideas; Foster has demonstrated a capacity of actual experience in the class struggle, that is not easily able to point out the correct path, but is

(Continued page 3)

Unemployed Hall Workers Party Program.

Severe unemployment is constantly growing in every part of the country as the season progresses. It is proving to be a bitter but a valuable lesson to thousands of workers. They are becoming convinced that the Workers Party has the only solution for the unemployment problem. Among them Foster and Gitlow are the only ones in the Workers Party ticket is finding some of its greatest enthusiasm.

Miners Hard Hit

Miners in the soft coal districts are said to be almost solidly strong for Foster, in the districts of Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania where Foster is best known.

(Continued page 2)

Young Workers League Takes Leading Part in Campaign

While it is true that the greater proportion of the membership is as yet unable to vote, the Young Workers League is nevertheless taking a leading part in putting the campaign of the Workers Party before the workers. In the unions, in

(Cont. on page 2)

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER
Communist Candidate for President

PLACING FULL TICKET IN FIELD IN NEW YORK

The Workers Party will contest the New York State elections in every office, a complete ticket is being placed in the field and petitions have been printed and put in circulation. Party members here and sympathizers are now busily at work in securing signatures to these petitions. A comprehensive organization has been worked out for every district with captains in charge.

More solicitors, however, are necessary. Those who are willing to help in this work should apply for their supplies at once at one of the following places.

WORKERS PARTY LOCAL OFFICE:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Freiheit,
47 Chrystie Street.
Volkszeitung:
15 Spruce Street.
Workers' Home:
346 East 84th St.
Jones' Restaurant:
239 East 116th St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store,
127 University Pl.

All Workers Party branches have also supplies both for state and district petitions.

GREAT CROWD EXPECTED AT OPENING MEETING OF COMMUNIST ELECTION DRIVE

In what is expected to be one of the greatest meetings ever held by Labor in this city, the Workers Party will open officially its election campaign here with a mass meeting in the Madison Square Garden. With William Z. Foster as the principal speaker of the evening and a score of other leaders of labor and women on the program, the opening of the Communist campaign in New York will make the records of the gathering of 14,000 at the Polo Grounds fade into insignificance.

Plan Parade

Great preparations are being made to make the meeting a huge success. A parade has been arranged from the station to the hall.

Seats at Premium

Because of the well known demand for seats, the committee in charge has found it necessary that, while LaFollette's spokesmen believe they can fill the hall, no more will be issued. Those who wish to be sure of obtaining entrance to the hall should secure their tickets in advance. They may be obtained at any of the following places:

Workers Party Office:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store,
127 University Pl.
47 Chrystie Street

Trade Unionists Line Up for W. P. Ticket

Sam Gompers and W. H. Johnson may have pledged their support to LaFollette but they are going to have a hard time to deliver if the sentiment among the trades unionists of many locals in this city indicates anything a strong ranking file movement has been developing which is rapidly swinging hundreds of workers into the Foster-Gitlow camp. Out of the election campaign a strong and militant labor movement will result.

Rank and File For Foster.

Particularly among the miners, metal workers and the metal trades workers is the Foster-Gitlow sentiment manifesting itself.

Workers Party Campaigns for New Members

If you are a supporter of Foster and Gitlow, if you believe in the class struggle and are willing to fight on the side of the working class—in other words, if you are a revolutionary you belong in the party of the revolutionary working class, the Workers' Party. During August, September and October, the Party is campaigning for new members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

Party Campaign Fund Mounts but Thousands Are Still Needed

Pronounced success has been met with in the efforts made both locally and nationally to finance the Foster-Gitlow campaign. While Big Wall Street is producing the coin for Coolidge and Dawes and Little Wall Street is forking over the money funds for La Follette, the wage workers who have a head for things and a heart for fighting are digging deep to make Foster-Gitlow campaign possible. Coolidge campaign managers are planning a cheap campaign this year and expect to spend less than 10,000,000. Davis will have to struggle along with $5,000,000. Despite that, while LaFollette's spokesmen believe they can fill the hall, no more will be issued. Those who wish to be sure of obtaining entrance to the hall should secure their tickets in advance. They may be obtained at any of the following places:

Workers Party Office:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store,
127 University Pl.
47 Chrystie Street

WORKERS PARTY ELECTION CAMPAIGN MASS MEETING

Speakers: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER and Others

MADISON SQUARE GARDENS

FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 15, AT 8 P. M.

Admission 25 cents Doors open at 6:30

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
(Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year $3.50—6 months $1.90—3 months
By mail (in Chicago only)!!
$8.00 per year $4.50—6 months $2.50—3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, MORITZ J. LOEB ..... Editors
..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Terrorizing the Philippines

The United States court martial at Fort McKinley has sentenced more than two hundred Filipino scouts to five years of military penal servitude. This cruel punishment was inflicted upon the native soldiers because they dared ask for the abolition of the unspeakable conditions under which they have been serving and for equal pay with white soldiers.

This is the first manifestation of desperate brute force that the American imperialist clique has manifested in the Islands since its mercenaries destroyed the first republic in the Orient, the Philippine republic. This is the official answer of the despoiler and strike breaker General Wood to the cry of the Filipino people for freedom from the clutches of the Yankee exploiters.

This incident is of manifold significance. It shows the extremities of brutality to which the American capitalist class is ready to travel in order to maintain its position as a ruling class. It again brings into ugly relief the harshness and cruelty with which our exploiters are accustomed to treating not only Filipino but also American privates in their army. We recall the severe punishment that General Pershing and his terroristic aides were wont to inflict on the private soldiers in the American Expeditionary Forces while they were shedding their blood and giving away their lives for the safety of the fabulous profits and swollen dividends of the bosses. We recall the swiftness with which hundreds of injunctions have been issued against the American workers and the years of jail served by our revolutionary spokesmen, the Communists.

The display of brute force by the American imperialists in the Philippines should serve to inspire the Filipino masses to better and more effective organization in their fight for freedom. It should serve to hasten the end of the policy of their nationalist representatives in the United States playing with, and catering to, the democratic and republican lickspittles and tools of the very militarist caste and imperialist junta that is oppressing the Filipino masses and the American working class.

The thousand years of prison to which the Philippine soldiers were sentenced should serve as an eye-opener to the exploited workers and dispossessed farmers in America. Our exploiters will treat us, as they have in the past, with the same severity, with the same barbarian cruelty as they are now treating the Philippine soldiers. Let us learn from this and help our Filipino brothers in their struggle against their foreign and native exploiters.

The thousand years of military jail to which the Filipino soldiers have been sentenced will not break their fighting spirit for freedom from all forms of exploitation, whether it be American or native.

Why All the Excitement?

The Chicago Tribune joins with the Steel Trust papers of Pennsylvania and Ohio in angry comment on William Z. Foster's speech at Youngstown. That Foster should openly advocate, in a presidential election campaign, that the workers of America should rule thru their own councils or soviets, fills them with righteous rage. With touching unanimity they one and all declare that America is the very best place in the world for working men, and that anyone who is not satisfied with this glorious country should go to Russia and stay there.

If this is such a very, very good country for working men, then why all the excitement about a few words from Foster? If the conditions are so good, Foster's words will never have any effect. If the steel workers have a nice soft 8-hour day, at good fat wages, and plenty of leisure, commensurate with their services to society—then neither Foster nor all the Bolsheviks will be able to rouse them to rebellion. The word of revolution has life only when it corresponds to the life needs of masses of workers.

The excitement of our capitalist papers, and their rage against Foster for his "presidential campaign" speeches, gives the lie to their pretentions about the utopian character of American conditions. Quite well do these journalistic harlots know that, in spite of the enormous wealth of this country, millions of workers actually do not receive enough food to keep them in good condition; that millions of children are forced to work in mills, mines, and factories; that the capitalists, in their greed for more profits, are carrying on a bitter warfare against even the pitiful unionism that crawls about begging for favors. And knowing this, they know that Foster's words are falling upon fertile soil, and that they will spring up in the harvest time of revolution as so many weapons against the capitalist system.

De Leon and the Dictatorship

The Socialist-Labor party, heir of the traditions of Daniel De Leon, is opposed to the dictatorship of the proletariat—for America, altho admitting it may be necessary for Russia—and bases its position upon the supposed teachings of De Leon. It is interesting, therefore, to know just what De Leon really thought about the question of "constitutionalism" versus "dictatorship," and to consider if he would have approved of the ultra-legality that characterizes his latter-day followers.

In an editorial entitled "On to the Dictatorship," in the Weekly People, June 11, 1910, page 1, De Leon has the following to say:

"Gov. Hughes calls a special session of the legislature of this state for the purpose of passing a law which he thinks should be passed, and which the regular session of the same legislature rejected.

"The issuing of such a call might not be cause for wonder. Chiefs may, and do, at times, slop over. The remarkable circumstance is that the call is applauded by some, and that even those who condemn it, condemn it not upon principle but upon the ground that the specific legislation demanded by the Governor, the Direct Nomination system, is undesirable.

"The theory of the government set up by the American revolution was one of checks and balances. That theory served as the mould for all the state constitutions. According thereto, the government consists of three co-ordinate departments—the Legislative, to enact the laws; the Executive, to carry them out; the Judicial, to interpret them. Each of these departments attended to its own business. The executive could and was authorized to suggest legislation, and it could and was authorized to veto the same. Nevertheless its veto was qualified. That the executive can be overruled by the proper legislative majority is evidence enough that the executive's authority to suggest was not an authority to dictate legislation.

"This notwithstanding, we have latterly seen Presidents holding legislative seances at the White House, and thereby exercising direct legislative functions. We have latterly seen these Presidents go even further, and virtually constitute themselves into a legislative chamber of one. Finally, we see the Governor of the Empire State ordering the enactment of a law, and, the legislature having refused obedience, calling them in extraordinary session to do his bidding—AND WE SEE ALL THIS WITHOUT A NOTE OF PROTEST.

"Besides the economic conditions to warrant the phenomenon, it requires two things for the dictatorship—the dictator and the dumb dictatorees. The latter seem to be there; the former is taking shape. And yet bourgeois pundits are learnedly explaining the necessity of the dual legislative chamber system. They had better try and save their own precious legislatures. Close behind the bourgeois dictator comes the dictatorship of the proletariat."

De Leon, we see in this editorial, in spite of his dogmatism, was enough of a Marxist to avoid the pitfalls of theory into which his followers have fallen today. The inevitable development of bourgeois democracy into open dictatorship, he saw clearly, and also that "close behind comes the dictatorship of the proletariat." Why does the Socialist-Labor party forget this today?

Magnus Marching Backward

Magnus Johnson of Minnesota is preparing himself for the day when he will either go back voluntarily or be taken back into the republican party from whence he came.

Addressing a farmers' picnic at Camp Release Park near Montevideo, Minnesota, Magnus made a fervent plea for the support of the LaFollette ticket. In this speech the Senator made it plain that he is yearning to go back to the republican party as soon as he can find sufficient excuses to do so gracefully. Magnus, The Little, declared in his confession: "I was a republican, but I am a Farmer-Labor candidate now. I may go back to the republicans if they get their house cleaned up."

This is not surprising to us. We base our judgment of Magnus and his noisy crew on not only what they say but also on what they do. When a senator who was sent to Washington to give battle to the despoilers of the farming masses of Minnesota can do nothing else for these masses except get into pleasant milking contests with such agents of the plunderers of the rural masses, as secretary of agriculture, Wallace, then he has lost his last possible claim to the confidence and trust of the workers and poor farmers. In Washington Magnus Johnson made a signal failure of the task to which he was assigned and to which he pledged his all.

Now Magnus is talking openly of "going back." That is what he has been doing all the time. One might as well try to remove the spots from the leopard as to clean up the Augean stables of the republican and democratic parties. All that can be accomplished is to improve their service to the employers in such a fashion as to hide their real nature a little more effectively and thus give them the appearance of being pure and non-partisan. That is what LaFollette, Shipstead, Magnus Johnson and the other fraudulent progressives are seeking.

The whole group of self-styled progressives always talk of going back to their old places. They always draw their inspiration from the past and look to the past for their guidance and solace. They dare not go forward at the expense of the exploiters. They dare not attack the source of the corruption and graft with which the United States government is reeking. That would mean fighting the capitalists. That would entail a struggle to overthrow the present system of exploitation. The Johnsons, the LaFollettes, the Wheelers always prefer honest exploitation to no exploitation. In short they want to continue the robbery of the working class by the bosses, but they want this robbery perpetrated in such a way as to give it an appearance of fairness and justice. The Wheelers and the Johnsons want to make the degrading capitalist system and political agencies only more palatable to the workers in order to perpetuate it.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

The Workers Party in Action

PARTY BEGINS ACTIVITY FOR MEMBERSHIP AND DAILY DRIVE

REPORTS which are beginning to come to the National Office of the party show that the branches of the organization are going to work to put into effect the slogan "Every member get a member and a reader for the DAILY WORKER."

One of the reports received from the Baltimore, Md., English branch, the secretary of which writes: "Your circular urging all branches activity in the new members' and subscribers' campaign received and instructions faithfully complied with."

This is the spirit in which all party branches must go to work. If our party as a whole follows the example of the Baltimore branch and supplies each member of the branch with a combined DAILY WORKER subscription and application blank and inspires in the members the desire to secure for their dues cards the merit stamps given to each member who secures a reader and a new applicant for membership in the party, our party will make a big jump forward during the present campaign.

Other branches of the party are urged to send reports to the National Organization of the work they are achieving in the membership and DAILY WORKER subscription campaign.

PARTY ACTIVITIES IN CHICAGO

REPORT OF CHICAGO CITY CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

Twenty-nine New Members Accepted.

AT a lively meeting of the City Central Commitee of Workers Party Local Chicago on August 19th, 29 new members were accepted from the following branches: Russian 2; Northwest Jewish 5; Douglas Park Jewish 3; Scandinavian Karl Marx 2; Lake View Scandinavian 1; Scandinavian Englewood 1; Lettish 4; Lithuanian No. 5, 1; Cicero Italian 1; Czecho-Slovak, North Berwyn 1; Irving Pk. English 1; Douglas Park English 1; Mid-City English 3; North Side English 3. In these applicants were included union members from the following organizations: Machinists union 3; Amalgamated Clothing Workers 2; Carpenters 2; Hod carriers 1; Barbers2; Butchers 1; Printers 1; United Mine Workers 1. These applicants also included one former member of Russian Workers Union, seven former members of Socialist Party, two of the Left Paoli Zion, two of Swedish Communist Party, one of Communist Party of Germany. Two transfers were accepted, one from Kansas City and one from New York.

The Czecho-Slovak comrades are very much on the job knitting their branches more strongly together and winning over more elements regularly from the Svornek outfit.

At a memmership meeting of the Pullman Section, the policy of the Central Executive Committee in the elections campaign was unanimously endorsed.

The City Central Committee decided to severely censure and condemn the Italian Comrades who were responsible for the evasion of the decision of the City Central Committee that their picnic of August 10 should not be held in competition with the City Press Picnic. The Italian comrades evaded the decision, holding the picnic under the auspices of another name. Repetition of such a kind will result in stronger disciplinary action.

Additions to City Executive.

Comrade Rose Karsner was added to the City Executive Committee and placed in charge of the membership campaign. Comrade Sam Hammermark was also added to the City Executive Committee to take charge of the direction of propaganda and literature, especially in connection with the elections campaign.

Daily Worker Reports Official.

In order to do away with cumbersome minutes from the city organization to the branches, the C. C. C. decided that hereafter only actions and decisions of the City Central Committee shall be sent out in special minutes to the branches. Reports of the activities of the organizations are to appear, as is already done, in the DAILY WORKER and other Party newspapers in place of the minutes and are to be regarded as official. Also all notices of all kinds of meetings of the Party Y. W. League and T. U. E. L. are to be printed in the DAILY WORKER and other papers instead of sending out special letters to branches. Branches and members shall make note that such notices of meetings are official and look for them in the papers.

Election Campaign Drive.

Reports of the progress in the election campaign were given by various delegates and Comarde Ida McCarthy. Comrades are finding it easy to secure signatures to place Workers Party candidates on the ballot.

The Executive Committees of the Congressional Districts are sub-dividing their committees in order to insure that street meetings and other meetings during the campaign will be organized. Also this is being done in order to develop the distribution and sale of literature thruout the campaign, and the congressional districts have therefore been made the sectional basis for the membership campaign and the DAILY WORKER drive.

Local Chicago to Supply Free Campaign Literature.

The City Central Committee decided that the city organization shall take financial charge of the campaign. This means that the congressional districts are to decide on the amount of literature such as leaflets, DAILY WORKERS, etc., which they need and then apply to the city organization for them who will furnish them free. When members go out with petitions to obtain signatures they are expected to take the DAILY WORKER and other literature with them and also to try to obtain subscriptions and campaign funds.

Thus far a little over $500.00 has come in on pledges in Chicago. Other branches are asked to speed up the collections.

The branches have received the campaign books with stamps which they ought to be able to sell without any trouble.

DAILY WORKER and Campaign Membership Meeting.

Campaign and DAILY WORKER membership meeting of the Party has been called for next Wednesday, August 27th at Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., in order to review the election campaign to date, subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER and the membership drive.

In addition to the reports by the various congressional districts, Comrade Joe Manley in charge of the National Campaign will report and Comrade Earl Browder will report on the DAILY WORKER and membership drive. Branches shall make sure of attendance at this meeting.

It might be added that unemployed comrades could be of excellent aid in the elections campaign by circulating petitions to obtain signatures to put our candidates on the ballot. Comrades should call at the office for petitions. If any expenses are incurred, they will be paid.

Street Meetings Progressing.

Wherever our street meetings are held, we are drawing large crowds. George Maurer is now in charge of street meetings which will be organized with and thru the Congressional District Campaign Committees.

There have been a number of cases of interference with the street meetings of Young Workers League and Workers Party in Cicero and in Chicago. The Party has decided in all cases to fight out the issues until the right to speak is completely won. The cases in Cicero have been postponed to August the 27th.

Industrial Registration Starts.

Get ready to put over the industrial registration. Industrial registration cards and books are now in the hands of all branches. The industrial registration must be completed by September 15th. The first order of business therefore at the branch meetings shall be the taking of industrial registration. Send in the industrial registration to the city organization as fast as you take it.

Some branches have already begun. Let us have a race to see which completes the registration first. Chicago local has challenged the rest of the country. Make good. The city organization will render every help possible.

The Food Workers are meeting at 166 W. Washington St., Saturday, August 23, 7:30 p.m., to take up the matter of program and policy. In the afternoon of August 23rd at 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Party members of Local 270 Amalgamated Clothing Workers will meet with the City Committee in order to take up the matter of neglect of union activity on the part of some of the Italian comrades. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Party and Y. W. L. members met on Thursday, Aug. 21.

The matter of LaFollette and Small endorsement by Chicago Federation of Labor and the activity of the Party members against this action has already been outlined in a previous issue of the DAILY WORKER. Our comrades put up an exceller altho futile fight. There were some Party members who were absent from the Federation meting who are being called on the carpet by the Party for this neglect.

In the matter of the Hegewisch strike, the Party, Y. W. L. and T. U. E. L. are continuing to give fullest support to the union organization drive Headway is also being made in organizing the Young Workers League branch there and in Hammond. Complete reports from day to day are being published in the DAILY WORKER.

Elaborate Eudcational Program.

In the field of education a very elaborate program has been mapped out for the fall. There will be an open forum, a class on Imperialism, another of advanced Marxism, another on elementary economics.

Then there will be the class on Trade Union Conduct and the English class. A dramatic and music department has also been added. Enrollments to all these classes are now open to all.

Young Workers League.

Young Workers League members are co-operating with the Party in all its activities. Conducting factory campaigns, organizing new branches. Will hold big picnic Aug. 24, in the National Grove, Riverside, Illinois.

The work of Local Chicago is progressing better right along, but the work can go even much more swiftly, especially during this election campaign. The organization drive for members and the campaign for DAILY WORKER subscriptions going forward. However, instead of 60-70 new members a month as we have been getting we must take in 200 to 300.

Get into the campaign that every member get a new member and a subscriber to the DAILY WORKER. It can be done. Into the unions to carry on Communist work. Every member in the election campaign and the DAILY WORKER drive. Build the Workers Party.

Fraternally yours,
WORKERS PARTY—
LOCAL CHICAGO
Martin Abern, Secretary.

Next meeting of City Central Committee, Tuesday, September the 2nd, 8 p.m., at 2733 Hirsch Blvd. (Workers Lyceum.)

Go to eat where all the rest 100% union men and women go

Deutche-Hungarian Restaurant

29 South Halsted St.

Pure Food, Good Service and reasonable prices our motto

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.
645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1627 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

COKOS BROTHERS

Groceries
Cigars Cigarettes
Tobacco
and Candies

1111 W. WASHINGTON ST.

JAY STETLER'S RESTAURANT
Established 1901
1053 W. Madison St. Chicago
Tel. Monroe 2241

THE WORLD'S GREATEST TONIC for lowered vitality

makes your blood tingle with joy the minute you taste it. Take a wine glass full of

LIPSEY'S BITTERS

before meals and note the improvement of your health in a few days. Order a bottle by coupon below.

LIPSEY PRODUCTS CO.
1133 Foster Ave., Chicago

Enclosed is $1.85. Please send one bottle of LIPSEY'S BITTERS at once.

Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....
Money Back Guarantee

Rich Reputable Reliable

RICH because of its richness in the true sugars of barley, malt and other valued constituents of the malted barley grain.
REPUTABLE because it is a product of acknowledged merit and the standard of highest purity.
RELIABLE because it can always be depended upon for best results.

HIGH-TEST
100% PURE BARLEY
MALT EXTRACT
WITH CHOICEST HOPS
FOR SALE BY LEADING DEALERS

High Test Malt Extract Co.

20 East Eighth Street, Chicago, Ills.
Phone, Wabash 2580

1917 North Western Avenue
6748 South Halsted Street
605 East 63rd Street
5062 Lincoln Avenue
1503 Roosevelt Road
Leiter Store Basement

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 22 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 135. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. MONDAY, AUGUST 25, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

LARGEST COAL MINE SHUT DOWN

"Hell an' Maria" Backs Klan

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

IF there was ever any doubt in the minds of the workers as to where Hell an' Maria Dawes stood on the Ku Klux Klan there should be doubt no longer. In a speech delivered last Saturday in Augusta, Maine, the General in a reply to the belated statement of John W. Davis, on the hooded order, paid tribute to the Klan for its activities in enforcing law and order in Oklahoma and in Herrin. It is true Dawes did not say he was for the Klan but after reading the speech everybody who knows the Klan will not alone believe that he favors it but that he is also a member of the organization.

ACCORDING to Dawes the main objection the Oklahoma Klan had against Walton was that he appointed a socialist, president of the University of Agriculture. Walton's other crimes paled into insignificance before this most henious one. The alleged socialist that Walton appointed would be likely to teach new fashioned doctrines which are not those of constitutional Americanism. Therefore the Klan was perfectly justified in its actions in Oklahoma. Dawes did not mention the number of men and women who were taken out of their homes at night, tarred and feathered and in some cases murdered by the Klan of his.

ANOTHER spot where the Ku Klux Klan covered itself with glory is Herrin, said Hell an' Maria. After the Herrin riots in which several scabs who terrorised the county were killed, Dawes gives the Klansers credit for marching up to the sheriff and telling him that they would insist on the law being enforced. Dawes did not say that behind these hooded knights was the Illinois Chamber of Commerce which called for the blood of the Herrin miners. He did not tell of the man who were killed in Herrin by Glenn Young and his gang of Klan murderers. Law enforcement to Dawes means protecting the interests of the capitalists. The free speech provision in the constitution means nothing to him. He is a typical American Mussolini.

THERE is a Colledge myth that has been assiduously fostered in the United States, since he took office. This myth "mythifies" Calvin as an honest, wise statesman, who can do no wrong. He could not see an oil scandal thru a telescope. So patriotic was he that while the cabinet was selling out the country, he was writing articles to the Old Ladies Home Journal (is that the name?) on the menace of radicalism.

NOW comes the Dawes myth dressed up in a topsy turvey pipe and flavored with obscenity. Dawes does not like publicity according to the myth. He is outspoken, says just what he means and nothing more or less. He hates demagogues. As a matter of fact this fellow Dawes is the greatest bunco artist in America. His objection to posing does not keep his photographs out of the papers. And he can keep silent on things that are not conducive to his popularity and to vote getting.

WHO has heard Mr. Dawes mention the Minute Men of the Constitution since he began his drive for the vice-presidency? Has Dawes mentioned his relations with the corrupt Republican boss Lorimer to whom he loaned $1,250,000 to deceive the government bank inspectors. Even the Supreme Court of Illinois

(Continued on Page 6)

FASCISTI PAL OF 'SILENT CAL' FOR THE K. K. K.

Predict Terrific Blow at Republican Chances

The pro-Klan speech of Brig. Gen. Hell-an'-Maria Charles Gates Dawes, at Augusta, Me., was the most unqualified endorsement of the Ku Klux Klan, ever made by an American politician since the hooded order became a political factor.

What the effect of the speech will have on the fortunes of the republican party is a matter of conjecture in republican circles. It is interesting to note that most republican papers featured his speech as an attack on the Klan, which gives the low down on what editors who have their ears to the ground think of it as campaign ammunition.

The general must be given credit for speaking his mind. He will, no doubt, get the Klan vote as a result, he being the only candidate to come out and say a kind word for the night prowlers. But in New England is thickly peopled with foreigners and natives whose ancestors reached here long after the Mayower had degenerated into dust. That they will give the republican ticket the cold shoulder is assumed.

The Dawes speech will no doubt, be used extensively during the campaign so we give it here:

Tried to Evade Issue.

"I first desire to speak as Mr. Davis did yesterday, relative to the Ku Klux Klan. I agree with him that it has no proper part in this or any other campaign.

"Let me say at once that I realize that the Klan in many localities and among many people represents only an instinctive groping for leadership, moving in the interest of law enforcement, which they do not find in many cowardly politicians and office holders.

His Americanism.

"Let us consider for a minute what happened in the state of Oklahoma. Governor Walton was some time ago elected governor of the state. In his campaign he had not preached the doctrine—so it seemed to me at least —which was the proper one to be preached under the American flag.

When he was elected, one of his early acts was to remove the president of the university of agriculture of Oklahoma, a man who believed in the old fashioned doctrines of the constitution, to establish which our forebears fought. He placed in that position a socialist who was likely to

(Continued on page 6.)

Farmer Expresses Views on Market Reports in "Daily"

In our issue of August 16, we carried a note to farmers, asking them to write us whether they want market reports be printed in the DAILY WORKER. We have had one reply which we print here in full and we urge other farmers to join in the discussion.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Replying to your inquiry of August 16, relative to the carrying of market reports by the DAILY WORKER for farmers.

A farmer, whether he has anything to sell or not, is always interested in the market reports. Since you are so advantageously situated, being on the grounds of a main distributing point, I think farmers will appreciate the information you can give them. I for one, shall look forward with interest to seeing this news in the DAILY WORKER.

I would suggest a form be adopted which will cover only main items for territory represented.

I should like to see other farmers' views on this subject.—Nels M. Nelson, Rochester, Minn.

MADISON, Wis., August 24.—Notwithstanding the opposition of Governor Blaine to Mobilization Day, the Reserve Officers Assn. will stage a celebration of the event.

Republican Party Chief, Butler, Exposed as Stool-Pigeon Boss

COOLIDGE, "The Strikebreaker," and Dawes, the "open shop" Fascist, are not the only stars in the republican labor-hating sky. The chairman of the Republican National Committee, William Morgan Butler, capitalist and owner of millions of dollars worth of New England textile properties, has for years been spending tens of thousands of dollars to keep stool-pigeons and detectives working among his employes to disrupt their unions, to deliver the "undesirables" over to the Department of Justice, and to generally act as "agents provocateur" against the workers.

Revelations of the details of Butler's slimy work with the Sherman Agency, the most notorious industrial spy system now operating in the United States, are coming out. A special correspondent of the DAILY WORKER in New York City will tell the story from day to day as the investigations now being made bring the facts to light. The names of writer and informants are being withheld for the time being, in order not to close any of the channels of information. If Mr. Butler feels himself aggrieved by the disclosures, he is offered the columns of the DAILY WORKER to refute the charges that are made. In the meantime, the workers will be glad to know something of the man who pays Coolidge's bills.

Beginning tomorrow, read the exposures of William M. Butler, grand mogul of the republican party, in the columns of the DAILY WORKER.

WOBBLIES FAIL TO TAKE FIGHT OUT OF COURT

Injunction Hearing Is Up for Third Time

Today for the third time the I. W. W. injunction case will come up in county court before Judge Hurley, who has been called upon by the "outs" to decide which group of officers "belong."

The case has now been hanging fire for two weeks, having been postponed once by Judge Hurley and the second time by Judge Sabath because of the absence from court of William A. Cunnea, attorney for the administration group.

In the meantime a delegation has come qn from Butte, Montana, to persuade both factions to give up the fight and let an impartial group come in. The Fisher and Doyle have consented, Griffith and McMurphy could not be persuaded to give up the fight. So the injunction has not been dropped and will come up in court again this morning.

Membership Wants Convention.

The two different factions fighting for leadership in the I. W. W. have stirred up the membership to a realization that something must be done mighty soon to save the organization.

The membership is demanding that the two-year rule be waived and a convention be called at once. Rumor has spread that a convention will be called in three months, which the rank and file feels is too long to wait. Try to Prevent Split.

"We must have a convention at once before both groups develop a factional spirit in the organization, obtain a following and cause a split," was the opinion expressed to the DAILY WORKER reporter by seamen, carpenters and agricultural workers, all members of the Wobbly organization for many years, and men who have faced long prison terms for their organization.

Editors Issue Statement.

A statement signed by the editors of the various publications of the Industrial Workers of the World, is as follows:

"We, the undersigned editors of all the I. W. W. publications in Chicago feel that inasmuch as we have been at headquarters during the entire controversy that is now causing the or-

(Continued on Page 4.)

STATES THAT THERE IS ATHMOSPHERE ON THE MARTIAN PLANET

SAN JOSE, Calif., August 24.—Photographs of Mars, taken by one of the staff astronomers at the Lick observatory at Mount Hamilton here, Dr. W. H. Wright, indicated the existence of atmosphere on the planet, according to the statement just issued by the astronomer.

If this is conclusively proved it forms the basis for the theory that life is possible, the by no means certain, on the Martian body.

N. Y. LABOR FAKERS ENDORSE BOB; JAB LOCAL S. P. TICKET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—What appears to be a slick piece of political horse trading was accomplished here today in the Central Trades and Labor Council when the latter body endorsed the national LaFollette-Wheeler ticket after the weak Socialist Party-Farmer-Labor Party carefully avoided a fight on the question of a local ticket.

The officials of the labor body had urged their affiliated unions not to send delegates to the C. P. P. A., in order to wash Tammany's hands from any endorsement of the Socialist candidates. However, in return for the endorsement of LaFollette nationally, the "radical" fakers in the local A. F. of L. did not even raise the issue of an independent political party or independent local action. The Socialist Party has laid down even before Tammany.

Abraham Lefkowitz, representing the sole remaining member of the Farmer-Labor Party in New York, and delegate to the Central council from the Teachers' Union, denounced Dawes for calling LaFollette a radical. But the S. P. doesn't mind.

MOSCOW URGES NO SPLIT IN MINERS' RANKS

McLachlan Is Warned Against O. B. U.

(By Cable to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—A cable was sent to Jim McLachlan, leader of the Nova Scotia miners, by the Red International of Labor Unions, warning against the efforts of the dual unionists to persuade the miners of District Nb. 26, to secede from the United Mine Workers of America.

The Red International is positively opposed to withdrawal from the U. M. W. of A., as it has often demonstrated.

More than a year ago, when the miners of Nova Scotia were threatened with expulsion for voting to affiliate with the R. I. L. U., the latter approved of the withdrawal of the affiliation, in order that District 26 might not be severed from the main body of the miners.

The R. I. L. U. is just as positive on this point today as it ever was. It advises the Nova Scotia miners to stick with the U. M. W. of A. and to continue the struggle for revolutionary policies in co-operation with the militants of the United States.

Goose Step in Bavaria.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Aug. 24.—Students attending Bavarian universities must refrain from all political activity, according to an edict just issued by the ministry of education. The edict specifically states that the students must "not take part in political agitation, and not distribute placards and sample ballots."

DAWES KU KLUX SPEECH FASCIST O. K.—FOSTER

Mussolini Is Favorite of Cussing Candidate

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, August 24.—William Z. Foster dropped off the train here this morning, pleased with the large meetings from which he had just come, in Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Superior.

Before he went to address the great crowd in Tippecanoe Park, he was asked to comment upon the endorsement given the Ku Klux Klan by Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, in his Augusta, Maine, speech.

"Quite natural," said Foster. "The K. K. K. is an attempt to establish Fascism in the United States. Dawes praised Mussolini and the Fascisti very highly, more than a year ago, and tried to set up a small imitation himself, in the Minute Men of the Constitution. He may regard the K. K. K. with a little jealousy, as a rival of his own pet organization, but it is the rivalry of two business men whose fundamental interests are the same. Of course, he would endorse the K. K. K."

Against Class Issue.

"Do you think that it was merely an oversight that neither LaFollette nor Davis denounced the anti-labor acts of the K. K. K.?" Foster was asked.

"LaFollette and Davis are united on this point, as on many others, that neither wants to raise the fundamental class issues in the United States," replied Foster. "They both avoid any issue except those calculated to appeal to miscellaneous 'citizenry' and not the working class as such. They refuse to recognize the interests of the working class as opposed to the capitalist class, as separate from the other groups in society. That is because both fundamentally agree with the capitalist system. Neither wants to change it. Therefore, they handle the Klan gingerly, and with much regard for its feelings, and therefore, they ignore the labor movement."

Communist Attitude.

"What attitude does the Workers Party take toward the Klan?"

"Long before the election campaign the Workers Party denounced the Klan as an instrument of the capitalist class for illegally suppressing the militant forces of labor," said Foster.

LOVESTONE ARTICLE AND THE MANIFESTO ON DAWES PLAN TOMORROW

The eighth article by Jay Lovestone on the political record of Robert Marian LaFollette, candidate for president, and the manifesto of the Communist International on the Dawes Plan will appear in Tuesday morning's issue. They had to be omitted from this issue due to the mass of material demanding an immediate place in our columns. Look for these important features in tomorrows issue of the DAILY WORKER.

10,000 FRANKLIN COUNTY COAL MINERS IDLE; NO WORK SINCE LAST YEAR; FIGHTING FOR PAY

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer of The Daily Worker)

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., August 24.—Ten thousand miners in Franklin County, the heart of the Illinois coal mining district, are out of work. The mines surrounding Christopher are among the largest coal mines in the world, many of them producing an average of 6,000 tons a day when working at normal capacity. One mine in Benton alone employes at ordinary times over 1,000 miners. This mine, owned by the Old Ben Coal company, is completely shut down.

In Pinckneyville, Perry County, and Wren City, Franklin County, which I visited today, and in fact in all the mining towns where the mines show no disposition to reopen, the miners are losing hope in their union officials.

There has been no work of any kind in Pinckneyville since last December, when one of the mines worked a month. This was the Southern Gem Coal company, which unfortunately did not pay the men for their December work, refusing to pay 250,000 dollars in wages.

Rich and Wilson Dry Goods Co., Dreimanns Grocery Store, and Sawyers Grocesy Store in Pinckneyville, closed their doors last week—bankrupt. Over six hundred miners worked for the Southern Gem Coal company, and all are now in debt and idle.

I jumped off the Illinois Central train on the way from Belleville to Christopher and the first man I bumped into gave his name as Sam Hawkins. "Is this a mining town?" I asked.

"It was," Hawkins replied.

Hawkins said that one store could easily handle all the business done in the entire town.

No Work Now.

When I asked him if mining is the only occupation, Hawkins answered,

(Continued on page 6.)

KLAN TRIES TO FREE MURDERER IN DOWELL, ILL.

Miners Stop Kluxers in Jail Delivery

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

DOWELL, Ill., August 24.—The war between the Ku Klux Klan and the loyal members of the United Mine Workers broke out twice this week, in Ziegler and here, the Klan both times being beaten.

Armed auto loads of Klansmen were rushed into Dowell in an attempt to free Thomas Reese, who cold-bloodedly murdered a Mexican, Louis Gomez.

The Klansmen Beat it.

The Mayor of Dowell, a miner, swore in the entire town as deputies and captured a dozen Klansmen and put them in jail. The rest, when they saw they had a fight on their hands, turned tail and sped away without saying goodbye.

One of the men who was most boastful about getting the murderer out of jail was a Klansman named Eldridge, who drove over with a carload of machine guns and rifles to show the damned Dowell miners how it is done in Herrin. He was lucky to get back to Herrin alive.

It Runs in Family.

Gomez, who left a pregnant wife and two children, had been raided by the Klansmen charged with selling bootleg liquor. The "100 per cent American" Reese warned Gomez if he told the Dowell authorities, he would kill Gomez, and he carried out his threat. Gomez was not, of course, given a fighting chance for his life, being shot down in cold blood, from behind, by the patriotic Klansman.

Thomas Reese is the son of Ed Reese, who shot and killed "Fatty" Knight, at Dowell last month. They are both Klansmen. One hundred per cent Americanism seems to run in the family.

Building Trades Head Hits Fake Stories in the Chicago Tribune

James J. Conroy, secretary of the Chicago Building Trades Council, repudiates the statement of the Tribune that the council, which met all last week at the Roosevelt building, was considering the calling of a general strike of the building mechanics and laborers for a uniform scale of $1.50 an hour.

"There is not one word of truth in that statement," said Conroy, "nothing of that nature was taken up at our conference. It is a cooked up story without any foundation."

Labor Bank Discussed.

When asked whether it was true that they were considering unionising the Landis award contractors' jobs, he said that there was no such thing as Landis award any longer, but that the Tribune continually persists in dragging it in when referring to the Building Trades Council.

He said the meeting discussed the establishing of a labor bank in the loop, in conjunction with other labor unions, but nothing definite had been decided upon.

AMALGAMATED OUT IN STRIKE IN MONTREAL AGAINST CONTRACTORS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 22.—Amalgamated Clothing Workers are no strike in Montreal, Quebec, says a wire just received by the union's general headquarters here. The strike was called to force contracting and independent shops to live up to agreements.

Success is looked for; unemployment has not affected the industry in Eastern Canada to the extent it has hit the United States markets.

WRITE YOUR STORY OF IDLE EVIL AND MAIL IT TO DAILY WORKER

Here is another article from our staff writer, Karl Reeve, about unemployment conditions as they exist today among the idle coal miners of Southern Illinois. Similar conditions exist everywhere thruout the mine fields of the nation.

The DAILY WORKER is unable to send its correspondents into all the mine fields. It, therefore, asks the coal miners everywhere to write their own stories of the conditions they face. These stories will be published. They will have considerable weight, we are sure, in forcing tardy action on this vital problem of how to meet the crisis confronting the nation's jobless.

Tell your stories to the DAILY WORKER. It is fighting your battles. It is standing by you, side by side, in helping you wage your fight for your class interests. Address all correspondence to the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

ORDER YOUR BUNDLE OF THIS SATURDAY'S CAMPAIGN EDITION

There are still a few days in which to rush in your order for this Saturday's Special Campaign Edition of the DAILY WORKER. This will be our First Special Edition of the present Communist campaign. It will be filled with the best articles and cartoons that can be procured. The Communists alone have a message of emancipation for the workers and farmers of this country. The story of the Communist struggle for workers' rule will be graphically and interestingly told. Get a bundle of this issue for distribution among your neighbors and shopmates. The price is $3.50 per hundred. Address your order to the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

LABOR FIGHTS OPEN SHOPPERS IN BELLEVILLE

Organizing to Support Garment Strikers

By KARL REEVE

(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Aug. 24.—The Central Trades and Labor Council here has mobilized its strength, voting to fight the strike of the girl employes of the Meyers garment factory here to a finish, following the sentence of ninety days in jail and two hundred dollars fine plastered on William Christopher, business agent for the Trades council, by the labor-hating judge, George Crowe.

Almost the entire Chamber of Commerce heard Judge Crowe sentence Christopher to the jail term and fourteen others, cited for defying the anti-picketing injunction, to fines of from 50 to 200 dollars each. The manufacturers were heard to declare that "if the Meyers company puts over the open shop by means of the courts, we are going to do it too."

Fighting Organized Bosses.

William Christopher, reporting on the strike to the meeting of the Trades Assembly last night, declared: "We are fighting not the Meyers Pants Company alone, but the organized Manufacturers Association of Belleville. It is the opening wedge in a drive to break organized labor in Belleville and foist the open shop on the town."

A meeting was arranged of all the Trades Asembly officers, together with the presidents and secretaries of every local union for Friday night, to organize the fight against the open shop drive of the garment shop. This meeting was ordered by the council to consider plans for a monster protest meeting of all trades union members in the Belleville district, to include St. Louis, East St. Louis, Collinsville, O'Fallon, and the surrounding towns.

Insurance Co. Reniga.

The Hoppe Insurance Company was placed on the unfair list because after the sentence they refused to go bond for the men after agreeing to do so. Pressure from the manufacturers of the town caused them to deny the strikers and labor leaders bail.

Twelve of the girl strikers were present at last night's meeting and were assured all possible support by the Trades Assembly. Anita Reisend, one of the strikers, told the DAILY WORKER reporter that she has been working for the Meyers company for three years, and her salary at the beginning of the strike was $9.50 a week.

Martin Sisk, Justice of the peace and delegate to the Federation of Labor, called on the unions to grant financial support if the Amalgamated does not give the girls strike benefits.

Dont Mind Fines.

In spite of the fines yesterday, the girls were on the picket line at six-thirty this morning, doing effective work and turning every scab away.

I was given the floor for ten minutes and promised that the DAILY WORKER will throw its columns open to news of the strike. I told of the acute and widespread unemployment, not only among the Illinois miners, but thruout the country in all lines of work. I declared, "The struggle here against the open shop in the Meyers pants factory is directly related to the bitter struggle all over the country. The capitalists are taking advantage of the industrial crisis to try to completely destroy the unions and to institute the open shop.

"You are faced with the responsibility of aggressively combatting the open shop drive and the unemployment crisis, especially at the state convention of the Federation of Labor in Peoria on September 8. In the past year the unions have dwindled in size and the craft system has proved ineffective.

Calls For Militant Attitude.

"There are two attitudes which you can take at the Peoria convention. You can either take the listless, pessimistic attitude that 'nothing can be done,' or you can launch an aggressive fight on the anti-union employers. Many things can be done. Resolutions can be introduced in the convention, demanding that the employers pay wages during the unemployment periods and that work day be shortened so as to ensure work for all.

"Resolutions on the nationalization of the mines and other industries can be introduced which will institute an aggressive fight on the reactionary wave which would result from the pessimistic attitude of reactionary labor leaders. Amalgamation and organization of the non-union workers must be pushed.

Henry Reichling was let off yesterday by Judge Crow on the ground that "Reichling did not know there had been an injunction granted."

U. S. SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS IN CLASH IN HAWAIIAN ISLES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, Aug. 24.—The entire personnel of Battery A, 55th U. S. artillery, was confined to their quarters as a result of a clash between the soldiers and civilians of the Kalihi district. Four persons are in hospitals including one soldier who was in civilian clothes and was mistaken for a civilian.

The clash is probably a result of the hostility between the populace and the American soldiery dating back to the strike of 15,000 Filipino sugar workers this year, on plantations in which the American governor-general Ferguson has large stock holdings. The hostility has been greatly aggravated by the sentencing of 203 Filipino scouts to 5 year jail terms for having demanded pay equal to that of the white soldiers.

STONE TO QUIT AS TREASURER OF LAFOLLETTE FUND

Engineer's Head Said to be Disgruntled

WASHINGTON, August 24.—Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., son of the Wisconsin senator, confirmed the report already published in the DAILY WORKER that Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and one of La Follette's original backers would resign his post as treasurer of the La-Follette-Wheeler campaign fund.

In a letter to William H. Johnston, Chairman of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, Stone gave as his reason for relinquishing the treasurership that it would be impossible for him to handle the mass of detail connected with the task.

Mr. Johnston urged Stone to reconsider his decision, assuring him that he would have ample assistance in handling the details connected with the collection of a large fund.

Stone's Feelings Hurt.

It appears that there is considerable friction over the manner in which the campaign fund is being raised. Mr. Johnston is charged with the task of raising funds from those organizations affiliated with the C. P. P. A. Mr. Stone is treasurer of the C. P. P. A. and was named to assist Mr. Johnston as treasurer.

Attorney General Elkern of Wisconsin has given the job of raising funds from the general public with the manufacturer of patent medicines, W. T. Rawleigh, of Freeport, Ill., his treasurer.

Gompers also has his finger in the pie and so has the socialist party. This aggregation of labor fakers, capitalists and renegade socialists are suspicious of each other with the result that their unity is of the Donnybrook Fair variety.

Only the politically unsophisticated will give credence to Warren S. Stone's excuse for resigning his position as treasurer of the LaFollette committee. It is known that he had his heart set on the vice-presidential candidacy, which he did not get. Neither is he crazy about the publicity and prestige that has come the way of William H. Johnson as a result of the latter's chairmanship of the C. P. P. A. and the entrance of LaFollette into the presidential marathon.

Washing the Stone Hands.

At the time the St. Louis conference of the C. P. P. A. took place, Stone was about to wash his hands of the whole business, as he knew that the labor fakers were then about to endorse William Gibbs McAdoo for the presidency on the Democratic ticket. But for the oil gusher which squirted on Mac, they would have done that. Stone is reported not to hold the abilities of Mr. Johnston in high esteem and was willing, at the time of the St. Louis conference, to attribute the C. P. P. A.'s failure until then, to his poor political skill.

It is reported that Warren S. Stone, is supporting Herbert Baker, progressive republican, for the governorship on the republican ticket in Michigan. Baker is supporting the Coolidge-Dawes ticket for the presidency.

BOB'S FORCES SPLIT APART IN MISSOURI

Faker Quits Because of S. P. Support

By MAX SHACHTMAN

The campaign of "Fighting Bob" has received another wallop from the general direction of the state of Missouri with the news that Timothy O'Neil, self-appointed manager of the La-Follette drive there has skipped off because the socialist party was found among his colleagues.

O'Neil is a smooth article, the owner of a scab restaurant and quite slick in soliciting funds from labor fakers in various causes that he has engaged in in the last few years.

Walks Off With Dough.

Last spring he attached himself to the Farmer-Labor party and in a few weeks dropped out, refusing to give an account for the sums of money he had collected.

Then he appointed himself local champion of LaFollette, opening offices in an expensive hotel and began to rally support to Bob among the labor fakers. It developed that John M. Nelson, manager of LaFollette's campaign nationally, got suspicious of Timothy and transferred the control of the campaign into the hands of R. T. Wood, president of the State Federation of Labor and an ex-anarchist.

O'Neil Double Crossed.

It should be noted that O'Neil had been requested in Chicago, July 11, by Nelson to call a state convention of LaFollettites in Kansas City and later informed him to lay off since the national committee had decided to hand over the progressive drive to Wood.

Timothy then issued a statement releasing all his followers from their pledges and stating that the old "warrior, 'Fighting Bob' has degenerated in his old age to a substitute for that picturesque but visionary character, Eugene V. Debs, and if that is his choice I predict for him about 2,000,000 votes, a hundred thousand of them from Missouri."

It is now to be seen that the Socialist Party will soon find itself in a pretty fix. The denunciation of La-Follette by Hell an' Maria Dawes for the former's alliance with the Socialists is an indication of the trend of thought in the minds of many of the opponents of LaFollette—and of many of his supporters, like Timothy O'Neil. The very same thing is seen in the refusal of the Central Trades and Labor Council of New York refusing to attend and boycotting the convention of the local C. P. P. A. because it included the socialists.

May Drop Socialists.

The only way for LaFollette to maintain the allegiance of many of the petit-bourgeois and labor fakers who are now on his warship will be to drop the Socialist Party pilot. LaFolette's past record shows that he will not think twice about it if he considers it at all. He always was an anti-Socialist.

Now that the Socialist Party has gone the way of all flesh, it cannot but expect to be treated a little worn dishcloth who has flung her affections into the none too receptive arms of LaFollette who is by no means over-tickled by the support of the S. P.

A few more incidents like the Missouri one and he may have to drop the adoring S. P. lady from his list of visitors.

Cal Aids Farmers.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 24.—President Cal Colilidge Friday thouth that he had completely eliminated the troubles of American farmers by helping Ed Blanchard, local farmer, to pitch hay while dressed in brand new dinky overalls and slouch hat.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, Aug. 30.

BALTRUSAITIS, LAST FEDERAL PRISONER IN ESPIONAGE ACT, THREATENED BY DEPORTATION

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Joseph Baltrusaitis, last of the federal prisoners under the war-time espionage act, is leaving Leavenworth penitentiary after commutation of his sentence by President Coolidge. The persecution of Baltrusaitis was unique in the history of espionage act cases, the American Civil Liberties Union, which filed the brief for executive action, states. His arrest in St. Louis, in November, 1920, did not occur until two years after the signing of the armistice. His trial did not take place until eight months after the espionage act was suspended by congress. The quaint theory of the prosecution was that Baltrusaitis' act in distributing a Communist leaflet, interferred with "military service."

Charge Frame-up.

A "frame-up by a department of justice agent," is the language used by the Liberties Union in describing the case. The political prisoner, a Lithuanian, faces deportation on a warrant issued by the department of labor. The Civil Liberties Union is opposing this additional persecution. Baltrusaitis is confined in the county jail at Leavenworth, Kansas, pending action.

GITLOW GETS GREAT OVATION AT STRIKE MEET IN PATERSON

By H. M. WICKS.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

PATERSON, N. J., August 24.—Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party, received a tremendous ovation here while speaking before the striking silk worker's meeting.

The settlement committee has established its headquarters and is busy signing up mills on the two-loom basis which are estimated to affect one-half the total number of strikers who will return to work victorious on Monday.

The manufacturers are desperately seeking to break the strike, but they have been unable thus far to achieve any concerted action.

Two strikers, however, were brutally assaulted by police in outlying districts last night, for picketing, but otherwise the strike is the most peaceful ever staged in Paterson. The leaders of the strike have the situation well in hand.

HILLQUIT-CAHAN CONFERENCE FOR NO-CLASS PARTY

Central Labor Council Boycotts Powwow

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The machine of the Hillquit-Abe Cahan needle trades unions bureaucrats combination today jammed thru the endorsement of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket at the convention of the local "conference for progressive political action."

It was worthy of note to hear the old Socialist Party politicians raying loud and long about the service to the people that had been performed by the two fakers who are running on the "progressive" ticket.

Tuvim Moans.

Abraham Tuvim, chairman of the convention, and old guard Socialist partyite, deprecated the action of the Central Trades and Labor Council in advising its affiliated organizations not to have anything to do with the local progressive political activists.

William H. Johnston, chief labor faker in the C. P. P. A., spoke to the convention and made the following pleasing statement to the revolutionary Hillquiters:

"This movement is not for any class but it is for honesty and good sense in government." He did not even as much as mention a word about a labor party.

Herman Eckern, campaign manager for LaFollette in the east and counsel for the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company, appeared for LaFollette as a "good investment."

Hillquit Gets Claque Ovation.

When the theoretician of the remainder of the S. P., Morris Hillquit, arose to speak, the claequers in the audience gave him an ovation. He repeated the same renegade speech that he delivered at the Cleveland conference, endorsing LaFolletts and Wheeler and saying, "The two candidates have a record of noble services in their whole official life."

The labor bureaucrats and socialists pledged the financial support necessary to carry on a campaign.

PROTEST HOLDING UP OF ANTI-WAR DAY LITERATURE

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Neither the postmaster general nor his assistants have offered any explanation for their action in holding up literature opposing the "Defense Day" program of President Coolidge.

The protest and demand for an explanation made by the American Civil Liberties Union concerning the Post Office's action in stopping circulars sent out by "Friends of Peace," a San Francisco organization, has been met by a brief acknowledgement from Acting Solicitor R. J. Donnelly, that the protest was received.

Pacifist Literature Nabbed.

The Liberties' Union's protest refers specifically to the action of Postmaster F. K. Hahn of Cedar Rapids, Ia., who ordered the seizure of circulating the literature. Attorneys for the Union have examined copies of the circulars and "found nothing in them which violates any federal statute," the protest declared.

If the Post Office Department does not rescind Hahn's order the Union will take the case into the courts and will charge the administration with using public departments to suppress constitutional criticism of its policies.

Called for Crepe.

One of the circulars confiscated by Postmaster Hahn carries a heavy black border and reads as follows: "A Day of Mourning—Black Friday, September 12th—For the Victims of the War—It Must not Happen Again." Another circular urges that "everyone wear a mourning band on the arm" on Defense Day, and that "every flag be half-masted and draped with crepe."

Dawes Plan Thru the Banker, Young, Gets Fascisti Decoration

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Owen D. Young, member of the Dawes Reparations Commission, at present European ambassador of the House of Morgan, wears the decoration of the Grand Cordon of the Crown of Italy.

Owen D. Young, prince of the House of Morgan, is now a Commendatore of King Victor Emanuel, of Italy, in recognition of his part in putting over the Morgan-Dawes scheme.

* * * * *

The decoration of the Italian monarchy was conferred upon the American banker at the personal request of the head of Italy's bloody Fascist dictatorship—Benito Mussolini.

This is the same decoration that was conferred on General Leonard Wood while acting on a reception committee to General Diaz, the Italian militarist, while on a visit to this country, shortly after General Wood had served the steel trust so well in the Gary strike zone, where many workers, including three Italians were murdered by the lackeys of the bosses.

Mussolini, himself, wears one of these decorations, heavy gold-corded band hung over the head, with a big jewelled medallion resting upon the breast. He has given the same decoration to the biggest of his Fascisti chiefs.

Let the workers of the United States take careful note that this Fascist decoration now hangs from the neck, not only of the butcher of the workers, General Wood, but also from the neck of the Wall Street banker, the Dawes' expert, Young. Let the workers ponder the meaning of this display of affection between their oppressors.

* * * *

When Elbert H. Gary, head of the Steel Trust, was in Italy, he gave an interview to his own kept press, stating that Mussolini rule was badly needed in the United States. Mussolini rule is the dictatorship of capitalist reaction against Communism. Mussolini rule, the rule of Fascism, wades to power thru the blood and over the dead of the working class.

During the two short years it has been in power, since Oct. 28, 1922, the Mussolini Fascisti Dictatorship, in Italy, has murdered 9,000 workers and sent 40,000 more to prison.

The armies of Black Shirted Fascisti, who have ravaged the land with the support of the Fascisti government, have burned 700 workers' co-operatives; burned and destroyed 225 Labor Temples; and burned 100 Workers' Theatres and Libraries. The barbarism of an Attila, descending on Rome, was not more devastating.

The rule of Fascism is the rule of the revolver, the dagger and the torch, that seeks to wipe out every spark of independent working class thought and action.

This bloody reign of terror culminated in the assassination by Fascisti of the workers' member of the chamber of deputies, Giacomo Matteotti, who sought to expose the deals between the Mussolini government and the American oil magnate, Sinclair. Italian Fascism sought to drown in blood its "Teapot Dome Scandal," just as it had sought to drown in blood the resistance of the whole working class.

IT IS BECAUSE HE IS A LOYAL UPHOLDER OF THIS CAPITALIST RULE THAT THE BANKER, YOUNG, HAS HAD CONFERRED UPON HIM THE GRAND CORDON OF THE CROWN OF ITALY.

* * * *

Ten Fascisti dictatorships rule in Europe today over as many nations. The Dawes plan will give strength to them all, if it can be put into effect.

* * * *

The war had not yet ended in 1918, when the Dictator Mannerheim ruled by the might of his fist on behalf of the German Kaiser and the Finnish White Guard in Finland. Workers' Rule had been established thru majority edict, but it was crushed thru the ruthless use of armed force, with allied consent, and 70,000 Finnish workers were sent to prison, and 7,000 murdered, including most of the officials of the Workers' Government.

To this day Fascism rules in Finland, where recently 200 more workers were sent to prison, because they were active in a Labor Party, sympathetic to the Communist movement.

It is because he is a loyal upholder of this capitalist rule that the banker, Young, receives from the hands of the Italian Mussolini, the Order of the Grand Cordon of the Crown of Italy.

* * * *

One more instance. The workers of Hungary had established their own Soviet Rule. It was overthrown by black reaction, with the aid of the American food dictator, Herbert Hoover.

In order to crush the whole Hungarian working class, all the organizations of labor, political parties and trade unions alike, were wiped out. One hundred thousand workers were thrown into prison—the Budapest Court of Justice openly confess to 70,000—while tens of thousands were put to death after the most barbaric tortures. All this under the rule of the Hungarian Fascist dictator, the Regent Horthy.

* * * *

What an array of assassins of the working class!
Mussolini! Horthy! Mannerheim!
They have served capitalism well.

Being themselves the most loyal servants of capitalism, they recognize those who have shown themselves most loyal to capitalism.

Therefore Owen D. Young, the American banker is rewarded by Italian Fascisti Rule with a royal decoration.

There is no surer indication from the ruling class of Italy that it feels the Dawes plan is for its protection against the whole Italian working class.

* * * *

The German workers, thru their Reichstag representatives, are making war upon the Dawes plan. The French workers, thru their spokesmen in the Chamber of Deputies, are fighting the Dawes plan. The Italian workers, forbidden the use of parliamentary action under the Mussolini dictatorship, fight the Dawes plan with whatever weapons they have. The Russian workers, thru their Soviet Government, thru the Communist International, call for a struggle against the Dawes plan. Workers of America! Make war on the Dawes plan, that receives the royal decoration of bloody Fascism.

HUGHES FEARS SOVIET-CHINA RELATIONSHIP

Russia Doesn't Permit Any Bluffing

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Secretary Hughes, stoutly shutting his eyes to the geographical and political fact of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, has permitted Minister Schurman to have an interview with Leo Karakhan, Soviet ambassador to China, and now Karakhan has tossed back into Hughes' face, with caustic remarks, a note sent by Hughes' agent, Edward Bell, to the Soviet envoy.

The note stated that while Hughes was willing that the Soviet ambassador should regain possession of the Russian legation property in Peking, on certain conditions, this consent must not be taken as a recognition of the existence of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

Karakhan Angers Charlie.

Karakhan has aroused the wrath of Hughes by his refusal to receive, indirectly, a scolding from an American charge d'affaires. The American note seemed to the Soviet envoy to imply that Karakhan was in Peking to stir up trouble for the diplomats from capitalist governments. He let it stated that the Soviets must agree to the protocol of 1901, which gives to all foreign governments adhering to it the right to share the control of the legation compound properties, and to import foreign soldiers as a guard for their diplomats.

So Karakhan will henceforth, as the first ambassador of any power to China, be chairman of the diplomatic body, and as the Soviets may now send Red soldiers to Peking to associate with the soldiers of the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan, Hughes faces new anxieties. He must insist that these Soviets uphold the imperialist claims of the other powers as against the Chinese. At the same time, the consequence of this harmony of action is that Red soldiers will mingle freely with the soldiers from other nations, in this place of exile, and the morale of the non-Soviet troops will be sorely tested.

Fear Soviet Virus.

State department anti-Soviet propagandists feel that Moscow will send to Peking the very pick of its propagandists, in Red army uniforms. They remember what happened to the German kaiser's troops in time of war, when the Communists went among them. They realize that, with Ambassador Karakhan at the head of the diplomatic corps in Peking, representing the powerful neighbor with whom China has just made important treaties, the influence of the American minister and the French and British and Japanese ministers upon the wavering policies of the Peking government is merely impudent.

Schurman is hurying to Washington, to tell Hughes how near at hand is the twilight of the old diplomatic gods.

BUSINESS MEN IN TRIP TO MEXICO FOR NEW MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug 24.—Plans for the Mexican jaunt which 100 bankers and industrialists will take next month in search of more nesting places for American dollars were completed at a conference between E. M. Herr, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company; Frank D. Waterman, president of the L. E. Waterman company and W. W. Nichols, vice-president of the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company.

Received by Mexican Bosses.

The New Yorkers leave September 9, for St. Louis where the delegations from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Buffalo will unite. The travelers will spend only four days in Mexico City, from September 14 to 18, as the guests of Mexican business interests, but this is considered sufficient time to clinch agreements which will make Mexico still further dependent on Big Business in the United States.

Only One American Named.

TOKYO, August 24.—An American is the only foreigner named in the 1,500 honored on account of their conduct during the earthquake period of a year ago. He is E. D. Barton, representative of the United States Steel Corporation.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

DETROIT LABOR CONFUSED OVER ENDORSEMENTS

Mixup After Rejection of Communist Plan

By CYRIL LAMBKIN.
(Special to the Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 24.—The political policy of the leaders of the organized labor movement of Michigan, which at first appeared to be merely confusionist, is now proving to be consistently treasonable.

One after the other of the so-called progressives endorsed by organized labor are proving their enmity to labor, yet the labor leaders instead of repudiating them seek to justify their own position in supporting them.

Endorses Backs Coolidge.

At the time the Detroit Federation of Labor endorsed Herbert Baker for governor it passed a resolution roundly condemning Coolidge. But shortly after his endorsement by the Detroit Federation Baker endorsed Coolidge. Senator Couzens who was also endorsed by the Detroit Federation of Labor and the Progressive Voters League also came out for Coolidge. And now John W. Smith who is endorsed by the same leadership for mayor of Detroit, immediately following his endorsement by the Street Carmen's Union stated in reply to a question of an interviewer that in his opinion the chief purpose of the recent demand of the Street Carmen's Union for higher wages was to embarrass and discredit municipal ownership and operation.

When the real progressives, the delegates to the Detroit Federation of Labor who are members of the Workers Party, moved for a united front of labor to function independently in the campaign the erstwhile progressive leaders argued that a united front could be achieved only by getting behind Baker and the other so-called progressives. Actually instead of a united front there was created the greatest disunity and confusion leading directly to treason. The Railroad Brotherhoods and the Street Carmen's Union have endorsed Groesbeck, the Detroit Federation and the Progressive Voters' League, which is the Michigan C. P. A., have endorsed Baker for governor and Couzens for Senator, and now Baker and Couzens are supporting Coolidge, when the two organizations mentioned support LaFollette.

Workers Awakening.

The working men and women of Michigan in whom political consciousness is just awakening will learn a great lesson. The Workers Party of Michigan will see to it that the confusion and betrayal of the official leadership shall not have been in vain.

MARX TO RAM DAWES PLAN DOWN THROATS OF GERMAN WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—"In the event the Dawes plan fails to find a two-thirds majority) in the Reichstag, the German government is determined to use all constitutional means to force its acceptance in order that the door may not be slammed against further negotiations with the allies," Chancellor Marx told the Reichstag Foreign Relations committee today.

The German bourgeoisie is certainly determined to use all means —constitutional or otherwise—in forcing the imperialist Dawes plan down the throats of the long suffering workers. The only serious opposition that Chancellor Marx find to the plan in the Reichstag will be led by the Communists who are firmly against Dawes' concoction being tied to the hands and feet of the oppressed German working class.

Elevator Builders Out; Bosses Claim They Have Struck

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Seventy members of the Elevator Constructors' Union are out here, protesting against settlement terms imposed in a dispute with the A. B. See construction concern, on work for the Otis Elevator Co. They claim they are locked out; the companies say they are on strike A mediator from their national union is on the way here.

Bold Holdup Pulled.

Seven armed robbers entered the Inland Trust and Savings Bank and walked off with $5,000. They ran to the street and stopped the drivers of two automobiles and made their escape in them.

PARTY LOCALS RUSH TO ORDER "THE SPECIALS"

Daily Worker Campaign Issues in Big Demand

No sooner than it was announced, Local Chicago placed an order for 10,000 copies for a special Chicago edition preceding and advertising the Foster campaign meeting. And they have ordered 10,000 admission tickets for good measure.

But Milwaukee is not to be outdone. Before receiving news of this special edition they have requested prices on a special Wisconsin edition of at least 20,000 copies. And details sent them may even induce an increased order.

Toledo is on the DAILY WORKER map of live wires. Thru the efforts of Comrades A. W. Harvitt and J. Willnecker Local Toledo comes thru with an order for 1,000 copies of a Toledo edition—plus 1,000 tickets. Writing us Comrade Harvitt thinks the special edition is "a whale of an idea." Now that's some spouting. It's an idea of building your local; advertising your meeting, of lining up with the plans of the National Campaign Committee of the Workers Party that insists that "The Daily Worker Goes with Foster and Gitlow."

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Small, hidden in "the wilds of Jersey"—is wild to have it. This small local wants 1,000 copies for an Elizabeth edition—and 1,000 tickets. This is action. The kind of action that promises to give some of the large town locals something to blush about.

ST. PAUL has a DAILY WORKER agent—and a DAILY WORKER Committee. And this local thru Comrade Anderson is now drawing up an order for a special St. Paul edition for the Gitlow meeting. Their letter promises a large order.

These are live locals. Here is action. The kind of action that builds the local and builds the Party. Briefly, the kind of action that "brings home the bacon."

Send in that Subscription Today.

ELECTED ON LABOR TICKET, SUPPORTS MOBILIZATION DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—"Bob sisters who should be minding their own business." That is the retort of supervisor Phil Katz, ex-veteran, elected on a labor ticket, to the protest made by Methodist ministers of the bay district against Mobilization Day. The ministers wired their protest to President Coolidge, but have received no reply.

SEES UNION OF SOUTH AMERICA OPPOSING U. S.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

CHAUTAUQUA, New York, Aug. 24.—Samuel G. Inman, lecturer of Columbia University on Pan-American relations today told the Institute of International Politics of the Federal Council of Churches of the likelihood of the United States being confronted with the organized opposition of a united Latin-America.

Mr. Inman, in laying stress on the danger to the United States in such isolation, declared: "Latin America is the land of the future in that there is room for the over-crowded nations of the world.

Commerce Advances Rapidly.

"Latin America with three times more territory than the United States has at present about the same population ($0,000,000) as had the United States in 1900, but her foreign commerce today is $5,000,000,000— twice what ours was twenty years ago."

In citing the tendency of the Latin American republics towards joint action, Mr. Inman pointed out that the stability of political institutions in these countries is growing and that for nearly a century arbitration of their disputes has been a common practice.

An especially important sign of the times in Latin America, in the opinion of Mr. Inman, was the decision of the Southern republics to "go ahead and work out a program independent of this country" after the United States refused to discuss the League of Nations at the recent Pan-American conference held in Santiago, Chile.

U. S. May Stand Alone.

"There is great danger," declared Mr. Inman, who has for some time been watching Latin America affairs closely, "that the United States will thus find itself more isolated in the world than pictured by the fondest dreams of the narrowest nationalists."

IRON WORKERS WON'T BE TAIL TO LAFOLLETTE

Union Stands for Farm-Labor Party

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Declining to become what they call "a tail of LaFollette," the Architectural Iron, Bronze and Structural Workers' Union of this city informed the New York conference for progressive political action that it would not participate in its convention.

LaFollette Won't Bring Party.

The workers in this union reaffirmed their adherence to the formation of a genuine labor party and denied that the hopes of some labor unions that a labor party would be born out of the LaFollette movement would ever be realized.

The letter which was sent by the union to H. J. Chapman, chairman of the Greater New York conference for progressive political action reads as follows:

My Dear Mr. Chapman:

Your communication, inviting us to the monthly meeting of a Conference for Progressive Political Action, has been read at our Executive meeting, and I was instructed to inform you, and thru you, the Conference, that the Architectural Iron, Bronze & Structural Workers Union is not in favor of being a tail of LaFollette, or any other such progressive movement.

For United Action.

That may be true, that there are a number of Labor Unions that hold, that thru this action of indorsing LaFollette, a Labor Party will be born in the United States. We do not believe this to be the result; however, we are for united action of the labor masses on the industrial and rural fields.

A convention has been held lately, that had for its object this very principle, and it was the progressive elements associated with you and LaFollette that have obtained and opposed this movement to become a strong and permanent political factor in the life of the American Labor masses.

We believe that the time will come when the workers and farmers of the United States will cease to be a tail of any such movement as yours and will become strictly independent.

In anticipation of that day, we are,

Very truly yours,
(signed) A. VOSK, Secretary.

BRITISH SPIES ARE STILL ACTIVE IN SOVIET RUSSIA; CHEKA KEEPS ORBS OPEN

LONDON, Aug. 24.—That Great Britain is conducting an extensive espionage system in Soviet Russia with the British embassy as headquarters, is the only conclusion to be drawn rom the remarkable protest made to Russia by the British government on the request of its Moscow charge d'affairs Hodgson.

Hodgson complains that he is continually watched by the Soviet police and that this alleged surveillance is embarrassing to British and Americans who would like to confer with him.

Left Wing British labor leaders attribute Hodgson's nervousness to a guilty conscience.

Scare Boss of Tacoma to Run For Democrats

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 24.—Congressman Johnson, Chairman of the House Immigration Committee, and author of the recent immigration law, may have a strong opponent in this coming election, Major Everett Griggs of Tacoma having entered the race for the Democratic nomination.

Major Griggs is president of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber Co., the largest mill in Tacoma. All its employes are compelled to join the scab union, the Four L's, which has recently endorsed a wage cut to $3.20 a day. He employs many Japs, and his views on Jap immigration oppose Johnson's.

The congressional district involved covers all southwest Washington.

The past records of both candidates tells any thinking worker here that no matter which one gets in, the worker will be out.

Jap Government Hitting Rocks.

TOKYO, August 24.—The question of army reductions may force a fall of the Kato cabinet, it was reported today. The government parties would abolish seven divisions while the military heads are fighting for a reduction of only four.

PHILLY STRIKE OF CLOTHIERS IS SUCCESSFUL

Over 1,000 Already in Settled Shops

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—With more than 1,000 new members in the union and many employers signed up the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' strike just concluded marks a new lease of life for the organization.

Enthusiasm Conquers Obstacles

The strike began Aug. 6 with about 2,500 walking out. Open shop employers scoffed that the Amalgamated had chosen the wrong time to strike but the workers' enthusiasm overrode the difficulties of the industrial situation.

Big daily mass meetings were held and the strike lines were strengthened by additions from the smaller non-union shops. Mass picketing was used on several critical days.

More than 40 manufacturers and nearly 70 contractors signed new agreements requiring the following: Registration of all contractors; elimination of home work, sub-contracting and sending work to so-called corporation shops; all cutters to be members of the Amalgamated; the Union Labor Bureau recognized as the source of supply for additional help; a minimum wage agreement to be worked out later. In place of the individual contractors, with whom the union found it difficult to do business, a contractors' association of 58 has been organized.

Still Difficulties Ahead.

The Philadelphia market still shows a large percentage of unorganized shops, in contrast to such strongholds of the Amalgamated as New York, Rochester and Chicago, but union officials believe that the new life and strength that has come into the Philadelphia movement will override all difficulties.

Report Trotsky Ill Again.

LONDON, August 24.—A report privately received here states that Leon Trotsky is in ill health again.

Send in that Subscription Today.

MINIATURE LAYOUT OF SPECIAL EDITIONS OF THE DAILY WORKER FOR FOSTER AND GITLOW MEETINGS.

SPECIAL NEW YORK EDITION

THE DAILY WORKER GOES WITH

FOSTER AND GITLOW

TO YOUR CITY!

To assist the campaign managers and committees at the Foster, Gitlow and all campaign mass meetings of the Workers Party—as a part of the first Communist political campaign.

THE DAILY WORKER WILL UPON REQUEST PRINT A SPECIAL LOCAL EDITION FOR YOU!

THE entire front page (as in the adjoining miniature) will be covered with local news, a local headline and a large streamer ad of your meeting—AT A COST LOWER THAN YOUR ADVERTISING.

THIS is part of the plan of the National Workers Party Campaign Committee. The Daily will help build your local—your local can build the Daily—We can build the Workers Party.

How many thousand will your local order?

WRITE OR WIRE FOR FULL DETAILS.

THE DAILY WORKER.

1113 W. Washington St. Chicago, Ill.

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS' AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT.

THE DAILY WORKER

Communist Candidates For President: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER For Vice-President: BENJAMIN GITLOW

FOSTER SPEAKS IN N. Y. FRIDAY

MASS MEETING HERE IN SUPPORT OF WORKERS PARTY CAMPAIGN

COMMUNIST PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE HAS LONG RECORD OF SERVICE TO LABOR

William Z. Foster, candidate on the Workers Party ticket for president of the United States, needs no introduction to the masses of this country. Never has any American been able to look back upon a record so full of earnest and able service to the working class. Never has the American working class had a leader from whom more could be expected in contemporary action and able leadership in its immediate and future struggles. That the ablest organizer and most tireless worker in the American labor movement heads the ticket of the Workers Party in the coming elections is proof a hundred-fold that the only party of labor will enter the campaign militantly and with all its energy the thousands of adherents of independent working-class politics can command. Foster's speaking tour of the country has brought each day new hundreds of working men and women into the fold of the Workers Party campaign.

A real leader and organizer of the working class, Foster is an ideal candidate to head a labor party political ticket. He is no mere collector of phrases and ideas; Foster has demonstrated by years of actual experience in the class struggle, that is not only able to point out the correct path, but is (Continued page 3)

Unemployed Hail Workers Party Program.

Severe unemployment is constantly increasing in every part of the country as the season progresses, is proving to be a bitter but a valuable lesson to thousands of workers. They are becoming convinced that the Workers Party has the only solution for the unemployment problem. Among them Foster and Gitlow and the rest of the Workers Party ticket is finding some of its greatest strength.

Miners Hard Hit

Miners in the soft coal fields are reported said to be almost 100 per cent. afloat for Foster, in the Pennsylvania anthracite area, Ohio and Pennsylvania fields Foster is best known.

(Continued page 2)

Young Workers Taking Leading Part in Campaign

While it is true that the greater proportion of the membership is as yet unable to vote, the Young Workers League is nevertheless taking a leading part in putting the campaign of the Workers Party before the workers. In the unions, in

(Cont. on page 2)

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER
Communist Candidate for President

PLACING FULL TICKET IN FIELD IN NEW YORK

The Workers Party will contest the New York State elections in every office. A complete ticket is being placed in the field and petitions have been printed and put in circulation. Party members and sympathizers are now at work in securing signatures to these petitions. A comprehensive organization has been worked out for every district with captains in charge.

All Workers Party branches have also supplies both for state and district petitions in this work should apply for their supplies at once at one of the following places:

WORKERS PARTY LOCAL OFFICE:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Pyrmit:
47 Chrystie Street.
Volkszeitung:
15 Spruce Street.
Workers' Home:
246 East 15th St.
Jones' Restaurant:
439 East 116th St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store,
127 University Pl.

All Workers Party branches and members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

GREAT CROWD EXPECTED AT OPENING MEETING OF COMMUNIST ELECTION DRIVE

In what is expected to be one of the greatest meetings ever held by Labor in this city, the Workers Party will open officially its election campaign here with a mass meeting in

Trade Unionists Line Up for W. P. Ticket

Sam Gompers and W. H. Johnson may have pledged the labor vote to LaFollette but they are going to have a hard time to deliver if the militant trade unionists of many trades in this city indicates anything. A strong rank and file movement has been developing which is rapidly swinging hundreds of workers into the Foster-Gitlow camp. Out of the election campaign a strong and militant left wing movement will result.

Rank and File For Foster

Particularly among the garment workers and the metal trades workers is the Foster-Gitlow sentiment manifesting itself.

Workers Party Campaigns for New Members

As a last these Workers Party war chests the swinging into the field nothing but its nerve to begin and with the hopes that militants will produce the huge amount of $100,000 to convince the workers of this country to the Workers Party.

During August and October the Party is campaigning for new members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

Party Campaign Fund Mounts but Thousands Are Still Needed

Pronounced success has been met in the efforts made both locally and nationally to finance the Foster-Gitlow campaign. While Big Wall Street is producing the coin for Coolidge and Davis and Little Wall Street is forking over the necessary funds for La Follette, the wage workers who have a head for thought and a heart for fighting are digging deep to make the Communist campaign possible. Could a campaign manager be planning a cheap campaign this year and expect to spend less than $10,000,000. Davis will have to raise and will spend even less than that, while Lafollette spokesmen believe they can get by on $5,000,000 for a paltry $5,000,000.

As a last these Workers Party war chests the swinging into the field nothing but its nerve to begin and with the hopes that militants will produce the huge amount of $100,000 to convince the workers of this country to the Workers Party.

During August and October the Party is campaigning for new members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

Party Campaign Fund Mounts but Thousands Are Still Needed

Pronounced success has been met in the efforts made both locally and nationally to finance the Foster-Gitlow campaign. While Big Wall Street is producing the coin for Coolidge and Davis and Little Wall Street is forking over the necessary funds for La Follette, the wage workers who have a head for thought and a heart for fighting are digging deep to make the Communist campaign possible. Could a campaign manager be planning a cheap campaign this year and expect to spend less than $10,000,000. Davis will have to raise and will spend even less than that, while Lafollette spokesmen believe they can get by on $5,000,000 for a paltry $5,000,000.

As a last these Workers Party war chests the swinging into the field nothing but its nerve to begin and with the hopes that militants will produce the huge amount of $100,000 to convince the workers of this country to the Workers Party.

During August and October the Party is campaigning for new members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

Plan Parade

Great preparations are being made to make this meeting a striking example and beginning for the entire campaign. Enthusiastic militants have prepared to meet Foster at the railroad station upon his arrival here from Boston. A parade has been arranged from the station to the hall.

Seats at Premium

Because of the known demand for seats, the committee in charge has found it necessary to permit admission by tickets only. Tickets have been printed in sufficient number to provide for each seat in the hall. No more will be issued. Those who wish to be sure of obtaining entrance to the hall should secure their tickets in advance. They may be obtained at any of the following places:

Workers Party Local Office,
208 E. Twelfth St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store,
127 University Pl.
Freiheit,
47 Chrystie Street

WORKERS PARTY ELECTION CAMPAIGN MASS MEETING

Speakers: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER and Others

MADISON SQUARE GARDENS

FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 15, AT 8 P. M.

Admission 25 cents Doors open at 6:30

The Workers Party in Action

CHICAGO HANDS IN $500 FOR CAMPAIGN FUND

Branches Urged to do Likewise

The party branches in the city of Chicago have made the first big response to the party appeal for a $100,000 campaign fund for the fight for Communist principles in this election campaign. Five hundred and one dollars and fifty cents have been turned into the local organization by fourteen branches in making their first report.

The branches which are included among those making this quick response to the party appeal are the following:

Lettish Branch	$100.00
Northwest English	57.50
South Slavic Branch	50.00
Northwest Jewish	42.00
Englewood English	40.00
Douglas Park English	34.00
Douglas Park Jewish	31.00
German Branch	25.00
Harry Greenwood, Mid City Eng.	25.00
Russian Branch	25.00
Maplewood Y. W. L.	20.00
Irving Park English	15.00
Rykov, Y. W. L.	10.00
Junior City Central Com	5.00
Junior/ Marshfield	1.00
North Side English	21.00
	$501.50

This is an example which should be followed by every branch of the party. The kind of campaign which the party carries on depends upon the work which is done by the branches in raising money for the campaign.

Follow the Example!

If every branch follows the example of those which have made such a splendid beginning as Chicago we will create a campaign fund which will enable us to reach hundreds of thousands of workers with our statement of the principles of Communism and rally them to our support in the election campaign and add thousands to the membership of our party.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.

Monday, August 25.

Northwest Jewish—2442 N. Morne Ave.
12th Ward Italian, 1103 S. Loomis St.
Italian, 1402 S. 50th Ct.

Tuesday, August 26.

Ukrainian No. 1—1532 West Chicago Avenue.
Russian, Pullman—11453 South Park Avenue.
N. W. English—2723 Hirsch Blvd.
Irving Park English—4031 Drake Ave.
Meeting of all District Campaign Managers—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.

Wednesday, August 27.

Membership Meeting — Workers Lyceum, 2723 Hirsch Blvd., 8 p. m.

Thursday, August 28.

Enlarged City Executive Committee—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.
Eleventh Ward Italian—2429 South Oakley Blvd.
Scandinavian Karl Marx—2733 Hirsch Boulevard.
Scandinavian, West Side—Zelch's Hall, Turner Circle and Superior.
Scandinavian, Lake View—3206 North Wilton Street.

Friday, August 28.

Scandinavian, South Chicago—641 East 61st Street.
U. W. S. S. Membership Meeting—Workers Lyceum, 8 p. m.

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.

Monday, August 25.

Madison and Woods Sts.—Auspices, Mid-City Branch; speakers, Harney Mass, Louis Herson.
Roosevelt and Marshfield—Auspices, Marshfield Y. W. L.; speakers, P. Herd, M. Lurie.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

14th St. and 48th Ct.—Auspices, Cicero Workers Party and Y. W. L.; speakers, P. Herd, J. Edwards.
Division and Wabansia—Auspices, North West Lithuanian Branch; speakers, G. Maurer, Lithuanian and Polish.
Kedzie and Ogden (or 16th)—Auspices, Douglas Park English, Y. W. L.; speaker, J. McCarthy.

Wednesday, August 27.

Belmont and Wilton—Auspices, North Side Sida W. P and Y. W. L.; speaker, D. B. Easley.
32rd and Halsted Sts.—Auspices, Lithuanian Branch in 4th Congressional District; speakers, Sam Hammersmark, V. Kokaitis.
Roosevelt and Marshfield—Auspices, Luxemburg Y. W. L.; speakers, Harrison George, S. Garver.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.

Party's and friendly organizations do not set conflicting dates.

Monday, Sept. 1—U. E. L. Picnic, Altenheim Grove.

Sunday, Sept. 7—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.

Sunday, Oct. 12—Foster-Gitlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).

Saturday, Oct. 18—John Reed Memorial Meeting.

Saturday, Oct. 25—Freiheit Ball, Ashland Auditorium.

Friday, Nov. 7—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Nov. 15—Young Workers League Ball.

Nov. 27-28—Daily Worker and Labor Defense Council Bazaar.

Wednesday, Dec. 7—U. E. L. Dance, West End Hall.

Wednesday, Jan. 21—Lenin Memorial Meeting, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Feb. 28—Red Revel.

Essex County, N. J., Announcement.

General membership meeting will be held Aug. 25, at 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 704 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J. All members of the Workers Party in Essex County should attend. Candidates for coming election to be nominated and petitions will be given out for signatures.

CHICAGO PARTY MEMBERSHIP MEETS

THE MEMBERSHIP meeting of Local Chicago, Workers Party, Wednesday evening, August 27, at the Workers Lyceum, 2723 Hirsch Blvd., will give the membership of Chicago an opportunity to listen to the progress that the Workers Party is making in the elections campaign on a national scale. Joseph Manley, national campaign manager, will tell us what is going on in the rest of the Party. How the workers are gradually beginning to see that LaFollette is an illusion and a fraud and is an inveterate enemy of the working class. The headway that "Bill" Foster and Ben Gitlow are making with their Communist message to the workers all over the country will be outlined.

Petitions Being Circulated.

All over the United States, the Workers Party is working hard to place the Workers Party presidential candidates and also state and congressional tickets on the ballot. There is no doubt that in the various states the Communist forces will succeed in doing that. In Illinois and Chicago we are carrying on the same task and we feel certain of success here also. We have a good start, signatures are being obtained by the hundreds. Our aim is to put every candidate nominated for state and congressional districts on the ballot in addition to the presidential candidates.

The membership meeting Wednesday among other things will review the activities of local Chicago in getting signatures on the petitions and in spreading our propaganda thru systematic distribution of the DAILY WORKER, Election Platform of the Party and other literature.

The Congressional District Campaign Managers will make their reports and their experiences will serve to help all the comrades in furthering the work.

Spread Much Literature.

The elections campaign of the Workers Party is not a vote catching proposition. That is a very secondary matter. Our use of the elections campaign is to spread our propaganda to aid in finding the circulation of the DAILY WORKER, to help build the Party by getting in more members. (We have started off with distribution of 15,000 copies of the National Election Platform. Expect to handle ten times that many during the course of our election campaign).

At this meeting therefore, Comrade Earl Browder, editor of THE LABOR HERALD, will outline the task of the Workers Party in the DAILY WORKER drive and the membership campaign in which every member of the Workers Party is expected to get a new subscriber to the DAILY WORKER and another member to the Workers Party.

Local Chicago is beginning to forge ahead in the membership drive. In the coming months we must endeavor to get 200 to 300 new members every month and many times that number of subscribers to the DAILY WORKER.

Everybody Come Out.

Every Party and Young Workers League member shall be on hand at this membership meeting. We expect also to hear that every member has gotten at least 100 signatures to place the Workers Party candidates on the ballot.

Everybody to the membership meeting, Wednesday, August 27, at the Workers Lyceum!

Election Campaign Notes.

There will be a meeting of campaign managers and candidates of congressional districts, Tuesday, Aug. 26, at 8 p. m., in Room 307, 166 West Washington St.

We must have a review of the campaign in order to check up on the progress made and the work that remains to be done in order to put the Workers Party candidates on the ballot. Please bring in all the petitions with signatures on them and be prepared to make a thorough report on the work done in your district covering the following points:

1. Organization of your district.
2. Number of signatures obtained to date.
3. Street meetings.
4. Campaign leaflets.
5. "Sign Here" posters.
6. DAILY WORKER.
7. House to house canvas.

Sept. 15th is the final date for all the petitions to be in. We have only three weeks in which to put the Workers Party candidates on the ballot. This very important work must take precedence every anything else. Be sure to attend the meeting Tuesday evening, August 26th.—Martin Abern, City Secretary. Local Chicago Ida McCarthy, Secretary, Campaign Committee.

EDUCATE YOURSELF FOR THE STRUGGLE

Class in English (for foreign-born workers) begins September 10; tuition fee $2.00.

Class in Trade Union Tactics begins September 11; tuition fee $1.00.

Enroll Now at Local Chicago Office, 166 W. Washington St. (Phone State 7985)

PARTY CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK

By HARRY M. WINITSKY, Campaign Manager.

THE task of placing the Workers Party ticket on the ballot in the state of New York is a tremendous one. New York is probably the worst state in the union in which to place a new party ticket on the ballot. In order to put the presidential and vice-presidential electors on the ballot in New York must have 45 elctors, one from each of the 43 congressional districts and two at-large from the state, which is a very difficult task. This, however, has already been accomplished in New York and the nomination petitions will be ready within a few days for circulation.

Need 12,000 Signatures.

In order to have the Workers Party become an official party in this state, the laws of New York require at least 12,000 signatures on a nominating petition for state candidates and for tickets. There are 62 counties in the state and the law further requires us to procure at least 50 signatures of citizens in each and every county in the state. In order to make sure that we go on the ballot we must have at least 150 signatures in each county or approximately 25,000 signatures thruout the entire state of New York.

If we should fall below the required number of signatures in any one county, then the entire ticket is thrown off the ballot and we are disqualified. The petitions for the national and state tickets have already been printed but before we can begin to collect signatures we must have our petitions for the local candidates in New York City. These will most probably be ready in a few days.

In addition to the 25,000 signatures needed thruout the state for our national and state tickets, we must also in addition procure 1,500 signatures in each congressional and senatorial district in which we run a candidate, and 5 per cent of the total votes cast in each assembly district in which we intend running candidates.

Need Party's Full Strength.

This is a tremendous task and unless all members of the party in this state get into line and become actively engaged in securing these signatures, there is the danger that we may not go on the ballot this year. This year above all others, it is important that we go on the ballot.

Each party branch must immediately elect a campaign manager and a campaign committee and these names sent to the district office upon the election of these comrades. All comrades in the branches must be mobilized by their respective campaign managers into canvassing committees to go out and secure the signatures in their districts. In order that this most important work may be done in an efficient and systematic manner, plans are being mapped out by the district campaign committee and these in turn will be turned over to the branch and section campaign managers to put into practice. There must be no duplication of signatures otherwise the petition will be void. It is therefore absolutely essential that this office have the names of all branch and section campaign managers so that the petitions and instructions can be sent to them.

The campaign is about to start and each branch must mobilize its forces for this work. Unless our ticket goes on the ballot our campaign will not be successful. Each branch should, as its first order of business, elect a campaign manager and campaign committee, and the mobilization of comrades begun. If your branch does not meet within the coming week then the branch organizer should call either a special meeting of the branch or of the executive committee for this purpose.

Campaign On In Earnest.

Our campaign is now on in earnest. We are determined to put the Workers Party ticket on the ballot, and this can only be done with the active assistance and support of each and every comrade in the district. The Workers Party is a well organized and disciplined army of Communism.

These orders from general headquarters of the party mobilization in this district must be carried out in an efficient and systematic manner.

Comrades to the task!

The campaign is on!

All comrades to their posts, the fight has begun!

Cleveland, Ohio, Readers.

The DAILY WORKER is now being sold daily at Schroeders Newsstand, E. Superior Ave., opposite the post office. Also by news agent on square near monument.

Polish Workers Down Tools.

KATTOVITZ, Poland, Aug. 24. — Because the industrialists of Upper Silesia are trying to put over longer working hours most of the workers in the iron, gas and coke industries have downed their tools.

MASSACHUSETTS SOCIALISTS BACK DONKEY SENATOR

State Convention Won't Nominate Against Walsh

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 24.—By refusing to nominate a "socialist" for senator, the state convention of the socialist party, consisting of 35 dispirited delegates, virtually endorsed the candidacy of David I. Walsh, democrat.

In the words of Welsbord, S. P. organizer, "If we socialists can't vote for Walsh, we hope our sympathizers will."

It was intended to put this over without discussion, the slate for the state ticket presented to the convention not having any senatorial candidate. But an immature delegate from the Y. P. S. L. spilled the beans.

Morrill, of Haverhill, who presided, spoke of his association with Walsh in the state legislature, of his liberal views, how Walsh was even in favor of proportional representation!

Louis Marcus, the only voice raised in opposition, said "most of the speakers claiming to be active in the interests of organized labor, have no connection with labor and never carried a union card; as a matter of fact, labor does not care what we do here today, we have no influence on them one way or the other." He was of the opinion that Hillquit had a nightmare to go into such a thing, said Walsh was a skimmer, worse than Lodge and Gillette and that no convention could make him vote for a democrat.

Intended to Keep Mum.

Arkin (Boston agent for the yellow Forward), said it was never intended to have this come up but for this delegate, pointing to the Y. P. S. L. representative. If Welsbord would withdraw his objection the convention could proceed. It was then discovered that Welsbord had no vote and as there was no other objector—Marcus being silenced—the state went thru with no senatorial candidate.

The convention was a dismal failure. No amount of discussion could revive it. It is a corpse. The undertakers, Beark and Roewer, didn't give this thing a decent burial. The 35 delegates from the 15 odd branches had no life, no enthusiasm, no interest—there was the usual confusion.

Arkin wanted the analysis of society in the program to include "another class—the poor farmers who do not work for anyone." Welsbord pointed out that "much was left out of the program—there was no mention of war and imperialism for instance."

Better Not to Mention "Socialism."

One of the women delegates rose to remark: "We should not mention socialism; talk about it like Claessens does—the Trinity, rent, interest and profit, and talk about women—women are idealists. I do in my letters and have sent them to the New Leader, and the say they are good."

After four hours of this sort of thing the convention adjourned and the younger delegates in attendance went over to Boston Common to hear the Communist speakers for the Workers Party at the regular Sunday afternoon meeting.

To Study War Here.

MADRID, Aug. 22.—Two members of the Spanish Generla Staff will go to Washington next month to study American military schools.

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

Time, Place and Speakers.

Tuesday, August 26.

10th Street and 2nd Avenue—John Marshall.
10th Street and 2nd Avenue—Sam Dawson.
106th Street and Madison Ave—Fanny Warshawsky, I. Potash.
125th Street and 5th Ave.—Joe Brandy.
138th Street and St. Ann's Ave.—Rebecca Grecht.
Grand Ave. and Debevoise St., Brooklyn—S. A. Pollack, S. Nessin.

Wednesday, August 27.

7th St. and 2nd Avenue—J. C. Oblans, Russian Workers Club Lakers.
116th St. and Lenox Ave.—John Brahdy, Elsenfish.
110th St. and 5th Avenue—Joe Padzuk, B. Lubliner.
Grand St. Extension, Brooklyn—N. B. Sparer and others.

Thursday, August 28.

115th Street and Madison Ave.—G. E. Powers.

Friday, August 29.

Jefferson and E. Broadway—Harry Hartman.
10th St. and 2nd Ave.—W. W. Weinstone.
106th St. and Madison Avenue—J. S. Poyntz.
103rd St. and S. Blvd.—Rebecca Greght and Simon Feishin.
138th Street and Brook Avenue—John Marshall.
Grand and Roebling St., Brooklyn—I. Potash, B. Davidson.
Stone and Pitkin—Joe Brahdy.
Pitkin and Varet Sts., Brooklyn—Jewish speakers.
Stone and 52nd Sts., Brooklyn—Wintisky, Undjus.
12th Ave. and 42nd St.—S. Darcy, S. Plaskon.
25th St. and Mermaid Ave., Coney Island—L. Landy and others.

Saturday, August 30.

148th Street and Willa Ave.—Joe Padzug and Edward Martin.
Grand St. Extension, Brooklyn—Joe Brahdy and Lety.
Stone and Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn—Charles Brower and Jack Stachel.

Union Hill, New Jersey.

Tuesday, Aug. 26, 14th St. and Bergenne Ave.—Simon Feishin.
Saturday, Aug. 30, same place—Ludwig Lore.

LEAVES SOCIALIST PARTY IN DISGUST AND AFFILIATES TO THE REVOLUTIONARY WORKERS PARTY

The National Office of the Workers Party is in receipt of the following letter from E. D. Ladd, Elmira, N. Y., who signs himself as a delegate to the recent convention of the socialist party held in Cleveland after the C. P. P. A. convention:

C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Comrade:—

Find enclosed copy of your former letter. The literature has not been received.

There are quite a number of revolters here from the Cleveland craft union convention. They agree with me that capitalism makes Socialists and that such deals as we got at Cleveland makes Communists. There is nothing left for us but the Workers Party.

Send me that literature. We are anxious to get busy.

E. D. LADD.

Similar expressions of disgust at the betrayal of the working class movement by the socialist party at Cleveland are reaching the National Office from other sources. The Workers Party is ready to welcome to its ranks every class conscious worker who is ready to carry on a class struggle for the establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government and the abolition of the capitalist system. It invites those members of the socialist party who cannot accept the latest betrayal of the working class movement by that organization to join the Workers Party.

FAIL TO GET OUT OF COURT

(Continued from page 1)

ganization so much damage, and were witnesses to the entire affair, some statement is required from us.

"We have observed that Rowan, Chairman of the G. O. C. of I. U. 120; Bowerman, Chairman of the G. O. C. of 440; Trotter, Chairman of the G. O. C. of 520; Anderson, Chairman of the G. O. C. of 210-220; Raddock, Secretary-Treasurer of I. U. 440; Grady, Secretary-Treasurer of I. U. 520; Griffith, alternate General Organizer, and McMurphy, alternate General Secretary-Treasurer have applied for an injunction against Tom Doyle, General Secretary-Treasurer of the I. W. W., and Joe Fisher, General Organizer and Chairman of the G. E. B., as a result of which for days now, the General Headquarters at 1001 West Madison St., Chicago, have been locked by court order.

"In regard to the origin of the controversy which led up to this extraordinary action by Rowan, Bowerman, and the others already named, we have little to say, except that it was trivial. It is now evident that their personalities and old quarrels play the most important part in this discussion, next to the crude work of plain stool-pigeons.

Injunction Is Disastrous.

"The results of the injunction have been absolutely disastrous. The circulation of our publications has been terribly hampered by our ejection from headquarters.

"We have also witnessed the damage done to the general organization and to all organization work by the expulsion of the industrial union and general offices from the general headquarters building.

"We have seen the enormous injury done to the I. W. W. press thru the action of Bowerman, Trotter, and others with them, in going to the bank where the organization money is deposited, and by threat of legal procedure, persuading the banker not to cash any organization checks, including those intended for the organization press. This was done about two weeks before the injunction was applied for, and while those in favor of it were still meeting in the headquarters building.

"We have witnessed with dismay the editorials and special feature articles in all sorts of capitalist, labor union, and political newspapers in regard to the application for an injunction against officials of the I. W. W., by Rowan, Bowerman, etc., feeling sure that the I. W. W. has, by their action, received such an injury in the eyes of the world, as will do us untold damage in organization campaigns, make us ridiculous in the opinion of the unorganized, and bring us all to shame.

"We, the editors of I. W. W. publications, are all members in good standing of the I. W. W., and we have always been proud of our membership. We have always felt that the I. W. W. was a revolutionary labor organization and the hope of the working class. We cannot understand, how anybody carrying an I. W. W. card, and professing to believe in its principles, could so far forget himself as to go to the bitter enemies of the organization, the capitalist courts, and plead to have the sheriff install them in power over the rest of the organization. We cannot understand, how any sincere member of the I. W. W. could think for a moment that he had any right, whatever his provocation, to bring the capitalist courts into the internal affairs of the organization, under any circumstances.

Demand Repudiation of Injunctionites.

"We are of the opinion that anybody who even considers such action has demonstrated that he is either insincere or insane.

"We believe that the only way the organization can retrieve itself is by immediately denouncing, and repudiating the actions of Bowerman, Rowan, Trotter, Griffith, McMurphy, and others concerned in this attempt to get an injunction, and by immediately expelling all of them from the I. W. W.

"Therefore, in view of all of these facts we, the undersigned editors, recommend:

"1.—That a general Constitutional Convention be called immediately to decide this controversy, the two-year rule being temporarily waived, by action of the membership at large.

"2.—That complete support be given to all I. W. W. publications, especially during this critical situation until the General Convention decides the matter.

"3.—That during this period, the regularly elected officials of the I. W. W., Doyle, Fisher, and Morris, be recognized.

"4.—That all financial support be withdrawn from Bowerman, Ryan, Rowan, Trotter, Anderson, Griffith, McMurphy, Raddock and Grady until the membership can take action to expel them.

"5.—That organization work should be carried on even more than before.

"Vern Smith, (Card No. 794,514), Editor Industrial Solidarity; Editor Pro Tem Industrial Pioneer.

"Louis Bartha (Card No. 76,478), Editor Bermunkas.

"Nick Radivoeff (Card No. 272,661), Editor Industrialen Rabotnik.

"Titus Kataja (Card No. 299,562), Editor The Vapautteen.

"Joe Miller (Card No. 255,026), Editor Jedna Velka Unie.

"Adolfo Garcia (Card No. X62,621), Editor Solidaridad."

FAIL TO BREAK WORKERS' RANKS WITH VILE LIES

Attack on President of Musicians is "Bunk"

The Chicago theatre managers are resorting to the old game of confusing the issue on which the strike is to be called by the Musicians' Union on Labor Day by issuing long tirades in the Bosses' press against the president of the union, James Petrilla.

His Car is Gift.

"The attack that Harry Riding, President of the Theatrical Managers' Association, is directing against me, and being given widespread publicity in the Chicago newspapers," said Petrilla to the DAILY WORKER reporter, "that I ride around in a high priced car is too silly. Please say to your readers that the car I own is a gift from the members of the organization."

"And there is no truth in the statement that this is an officers' demand being handed down to our members," said one of the union members. "I want Mr. Riding and his associates to know that the very fact that they are making these attacks on Petrilla only strengthens and renews our confidence in him."

Seek 10 Per Cent Raise.

The musicians' union has put in a demand for a ten per cent increase in wages to go into effect Sept. 1st. Unless this increase is granted them the musicians in all the city's vaudeville, burlesque, dramatic and musical comedy shows of Chicago will go on strike. All the actors in these shows have volunteered to go on a sympathy strike to help the musicians.

Barbecue for Los Angeles.

The Workers Party, the Young Workers League and the Trade Union Educational League of Los Angeles have gotten together and are going to have a Barbecue Picnic on Sunday, August 31st at Rose Hill Park. Jack Carney, Editor of Labor Unity, will address the picnic. Tickets 35 cents.

Gas Workers Demand Increase.

The Gas House Workers, employes of the People's Gas Light Co., are determined to get a ten per cent increase in their wages. This was the ultimatum given by the members of the union to the company thru their representative, Patrick Gallagher.

Now It's Settled.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 24.—The biennial conference of the Seventh Day Adventists of California has denounced the teaching of evolution in the public schools, on the ground that it is "diametrically opposed to the very fundamentals of Christianity."

NEGRO PLUTES END CONCLAVE WITH NOTHING

Lackeyism to Whites Marks Sessions

By the re-election of Robert R. Moton as president of the National Negro Business league, in session at the Wendell Phillips high school here this week, delegates to the convention voted to continue a policy of pacifism in regard to the race problem.

Servile to Capital.

Running thru the sessions of the convention was an undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the fawning on government and corporation officials, which is the attitude of the officers of the league, of distrust of the bankers, lawyers, small manufacturers who determine its policies.

This dissatisfaction was evident in the statement of Dr. Will W. Alexander, head of the inter-racial league of Atlanta, Ga., taking exception to the vote of thanks tendered Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears Roebuck and Co., for the money he has given to set up Negro schools in the rural districts. Dr. Alexander suggested that, were the policy of the states fair, Negro children would be educated as a matter of course, if for no other reason than that Negroes must pay taxes as well as whites.

To Peddle Stock.

There was distate, too, in the reception given the announcement of President Moton's million dollar finance corporation, stocks in which are to be peddled to members of the league.

But the conventions of the league are packed with followers of the policy of Robert Moton. A payment of two dollars into the funds of the league entitles anyone to become a delegate. He may represent only himself, but he has a seat and a vote. It is these "two-dollar-a-heads," as the gro newspaper men call them, who are largely responsible for the nonmilitant and pacific view which the league takes on questions of the Ku Klux Klan, of Jim Crowism, of the cowardliness of the major political parties in their attitude towards the oppressed Negro.

Dr. Moton last year received the praise of Southern newspapers for the letters of apology which he wrote when his wife, by mistake, boarded the white section of a Pullman train.

Compare Moton to Morgan.

Praise of Dr. Moton by speakers at the sessions of the league went hand in hand with praise of Coolidge, Dawes and the entire republican administration. Beginning with the statement of Mr. B. J. Davis, president of the Negro Press association, that "we can only hope that Robert Russo Moton will do for the Negro race what Morgan, under the operation of the Dawes plan, is doing for the whole world," and ending with the assertions of Roscoe Simmons, republican organizer among Negroes, that "the Business League is not going to worry itself about the Ku Klux Klan or the question of social equality," and that "only slaves will say that our debt to the party of Abraham Lincoln has been paid," every speaker made some contribution to the policy of cowardliness and evasion followed by these Negro exploiters of Negro labor.

But praise of the republican administration cannot go too far in a league whose president must now go back to Tuskegee institute, in a state which is militantly democratic, and where Negroes live in constant terror of the Ku Klux Klan. So when a telegram came from President Coolidge, congratulating the league on its attempt to solve the race problem by accumulating wealth, Dr. Moton refused to allow a resolution of thanks to be passed, but decided that the matter should be referred to the executive committee for further action.

Of this decision Miss Hallie O. Brown, who two weeks ago refused to permit discussion of racial discrimination during the sessions of the National Association of Colored Women, expressed her hearty approval.

Pittsburgh to Have I. Y. D. Celebration Sunday, September 7

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 24.—International Youth Day will be celebrated by the local branch of the Young Workers' League, on Sunday, September 7, at Walton Hall, Third floor, corner Liberty Ave. and Stanwix St., at 2 p. m.

All workers, young and old, are invited to attend this demonstration, which will be addressed by prominent and capable speakers.

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND
CARL BRODSKY
1123 Broadway, New York City
Tel. Watkins 3626.

The World of Labor — Industry & Agriculture

ELECTION FIGHT IN TEXAS HANGS ON KU KLUX KLAN

Future of Hooded Order May Be Decided

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 24.—With both the Ku Klux Klan candidate, Judge Felix D. Robertson, and the anti-Klan candidate "Ma" Miriam Ferguson, claiming victory in the Democratic gubernatorial run-off, the entire state of Texas is keyed up to a high pitch over the coming decisive victory or defeat of the hooded order in this state.

Mrs. Ferguson, wife of the famous anti-Klansman, is making her fight on the basis of an anti-Klan, prohibition enforcement platform and to vindicate "the political crucifixion of her husband."

Backs Down On Klan Program.

Robertson, feeling the anti-Klan sentiment thruout the state, is saying that if he is elected he will "represent the citizenship of Texas regardless of social or religious creed, with tolerance and justice to all."

The slogan of Mrs. Ferguson, who claims that she will have a plurality of 125,000 votes, is "Me for Ma."

Robertson, whose slogan is "No Ma for Me—Too much Pa," claims a conservative margin of 90,000.

The election was held Saturday. Nomination on the Democratic ticket is virtual election to office in Texas.

Want Child Labor Law to Squash All Boss Competition

(By The Federated Press)

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—To kill unfair southern competition with New England cotton mills and to stop "robbing of cradles," a committee is being organized in Massachusetts to insure ratification by the state of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

"Only thru such an amendment can Massachusetts hope to end the unfair competition and the robbing of cradles by southern mills," declared W. H. O'Brien, who is promoting the committee.

O'Brien makes no mention of the fact that the principal owners of southern mills are northern interests, many of them owning New England mills as well.

CUSTOM TAILORS

Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing of All Kinds

PARIS QUI CHANTE

E. Abboti and V. Cardillo

1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

IMMIGRATION AUTHORITIES HOLD THREE MEMBERS OF THE I. W. W.; NO COMMUNICATION IS ALLOWED

(Defense News Service.)

NEW YORK CITY.—California's policy of persecuting I. W. W. members at every turn is matched by the action of the federal immigration authorities here in holding incommunicado three industrial unionists lately sent here from the commonwealth of orange groves and jails for exile. These three workingmen are held prisoners in the Ellis Island detention pens. They are Jack Gaveel, native of Holland; Roman Sanchez, once of Spain, and X. Timologos, born in Greece.

Were in San Quentin.

Gaveel and Sanchez were sent to San Quentin two years ago after being convicted under the California criminal syndicalism law. There was no suggestion by the prosecution that they had ever committed sabotage or injured property; the mere fact that they were members of the Industrial Workers of the World was enuf to insure a conviction by the trial jury. Both defendants were sentenced to serve from one to 14 years.

They were put into the prison jute mill, a place of deadly atmosphere which has shortened the lives of uncounted inmates of San Quentin. There was a rule in that penitentiary that no man should be kept working in the jute mill more than one year. But when Gaveel had endured twelve months of labor there, he was not taken out of the mill. His health had given way from breathing the dust-laden air, and he refused to work any longer at the jute-machines. He was promptly locked in a dungeon.

I. W. W. Singled Out.

This act of punishment was the signal for 53 other I. W. W. prisoners to quit work. They were all put in solitary, where they were kept as Gaveel had been kept on bread and water for many days. Subsequently various privileges were taken away from all prisoners at San Quentin. No labor nor liberal publications are permitted to enter the institution, and a tight censorship on news of happenings inside has prevailed in recent months.

No information concerning the intentions of the federal authorities toward the three prisoners here is forthcoming from the officials at Ellis Island. It is known, however, that Gaveel is in the hospital there suffering from heart trouble. Sanchez's health is also in bad.

Timologos was sent here from Los Angeles, where he had been held for some time without any accusation against him except that he was an I. W. W. member.

Bootlegger Plugged

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 24.—Antonio Pietro of Astoria was shot and killed today for rum-running after a fight between coast guardsmen in a gasoline launch and Pietro in his "Lynx 11" which had 500 cases of hooch

RUSSIA PROTESTS TO CHINA; CLAIM BOAT OWNERSHIP

Four Vessels Now Run by White Guards

(Rosta.)

PEKIN, (by mail).—M. Karakhan, the Soviet government's representative in China, has addressed a note to the Chinese minister of foreign affairs, asking that the Russian boats which were stolen by the Whites when when they escaped from Russia be turned over to the representatives of the Soviet government.

Four boats, Mongolia, Eldorado, Ochotsk and Zaschitnik are at present in the possession of the Whites in the Port of Shanghai. There are about 600 armed sailors and officers on the boats.

The note points out, that according to the agreement between the Soviets and the Chinese government, no such armed bands can be tolerated on Chinese territory. The note further points out that with the permission of the Chinese authorities, the White Guards are often going ashore in Shanghai and are stacking representatives of the Soviet government, and even plotted the assassination of the representatives of the Soviet union.

"Risks of Capital" Shown in New York Industrial Mishaps

(By Federated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Hazardous nature of building construction work is indicated in the July report for the state Workmen's Compensation Bureau just made public. The 141 industrial deaths for the month are summarized by districts and not by industries, but Commissioner Shientag calls attention to the perils of this class of labor when he says that the 15 deaths in the Albany district show a significant increase from construction workers; for the increase in Syracuse fatalities to 26 he blames building construction work particularly and he specifies that 29 of the 77 industrial fatalities in New York City were occasioned by falls, 16 of which were from ladders, scaffolds and other elevations.

Millions Spent in California Against Syndicalist "Crime"

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—"Crime has cost California $50,000,000 during the last year and will cost $70,000,000 next year," said Clarence Morrill, director state bureau of identification, to the convention of the California division, intl. Assn. for Identification. A large amount has been spent under the criminal syndicalism law, where no offense except membership in a labor organization is charged.

Rating membership in the I. W. W. as a crime, the convention devoted a session to "studies of the I. W. W. organization, legality of evidence, and preparation for successful presentation of facts at trials."

Professional Wobbly Killer Out on Bail in Murder Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—John H. Vail, professional anti-I. W. W. witness, now charged with the murder of a Shasta county game warden, is at liberty on $10,000 bail! Bail up to $25,000, all cash or real estate, has been demanded several times for workers charged with criminal syndicalism. It is freely predicted that Vail's trial will be a farce and that there is small chance of his conviction.

New Radio Uses.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 24.—The Bureau of Education, Department of Interior announces that correspondence courses in radio reception and transmission are offered by the engineering extension department of the Pennsylvania State College.

A workers' government will enable workers to enjoy the benefits of all new inventions whether it be for educational pursuits or for recreation.

BANKER PREDICTS DAWES PLAN WILL GET PROSPERITY

He Means Prosperity for Bankers, of Course

(By the Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—William H. Booth, president of the International Chamber of Commerce and vice-president of the Guaranty Trust company, returning from Europe to New York City where prosperity has waned considerably since he left tells folks not to worry, that prosperity will return on the wings of the Dawes plan. Booth admitted to interviewers that prosperity might be a little slow in coming but he said it would be all the safer for being slow.

He thought, however, that the Dawes plan was only a beginning and that America was likely to participate to a considerably greater extent in the affairs of Europe. Other leading denizens of Wall Street made statements at the same time in behalf of the agreement, among them Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, who labeled the Dawes plan the greatest "peace step that has been taken since the war."

Your Union Meeting

Fourth Monday, August 25

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting.
89	Bartenders, 123 N. Clark St., 8:30 p. m.
1	Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, 910 W. Monroe St.
94	Boot and Shoe, 1939 Milwaukee Av.
898	Butchers, Hebrew, 3420 W. Roosevelt Rd.
638	Butchers, Bohemian, 1870 Blue Island Av.
17742	Cleaners & Dyers, 113 S. Ashland
1307	Clover Workers, 1710 N. Winchester
	Carpenters, 1850 Sherman Ave. Evanston.
2505	Carpenters, 180 W. Washington St
	Cap Makers, 4021 Roosevelt Rd.
20	Carpenters, 2705 W. 38th St.
80	Carpenters, 4033 W. Madison St.
181	Carpenters, 2040 N. North Ave.
199	Carpenters, S. C., 9139 Commercial Ave.
418	Carpenters, S. C., 505 S. State St.
419	Carpenters, S. C., 1457 Clybourn
448	Carpenters, 222 N. West St.; Waukegan.
1367	Carpenters, 2040 W. North Ave.
14	Cigar Makers Executive Board, 166 W. Washington St., 7:30 p. m.
713	Electricians, 119 S. Throop St.
994	Engineers, (Locomotive) 7832 S. Union Ave., 7:30 p. m.
400	Engineers, 6443 S. Halsted Street
401	Engineers, 311 S. Ashland Ave.
569	Engineers, 166 W. Washington St.
198	Firemen and Enginemen, 2431 Roosevelt Rd., 9:30 a. m. Last Sunday. Place of Meeting.
331	Firemen and Enginemen, 65th and Ashland Ave.
668	Firemen and Enginemen, Madison and Sacramento.
18	Glove Operators, 1710 N. Winchester Av.
78	Hod Carriers, 814 W. Harrison St.
59	Ladies' Garment, 328 W. Van Buren St.
74	Lathers, 725 S. Western Ave.
274	Longshoremen, Tug, 355 N. Clark
265	Machinists, 75th St. and Dobson Blvd.
337	Machinists, 1638 N. Halsted St.
378	Maintenance of Way, 1543 W. 103d St.
728	Maintenance of Way, 202 W. 47th St.
27	Painters, 175 W. Washington St.
823	Plumbers, 535 N. Cicero Ave.
191	Painters, 3316 W. North Ave.
147	Painters, 19 W. Adams St.
194	Painters, Madison and 5th Ave.
265	Painters, 205 E. 115th St.
273	Painters, 2432 S. Kedzie Ave.
2064	Railway Clerks, 159 N. State St.
51	Sheet Metal Workers, 1638 N. Halsted St.
	Sailors' Union of Great Lakes, 355 N. Clark Street.
5	Tailors, 180 W. Washington St., 7:30 p. m.
721	Teamsters, 11526 Michigan Ave.
758	Teamsters, 220 S. Ashland Blvd., 3 p. m.
772	Teamsters, 220 S. Ashland Blvd.

Pope to Crown Two Nuncios With Red Hats Next November

ROME, Aug. 24.—Monsignor Caretta, papal nuncio to Paris and Monsignor Pacelli, papal nuncio to Munich, will be elevated to the cardinalate at a consistory in November, it was learned at the Vatican today.

The Vatican is none too happy over the turn affairs have taken in France, tho it is not expected that the French government will display any more haste in making good its pre-election threats to withdraw the Vatican ambassador than on its promise to immediately resume relations with Soviet Russia.

Can Labor Day Parade!

DUBUQUE, Ia., Aug. 24.—For the first time in years there will be no Labor Day parade here, union leaders announced.

EMPLOYMENT FALLING IN NEW JERSEY AND PENNSYLVANIA; OTHERS WORKING PART TIME

(By The Federated Press)

Employment continued to fall sharply in Pennsylvania and New Jersey during July, according to the Philadelphia federal reserve bank. By the middle of the month more than 200,000 of the factory workers employed in these two states on March 15 had been laid off with thousands of those still at work reduced to part time.

In Pennsylvania the number of factory workers fell off 4.4% within the month, total wage payments 10% and average wages 5.8%. This brings employment in the state 13.2% below March with industrial operations reduced at least 24%. The average pay had been reduced by more than an eighth.

Wages Drop 4 Per Cent.

Employment in New Jersey fell 4.1 per cent between June and July, total wages 7.7 per cent and average wages 3.7 per cent. This brings employment in the state 11.1 per cent below March with industrial operations reduced 18.5 per cent. Percapita earnings during the same period decreased 5 per cent.

Steel Wages Way Down.

The month's reductions in certain industries were unprecedentedly sharp. At Pennsylvania iron and steel blast furnaces employment fell 18.3 per cent, total wages 34.3 per cent and percapita wages 19.6 per cent. Other sharp reductions in this state were automobile employment 6 per cent, total wages 11.4 per cent, percapita wages 5.7 percent; heating apparatus employment 12.3 per cent, total wages 22.4 per cent, average wages 11.5 per cent; steel works and rolling mills employment 5.7 per cent, total wages 12.9 per cent, percapita wages 7.6 per cent; foundries and machine shops employment 5.2 per cent, total wages 14.8 per cent, percapita wages 10.1 per cent; clothing employment 13 per cent, total wages 19.8 per cent percapita wages 7.3 per cent, etc., employment 5.6 per cent, total wages 17 per cent, percapita wages 12.1 per cent.

New Jersey Nears Break.

Sharp reductions in New Jersey between June and July were automobile employment 14.4 per cent, total wages 16.1 per cent, percapita wages 2.1 per cent; steel works employment 8.5 per cent, total wages 16.1 per cent, percapita wages 8.3 per cent, clothing employment 6.7 per cent, total wages 12.7, percapita wages 6.4 per cent; building materials employment 18 per cent, total wages 22.5 per cent, percapita wages 5.5 per cent; boots and shoes employment 3.6 per cent, total wages 4.7.1 per cent and percapita wages 17.3 per cent.

Berlin Inhabitants Must be Contented with Only One Room

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—Sixty-nine per cent of the people living in Berlin must content themselves with apartments of one or two rooms.

There is one saloon for every 246 inhabitants. Other amusements are provided by 51 theaters, 166 variety shows, and 317 movie houses.

There are more women than men in Berdin. This is especially true of the district or borough of Wilmersdorf, where there are 60 women to every 40 men.

Kindergarten Idea Spreads.

The Bureau of Education tells us that the kindergarten idea is taking hold in many countries.

"Some of the recent publications of the Bureau of Education on that subject have been translated into Japanese especially for use in the Higher Normal School for women at Tokyo, and into Portuguese for the special benefit of the teachers of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

This translated in simple economics means that more and more mothers are forced to leave their homes to earn a livelihood in Japan and Brazil.

Twenty-Nine Drowned.

CAPETOWN, Aug. 24.—The French district governor and 28 natives were drowned when a bridge on the Thiesayes R. R. in French South Africa collapsed today after being weakened by floods.

BOSTON KIDDIES MUST GET ALONG WITHOUT NURSES

Plutes Withhold Money and 50 Are Canned

By H. S. BLOOMFIELD.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 24.—Fifty trained nurses will go off the pay roll of the Community Health Association on Sept. 1, and a further cut may be necessary unless the Back Bay Textile Mill and Shoe factory owners, wallowing in sumptuous luxury, who are the principal patrons of this association, come across with a little more money. The executive staff is also being depleted.

Upon the benevolences of these chivalrous multi-millionaires who have piled up the profits from the surplus wealth produced by their slaves, depend the lives of thousands of infants of the working class.

Mayor Curley has been forced to take a hand in this situation, in which the responsibility of caring at least for the children will be taken by the city. Thus, the textile barons and Back Bay coupon clippers refuse to care for the children of their slaves when profits are slow in coming in.

The city will take over the baby hygiene work in the stations at Charlestown, East Boston and the North, South and West Ends. This work will be under the direct supervision of Dr. F. X. Mahoney, Commissioner of Health. That the work among the babies is of undoubted importance is shown by the fact that during the fourteen years during which the work has been done, the infant mortality rate in the city of Boston has dropped from 120.10 per 1,000 to 82.49. Thus, in 1922, the lives of 760 babies were saved which would have been lost under conditions of the present time. But in 1923 the mills and shops were producing profits. When there are no profits, the workers and their babies can go to hell; this is the lesson from the system of Capitalist Charity.

Can't Locate World Flyer.

ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER RICHMOND, August 24.—American warcraft were ordered to search the seas for the body of Lieut. "Pony" Locatelli, Italian air ace who accompanied the world flyers, Lowell Smith and Erick Nelson on their hop-off from Iceland for Greenland.

Reading, Penna., Readers!

Attend and Advertise Among Your Friends

MASS MEETING

— in —

READING HOSE HALL,

612 FRANKLIN STREET

TUESDAY, AUG. 26, 8 P. M.

To Be Addressed by

BENJAMIN GITLOW

Communist Candidate for Vice-President of the United States.

Your shopmates, if they know of it, will want to attend. It's your job to see to it that they're invited and that they come. Admission free.

Store for Sale.

8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.

Guaranteed business over $80.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer Depot.

P. MANUSOS

3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

MEN, WOMEN, BOYS AND GIRLS

Learn at Home

A Refined, Healthy, Money-Making Business

During the Long Fall & Winter evenings.

Address:

Marshfield Artificial Flower Co.

CHICAGO, ILL.

WALTHAM WATCH CO. CUTS WAGES, WOBKERS STRIKE

Walk Out in Body Their Reply to Bosses

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

By ONE OF THE STRIKERS.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 24.—The strike of the employes of the Waltham Watch Company because of cut in wages involving over 2,000 workers has entered its second week with the workers as determined as they were on the day they went out that they will accept no cut in their already meagre wages.

The strike started on August 10, when the Waltham Watch Company hung posters all around the plant announcing that there would be a wage reduction of from 5 to 40 per cent. The posters also carried a threat that any worker discussing the reduction at his bench would be immediately discharged.

Boss Comes Down a Petal.

Mr. Boucher, notorious strike-breaker in the New England States and manager of the company was given quite a jolt when that same day the entire plant walked out of the building and declared a strike.

The strikers committee who called on Mr. Boucher later that day to present their demands say he had so completely lost his nerve by this unexpected rebuttal of the workers, he even forgot his warning to them that he would not see any representative of the strikers.

Strikers Submit Demands.

The strikers have presented the following demands to the Company:

(1.) Recognition of the Watch Workers Union.

(2.) No discrimination against union men and all those discharged during the past two years to be reinstated.

(3.) All those who walked out were to be given their former jobs.

(4.) All demands to be settled by arbitration.

(5.) Time and one quarter for over time and time and one half for Saturday afternoon and holidays.

(6.) That their full wage rate prior to cut be restored.

Women Worst Paid.

Girls who received 25 cents per hour were to be cut to 20 cents, giving them the sum of $9.60 for a 48 hour week. Room rent costs them about $3.00 per week in that district. The girls have had a hard time of managing to exist on former wages. Some of the men were receiving as little as $17.00 a week. The proposed reduction would have brought their wages down to $14.45.

The strikers are putting up a heroic battle. They attend to picket duty and have parades every day.

New York, Attention!

THE FIRST GREAT FILM FROM SOVIET RUSSIA

"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"

Produced by Proletkino (Moscow) in co-operation with the Red Army

A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest

8 DAYS

AUGUST 22 TO 29, INCLUSIVE,

At the

LENOX THEATRE

111th Street and Lenox Avenue

Added Film Feature

"RUSSIA IN OVERALLS"

Continuous Performance from 7:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Saturday and Sunday 2 Performances at 3-5, 7-9, 9-11

ADMISSION - - - 50c

PITTSBURGH, PA.

DR. RASNICK

DENTIST

Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.

645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.

1427 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A POPULAR APRON MODEL.

4515. Checked percale and linene are here combined. Crepe in two colors or gingham and chambrey together would be pleasing. This is also a good model for sateen and chintz in combination or alone. If made of one material, piping or binding figured or material in a contrasting color would be attractive.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 4¼ yards of 36-inch material. For waist portions, pockets and belt of contrasting material 1⅝ yards is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A SIMPLE AND ALTOGETHER PLEASING FROCK.

4527

4527. Light gray chambrey with bandings in blue would be good for this little model, or, brown linen with red embroidery. There is a choice of two sleeves with this style, a becoming "baby" puff sleeve, or one in flare effect.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. A 4-year size requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

BELL'S HOTEL,

1921 W. Park Ave.

Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0681.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail
$6.00 per year $3.50...6 months $2.00...3 months

By mail (in Chicago only):
$6.00 per year $4.50...6 months $2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, MORITZ J. LOEB ... Editors
... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Dawes, Friend of K. K. K.

"They were brave men," said Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice-president, speaking of the K. K. K. murderers of Williamson County, Illinois, where Glenn Young, fake prohibition agent and gunman set up a Chamber of Commerce dictatorship under the K. K. K. hood. Thus does Dawes, speaking in the Klan-ridden state of Maine, take a stand for "law enforcement." Every Klansman in the country will be delighted with such a "denunciation." Dawes has won the Klan vote.

Dawes went about as far as he could in putting his stamp of approval upon the Klan, without acutally proclaiming himself a member of it. He justified the Klan in its Oklahoma war, he praised the "motives" of the Klansmen, he credited them with being "law enforcers." In fact there has not been so open a bid for the K. K. K. vote in the national campaign as that made by Dawes.

Perhaps Dawes would have even endorsed the organization, but for the organizational patriotism for his own Fascist gang, the "Minute Men of the Constitution." This is a sort of "super-Klan," being a picked body, carefully excluding the hoi-polloi that give bulk to the Klan, and confining itself to our "best people" who thus constitute the general staff of such organizations of the boobery as the K. K. K. But the boobery must be given a little recognition, to ensure that it votes right. So Dawes gives them a decoration for law enforcement and "bravery."

Coolidge and Dawes; Davis and Bryan; LaFollette and Wheeler—none of these sets of candidates has any fundamental quarrel with the Klan. None of them would speak out against the Klan in their official pronouncements. All of them covertly solicit its support. That is because all of them stand upon the same belief in the sacredness of capitalism, and of the capitalist constitution. They are all agreed that the dictatorship must be of capitalism over the workers. Only the revolutionary workers, under the leadership of the Communists, really fight against the Klan, because only they really fight against the capitalist system, for the protection of which the Klan is the illegal armed force today.

Rewarding Virtue

The city of Columbus, South Carolina, commemorated, the other day, the death of a Negro preacher who served the Lord and his earthly masters of seventy-five years. In honor of the Negro messenger of God, the mayor of the town ordered all work stopped while the funeral procession was on.

We suppose the cynics and skeptics will now be asked to stop all their unfounded talk about maltreatment of the Negroes in the United States. This little event will be pointed out as living proof that even in death the Negroes are accorded equality even by the much-maligned South.

And the press makes particular mention of the fact that the preacher worked for one cent a year. This fact is cited as proof par excellence that the Negro was virtuous. What more could one ask from a mere human being than praying to the Lord and serving Him at the munificent sum of a penny a year!

It is interesting to observe what is virtue and what is vice in the eyes of the exploiting class. That which, if on a grand scale, tends to enhance the profits and political power of the capitalists is virtue. That which tends to undermine the employers' power is vice, a crime, a blow struck at society. In short that which helps the ruling class maintain itself in power is supposed to be in the interest of all society.

The student of historical materialism can readily grasp how concepts of virtue arise and take root in the economic conditions, in the system of production and exchange, in the class relationship growing out of the organized industrial order. We need but look at the capitalists of the various countries glorifying the untold sacrifices of the working masses in the war to make the world safe for plutocracy by resorting to that hollow mockery, to that vile fraud on the sacredness of the lives of the workers—the "unknown soldier" celebrations. The very acme of virtue is reached in the eyes of the employers when a working man, an expropriated inhabitant of any country, has sacrificed so much to the cause of the perpetuity of the profit system that even the remains of his body cannot be identified.

Yet we are sometimes incited to question why it is that the bosses always seek to reward and honor the virtues of the workers, as a class, when they are dead. We are even more often driven to ask why it is that the ruling class always makes sure to reward its own virtues here on this earth, where and when they live. The poor Negro preacher, like the forsaken white unknown soldier, is a monument to the avarice and greed of the capitalist exploiters.

Get Out Your Old Clothes

The Chicago Christian Industrial League, one of the innumerable charity organizations that gathers up the crumbs from the table of capitalism, and uses them to ease the strain of the human wreckage caused by the system, has caught an inkling of what may be expected by the workers during the coming winter to witness extensive unemployment. wealthy families of Chicago, asking for a round-up of all the "cast-off clothing, furniture, cooking utensils, and anything else that is lying around useless."

The Christian League says that it expects the coming winter to witnes sextensive unemployment. It will use the cast-off articles it collects to give work to some jobless and homeless men and women who would otherwise starve or freeze. Those who are thrown helpless into the arms of the Christian League will repair the old clothing, etc., and in return receive "board and lodging."

No one will accuse these Christians of arriving at the conclusion of threatening unemployment this winter, thru any economic analysis of capitalism. It has become rather an accepted idea that this is going to be a bad winter. The Communists pointed out the inevitable crisis a year ago, and again, particularly, last March. Now that the pinch is being felt so strong that the Christian Leagues are issuing an S. O. S. for all the old clothes from the bourgeois cellars, to keep the unemployed alive, perhaps more workers will begin to set up and take notice.

But, of course, this is not "important" enough for presidential candidates to take note of. It is a beautiful system that we have, and so much better than that of the terrible Bolsheviks of Russia, who took the houses, factories, railroads, and government away from the capitalists, instead of taking their old clothes. But there is one presidential candidate, William Z. Foster, who says we should forget about the old clothes. Take over the government, nationalize the big industries, and put all the unemployed to work, is the message to the working class of the Communist presidential campaign.

Thicker Than Blood

In the realm of political and industrial relations class interests are thicker than blood. In the last instance the interests of the employers, as a class, exploiting the working men rise above the artificial and social differences of color, race or creed.

Just now our well-kept Chicago press is going out of its way to boost a conference of Negro business men representing an insignificant minority of the ten million Negroes sweating blood and profits for the American capitalists. This handful of menials, seeking to ape the customs and manners, seeking to swallow in whole the philosophy and arrogance of the white business men, is being deified as the one group that will and can bring salvation to the very much oppressed Negro people in the United States.

Compare this rousing welcome accorded a few Negro bosses, petty business men, and aspiring exploiters, the National Negro Business League, with the cold reception that greeted the convention of even the Sanhedrin, held a few months ago in Chicago. Why the enthusiastic applause for the one and the cold shoulder to the other? Both are Negro organizations. Wherein is the difference?

Merely to ask these questions is to answer them. In the gathering of the Sanhedrin there were working class elements. In the confab of the Business League there are no such flies in the capitalist amber. In the conference of the Sanhedrin an attempt was made to discuss the liberation of the Negro masses from all forms of exploitation, by black as well as by white bosses. In the sessions of the Business League convention only ways and means to enhance the profits of exploiters are discussed.

And while this unrepresentative gathering of Negroes is in session and being given the widest and most favorable publicity, a far more representative Negro gathering is at work in New York, the Universal Negro Improvement Association, and is being almost ignored and at best maligned by the same well-kept press the country over. The same reason for the difference in treatment prevails here. In the sessions of the Universal Negro Improvement Association there are even more working class elements represented than there were in the Sanhedrin and an even stronger attempt was made by the Communists to unify the struggles of the exploited workers regardless of their color.

The Negro Business League is an adjunct and an auxiliary to the powerful white capitalist clique. Its purpose is to advance a few Negro exploiters at the expense of the millions of poor Negro working men and women. This organization is held up as a model because its activities tend to strengthen the capitalist system as a whole and make for the enhancement of all employing class interests.

Indeed class interests are thicker than blood and, in the last instance, in political and economic struggles, rise far and above all other interests.

"Hell an' Maria" Dawes denounces socialists for their designs on the capitalist system. Nobody knows better than Dawes that the capitalist system is perfectly safe from the socialists. The best friends his "expert report" had in Europe were the socialist presidents and premiers.

The only revolutionary ticket in the field this year is the Workers Party ticket. A vote for Foster and Gitlow is a vote for Communism. A vote for any of the other parties is a vote for capitalism.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

AS WE SEE IT - -

By T. J. O'Flaherty

(Continued from page 1)

held Dawes responsible for this loan. Yes, Dawes can keep his mouth shut, tho it is open many times too often.

It is interesting to watch the capitalist politicians trim on the Ku Klux issue. The Republican convention in Cleveland was dumb on the question. At the Democratic convention, the anti-Klux elements led by Al Smith tried to condemn the Klan by name. It failed by two votes. John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for president and Charles W. Bryan, the vice-presidential candidate, who were satisfactory to the Klan, were accepted as outstanding progressives by those who formerly opposed them.

At the LaFollette convention in Cleveland, the politicians dare not mention the Klan by name. But recently LaFollette seeing that the Klan fortunes were ebbing and realizing that he would receive a heavy Catholic vote in the East that was off the Democratic reservation temporarily at least, provided he gave the hooded order a piece of his mind. This he did. Walton beat the Klan in Oklahoma. According to reports the Klan has lost Texas. Then John W. Davis came out and flayed the Klan despite the fact that he has the endorsement of Imperial Wizard Evans. But Davis did not want to lose the big Catholic vote and no doubt George Brennan of Illinois wants something to show his Irish nationalist followers who do not like the idea of voting for a good friend of England like Davis who in addition is considered a favored son of the invisible Empire.

None of these political fakers is sincere. While the Klan raped, burned and killed innocent people, they were silent. LaFollette did not utter a word against the outrages committed by the Klan during the past two years. Neither did the heads of the Democratic and Republican parties. As already pointed out in previous issues Klansmen admit that the organization orders the murder of its enemies and yet we have no prosecutions by the government. All 'the capitalist parties, that now denounce the Klan, do so for reasons of expediency. The Dawes speech is a play for the Klan vote. Dawes once said that the Klan as present constituted, would not function efficiently, but he always has been in favor of the Klan principle.

The Workers Party alone of all the political parties in the field has taken a decisive stand against the Klan and all its works and pomps. It is opposed to the Klan because that organization is a tool of capitalism, either big or little, but always the enemy of the workers. A combination of the Klan, the American Legion, the Minute Men of the Constitution and kindred anti-labor bodies under the direction of Dawes would come as near to resembling the Italian Fascisti to anything we can think of. And until the fortunes of Fascism recently began to wane in Europe, those who know Mr. Dawes believe that he had some such role in the back of his head.

Dawes took a swat at labor in his Augusta speech. He flayed the crooked labor leaders in Illinois who were opposed to him because he was against the kind of unionism that is enforced by gunmen and radical leaders who were attacking law enforcing judges. Now, it is a well-known fact that the "labor gunmen" are usually in cahoots with the capitalists. They are on a par morally. What both are after is graft and profit. The capitalist calls it profit, and the gunman designates his share of the spoils as graft, at least to his cronies. Both are parasites living on the workers. The Dawes gang is not opposed to labor leaders who rule the roost in Illinois. Both the labor fakers and Dawes stand for the capitalist system, but as there is a constant conflict between groups of capitalists over the loot they squeeze out of the workers, sometimes the bosses and their labor lieutenants disagree over the compensation demanded by the labor fakers for services rendered.

Law-enforcement judges in the language of General Dawes, mean anti-labor, injunction issuing judges. States Attorney Crowe, Sullivan and the others who grant injunctions to the capitalists on the slightest provocation, are his idols. Workers are supposed to have a right to quit working for a boss when they desire, and also to try and induce others to refuse to work for a boss until he grants a decent living conditions and better wages. But this kind of thing hurts the business of the bosses so they go to their capitalist judges and secure injunctions which bring the clubs of the policemen to the aid of the bosses. That is law enforcement according to Dawes.

Fascist Pal of "Silent Cal" for K. K. K.

(Continued from page 1.)

teach the young men of that state some new fashioned doctrines which to say the least, are not those of constitutional Americanism. He then loosened upon the state of Oklahoma a horde of hardened criminals from the prison.

For Secret Movements.

"If there could be an excuse for law abiding citizens to band themselves together in secret organizations for law enforcement, it existed in Oklahoma, and the Klan became a power-ful organization.

"What happened then? Then back stepped Gov. Walton to the American flag to which it seems to me, he had not kept very close up to that time—and called out the militia of the state. Then it was that those who had joined the Klan in the interest of law and order, found themselves arrayed against their flag and laws of Oklahoma.

"And then what happened? There was the application of the only method with which our people can properly settle such differences—the procedure outlined by the constitution and laws of the state of Oklahoma. Walton was removed from the governorship by the vote of the people and quiet was restored under the orderly processes provided by the constitution and the laws.

The Herrin Riots.

"Consider what happened in Williamson county, Illinois, where the town of Herrin is situated. A reign of lawlessness existed.

"It was marked by the terrible Herrin massacre. It was marked by a general break down in respect for law, which indicated that the officers of the county, including the sheriff had been intimidated by law breakers into inaction. A thousand members of the Ku Klux Klan without disguise—they were there men—marched to the office of the sheriff of Williamson county to protest against the lawlessness in that section. If a secret organization to uphold law and order is justifiable anywhere in our country, it was justifiable there.

"But, what happened? Immediately the lawless element formed the Knights of the Flaming Circle, and then both sides were afraid to go out at night and a condition was created which actually culminated in civil war and the loss of life. And how, again, was peace established? By the only proper way in the sending of the militia of the state of Illinois to the scene of the trouble, as provided by law in such cases.

Legionaires and Kluxers.

"There is much in the Ku Klux Klan which appeals to the adventurous youth. I remember once, when traveling over Illinois, speaking for law enforcement, the constitution, and the American flag, some of the American Legion men with me talked to other legion men who had joined the Ku Klux Klan at one of the towns visited.

"They told those who were with me what they were planning to do. They said, 'There is a bootlegger in our county who is in cahoots with the sheriff and everybody knows it. Now, we are not going to hurt the man, but some night we are going for him and his still. We are going to gag him, carry him and the still up to the court house yard and tie him to it so that the sheriff and the whole town will see him when they come down to their work in the morning."

To show his contempt for the workers, Dawes also took a wallop at organized labor and praised the judges who have made a speciality of issuing injunctions in labor disputes.

So far, Calvin Coolidge has nothing to say on the Klan and it is very doubtful if canny Cal will follow in the footsteps of the general, who has already snatched the leadership of the campaign from his chieftain.

Klan Beaten in Texas.

Down in Texas, the anti-Klan candidate, Mrs. Ferguson, had a lead over her Klan opponent of 38,000 votes with only 46 counties to hear from. The entire Klan ticket was swept clean out of office and the Klan repudiated in one of the strongest Klan states in the union.

From now on Klan-baiting will be a favorite sport for politicians. But General Dawes and Calvin Coolidge cannot very well slough off the Klan endorsement given at Augusta, Maine.

World's Largest Coal Mine Shuts Down

(Continued from page 1.)

"it was, but there is no occupation here now."

The men, according to this miner, are dissatisfied with the way Farrington's lawyers have handled the Gem company suit to recover the December payroll. They feel that the union, under Farrington's regime, is falling to pieces and are discouraged about the future. "I don't believe the mines will ever open again in Pinckneyville" Hawkins said.

The Wren City mine of the Old Ben Coal company has been shut down for many months, and the 600 men employed there are desperate. Half of the houses lie empty like ghostly shells. All the single men have left town to "go on the bum" during the unemployment crisis. Some houses are being dismantled and others are decaying.

Plenty of Mines—and Coal.

There are four large mines in and around Christopher; the New North Mine, which has capacity for producing more coal than any other mine in the world, the East Mine, the Old North Mine, and the Buckner Mine, two miles outside of Christopher.

Of these, 550 miners have been out work for many months because of the complete shut-down of the East mine. 600 are out of work because of the long continued shut-down of the Old North Mine. 350 are working in the Buckner Mine three days a week at the most, and 1,000 men work an average of four days a week in the New North Mine.

Miners here complain bitterly of the absolute lack of consideration offered them by the coal operators and of the growing impotence of the miners' union, under its reactionary leadership, to resist the companies' mistreatment.

Demand Distribution of Work.

Adrian Delforge pointed out to the DAILY WORKER that large coal companies owning more than one mine should be forced to operate each mine an equal number of days, thus distributing the work.

"Instead," said Delforge, "the Old Ben Coal company closes the East Mine, claiming they want to install an electric hoist, while their Buckner Mine is kept open. One of the mine bosses told me the company intends to use the East Mine only as a fall back, when the Buckner Mine cannot produce all the coal they can sell. This is unfair to the miners living around and working in the East Mine."

"The Old North Mine was working only two and three days a week before it closed down. They never give us warning when they close up a mine. The simply pass around the word, 'Close her down.' We never know whether at the close of the day we are to be miners or bums on the road looking vainly for work."

Hits Little Business.

The business houses in Christopher are closing down one after the other, demonstrating the final stage in the disintegration of the mining industry. Stein's Grocery company here has closed its doors, the Krossberg ladies-outfitting store has not yet gone bankrupt, but the proprietor has announced that he will soon have to suspend business, Medallins Dry Goods company has gone bankrupt, and the large W. D. Davis general store is running cut rate sales to keep itself going.

Miners who have left Christopher hoping for jobs in the cities have returned disappointed and embittered. Tony Booban has returned from Chicago, where he scoured the city looking for a job that was not to be had.

"You can't buy a job now," he said. Anton Bujan went to chicago and finally got a job in the Western Electric company.

Waiting the Long Wait.

But he was laid off with the other low-paid slaves there who got the gate, and is now back in Christopher, doing the same thing ten thousand other men in the country are doing, waiting for the mines to open.

Luke Matosich has returned from St. Louis where he learned that industrial unemployment is about as severe as the unemployment in the coal fields. Amond Mundjureich hopped a freight train to St. Louis, couldn't find work, came back to Christopher, hopped another freight to Chicago, couldn't get work, came back to Christopher, and then hopped a third freight and made another try at St. Louis. He has just returned from St. Louis and thinks he'll stay in Christopher a while.

Fire Starts in Mine.

BLAINE, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Fire broke out in the Lansing mine of the Lorain Coal and Dock Company here this morning but was soon brought under control.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

CHIEF OF BRITISH LABOR UNIONS PLANS TO VISIT SOVIET RUSSIA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(By Mail.)—In a letter sent by Mr. Thomas Purcell, M. P., Chairman of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress, to the Chairman of the Central Committee of Russian Woodworkers in response to an invitation to British trade unions to send a delegation to Russia with a view to the establishment of closer relations between British and Russian labor, the labor leader declared, "I hope that next year we shall be able to pay attention to the organization of our international connection on a wider scale.

"I am sure that the Russian and British trade union movements are on the way to a united front. The principal task consists in how to realize a united front in the lower strata of all active branches in the European working class."

Since the extreme reactionaries in the British trade union movement left their positions for the more "respectable" jobs in the government, British labor has taken a decided turn to the left. At the last meeting of the Amsterdam International, the British delegates led the fight for a united front with the Russian trade unions.

REPORT FRANCO-RUSS CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD IN NEAR FUTURE

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 24.—George Chicherin, commissar of foreign affairs in the Soviet union; Christian Rakovsky, who recently represented the workers' republic in its negotiations with England, and Leonid Krassin have been appointed to represent Moscow in a proposed Franco-Russian conference according to a report received here today. It has not yet been officially confirmed.

Foot-Garment Workers Strike in Hartford, Conn.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 24.—Overshoe and Slipper Workers of Wiley Bickford & Sweet Co. went out on strike as a protest against a 36 per cent cut in piece work wages. One of the peacefully picketing strikers, C. Michael, was arrested "because," said the superintendent of the plant, "he threatened two or three employes with bodily injury if they return to work."

C. Michael said he was arrested not for threatened injury (which he did not do) but because he talked to workers about the strike. He was released on $500 bond.

The working conditons in this plant are miserable and the wages are very poor.

"Mother" Ferguson Leads.

DALLAS, Texas, August 24.—Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of the state, is practically assured of victory against her Klan opponent. Primary returns from 223 out of 253 counties, 46 complete, gave Mrs. Ferguson 353,136 and Felix Robertson 274,279.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 22 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 136. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. TUESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

COOLIDGE'S MANAGER IS FINK BOSS

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

REACTIONARY labor leaders must have something to kick against if they are to retain some prestige among workers. While they support the capitalist system, they pick out isolated capitalists and show them up as the cause of all the persecution and misery that the workers suffer from. Gompers has his Elbert H. Gary, head of the Steel Trust. Gompers dines with Gary at Civic Federation banquets, but they growl at each other in public for the benefit of the dupes. In Illinois the labor fakers have General Dawes to serve as their punching bag.

• • •

THE General is anti-labor. He hates unions with a hatred that is holy. It is even possible that he hates any kind of labor unionism even that under the control of the reactionaries. He knows his feelings to think that a hired servant should have anything to say as to the conditions under which he works. It maddens him to see Len Small play with the labor fakers instead of standing solidly for the principle of capitalists dictatorship, unsullied by the participation of even the labor betrayers.

• • •

THUS Dawes is worth lots of money to the reactionary labor skates. John L. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor and Victor Olander, the secretary of that organization, make the welkins ring with their condemnation of Dawes. They always get a good hand when they flay the General. Sometimes Mr. Walker cries as he relates the crimes of Hell an' Maria. But these two clever gentlemen know that the cussing banker is not the capitalist system, but one of its most candid and brutally frank pillars. Len Small and his wing of the Republican party of Illinois stands for the capitalist system as does Dawes. But the Small gang most labor half way by purchasing its leaders, while Dawes is more unbending.

• • •

THE Illinois Manufacturers' Association is one of the organizations that is in politics all the year round in behalf of its members. It sees that bills are introduced in the legislature that would enable the manufacturers to make more profits. It specialises in anti-labor bills. It has its agents in the state assembly. There are millions of workers in this State who if properly organized could snap their fingers at anything the Manufacturers' Association or their bought assembly could do. But have the labor fakers who now denounce the Manufacturers' Association made any attempt to organize them industrially or politically? Of course not. The activities of the association are now used by the labor leaders as an argument to re-elect Len Small, an official with a record as black as that of any man who ever served a term in office. It is safe to say that had General Dawes used the same methods that Len Small used toward the labor leaders they would now be singing his praises instead of denouncing him.

• • •

THE Dawes plan is having hard sledding in the Reichstag. According to press reports the Communists are carrying on a vigorous fight against the infamous scheme. Recently the Communists fought Herriot on his held a conference with a view to taking common action against the capitalists of both countries. The French communists fought Herriot on his London agreement report. They lost but they made a splendid fight and even the capitalist press was obliged to publish Marcel Cachin's great

(Continued on page 3)

FARMERS UNDER HEAVY BURDENS IN BOB'S STATE

Child Labor Record Is Equally Poor

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Eighth Article.)

In Wisconsin, as in every other state where the financial and industrial interests are the rulers, the farmers are groaning under burdensome taxes, are oppressed by ever more enormous mortgages, sinking into hopeless debt, and are being robbed of their land by the investing class.

And despite all the applause given its much-heralded system of social legislation by the political honesty-hunters of the country, LaFollette's "Model Commonwealth," Wisconsin, does not present a bright picture of social conditions.

Last year saw a more rapid rise in industrial accidents in Wisconsin than in many states far less reputed for their reform laws. With all its voluminous noise about educating the workers, the LaFollette state government is, comparatively speaking, paying altogether too little attention to the education of the children of the working class. Nor can Wisconsin have cause to be proud of its mortality rates. Even its weak sanitary laws are not lived up to by the bosses. The extent of child labor in this state is distinctly unsatisfactory.

LaFollette Program Fails Farmers.

Just as Wisconsin ranks very low in the wages paid its industrial workers, so it does in the wages paid its agricultural laborers.

Our analysis of the December, 1923, issue of Weather, Crops and Markets, published by the department of agriculture, reveals that there were at least fourteen states paying higher average monthly wages to their farm laborers in 1923 than Wisconsin did. This is the pay for rural laborers without board.

For the average monthly pay to farm laborers with board, our investigation shows that in 1923, in at least thirteen states, the workers received higher remuneration than they did in Wisconsin.

Farmers in Hole.

And the farmers, whose special friend LaFollette says he is, have met with continued adversity in Wisconsin.

On Aug. 5, 1924, Edward Nordman, Wisconsin state commisioner of markets, delivered an address before the State Retailers' Association, in which he made the following significant remarks: "Agricultural land is rapidly passing out of the ownership of the dirt farmer and into the hands of the men who use it as a safe place to invest their money. This practice forces the independent farm owner to settle on poorer land or in out-of-the-way places."

Our analysis of the 1920 United States census findings on agriculture discloses how the farming masses of Wisconsin are being driven to adversity at an even faster pace than the farmers of the country as a whole.

Farm Mortgages Increase.

From 1910 to 1920 the proportion of farms free from mortgages in the United States as a whole declined from 65.6 per cent to 52.8 per cent. At the same time the Wisconsin

(Continued on page 2)

New York On the Job

THE WORKERS PARTY of New York is arranging a city-wide distribution of the Labor Day issue of the DAILY WORKER with which the Party is launching the First Communist Campaign in the United States.

Every member of the Party is expected to take at least five copies to sell or distribute. Every one of our readers should help in the launching of this campaign against the LaFollette-Hillquit-Gompers conglomeration, against the old Wall Street parties, and for Foster, Gitlow and Communism by taking as big a bundle of this Campaign issue of the DAILY WORKER as possible to sell or give to English reading workers.

We must reach these native American workers with our message in their own language in order to make an effective campaign.

This campaign number sells for 5c and costs 3½c in bundles. Order thru Branch Organizer immediately, or get your order to Jimmie Higgins Book Store, 127 University Place, or to District Office of Workers Party, 208 East 12th Street, New York City, before Thursday.

BUTLER, REPUBLICAN CHAIRMAN, EXPOSED AS EMPLOYER OF STOOL-PIGEONS IN WAR AGAINST UNIONS

(Written Especially for The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 25.—That William Morgan Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, now boosting Strike-breaker Calvin Coolidge for president, is deeply involved in the slimiest sort of stool-pigeon and agent provocateur work against labor unions and the workers generally, is charged by an informant whose name is withheld pending further revelations.

The story, given with exhaustive details as to names, dates and places, is the most damning evidence against this multi-millionaire "angel" of the republican party yet brought to light, and is a fitting climax to the exposures of the corruption of cabinet officers by oil companies in the famous Teapot Dome cases.

The fact that at the time Calvin Coolidge as Governor of Massachusetts, was using troops to break the Boston police strike, his present campaign manager and financial backer, Mr. Butler was engaged in supervising a regiment of stool-pigeons to break up textile workers' unions, to break strikes by agitation of private detectives, to burglarize union offices in midnight raids, destroy and carry off their property and work hand in glove with the Department of Justice to arrest and deport radicals—this is enough to blast this pair of scoundrels and the party they represent in the elections.

On August 21, the DAILY WORKER printed the story of the exposure of the nefarious "Sherman Service" detective agency, whose director, S. F. Fannon, upon being pressed by Henry Dennison of Boston and Robert W. Dunn of New York, unburdened himself of admissions condemning the Sherman industrial stool-pigeon work, until even the audience of business men then present were sickened and disgusted with such infamy.

Butler Relishes Stool Pigeons.

But the chairman of the Republican National Committee, Mr. William Morgan Butler, has a strong stomach. He relishes stool-pigeons who spy upon labor unions. And well he might. He is one of the industrial overlords of New England. He owns the Boston and Worcester Electric company and odds and ends of stock in such things as street railways. But Butler's biggest interests are in the New Bedford textile mills.

He is president of the Butler Mills company, with $4,518,523 listed assets; president of the Hoosac Cotton

(Continued on Page 6)

Our Candidates

FOSTER'S DATES

Sioux City, Iowa—Labor Lyceum, 508 Jennings St., Friday, August 29, 8 p. m.

Des Moines, Iowa—Grotto Hall, 721 Locust St., Saturday, August 30, 8 p. m.

Omaha, Neb.—Eagles Hall, 17th and Cass Sts., Sunday, August 31, 8 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo.—Musicians' Hall, 1017 Washington St., Labor Day, September 1, 8 p. m.

St. Louis—Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Ziegler—Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Springfield—Thursday, Sept. 4.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Turn Hall, 725 High St., Wednesday, September 10, 8 p. m.

Newark, N. J.—Labor Lyceum, 704 So. 14th St., Thursday, September 11, 8 p. m.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Musical Fund Hall, 8th and Locust Streets, Friday, September 12, 8 p. m.

Paterson, N. J.—Halvitia Hall, 56 Van Houton Street, Saturday, September 13, 8 p. m.

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

GITLOW'S DATES

Reading, Veteran Firemen's Hall, 512 Franklin St.—Tuesday, Aug. 26, 8 p. m.

Scranton—Wednesday Aug. 27.

Binghamton, Lithuanian Hall—Thursday, Aug. 28, 7 p. m.

Buffalo, Friday, Aug. 29.

Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 880 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Daisytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.

Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.

C. E. Ruthenberg executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Two of these meetings already arranged for are:

Bolton, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1, Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.

New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St, 8 p. m.

'BOB' RIPS THE F.-L. FEDERATION IN MINNESOTA

Foster Greeted Warmly In the Northwest

"LaFollette is ripping the Farmer-Labor Federation of Minnesota to pieces, just as we warned the movement that he would," said William Z. Foster yesterday, upon his return from a speaking tour that included Minneapolis, St. Paul, Superior, and Milwaukee.

"He is setting up his own personally-supervised committees everywhere, utterly disregarding the workers' own organizations, and cutting the vitals out of the whole Farmer-Labor movement. Our warning was not heeded, and as a consequence, the Minnesota movement is in for a bad time."

And an instructive feature, illustrating how the Party is being corrupted, is that the official leaders are fighting against the election of J. F. Emme, nominated in the primaries, because he is a Communist."

The trip was quite successful. Milwaukee turned out a big crowd to the picnic in Tippecanoe Park to hear Foster flay Berger and LaFollette, and applaud his exposure of the treacherous role played in the labor movement by these petty-bourgeois reformers. Minneapolis held a big outdoor meeting in the city park. St. Paul worked under the handicap of rain, but in spite of weather conditions the crowd greeted the Communist candidate with enthusiasm. Duluth also made good, and displayed great interest in the campaign.

Foster leaves in a few days for his second Middle-Western trip which will include Sioux City, St Joseph, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Ziegler and Springfield. He then goes east for a few big meetings, before starting on the long swing to the Pacific Coast and back.

Congregation Has Hard Time Telling Ape from Skypilot

BUTTE, Mont., August 25.—With a monkey tied to his pulpit, Reverend Colin O'Farrell, pastor of the First Baptist church, raved away above the chatter of the animal in an attempt to prove that whoever maintained that man was descended from a monkey is a descendant in actuality from an ass.

The monkey got so frightened at the maniacal manoeuvers of the gentleman of God that he shouted at the top of his voice.

The congregation had great difficulty in distinguishing the monkey from the preacher.

PRINCE OF WALES IN STUPOR AFTER NIGHT OF WILD DANCING

ABOARD THE BERENGARIA, Aug. 25. — The Prince of Wales, champion horse jumper and setter of styles, retired early this morning after a night of dancing on his first evening out of England on his trip to the shores of Columbia.—

He is occupying a suite that had been built for the ex-kaiser, but that does not prevent him from having a gloriously good time.

Ramsay MacDonald is also having a good time suppressing strikes of the workers he is supposed to represent. Ramsay and the prince get along well together at all dinners and lawn parties.

DANGERS SEEN IN NEW JERSEY RACE CLASHES

"Shoot to Kill" Order of Police Chief

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 25.—Fear is being expressed that the drastic order of Police Commissioner George B. LaBarre to his police force to "Shoot to Kill," in connection with the race situation here may cause a very serious state of affairs in a short time.

The situation arose by the influx of southern Negroes into the city which has doubled the Negro population in Trenton since the world war. This increase necessitated the providing of shelter for the newcomers, who were working in the Roebling Wire Mills, John L. Mott Iron Works, American Steel and Wire Company, National Radiator Company, Cook's Linoleum Company and in the pottery and rubber industries.

Blacks in Filthy Houses.

The Negroes were obliged to live under terrible conditions, in the most miserable shacks, without the slightest pretense to santitation or comfort. This situation was made more acute by the fact that the black and white workers were becoming rivals for jobs, the capitalists splitting the ranks by dividing the workers according to race.

The first sign of trouble came with the unusual purchase of firearms by the migrants because of the shooting of a Negro minister, Banks, who got into a quarrel with a white, and the police were then given instructions to arrest anyone carrying concealed weapons.

The racial antagonism has been aggravated also by a Ku Klux Klan agitation and by numerous encounters between whites and blacks. A Negro physical instructor in the public schools, Howard Dangerfield, soundly thrashed a white man who attempted to prevent him from using a certain diving plank in a public pool which Dangerfield had used for some time before. Elements are now active in an attempt to have the Negro expelled from the school, while the Negroes are determined upon his retention.

Unemployment Increase Dangerous.

The laying off of many workers in the local industries has not helped the situation since the jobless are empty-handed and there is a possibility that a sudden incident may be the spark to arouse the fire.

DAWES PLAN HAS HARD SLEDDING IN REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—The critical stage in the work of putting the Dawes Plan in operation is reached. Unless the Reichstag ratifies the London agreement, all the efforts of the conference has been in vain.

German industrial and banking circles are worrying. Fear that the government will fail to put thru its program has caused several banking deals to be cancelled.

Herr Hergt, chief leader of the German nationalists, attacked the London reparations agreement when debate was renewed in the Reichstag today upon Chancellor Marx's demand for ratification.

Hergt declared that the London pact left the Rhineland as an allied pawn. He urged a united national front in Germany.

The Communists are carrying on a vigorous campaign against the London agreement outside as well as inside the Reichstag.

Strike Winning In Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 25. — Seventeen cloak and suit shops have settled with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and nearly two-thirds of the original strikers are returning to work under union conditions.

Militant Miners Opposing Lewis, Murray, Green

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker.)

ZIEGLER, Ill., Aug. 25.—The Illinois miners are determined to resist the drive of the coal operators to institute the "open shop," by electing to union office men who are pledged to accept no wage reduction, who demand a shortening of the work day and the payment of unemployment benefits, Henry Corbishley, president of Ziegler Local, No. 2376, told the DAILY WORKER today.

"I know that the miners of Southern Illinois will pay no attention to the so-called Lions' Club convention, now being held in Herrin," Corbishley said.

"Conditions are pretty bad for the miners. Ziegler is a town that has the coal mine at one end and the company store at the other.

"When the miner gets up in the morning to go to work, all streets in town lead to the Bell and Zoller mine. When he comes out of the shaft and starts home, all streets lead past the company store.

Feel Open Shop Drive.

"The United Mine Workers' Union has felt the shock of the open shop drive as much as any other union, and its officials have been as yellow and as traitorous as any other reactionary union officials. But the miners are fighters. They know that if they listen to the bunk handed out by the coal operators, and the same identical bunk handed out by the mine officials, their union will be wrecked. And the rank and file miners are not going to allow their union to be wrecked."

Arley Staples, who has been nominated for international vice president by the Ziegler, Valier, Coello, and other local unions in Illinois, said he looks for the December elections to sweep into office in District 12, men who will resist the open shop drive, and do a little attacking of the bosses on their own account.

Seek Six-Hour Day.

"The Illinois coal miners are backing the Progressive committees' demand for a six-hour day, equal distribution of work in all the mines, payment by the coal operators of unemployment benefits, and organization of the unorganized miners," said Staples.

The Illinois miners know that the talk of non-union coal freezing out union coal is bunk. The Illinois miners know that the business men are one hundred per cent organized in their Chambers of Commerce, the railroads are one hundred per cent organized thru their interlocking directorates, and the coal operators of the entire country, both union and non-union mine owners are one hundred per cent organized into the coal trust.

Demand Organization Drive.

"I am going to run for international vice president on the progressive miners' platform. I am going to fight the open shop and resist reduction of wages talk. The whole damn coal mine industry is solidly organized against the miners, and the rank and file miners are ready to see to it that the non-union miners are brought into the union, and the miners organized one hundred per cent against the open shop coal operators."

WHERE IS THE BOOM PREDICTED BY THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE?

The Chicago Tribune, which has for weeks predicted a tremendous boom in business, prints a story concerning the work of the Chicago Christian Industrial league, a "charitable organization" which is starting a drive for help "in preparation for what is expected to be a winter of extensive unemployment."

Homes where families have new clothing, new furniture, and new toys, in spite of the employment shortage, are asked to send their cast-off clothing, furniture and toys to the offices of the Christian Industrial league so that men and women who might otherwise starve this winter may survive to work another year.

The stuff will not be given away. The men and women who come to the offices of the league are expected to work, repairing the articles so that they will once more be fit for use. The articles are then sold by the Christian League—presumably at a profit.

JUDGE JEERS AT WOBBLIES; CASE DRAGS ON

Plan Hearings Before Master in Chancery

The affairs of the Industrial Workers of the World continue to be the football of the capitalist courts.

Little progress was made when the fight of the Rowan-Bowerman faction for an injunction against the Fisher-Doyle element came up yesterday, this time before Judge David, the third judge to handle the case.

Judge Has Surprise Party.

Previous efforts to settle the internal differences of the "Wobblies" outside of court were unable to overcome the Rowan-Bowerman determination to obtain a court order, with the result that there was another appearance in court, in which both sides found themselves the butt of the jeers of a capitalist judge.

"Do you mean to tell me that you are the Industrial Workers of the World, and that you have come to this court to settle a difficulty arising within your organization," sneered Judge David, as he was made aware of the nature of the case brought before him.

Attorney T. B. O'Connell, for the "injunctionites," pretty much on the defensive, went into a long and legal explanation of the alleged reasons for starting the injunction proceedings against the officers of the I. W. W.

Rodriguez for Cunnea.

These reasons are already familiar to the readers of the DAILY WORKER. The "injunctionites" claimed they had been ousted from office by force by the Fisher-Doyle elements, and that they wanted the injunction to restore them to power.

"So you are the pacifists," sneered Judge David, addressing the injunctionite clients of Attorney O'Donnell, who admitted that this was true. Then turning to Attorney William E. Rodriguez, substituting for Attorney William A. Cunnea, lawyer for the "ins," Judge David continued. "And you, Mr. Rodriguez, you represent the revolutionists."

Women in Court.

Attorney Cunnea was still away on his fishing trip in Wisconsin. So his law partner, Rodriguez, former Socialist alderman, now in the LaFollette camp, had to be re-called from his vacation in order to make an appearance.

The courtroom was filled again with members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

"Who are all these people standing around here," said Judge David, in calling the court to order. "Are they all members of the Industrial Workers of the World? Then let them take seats."

All indications yesterday in the courtroom were that the internal troubles of the I. W. W. are arousing an increasing interest. Women were present in court who had hitch-hik-

(Continued on page 2)

EUROPE LABOR AT MATTEOTTI BURIAL SCENE

Socialists Agree with Fascisti on Funeral

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BADIA POLESINO, Italy, Aug. 24.—Giacomo Matteotti was buried yesterday.

From every corner of Italy came workingmen, representing almost every labor organization in the country, to pay honor to the deputy whom the Fascisti assassinated for his attempts to expose the corruption of the Mussolini regime.

With them were representatives of the working masses of France, Austria, Jugoslavia and Switzerland, who were there to express their solidarity with the Italian proletariat in their efforts to throw off the domination of the petty army officials who have oppressed the workers for three years.

Tracks Strewn With Flowers.

The railroad tracks from Corfano, where the body of the deputy was discovered a week ago, to Badia Polesino, Matteotti's birthplace, were covered with flowers. In every town thru which the funeral train passed, workers left the shops and stood at the stations with bared heads.

The decision to hold the funeral in Badia Polesino, rather than in Rome, as the parties of the opposition had planned, was made after all of the opposition excepting the Communists had compromised with the Fascisti, agreeing to prevent the mass demonstration of workers in Rome.

The compromise was made after the government, thru its newspapers, had center on the opposition to stop its denunciation of the Fascisti, on the ground that "such denunciation is antagonistic to the reconstruction of the country on a peaceful basis."

Fascisti Demonstrate.

On the day of the funeral, black-shirts marched thru the streets of Rome, where workers had been forbidden to hold a demonstration, singing:

"Out of Matteotti's body
We make sausages now."

An incident in the Italian chamber of deputies shows that the fury aroused among the workers by the death of Matteotti cannot be appeased by the holding of a public funeral.

The recorder of the chamber, calling the roll of deputies, came to the name "Matteotti." He hesitated, stopped, and mumbled the name under his breath. For a few moments there was death-like silence.

Then from the ranks of the opposition a clear voice called "Here."

Mussolini Shaken.

Mussolini turned white, and began to sway where he stood.

Then the members of the opposition, catching the spirit, answered as with one voice: "Here."

The Communists of Italy have determined that the murdered deputy shall be with them in spirit until the rule of murderers is overthrown.

Official "Yes" Given To Mobilization Day By American Legion

WASHINGTON, August 25.—John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, gave official approval of his dying organization to the proposed Mobilization Day, September 12, in a letter to the chief patriotic salesman of the proposition, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. Quinn became quite humorous in his letter by saying that while he is unqualifiedly in favor of the demonstration, "the American Legion does not want war."

Soldiers will have their little jokes.

Greek Mutineers Surrender.

ATHENS, August 25.—Greek naval mutineers under the leadership of Captain Kolilaxis yielded to the government and a government order to disarm the entire fleet was cancelled. Kolilaxis surrendered after Captain Hadjikriakes, former minister of the marine, had been appointed mediator.

Send in that Subscription Today.

COMMUNISTS CAN ALL PATRIOTIC SONGS IN GERMAN TEXT BOOKS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DRESDEN, Germany, August 22.—"Silent Night, Holy Night," and all other religious songs, as well as "The Watch on the Rhine" and numerous other patriotic songs have been eliminated from the song books of Saxony. This action is the result of the pressure brot to bear on the authorities by the Communists.

WISCONSIN—A DARK PICTURE

WITH all its well advertised and over-estimated reform laws, Wisconsin does not present a bright picture of social conditions.

Last year the increase in industrial accidents was greater in the Badger state than in most of the compensation states surveyed.

Fourteen states pay higher wages to their farm laborers than Wisconsin does.

The dirt farmers in Wisconsin are being rapidly robbed of their land by the investing class.

The proportion of farms free from mortgage in Wisconsin is much smaller than in the United States as a whole.

The proportion of mortgaged farms is much greater in Wisconsin than in the United States as a whole.

There are more children engaged in the manufacturing industries of Wisconsin than there are in the same industries in New York, tho the latter has about four times the number of gainfully employed employed in manufacturing industries than the Badger state.

Child labor is decreasing much more rapidly in the country as a whole than it is in Wisconsin.

FARMERS' BURDENS ARE HEAVY

(Continued from page 1)

farms free from mortgages declined from 46.3 per cent to 36.2 per cent in 1920.

But here is a matter of serious concern to the farmers in LaFollette's state. In the decade 1910 to 1920 the proportion of mortgaged farms in the country as a whole rose from 33.2 per cent to 37.2 per cent. In the same period the proportion of mortgaged farms in Wisconsin rose from 51.1 per cent in 1910 to 59.9 per cent in 1920. Thus we see that the proportion of farms free from mortgages is much smaller in Wisconsin than in the country as a whole, and that the proportion of mortgaged farms is much greater in Wisconsin than it is in the country as a whole.

Further light on the increasing hardships of the Wisconsin farmers is shed by the findings of the 1930 census as to farm debts. For the United States as a whole, the proportion of debt to the value of the farm increased from 27.3 per cent in 1910 to 29.1 per cent in 1920. But in Wisconsin the ratio of debt to the value of the farm increased from 34.3 per cent in 1910 to 37.8 per cent in 1920. It is evident that the Wisconsin farmers are failing into debt more rapidly and are today in relatively greater debt than the farmers of the country as a whole.

Mortgage Debt Rises.

The total amount of mortgage debt for Wisconsin farmers rose from about $150,000,000 in 1910 to more than $350,000,000 in 1920.

The farming masses of this great "model commonwealth" are also paying an exorbitant price for these difficult conditions in the form of oppressive taxes. From a study made in twenty-six states for the year 1919 by the department of agriculture, we find that the part of the net cash rent from the farms paid out in taxes by the Wisconsin farmers is higher than in twenty-four of the twenty-six states investigated. Only one state, Pennsylvania, shows a higher proportion of the net cash rent being devoured by taxes than does Wisconsin.

"Since that year taxes have generally increased, while rents have been reduced," says the department of agriculture in its summary of the investigation.

Social Conditons Unsatisfactory.

For the last fiscal year industrial accidents showed a startling increase in the United States. The American Association for Labor Legislation recently made an investigation of this tendency. Its findings, after hearing from one-half the compensation states, indicate that in 1923 the increase in industrial accidents in Wisconsin was 27.4 per cent. Wisconsin had a higher rate of industrial accident increase than eleven other states investigated. All in all, only nineteen states replied to the queries of the American Association for Labor Legislation.

From the summary of the provisional birth and mortality figures for 1923, recently issued by the department of commerce, we learn that Wisconsin has little to be proud of in this field. No less than twenty states show at least as good a record as, and eighteen of these show an even better record than Wisconsin for the last year in the death rates, in the proportion of deaths per one thousand of the population. Wisconsin is one of the twenty-five states in which death rates for 1923 were higher than for 1922.

Workers Beat Out of Studies.

Wisconsin has always boasted of its great educational system. But the workers have enjoyed very little of the advantages afforded by LaFollette's generosity in this respect. From the "Instruction in Wisconsin Schools; Report of the General Executive Board," 1920 convention of the State Federation of Labor, we learn that:

"For 7,200 university students the state of Wisconsin in 1919-1920 spent $4,000,000. For more than 20,000 employed children between the ages of 14 and 17 the state spent one-eighth as much."

This extreme disproportion certainly does not betray a whole-hearted interest on the part of the LaFollette machine in the education of the workers.

Unsanitary Labor Conditions.

Nor are the sanitary conditions of employment even up to the mark set for them by the various state laws. So conservative a paper as the Milwaukee Journal in its issue of December 1, 1920, tells us that: "Wisconsin factories are not living up to the state sanitary safety code, according to a statement by Mr. George P. Hambrecht, chairman of the Wisconsin industrial commission, following complaints from Milwaukee workers that unsanitary conditions prevail in some workshops."

In the Wisconsin labor camps the conditions are even more deplorable, as has been shown in the investigation made by the Wisconsin industrial commission, "Labor Camps in Wisconsin."

Child Labor Record Poor.

Wisconsin's child labor record is poor. The it is the tenth state in the number of men gainfully engaged in manufacturing industries, it is the fifth state in the total number of children under sixteen years of age employed in these industries. New York state which has the greatest number employed in manufacturing industries has only 6,388 children working in these industries, while Wisconsin has 6,906. Incidentally, the total number of gainfully employed in manufacturing industries in New York is more than four times the total number employed in these industries in Wisconsin.

From 1910 to 1920, according to the latest investigation prepared by the Department of Commerce, entitled "Children in Gainful Occupations" the number employed in the country as a whole (ten to fifteen years of age) decreased 46.7 per cent. At the same time the decrease in the total number of children ten to fifteen years of age, engaged in these gainful occupations in Wisconsin, was only 34.4 per cent.

Wisconsin Has More.

In the East North Central group of states in which Wisconsin falls, the average decrease of children employed in gainful occupations was 42.8 per cent, or greater than it was in LaFollette's own state. In thirty-three states the rate of decrease of children gainfully employed in all occupations was greater in the last decade than it was in Wisconsin.

The percentage of the total children employed between the years of ten and seventeen is greater in Wisconsin than in twenty-seven other states.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin's industrial center, is among the cities having a hundred thousand or more inhabitants, and ten per cent more of their child population ten to fifteen years of age is gainfully employed.

LaFollette a Fraud.

Obviously LaFollette's much overestimated "Wisconsin plan" has proved a signal failure insofar as its effectiveness to remove the inherent evils of capitalism is concerned.

Pennsylvania Comrades Attention.

The Workers Party of Pennsylvania calls upon all its members and sympathizers to immediately communicate with Israel Blankenstein, acting District Organizer of Pittsburgh, to get copies of a list of instructions to voters for the coming elections.

Unless these instructions are carefully studied and the rules complied with a good many voters will find themselves deprived of the right to vote.

Get in touch with Israel Blankenstein at once. Address 805 James St., N. S. Pittsburgh.

DARROW IN PLEA FOR MERCY TO SLAYERS OF ROBERT FRANKS

In a final appeal to the court, Clarence Darrow, attorney in the defense of the killers of Robert Franks, pleaded that Leopold and Loeb be dealt with mercifully.

Eloquently outlining his position, Darrow called for a denial of the plea of the prosecution that the young men occupy the inner circle of a noose. The plea of the defense is based on the assumption that the accused are cuckoo and that the hanging of the murderers has no precedent in Chicago. Besides their elimination from the earth will not bring back Robert Franks to life.

A decision is shortly expected.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

SILENT CAL HAS NOISY CHARLIE ON THE CARPET

Klan Speech Campaign Fodder for Foes

Rumors of strong differences of opinion in the Republican National Committee are rife since Charles G. Dawes delivered his pro-Ku Klux Klan speech in Augusta, Maine, last Saturday.

So serious has the situation become that the General's plans were suddenly changed as a result of a sudden decision on the part of the president who requested Dawes to visit him at once at his home in Plymouth, Vermont.

Republican party editors have attempted to feature the Dawes speech as an attack on the Klan, but the reporters on the contrary picture it as an endorsement, the most outspoken yet made by any American politician of as high standing as the General.

Effects of Dawes Speech.

What effect the Dawes speech will have on republican chances for victory at the polls in November is a question that is worrying the heads of old republican chieftains.

Coolidge is known to be dodging the Klan issue, but since the Klan defeat in Texas and the denunciation of the hooded order by every other party candidate except Dawes it is believed Coolidge will try to retrieve what the Dawes speech lost to the party by making some sort of a vague declaration. But even republican party editors are now of the opinion that a vague declaration will not suffice. Coolidge must say definitely where he stands on the Klan issue.

It is even suggested that Coolidge will insist on General Dawes submitting his speech to the campaign manager in the future, and to stop the practice of speaking extemporaneously.

Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, the anti-Klan candidate in Texas, is leading her opponent, Judge Felix Robertson, by about 50,000 votes. Her election is conceded. The defeat of the Klan in Texas in an open fight is calculated to have a detrimental effect on its fortunes in the rest of the country. Not alone have they lost the governorship but every other state office.

Election Not Expected.

The LaFollette campaign committee has decided not to interfere in local campaigns, according to John Nelson, campaign manager.

COAL BARONS PROTECT KLUX CHIEF YOUNG

BULLETIN.

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 25.—S. Glenn Young must appear for trial here this week, Judge Bowen ruled in court here this afternoon, overruling a motion for a continuance of one of Young's cases which came to trial today.

* * *

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 25.—Attorneys Arlie Boswell and C. D. Fithian, representing S. Glenn Young, notorious Ku Klux Klan raider of Williamson county fame, submitted affidavits from two physicians, Dr. G. N. Welsh, Centralia, Ill., and Dr. William L. Gilbert, Atlanta, Ga., to show that Young was in a hospital and unable to travel when another of Young's cases was called for trial before Judge E. N. Bowen in the Herrin city court today. Young is now under bonds aggregating $204,000 on indictments growing out of the rioting here February 8, last. Young is now in a hospital at Atlanta, Ga., for treatment of gunshot wounds received when shot last May.

Coal Lands Purchase Freedom.

Should the court forfeit Young's bond, and should there be forfeiture of the remainder of Young's bonds, millions of dollars worth of coal lands in southern Illinois, put up as security for the bonds of Young and his intimate associates, will be involved in forfeitures and legal wrangles.

Decent Pay, Not Tips, Is Union Barbers' Demand

Members of Journeymen Barber's Union, Local No. 548, are demanding an increase in their wages. They are now receiving $26 a week and they have put in a demand for $35.

President W. S. Liedig said the union representatives had presented their demands to the master barbers. "We have been in conference with the master barbers twice, but as yet nothing definite has been decided upon. We are going to put this thing up to a fight until we get our raise."

Liedig said that 85 per cent of the barbers in Chicago are organized and that the next move was organizing women barbers.

Getting back to the strike, he added: "We want a living wage for our people so that they will not be dependent on tips. The tipping system is a curse and disgrace and I, as a union man, want to see it abolished."

Brisbane Predicts Day of Workers' Rule But Sees It Very Far Off

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Mr. Arthur Brisbane, editorial dictator of the Hearst newspapers, salves the fears of the "upper clawse," to which the Hearst-Brisbane outfit is trying to cater, by promising that Workers' Rule in the United States is a long way off.

But what a startling confession to come, even from a Brisbane, that Workers' Rule is coming at all.

* * * *

This is the Brisbane who has become a millionaire, and piled up more millions for William Randolph Hearst, thru the worst prostitution of the yellow press.

This is Brisbane, the conservative and careful investor in New York real estate, who even won the plaudits of the Wall Street Journal, for his sagacity in making investments.

* * * *

In his own words, Brisbane confesses that, "The next step will come eventually and the crowd at the bottom, the WORKERS, will rule. But here in America that is a long way off. Men of different races, languages and religions do not trust each other, and will not consent that any among them shall lead all. And for the present, barring great stupidity on the part of finance, that finance, thru its representatives, will rule."

* * * *

Brisbane merely restates a policy that the great employing interests in this country have always carefully and ruthlessly followed, and will continue to follow until their day of doom, and that is, "Divide the workers along the lines of race, language and religion, and then it will be easy to conquer them, and keep them in subjection."

Every great unorganized industry, steel, packing, shoe, textile, to mention only a few, have used these divisions among the workers to shatter the workers' ranks and keep labor from organizing. The latest effort, growing out of the restriction of immigration from Europe, is the herding of great masses of Negroes into the Northern industrial centers.

* * * *

But these very tactics of the bosses have taught the workers the lesson needed to overcome this obstacle to their winning of power. The workers know better today, than ever before, that they must get together, in spite of race, language, color, or religion to fight "The Boss."

The great strikes in the packing industry. The last great steel strike. The uprisings of the workers in the shoe and textile industries. The present strike of the silk workers in Paterson, New Jersey. All bear testimony to the fact that workers are developing solidarity, in spite of differences, in the face of the enemy's attack.

* * * *

Great labor organizations stand as an encouragement to the workers, as a convincing proof that unity can be won.

The United Mine Workers of America is made up of workers speaking many languages, professing many religions, or no religion, and of many colors. It is against this unified mass that the bosses are now hurling their most vicious open shop attack.

The needle trades unions, especially the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, have a widely diversified membership. But these organizations should give Brisbane considerable reason for thought.

The great membership of these organizations decide continuously that "One among them shall lead all." The members of these unions do trust each other in spite of race, religion, color. The leadership of officials of one nationality is accepted, and the unity of the organization is not impaired because of the racial or religious differences that exist between the Polish, Italian, Czech, Jewish, German, Lithuanian or Negro workers.

* * * *

Capitalism cannot eliminate, thru its oppression, race, nationality, religious and color lines. Those divisions will remain.

But thru its oppression capitalism is driving the workers together, into a solid fighting mass, in spite of these differences.

This welding of the forces of American labor has been proceeding for a hundred years, in this country.

That this unity of labor is growing more rapidly now, than ever before, is shown by the fact that the workers of all nations upon earth have built the closely knit, well disciplined Third (Communist) International, on the ruins of the loose in form and chaotic in action Second (Socialist) International.

* * * *

Let Brisbane breathe not so easily.

The mothers of labor in New York City may yet take over his palaces and use them as nurseries for their "East Side" babies.

The workers may not be long in running up the Red Flag of "Unity!" over the buildings that house the Hearst publications, and claim them as their own, and use the plants therein to turn out their own publications.

Brisbane's day of great disappointment may be much nearer than he thinks, or even dreams.

It isn't safe for a prophet of the capitalist social order to make conservative predictions in these days of rapid progress.

JUDGE JEERS; I. W. W. CASE DRAGS

(Continued from page 1)

ed to Chicago all the way from Denver, Colo., and from New York City, just to get personally in touch with the developments in the case.

Judge Asks Purpose of I. W. W.

Judge David asked the attorneys many questions about the case.

"What is the function of the I. W. W.," he asked.

Mr. Rodriguez undertook to explain. The I. W. W. organizes laboring men into unions, and functions as any union does, he said. The national officers are located in Chicago.

Judge Speaks of "Honor."

"Oh!" exclaimed Judge David, "so Chicago is honored with the national offices of the I.-W. W. Well, as long as they don't engage in any attempt to overthrow government institutions or violate the rights of private property, the court will protect them."

Then Attorney O'Connell, counsel for the "outs," protested that the Doyle-Fisher group was trying to delay the rendering of a decision on the demand for an injunction. O'Connell reiterated the charges that force had been used by the "ins" to maintain themselves in power.

"If any force is going to be usued," declared Judge David, showing signs of judicial anger, "it will be the government that will keep order in the I. W. W."

$15,000 In Bank.

The judge showed great interest in the funds of the organization. He thought that the organization ought to be incorporated, that it was irregular to let men have charge of the funds of an organization that is not incorporated. He was rather surprised when told that labor organizations are not incorporated, not even the American Federation of Labor and its various "internationals."

It was learned from Attorney Rodriguez that the organization now has $15,000 in the bank. It was pointed out to the court that this money must be used to carry on the work of the organization. There are many bills awaiting payment now and salaries that must be paid. It was decided that all checks should be paid by order of the court, until the case is settled. This was agreed upon by the attorneys of both sides.

Don't Believe in Injunctions.

When the judge was told that the printing plant was being used by the Kleber-Doyle group to inform the membership about the injunction, the judge suddenly exclaimed:

"Oh, so they don't believe in injunctions. Well, we see that injunctions are sometimes a good thing even for the I. W. W."

Then declaring that he could not spend any more time on the case, and instructing the attorneys to get together and draw up a working basis for the use of the books and the funds for organizational work, until the case comes up again, he dismissed the case so far as he was concerned. It was agreed that the matters at issue be taken before a master in chancery, to hear evidence and make a decision.

CAPITALISM IS SOCIAL CANCER, SAYS FOSTER

Workers Must Perform Surgical Operation

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

ST. PAUL, Minn., (By Mail.)—"I won't be elected president of the United States in this campaign, but the time is coming when the candidate of the Workers' Party will be chosen. But he won't be known as president then, he will be the chairman of the Council of Commissars made up of farmers and workers," said William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket, at a meeting here Aug. 23rd.

Mr. Foster addressed one of the most enthusiastic political gatherings held in St. Paul for some time. Every available seat was taken in the large labor temple. A striking feature of the meeting was the large attendance of trade unionists and other elements not directly affiliated with radical movements.

Confusing the Workers.

Speaking of the issues involved in the presidential campaign he showed where the other parties were attempting to befuddle the minds of the people with fake issues as the tariff, "good government," etc., and that the Workers' Party is the only political organization that offers a real solution for our present ills. He said that the cancer in the society in which we live is the wage system and like all cancers he said it must be cut completely out of the body politic.

As an illustration of the wage system Foster recalled that some nine or ten years ago he worked for Swift & Co., the packers of Chicago, for the ridiculous wage of $9.00 a week, and during that said period $24,000,000 was the profit of the concern, a good part of which was divided among the immediate Swift family.

Knock Geese Eggless.

In referring to the old proverb Foster said: "There are some 30,000,000 geese occupied with the business of laying golden eggs. In spite of the old saying that the goose that lays the golden egg,' the capitalist class has no such consideration for the workers. The 30,000,000 geese are treated with the utmost contempt."

J. F. Emme, Congressional candidate in the Fourth District, St. Paul, on the Farmer-Labor Ticket preceded Foster and lit into the local labor politicians, particularly John F. Sinclair, LaFollette's right-hand man in Minnesota, for the peanut political game they were playing in taking advantage of the national progressive sweep to ease themselves into soft offices.

Seize Anti-Klan Paper

NEWARK, Ohio, Aug. 25.—A consignment of 1100 Muncie Democrats, an anti-Klan publication, was seized here by local cops on the charge that it printed untruthful and obscene stories. The publication says that it has been printing truthful stories about the local klan administration which got under their knighties.

Mobilizers Open Headquarters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Headquarters have been established here for the national committee, which is co-operating with the war department in completing plans for "Defense Day."

DEFEAT K. K. K. DISRUPTION IN ZIEGLER, ILL.

Miners Reveal Hooded Klan Gunmen

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

ZIEGLER, Ill., Aug. 25.—The long fight that the Ku Klux Klan has been waging here to disrupt the local union, No. 2376, of the United Mine Workers of America, was finally punctured when the Ziegler local met and transacted business for the first time in two months.

In a final desperate effort to disrupt the miners' organization, and aid their inspirers, the non-union "open shop" business men, the Klansmen called to their aid Mayor A. C. Carr, of Ziegler, who is sympathetic to the Klan.

The sheriff, Charlie Doris, was called over from Benton, and Mayor Carr, attempting a grandstand play, forced himself into the miners' hall and demanded to see Chairman Corbishley. "It looks like you're going to have war here tonight," he yelled at Corbishley, "and I'm going to search every one of the miners." Corbishley replied: "Come right in, you are welcome to do it."

Klansmen Carry Guns.

After searching every one of the three hundred people in the hall, the sheriff found guns on 13 men, but they were all members of the rowdy Klan gang who have been trying for so long to disrupt the Ziegler local. The local union preferred charges against these men.

The Klansmen first came out in the open and revealed the true purpose of their organization to disrupt labor organizations, during the last election of officers to the local union. A progressive slate was elected, headed by Corbishley, and the elections were over, having been conducted in an orderly manner.

Kluxers Start Riot.

The Klan gangsters then started a riot, beating up "Billy" Hogan of the Miners' Union, and jumping on chairs and trying to throw miners out of the window. To avert serious trouble, Corbishley adjourned the meeting and the miners went home. The Klansmen then held a second meeting, elected Klansmen to the offices which had already been filed, and stole the books of the miners' local union. Corbishley protested to the sub-district officials, and the bona fide miners have been upheld and vindicated even by the Farrington machine.

Last night's meeting was orderly and successful. George Voyzey, of Local Union No. 5636, was nominated for president of the United Mine Workers. Arley Staples was nominated for vice-president, and Joe Nearing, of Cape Breton, for secretary-treasurer.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

New York and Detroit Enthusiastic About The Daily Worker 'Specials'

THE proposal to issue special editions of THE DAILY WORKER in connection with the Foster and Gitlow meetings has met with instant and universal approval. In each instance where local organizations of the Workers Party have had opportunity to act decisions have been immediate to accept the obviously advantageous arrangements.

Let the comrades in Detroit and New York speak for themselves regarding the local sentiment in these places:

"Your proposition meets with distinct favor here," writes Edgar Owens, District Organizer of the Party in Detroit. "We would like to know if we can from time to time secure special Detroit Editions. If this is possible we will be able to bring the activities for THE DAILY WORKER up to and beyond the high standard we established when THE DAILY WORKER was established."

Comrade L. E. Katterfeld, newly appointed City Agent for THE DAILY WORKER in New York has much bigger plans still. "We will order 10,000 specials for our Gitlow meeting Sept. 9. These will be distributed by the branches. In addition we will address mail wrappers for 10,000 registered socialist voters here to which you are to send copies of our special edition. That ought to assure a pretty good Gitlow meeting, also some subs.

"The proposition for the Foster meeting is different. The Comrades here would like to know how much 50,000 copies would cost, with THREE PAGES of special New York matter."

That certainly makes Chicago look like a village in the sticks. It's hardly fair to ask THE DAILY WORKER to wear out its press just to make the New York meetings go over, but under the circumstances we'll have to agree.

Comrade Charles Krumbein, District Organizer in New York, expresses the sentiments of the New York party members when he writes:

"Rest assured that we are all enthused about the possibilities behind the special issues of THE DAILY WORKER for New York and I feel certain we will make a big thing out of it."

If there is a Foster or a Gitlow meeting that is allowed to pass by without the accompaniment of a copy of the special edition of THE DAILY WORKER, the Workers Party campaign, the Workers Party itself and the DAILY WORKER all lose.

Read the advertisement appearing on this page and if you have not already acted WRITE OR WIRE YOUR ORDERS.

RUTHENBERG CASE TO COME UP AGAIN EARLY IN OCTOBER

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 25.—After nine months of delay, the supreme court has set a date for hearing the appeal of C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, convicted in a lower court under the Michigan criminal syndicalist law. The case will be argued in the early part of the October term.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

PITTSBURGH DRIVE FOR SIGNATURES PROCEEDING FAST

Street Meetings Being Held in Steel Town

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 25.—Members of the Workers Party thruout District Five were busy for the last few weeks getting signatures for the nomination petitions. Over 7,000 signatures are necessary to make sure that the W. P. ticket will be placed on the ballot. We are still short of this number and there is only one week left for this work. In view of this the D. E. C. at its last meeting passed a motion instructing the branches to see that a committee goes from house to house to solicit signatures for our petitions.

The campaign was started last week with street meetings in different parts of Pittsburgh. This week there will be street meetings held almost every evening in Pittsburgh and East Pittsburgh with Comrades Mrs. Knight, Maguire, Otis and others as speakers.

Comrade Benjamin Gitlow will speak at Pittsburgh on Tuesday, September 2, at the Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St., Pittsburgh, Pa., at 8 p.m. Comrades are requested to call at the District office for tickets and advertising matter for the Gitlow meeting.

On Saturday, August 30, Local Pittsburgh, will hold the last picnic of the season at Schutzen Park. Comrade Mrs. Knight will speak at this picnic. A good time is assured to all comrades and the readers of the DAILY WORKER are urged to attend this meeting.

The following street meetings will be held this week:

Thursday, Aug. 28, McClure and Preble, Speaker: Maguire.

Thursday, Aug. 28, James and Ohio, Speaker: Mrs. Knight.

Friday, Aug. 29, Homewood and Hamilton, Speaker: Rasnick and Maguire.

Saturday, Aug. 30, Federal and Diamond, Speakers: Mrs. Knight and Rasnick.

Saturday, Aug. 30, James and Ohio. Speakers: Otis and Maguire.

Draft Evader Starves

MISSOULA, Mont., August 25.—Aatti Tyrkainen, arrested in Butte as a draft evader, died last night after a self imposed starvation in the form of a hunger strike of 42 days.

Send in that Subscription Today.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'Flaherty

(Continued from page 1)

speech. International solidarity is growing. Under the hammer blows of the Communist international propaganda and its revolutionary leadership national boundaries are being broken down and a real international army of labor is being built. Speed the day!

• • •

A French scientist tells us that Martians are more intelligent than the inhabitants of our planet because their planet is millions of years older than this one. The way some scientists hurl figures around deserves considerable admiration, tho some who are not scientists would like to be shown before they believe everything placed on the market as fact. In fact scientists are oftentimes anything but scientific. Whether Martians exist or not outside the fertile imagination of H. G. Wells is an interesting subject for speculation, but a more interesting form of activity is getting rid of the capitalist system and the capitalists. After that is done we will have plenty of time to spend gazing in the general direction of Mars.

• • •

THE Fascisti government of Italy which at times in the past has taken a hostile attitude toward the Catholic Church is now, in its extremity, catering to that organization. The government recently announced a concession of $21,000 to the Sacred House of Loreto for charity work. The House of Loreto has large tracts of land and immense wealth in jewels and money. But this wealth has been in the possession of the government since 1860, and the present donation is more important because of the precedent it establishes than because of its intrinsic worth. Mussolini is playing for a powerful ally.

• • •

THE Prince of Wales is preparing himself for the day on which he ascends the British Throne. In the meantime Ramsay MacDonald, socialist premier, is taking care of his business. The Prince was having a good time in France until Ramsay MacDonald, Phil Snowden, Stephen Walsh and the other Irish and Scotch socialists who are now running the Empire decided he should go to the United States in order to give the masses a thrill and prepare the way for another diplomatic effort toward staving off the inevitable war between the British and American imperialism.

• • •

THE Prince will not have as jolly a time in America as he had in France despite the undoubted desire of America's society ladies to do everything in their power to please. Let us not be misunderstood by some liberal emancipated member of the female sex, who might think we are suggesting that society ladies would not conduct themselves according to the New Testament in the presence of the Prince. Nothing of the kind. What we mean is that in France the Prince could have his drink and admire feminine loveliness without either receiving the attentions of the Anti-Saloon League or of Anthony Comstock, whereas in the United States, he must act with more dignity than he finds agreeable.

• • •

IT is great to be a prince under a socialist administration. The story goes that when Wales went to the gambling den at Deauville, he dropped ten thousand francs on one of the green tables and said "shoot!" The gambling boss "shot" until the Prince was cleaned up. He had a winning streak until a lady of considerable pulchritude hove in the vicinity. Her presence had a disconcerting effect on the Prince's thinking apparatus, with the result that his luck turned while his eyes were turned in the direction of the lady.

• • •

SEATS in the Prince's vicinity were at a premium and the most anxious for positions next to the British princeling were American girls. It is safe to say that American working girls were not present in large numbers. The girls who were at Deauville are daughters of capitalists who exploit other American girls eight or ten hours a day, and out of the profits ground out of the toil of those slaves, their idle daughters have a merry time in the gambling dens of Europe hobnobbing with the aristocracy.

• • •

WHAT a glorious system is capitalism? A weak-minded prince can lose 100,000 francs in a gambling joint, yet when he wakes up on the following morning he has not to worry about his meals for the rest of the day. Daughters and wives of millionaires are spending fortunes in Europe or somewhere else while millions of workers are facing starvation tho willing to work. The Prince's purse will be kept filled by the impoverished British workers. But really, the American workers, who meet at their British comrades for keeping a useless parasite, are no more sensible. For every dollar the decadent British aristocrats spend on luxuries our American money kings and their parasitical entourage spend one thousand. When will the workers of the world throw the parasites off their backs as the Russian workers did?

• • •

THE Chicago Tribune is clean mad because the world has written Lenin down as one of the greatest figures in human history. Think of it, the men he killed,? growls the Trib. But the Tribune hates Lenin not because of the men that were killed during the civil war, hatched by the capitalists and in which the Tribune, no doubt, had a hand, but because he did not kill working men. The Tribune honors General Pershing, who led nearly 100,000 men to France who never returned. They are now pushing up the lilies and the poppies. But the Tribune rave. It it ever sees any virtue in Lenin or Leninism, it will be time for Communists to get down and overhaul their consciences.

• • •

KID McKOY has taken to religion. The boxer is charged with the murder of the wife of a millionaire with whom he was living at the time of her death. McCoy has acted like a crazy man ever since the murder. Despite these facts and to the consternation that he was off his bat. Alienists employed by the prosecution also thought he was crazy—like a fox. They always do. McCoy finally hit on the good stunt. He requested a large collection of books on religion. That ought to pull him thru.

• • •

H. G. RAKOVSKY returned from London after signing a treaty with Great Britain and made his report to the Moscow Soviet. Can you imagine Charles Evans Hughes or Andrew Mellon returning from London and hot-footing it to the Washington Central Labor Union, to give the workers the low-down on the London agreement? The Moscow workers listened critically to Rakovsky's report and gave him the gold hand. Then he got them. "That's the stuff comrade," they said. "That's the kind of treaty we want, that upholds the principles of the revoution." Their Foreign Secretary, Tchitcherin, also addressed them and he got a big hand. Yet, some disgruntled socialists and syndicalists tell us the workers don't rule in Russia.

• • •

RAKOVSKY said that the Washington administration is preventing American capitalists from exploiting oil concessions in Siberia. He said a conference with Russia looking toward recognition would take place soon, and that the British loan would amount to approximately between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

MINIATURE LAYOUT OF SPECIAL EDITIONS OF THE DAILY WORKER FOR FOSTER AND GITLOW MEETINGS

SPECIAL NEW YORK EDITION

THE DAILY WORKER GOES WITH

FOSTER AND GITLOW

TO YOUR CITY!

TO assist the campaign managers and committees at the Foster, Gitlow and all campaign mass meetings of the Workers Party—as a part of the first Communist political campaign.

THE DAILY WORKER WILL UPON REQUEST PRINT A SPECIAL LOCAL EDITION FOR YOU!

THE entire front page (as in the adjoining miniature) will be covered with local news, a local headline and a large streamer ad of your meeting—AT A COST LOWER THAN YOUR ADVERTISING.

THIS is part of the plan of the National Workers Party Campaign Committee. The Daily will help build your local—your local can build the Daily—We can build the Workers Party.

How many thousand will your local order?

WRITE OR WIRE FOR FULL DETAILS.

THE DAILY WORKER

1113 W. Washington St. Chicago, Ill.

THE DAILY WORKER ERA RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT.

THE DAILY WORKER

Communist Candidates For President: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER For Vice-President: BENJAMIN GITLOW

FOSTER SPEAKS IN N. Y. FRIDAY

MASS MEETING HERE IN SUPPORT OF WORKERS PARTY CAMPAIGN

COMMUNIST PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE HAS LONG RECORD OF SERVICE TO LABOR

William Z. Foster, candidate on the Workers Party ticket for president of the United States, needs no introduction to masses of this country. Never has any American been able to look back upon a record so full of earnest and able service to the working - class. Never has the American working-class had a leader from whom more could be expected in confidence and devotion and able leadership in its immediate and future struggles. That the ablest organizer and most tireless worker in the American labor movement he is the ticket of the Workers Party in the coming elections is a hundred-fold that the only party of real labor will enter the campaign unitedly and with all the energy, the thousands of members of independent working-class political action can command.

Foster's amazing labor tour of the country has brought to him day new hundreds of working men and women into the fold of the Workers Party campaign.

A real leader and organizer of the working class, Foster is an ideal candidate to head a labor party political ticket. He is no mere formulator of phrases and ideas. Foster has demonstrated by real achievements experience in the class struggle, which is not only able to point out the correct path, but is

(Continued page 2)

Unemployed Hall Workers Party Program.

Severe unemployment is constantly growing in every part of the country as the season progresses, provided to be a blessing but a valuable lesson to the thousands of workers. They are becoming convinced that the Workers Party has the only solution for the unemployment problem. Among them Foster and Gitlow and the rest of the Workers Party candidates will find some of its greatest supporters.

Miners Hard Hit

Miners in the soft coal districts are said to be almost 100 per cent strong for Foster, in the Pittsburgh district, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, where Foster has held forth.

(Continued page 2)

Young Workers League Takes Leading Part in Campaign

While it is true that the greater proportion of its membership is as yet unable to vote, the Young Workers League is nevertheless taking a leading part in putting the campaign of the Workers Party before the workers. In the unions, in

(Cont. on page 2)

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER
Communist Candidate for President

PLACING FULL TICKET IN FIELD IN NEW YORK

The Workers Party will contest in the New York State elections in every county. A complete ticket is being placed in the field and petitions have been printed and put in circulation. The party members and sympathizers are working hard at work in securing signatures to the petitions. A comprehensive campaign has been worked out for every district with captains in charge.

More solicitors, however, are necessary. Those who are willing to help in this work should apply for their supplies at once at one of the following places:

WORKERS PARTY LOCAL OFFICE:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Prelbetz:
47 Chrystie Street.
Volkszeitung:
15 Spruce Street.
Workers' Home:
346 East 84th St.
Jones' Restaurant:
459 East 110th St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store:
127 University Pl.

All Workers Party branches have also supplies both for state and district petitions.

GREAT CROWD EXPECTED AT OPENING MEETING OF COMMUNIST ELECTION DRIVE

In what is expected to be one of the greatest meetings ever held by Labor in this city, the Workers Party will open officially its election campaign here with a mass meeting in their Madison Square Gardens, with William Z. Foster as the principal speaker on the night when scores of other leading labor men and women on the program, the speeches of the Communist campaign in New York will make the records of the Socialist candidates fade into insignificance.

Plan Parade

Great preparations are being made to make this meeting a striking example and beginning for the entire campaign. Enthusiastic militants are preparing to parade from Boston Road and Southern Boulevard to the meeting place. Special trains will be arranged from the railroad station on his arrival here from Boston. A parade has been arranged from the station to the hall.

Seats at Premium

Because of the known willingness to pay for seats, the committee in charge has found it necessary to charge admittance by ticket only. Tickets have been printed in sufficient number to provide for every seat in the hall. No more will be issued. Those who wish to be sure of obtaining entrance to the hall should secure their tickets in advance. They may be obtained at any of the following places:

Workers Party Offices:
208 E. Twelfth St.
Jimmie Higgins' Book Store:
127 University Pl.
Prelbetz:
47 Chrystie Street

Trade Unionists Line Up for W. P. Ticket

Sam Gompers and W. H. Johnston may have pledged the labor vote to LaFollette, but they are going to have a hard time to deliver if the sentiment among the thetrades unionists of many trades in this city indicates anything. A strong rank and file movement is developing which is rapidly swinging hundreds of workers into the Foster-Gitlow camp. Out of the election campaign a strong and militant left wing movement will result.

Rank and File For Foster

Particularly is sentiment among workers in the metal trades workers in the Foster-Gitlow sentiment manifesting itself.

Workers Party Campaigns for New Members

If you are a supporter of Foster and Gitlow, if you believe in the class struggle and are willing to do your share on the side of the working class—in other words, if you are a revolutionary organization, if you believe in the party of the revolutionary working class, the Workers Party, during August, September and October, is the party in campaigning for new members, and militants who can qualify are welcomed into the ranks.

Party Campaign Fund Mounts but Thousands Are Still Needed

Pronounced success has been met in the efforts made both locally and nationally to finance the Foster-Gitlow campaign. While Big Wall Street is pouring the coin for Coolidge and Davis and Little Wall Street is forking over the necessary funds for La Follette, the wage workers who have a head for things and a heart for fighting are digging deep to make the Communist campaign as powerful as possible. Coolidge and Davis may be secure—Coolidge is planning a big campaign this year and expect to spend less than $10,000,000, Davis will have to raise almost even less than that, while LaFollette spokesmen believe they can swing the country for a paltry $5,000,000.

Against these powerful capitalist war chests the workers are going into the field nothing but their nerve to back on and with the hope that militants will produce the huge amount of $100,000 to convince the workers of this country to vote for the party program.

WORKERS PARTY ELECTION CAMPAIGN MASS MEETING

Speakers: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER and Others

MADISON SQUARE GARDENS

FRIDAY, EVENING, AUGUST 15, AT 8 P. M.

Admission 25 cents

Doors open at 6:30

The Workers Party in Action

FOSTER SPEAKS IN IOWA STATE THIS WEEK END

To Expose Brookhart's Fake Remedies

The workers and exploited farmers of Iowa will have an opportunity to compare the social nostrums advocated by Smith W. Brookhart, alleged progressive senator from that state, with the Communist program of the Workers Party, when William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president of the United States speaks in Sioux City and Des Moines on the 29th and 30th of this month.

The meetings will be held in the following places: Sioux City Labor Lyceum, 508 Jennings Street, Friday, August 29, at 8 P. M.

Des Moines—Grotto Hall, 721 Locust Street, Saturday, August 30th, 8 p. m.

Mr. Brookhart, republican senator, has long posed as a progressive, but a statement issued by Joseph Manley, William Z. Foster's campaign manager, charges Brookhart with confusing the workers and poor farmers with his illusory reforms and points out that his progressiveness is so shallow that he refused to speak on the same platform with the genuine radical, Alexander Howat.

Manley's statement follows:

Smith W. Brookhart, Farmer-Labor senator from Iowa, is fake many of the so-called Farmer-Laborites. His glib progressive sounding words and schemes, are calculated to do nothing but confuse the workers and poor farmers who are in a mood for real rebellion against capitalism and delude them into continuing to follow capitalist business methods and politicians.

The panacea of Brookhart for the economic ills of the exploited farmers is co-operation. His particular brand of co-operation is similar to that emasculated form that employs modern capitalist business methods and is run by high priced "experts" like Sapiro, who seek to outdo the capitalists in the practice of sharp business acumen and exploitation.

His Pet Scheme.

Brookhart's pet scheme is to have Congress appropriate $204,000,000 to be used in starting: "A farmers' and laborers' co-operative national reserve and banking system."

The money is to be drawn from the profits made by the United States Grain Corporation and from the surplus of the Federal Reserve banks. "And to give proportionate representation to farmers and laborers on all Federal Reserve Boards."

This kind of bunk peddled by Brookhart has done more to confuse the minds of the poor farmers and workers of his native state Iowa, than all the propaganda of the railroads, trusts and other reactionary influences. How much of a friend of labor Brookhart happens to be, can be judged by his action on last Labor Day, when he refused to speak at Springfield, Ill., because a genuine radical like Alexander Howat was to appear on the same platform to address the large gathering of miners and their families.

Exposes Fake "Co-ops."

William Z. Foster will speak in two cities in Iowa, Des Moines and Sioux City. The Workers Party candidate for president, will expose Brookhart's fake co-operation an dtell his audiences of the real workers and farmer co-operation as practiced in Russia under the Soviet Workers and Farmers Government.

Both Brookhart and Foster have been in Russia— Foster twice and Brookhart marveled at the tremendous co-operatives of the Russians, but all he learned was to prostitute the name of the co-operative idea to serve the best interests of the capitalist system.

Foster returned from Russia, a Communist, a champion of the Communist International and a real fighter against capitalism. Foster will tell the workers and farmers of Iowa of the Russian system of co-operation and denounce all such false friends of the working masses—as Brookhart.

FURNISHED ROOMS, APARTMENTS AND BUNGALOWS.

REDS COMING TO WASHINGTON, D. C.
Furnished Rooms, $10 to $25 a Month.
Apartments, $25 to $60 a Month.
Bungalows, $46 to $75 a Month.
Mrs. Batsler, 32 G Street, S. W.
Washington, D. C.

Improve Your Property
Damaged Buildings Restored
LOANS TO IMPROVE
New Floors, Fronts, Shelving
MID-CITY CARPENTER SHOP
908 S. Irving Ave. Bestey 1552

A Glance at Our Party

By C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary, Workers Party

FOR some time the National Office has been trying to secure from the branches and district organizations a record of the number of members on the rolls of the party and the percentage of these who are paying dues regularly each month. For this purpose regular monthly report cards have been sent to all branches of the party and these have been tabulated by the district organizers and sent to the national organization.

The following table is produced from the report sent to the National Organization by the District Organizers. It throws a strong light on the question of how efficiently our party is functioning. Every District Organizer and every branch secretary should carefully study the table in order to find out where he stands in performing the detail work of the party thru which alone an efficient organization can be built up. This is the table in question:

District No.	Last report	Total branches in District	Total branches reporting	New members for month	Total members on rolls	Total members paid to date.
1	June	95	40	34	1,666	1,132
2	June	125	46	44	2,459	1,548
3	June	58	33	58	637	346
4	Feb.	44	23	19	337	238
5	June	115	29	17	537	406
6	June	66	30	47	899	639
7	June	44	28	50	1,386	937
8	June	124	57	58	1,355	663
9	June	101	21	14	534	295
10	May	60	46	19	574	365
12	June	19	2	2	77	48
13	June	16	14	13	448	247
15	March	40	3	.....	22	19
Agricult.	June	13	7	.....	112	29
		910	379	345	11,039	6,912

The first fact which came to the attention in examining this table, is that out of the fourteen District Divisions of the Party, only eleven are represented by reports for the month of June. Three districts did not send reports for that month and some of the Districts, as shown by the month for which last report is indicated in the table have been behind in performing this duty for several months. It is certainly not a very hopeful sign if the District Organizers who are charged with directing the work in the Districts and charged with keeping track of the party members in the District and remedying the defects of the party organization, do not send reports to the National Organization.

In connection with the activities of the District Organizers, it is also interesting to note a fact which does not appear in the table. Quite a number of District Organizers send their reports to the National Office without totalling the number of new members or the total members on the rolls or the total members who paid dues for the month. In other words, these District Organizers have not sufficient interest in learning the facts about the standing of the membership in their districts to add up a column of figures which will enlighten them on this point and give them material for agitation and work to improve their District Organization.

Turning from the Districts to the branches, the efficiency in performing this simple task drops very low indeed. There are on the records in the National Office some 1200 functioning branches. The reports of the District Organizers show 910 branches in the Districts reported. Out of these 910 branches, all of which receive report cards from the District Organizers, only 379, or 42 per cent, returned the cards to the District Office.

What shall we say about a party organization engaged in a revolutionary struggle in which only 42 per cent of the secretaries are interested enough in the party work to perform such a slight routine task as to fill out five or six questions on a report card requiring, all told, ten minutes' time.

Certainly we have a long way to go before we can really call ourselves a Communist Party when such lack of discipline exists in our ranks.

Leaving the sphere of the Branch Secretaries and turning to the members of our party, we find just as bad a condition. The 379 branches reporting stated they had on their rolls a total of 11,039 members. Of these 11,039, there were 6,912 in good standing, or only 62 per cent. One out of every three members in the party had not paid dues for at least one month.

The Total Members on our Rolls.

The figures in this table indicate that there are on the party rolls at the present time between 27,500 and 30,000 members. The fact that only two out of three of these members are paying party dues is also attested by the reports of dues stamps sales and payments for stamps received by the National Organization. The highest figure which dues stamps sales have reached for any month has been 19,000 which has left from eight to ten thousand members with dues unpaid.

One fact explaining the discrepancy between members on our rolls and those paying dues has been brought to light recently in the practice in some branches of receipting members' stamp books in place of pasting stamps in these books. To root out this practice, the Central Executive Committee has adopted the rule that any member permitting his stamp book to be receipted in any other way than by putting a stamp therein, thereby sacrifices his membership in the party and shall be expelled together with any secretary guilty of this practice.

We must improve the conditions shown by this table of reports and dues payments. District Organizers who fail to comply with the elementary duty of learning how their branches are functioning in the matter of paying dues and making reports cannot be expected to be efficient in carrying out political policies. Branches which do not send in report cards cannot be expected to distribute literature and carry on agitation for members and readers for our papers. Members who do not pay their dues are not good Communist workers.

Every party worker should take pride in the prompt and efficient performance of his part of the party work. It is only when the whole party machinery consists of comrades who take their work earnestly and perform their duties promptly that our party will be able to mobilize its full strength for the work it is engaged in. No one can be proud of inefficient work such as these tables show.

WORKERS PARTY OPEN AIR RALLIES ARE SUCCESSFUL

Communists Refuse to Get Permits

More and more workers in Chicago are being reached every week with the Communist message at our open air street meetings. Last week twenty five meetings of the Workers Party were held and this week the same number is scheduled. Typical are three recent meetings held by speakers Gomez, Early and Shachtman who report attendances of two to four hundreds.

All the reports show the DAILY WORKER and pamphlets being sold. But there is still need for more attention to this end of the work and a good assortment of literature should always be on hand. At every street meeting there should always be election platform leaflets, distributed and signatures solicited on the petitions to put our candidates on the ballot. The party program, constitution, the Foster pamphlets (especially the new one on Russia) should always be on sale together with the party and Y. W. L. publications.

Speak Without Permits.

It has been our policy not to establish the precedent by asking police department for permission to speak. There was no police interference Thursday evening at 62nd and Halsted in spite of previous threats of the Englewood Business Men's Association's manager to have our speakers arrested. In Cicero a large and orderly meeting was held Thursday at 14th St. and 51st Ave. in spite of the threat of the chief of police that if our meetings were not discontinued on his "main street" he would send down a big brass band to play on the opposite corner and drive our crowd away (Some band!)

A new case of police persecution came up Friday night when a meeting at Lawrence and Sawyer was broken up after Peter Herd had spoken about an hour. Our comrades were told to get a permit. This is not our policy. Next Friday night a meeting will be held on the same corner and provisions will be made to bail out any comrades who are pinched so that we can appeal the case.

Comrades of all W. P. and Y. W. L. branches are asked to rally to the support of the street meetings.

Communists Halt Dawes Report.

BERLIN, August 25.—Communists today again prevented debate on the Dawes-Morgan reparations plan and the London settlement which Chancellor Marx intends to shove down the throats of the German workers. Marx spoke but could not be heard because of the Communists.

CHICAGO PARTY ACTIVITIES

BRANCH MEETINGS.
Tuesday, August 26.

Ukrainian No. 1—1113 West Chicago Avenue.
N. W. English—2732 Hirsch Blvd.
Irving Park English—4071 Drake Ave.
Meeting of all District Campaign Managers—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.

Wednesday, August 27.

Membership Meeting — Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., 8 p. m.

Thursday, August 28.

Enlarged City Executive Committee—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.
Eleventh Ward Italian—2439 South Oakley Blvd.
Scandinavian Karl Marx—2733 Hirsch Boulevard.
Scandinavian, West Side—Zelch's Hall, Corner Cicero and Superior.
Scandinavian, Lake View—3206 North Wilton Street.

Friday, August 28.

Scandinavian, South Chicago—641 East 87th Street.
U. W. B. S. Membership Meeting—Workers Lyceum, 8 p. m.

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.
Tuesday, Aug. 26.

14th St. and 49th Ct.—Auspices, Cicero Workers Party and Y. W. L.; speakers, P. Herd, J. Edwards.
Orchard and Wabansia—Auspices, North West Lithuanian Branch; speakers, G. Maurer, also Lithuanian and Polish.
Racine and Ogden (or 16th)—Auspices, D. P. English, W. S. T. W. L.; speaker, J. McCarthy.

Wednesday, August 27.

Belmont and Wilton—Auspices, North Side Side W. P and Y. W. L.; speaker, D. E. Early.
33rd and Halsted Sts.—Auspices, Lithuanian Branch in 4th Congressional District; speakers, Sam Hammermark, V. Zokaitis.
Roosevelt and Marshfield—Auspices, Luxemburg Y. W. L.; speakers, Harrison Geolgen, B. Garver.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.

Party units and friendly organizations do not conflict dates.
Monday, Sept. 1—T. U. E. L. Picnic, Altenheim Grove.
Sunday, Sept. 7—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.
Sunday, Oct. 12—Foster-Gitlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).
Saturday, Oct. 18—John Reed Memorial Meeting.
Saturday, Oct. 25—Freiheit Ball, Ashland Auditorium.
Friday, Nov. 7—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.
Saturday, Nov. 15 — Young Workers League Ball.
Nov. 27-30—Daily Worker and Labor Defense Council Bazaar.
Wednesday, Dec. 31—T. U. E. L. Dance, West End Hall.
Wednesday, Jan. 21—Lenin Memorial Meeting, Ashland Auditorium.
Saturday, Feb. 28—Red Revel.

EDUCATE YOURSELF FOR THE STRUGGLE

Class in English (for foreign-born workers) begins September 10; tuition fee $2.00.
Class in Trade Union Tactics begins September 11; tuition fee $1.00.
Enroll Now at Local Chicago Office, 166 W. Washington St.
(Phone State 7985)

Election Campaign Notes.

There will be a meeting of campaign managers and candidates of congressional districts, Tuesday, Aug. 26, at 8 p. m., in Room 307, 166 West Washington St.

We must have a review of the campaign in order to check up on the progress made and the work that remains to be done in order to put the Workers Party candidates on the ballot. Please bring in all the petitions with signatures on them and be prepared to make a thorough report on the work done in your district covering the following points:

1. Organization of your district.
2. Number of signatures obtained to date.
3. Street meetings.
4. Campaign leaflets.
5. "Sign Here" posters.
6. DAILY WORKER.
7. House to house canvas.

Sept. 15th is the final date for all the petitions to be in. We have only three weeks in which to put the Workers Party candidates on the ballot. This very important work must take precedence overy anything else. Be sure to attend the meeting Tuesday evening, August 26th.—Martin Abern, City Secretary, Local Chicago. Ida McCarthy, Secretary, Campaign Committee.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Local Chicago
MEMBERSHIP MEETING
Wednesday, August 27, 8 p. m.
at
WORKERS LYCEUM,
2733 Hirsch Blvd.

Review of Elections Campaign, and the Daily Worker and Membership Drives.

Speakers: Earl R. Browder, Editor "Labor Herald"; Joseph Manley, National Campaign Manager.

All Workers Party and Young Workers League members to be present.

What are you doing to put the Party candidates on the ballot? Have you gotten a new subscriber to THE DAILY WORKER? Did you bring in another member to the Party?

SHOW DOCUMENTS TO PROVE THAT INDIAN PEOPLE OBJECT TO DRUG PEDDLING BY BRITISH EMPIRE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—British propaganda that the people of India do not object to the opium business is officially disproved in documents shown the Federated Press by Taraknath Das. Das suggests that the league of nations assembly which opens in Geneva, Switzerland, in September take up again the opium question. The British successfully squelched action last year when the American pressure had brought up the unpleasant topic.

British Lie.

"It has been often asserted by the supporters of the British opium monopoly in India," says Das, "that the people including Gandhi do not complain. In past meetings of the league of nations whenever the opium question was discussed the representative of British Indian government held that opiumeating by the people of India is legitimate because 'it does not do any harm to them.'

"The people of India regard the British Indian government's opium policy as injurious to the best interest of the people. The All-Indian Congress committee in its recent sitting at Ahmedabad, in which all important Indian Nationalist leaders participated, adopted a resolution condemning the British government.

Indian Congress Objects.

"The resolution stated that in the opinion of the All-India Congress committee the opium policy of the government of India is altogether contrary to the moral welfare of the people of India. The Congress committee is further of opinion that the people of India would welcome the total abolition of the opium trade for the purpose of revenue and is also of the opinion that the production of opium is out of all proportion to the medicinal requirements of India.

Motive Money, as Usual.

"India is the largest producer of opium in the world. British India produces 1,450 tons of opium out of 3,000 tons that are the world's annual output. The principal motive of the government monopoly in India in encouraging production is revenue. The people of India object but have no power to stop this crime because they have no final control over the finance of the country."

KLAN ON TRIAL IN TEXAS POLLS LAST SATURDAY

Foes of Hooded Order Expected to Win

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FORT WORTH, Tex., August 25.—Mrs. Miriam E. Ferguson, woman candidate for governor of Texas, has won the victory over her Ku Klux Klan opponent in the "run-off" primary last Saturday. In the first primary neither candidate secured a majority of the votes cast, so another contest was staged between the two polling the largest number of votes, Mrs. Ferguson and Judge Felix D. Robertson, her Klan opponent, both are democrats. The republican party in Texas consists of a letterhead and a "hardy annual" candidate for governor.

To Fumigate Spouse.

Mrs. Ferguson entered the contest originally to clear her husband's reputation of the stain of impeachment. Her campaign speeches have been confined to a simple "Thank you" to the monster crows that come out to see her. Her press statements tell how hard she worked preserving her summer fruits and how it was in her kitchen, etc. This went well in Texas.

Mr. Ferguson, however, is one of the best spellbinders in the state and does the talking for his wife. In case Mrs. Ferguson is elected her husband will probably continue to do the talking and most of the acting.

Birds of a Feather.

Things look bad for the Kluxers at the moment. They are pouring thousands of dollars into the state. It should not be assumed that the element opposed to the Kluxers are any more favorable to labor than the Klan leaders. Among the former is the notorious Albert Burleson, former Postmaster General under Woodrow Wilson. He is one of the strongest opponents of the Klan in Texas.

Withdraw Injunction for Failing to Sew Clothes in Strike

(By The Federated Press)

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—The old slogan that "Injunctions Don't Sew Clothes" was shown here when Peavey Bros. company, manufacturers of men's ready made clothing, at 3 Bennington street, called for the dismissal of their injunction restraining the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union from picketing the shop. The firm had just signed an agreement with the union in order to get its plant running again. Settling at the same time was the firm of E. R. Smith & Co., which held out a few days longer than other firms during the week's strike.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, Aug. 30.

COOLIDGE ENDORSES DAWES' DEFENSE OF THE KU KLUX KLAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 25.—The endorsement given to the Ku Klux Klan by Charles Gates Dawes, vice-presidential nominee of the Republican party, expresses the stand on the question that is held by President Coolidge, according to a spokesman for Silent Cal who made that announcement today.

Coolidge was challenged by Davis, Democratic nominee, to declare his position on the Ku Klux Klan question and the President is letting the impression to go out that Dawes has outlined the Coolidge viewpoint as well as his own.

WORKERS SOLVE THEIR PROBLEM OF WHERE TO EAT

Own Good Food Shops; Work for Russia

By M. A. SKROMNY.

About a year ago a group of dissatisfied boarders at some private houses and patronizers of cheap restaurants and incidentally all members of the Society for Technical Aid met to discuss the possibility of organizing their own food shop where they would at least be ont of danger of ptomaine poisoning. A committee was appointed to rent a place and $50 was the initial payment decided upon for each member of the cooperative, and this money to be paid in partial payments.

Thus the First Russian Co-operative Restaurant was organized at 1734 West Division Street, Chicago. The membership was not limited to Russians, nor to members of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. Anyone in agreement with the principles of the organization was eligible to membership and the organization grew rapidly.

The profits of this restaurant was to go for educational purposes. Tho the prices for food were cheaper than in other restaurants and the food of Grand- St. Extension, Brooklyn—Joe Brandy and Levy.
Stone and Pitkin Ave. Brooklyn—Charles Brower and Jack Stachel.

the best quality, the restaurant surely made profits began to accumulate. Soon the treasury showed a balance of $2,000 clear profit which is being used to good advantage.

In addition to starting another restaurant, the Second Russian Co-operative, at 760 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, the co-operative covered the entire deficit for the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia during the summer months when the society has practically no income. It also donated $100 to the Federation of Russian Children's Schools of Chicago. The co-operative is arranging a ball for the benefit of the Russian Children's School. Half of the proceeds from the ball will go for a library for the co-operative.

New York, Attention!

4 DAYS

The First Great Film from Soviet Russia

"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"

Produced by Proletkino (Moscow) In co-operation with the Red Army

A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest

Aug. 22–29, Inclusive

At the

LENOX THEATRE

111th Street and Lenox Ave.

Added Film Feature

"Russia in Overalls"

Continuous Performance from 7:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

ADMISSION - - - - - 50c

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.
Time, Place and Speakers.

Thursday, August 28.

115th Street and Madison Ave.—G. H. Powers.

Friday, August 29.

Jefferson and 2nd Ave.—Broadway—Harry Hartman.
18th St. and 2nd Ave.—W. W. Weinstone.
106th St. and Madison Avenue—J. S. Poyntz.
162rd St. and S. Blvd.—Rebecca Grecht and Simon Gerbin.
138th Street and Brook Avenue—John Marshall.
Grand and Roebling St., Brooklyn—S. Potash, B. Davidson.
Stone and Pitkin—Joe Brahdy.
Graham and Varet Sts., Brooklyn—Jewish speakers.
7th Ave. and 52nd Sts., Brooklyn—Pinkiary.
13th Ave. and 42nd St.—S. Darcy, S. Nelson.
25th St. and Mermaid Ave., Coney Island—L. Lundy and others.

Saturday, August 30.

148th Street and Wills Ave.—Joe Padgug and Edward Mallon.

HAVE YOU BEEN IN RUSSIA!

Why not go there while on your vacation?

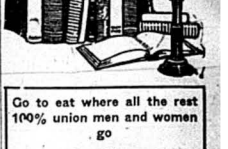
Buy these books and save the price of a round trip ticket and other traveling expenses?

SPECIAL ROUND TRIP NO. 5
Through the Russian Revolution, by Albert Rhys Williams.....$2.00
First Time in History, by Anna Louise Strong 2.00
Total $4.00
Special price till Sept. 1, 1924....$3.00

SPECIAL ROUND TRIP NO. 6
The Russian Revolution, by W. Z. Foster, cloth.....$1.00
Industrial Revival in Soviet Russia, by A. A. Heller.....1.50
Russian Trade Unions in 1923.....10
Marriage Laws in Soviet Russia.....25
Labor Laws of Soviet Russia.....25
The Soviet Constitution.....05
Is the Russian Revolution a Bourgeois Revolution, by Radek 10
Total $3.25
Special till Sept. 1, 1924.....$1.50
Both round trips to any one address $4.00

Order by the numbers, from

LITERATURE DEPARTMENT,
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.



Go to eat where all the rest 100% union men and women go

Deutche-Hungarian Restaurant

29 South Halsted St.

Pure Food, Good Service and reasonable prices our motto

U. S. BANKERS TO RUN EUROPE THRU THE DAWES PLAN

Herriot Begs Chamber for Co-operation

PARIS, Aug. 25.—"The London conference was only a beginning, but it is the beginning of real peace for Europe," Premier Herriot declared in the chamber of deputies.

"You will observe," continued the premier, "we have given a large part of the work to Americans in our control organization. We have done so intentionally. The regime upon which the Dawes plan depends must endure."

Must Accept Dawes Plan.

Premier Herriot appealed to the chamber to ratify the London agreement, saying:

"If you accept the Dawes plan you cannot refuse to grant the co-operation which the experts declare is indespensable."

Premier Herriot said the choice was between reestablishment of Inter-Allied accords and the maintenance of isolated action.

"I have chosen. Now Parliament can chose in its turn," declared the premier. "When they demand that Germany pay an incontestable debt of which we are the victims, we can only reject or see associated with us in carrying out the plan the great American republic that was witness of our suffering and that has the necessary authority to supervise execution of the program which was largely due to American initiative.

"Introduction of arbitration modifies and restrains the inter-Allied reparations commission's powers. But I have consulted legal experts who said a modification does not impair the Versailles treaty. Otherwise we never would have accepted."

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

DISARM TALK IS BUNK IN FACE OF WAR-STEEL UNION

Europe Munitions Men Unite Against U. S.

(By Federated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 25 — Economic causes of war are steadily developing while political governments prattle about peace and disarmament. A European steel convention is about to be formed which will include most of the notable steel firms of the steel producing countries of Europe. One object of this convention will be to protect European steel production against American price cutting operations. European steel interests feel that the United States with its tremendous surplus capacity will dump steel on the European market below cost of production if necessary in order to smash competition and eventually absorb rivals. In other words they expect American capitalists to pursue the same policy which enabled them to build up monopolies in America before the war.

Bosses Condescend to Increase Wages After Cutting Them

(By The Federated Press)

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 25.—Motormen and conductors employed by the local street railway company, a Stone and Webster concern, have been granted an increase in wages. First year men will receive 45 cents an hour; second year men, 47 cents; and third year men and thereafter, 50 cents. Operators of one-man cars will receive 4 cents per hour additional.

The superintendent of the company announces that the increase is given because of "loyal, courteous and efficient service and the splendid spirit in which the reduction in wages of Aug. 1, 1921, was accepted." He says that he understands that the cost of living has increased since then.

The workers have never had a union to look out for their interests.

Paper Workers in Demand for Wages Increase or Strike

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The 44-hour week and a 25 percent increase in wages is demanded by the Paper Box Makers Union here as the alternative to a strike September 15, Morris Waldman, union organizer, estimates that 150 open shop plants, employing about 4,000 girls, will be shut down unless the bosses yield. Many of the girls receive less than $15 a week.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

RUSSIA AROUSED BY MURDER OF WORKER CORRESPONDENT WHO EXPOSED LOCAL GRAFT

By M. A. SKROMNY

A murder which sent a wave of indignation all over the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics was committed recently in a small village of Ukraina. The victim, Gregory Malinovsky, was a village correspondent of the Communist press, a former member of the Red Army, a veteran of many battles against the counter - revolutionary bands and invaders. The murderer, Andrew Malinovsky, is the brother of the victim.

Many of the criminal elements of Russia, the exploiters, the czarists, etc., when they saw that all is lost for them, began to join the Communist Party in the district where they were not known. They entrenched themselves with the aid of their friends, and often were elected to responsible positions, especially in the small villages, where there was always a lack of "educated" people. Hence, we have been reading in the press of the cleansing of the party, of "Communist" officials being shot by the Cheka, etc.

Communists Terrorized.

When Gregory Malinovsky came back from the Red Army to his small village, Dymovka, he found a gang of criminals intrenched in official positions. They terrorized all opposition and nobody dared to say anything against them.

Gregory, who faced the fire of the enemy on the battlefield,' was not scared. He opened an attack at the village meetings and in the press. Soon all Ukraina knew about the small village of Dymovka and its grafters. The first to be attacked was a certain Juravsky. When his name appeared in the press, he was scared and began to weaken. The rest of the gang did not like it either, and they started to think of a way to get rid of the enemy. At the same time they were afraid that Juravsky may tell on them in case of trouble. As a result, Juravsky dies suddenly.

Malinovsky Remains Firm.

Gregory Malinovsky suspected that murder has been committed and with the aid of a few comrades, mostly former Red Army men, intensified his campaign against the grafters.

Then, one night, Gregory was found shot to death with an insulting note pinned on to his breast. He was buried and for four months nobody knew anything about this murder. Only one of his comrades did not rest and quietly continued an investigation. As a result, the murderers are under arrest.

GREGORY MALINOVSKY

Communist Village Correspondent, who was killed by his own brother at the instigation of his enemies.

Brother Confesses.

The brother, Andrew Malinovsky, confessed to everything. He told how the gang worked on him for months, telling him that his brother was a bandit, an enemy of the people and an enemy of God, and finally they made him drunk with moonshine and gave him a loaded shotgun with which he killed his own brother.

The case brought forth a storm of indignation. In many cities labor correspondents held special meetings and passed resolutions demanding immediate investigation by the G. P. U. of all cases of graft, etc., which are appearing in the press, in order to prevent other similar cases.

Many newspapers are collecting money for the aid of the victim's family.

CZARIST PRINCESS JAILED FOR STORE ROBBERY IN FRANCE

PARIS, August 25.—Princess Eugenie Galitzine, 60 years old, wife of Prince Nicolas Galitzine, of the czarist regime of blood and terror before the Bolshevik revolution, has been sentenced by default to two months' imprisonment and a fine of 200 francs for stealing from a department store here.

Demand Compensation For Unionist Who Is Deprived of His Work

An interesting question arises from the situation that confronts John Sassman, a union butcher. Following an attack of typhoid fever in January, the department of health pronounced Sassman a typhoid carrier and forbade him to handle meats. Three tests at three laboratories, made on the initiative of the union, gave positive results, and the union is making no criticism of Dr. Bundesen, the health commissioner.

The question which the union raises is whether the state, which deprives a man of work for the benefit of the public health should compensate him. At present Sassman, his wife, and children are being supported by the union.

Hundreds in Clamor for Work at Opening of Tacoma Sawmills

(By Federated Press.)

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 25.— Following an announcement a week in advance of the opening of the Dempsey sawmill here, there have been hundreds of men applying for work. Despite the rain and the fact that the regular crew was to be re-hired, a mob large enough to man several mills clamored at the office for work. Two other mills opening the same day were similarly besieged, according to workers. The "Lumber Capital of America" is also the unemployment capital. Eastern labor should disregard press dispatches from the Pacific coast claiming unusual industrial activities.

Rochester Bakers Hot on Trail of Ward Scab Bread

(By The Federated Press)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 24.—In an attemt to force union recognition from the notorious anti-union Ward Bakeries, General Organizer Walsh of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union has come to Rochester to extend his help to Local No. 14.

In the meantime, 117 union bakeries under the jurisdiction of this union give organized labor and its sympathizers opportunity to confine their consumption of bread and bakery goods to union made products.

CAPPELLINI NOW JOINS WITH THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

Had Denounced Them at Time of Election

(Special to Daily Worker.)

PLAINS, Pa., Aug. 25.—The "No Work" whistle was blown here last night, while the men were assembled in their local union meeting. This, because a big celebration was on the calendar for today and the poor miners and their money needed to make it a success. With three bands, the church guilds, the local branch of the American Legion, the local mounted and foot police and a large number of automobiles carrying the "better" people, as well as the customary pomp and splendor that accompanies such occasions, the new Polish Catholic Church at this place, a $250,000 structure, was dedicated this morning.

Capellini Leads.

Leading the automobile section of the parade was none other than Ritnaldo Cappellini, the one-time "supposed" radical and the miners who were used to hearing him, in the days when he was seeking the presidency of the union in this district, were given a chance to recall the things he would say about the way the churches and the bosses controlled the lives of the men, women and children thru the grip they had on the union.

Not content with having closed the mines down last Friday and Saturday on account of a religious holiday, they closed the one here again today and those who have a little to spare, or those who can pull a little of that self-denial stuff, are invited to unload at the new edifice or at the carnival across the street, which is being run in conjunction with same.

After the parade and a dedicatory mass, at which three Bishops and scores of priests were reported in attendance, a big chicken dinner was served to the invited guests by the women of the parish. This, however, was not to be disturbed by the common members, for only the luminaries and invited guests were on the inside for this occasion.

The local papers had announced that speaking was on the program and many of the miners, formerly supporters of Cappellini, were on the job to hear what he had to say, but their disappointment was a bitter one indeed when they were informed that the speeches were of the after-dinner type and were to be delivered indoors and, like the dinner, only for the guests. Cappellini's good friend, Mayor Hart of Wilkes Barre was to be toastmaster, so it can be safely said that nothing in the form of good things for the workers, would be brot on the carpet for discussion.

In a Good Car.

Cappellini drove a good type sedan which was draped in the national colors and at one point in the line of parade, the auto section was stopped for some reason or other and the ex-radical left his car, going back to the second one to fraternize with the lords of the church who took second place to him in the parade.

Young Hoodlums in Attacks on Negroes; Worker in Hospital

(By The Federated Press)

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 25.—Gangs of young white hoodlums are making a practice in this city of attacking inoffensive Negro men and women as they walk along the streets and then rushing away in their auto.

Will Roberts, 39, Negro laborer, reported at the Emergency Hospital for treatment after being assaulted by such a bunch. He said that while he was walking home a motor car with six or seven young white men drew up to the curb and stopped and he was severely beaten by the young toughs.

This is the fourth time within a short period that white boys have attacked Negroes without cause. The police was given the number of the car and say that they will make arrests.

PLUTE GREETS "LABOR" BANKS AS BOSS TOOL FOR GETTING WORKERS TO JOIN LOVE FEST

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Will labor banks prove merely a supplement to employe stock ownership and customer ownership schemes for identifying the interests of workers and consumers with the corporate interest which exploit them? This is the question raised by a statement in which President Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank of New York, welcomes labor banks to the bosom of the banking community. Mitchell's welcome may well be considered as coming officially from the financial dynasty because the National City Bank is the dominant bank of the Rockefeller-Standard Oil group and probably the most powerful bank in America. It raises the further question whether money power will extend as warm a welcome if labor banking shows the way for producers to challenge the right of hereditary wealth to control the country.

Good For Bosses.

Labor banks for the time being, to judge from Mitchell's statement, fit in well with the plans of the big New York banks. These powerful financial interests welcome labor's new venture as a means to breaking down class lines between workers and owners, as a means to spreading the idea that bankers are not parasites, and as a means to mobilizing labor's monthly wage as a basis for further increase of credit capital available for industrial expansion.

"There are certain reasons," according to Mitchell, "why we think the labor banks are a good thing for the whole banking business. These are first, because they demonstrate 'that banking is not a privileged business but is open to all,' that it is not parasitic but 'perform useful functions in society.'"

No More Class Struggle.

Carrying out this idea that labor banking fits in with the desire of capital to develop a greater identity of interest between the worker and industry he says: "We do not think that the wage earners should be nothing but employes, but that they should plan to share in ownership. The modern form of corporate organization makes it possible for thousands of persons to participate in the ownership of an industry, either as bondholders or stockholders, and we believe it will be for the good of the country to have the railroads and larger industries owned in this manner. We do not want a sharp line drawn between owners and workers, but rather that the two shall be the same or closely intermingled. The result will be better understanding and more effective co-operation."

To Allay Unrest.

Apparently organized money power sees in labor banking at present little more than a new means of eliminating social unrest and gaining the cooperation of labor. For today ownership of stocks and bonds does not necessarily mean industrial control. It does not challenge the rulership which absentee owners have built upon huge blocks of stock in the key industries. Probably New York banker industrialists feel themselves competent to oppose insuperable obstacles if labor attempts to use its banks as a stepping stone to power.

Mexican Workers in Protest Against Act Of Vandalism on Art

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—Workers organizations from all parts of Mexico are pouring in letters of protest to the educational authorities and expressions of sympathy to the Union of Revolutionary Painters as a result of a recent act of vandalism committed by a group of fanatical and ignorant students on the mural paintings of J. Clemente Orozco (the Mexican Goya) and D. Alfaro Siqueiros.

The murals were completed a short time ago in the patio of the National Preparatory School and their mutilation was the work of a band of students of that school. A group of foreigners resident in Mexico City, among them the well-known author of "Mexico: An Interpretation," Carlton Beals, has published an open letter in protest.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

EVEN THE PEASANTS OF GERMANY THREATEN TO BEGIN REVOLTING

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

MUNICH, Aug. 25.—It seems as tho even the peasants of Germany are in danger of revolting together with the workers. At a meeting of the Bavarian Christian Farmers' Union, Dr. Schlittenbauer, general secretary and a dirt farmer, called attention to the precarious situation of the peasants and said that not only was there the danger of Communism looming in the background, but a social revolution in which farmers would join.

Taxes are generally unsatisfactory and altogether too high, he said. If the present policy of the Berlin government continues for another 7 or 8 months, the danger will be acute, said the dirt farming doctor.

Most of the union members nodded their heads when the honorable doctor predicted a farmers' revolution if taxes kept piling upon the hopest sons of the soil.

FOUR I. W. W. MAY BE DEPORTED IN FEDERAL HEARING

Wobblies Call on Labor to Protest Act

By Defense News Service.

Four members of the I. W. W. who have served prison terms for their social opinions have been summoned to appear in the federal court here on September 16, when there will be a hearing on warrants calling for their deportation as "undesirable" residents. The four are: Pietro Nigra, Italian born; Herbert Mahler, Canadian; Owen Oates, Englishman; and William Moran, Australian.

Four Are Leavenworth Men.

All four were convicted in the Chicago I. W. W. war-opinion trials in 1918, and all served five years in Leavenworth penitentiary. Many protests gainst their being deported have been sent to President Coolidge and Secretary of Labor Davis by Americans who believe in carrying out the fundamental sgarantees of the United States Constitution. In fact, so many protests have reached the federal authorities that the Department of Labor uses a form-letter as a means of acknowledgement.

One point that has been repeatedly emphasized in the multitude of appeals for a fair trial is that the deportation warrants against the four defendants were based upon a law which was not enacted until after they were put into prison. Accordingly, the protestants have pointed out, the present act of the immigration authorities is in direct violation of the clause in the Constitution which stipulates that "no ex post facto (after the fact) laws shall be passed."

Protest Deportation.

All labor unions and individuals who believe in free speech and who have not yet voiced a protest against these threatened, unjustifiable deportations are urged by the General Defense Committee of Chicago to write at once to President Coolidge or to Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Those who protest are asked also to send copies of their utterances to James Morris, secretary of the Defense Committee, at 1001 West Madison Street, Chicago.

JAURES' MURDER PLANNED BY WAR DEPT. OF FRANCE

Russ Ambassador Gives Game Away

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Aug. 25.—That the murder of Jean Jaures, greatest of French Socialist leaders, on the eve of the outbreak of the world war in 1914, was probably carefully planned by persons high in power, is given support by a secret letter from the pen of Iswolsky, the Russian ambassador in Paris, to the Russian foreign minister dated July 30, 1914. Iswolsky reports a conversation with Poincare, then president of the French republic, at which were also present the French premier, the minister of war, and the chief of the general staff.

"Be Taken Care Of"

Iswolsky reports: "I put the question as to what would be Jaures' attitude in the event of war, since in his paper (L'Humanite) he opposed the program of the government. I pointed out that he has an influence upon the workers that is not to be underestimated, and is playing with the idea of a general strike. The minister of war replied quietly but firmly, 'He has been taken care of.' Poincare offered no further explanation.

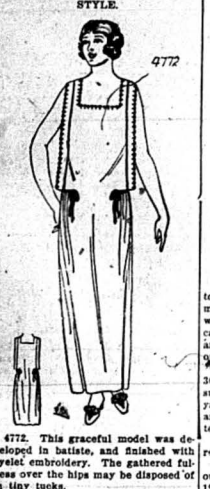
It is recalled in this connection that the French nationalists had secretly prepared a list of some 2500 persons who were regarded as dangerous by the government in the event of war. While nobody can prove that the murder of Jaures was sanctioned by the men who conferred with Iswolsky on July 30, yet it is a significant fact that the Jaures' murderer, Villain, was not brought to trial until five years after committing the deed, and that the indictment was so framed that acquittal naturally followed.

Pass Act to Drive Radical Newsies Off Streets of Berkeley

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 25.—Not content with driving Herman Meyling away from his stand in front of the University of California, where for several years he has tried to sell radical and liberal periodicals to the goose-steping students, the city of Berkeley has passed a special ordinance for his express benefit, making it a crime to sell literature on the city streets. Presumably newspapers are not considered literature, as no attempt is made to stop their sale. Meyling has been arrested twice under this ordinance, and is now under a suspended sentence. He is nearly blind and in very infirm health, not improved by his many jail experiences and his several beatings by reactionaries among the students.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A NEW AND PRETTY LINGERIE STYLE.



4772. This graceful model was developed in batiste, and finished with eyelet embroidery. The gathered fulness over the hips may be disposed of in tiny tucks.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3¾ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A POPULAR STYLE.

4763. A very fitting accompaniment to the new suits is here shown. One may wear a bodice skirt and jacket with a waist coat such as this. Brocaded silk, broadcloth, flannel, linen and ratine may be used for its development.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 1¼ yards of 40-inch material. For collar and pocket facing of contrasting material ¼ yard is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

Store for Sale.
8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.
Guaranteed business over $60.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer Depot.
P. MANUSOS
3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.
645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1627 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

BELL'S HOTEL,
1921 W. Park Ave.
Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0681.

MY COMPLIMENTS TO THE DAILY WORKER
DR. M. WISHNER
DENTIST
800 W. North Ave., Cor. Halsted St.
Lincoln 9010

CUSTOM TAILORS
Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing of All Kinds
PARIS QUI CHANTE
E. Abboti and V. Cardillo
1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year $3.50...6 months $1.90...3 months

By mail (in Chicago only):
$8.00 per year $4.50...6 months $2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE } Editors
MORITZ J. LOEB Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

280 Advertising rates on application.

Dawes On the Pan

That Coolidge has upset Dawes' plans by calling him to Plymouth for a conference, is a sign that some "brass tacks" will be talked behind closed doors to "Hell 'n' Maria" as well as publicly by him. Not that Coolidge thinks differently about the Klan than Dawes—but that his name is "Cautious Cal," and he thinks three times before he speaks and then he says nothing.

It was really unpardonable, from the view of capitalist politics, that Dawes should have endorsed the Klan the way he did. He didn't have to go that far in order to get the vote. And it is a primary rule in politics, that no doubt Cal will impress upon Dawes' mind in this little conference, that one must not pay more than the market price for votes. To do so upsets the whole "political economy" of the republican party.

But Cal and Charlie are quite similar in all but their method of public speaking. They ought to be quite fond of one another, because they do fit together so well. They are the perfect Gold Dust Twins, and Wall Street will be ungrateful if it does not furnish them with a big war chest. And with that—well, even Dawes' blunders about the Klan can be overcome, and all will be well.

Why Is the U. S. Rich?

Perhaps you have been wondering why the United States has a considerable share of the world's wealth. The explanation is offered by a certain Mr. George Hinman, writer extra-ordinary for William Randolph Hearst, who knows all there is to be known, and then a bit more, about economics. For three cents one can learn all about the subject in the Herald-Examiner.

It is all so simple. The reason why this country is rich, says Mr. Hinman, is because American industry pays such high dividends to the capitalists. These worthy gentlemen, in the classic manner made immortal by Mr. Smiles, prudently cautiously, and conservatively, preserve these dividends from waste, and reinvest them in the industries of America, in order to produce bigger dividends, to reinvest, and so on. The bigger the dividends the richer the country, says Mr. Hinman. Whoever attacks dividends attacks the foundation of our prosperity. Karl Marx knew less than any country banker, says this wise man of Hearst.

This is the kind of intellectual junk that millions of workers pay gobd pennies for each day when they buy the capitalist press. It is also the trash that fills the heads of our respectable "labor leaders," who preach harder work, bigger production, cut down the employers' costs, establish class collaboration, arbitrate, and generally be good to the capitalists. It is the sort of stuff that must be eliminated from the labor movement, unless we wish to see our unions degenerate into sewing circles, or into auxiliaries of the Young Men's Christian Association.

But after all, the common sense of the mass of the workers keeps them from swallowing such a rot as Hinman's. The rank and file know quite well that they never get any consideration from the employers, unless and until they fight for it and win it by battle. The workers instinctively know that they have to fight, and all the poison of the Hearst press, combined with the other capitalist dailies over the country, cannot convince them otherwise.

Coolidge and the Negroes

President Coolidge has sent a letter to Dr. Robert B. Moton, president of the National Negro Business League, congratulating the American Negro population upon the economic progress they have made. The chief executive also assures the Negro people that he will stand by them in helping them secure their full political rights.

Little argument is necessary to convince one that this is merely a campaign effort on the part of our hide-bound reactionary president. We are on the eve of a national election. Every vote counts. The vote of the Negro also counts when it is counted in favor of the republican regime. Mr. Coolidge's message is simply a vote-catching epistle. It betrays no sincerity and manifests no genuine interest in the welfare of the millions of exploited Negro workers.

As a matter of fact, recent days have witnessed a serious shattering of the old illusion that the republican party is a friend of the Negroes. On too many occasions has the republican party lined up to strike damaging blows against the Negroes, for the colored people to continue faith in the so-called party of Lincoln.

Ample evidence of the fact that the Negroes are steadily becoming disillusioned with the republican party is to be had in recent election results. It was the colored voters of Wilmington, Delaware, who, out of despair, in 1922, elected Thomas F. Bayard, a democrat, to the United States Senate. In order to stave off the rapid loss of colored support in the North, the republican inside clique made the empty gesture of increasing the allotment of delegates from the southern states in the 1924 convention.

And Mr. Coolidge, who now has the insolence to label himself a friend of the Negroes, has not had even sufficient courage to master enough of hypocrisy to denounce the Klan in this campaign. His chief competitors for the presidential office have done so. Besides, his running mate, the open shopper General Dawes, has even gone so far as to afford justification and apology for the existence of the Ku Klux Klan, that organization of hooligans which has been making pogroms against the Negro masses in the North and South.

Mr. Coolidge will not succeed in misleading the Negroes. His hypocritical sweet words will not poison the minds of the Negro voters. More and more the Negroes are becoming aware of the fact that their sole hope lies in a union of the workers of all colors and creeds against the class whose interests are championed by Mr. Coolidge and his corrupt clique. No oppressed race, no oppressed class has ever been given liberty. They have always had to fight for it. The Negroes know this truth from many years of bitter experience.

Defending the Bondholders

While in the United States we have the spectacle of Labor, official organ of the railroad unions, pleading the cause of the bondholders, and placing them "in the same class as the employes," in Great Britain the so-called "labor" government proceeds on similar but even more practical lines. Its members in parliament actually boast that "labor" protects the bondholders better than had the Tories in the past.

This amazingly frank statement came from M. Morel, "labor" M. P., during the debate in the House of Commons on the treaty with Soviet Russia. As reported in the Daily Herald, official organ of the British Labor party, the following occurred after the Tories had attacked the treaty as insufficiently protecting the interests of British bondholders:

"What did the Conservative Government do for the interests of the bondholders?" he asked. "You did nothing," continued Mr. Morel, "we are doing something. We are doing more than you ever attempted."

The "labor" government in Britain proves too much. So well and so completely does it prove that it stands four square for capitalism, that it proves at the same time to the workers that it is not a "labor" government in anything but name. It is merely a government of the agents of capitalism within the labor movement in alliance with the "liberal" capitalists. It is a government of class collaboration, opposed to every fundamental issue that is in the interest of the British workers and the interests of the working class of the entire word.

No Split in Nova Scotia!

It is well that the Red International of Labor Unions has officially added its warning to that of the Trade Union Educational League and the Communists, against the split in the ranks of the Nova Scotia miners, for which certain dual unionists have been strenuously working for some months.

These splitters have become a menace, not because of the validity of the proposals, but because they voice a response to the provocations of the Lewis bureaucracy, which has been assaulting the Nova Scotia miners in every conceivable fashion for that purpose. Many rank and filers, not understanding that a split fits right into the desires of Lewis, follow their emotions and listen to the siren songs of the dual unionists.

A split among the miners would be a real blow against the progressive forces, and terrible weakening of the miners of the entire continent, and would play right into the hands of the blackest elements of the union. For the revolutionaries it would mean simply a running away from the fight. The miners of Nova Scotia, when they have considered the question seriously, will summarily reject this dangerous propaganda, and refuse to listen to the interested propagators.

The Prince of Wales, fresh from gambling away several thousand dollar bills furnished him by the "labor" government of Britain, will be greeted in New York by a picked bodyguard of state troopers, who will protect the precious body of the Prince from harm. What prince could object to such "labor" governments or to such "democracy"?

And just to show that one socialist is as servile as another, the socialist government of Sweden deported the German Communist Deputy, Remmele.

Of course, Dawes would speak kindly of the Ku Kus. As one Fascist to another, of course, you belong to the wrong organization but your "principles" are all right. Join the "Minute Men of the Constitution" and you can Koo Koo all you wish!

The president of the General Electric Company, Mr. Owen D. Young, has taken over the job of general manager of the reparations commission. Who said that governments were important!

Many willing hands make the big jobs easy. Get new members for the Workers Party.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

Send in that new "sub" today!

Nova Scotia, Canada, Miners Must Fight Lewis Inside the Coal Miners' Union

(Statement of the Trade Union Educational League.)

THE One Big Union of Winnipeg is busy trying to split the miners of Nova Scotia away from the United Mine Workers of America. Since last May it has had Ben Legere stationed in that district for the purpose of bringing about this division. Legere is carrying on propaganda among the miners, asking them to call a convention for the purpose of splitting away form the United Mine Workers and joining as local "units" to the One Big Union.

Inasmuch as this propaganda has gone so far that Legere has a letter printed in the Maritime Labor Herald, organ of the miners, issue of Aug. 16th, it is necessary to face the issue thus raised fairly and squarely. For the sake of the miners who may be misled by this splitting propaganda, it is necessary to review the situation, and to restate the policy of the Communists and other left-wing elements, which is in harmony with and approved by the Red International and the Communist International.

Origin and Accomplishments of The O. B. U.

The O. B. U. developed out of an abortive left-wing movement in the trade unions of the Canadian west, during 1918-19. Defeated by the reactionaries in its first attempt to swing the Canadian Trades Congress in 1918, the left wing abandoned itself to childish despair. At a special Western Canada Labor Conference, held in Calgary in March, 1919, with delegates from local unions from Winnipeg to the coast, it was decided to start a new labor union, independent of all existing unions. A ballot was taken, and the majority was in favor of the proposal. The Winnipeg general strike occurred before the decision was put into effect, but after the defeat of that strike the workers of the West were more than ever in favor of secession. The O. B. U. was launched, and the unionists of Western Canada swarmed into it. In short, after one years' effort at shaping the unions, they gave up at the first defeat and ran away from the fight.

The backbone of the new organization was composed of the loggers of British Columbia and the miners of District 18. Things went smoothly so long as no problems faced the movement. But at the Port Arthur Convention, September, 1920, the internal unsoundness showed itself in sharp differences of policy that tore the organization to pieces. The miners and loggers demanded the application of the principle of industrial unionism. But the leadership in Winnipeg, controlling with the votes of the large number of miscellaneous "units," insisted upon the "geographical" form of organization. When the principle of industrial unionism was rejected, the miners and loggers quit the O. B. U.

Since that time the O. B. U. has ceased to be anything but a destructive factor in the Canadian labor movement. By 1922 it was apparent that it had become a mere shell. It depended upon football competitions for its finances. Its role has been that of maneuvering with groups of workers in revolt against the reactionary union officials, splitting them off in small "units" where they would have no reactionary officials to fight, and leaving the labor movement generally in the undisputed control of these reactionaries. The result of the O. B. U. movement in the West has been to almost completely disorganize that territory. The workers are disgusted both with the A. F. of L. and the O. B. U. Those who are organized have lost all heart for the fight for revolutionary principles, and the bureaucrats reign unchallenged.

The net result of the O. B. U. split is a terrible set-back for the revolutionists and for the whole labor movement. Because the militants were drawn out of the unions, and the unions themselves split, the labor movement became helpless and the masses were left without leadership in their struggle against reactionary policies and officials.

Effect Upon the Miners of District 18.

That the O. B. U. split of 1918 did not to the miners of Alberta should be a warning to the miners of Nova Scotia. The vast majority of the miners left the U. M. W. of A. in a body, and joined the O. B. U. Only a very few were left in the old organization. But there were enuf, when added to the follies of secession, to do the dirty work of the reactionaries. Led by Dalrymple (now the creature of Lewis in District 26) the agents of Lewis joined with the Canadian government and the coal operators, to destroy the miners' organization. The checkoff in the hands of the reactionaries, the blacklist in the hands of the operators, the governmental powers at the service of both—this combination was used to club the miners of Alberta into submission, while a small increase of pay was granted thru the reactionaries to fool the weaker-minded miners.

Thus, when in 1920 the miners felt obliged to make another split, this time with the O. B. U. to preserve the industrial form of organization, they were in a terrible state of disorganization. The reactionaries of the U. M. W. of A. were collecting dues from them thru the check-off, but the miners were not attending local union meetings, nor attempting in any way to control their affairs, which thus became the plaything of the worst agents of the bosses.

Towards the end of 1921, the miners began to understand the mistake they had made. They went back into their local unions and resumed the fight for militant policies and leadership. But the effects of the disastrous split are still apparent in the weak control they still have in a district once predominantly progressive and revolutionary. And the folly of trusting men because they were prominent leaders of the O. B. U. is shown by Sherman, a leader of the secession and later elected president of District 18 as a militant, since becoming an agent of John L. Lewis against the rank and file. The O. B. U. split was a disastrous thing for the miners of Alebrta and for the whole Canadian labor movement. The possible splendid effects are lost of the excellent fighting qualities of these men who had been in the forefront of the Canadian movement.

The Policy of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The miners of Nova Scotia believe in the Red International of Labor Unions. They know that it consists of the most militant revolutionary unionists of the worud, and that it is forging the real leading center of the international labor movement, in alliance with the Communist International. The miners should therefore be interested in what the Red International has to say on the question of splits and secession.

It is of more than passing interest to note that the O. B. U. is opposed to the Red International, while District 26 is in favor of it. In June, 1922, the miners of District 26 voted to apply for affiliation to the R. I. L. U. and to take their rightful place alongside the revolutionary workers of the world. But when Lewis theatened to expel the District, the miners correctly decided to withdraw the application rather than suffer disruption at the hands of Lewis. This decision was endorsed by the R. I. L. U. John L Lewis showed himself as the bitter enemy of the Red International—So also is the One Big Union. It has refused to affiliate, it has denounced the Red International, and it pursues a policy in direct opposition to that of the Red International.

The Red International is firmly opposed to the policy of splitting the labor unions. Communists everywhere are opposed to this tactic, even tho Legere, knowing that Communists or sympathizers are in a large majority in Nova Scotia, tries to talk nice about them and say that in Lawrence they stand for splitting.

In the Fourth Congress of the R. I. L. U. (July, 1924) Losovsky, the general secretary, said in his report on "The Immediate Tasks of the Revolutionary Labor Union Movement," in answer to the question, "What is the most important problem at the present moment?": "Now especially the slogan of the unity of the labor movement has exceptional significance."

Discussing this point, Losovsky continues:

"But what does this struggle for unity imply? Is it a pure and simple catch-word? Not at all. The struggle for unity means the struggle inside the working class for united action, and only on that foundation can unity strengthen and give form to the united organization and turn it into an instrument of revolution. If we are to go on with the slogan of the struggle for unity we must also raise the slogan: Back into the Unions, you who have left them, and first of all you who claim to be the vanguard. Our slogan was and remains the conquest of the unions, which means a relentless struggle against professional bureaucracy and for the conquest of the consciousness of the labor masses."

Reporting to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, Losvsky made plain the opposition of the world movement to leaving the trade unions to build so-called revolutionary unions, in the following statement of fighting qualities of these men who had been in the forefront of the Canadian movement.

"What is need is the capture of the trade union masses and in this no reactionary bureaucracy or oath of loyalty, as in Germany, can prevent the Communists from extending their influence among the masses. Desertion from the unions is not a sign of activity, but a symptom of despair. . . . If a Communist asserts that he can no longer remain in the trade union in spite of the decisions of the Communist International and of the Communist Party, he is a bad Communist, for he allows himself to be carried away by his impulses."

Thus the Communist International and the Red International of Labor Unions are quite definitely opposed to the secessionist policy of the O. B. U. It is impossible for the miners to carry out fully the policies of the Red International by joining the O. B. U. That can only be done by fighting determinedly to remain within the U. M. W. of A., and there fighting against the reactionary and corrupt officialdom, keeping in this struggle the closest alignment with the revolutionists in the United States.

Lessons of Congress for Canada.

There may be some one who will argue that the policy of the R. I. L. U. applies only to Europe, not Canada. But the world congress just ended considered carefully and especially the situation in Canada. It adopted a special declaration on the Canadian problems, of which the following is a paragraph:

"One of the principal weaknesses of the Canadian left wing at the present time is the impatience of the rebels, who, in their impatience to overthrow reaction, fail to grasp the full import of the task facing the proletariat of North America, and overlook the inevitability of a bitter and protracted struggle before the mass of the workers are finally brot under the revolutionary leadership. This lack of clear understanding leads to the short-sighted policy of jumping into dual unions at every set-back and partial defeat, thereby playing into the hands of the reactionary bureaucracy."

The Task of the Nova Scotia Miners.

The task that faces the miners of District 26 cannot be solved by running away from it. Surrender to Lewis is just as disastrous, be it open and avowed or camouflaged under the flag of the O. B. U. What must be done is to wrest control of the United Mine Workers of America out of the hands of the friends of the bosses, and put it into the hands of the revolutionary membership.

In carrying on their heroic struggle against the British Empire Steel Corporation and against John L. Lewis, the miners of Nova Scotia have covered themselves with glory. They have taken a place in the foretront of the world's working class, and their place has been recognized. They have brought new life and courage to all the thousands of members of the U. M. W. of A. who are suffering under the dictatorship of Lewis, and enthused them to renew the struggle with redoubled energy. Thruout the North American continent the revolutionary miners are looking to Nova Scotia as an outstanding section in the revolutionary battle-front. The struggle for taking possession of the U. M. W. of A. for the membership. The miners of Nova Scotia must think long and seriously before they abandon their section of the battleline which they have defended so valiantly, and where they have won so much honor to themselves.

The revolutionary labor union experience of Canada and of the world brings out sharply these lessons, which must guide the Nova Scotia miners in their present difficult situation:

No splits in the union—splits serve the interest of the employers but not of the workers!

Fight against the corrupt and reactionary leaders in the union—but not run away from the struggle by secession!

Establish and develop the closest connection with the revolutionary elements thruout the miners' union in Canada and the United States, and with the revolutionaries in all other unions!

Bring the union continually closer and closer to the Red International of Labor Unions, which unites the fighting union men and women of the entire world!

Fight against the employers, against the capitalist system, and against the lick-spittle government which is the agent of the capitalist class!

Fight for working-class solidarity! The working class must act in great masses! Sectional action alone is doomed to defeat! The capitalist class is strong and well organized! The working class can only exert its strength when it becomes well-organized and led by a revolutionary policy!

Nova Scotia Miners! Unite solidly for the unity of District 26, against splits, for the struggle against Lewis, Besco, and the capitalist government! Closer unity with the revolutionists of Canada and of the United States! Solidarity with the revolutionary workers of the world under the banner of the Red International of Labor Unions!

Coolidge Manager Is Fink Boss

(Continued from page 1.)

Mill corporation, with $3,282,657; president of the Quissett Mill, rated at $4,889,422, and president of the New Bedford Cotton Mills corporation, rated at $3,012,853.

Mr. Butler, you will observe from these figures, is a capitalist. And Mr. Butler is the Big Man in the republican party. Mr. Butler is, in fact, the republican party treasury. He pays the bills.

Record in Textile Mills.

But Mr. Butler finances other reactionary business, besides the republican party. In February, 1918, the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association was organized. Altho the "war for democracy" was still on, the textile magnates were looking ahead. They saw a time when, after the hoobs had been either killed or demobilized, they could reduce wages and continue to clean up immense profits. The first thing they thought about was, of course, to plant spies and informers among the textile unions and in the textile mills. In Boston they arranged with Mr. Moore of the "Sherman Service" for a corps of men to be put to work in Mr. Butler's home town, New Bedford, Massachusetts. Charles C. Dexter, one of Butler's bosom pals in New Bedford, advanced $25,000 to the Sherman agency as first payment from the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association for industrial espionage against the textile workers of that city.

Butler Directs Detectives.

In the latter part of 1918, the war being over and the time ripe for an attack upon wage scales, the present chairman of the republican party, Mr. Butler, took over the active direction of the Sherman detectives engaged in New Bedford. There were about thirty finks almost continually employed by Butler in New Bedford, and most of them belonged to one or another of the textile workers' unions.

Butler gave his orders as to detail and policies to be pushed by his undercover men in the unions and in the mills, both to the Boston superintendent of the Sherman outfit, Moore, or to A. M. Donahue, who was directly in charge of the crew of finks in New Bedford. So extremely well did Mr. Butler like this business of planting stool-pigeons in unions and carefully directing them against the interests of the workers, that even when another New Bedford capitalist, Walter Langshaw, became president of the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association, Butler insisted on boosting the stool-pigeons. He liked that job. He enjoyed it. As this was the association's chief function, Langshaw got sore at Butler for taking away the pleasure a textile magnate gets out of bossing finks, and resigned in a huff. Butler had the game all to himself, and he reveled in it.

Those Were "The Days."

Those were great days for Mr. Coolidge's "big brother." Thru consultations with Moore in Boston and Donahue in New Bedford, the personnel of the undercover men of the Sherman agency and their every movement were closely directed in the interests of the mill magnates and against the wage scales and the unions of the workers.

(Tomorrow we will learn more about the tricks of Mr. Butler, head of the republican party, in his campaign of smashing the unions from within by means of Sherman Agency stool pigeons).

ENTHUSIASM GREETS FIRST SHOWING OF BEAUTY AND BOLSHIE

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The first showing of "Beauty and the Bolshevik" the Red Army romance produced in Russia, was received enthusiastically by a New York audience Saturday night.

The house was packed and hundreds were turned away. A musical program with Miss Annette Rakoff in Russian songs formed part of the perfomance.

This picture will show for a whole week in New York at the Lenox Theatre, 111th Street and Lenox Avenue.

Each evening will have a specigl attraction. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening the Workmen's Circle Orchestra will give several numbers. The proceeds are to be divided between the "Freiheit" and the International Workers' Aid of which William Weinstone is the Local Secretary.

"SOCIALIST" SWEDEN DEPORTS LEADER OF GERMAN COMMUNISTS

(By Federated Press.)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 25.—Hermann Remmele, German Communist leader and member of the Reichstag, has been deported from Sweden, where he was sent by the executive committee of the Communist International at Moscow, to mediate in the split which had occurred between two factions of the Swedish Communist movement. The technicality on which it was possible to ship Remmele out of the country was that of "illegal entry into the country." Remmele had obtained a transit visa from Moscow to Germany via Sweden, but, after having crossed the Swedish and German frontiers, suddenly bobbed up again in Stockholm. There he was seized by the police and deported.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 2 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates For President: WILLIAM Z. FOSTER. For Vice-President: BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 137. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1924 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

SEEK STRANGLEHOLD ON GERMANY

Cal's Manager Pays Big Money For Finks

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

A HEADLINE reads "Coolidge Reception Broken Up by Cows." This disaster happened when a party of Coolidge supporters came to Plymouth to see the president. They were gathered on the lawn in front of the Coolidge residence when a herd of cows passing by took a liking for the grass that the president's scythe had not laid low. The cows listened to Calvin for a while and left considerably disgusted with the kind of "bull" he threw.

• • •

CANDIDATES for political office on the capitalist tickets should take a trip to Texas and study the art of winning elections from Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, the successful candidate in the recent primaries. The lady did not touch any of the issues of the day except, perhaps that the Ku Klux Klan should change its night gown. Outside of that she confined herself to inspiring interviews on how hot it was in her kitchen while she was preserving her fruit and how her husband suffered from the hives. She won by a tremendous majority. The writer only heard of one candidate who was a better campaigner than Mrs. Ferguson. His name was Flood, and his stamping ground was South Boston. "I am a poor man," he would say, "and I need the money. My opponent has money to burn. Why not give me a chance?" He was elected and there was a public square named after him.

• • •

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER delivered a speech or two in Youngstown and vicinity and the capitalist papers are still discussing it. Unable to secure publicity in any other way, the two local members of the Socialist Labor Party chimed in with the capitalist press in attacking Foster. What they held against him particularly was his failure to mention their names. In a letter to the press, they blamed Foster for everything possible, denounced Soviets, took a wallop at revolution unless it gave a guarantee in advance that it would conduct itself properly and would not throw bricks or empty beer bottles at the bourgeoisie and in general act like a perfect lady. In return for this attack on the Communists the capitalist paper published the announcement that the S. L. P. had presidential candidates in the field. As Charlie Chaplin would say: "They always have."

• • •

IN commenting on General Dawes' defense of the Ku Klux Klan, Dr. Rev. Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for Governor of New York, declared that the Klan is not anti-labor or anti-socialist but that its activities are directed against foreigners, Negroes, Jews and Catholics. While it is true that outwardly the Klan does not appear to be anti-labor or anti-socialist, it is used by the capitalists as a strike-breaking organization wherever its services are needed. As The DAILY WORKER already pointed out, the Grand Dragon of the realm of Indiana used the Kluxers there to

(Continued on page 3)

DAWES PLAN EXPOSED BY COMMUNISTS

Calls on Workers to Fight Against It

The Dawes Plan, a beautiful scheme hatched by the finance capitalists of America to get a stranglehold on Germany, and reduce the workers of that country to industrial peonage, is now an interesting matter of discussion in every country in the world.

The workers are led to believe that the Dawes Plan will bring peace and prosperity. The following statement issued by the Communist International tears this iniquitous scheme asunder and exposes it in its true light. It also shows the role of the social-democratic parties of Europe are playing as servants of the capitalist class. It reads as follows:

To Proletarians of All Countries.
Comrades, Workers!

AFTER four years of war and six years of futile conferences over the distribution of the booty, the victorious imperialist robbers are about to squeeze out further profits of their robbery from the German proletariat. The old European League of robbers is being joined by a new and more powerful partner—American big capital. When the forces of the Entente troops upon the battle fields of France were giving out, American imperialism came to their aid with its tanks and hand grenades. After four years of futile reparations war, America, the most terrible and formidable participant in the war, once again enters the European arena.

The laboring millions are again to be subjugated by means of the weapon of mass starvation and the poison gas of pacifist illusions.

Farcism a Failure.

This is what constitutes the "new method" of the reparation policy.

The old fascist method of war, the culminating point of which consisted in the occupation of the Ruhr for the solution of the reparations problem and for the consolidation of capitalism, has proved ineffective. It has frightened the victors with the spectre of Communism in Germany and has brought about the fall of the French Franc, the decay of world capitalism and the destruction of the

(Continued on Page 6)

Brass Check Press Admits Fake Story; Reporter the Goat

(By Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Herald-Tribune confesses in its issue of Aug. 23 to a 1000-carat newspaper fake. The reporter, as usual is made the goat and dismissed. The fake was the Herald-Tribune's sensational story a week earlier of a "floating cabaret" anchored 15 miles off Fire Island—a place where millionaires drank and whirled with light loves.

Since then other newspapers have been conducting investigations which yielded nothing and now the Herald-Tribune admits that the yarn is the bunk. Of course the paper didn't mean to print a lie, it says. The reporter is to blame and he gets the axe.

Union men wish the Herald-Tribune were as willing to repudiate bunk stories against strikers and radicals as it is against the millionaire class that is accused for making a joke of the law outside of the deep sea limit.

MORE THAN HALF OF MONTREAL A. C. W. A. STRIKERS ARE BACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, just returned from the Montreal strike says that more than half of the 1,200 strikers have been returned to settled shops. The strike was called against manufacturers who were not living up to agreements. Such bosses are required to put up security for the observance of the contract in future before settlements are made.

OAKLAND BUILDING TRADES NOT SUPPORTING BOB AND WHEELER; STAND FOR FARMER-LABOR PARTY

By JACK CARNEY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 26.—The Alameda County Building Trades Council has not endorsed LaFollette and Wheeler. This statement, official, was made at the last meeting of the council, as a result of a statement appearing in a local paper that the council had endorsed the candidacies of LaFollette and Wheeler and other candidates of the C. P. P. A. The chairman further declared that the council stood for a farmer-labor party.

Ky. Miners Won't Work at Cut Wage

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OWENSBORO, Ky., Aug. 26.—The attempts of the Kentucky coal operators to reopen the mines at a reduced rate of wages for the men is being reported to have failed signally.

Not a single man in three counties has responded this morning to the whistles which blew for the first time since last April.

EXPOSES WAR RECORDS OF LAFOLLETTE

Senator Joined Hands With Imperialists

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Ninth Article.)

Nothing could be further from the truth than the statement, now being spread amongst many workers, that Senator LaFollette opposed the imperialist world war and America's participation therein.

Lives are today asking the work-

Yet, many self-styled progressing men and poor farmers who suffered and are still suffering from the capitalist conflagration to support "Battling Bob" on the ground that he fought against the devastating slaughter which took millions of lives and billions of dollars from the exploited masses the world over.

Entered With Militarists.

Before the United States entered the World War, the Wisconsin "progressive" wizard held the belief that it was not America's business to join the infernal fray. Once the war was declared, however, La Follette accepted active American participation as a fact. He then lined up to support loyally the prosecution of the war and to hasten its victorious conclusion for the capitalist class in whose behalf it was fought.

LaFollette differed with other supporters of the imperialist conflict only as to method, but not as to the waging of the war itself. The Wisconsin senator's attitude toward the war was the same as his present attitude to exploitation of the working class by the employers. LaFollette is not opposed to the system of capitalist exploitation. He is opposed to some of its methods and differs from the Lodges, the Smoots, the Coolidges, and the Davises only as to methods of exploiting the workers.

Voted War Credits.

Not only did LaFollette not fight against the war to make the world safe for plutocracy, but he even voted all war credits. And dollars, it

(Continued on page 6.)

Mellon Coming Back.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Now that his work for American financiers has been arranged for, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is returning to this country.

World Flight Worries.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—War Department officials are undecided as to whether the world flight shall end officially at Seattle, Wash., or at Santa Monica, Calif.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, Aug. 30.

CONDITIONS IN MILLS EXPOSED THRU STRIKERS

Weavers in Brave Fight Against Bosses

By ESTHER LOWELL
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 25.—Work in dark, dusty old mills worse than cellars and no chance to voice grievances or have them adjusted, speeding up in so-called "modern" mills, doubling up of work upon workers employed and consequent unemployment for others, lengthening of hours, these and other foul conditions in the Paterson mills forced the silk workers into active battle with their bosses.

The strike of the weavers, led by the Associated Silk Workers' Union, is well into its second week and the enthusiastic fighting spirit of the strikers is still at full pitch.

Every morning thousands of the strikers pour into Turn Hall at the corner of Ellison and Cross streets down in the "Latin quarter" of the country's silk capitol and hear speakers cheer them on in their battle against the manufacturers. Eighteen different nationalities are participating, but all co-operate gladly and troop out on the picket lines at 6 a. m. and 4 p. m.

"Cock Roach" Mills.

Shop meetings fill the early afternoon hours and each group of workers eagerly discusses the problems of keeping its ranks intact and winning union conditions from the boss. None can settle until the strike settlement committee confers with the manufacturer and sees that it can guarantee

(Continued on page 3)

PHILIPPINE LEADER ASKS ADMISSION TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

GENEVA, August 26.—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, and a Philippine delegation arrived today to ask the League of Nations to admit the Philippine Islands to membership. Quezon is a leader in the Philippine independence movement and this application for membership in the "league" is seen as a movement in the direction of independence. This is the manner in which Philippine leaders want to assert themselves.

Quezon is considering a visit to Soviet Russia for which he has expressed much interest.

LA FOLLETTE DID NOT FIGHT

LAFOLLETTE did not fight against the last imperialist war. Once war was declared, he accepted it as a fact.

After the United States entered the war, LaFollette lined up with the hundred-percenters to hasten a victory for the capitalists in whose behalf the battles were fought.

LaFollette's voting record shows that he is no enemy to imperialist wars when they are wrapped in such smooth phrases as "safety and security of the country."

The Wisconsin senator knew and admitted that the war was fought for the Morgan class interests. Yet he voted for 55 out of the sixty war measures considered and enacted by the senate.

At no time has LaFollette proposed to strip the financiers and their diplomatic lackeys of their war-making powers.

FOSTER'S VOTE TO COME FROM WORKING CLASS

Straw Ballots Indicate Strong Showing

How many men and women are there in the United States that would name William Z. Foster, Communist, as their political leader?

One of the popular pastimes of political prophets today is the gathering of straw votes to show which way the wind blows.

It would be a rash person who would make any hard and fast predictions so early in the game as to how many votes will be cast for Foster.

Straw Vote In Shops.

But if a straw vote is to show the strength of the Foster wind it must be taken in the shops and factories, among the workers, and not at state fairs and on the business streets as the capitalist press polls their test votes, where the workers are automatically excluded with scattering exceptions. When workers in the shops begin to take straw votes, we will have some indications of the prospective Foster vote.

Until this is done it may be interesting to see what the capitalist press is willing to concede to Foster in their privately-conducted polls. There is, for example, the poll taken at the Wisconsin state fair by a Chicago daily, which gave Foster approximately one and one-half per cent.

Crowd of Well-To-Do.

The crowds at a state fair are predominantly well-to-do agricultural and middle-class elements, so that a Communist candidate certainly has little immediate appeal to them. But if we would assume that the whole electorate should this year follow the Wisconsin state fair crowd then, on the basis of the 1920 volume of voters for the whole country, Foster would receive approximately 400,000 ballots.

How many votes will be added because of the new women voters this year is problematical, but it is safe to say it will be at least one-fourth, which would make Foster's proportion over half a million, accepting, of course, the state fair of Wisconsin as the index.

Won't All Be Counted.

Of course this takes for granted that all these voters will have a chance to vote for Foster and that their votes will be counted. But this will not be true in states where the Workers Party fail to get on the ballot, on account of lack of organization or because (if such a thing is thinkable) our members do not do their duty.

And then we must expect, where we do not have watchers at the polls, that innumerable votes will be thrown into the waste basket if they are for Foster.

All of which points out some of the main tasks facing the Workers Party in the course of the election struggle.

Get Word From Factories.

But the Communists cannot accept any capitalist-conducted straw vote as indicating the working-class currents. Before we draw any conclusions about what Foster's vote will be, we must begin to get word from the railroad shops, from the steel mills, from the packing houses, from the clothing factories, from the mines—and we want to know who took the polls and in what manner they were conducted. When such news begins to come in the DAILY WORKER will analyze it and pass it on to our readers.

On With the Bob!

LA PORTE, Ind., Aug. 26.—Michigan City school teachers may now bob their hair without endangering their jobs, the school board announced today.

Hooray! Country Saved Again!

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 26.—Claire Windsor today set at rest the terrible rumor. She has not given the cold shoulder to Bert Lytell, another movie actor.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

STOOL PIGEONS AN AID TO G. O. P. IN N. D. SENATE RACE

(Second Article)
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—William Morgan Butler, king over the sweaty slaves who toil in the textile mills of Massachusetts, president of some twenty odd million dollars worth of textile corporation interests, and now Chairman of the republican national committee, which is campaigning for the election of Coolidge and Dawes—believes in "American institutions."

And no institution is more "American" and more thoroly to the taste of Mr. Butler, than the use of stoolpigeons in industry to oppose the workers. Butler is up to his neck in this institution. In fact the whole republican party reeks with it.

Two years ago in the senatorial race between the alleged progressive Lynn J. Frazier and the old-guard, rock-ribbed, stand-pat P. J. McCumber, in the state of North Dakota, the McCumber gang put out in streamer headlines of the Dakota papers, "red scare" stories, supported with supposed photographic copies of letters connecting McCumber's opponent with the "seditious I. W. W., Bolsheviks and Communists" in "plots" to overthrow the government, etc.

This was pure fabrication of stoolpigeons hired by McCumber of course, since Frazier is only a timid, middle-class politician. But McCumber was a useful man to the republicans in Washington. He was one of the authors of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill.

There is an interesting story concerning Butler and McCumber's tariff measure, which we will tell in due

(Continued on page 3)

JOHN L. LEWIS LANDS ON G. O. P. STRATEGY STAFF

Miners Union Head Is Picked by Butler

John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers of America, was selected by William M. Butler as member of the advisory board which is to map out the plan of campaign for the G. O. P. during the campaign.

The advisory committee is headed by John T. Adams, of Iowa, former chairman of the National Committee of the republican party, and one of Harry Daugherty's strongest backers.

It was Adams who used the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice to dig up information that he could use against the party's enemies.

Lewis is the second international president of the American Federation of Labor, who has failed to follow Gompers into the LaFollette camp. Major George L. Berry, who had the A. F. of L. backing for the vice-presidency on the democratic ticket openly declared for John W. Davis.

It is expected that other labor fakers will break away from the LaFollette movement as soon as they succeed in getting a satisfactory price.

William Morgan Butler, who picked John L. Lewis as a member of the advisory committee of the G. O. P., is the man who is being exposed in the DAILY WORKER as one of the greatest organizers of stool pigeons in the country.

NEW YORK, August 26.—Lugosy, alleged killer of a number of customers and friends, has disappeared as well. On being questioned by cops, his wife said she did not know his whereabouts.

LIONS ROAR FOR "OPEN SHOP" IN HERRIN MEETING

Bosses Want Non-Union Wage Scales

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 25.—While the Lions' Club of Herrin, which is just another name for the Chamber of Commerce backed by the coal operators and the Ku Klux Klan, was meeting to advise the breathlessly waiting world that unemployment is caused by high wages, the miners were angrily collecting at the street corners, discussing the meeting and refusing to participate.

The Herrin convention of coal operators, Kluxers, business men, chamber of commerce members and railroad magnates marks the latest stage in the drive to completely break the United Mine Workers' Union.

The demand has been made by the coal operators, thru their president, for a wage reduction and an open shop form of agreement. The miners hurl back a defy in the teeth of the one hundred per centers and declare a fight to a finish.

Drive for Open Shop.

It is quite generally understood that the statement of the operators that non-union coal brings a cheaper price than union coal is not true. There is little difference in the price, and the Illinois coal is better in quality and often is sold slightly cheaper than the non-union coal.

The coal operators are merely doing at the Herrin convention what the Lewis-Farrington Class collaboration policy has left the road entirely open for them to do. Make a drive for the open shop and the reduction of the miners' wages.

Dr. Honnold, president of the Williamson-Franklin operators association, said: "There is a lack of elasticity in our working agreement with the miners, not only as to wage scales

(Continued on page 3)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Three men were rescued from a sinking yacht in one of the worst storms experienced here.

RUFUS C. DAWES GOES TO EUROPE TO PUT HELL-AN'-MARIA'S PLAN TO WORK FOR INTERNATIONAL BANKERS

The Dawes family appear to be the agents extraordinary of the American section of the international financiers' bund. Hell an' Maria, the cussing candidate for vice-president on the Republican Party ticket, framed the plan that was the basis of the London Agreement, between the Allies and Germany. Now his brother Rufus, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, goes over to put the plan to work.

JOHN W. DAVIS ACTED AGAINST W. VA. MINERS

Demo Nominee Helped Jail Organizers

By MAX SHACHTMAN

John W. Davis, presidential candidate of the democratic party, did not defend "Mother" Jones and other organizers for the United Mine Workers of America when they were on trial for contempt of court, having violated an injunction which attempted to prevent the unionization of West Virginia miners.

Not only did John W. Davis not defend the miners' union's representatives, but he was instrumental in the sentencing to jail of Thomas Haggerty, Thomas Burke, Bernard Rice, William Morgan, Edward McKay, and the prosecution of Mary "Mother" Jones!

These facts, directly contradicting the inspired statements of Democratic spokesmen, were brought to light here by the discovery of a file of official papers of the United States court for the Northern District of West Virginia.

In July, 1902, the Clarksburg Fuel Company, a powerful corporation owning scores of mines in West Virginia, was granted an injunction by Judge J. J. Jackson, of the circuit federal bench, restraining Haggerty, Burke, Rice, Morgan, McKay, "Mother" Jones, and others from interfering with the employes or property of the company. This injunction was an attempt to prevent the organizers of the mine workers' union from mingling with the miners near Fairmont and Morgantown in order to get them into the weak union.

The counsel for the coal operators included A. W. Davis, of the firm of Davis and Davis.

Davis Does His Stuff.

The suit against the organizers was brought in the name of the trustee for the bondholders of the Clarksburg Fuel Co., the Guarantee Trust Company. John W. Davis, together with his papa, John J. Davis, were the attorneys for the railroad which is now a part of the Baltimore & Ohio system, called a "short line," running between Martinsville and Clarksburg. This road hauled practically nothing but coal and was controlled by the coal mine owners. It is this gang that retained the Davises, father and son, together with other members of the firm, to institute the injunction proceeding against the union.

When the U. M. W. of A. organizers were arrested for violating the vicious injunction, it was not John W. Davis that appeared to defend them, as the inspired story goes, but V. B. Archer, John J. Conff, Charles D. Johnson Henry M. Russell and A. G. Fickelsen. Appearing on the court orders against the unionists, however, was the name of the firm of Davis & Davis.

Servile to Coal Operators.

When the men were sentenced, and the case appealed from Judge Jackson's court to that of Judge Nathan Goff of Clarksburg, W. Va., Goff upheld the decision of his confrere and ordered the imprisonment of the defendants. Here, John W. Davis personally appeared on the behalf of the Clarksburg Fuel Co., run by the Guarantee Trust Co., in which J. P. Morgan interests are now heavily concerned. His life of service to capital, and to the House of Morgan began at an early date.

John W. Davis, who now claims that he was instrumental in keeping "Mother" Jones and Eugene Debs out of prison, was the man who appeared against the old mine workers organizer and did all in his power to keep the coal diggers from organizing to better their conditions of life, to increase their wages and shorten their hours of labor.

In Black and White.

The proof of these statements can be found in "The Federal Repoter," which gives opinions rendered by American judges on important cases. All the facts of this famous case are contained in volume 116, on page 510, under the head of: United States ex. rel. Guarantee Trust Co. of New York, trustee, against Thomas Haggerty, "Mother" Jones and others. John W. Davis, A. B. Fleming, W. S. Meredith, E. F. Hartley and Reese Blizzard, district attorney, are given as counsel for the prosecution.

The lawyers previously mentioned are given as counsel for the defense.

Membership Meeting of Czecho-Slovaks to be Held Friday

All members of the Czecho-Slovakian branches of the Workers Party in Cook County are instructed to be present at a general party meeting Friday, Sept. 29, at Novak's Hall, Homan ave., and 25th. A program of organization and press will be presented there and all Czecho-Slovak comrades should make it their business to be present and participate in the discussions.

Our Candidates

FOSTER'S DATES

Sioux City, Iowa—Labor Lyceum, 508 Jennings St., Friday, August 29, 8 p. m.

Des Moines, Iowa—Grotto Hall, 721 Locust St., Saturday, August 30, 8 p. m.

Omaha, Neb.—Eagles Hall, 17th and Cass Sts., Sunday, August 31, 8 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo.—Musicians' Hall, 1017 Washington St., Labor Day, September 1, 8 p. m.

Ziegler, Ill.—Pavilion Park on Wednesday, September 3rd, 5:45 p. m.

Springfield, Ill.—Carpenter Hall, Adams and Seventh Sts., Thursday, September 4th, 8 p. m.

St. Louis, Mo.—Triangle Park, 41 South Broadway, Tuesday, September 2nd, 8 p. m.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Turn Hall, 725 High St., Wednesday, September 10, 8 p. m.

Newark, N. J.—Labor Lyceum, 704 So. 14th St., Thursday, September 11, 8 p. m.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Musical Fund Hall, 8th and Locust Streets, Friday, September 12, 8 p. m.

Paterson, N. J.—Halvitia Hall, 56 Van Houton Street, Saturday, September 13, 8 p. m.

GITLOW'S DATES

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

Reading, Veteran Firemen's Hall, 612 Franklin St.—Tuesday, Aug. 26, 8 p. m.

Binghamton, Lithuanian Hall—Thursday, Aug. 28, 7 p. m.

Buffalo, Friday, Aug. 29.

Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 580 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Dalaytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.

Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.

West N. Y., N. J.—Floral Hall, 11th and Polk Streets, Wednesday, September 10th, 8 p. m.

Canton, Ohio.—Canton Music Hall, 810 Tuscarawas St., E., Friday, September 8th, 8 p. m.

Akron, Ohio.—Perkins School Auditorium, Exchange and Bowery Sts., Saturday, September 8th, 8 p. m.

Canonsburg, Pa.—Labor Temple, Monday, September 1st, 2 p. m.

Bellaire, Ohio — Miners Temple, Wednesday, September 3rd, 7:30 p. m.

Providence, R. I.—A. C. A. Hall, 1753 Westminster Street, Monday September 15th, 8 p. m.

Dalaytown, Pa.—Muffet Field, Walkertown, Pa., Sunday, August 31st, 1:30 p. m.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, William and Jefferson Sts., Friday, August 29th, 8 p. m.

C. E. Ruthenberg executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Two of these meetings already arranged for are:

Boston, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1, Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.

New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St., 8 p. m.

Christopher Party Members Discuss Organization Work

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., Aug. 26.—A general membership meeting of the Workers Party was held here to discuss the reorganization tour of Arne Swabek, the speaking trip of "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor, and to discuss the DAILY WORKER drive with Karl Reeve. Comrades from Valier also attended. Reeve spoke on the tendency of the Christopher miners locals to isolate themselves, and urged the Comrades to re-enter the Trades and Labor Assembly here and endeavor to have their local unions affiliate and build it up. In spite of the fact that at the present time it is dominated by Kluxers.

The party members decided to appoint a man in each branch to write in DAILY WORKER news. The DAILY WORKER agent, Mike Bacevich, is doing well, not only with the DAILY WORKER, but with all of the Party publications.

Those present from Valier included Dick Swift, William Potesak, Charles Grudich andJack Katich. The Christopher Comrades who attended were: Victor Cernich, Arley Staples, John Matosich, Martin Rabuffoni, Victor Komadina, Pete Grenko, John Bujan, Angelo Larinovich, Tom Jurkovich and Matt Laktosich.

Herriot Getting Sat on for Not Securing 8-Hour Day on Ships

(By Federated Press)

PARIS, France, Aug. 26.—Great pressure is being brought to bear upon the Herriot cabinet to reintroduce the eight hour day in the shipping industry, which was abrogated under Poincare on the grounds that France would not be able to compete with others as a shipping nation unless those employed in the industry worked for more than eight hours. This matter cannot be disposed of before the late fall, as so many other measures of internal policy are pending which have been held up while Herriot was occupied with the foreign political situation.

Send in that Subscription Today.

FOSTER BRINGS CAMPAIGN INTO BERGER'S CITY

Victor, "Democrat," Refuses W. P. Ad

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26.—"The Workers Party is a revolutionary party, a fighting party that believes in the abolishing of the capitalist system and in the establishing of a government where only those who work shall eat and govern and become citizens of the country," said William Z. Foster to an assemblage of over 1000 workers who gathered to hear him at the Workers Party picnic.

Numerous Socialist Party and trades union members were present despite the active opposition of the union bureaucracy and the S. P. machine. The Milwaukee Leader, fearing attendance of socialists at the communist meeting, ordered its business manager to stop the advertisement of the gathering.

Verboten by Victor.

To those who know the Socialist Party and its Milwaukee ruler, Victor Berger, this action came as a great surprise. Berger has no scruples about accepting ads from the Boston Store, Fischer Furniture Co., and the Traction Co., but when it came to accepting an ad about a workers' meeting, he turned it down.

The new political policy of Berger-Hillquit-Co. has brought the former into a nice kettle of fish. While he, running for congress, and Herbert Quick, running for governor, both take great pleasure in displaying La Follette's picture in the middle of their campaign posters, they are fighting against Blaine as a reactionary enemy to labor. Blaine, running again for the governorship, has the endorsement of LaFollette.

May Ditch Quick.

It is rumored that Quick may be ditched by the Berger machine in favor of Cummings, who is aiming to cop the governorship via the republican ticket.

Foster, in dealing with the Socialist Party here and in other countries, said: "In Germany the social democrats agreed to allow capitalism to exist in return for a mess of pottage and so betrayed the revolution of Germany. If the social democrats did that what would LaFollette do if the capitalist class was being threatened by the growing organized workers. Would LaFollette stick with the workers? No!

LaFollette Breaks F. L. P.'s

"He is now setting up LaFollette clubs as rival organizations ot the Farmer-Labor progressives all over the state of Minnesota. This is another attempt by him to destroy any chances of a labor party because Minnesota has the strongest F. L. P. in the country."

BERLIN CABINET THREATENS TO GO TO THE COUNTRY

General Elections If Pact Is Licked

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BERLIN, Aug. 26.— The German government intends to sign the London Agreement whether it secures a majority in the Reichstag or not. This was the ultimatum of Chancellor Marx to the opponents of the pact.

The nationalist party still continues to oppose the agreement and the Communists are waging a relentless fight on it.

Chancellor Marx holds up the Dawes plan as the only solution of Germany's condition. The Communists on the other hand, tell the workers that it is a good plan for the German bankers and industrialists, but that it will reduce the workers' standard of living to a lower level than it is at present.

Dissolution of the present Reichstag will follow a government defeat on the motion to endorse the London Agreement.

Pershing Makes Speech.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—General John J. Pershing's speech suggesting a reduction of France's war debts to America has aroused considerable interest here. It is not likely that the General is expounding merely his own opinions, but has been used as a feeler by the United States government.

Secretary Mellon is in Paris at the present time, but has refused to comment on the Pershing statement. Those close to Mellon, however, have reason to believe that in the event of Coolidge's re-election, immediate steps will be taken to give France favorable conditions on her debt. Some such proceeding as followed in the case of England, would be applied to France.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

BUFFALO LABOR PARTY CONFERENCE CALLED FOR SUNDAY, AUG. 31

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The Buffalo Labor Party, organized by the Central Labor Council of this city, for the purpose of giving the workers proper political expression, will hold a conference Sunday, August 31, at Engineers' Hall, 36 W. Huron St., at 6 p. m.

Send your delegates. Any workers organization in Erie County is entitled to send delegates. Three delegates for any organization and one additional delegate for each 100 members.

OPEN SEASON ON KLAN, PROMISES GOOD SHOOTING

General Trains Guns on Fiery Cross

It looks like an open season on the Ku Klux Klan. Since it became evident that the former Klan stronghold of Texas was lost to the hooded order, following the Klux defeat in Oklahoma, politicians are more than anxious to tell the world how bitterly they oppose the Klan.

The only exception to the rule so far is General Dawes, whose Augusta, Maine, speech was a frank endorsement of the invisible wizards, despite the efforts of republican party publicists to make it look like an attack.

Have Seen Best Days.

Hitherto Klansmen were privileged persons and it is an open secret that during the Harding administration they had a key to the White House. But times have changed.

Brig. General George Moseley, commandant at Camp Custer, Mich., ordered machine guns trained on Harbord Hill within the Camp Custer reservation if any more Klan meetings are held there. The Kluxers have been in the habit of holding meetings there and burning fiery crosses on the hills.

General Moseley was recently ordered transferred to Hawaii, owing to publicity on account of suit for divorce filed by his wife, in which she charged desertion. He is one of the leaders in the "Mobilization Day" plans of the War Department.

Young Is Away.

From Atlanta comes the story that Glenn Young, the notorious Williamson County raider, will not return to Herrin to stand trial as ordered by the judge. Young is supposed to be a brave warrior but it looks as if he is afraid to face the music.

His wife declares he will not return to Herrin because of ill health, resulting from wounds received while "cleaning up" Williamson County. It is reported he is on the payroll of the Klan at national headquarters.

General Dawes, while on his way to Chicago from Boston, solicited opinions on the effect of his Klan speech. He was disappointed because more attention was not paid to his attack on organized labor. The General will speak in Lincoln, Nebr., Friday.

No authentic report of the discussion between Dawes and Coolidge at the latters' home in Plymouth, Vt., was given out. It was stated that the Klan issue was not discussed, tho this report is not taken seriously.

Chicago Juniors to Hold Convention on Sunday, August 30

The youngest of the reds in Chicago will gather when the local junior section of the Young Workers League will hold its convention on Saturday, August 30, 1:30 p. m., at 2623 Le Moyne Ave. Hundreds of children of the working class are now members of the junior groups in Chicago and it is expected that the representation at the convention will show how well the little comrades have developed on the road to understanding Communism and the struggle against the boss class.

All are invited to the convention as visitors.

Political Prisoner Goes Thru Operation; Write Him a Letter

(By The Federated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, August 26.—Abraham Cisneros, who has been in prison here for over ten years, has recently been successfully operated on for appendicitis. He has a life sentence, having been convicted during the border troubles when Diaz was overthrown. Anyone wishing to send this sick man card or letters may address him as follows: Abraham Cisneros, R. R. 1, Box 1, Wynne State Farm, Huntsville, Texas.

Edward Reed, Attention!

Kindly call at the editorial office of the DAILY WORKER or write us your address so that we can communicate with you.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Publishing Fake Is Easy for American "Brass Check" Press

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the yellow press of the nation is busy exploiting one of the prize hoaxes of American newspaper history. They kept blowing on their bubble of fiction until it burst.

Since the Volstead act went into effect the inebriate editors have ceased regaling their readers, during the summer season, with wild stories of sea monsters roving the deep.

But the New York Herald-Tribune, one of the sheets owned by Frank Munsey, big steel trust stockholder, recently lived up to all yellow press expectations by "scooping" its competitors with an exclusive story of a "Rum Palace," former German ocean liner, that stood by, a few miles outside of New York harbor, to serve all comers who could display a sufficiently large bank roll.

* * *

Some one had given the editor the tip about the "Floating Cafe." The editor grabbed it as a life saver, and put his best writer on the job. The reporter felt he had to produce, and he turned out one of the best pieces of sea fiction of the present season. But it was all a fake. This was discovered a week later, after the story had roamed at will over the first pages of the nation's "Brass Check" press.

* * *

This incident should arouse the workers to a realization of how easy it is to get faked news into America's daily newspapers.

This fiction story dealt with alleged facts on the very doorsteps of the so-called "great" New York dailies. There was no real need for the putting over of this fake, except to satisfy the desire for a day's sensation. When the prostitute sheets had had their thrill, then they began investigating the authenticity of the story, spending more space later to deny it, another dose of thrill.

* * *

This incident should help workers to better understand all the fakes, hoaxes, lies and the generally fabricated news that these same sheets have published about conditions in Soviet Russia, or wherever the fighting forces of labor move forward.

If a reporter can fake a story about a "Floating Bar," at the very entrance to New York harbor, how much easier to fake stories about conditions within the news blockaded First Workers' Republic, thousands of miles away.

And there is a great incentive to lie about Soviet Rule, in Russia, that threatens the capitalist structure the world over. The yellow press, defender of capitalism, has the greatest interest in misrepresenting the struggles and victories of the Workers' and Farmers' Government across the sea. And it is to their interest to strangle every effort to repudiate these malicious attacks. No capitalist sheet, to our knowledge, has ever published a correction of the millions of lies circulated about Russian Soviet Rule.

* * *

The yellow press exploded its own hoax about the "Floating Bar." It didn't hurt it to do it. In fact the subsidized sheets will point to this confession of guilt, in this instance, as a big reason for believing in their complete integrity in the future. Surely, they will say, wherever we err, we confess it.

* * *

But no worker should be deceived by this sham effort at innocence. The kept sheets of big business lie about labor's cause, 24 hours in the day, and every day in the year. Labor can completely meet this situation by obliterating the Capitalist Press with a Workers' Press. There are no capitalist sheets in Soviet Russia.

MUSICIANS ARE JUBILANT OVER BIG WAGE GAIN

Chicago Players Are the Best Paid and Happy

The union musicians of Chicago have won a big victory over the theatrical managers in their fight for an increase in wages. A new wage agreement has been signed giving the musicians an increase of 7½ per cent in their wages.

This increase will go into effect Sept. 1 and will bring the musicians' wages up to $74.50 and $92.50 a week. All the city's musical comedy, burlesque, vaudeville and dramatic theatres come in on this new wage scale. These wages, because of the short season, bring the average wage of a musician to about $60 per week.

Thank Daily Worker.

President James C. Petrilla yesterday thanked the DAILY WORKER for the assistance it gave the musicians during the last two weeks in bringing the union's story to the workers of Chicago, and in denouncing the lying statements that came out in the local press thru Harry Riding, representing the managers, in an effort to break the backbone of the fight.

Best Paid in Country.

He said the musicians were jubilant over their victory. "And tell your readers that the musicians in Chicago are the best paid musicians in the country," Petrilla proudly asserted.

The managers of the moving picture houses, with the exception of the two-a-day houses which are all settled up, will meet with the officers of the union today to arrange for definite season terms for musicians as against the present fire and hire system.

Kill Death Dance Grip.

Louis H. Chalif, president of the American Society of Teachers of Dancing, holding its 47th annual convention in Chicago, says that the "death grip in dancing" must go. You may laugh on the floor, but no bunny hugs.

HILARITY WILL HOLD FORTH AT T. U. E. L. PICNIC

Noted Mirthmakers to Grace Occasion

The Labor Day Picnic of the Trade Union Educational League is expected to beat all attendance records of the season. It will be the last big outdoor social affair of the year and trade union left wingers, Communists and sympathisers are sure to be there for a day of real enjoyment.

The usual games will be played and prizes will be awarded. Sam Hammersmark was induced to donate one of his famous five cent cigars as a prize in the beat ball thrower. Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker, and Earl Browder, editor of the Labor Herald, are expected to lead the editorial popularity contest. Journalists being ideals, no prizes are offered, but T. J. O'Flaherty promises to immortalize the winner in his column.

Anton Overgaard, Jack Johnstone Walt Carmon and J. Ramirez are scheduled to run a two legged race with Moritz Loeb, Nick Dozenberg, Barney Mass and Al Schapp.

To begin the fun a political complexion will be given the affair by having the Workers Party candidate for senator of Illinois, J. Louis Engdahl, address the pickinickers.

This does not begin to tell half of what is liable to happen at the Labor Day picnic. But see for yourself. Admission is 35 cents. To get there, take a Forest Park "L" or Madison St. Car and transfer to suburban line.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

NO CHANGE IN DEADLOCK OF I. W. W. GROUPS

Master-in-Chancery to Hear Dispute Sept. 4

Nothing had changed at the headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World yesterday as a result of Monday's decree by Judge Joseph B. David that the lawyers of both sides in the present dispute get together and draw up a working agreement for the temporary conduct of the organization's work and the safeguarding of its interests.

The I. W. W. case will next come before Fred Bernstein, master-in-chancery, Thursday, Sept. 4, at 169 N. LaSalle St. Bernstein will hear evidence in the case and make a final decision.

In the meantime the lock is still on the door of the Wobbly headquarters at 1001 W. Madison St.

Judge David of the Superior court instructed the attorneys on both sides to get together and reach a temporary agreement that will make it possible for the editors and industrial union officers to enter the building and take whatever papers are necessary for carrying on the organization's work.

Attorney John A. Ryan, acting in Attorney William H. Cunnea's absence, informed the DAILY WORKER yesterday that the attorneys of both elements met all day Monday, but could not reach any agreement. So the matter will rest as it stands until the hearing Sept. 4. Ryan said Cunnea is expected to attend the hearing before Master-in-Chancery Bernstein.

BIG CAMPAIGN MEET TONIGHT IN WORKERS LYCEUM

Manley and Browder to Address Party Members

Workers Party members and campaign managers are bringing in petitions every day, filled out, to the local office and at the same time offering many plans and suggestions to speed the work of getting signatures to place the Workers Party candidates on the ballot.

March Gets Lon List.

Mike March, of the Mid-City English branch, has been especially successful and has himself secured 123 signatures. Comrade Davidson of the Northwest Jewish, Comrade Kahn, Comrade Murasko and others have also been very successful in obtaining signatures.

To keep the work at high speed, to find out how much we have done and how much we yet have to go, campaign managers will make their reports at the membership meeting tonight at Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. On the progress of the national campaign a report will be given by Comrade Jos. Manley, national campaign manager.

Get New Members.

Every member must get a new member and thus earn a Communist merit stamp. Every member is to get a new reader for the DAILY WORKER. To better co-ordinate the work of the DAILY WORKER and membership campaign with the election campaign, Comrade Earl Browder, editor of the Labor Herald, member of the City Executive Committee, will report on te plans of the party in these respects.

Membership Meeting Tonight.

Every effort must be made to get the preliminary work of placing our candidates on the ballot over with as quickly as possible in order that the real Communist campaign activity can be speeded up.

Be on hand at the membership meeting tonight, 8 p. m., at 2733 Hirsch Blvd. Come early to the membership meeting and show a Communist interest in the campaign. Help to put Foster and Gitlow on the ballot. Forward to Communist campaign and to a proletarian government!

What Crop Poor in Canada.

The official forecast of the Canadian wheat crop shows a reduction of nearly 200,000,000 bushles, or 40.5 per cent, compared with the final estimates last year, according to a telegram just received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The forecast for this year is 282,042,000 bushels and the final estimate for 1923 was 474,000,000 bushels.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

BRAZILIAN SEAMEN OUT ON STRIKE

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—The Maritime Labor Federation, comprising 7,000 workers, has declared a general strike.

RUSSO-GERMAN RELATIONS ARE RE-ESTABLISHED

Berlin Backs Water on Bozenhardt Incident

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Amicable relations have been re-established between Russia and the German republic.

They had almost been ruptured as a result of the invasion of the Russian trade mission building last May, when Berlin police entered the premises to look for an escaped Communist prisoner, Bozenhardt, but took occasion to rifle desks and lockers belonging to officials with diplomatic standing.

Publicly Apologized.

The German government has had to disavow the action of the Berlin police and bring about the removal from office of the chief of the political division responsible for the raid. It has begged the pardon of the Russian government publicly and officially, and has offered to make good any material damage done in the course of the raid.

On the other hand, the Russian government did not wholly gain its point that the whole trade mission building must be regarded as extra-territorial. The two governments have agreed that the persons from the trade mission who shall enjoy diplomatic immunity shall not only be named in person, but shall have certain definite rooms assigned to them in the trade mission building, which rooms will be regarded as extra-territorial, while the rest of the building shall be considered like any other office building in Berlin.

Rapallo Treaty Continues

Both sides emphasize in the note which closes the incident that the Rapallo Treaty, by which full diplomatic and business relations were established between the two countries, shall continue as before. Also, the Russians give new assurance that all their diplomatic personnel will strictly keep away from political activity.

Both sides further agree within not more than a year to work out a trade agreement in greater detail than that provided for in the Treaty of Rapallo.

Workers Tell About Conditions in Silk Mills

(Continued from page 1.)

the enforcement of the union's demands.

There are a lot of "cock roach" mills, most of them run by a family with only a few extra workers. Many of these little shops, similar to sweat shops in the garment industries, were bankrupt when the strike came. Now they are reviving on contracts from the bigger mills whose looms are idle while the weavers strike. These "cock roach" concerns are hardest to deal with. They pay next to nothing and work their slaves 12 and 14 hours. They are always a menace to the workers with their cut-throat tactics and irresponsibility.

No "Democracy."

The larger and supposedly "better" mills where the various forms of "industrial democracy" are used to subject the workers offer other problems to the strikers. The B. Edmund David concern, one of the largest, whose "assembly" of workers and "senate" of salaried officials has been widely advertised, has not been able to hold its weavers during the strike. The workers walked out in protest against the "industrial democracy" which, like political democracy in the United States, works all to the advantage of the bosses.

Smith and Kaufman is another one of these "efficiency" mills, but if a worker dare suggest striking with the Associated Silk Workers, I. W. W. and unorganized weavers who are not, is immediately fired. The "welfare worker" is a company spy who reports directly to the officials when a worker shows enough intelligence to see thru the cheap "welfare" game the company play with the workers.

Bosses Forge Scabs' Names.

American Silk Mills also has a company union and was so enraged that weavers should have walked out from its mills that it forced some fifty names (or forged their names) to sign a statement saying that they were "satisfied with conditions which do not permit strikes, lockouts, or stoppages." Striking workers from American Silk Mills do not recognize the names of the workers on this company union statement which was published in the Paterson Morning Call, one of the capitalist papers which has been spreading lies about the strike.

Nearly 300 mills are tied up by the strike and over 10,000 workers are out. The Associated Silk Workers is pushing organization work among the strikers and is making every effort to get winders, warpers, twisters, quillers and pickers into the union with the weavers. Some of these crafts have weak A. F. of L. United Textile organizations and none are on strike. Unorganized workers have joined the strike however. The Associated is profiting in its work by the long years of I. W. W. agitation in Paterson for industrial organization. The sinister influence of one Frederick Blossom, now suspended from the I. W. W., has done much to wreck Wobbly organization among the silk workers and many of them are gladly accepting Communist guidance.

"Take It, Or Leave."

Even in the mills in which "industrial democracy" is supposed to reign, the workers have no recourse when the company cheats them. Weavers are paid mostly piece work and it is common for the company to deduct 10 or 20 yards from the cloth they bring the worker. If any complaint is made in these "modern" mills, the piece is supposed to be remeasured before the worker and representatives of the workers and the company. Of course the company says: "It must have been a mistake," but the worker never gets the proper amount due him.

In most of the mills if the worker dares to voice a grievance he can expect to take his hat and go. The company will deduct for flaws in the cloth or refuse to pay a worker for a whole piece because of a few slight slips. The new price list proposed by the Associated Silk Workers is highly technical and aims to block all possible chances for the boss to cheat the workers on their weaving. The union demands that the list be posted in every shop.

Hazardous Work.

Silk weaving is still one of the hazardous occupations. Even in the newer mills where more windows help light and air inside, the rooms are filled with minute lint which is extremely unhealthy for the workers to breathe in. Where the workers weave silk already dyed the dye dust is also dangerous. Women, many of whom are now weavers, easily catch their garments in the looms and may suffer physical injury. In the old mills, and most of the Paterson mills are old because the industry has been so long established here, have bad sanitary conditions and inadequate provisions for workers.

Young girls work at winding in the mills and are paid the lowest possible wages. Most get from $12 to $14 and the highest only $18. The silk manufacturers have tried to double up the work on these exploited girls as well as on the weavers. The girls have been given 3 and 4 looms instead of 2 which they can handle safely. Weavers average only $20 to $25 weekly thru the year.

Fight Overtime.

The bosses were just beginning to reopen their mills after a long depression in which the biggest mills ran only part time and the small ones not at all. Some of the workers had not yet returned to jobs when the strike was called and they joined the fight. The bosses had expected to get away with a 10 and 12 hour work day instead of the 8 hour day which had been in force generally in the silk industry. But the workers struck and demand 8 hours work only and no overtime and only 4 hours work Saturdays.

A strike settlement committee has taken up headquarters in the Hotel Manhattan where agreements with individual mills will be signed if the bosses accept the union's terms. No organization of bosses could be found, even tho John A. Moffit, commissioner of conciliation, U. S. department of labor tried hard to get the manufacturers together.

Strong Picket Lines.

The spirit of the striking weavers is splendid. By the hundred they go out on the picket line and walk for hours while extra squads of police patrol and "guard" scabs to and from the car. I joined the pickets at the Pelgram and Meyer mill and enjoyed their caustic comment on conditions in the shop. One of the Polish women weavers said she didn't like the place. The boss was disagreeable and always hurrying up the workers.

One young Italian worker said: "These scabs, these girls, they don't know what they do. We gotta tell 'em they work and man with seven children he gets no work." Many Syrians are in the strike also. Some of the workers who had accepted the 2 and 4 loom system realize now that by doing more work themselves they keep other men from jobs.

The strikers issued a bulletin showing the splendid progress of the fight. An interesting article reprinted from the American Silk Journal shows that Cheney Brothers, one of the largest mills, not at Paterson, finds old weavers most efficient. It takes 10 to 20 years really to learn the trade well, the many Paterson bosses foolishly reject the gray-haired weaver.

Cal's Manager Pays Big For Finks

(Continued from page 1)

place, but enough can be shown to prove that Butler, the Big Gun in the republican party is the patron of private detectives to advance as "labor" representatives the Butler industrial interests in politics. McCumber being less wealthy, cannot go so far as Butler in investing in finks.

Fink Business Pays.

Yesterday we stated that Mr. Butler had employed about thirty stool-pigeons to spy upon the textile workers in the city of New Bedford, Massachusetts. These were employed at a price of $25,000, thru the "Sherman Service Inc.," a corporation which makes so much money from this business of finking that it pays John Francis Sherman, its owner, such returns that he has to cough up in one year alone, a sum of $258,000 for income tax.

This is an indication of the tremendous sums collected by this stool-pigeon agency from great industrial interests such as the New Bedford textile mills of Mr. Butler.

What is the nature of this work which, of course, is disguised as "legitimate business?" The Sherman agency put out a nice little booklet explaining in guarded language and euphimistic terms how they guarantee the employers to "stop payroll losses." They say, "Control an employe's motive and you can control his output." They are strong on controlling "motives."

The Sherman Service says, "There are three types of employes as regards motives: Conservative, Radical, Neutral." They add (we read to hear) only ten per cent are "Conservatives" who are "100 per cent producers." The "Neutral" motived employe is only "75 per cent a producer for the reason that he believes it pays to produce just enough to hold his job." The employe who is afflicted with a "Radical Motive" is a bad hombre, because he produces only 50 per cent.

Guarnatee to Change "Motives."

Workers, look for your "motives!" Guard them well, for the Sherman stool-pigeons are guaranteeing your bosses that thy "will change your motives." And the Republican Party is behind them; Mr. Butler is behind them, you textile workers.

They say, "The net result of an adequate application of Sheramn engineering (get that "engineering!") is that Radical and Neutral Motived Employes are developed into men and women of Conservative Motives."

This "engineering" talk and the "conciliation and co-operation" bunk that is being put out by detectives and by labor fakers like William H. Johnston, in his "B. & O. Plan," is something that workers should regard with suspicion and hostility.

It is notable that Butler, who is the political and financial backer of Coolidge, is deeply mixed up in a detective agency whose stool-pigeons are engaged to advocate "better co-operation with the employers," while William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, who is the political and financial backer of LaFollette, is also leading advocate in the railroad shop crafts' scheme of betrayal of working-class interests thru what he calls "co-operation with the employer to increase the output."

Machinists should take note that Mr. Johnson, backer of LaFollette is doing exactly what the Sherman detective agency promises to do. Mr. Johnston is after your "motive," brother machinist.

Plot Against the Unions.

It is this sort of work William Morgan Butler engaged the Sherman agency to do in his New Bedford, Massachusetts, textile mills. The first thing that detective agencies do is to try to get control of the unions of the workers. In New Bedford, Mr. Butler employed, as among the most important of his stool-pigeons, one John Silver (a much viler character than the honest pirate of that name in Stevenson's romances). Silver was secretary of the Doffers' and Spinners' Union, and was also secretary of the New Bedford Textile Council, a delegate body composed of representatives of the various textile unions organized among the mill workers.

How Butler, the backer of Coolidge for president of the United States, plotted against the unions of the workers, will be told in the next issue of the DAILY WORKER. The names of other stool-pigeons, and the manner of their work will be exposed. Don't neglect to read tomorrow's DAILY WORKER.

NEW "SERVICE CO." OFFERS TO BREAK UP ANY KIND OF STRIKE AT SO MUCH PER STRIKE-BREAKER

By CARL HAESSLER
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Some day you may need legal data in a rush or guards for the protection of your property, or information on the seditions or unscrupulous plans of others—when you do, you will want it in a hurry.

This statement is not made on the reporter's humble authority but is taken word for word, without alteration, out of the mouth of the General Service Co., 17 North LaSalle Street, Chicago.

This purveyor of gunmen to big business offers to furnish what it calls "the working tools of an executive." Its special brand of service is definitely stated. "We handle no domestic (divorce) cases," the company announces. We cater to industrial controversies and watchman service only. Interview us now for such an emergency, no retainer fees required. Ask for a list of national known business organizations who are our references and clients. We are specialists in obtaining confidential information with dispatch."

No Interview Wanted

The Federated Press acted on the invitation. It asked the company by letter to supply it with information on the service the company was able to render. The request stated that no interview was desired to begin with.

The next day's mail brought no letter. Instead, a well-dressed hard-faced individual with a polite business manner walked into the F. P. office, asked for the manager and announced in a subdued voice that he represented the General Service Co.

Nothing Doing

Having no immediate need of industrial gunmen or of information on the seditions of others, the F. P. has not communicated with the General Service Co. since. J. M. Leonard is general manager of the concern. It advertises extensively in Illinois chamber of commerce publications.

Workers on Second Thought Admit Man into Union Ranks

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Seventy elevator constructors, on strike here because the employing company refused to dismiss a man who had been refused membership in the union here but had secured his card in Richmond, have gone back to work. The man who got into the union after the local had rejected him remains on the job. Upon second thought, the strikers decided that they should have admitted him to membership in the first place.

LIONS ROAR FOR OPEN SHOP

(Continued from page 1)

but as to working conditions." He almost openly threatened to try to starve the miners into a wage reduction thru unemployment when he said, "The greatly reduced working time and the entire idleness for many miners is much worse than a flat wage reduction."

Makes Untrue Statements.

"Refusal to accept a wage reduction does not guarantee daily earnings to the miners or annual incomes at the high level they demand, when there is an ample and adequate fuel supply readily available elsewhere."

But Dr. Honnold knows the facts, and made statements which were not true. He complained on behalf of the Illinois operators that they are losing money on Illinois mine coal while the non-union fields are making big money. He did not reveal that the same coal companies own and control the non-union mines, as control and own the Illinois coal mines. He concealed the fact that the Big Ben Coal company, is backed by the same coal trust that is interlocked with the J. P. Morgan interests, the National City Bank of New York, and the railroad trust. He concealed the fact that the Valier Coal Company, employing 1,200 men, more than any other mine in the state, is owned by the Burlington Railroad, which is interlocked in the identical coal trust and other trusts which own the non-union coal. He did not disclose that the backers of the Big Ben coal company also own many non-union coal mines.

When it is remembered that the International Harvester Company owns scab mines in the Southern states the Gary Steel trust is a large stockholder in non-union coal mines, and these same interests dominate the Coal Operators' Association in Illinois, Dr. Honnold's drivel about suffering because of scab coal is revealed as twaddle.

There is no trust more solidified and all-controling than the coal trust. The coal trust, interlocked with all the other trusts, is attacking the United Mine Workers' union thru playing the non-union workers against the union miners.

Boost for Boy Scouts.

Today the Lions' Club, alias the Chamber of Commerce of Illinois, alias the Ku Klux Klan, crowded a bunch of boy scouts into the theater in Herrin Park and had Captain John Bosley of Maryland talk to these boys, denounce the reds and plead with them to talk preparedness (to their parents. While the DAILY WORKER reporter was listening about 50 miners' children, disgusted got up and walked out in a body. The Captain made a slighting remark about "They didn't know any better," as the miners' sons walked out.

Three of the Taylor Coal company mines, the Sunnyside Mine and one other mine in Herrin are completely shut down. Four thousand miners are out of work in the vicinity.

Herrin today is immersed in American flags. There are twenty big flags in each block, hung from flag poles erected along the sidewalks at intervals of a few feet.

The Lions Club is not connected with the "Mutt and Jeff" Lion Tamers' Club, but was established as a recruiting ground for the boy scouts, strikebreakers, open shoppers and the Ku Klux Klan.

Movie Operators Leave Way Open to Halt Walkout

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, August 26.—Local 306 of the Moving Picture Machine Operators Union which has voted to strike September 1, if its demands for a 30 percent hourly rate increase and the installation of the two-shift system are not granted, kept the way open for further negotiations today by assuring State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag that they would have representatives at a conference he is trying to arrange Monday between the employers and the union. The Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, however, boastfully declares it is ready for the strike and will man the projection booths with non union men. The union declares he non union men are not to be had.

Labor Finds Oregon With as Few Jobs as Any Other State

(By Federated Press)

PORTLAND, Ore, Aug. 26—The horde of workers swarming into Oregon from California, Idaho and adjacent states expecting to find work harvesting the hop and prune crops are rapidly creating an unprecedented unemployment situation here. More than enough workers are available now for the limited crops, and the migratory workers are finding themselves up against it, as preference is given to the unemployed residing in Oregon.

Employment agencies report far more applications for work than there are jobs available, and for the first time in many years the hop and prune men are relieved of the anxiety of securing the help necessary during the harvest.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

MINERS OF NOVA SCOTIA SUPPORT RADICAL SLATE

Lewis Stands no Chance With Canucks

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, Aug. 26.—The miners of Nova Scotia have overwhelmingly supported the nomination of militant rank and file members of the union for the International offices which are to be filled by election next December. The slogan among the miners is: "No nominations for Lewis in Nova Scotia." So well has this stand been supported in the district that Lewis received only one nomination, and that nomination is for VICE-PRESIDENT. In the rest of the locals the nominations are solid for militants.

Radical Slate Nominated.

The following slate has received nomination from the majority of the locals: George Voyzey, Local 5686, Verona, Ill., International President; Arley Staples, Local 2376, Christopher, Ill., International Vice-President; Joe Nearing, Local 4521, Reserve Mines, Cape Breton, N. S., for Secretary-Treasurer. And the following for delegates to the A. F. of L. Convention: Joe Tumulty, John J. Watt, Freeman Thompson, Tom Parry, Henry Corbishley, Arley Staples and Ed. Johnson.

Last July Lewis co-operated with the operators to smash the strike of the miners of this district against the use of armed forces in strikes. The district charter was cancelled. The district officers deposed, and a "provisional government" composed of creatures of Lewis established. All attempts of Lewis to smash the militant rank and file have failed as the nominations for the elections show.

Infantry Weeps at Backfire in Naughty Tear Gas Rehearsals

(By The Federated Press)

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 26.—There was plenty of weeping in the Fourteenth Infantry here when a tear gas demonstration backfired on 500 guardsmen. Tear gas rehearsals are not part of regular war preparation but part of the job of getting ready for "lawan'order" activities during strikes. Further rehearsals will be conducted so that the militiamen may remain drunk while they are crushing the aspirations of labor.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
A $500,000,000.00 GRAFT
This is the drug trust's annual toll from the gullible rich and poor. For this, many worthless substances, but also dangerous and habit-forming drugs are given, and as a result, "Medicine destroys more lives than pestilence and famine combined." Patent medicine is responsible for about 70 per cent of the inmates of all insane asylums."
Progressive men and women have discarded drugs as a relic of the superstitious past, and are now using Natural Methods only.—When ill see
Dr. J. J. SCHOLTES
Chiropractor and Electrotherapist
2838 W. 25th St. Lins. 5340

Store for Sale.
8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.
Guaranteed business over $90.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer Depot.
P. MANUSOS
3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

Rich Reputable Reliable

RICH because of its richness in the true sugars of barley, malt and other valued constituents of the malted barley grain.
REPUTABLE because it is a product of acknowledged merit and the standard of highest purity.
RELIABLE because it can always be depended upon for best results.

HIGH-TEST
100% PURE BARLEY
MALT EXTRACT
WITH CHOICEST HOPS
FOR SALE BY LEADING DEALERS

High Test Malt Extract Co.
20 East Eighth Street, Chicago, Ills.
Phone, Wabash 2580
1917 North Western Avenue
6748 South Halsted Street
606 East 63rd Street
5062 Lincoln Avenue
1503 Roosevelt Road
Leiter Store Basement

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from page 1)

prevent strikes and even General Dawes admits that the aftermath of the Herrin riots was inspired by an attempt to break up the miners' union thru the medium of the Klan. Norman Thomas spurns every suggestion of the class struggle as vigorously as any of the capitalist candidates.

* * *

PATRIOTS of the hysterical days of 1917 and 1918 may be interested to know that the war monuments in the French cemeteries were made in Germany because they could be turned out at less cost there than in France. This is the kind of patriotism that millions of deluded workers laid down their lives for.

* * *

IT is reported that Mr. John Wheatley, Minister of Health in the British Labor cabinet, has reached an agreement with the building contractors to incorporate a clause in a bill for compulsory arbitration a provision which means denial of the right to strike. This is the beginning of industrial conscription. While the so-called socialist ministers are treating labor in this manner we read the following in a British capitalist paper: "There was much comment on what an excellent figure Mr. Ramsay MacDonald makes in court dress. He looked very well indeed. He stood on the dais with the King and Queen while the diplomatic corps was being presented." This should compensate the British workers for any suffering they may have to endure under capitalism. We have not learned that His Majesty has yet joined the Second International but no doubt he will very soon.

* * *

THE British police are still raiding the homes of members of the Communist Party, tho the case against Comrade Campbell, arrested on a sedition charge, was dropped. The home of Mr. McKay, the Manchester district secretary of the Communist Party, was visited but after a thoro search, the only evidence of sedition the police could find was a paste pot. The police knew that Mr. Arthur Henderson, socialist Home Secretary, wanted a prosecution so they grabbed something that would stick.

* * *

VICTOR BERGER'S editorial writer says there was a time when the American Marxists held that the industrial proletariat would be the leaders of the social revolution. To show his contempt for the world proletariat he puts it in quotes. American Marxists have not changed their views on this question. They still believe that the industrial workers will lead the proletarian revolution, but they also hold that the industrial workers must have the exploited farmers as allies. The socialists do not believe that either the industrial workers or the poor farmers will lead the revolution. Their "revolution" will be led by a petty bourgeoisie like LaFollette.

* * *

GREECE needs a little more cash. Merely a trifling matter of $33,000,000. The money is to come from the United States Treasury. The Greek rulers have been quite busy lately chopping each others heads off. This cost money, but it is cheaper than referendums.

* * *

TWO big American bankers have been visiting Hungary recently. They are showing a keen interest in that country. It is ruled by a dictator, Admiral Horthy. Nevertheless his government is recognized by the United States and Charles Evans Hughes is on the best of terms with him. Charlie is not supposed to have any love for dictators but he has been very much misrepresented. He draws the line however at proletarian dictatorships and Soviet governments.

* * *

HOW many of you know that an American with the prosaic name of Jerry Smith, is American Commissioner General in Hungary? If the United States sent an army of a million soldiers to Europe to conquer it, there would be quite a fuss in the United States. LaFollette might shake his pompadour. But our bankers are over there and trouble generally follows in their wake. If Europe does not keep faith with our bankers, then we are going to have another war for democracy.

COKOS BROTHERS
Groceries
Cigars Cigarettes
Tobacco
and Candies
1111 W. WASHINGTON ST.

JAY STETLER'S
RESTAURANT
Established 1901
1063 W. Madison St. Chicago
Tel. Monroe 2241

The Workers Party in Action

Fight the Imperialist Mobilization Day!

To All Party Units and the Young Workers' League.
Comrades:

President Coolidge has set September 12 as "Mobilization Day," when the government of this country will parade its imperialist iron fist before the nations of the world.

The United States is deeply involved in the European situation thru the Dawes report. American bankers and financiers are to furnish the money thru which it is hoped European capitalism will again be set upon its feet, with the American capitalists drawing the profits. Our relations with Japan ostensibly over the question of exclusion, but really over the exploitation of China, have reached a serious stage of conflict. In the West Indies and Central and South America, the American bankers and financiers are establishing their control.

It is because of this imperialist development of this country is mobilising its military resources. All the world is to be shown that the United States has power to protect its loans and investments. Mobilization day is a club swung over the heads of the German workers threatening them with the might of the United States if they dare resist their enslavement. It is a warning to Mexico to let the American bankers have their way in that country. It is a threat against Japan, telling it to go slow in its opposition to the schemes of exploitation of the American capitalists in China.

For the workers of the United States, "Mobilization Day" is a warning to submit meekly to the exploitation and oppression by the capitalists.

It is the duty of all Communists to throw themselves into the struggle against these imperialist militarist preparations. It is our tasks to launch among the workers a counter agitation against capitalists, against militarism and against imperialist war.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party and the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers' League call upon all units of the respective organizations to hold mass meetings against imperialism and militarism on "Mobilization Day," September 12. In connection with these meetings there should be a wide-spread distribution of the manifesto against "Mobilization Day," which will be issued in leaflet form by the party and the league.

Arrangements for mass meetings should be made immediately and each unit of the party and the league should order a supply of the anti-mobilization day manifesto. Our fight against mobilization should be made a feature of our election campaign.

OUR ANSWER TO MOBILIZATION DAY MUST BE: DOWN WITH IMPERIALIST WAR! DOWN WITH THE CAPITALIST SYSTEM! FORWARD TO THE WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT!

Central Executive Committee, Workers Party of America, William Z. Foster, Chairman; C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary; National Executive Committee Young Workers' League, Martin Abern, National Secretary.

WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA,
Room 301, 1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

Comrades: Enclosed find $_____ for which please send us _____copies of the anti-Mobilization Day leaflet "Fight the Preparation for Imperialist War."

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State_____

Branch _____

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.
Wednesday, August 27.
Membership Meeting — Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., 8 p. m.
Thursday, August 28.
Enlarged City Executive Committee—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.
Eleventh Ward Italian—2459 South Oakley Blvd.
Scandinavian Karl Marx—2733 Hirsch Boulevard.
Scandinavian, West Side—Zelch's Hall, Corner Cicero and Superior.
Scandinavian, Lake View—3296 North Wilton Street.
Friday, August 29.
Scandinavian, South Chicago—641 East 61st Street.
Ukrainian, S. S. Membership Meeting—Workers Lyceum, 8 p. m.

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.
Tuesday, August 27.
Belmont and Wilton—Auspices, North Side Side W. P and Y. W. L.; speaker, D. E. Early.
33rd and Halsted Sts.—Auspices, Lithuanian Branch of Congressional District; speakers, Sam Hammersmark, V. Zokaitis.
Roosevelt and Marshfield—Auspices, Lutenberg Y. W. L.; speakers, Harrison George, B. Garver.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.
Party units and friendly organizations do not set conflicting dates.
Monday, Sept. 1—Ukrainian Picnic, Altenheim Grove.
Sunday, Sept. 7—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.
Sunday, Oct. 12—Foster-Gitlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).

Local Chicago
MEMBERSHIP MEETING
Wednesday, August 27, 8 p. m.
at
WORKERS LYCEUM,
2733 Hirsch Blvd.

Review of Elections Campaign, and the Daily Worker and Membership Drives.

Speakers: Earl R. Browder, Editor "Labor Herald"; Joseph Manley, National Campaign Manager.

All Workers Party and Young Workers League members to be present.

What are you doing to put the Party candidates on the ballot?
Have you gotten a new subscriber to THE DAILY WORKER?
Did you bring in another member to the Party?

Directors of "Spravedlnost" Expelled

By action of the Central Executive Committee of the Party, the following members of the Board of Directors of "Spravedlnost" have been expelled from the Workers Party: Milada Beranek, Anna Sebek, Jos. Lacek, Jos. Ciganek, Frank Siemenda, Frank Loukota, Charles Tichy, Albert Smid and Anton Posejpal and Charles Veranek, Trustee.

At the last convention of the Czecho-Slovak section of the Workers Party held at the beginning of the year, the convention went on record as giving the Bureau of the Czecho-Slovak section full control over all the papers and other institutions of the Czecho-Slovak section. The Board of Directors of "Spravedlnost," however, refused to submit to the direction of the elected representatives of the members of the Czecho-Slovak section. The matter was referred to the Central Executive Committee of the Party, which began negotiations in order to bring about an adjustment of the controversy.

The Central Executive Committee of the Party proposed to the Board of Directors that pending the time of another convention of the Czecho-Slovak section of the Party that "Spravedlnost" should be under the joint management of the Board of Directors and the Czecho-Slovak Bureau, or if that was not satisfactory, under the management of the Central Executive Committee of the Party.

Both proposals of the Central Executive Committee were rejected by the Board of Directors. It was the decision of the members of the Board of Directors that they owed a greater duty to the readers of the "Spravedlnost" and their personal views in regard to the management of the "Spravedlnost" transcended any control which the Party might exercise in relation to that paper. Their attitude in the discussion with the Central Executive Committee showed that they had not the slightest conception of Communist principles or the duties of the members of a Communist Party. Some utterances made in the presence of the members of the Central Executive Committee indicated that the members of the Board of Directors above named were not sufficiently conscious of the revolutionary movement to be even right wing Socialists, let alone Communists.

Under the circumstances, the C. E. C. of the Party could not do otherwise than to expel this group from the Party together with all members of the Czecho-Slovak section who refuse to accept the discipline of the Bureau of the Czecho-Slovak section under the direction of the Central Executive Committee.

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.
Time, Place and Speakers.
Friday, August 29.
Jefferson and B. Broadway—Harry Hartman.
104th St. and 2nd Ave.—W. W. Weinstone.
116th St. and Madison Avenue—J. S. Poyntz.
142rd St. and S. Blvd.—Rebecca Grecht and Simon Felsh.
138th Street and Brook Avenue—John Marshall.
Grand and Roebling St., Brooklyn—I. Potash, B. Davidson.
Stone and Pitkin—Joe Brandy.
Graham and Yaret Sts., Brooklyn—Jewish speakers.
5th Ave. and 52nd Sts., Brooklyn—Winitsky, Undjus.
13th Ave. and 42nd St.—S. Darcy, S. Flaskin.
25th St. and Mermaid Ave., Coney Island—L. Landy and others.
Saturday, August 30.
145th Street and Wille Ave.—Joe Padgug and Edward Martin.
Grand St. Extension, Brooklyn—Joe Brandy and Levy.
Stone and Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn—Charles Brower and Jack Stachel.

These days, when there is murder trials the daily papers fill their files with lots of dizzy-written features about the doings of those creatures who like to risk their pesky necks by making folks pass in their checks.

The funniest features in the lists is those about these alienists, the men who probe inside your skull to see if you are smart or dull, who measure down to minute fractions the jumps and jerks of your reactions, who have you tell about your dreams to see if things ain't what they seems, who put contraptions on your wrist to find if you've a mental twist, who never hesitate to ax if you recall prenatal facts and ax you in a way informal if your sex life is strictly normal; and if it ain't, which you prefer, a female him or manlike her.

Some murderer has got his man. The state would hang him if it can. Defense attorneys wants save the felon from an early grave. Two sets of alienists appear to look into the mental gear. The state pays some; defense, the others. They don't show any love, like brothers.

The state-paid alienists will say the murderer's mind is clear as day. They swear in court beyond a doubt the man knew what he wuz about. Then taking the same set of facts defendant's lawyers calmly ax the alienists that they is paying if other side knows what it's saying.

This second set of alienists will swear with pounding of the fists the man has paranoid delusions, hallucinations, and illusions, his glands is in a awful fix, his nervous system's in a mix, he's is an adolescent state because some things arrived too late, his sex life sure has all gone wrong, because he loved two girls too long. The poor cuss really mustn't die because one shoulder blade is high. He is so cracked beneath the lid, he didn't know just what he did.

When each set sed the other lied, they drew their pay and step aside. And having listened long and well, the jury needs a padded cell.

Court is adjourned.

CIVIL LIBERTIES TO WAGE FIGHT ON COAL BARONS

War Against "Yellow Dog" Contracts Begins

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A new and nation-wide campaign against the "yellow dog" contracts, privately paid deputy sheriffs' system and company owned towns in the bituminous coal fields is being launched by the American Civil Liberties Union. The drive begins with the sending of a circular letter to the hundreds of attorneys, clergymen and local officials in the open shop zones, calling their attention to the "denial of civil liberties in the soft coal fields," admitted by the United States Coal Commission and demanding their co-operation in stopping the disgraceful condition. The next move is the formation of scores of local committees to handle the field work in the agitation which the Liberties Union will organize on the ground.

Plan Huge Agitation.

This national agitation, attacking all the non-union bituminous fields at once, is considered to be the largest sense civil liberties campaign ever staged in these oppressed regions. Heretofore campaigns have concentrated on particular fields at one time, often on individual towns, but the present drive is planned to embrace the entire non-union fields of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Alabama, Tennessee, Utah and other districts where almost complete control over the lives of the workers is vested in the coal operators.

No Liberties for Miners.

The circular letter sent out by the union is signed by John Haynes Holmes, acting chairman, and Roger Baldwin, director. It quotes the United States Coal Commission to the effect that the domination of the coal companies in these non-union fields is responsible for the "practical abridgement of free travel, free speech and public assemblage" and for depriving miners of "their normal rights." This is amplified by another section quoted, citing the "complete ownership of the coal towns by the companies; ejection of miners and their families from company-owned houses at a moment's notice; the payment and arming by the coal operators of deputy sheriffs who beat up and evict union organizers and sympathizers; "yellow dog" contracts which forbid strikes, picketing and meetings; and the use of state constabulary or the national guard to crush strikes."

Specific demand is made in the letter for support in the movement to have company-owned towns incorporated; to have the "yellow dog" contracts forbidding union membership set aside; to oppose injunctions forbidding union activities and to compel counties to pay the wages of all deputy sheriffs whom they credential. The last point is especially emphasized because the present system logically makes deputies servants of the interests which pay them.

The denial of civil liberties to the slaves of the coal operators in the above-mentioned fields, the American Civil Liberties Union ignores, however, is the legitimate result of the ownership of the government and all its armed forces by the capitalist interests of this country. At every attempt of the workers to better their conditions, not only are private gunmen used against them, but even governmental troops in the form of injunctions or the use of armed troops.

Only Workers Can Win.

The abolition of this thug-coal operator rule can only be accomplished by a firm stand against this condition by the workers who are directly involved and by their fellow workers in other parts of the country.

Jugo-Slav Gov't in Edict Against All Communist Groups

(By The Federated Press)

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Aug. 26—All Communistic organizations in Jugoslavia are declared illegal and subject to dissolution by a decree issued by the minister of the interior.

The decree is explained by a statement to the effect that the Communists are continuing their "destructive activities" under such names as "Independent Workers' party" and the like, despite the fact that the Communist Party was declared illegal back in 1921. The new order means that any organization that has a semblance to a Communist body will be dissolved—if the police are clever enuf.

Identified As Killer.

Willie Sam, 23 year old Negro bandit, was identified in Chicago as the slayer of Patrolman Cornelius Broderick, in a pistol duel with Patrol-Edward Mulcahy who attempted to arrest him. Sam is near death as a result of the exchange of shots.

Japs Fear Communists.

TOKYO, Aug. 26.—Police announced that they were watching plans of radicals to hold a memorial service on the anniversary of the earthquake in honor of the Communists who were killed during that period.

"Solve" Texas Labor Shortage by Binding Negro Crap Shooters

(By The Federated Press)

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 26.—"Pay up or go to the cotton patch," was the sentence handed out by "the law" to 135 Negro crap shooters picked up in a whole-sale raid on a country dance hall near here. Fines totaling $1,991.50 were collected. Those who could not pay were bound over and some were taken in charge by farmers with quite a lot of cotton to pick, who advanced the fine money with the proviso that the prisoner would work it out.

One farmer was heard to remark: "The cotton picking situation hereabouts would be solved if some of us farmers had salvaged this whole bunch of huskies."

Offer $1,000 Reward.

COPENHAGEN, August 26.—It is reported here that the Italian government is offering $1,000 for the finding of Lieut. Antonio Locatelli, world flyer lost near the coast of Greenland.

CAMPAIGN FOR FREEDOM OF ALL POLITICAL PRISONERS CARRIED ON BY GERMAN ARTIST TOLLER

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN.—Ernst Toller, a Communist, Germany's outstanding dramatist and one of the acknowledged geniuses of his time, has returned from a living death. After serving five years in a Bavarian prison for participation in Kurt Eisner's 1918 soviet regime, he has been set free.

He tried to have a simple meal distributed among his fellow prisoners as a parting gift. This was denied him.

He thought that after serving his sentence his "crime" was expiated and he was at liberty to move about at will. Not so. The Bavarian government held that, since "he had not changed his views," he still constituted a menace to the free state. Accordingly, he was met at the prison gates by Bavarian police, who boarded the north-bound train with him and saw to it that he crossed the Bavarian frontier into Saxony without stopping. In short, he was deported from Bavaria.

Wants Release of Mates.

There is but one ambition that Ernst Toller now has: he wants to see the other political prisoners freed. He has lived their harsh life, he has seen how they are humiliated before common thugs and criminals, he has personally felt the injustices heaped upon people whose only crime is that they hold an idea that runs counter to the accepted. One cannot move about for a while in his surroundings, but he waxes eloquent when describing the tribulations of his fellow politicals.

Refused Hearing.

No sooner had he arrived in Berlin, than he tried to obtain a hearing before the reichstag judiciary committee. The majority of the committee denied him that hearing even tho the Communist chairman, Katz, and several Socialist members pleaded for this in the name of common justice. The majority held that the question of Bavarian justice is a local affair with which the federal parliament could not concern itself.

Thereupon the chairman announced that the next morning there would be an unofficial hearing of such members of the committee as cared to appear. The hearing was most impressive. Toller drew a picture of Bavarian justice that made people's blood boil. He contrasted the "justice" meted out to traitors like Ludendorf and Hitler with that dealt out to idealists who tried to give the worker a better chance in life. Toller's talk is a potent one. We shall hear more of him on the subject of political prisoners.

Sees Play for First Time.

The night before a dramatic incident occurred: Ernst Toller for the first time in his life saw one of his own works produced. For years now his Machine Stormers, Masses of Men, Limping Man, etc., have gone over the boards, but Toller was not even allowed to read the newspaper accounts of these productions. Now, in Berlin, "Hinkemann" (Limping Man) was given.

The house was crowded. People were stirred to their very depths by the deep tragedy of the wretch of the world war who is the hero of the story. They called for the author after the first act. He modestly declined to appear. The manager thanked them on his behalf. The second act began. The audience became more insistent than ever. Finally, after the listeners had almost cried themselves hoarse, a pale, gaunt figure, which clearly bore the marks of long confinement behind cold, sunless prison walls appeared on the stage. It was Ernst Toller. Bedlam broke loose.

Speaks For Political Prisoners.

Toller lost never a moment. Immediately he plunged into the subject that lies nearest his heart. He spoke on behalf of the liberation of the political prisoners.

Retell Story of Ad Controlled Negro Press in New York

The Chicago Whip, a Negro weekly, which has for months conducted an extensive campaign of red-baiting, this week carries on its first page a boxed story slamming T. Thomas Fortune, editor of the Washington (D. C.) Sun and former editor of the New York Age, a paper financed by Booker T. Washington.

The item recalls the story, well-known to Negro newspaper men, of how T. Thomas Fortune lost his job on the New York Age. In spite of the fact that John Wanamaker was one of the big advertisers in The Age, T. Thomas Fortune produced an editorial denouncing sweat-shop conditions in the department stores of New York. John Wanamaker, taking the editorial to heart, threatened to withdraw his advertisements unless reparations was made.

Within a week T. Thomas Fortune has been dismissed from the editorship of the New York Age, and replaced by one of the officials of the Negro Press association.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, Aug. 30.

SEATTLE SHERIFF MISUSES BOSSES AND IS ARRESTED

Only Workers in Seattle Can Be Manhandled

A sheriff who does not differentiate between methods of arresting workers and bosses is sure to get himself into trouble. This lesson is being taught to Sheriff Starwich of King County (Seattle) who arrested four business men on a charge of bank robbery which he was later unable to prove. The men were dismissed and now Sheriff Starwich is under arrest for violation of the law.

In dealing with workers who are suspected of a crime this procedure is usually followed here, and if the officials have arrested the wrong man he is released when they get around to it. But by following the same methods in dealing with business men, Starwich has made trouble for himself.

The capitalist press of Tacoma has been very indignant and devoted much editorial space to condemnation of the officials. Similar treatment of workers has occurred many times. And then, the kept sheets praised the efficiency of the police.

BAKU FAIR SHOWS TURNOVER OF FIVE MILLION ROUBLES

Big Increase Over Last Year Is Noted

(Rosta)

MOSCOW, July 1 (by mail).—The latest reports available from Baku show that the fair under way in that city is a great success. The results so far are especially if compared with last year's, thus, while the total turnover of the Baku fair in 1923 was 4,774,000 roubles, by June 20th, 1923, it had hardly reached 2 million; but this year it reached 5 million in the first 28 days of the fair, which is 2½ times last year's turnover for the corresponding period and slightly more than the total turnover for the entire fair in 1923.

Then, while last year 35 per cent of all the goods was sold, the percentage of goods disposed of this year is already 70 per cent. Finally, 586,000 poods of Persian goods have already arrived at the fair, while last year the amount of goods from Persia hardly exceeded 300,000 poods till the close of the fair.

German Workers' Wages.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—An interesting comparison of wages paid in various trades in Germany has just been made by the federal statistical office. According to this compilation, the average hourly wage for skilled workers of all categories is 64 pfenigs, or 16 cents, and for unskilled workers, 48 pfennigs or 12 cents. The trades covered by the investigation are mining, building trades, wood workers, metal industry, textile workers, printers, and employes in federal establishments. Compared with average pre-war wages for these trades, the post-war wages are 98.5 per cent and 117.1 per cent respectively of the pre-war wages.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

CAPITALISTS OF SAN PEDRO CARRY ON AGAINST I.W.W.

Boss Press Wages War on Industrial Workers

By J. STEVENSON.
(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—The activities of those in authority—and otherwise—to stamp out Wobblyism in this city continues unabated. Now that the memory of the raid of June 14, last—when the I. W. W. hall was wrecked, helpless children almost scalded to death, women insulted and men tarred, feathered and beaten—has become less vivid, a systematic campaign of anti-I. W. W. propaganda is being carried on.

The local press, as usual, fulfilling the role of filthy prostitute, never lets up in its tirade against the I. W. W. in general, and those of SanPedro in particular. The "Daily Pilot" of San Pedro and the Los Angeles "Times" of labor hating memory, being the leading lights in the campaign.

Police Husky But Brainless.

The police are fulfilling their function as agents of the boss class, and carrying out their "duty" in a manner which must bring a certain degree of confidence to the capitalists who dominate and control the actions of this body of husky servants of the ruling class.

Lastly, those 100 per cent nightshirt fanatics,—whose 100 per centism shows itself most powerfully when they are 100 per cent stronger in numbers than the object of attack—have lost nothing in their reputation for cowardly tactics and cold-blooded brutality.

Armed Men Versus. Non-resistance.

The I. W. W., after the raid (before mentioned), could find no place to meet, no one would dare rent them a hall, so necessarily they were severely hampered in the carrying on of their work. Last week a private room where they had a stock of literature was burst open by armed men and all literature and supplies confiscated.

Attempts have been made by I. W. W. members to sell their papers on the streets and as soon as they are spotted by the dicks they are arrested. The boycott and the blacklist are applied vigorously, and despite the fact that a call has been issued for volunteers to help carry on the fight the efforts on the part of the Wobblies to date have not been on a scale to seriously embarrass the common enemy.

No Law Against Mobbers.

Up to the present time no indictment of the persons who participated in the June raid has been made, no conviction seems possible. Wobblies are effectively menaced by the fact that the raiding party, are now doing time in jail; a convenient way of closing their mouths.

Such circumstances would have a depressing effect on the average person, but to the militant rebel—never! The day of the worker is coming, and soon. The putrid and contradictory system whose adherents on one hand shout for law and order and on the other blinks at atrocities, who mouth of Jesus and his "suffer little children," etc., and then scalds little kids almost to death, cannot continue.

But a Part of World Struggle.

While seemingly trifling in comparison with some of the crimes that can be laid to the door of the capitalist system in other parts of the world, yet the workers of San Pedro realize that events here are but straws showing the direction of the wind, and such happenings will act as a means of consolidating the resistance of the workers and the building up here of a section of the world revolutionary labor movement whose methods will be in line with modern developments and whose final victory is certain.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Res. 1632 S. Trumbull Ave.
Phone Rockwell 5050
MORDECAI SHULMAN
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
701 Association Building
19 S. La Salle Street CHICAGO
Dearborn 8657 Central 4945-4947

GOOD NEWS!
T. U. E. L.
Labor Day Picnic
September 1
Altenheim Grove--Forest Park, Ill.
(German Old People's Home)
Noted Speakers
Good Music — Free Dancing — Sports and Good Food
ADMISSION 35 CENTS
HOW TO GET THERE—Take Forest Park "L", or Madison St. car and transfer to suburban line.

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

BANKS HOLDING BILLIONS THRU FARM MORTGAGES

Wall Street Controls U. S. Agriculture

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Billions of dollars are now outstanding against American agriculturists, according to statements coming from the chief money lenders in New York. These banks, insurance companies and other investment agencies are reported as well satisfied with measures for relief of the farmers which result in an increase in their business.

Farm loan investments of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on Dec. 31, 1923, totaled $142,344,375 representing an increase of $45,313,000 in 12 months in the extent to which farmers are mortgaged to this big Wall Street institution. The Metropolitan holds mortgages on 18,448 farms. It is the policy of the directors to enlarge its farm loan investments.

Dismiss Department of Agriculture Aid For His Exposures

(By The Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. — Dismissal of John M. Burns from the legal enforcement staff of the Stockyards and Packers division by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, just after Congress adjourned, is denounced as "one of the most underhanded and sneaking cases of official terrorism in our country's history," by Benj. C. Marsh of the Farmers National Council. Marsh has written President Coolidge a letter, asking him to investigate.

Secretary Wallace, according to the record, notified Burns that the letter was dismissed because the staff must be reduced—a few days after Burns had testified before a committee of the House that Wallace had failed to enforce certain sections of the law. Wallace did not attempt to refute the testimony—he punished the witness. Then, to make the case complete, he employed another lawyer from outside, in Burns stead, after letting out the faithful servant of the public on pretext that the staff was too large.

Marsh reminds Coolidge that the G. O. P. national committee has failed to comply with the Senate's request for information as to how much the meatpackers have paid into their fund since 1920.

Leather Workers Sign Contract.

BOSTON, August 26.—A contract similar in all respects to that of last year, but providing for a 5 per cent increase in pay, has been negotiated between the United Leather Workers' Intl. Union of this city and the employers.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A STYLISH YOUTHFUL FROCK.

4814. Printed or embroidered voile, figured silk or linen would be good for this model. Organdie, linen, or other plain material in contrast is nice for trimming.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16-year size requires 3¼ yards of 40-inch material. The width of the dress at the hem is 1¾ yards. For collar, vestee and facings of contrasting material ⅜ yard 32 inches wide is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A DAINTY FROCK FOR A LITTLE TOT.

4200. One may have this without sleeves and without the bertha, or as illustrated. The development with bertha and without sleeves could be in batiste of voile with hemstitching and embroidery. With sleeves and without bertha the dress is nice also for percale, crepe and gingham.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 4-year size requires 2¾ yards of 32-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturers direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordered will take at least 10 days. Be sure to write your name and address plainly. Use pencil if you prefer.

DISCLOSE LAFOLLETTE PLAN TO THROW ELECTION INTO CONGRESS; BRYAN MAY BECOME PRESIDENT!

By TOM MATHEWS
(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 26.—Is the new politico-labor faker alliance, from LaFollette to Debs and Gompers to Stone, scheming to put over on the workers and farmers of this country a gigantic political swindle aimed at making Charles W. Bryan the next president?

Recent events in Nebraska political circles, and particularly the policies adopted by the Grand Island conference of the "La-Follette Independent Party" on the 19th are lending great weight to suspicions becoming ever more prevalent as to the real purpose behind the maneuverings of the Wisconsin republicans and his aggregation of political highbinders and labor fakers.

Outlines Fakers' Plan.

Consider the following facts and extenuating circumstances with regard to this situation:

1. As far back as last February certain Bryan henchmen in Nebraska stated positively (tho not for publication) that "Brother Charley" would be on the national ticket of the Democratic party.

2. These same political boot-blacks urged the Nebraska Progressive Party leaders (who were supporting the St. Paul convention) to refrain from putting up a candidate against Bryan for governor. They argued that Bryan wanted the "third party nomination" with which to bolster up his bid for a place on the national Democratic ticket, and that the progressives in Nebraska "could then pick their own man for the next governor of the state."

3. The LaFollette leaders have rejected categorically all "entangling alliances" with regard to state and local tickets. Altho no intelligent student of political trends concedes La Follette even a chance to be elected, yet these politicians are insisting everywhere that every effort be directed toward the sole purpose of "electing LaFollette and Wheeler."

The Real Facts.

The real facts with regard to this LaFollette-Bryan swindle, in the opinion of close observers, are:

1. LaFollette knows that he has no chance of being elected.

2. Bryan cares nothing about being elected to the "second-fiddle" place on the Demo ticket.

Bryan is a politician of whom it has been said that "he would declare himself a Communist if he saw a chance to make votes." LaFollette, in his way, is equally unscrupulous, but Charley Bryan is one of those Main Street politicians who forget even dignity and "appearances" in his desperate chase for office. At the New York convention of the Wall Street Donkey party, Bryan stood at the door and electioneered for himself like a common ward-heeler, while his brother, William Jennings, pretended to hurl fireworks in the direction of John W. Davis.

But any one who understands the character of Charley Bryan, knows that he will not put up such a desperate fight, with his plans obviously laid months ahead, for the vice-presidential nomination. For president, yes, but not for vice-president.

LaFollette, likewise, is not fooling himself with regard to his chances of being elected to the White House. Yet why does he refuse to build future strength thru the election of state and local candidates pledged to support his policies?

Why do his campaign managers work frantically to prevent even the endorsement of Senator Norris, right-hander of LaFollette, by the "Nebraska progressives?"

Why does LaFollette refuse to be "entangled" with the Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota?

The answers to these questions lie in the "facts and extenuating circumstances" given above. LaFollette and Bryan are politicians, typical petit-bourgeois politicians, who would never hesitate to use the masses of deluded workers and exploited farmers to achieve their own selfish ends.

LaFollette's Bolt in the Cog.

LaFollette believes, too, Gompers, Wheeler, Stone, and Hillquit, perhaps even Debs, believe that LaFollette can carry a sufficient number of states, thru the votes of the great masses of workers and farmers under their ideological domination, that no candidate will receive a majority of electoral votes and the election will then be thrown into the House of Representatives.

What of that, you say? Just how do LaFollette and the labor fakers stand to gain anything by that?

Watch! If the LaFollette and Bryan swindle succeeds according to schedule, the so-called "progressive bloc" in the Congress can prevent the election, they calculate, of either Coolidge or Davis. (Since each state would cast one vote and a clear majority would be necessary). It would then behooove the country's guardians of wealth to forego the selection of a president, and choose a vice-president who would serve in his place. Then, these fakers calculate, the "LaFollette bloc" could muster sufficient votes, together with those of the Democrats, to put the Main Street politician from Nebraska, Charley Bryan, in the White House as their suppliant tool.

Improbable, you say? Consider again: Why were Bryan's henchmen, as far back as February, positive that he would be on the Democratic national ticket?

Why was LaFollette so particularly anxious to head off the St. Paul Farmer-Labor convention?

Why does LaFollette now, when he knows that he can carry but a few states, insist upon no "entangling alliances" even with the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota?

The Great Swindle.

Unless the workers and exploited farmers of this country can be warned in time, which is the task of the Communists, the LaFollette-Bryan swindle may succeed. Masses of duped toilers, marching up to the polls to elect a candidate by Minority Vote and lay the beginning of Fascism in America may be the spectacle before us in November.

Every Communist, every member of the Workers Party, should consider it his duty to his cause to strain every nerve in behalf of the Foster-Gitlow campaign, and against the "La Follette Illusion."

Against the LaFollettes and the Bryans, against the fakers of all descriptions, the Workers Party raises the slogan of working class struggle, the overthrow of capitalism—the Soviet power and dictatorship of the proletariat.

Behind the clever mask of LaFollette and Bryan lies the black shirt of the Fascist—ready to do the bidding of Wall Street and assassinate the cause of the workers and exploited farmers in return for a place at the political pie-counter. Charles W. Bryan is hungry.

Brotherhood of Ry. Trainmen Declines to Endorse Robert

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26.—The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has sent a circular letter to its 150,000 members advising them that the organization as a whole has not officially endorsed either Coolidge or Dalvs or LaFollette.

The Brotherhood intends to follow the famous Gompersian policy of rewarding its friends and puninshing its enemies.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26.—Governor Neff has undergone his annual physical test at a local sanitarium and has been pronounced sound. The Dallas Dispatch, local Scripps daily, remarks that he did not visit the psycopathic clinic.

MEXICAN TEXTILE MILL A DISGRACE TO THE WORKERS

Average Wage of Slave a Dollar a Day

(By Federated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—The enormous textile mill of Rio Blanca in the state of Veracruz is a disgrace to the Mexican people. For many generations the workers of Rio Blanca have kept the thousands of workers in a state worse than slavery. They house them in most miserable huts. They give their children no schooling whatever, and as soon as youngsters are old enuf to exercise muscular control they put them to work. Three generations may be seen working at the same time, at the same task.

Booze Back Wages.

The entire area of Rio Blanca is covered with beer saloons (cantinas) owned by the company, which are never closed. At the end of the week the little money that the worker earns he spends in the saloon, so that it goes back to his employer. The worker is always in debt to the company, and he is kept in misery and degredation. Incest and idiocy is very common amongst these workers.

The average wage for a textile worker with a large family is about a dollar a day. In some sections of the country he works for as low as 45 cents a day. And there are about 45,000 men, women and children employed in Mexican textiles. Of these 16,525 receive less than 75 cents a day; 5,368 receive less than $1. a day; 17,953 receive less than a $1.25 a day; 2,220 receive up to $1.75 per day; and only 7,976 over $1.75. This means that 90 per cent of the textile workers receive less than $1.25 a day.

Your Union Meeting

Fourth Wednesday, August 27, 1924.

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting.
	Blacksmiths' District Council, 118 S. Throop St.
1	Boiler Makers, Monroe and Racine
19	Carpenters, 12 Garfield Blvd.
21	Carpenters, Webster and Lexington.
242	Carpenters, 5443 S. Ashland Ave.
1602	Carpenters, 505 S. State St.
1781	CARPENTERS, 1638 N. HALSTED ST. — H. FEHLING, Rec. Sec'y., 2251 Grace Ct. Irving 7597
922	Cement Workers, 3417 S. Halsted St.
307	Carpenters, 1581 Maple Ave., Evanston.
181	Coopers, 8901 Escanaba Ave.
562	Mail Carriers, 1332 W. Division St.
562	Mail Carriers, 810 W. Harrison St.
4	Jewelry Workers, 19 W. Adams St.
104	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
126	Marine Cooks, 357 N. Clark St.
126	Machinists, 113 N. Ashland Blvd.
324	Machinists, 725 N. Cicero Ave.
375	Maintenance of Way, 426 W. 63d St. Evanston, Ill.
54	Painters, Sherman and Main Sts., Evanston, Ill.
8	Plasterers, 910 W. Monroe St.
	Railway Carmen, Dist. Council, 5445 S. Ashland Ave.
697	Railway Carmen, 5444 Wentworth Ave.
1340	Railway Carmen, 5445 Ashland Ave.
219	Railway Trainmen, 426 W. 63d St., 7:30 p. m.
11	Roofers, 377 W. Adams St.
73	Sheet Metal, 714 W. Harrison St.
465	Sheet Metal, 1324 S. Halsted St.
753	Teamsters, 175 W. Washington St.
759	Teamsters (Meat), 220 S. Ashland Blvd.
789	Teamsters (Bone), 6959 S. Halsted St.
16248	Tuckpointers, 810 W. Harrison St.
974	Tunnel and Subway Workers, 814 W. Harrison St.

(Note—Unless otherwise stated, all meetings are at 8 p. m.)

Over Four Million Illiterates May Vote; For Calvin?

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Illiteracy will soon have a dangerous influence on the national elections in the United States, unless intelligent voters get to the polls in November, says Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the League of Woman Voters. Only 49 per cent of the qualified electors voted in 1920, and Miss Sherwin points out that there are 4,300,000 illiterates of voting age in the nation.

"At every election," she says, "the party machines bring out a controlled illiterate vote, while the intelligent vote, uncontrolled except by itself, sits supinely by without even trying to see what the vote of all the people would mean."

Send in that Subscription Today.

BUILDING HOMES FOR WORKERS

"Homes" of Russian Railroad Workers of the Northern Railroads Before the Revolution.

Russian Workers to Get New Homes.

100,000 rubles was appropriated for building new homes for the workers of Zlatoust. 180,000 rubles was appropriated for building new homes for the miners of Bakalsk mine. 1,000,000 rubles are requested in the budget of the Ural district for the building of homes for workers.

CHARKOFF—Three model labor villages are being built in the neighborhood of the big Charkoff factories. Every village will have 35 brick buildings divided into 4 and 8 room flats. About one-half of the work is already completed. Plans are also being made for the building of six big seven-story homes—communes for single people. Every home-commune will have room for 4,500 people.

TIFLIS—32 families of printers organized a home building union. They will build a model village for workers in the suburb of Tiflis. Land has been granted for that purpose by the proper government institution. A big park and a labor theater are provided for in the building program.

LOSINOOSTROVSK—30 homes are being built by the Railroad workers' building co-operative. It is expected that by the middle of November 45 families will occupy the homes.

ALEXANDROVSK— The workers building co-operative obtained a home of 40 rooms. Part of the home is already remodeled and occupied. The rest is being remodeled.

SHARIA—Fifteen new homes are being built and plans for a village-park are worked out. The homes are two and three story buildings with 6 and 8 flats.

MOSCOW—The railroad workers home building co-operative of the Northern Railroads have 1,700 members.

Another Light and Power Station.

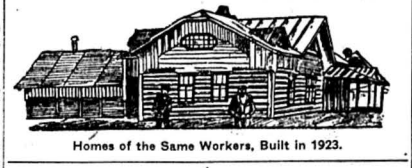
KISELOVSK, Ural District—The new Kiselovsk Electric Light and Power Station has been opened in the presence of representatives of the Comintern, the French, German and Russian Communist parties and many other representatives of labor and government institutions. About 8,000 workers from the neighborhood factories participated in the celebration. Talks were made by the representatives of the different organizations and by the representative of the workers who built the station.

Fighting Unemployment.

CHARKOFF—Energetic measures to combat unemployment are being adopted by the local trade unions and city government. 1,800 unemployed are employed by the city on city improvements. Homes for 2,000 unemployed men and women have been opened by the city. In the homes for women nurseries have been organized.

TULA—40,000 rubles have been appropriated to combat unemployment. Five hundred unemployed will be employed on city improvements.

KIEFF—As a means to combat unemployment agricultural communes composed entirely of demobilized Red army soldiers are being organized by the Land Department of Ukraina.



Homes of the Same Workers, Built in 1923.

THESE MEN FOUGHT YOUR BATTLES AND THEY NEED YOU NOW

Birthdays in September of political prisoners, confined in prisons in the United States, are announced by the Workers' National Prison Comfort club, 2923 Chestnut St., Milwaukee, Wis., as follows:

At San Quentin Prison, San Quentin, Cal.—Sept. 7, Ernst Erickson, No. 38112; Sept. 7, Bew Whittling, No. 35721; Sept. 10, G. J. Terrell, No. 38132; Sept. 17, John Orlando, No. 37650; Sept. 14, Mickey J. Dunn, No. 35564; Sept. 25, G. Lindsfor, No. 38123.

At Sioux Falls, South Dakota, P. O Box 811.—Sept. 17, Frank Godlasky.

Cora Meyer, national secretary, invites friends and sympathizers to send birthday cards and letters (money is advisable for gifts) to these political prisoners. Books and publications to be sent directly from the publishers.

Political prisoner Jesus Gonzalez writes: "I appreciate very much the kindness of friends for the many greetings. I have been shut from the outside world so long, I cannot imagine how the world looks. I hope my luck will change some day and they will give me my freedom."

Irish Border Clash Feared.

BELFAST, August 26.—Fear by Ulsterites that a border clash between Free Staters and Ulsterites would occur, developed with the departure of British troops from Fort Belleek.

Two Chicago Unions Establish Emergency Loans for Members

The Chicago Postoffice Clerks' Union has just established a Co-operative Loan Association in the Federal building of Chicago in order to provide their members with emergency loans and to promote thrift. The Loan Association follows the lines of the workers' credit unions advocated by the All American Co-operative Commission, and has already received a substantial sum in deposits from its members in small weekly and monthly payments.

Another financial institution for Chicago workers, the Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank, has just celebrated its second birthday with the announcement that its deposits now reach $3,627,000.00 The bank attributes its success to three services: Small emergency loans to needy workers; low interest mortgage loans to workers who desire to buy homes; and the honest handling of millions of dollars in remittances to foreign countries, especially to Russia, where the Amalgamated has established connections with the government bank.

MITCHALL'S
INTERNATIONAL ORCHESTRA
Union Music Furnished For All Occasions
Write for appointments to M. MITCHALL, (Teacher of Saxophone)
1640 W. Congress St. Chicago, Ill.

POINT OUT MOVE OF MANUFACTURE TO MIDDLE WEST

East Slowly Losing to Mississippi Valley

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Manufacturing activity and with it industrial employment has for years been steadily shifting from the Atlantic coast to the Mississippi valley which produces most of the raw materials required by them and most of the coal necessary to carry out the process, according to an analysis of census data by the National City bank.

West Increasing Its Shares

"While the Atlantic coast as a whole still produces a little more than half of the manufacturers of the entire country," says the bank's survey, "the share produced in the Mississippi valley has grow from 19 pct. in 1850 to 38 pct. in 1900 and 41 pct. in 1921. The percentage of the total outturn produced by the three geographical divisions designated as New England, Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic has declined from 79 pct. in 1850 to 57 pct. in 1900 and 51 pct. in 1921. The other section, the Pacific and Mountain states, has increased its share from less than 2 pct. in 1850 to 4½ pct. in 1900 and 7 pct. in 1921."

The survey calls attention to the fact that all sections have shown a big actual gain in the 60 years, total manufactures as a whole having increased from $1,000,000,000 to $44,000,000,000.

Basis of Pittsburgh Plus

Such movements as that for the abolition of the Pittsburgh Plus basis of steel prices, for the development of the St. Lawrence waterway, and for the development of Chicago as the industrial center of the country must be seen against the background of this development which the bank survey emphasizes.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years
645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1437 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

CUSTOM TAILORS
Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing of All Kinds
PARIS QUI CHANTE
E. Abboti and V. Cardillo
1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

FOR INSURANCE OF ANY KIND
CARL BRODSKY
1123 Broadway, New York City
Tel. Watkins 3626.

BELL'S HOTEL,
1921 W. Park Ave.
Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0481.

New York, Attention!
3 DAYS
THE FIRST GREAT FILM FROM SOVIET RUSSIA
"THE BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK"
Produced by Proletkino (Moscow) in co-operation with the Red Army
A Fascinating Romance of a Red Commander and the Daughter of a Czarist Priest
AUGUST 22 TO 29, INCLUSIVE,
At the
LENOX THEATRE
111th Street and Lenox Avenue
Added Film Feature
"RUSSIA IN OVERALLS"
Continuous Performance from 7:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.
ADMISSION - - - - - 50c

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4713)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year	$3.50 ...1 months	$1.00...3 months
By mail (in Chicago only)!
$8.00 per year	$4.50...6 months	$2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE } Editors
MORITZ J. LOEB Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1922 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

280 Advertising rates on application.

On Glenn Young's Bond

It was very illuminating to find out who went on the bonds for S. Glenn Young, ex-prohibition official of the U. S. government, Ku Kluxer, dictator of Williamson County, and aspiring Fascist extraordinary, who has been freed on a quarter-million dollars bail to answer for his crimes at Herrin. Who else should it have been to buy freedom for Young, but the coal operators of Illinois? That's who it was.

Now that Young is away down south in Georgia, and is armed with a battery of physicians' certificates that he cannot travel, some of the coal operators seem a bit worried about all the valuable coal lands they put in hock for the super-gunman. But, of course, they need not worry. Glenn Young may skip the country for a while since he has made it so hot for himself, but no forfeiture of bonds in Southern Illinois will be allowed to injure the coal operators so long as these operators own the state government so completely as they do today.

No, the coal operators will undoubtedly keep their rich lands, no matter how deep they are involved in the murderer, Young, who seems to be hitting it out for parts unknown. But at least we have some information as a result, which is really very illuminating, and which should help to educate the miners of Illinois on the exact meaning of the Ku Kluxers in relation to unionism in the coal fields.

Piracy and Imperialism

When Wm. S. Culbertson, of the Tariff Commission, denounced "economic piracy" in the undeveloped sections of the world, he raised a very delicate issue. Where does "legitimate" imperialism end, and "economic piracy" begin? All nations of the capitalist world will agree that imperialism is kosher but economic piracy is taboo. But the definition of these terms—ah, there's the rub! Who will decide it, and how?

It is in the very nature of imperialism that all rivals for the control of markets are "economic pirates." Our own imperialists are always good, kind, chivalrous, gentlemen who are working more for the benefit of the colonial natives than of themselves. The "foreign" imperialists are a no-good bunch of pirates, who menace the peace of the world. That's why we have to go to war regularly every few years. The story is the same within each capitalist country.

For the workers the truth is on neither side; rather, they must declare that imperialism and piracy are synonymous; that our own imperialists are of the same stripe of economic brigands as those of other lands, the more powerful today, and therefore more dangerous to the working class of the world. American gunboats in South America are performing the same "piracy" as British "labor" government aerial bombs in Irak, as the French troops in Africa, as the Belgian exploiters in the Congo. Imperialism is a gigantic robbery for the benefit of a small class, destructive alike to the subjects in the colonial countries and to the working class of the "fatherland." It is all piracy to the workers.

The Farmer's Dilemma

Every capitalist solution is merely a prelude to another complication. We have in mind the economic effects and political consequences of the recent upward trend in the prices of certain farm commodities.

The world wheat crop shows a decrease of about twelve per cent compared with the 1923 figures. The areas hardest hit are the wheat producing territories outside the boundaries of the United States. Consequently the price of wheat has gone up. This rise in price has been considered by some as the signal for a revival of American agricultural economy, as the beginning of the end of the severe depression in which agriculture has found itself in the United States for the past five years.

But while the echoes of applause occasioned by the increased price of wheat and corn were still reverberating in many sections of the country, the Department of Agriculture let it be known that, at most, this upward trend would boost prices to a total of two hundred million dollars. For the country as a whole, since only one-eighth of our wheat crop is exported, this meant merely a shift and not an increase in the total purchasing power.

Now, we are further told the livestock situation is an increasingly menacing cloud on the farmer's economic horizon. The prospect of an extremely poor corn crop and the simultaneous advance in rye and wheat have tended to lift the values of all stock feed. Thus the survey just concluded by the Sears Roebuck Agricultural Foundation tells us that "beef steers are about one dollar a hundred pounds lower than last year, veal calves a dollar and a half down, wool six to seven cents lower, cheese two and a half cents, and the average price of fluid milk for city supply thruout the country is about ten cents a hundred pounds lower."

Hog prices, the only ones holding up at present, are enjoying only a temporary spurt. The pig crop shows a twenty per cent reduction this year as compared with last year. Corn prices are higher. It costs more to feed the hogs. There are less hogs to be sold. It is on this basis that the farmers' prosperity is founded in the hog market.

Verily, the temporary removal, to an insignificant extent, of one obstacle, is only the occasion for the rise of new, widespread difficulties for the farmers. The dilemma the farmers are facing is a dilemma that has its roots deeply set in the present system of production and exchange whereby the capital, socially used, is individually owned for private profit.

Another Strikebreaker

Strikebreaker Coolidge and "Open Shop" Dawes have drawn to their support a labor agent of theirs, John L. Lewis, breaker of the Nova Scotia strike, betrayer of Alex Howat, and servant of capital under the title of president of the United Mine Workers of America. Lewis has joined the "board of strategy," according to undenied reports, that is headed by William Morgan Butler, the "open shop," spy-using, sweater of labor in the textile industry, and chairman of the Republican National Committee. The company is fitting all around, and it is hard to judge which is the worst scoundrel of the lot.

Rumor has been going the rounds of the labor movement for quite some time, that John L. Lewis, expecting Coolidge to get back into office, and doubting his own ability to hold on long where he now is, had made arrangements for a soft place to light. The story was that Lewis will support Coolidge, and that the agreed-upon price is, that Lewis is to become Secretary of Labor if Coolidge is elected. John L., by going on the Butler "board of strategy," has certainly not given the lie to that rumor.

We wonder what the miners think about it? After all, the miners are among the most politically developed and class-conscious workers in the American movement. They know that Coolidge makes his bid for fame principally upon the claim that he broke a strike; they know that Dawes is a Fascist, an "open shopper," and an imperialist agent of Morgan. They also know, by bitter personal experience, that John L. Lewis is a treacherous autocrat. Under the circumstances, it probably is the better part of wisdom on Lewis' part, that he is looking for an appointive job in Washington.

Campaign Camouflage

The two parties of big capital, the democratic and the republican, are preparing to employ the most ingenious strategy, the most skillfully manipulated camouflage in order to win the support of the laboring masses in the coming campaign.

Such maneuvers are, of course, not new in American politics. This year, however, efforts in this direction will be intensified because of the deepgoing unrest that has of late manifested itself in the ranks of the organized and unorganized working men. Tho redoubled in energy, these attempts are fundamentally the same threadbare, time-worn, hackneyed efforts that have characterized the republican and democratic campaigns for many years.

The republican drummers will try to sell the unfounded idea that the protective tariff means good wages and prosperity for the working men. Needless to say, these Coolidge boosters will be silent about the fact that the Fordney-McCumber tariff act has levied an additional tribute of more than three billion dollars on the laboring masses.

When the democrats will be making most noise about the prosperity enjoyed by the masses during the Wilson regime, they will be pathetically dumb about the fact that the world was at war then, that conditions were artificially stimulated, that the seeds were then being sown for the worst depression in American history.

Nor will the republican orators attempt to be eloquent about the spreading unemployment and the increasing economic depression when they will be laying most emphasis on a change of administration being a cause for a panic.

Likewise, both republicans and democrats will be in a conspiracy of silence and avoid deliberately the slightest mention of the strikebreaking character of the United States government when they will be yelling loudest for decisive majorities in order to avoid the wheels of legislation being stopped.

And Mr. LaFollette himself will do nothing more than avoid and evade the issues confronting the working and exploited farming masses by harping on the need for an impossible return to the "good old, golden" days of 1776. LaFollette's economic program, the basis on which rests his political doctrine, is fundamentally unsound.

In the coming campaign there will be but one call aimed at rallying the workers to action, to decisive struggle against their exploiters. This will be the call sounded by the Communists. The Communists alone will be the ones to raise the class issue and thus attempt to strike at the roots of the hardships and sufferings of the overwhelming majority of the population.

Join the Workers Party and subscribe to the DAILY WORKER!

Many willing hands make the big jobs easy. Get new members for the Workers Party.

Send in that new "sub" today!

Dawes Plan Seeks Stranglehold on Germany

(Continued from Page 1.)

European markets, and has thereby caused an economic and, to some extent, even a political crisis in America.

The method of the Ruhr occupation has proved to be unsuited to achieve the desired end.

The world war ended with the "peaceful war" of the Versailles Treaty. The Ruhr war followed on the heels of the peaceful war. After the Ruhr war the "peaceful war" has begun afresh, this time in the form of a systematic, refined, well-thought-out method of extortion against the German proletariat, according to the plan of the Morgan group, which goes under the name of

The Experts' Report.

Anglo-American capital requires Europe as a market, as a colony. For this purpose finance capital pushes forward the labor government as a screen, and employs the more "cultivated" and "peaceful" forms indicated by the best experts, in order to throttle the German proletariat.

Socialist Hangmen.

To the help of the hangmen there comes their trusted servant: International Social Democracy. Ten years ago international social democracy everywhere voted for the war credits; everywhere it supported its national bourgeoisie; it supported the Versailles Treaty, which was dictated to the vanquished people and set its signature to it; in all countries it furthered the attempt to reestablish capitalism at the expense of the proletariat; it only conducted a sham fight against the Versailles Treaty, against the atrocities and against the occupation of the Ruhr. And now it is the first to sing the praises of the plan of the Morgan group. Social Democracy has made use of every one of the 22 reparation conferences in order to dish up new illusions, and it now seeks to make use of the 23rd reparations conference of the victorious imperialist robbers for the same purpose. On the occasion of every conference the Social Democrats proclaim the beginning of a new era of pacifism and claim that this time the conference will finally bring salvation and "reconstruction." This is done in order to entangle the revolution in pacifist-democratic illusions.

At every betrayal of the working class the Amsterdam International was a true ally of the Second International. At the Vienna Conference even its left wing failed to utter a syllable as to the necessity of liquidating the Versailles Treaty. The Dawes plan was subjected to a formal criticism, but then at the joint conference of the Amsterdam and London Internationals in London, was declared to be "the only possible solution."

What is French Imperialism Aiming at in London?

It is seeking to set up for all time the political and military hegemony of France upon the European mainland.

It wishes to perpetuate the Versailles Peace Treaty; it desires to render permanent the enslavement of the German proletariat; it wishes to arm for a new war.

It wishes to suck the blood from the veins and the marrow from the bones of the German proletariat in order to guarantee the reparation payments, as it knows, that the French finances are completely shattered and that the revenue for the year, 1924, will scarcely suffice for the interest on the state debts. The burden of taxation in France is continually growing, the Franc is deteriorating (the French petty bourgeoisie and peasants at the recent elections gave their answer to Poincare regarding this). Behind Herriot stands Poincare with his whip. Both of them are only representatives of French imperialism.

What is English Imperialism Aiming At?

It wishes in its own interests to wreck and shatter French hegemony. MacDonald is carrying out the program which the Conservative Baldwin drew up for the construction of the air fleet and only causes a paltry sum from the old armament budget. The Allies, France and England, can neither agree with one another nor can they separate from each other. For the time being they are compelled to avoid a war, because neither of the two countries are ready with their armament preparations, but before all because America has not yet decided which of the two hostile imperialist groups she will support. English capital has to spread new illusions among the English proletariat, because the number of the unemployed has again reached a million and because the wave of aggressive mass strikes, despite the will of the trade union leaders, is advancing.

Salvation is expected from America. But America herself is suffering from an agrarian crisis. Two million farmers have abandoned their farms. The spectre of an economic crisis is knocking at the door; the absorbing power of the home market is decreasing, ruined Europe is not in a position to purchase American goods; South America forms a too restricted field for investment of capital in view of the furious pace in the development of productive forces. Morgan imposes his will on America and in the name of Morgan, Dawes and Hughes dictate to Europe.

American Dictatorship.

The first assault of the democratic-pacifist era will be the nearer approach of the

Dictatorship of American Finance Capital, which has set itself the aim of converting Europe into a colony. As a screen there serves the labor government and the left bloc; sham democracy and sham pacifism. In the background the fascist watchdog is on guard.

Germany is to be made an international colony, an exploitation field for the robbers of all countries. All bourgeois parties in Germany are heart and soul for the Experts' Report. The German fascists cry out against the conversion of Germany into a colony, but in the parliaments they support the state governments of Thuringia, Mecklenburg and Wurttemberg, the premiers of which have come from the ranks of the German nationalists, and in spite of all their lying pledges have voted for the Dawes Report. The London conference imposes exhausting taxes upon German industry, but these taxes, right up to the last penny, will be entirely and unconditionally transferred to the working masses, the middle class of the towns and the working peasants. For this reason all the bourgeois parties of Germany are in favor of the Experts' Report and only carry on a sham fight against Entente capital. The Social Democrats and the trade union bureaucrats,—these professional traitors—have this time also offered their services to world capital and render practical assistance in the setting up of the dictatorship of American imperialism over the whole of Europe.

Twelve-Hour Day.

The London Conference will mean for the German proletariat the twelve-hour day, the dismissal of 50 per cent of all railway workers, a more drastic reduction of the civil service staff than hitherto, extortionate taxation, increase of custom duties, of the railway rates and food prices. The German workers will become the white slaves of democracy, the coolies of pacificist compulsory strike-breakers on a world scale.

The 12-Hour Day in Germany means the introduction of the ten-hour day in France. The abolition of legal protection for labor in Germany will be followed by its abolition in France, England, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and other countries. Starvation wages in Germany will lead to unemployment in England.

The London Conference can lead to a new attempt to form an imperialist united front for the Exploitation of Soviet Russia and for the introduction of imperialist control over Germany's foreign trade with Russia.

Workers, Proletarians of all Countries!

Tear the bandage of illusions from your eyes! Do not allow a repetition of the August Days of 1914! See the position with your own eyes and do not allow yourselves to be deceived by the professional betrayers of the workers!

Workers of England, America and France! The German proletarians, who are fighting against Entente capital, will not attain victory without your help.

Render active support to every effort of the fighting German proletariat against the sweating exploitation by the Entente and against the productory policy of America.

May the murderers of the German proletariat hear with utmost clearness the voice of all the hundreds of thousands of workers:

Hands off the German proletariat!

Away with imperialist slavery under the flag of pacifism!

Forward with the proletarian revolution!

Down with the dictatorship of Morgan and of finance capital!

Long live the dictatorship of the proletariat!

Down with the international stock exchange and its agents, the Second International!

Down with the Versailles Peace Treaty!

Workers of Germany! Forward with the struggle to preserve the eight-hour day!

Proletarians of all countries! Form a firm proletarian united front with Soviet Russia!

Protect the German revolution as you protect the Russian revolution! Form a protective wall of millions round the center of the world revolution—round the German proletariat!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Facts About LaFollette's War Record

(Continued from page 1)

must be remembered, are the sinews of all capitalist wars.

In fact, a summary of "Battling Bob's" war record reveals that he voted for at least fifty five out of sixty war measures passed by congress. Tho he opposed the armed ship bill previous to the United States joining the Allies, he did not speak on this measure, did not utter a word against it in the senate.

LaFollette Pledged Self For War to Utmost.

When one thinks of the suffering of the Communists, the revolutionary workers, in every country for their opposition to the imperialist bloodfest, he is immediately convinced that LaFollette did everything but fight against the World War. There is an unbridgeable chasm between the war record of Robert M. LaFollette of the republican party of Wisconsin and Karl Liebknecht of the Communist Party of Germany.

Let us call upon State Senator Henry A. Huber of LaFollette's own, Dane county, to tell us of "Bob's" anti-militism. Listening to Senator Huber's speech before the Wisconsin upper house on February 23, 1918, we hear him say in defense of LaFollette's war record: "War having been legally declared LaFollette immediately accepted it as a fact. He set about to make effective war. He believed it to be wise to make war as effective as possible that it might be the sooner ended. (This was exactly the reasoning of the capitalist super-patriots and the profiteers). Here after I will give his record on the war measures coming up for consideration in the senate. It is a record to be proud of. He consistently and patriotically supported the president and his country to the end that we might win the war at the earliest possible moment with an honorable and abiding peace."

Didn't Interfere.

And turning to an address delivered by LaFollette before the United States senate, as reported in the Congressional Record (Page 681) of April 14, 1917, we read: "I do not desire to hamper our own effort to speedily prepare to prosecute this deplorable war."

Ten days later LaFollette took occasion to tell the senate (See Cong. Rec. April 27, 1917; Page 1362): "First, all our naval and military resources should be concentrated on the solving of the submarine problem."

Pleading that the country arm itself to the teeth, the "progressive" leader who would now have us believe that he fought against the war, thus implored his colleagues in the senate (Cong. Rec. Oct. 6, 1917; Page 7,887): "It is said by many for whose opinions I have profound respect, and whose motives I know to be sincere that 'we are in this war and must go thru to the end.'" That is true.

"There is, and of course can be, no real difference of opinion concerning the duty of the citizen to discharge to the last limit whatever obligation the war lays upon him.

"Our young men are being taken by the hundreds of thousands for the purpose of waging this war. Nothing must be left undone for their protection. They must have the best army, ammunition, and equipment that money can buy."

Here we have a song very much in sympathy with the chant sung to the working men by the Garys, the Schwabs, the Morgans, and the National Security and Defense Leagues.

LaFollettism Not Opposed to Imperialist Wars.

Scrutinizing Senator LaFollette's voting record during the last imperialist war, one sees that, all his present anti-war protestations to the contrary notwithstanding, the self-annointed progressive Messiah is no enemy of capitalist aggression when it is wrapped in such pretty phrases as "war for defense" and "safety and security of the country."

In a speech he made at Port Washington on July 18, 1917, "Battling Bob" plainly said: "I didn't believe that anyone was to collect Mr. Morgan's money for him." Yet, having no illusions about the character of the bloody struggle, LaFollette voted for 55 out of 60 war measures, prior and subsequent to this declaration.

The Wisconsin senator at no time proposed to take away from the imperialist diplomats and the financiers their powers to make war. At most LaFollette has sought to give the masses who fight the wars a voice along with the intriguing capitalist statesmen and the profit-hungry bosses. Thus we find him say in his Political Philosophy (p. 205): "Why not let those who must pay have something to say? Why not let the people themselves who bear the burden of war falls, have a voice—some direct expression—along with finance and diplomacy, in determining whether there shall be war, or whether there shall not be war?"

Not Really Against Conscription.

Likewise LaFollette's opposition to the conscription bill before it became law was only to the method pursued by the employing class in murdering the sons of the workers and poor farmers and not to their right to call upon the working masses to fight their imperialist battles. In the Wisconsin state senate Hon. H. A. Huber, thus on February 23, 1918, defended and explained LaFollette's opposition to conscription on the basis of military efficiency:

"Had men been enlisted in an orderly manner as needed they could have been equipped and supplied as called, and we would not now have a million men drawn away from essential industries awaiting transportation that cannot be fully provided for more than a year yet. LaFollette was right as events now amply show. Notwithstanding he opposed the conscription act, upon its passage, LaFollette immediately counselled full compliance with the law."

Little Hostility to Capitalists.

Nor was LaFollette dangerously hostile to the big employing interests when the revenue measures proposed by him to raise more than four money with which to finance the war.

In his discussion of the income tax bill before the senate he said: "The public must pay enuf for the products to furnish a good round profit for the capital actually invested" (Cong. Rec. September 3, 1917; p. 6530).

Not only did LaFollette differ merely as to the method of financing the imperialist war, but he advocated his own plan for adoption of which he took the ground that it would safeguard the spirit of war among the masses. Thus the Wisconsin senator made his plea for his plan as follows before his colleagues in Washington:

"I tell them one and all that by their refusal to justly tax war profits and excessive incomes they are destroying the war spirit among the hundred million people of this country which is absolutely necessary if we are to acquit ourselves even creditably in this great war." (Cong. Rec. September 10, 1917; p. 6861.)

Tax Rich to Breed War Spirit.

Finally LaFollette demanded that the peace terms of the capitalist war be stated not because he might thus expose the true character of the conflict and throw a monkey wrench into the imperialist war machinery, but because he was convinced that such a statement by the ruling class of this country would tend to win the masses more firmly to the war campaign. We need but turn to the speech delivered by LaFollette to the United States Senate on October 6, 1917 to see this truth:

"Such a course (a declaration of the purposes of the war) would also immeasurably, I believe, strengthen our military force in this country, because when the objects of this war are clearly stated and the people approve of these objects they will give to the war a popular support it will never otherwise receive."

Such was and is the opposition of LaFollette to capitalist imperialism and war. And such is the support the workers and dispossessed farmers should give the Wisconsin senator in return on the basis of his war record.

Compounding Felonies

By HARRISON GEORGE

MODERN science is complicating if not compounding crime. The Doheny indictments are demurred to on the grounds that the grand jury might have soaked up some wave lengths when Senator Walsh spoke over the radio concerning the Teapot Dome oil leases, etc. Doheny's lawyers say this seriously "prejudiced the interests of the defendants, etc. Together with this radio business, comes the "scientific" testimony in the Leopold-Loeb case, compelling a revaluation of what are known as "delinquents."

After glancing hastily through the symptoms and looking up our psychopathology, we have arrived at the following conclusions about some political delinquents:

Gompers has a wart on his pineal gland, that's what makes him act that way toward the left wing. John L. Lewis has an enlarged pituitary, that's why he took the money from scab mine operators which Farrington accused him of getting. Johnny Walker has thyroid insufficiency, that's why he reversed himself on endorsing Len Small. Wm. Mahoney has a king-and-slave fantasy, that's why he said "Thank you, Bob!" when he was booted out of the C. F. P. A. convention.

La Follette is in a bad way according to our diagnosis. He is badly involved in a Narcisaus complex of self-love, a paranoiac tendency of exaggerated appreciation of self, and a split-personality indicated by trying to cater to both capitalist and proletarian interests and to compose his trust busting program with Sam Gompers' demand to repeal anti-trust legislation. Sick man.

Secretary Hughes, according to psycho-analysis, confuses himself with Christ, that's why he won't recognize Russia. Coolidge's basal metabolism averages about 17 minus, that's why he calls it "defense day" instead of "mobilization." Bill Fall has acromegaliantism, that's why he is strong for injunctions; and Wm. J. Burns' central ganglia are out of gear, that's why he's a crook. Now we know, don't we!

Too bad that Jesse James was shot before it was discovered that his endocrine system was unbalanced. And it is a shame that Captain Kidd, and many another lusty pirate, never was able to hire a dozen alienists at $250 per day each, to plead that although he slit many a throat and scuttled many a merchantman, his mind, if not his ship, had struck a reef off the Islands of Langarhans.

Send in that Subscription Today.

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FO: A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV
LIBRARY

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II. No. 138. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $5.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

ANTI-WAGE SLASH FIGHT GROWS

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD, speaking at the Institute of Politics in Williamstown, Mass., denounced the policy of the United States government in sending its warships to protect American capital in South America. "The policy is grossly immoral," he said, "and should be stopped. Bankers and investments should be warned that when they invest their money abroad, they do so at their own risk, and that Uncle Sam's navy will not be used as bill collectors." Well, that is one of the reasons why battleships exist and will exist so long as "capitalism lasts. When American battleships went over to Europe to fight Germany in 1914 they went in obedience to Morgan's demands. And the naive Villard that for a long time that it was really a war for democracy.

• • •

NEWS comes from Forth Worth that a move will be made to drive the Ku Klux Klan out of the Democratic Party. The prime mover will be the notorious Albert Sidney Burleson, the notorious post-master general who served during the reign of Woodrow Wilson. Burleson was silent while the fortunes of the Klan were rising but now that it is losing ground he comes boldly out to slay the dragon.

• • •

BRITAIN has just completed a wonderful air dreadnought. It is the most powerful single-engined airplane in the world. It measures 88 feet from wing tip to wing tip, stands 19 feet from the ground and is 54 feet from nose to tail. It only weighs 8,200 pounds. The pacifist MacDonald ministry is doing fine. The new air giant should prove very effective in dropping bombs on the Hindoos and Egyptians.

• • •

WHAT happened at the conference between Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes that took place at Plymouth, Vt.? Nobody seems to know except the G. O. P. leaders, and they will not tell. It is safe to say that Coolidge said: "Now, Charlie, frankness is very fine and after election you may curse all you want, because people's memories are short, but during the election campaign you should be more careful. You should not allow Mr. Davis to rush you off your feet. Watch my technique. We need the Klan vote, but it will never do to come out so openly for it as you did." And after Dawes swung his arms over his head a few times, no doubt he said, "Oh, hell an' Maria. I guess you're right."

• • •

THE situation in Morocco is daily growing worse for the Sanish troops. Not since 1921 were the natives so aroused and even tribes formerly friendly are now joining the attack on the invaders. The Moors are well supplied with munitions, which supports the suspicion that France is backing the rebels against the Spaniards. After Spain is driven from Morocco, the French

(Continued on page 3)

Co-operators Succeed

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—The Workingmen's Co-operative Co. of Cleveland, organized in 1912 by Bohemian workers, and now having a membership of 1,100, reports a business of over $100,000 for the first six months of 1924, with a surplus of over $12,000 in excess of liabilities, not counting the thousands of dollars returned to its customers in form of purchaser's rebates. The company operates six stores.

Membership Meeting in Cicero

There will be a membership meeting of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League of Cicero to-night at 8 p. m. at the Lithuanian Liberty Hall, W. 14th St. and 49th Court.

MINERS' HEADS DON'T DARE TO URGE WAGE CUT

Herrin Meet Can't Get Diggers to Yield

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

VALIER, Ill., Aug. 27.—"The officials of the miners' union don't dare to agree with the coal operators in favoring a reduced wage scale for the miners. If they told us today to take a wage cut, not a man would go down in the mines tomorrow morning." This is what Dick Swift, old time coal miner here, thinks about the Herrin convention which is trying to reduce the miners' wages.

Used to Cut Talk.

"The coal operators may think they have us starved out. If they do they're fooled. This is not the first time the miners have heard the coal operators clamoring for a wage reduction. We are used to it, and we pay no attention to it. The coal miners have stood for a lot of treachery from their reactionary leaders who favor class collaboration, but they will not stand for a wage reduction.'"

I am going to write a lot about Valier because Valier is vividly illustrative of the many problems facing the miners. When the city slicker hits Valier, he knows he is in the heart of the coal mining country.

Valier, with its 2,500 population, is a trustified coal camp. The one mine in town, supplying work to all the men in the town, is called the Valier Coal Company, but in reality it is owned by the Burlington Railroad.

(Contiued on page 5)

Pullman Meeting Tonight

There will be a general membership meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Russian School Hall, 11449 S. Park Ave. The question of organizing union locals and other important matters will be discussed. Every member is requested to surely attend this meeting.

MACHINE SHOP MEN UNANIMOUSLY STAND FOR FOSTER-GITLOW

The workers of the shop Winkler and Riechmann Co., producers of loud speakers, who are all members of the International Association of Machinists, passed the following resolution at their shop meeting which was attended by every worker in the plant:

Whereas: various bodies of labor have declared their allegiance and tendered their support to their political parties or candidates, and,

Whereas: such declarations help the political party or candidate and the principles endorsed,

Therefore Be It Resolved, that we, the shopmen, die and tool makers, machinists and specialists employed by the Winkler & Riechmann Co. also declare our allegience to the Workers Party and endorse the candidature of Foster-Gitlow for president and vice-president, as representing the interests of the working class, and be it further

Resolved that we assess ourselves 1 percent of our wages for two months to assist them in their campaign.

John P. Denne, shop secretary.

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY..... STATE.....

Five Thousand Join Workers Party

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.

FIVE THOUSAND new members joined the Workers Party during the first six months of 1924. This is a ratio of increase almost twice as great as for the same six months of 1923.

For the first six months of 1923, 2,892 members were accepted by the Party. For 1924, 5,041 members came into the organization.

These figures indicate the growing appeal of the Communist program for the workers of the United States. They show that the activities of the Party in the struggles of the workers, particularly the part it has played in the fight to mobilize the workers and farmers for independent political action, have rallied thousands of workers to its standard.

As shown by the average dues payments, the record of growth of the Workers Party for the six months' period in question is as follows:

1922, the first year of the Party, 8,320 average monthly dues payments.

1923, 14,866 average monthly dues payments.

1924, 16,879 average monthly dues payments.

The tabulation of the total members on the rolls of the Workers Party for the same six months' period as shown by reports received from the various barnches, show a total of 27,500 members now on the rolls of the Party. Because of irregularity in dues payments, thru secretaries receipting books by writing receipts therein in place of using dues stamps, the average monthly dues payments are only a little over 60 per cent of the total membership on the rolls of the Party. The steps taken by the Central Executive Committee thru establishing the rule that any member of the Party who has a dues book in which dues payments are receipted in any other form than with a stamp, is automatically expelled from the Party, is expected quickly to bring the dues payments up closer to the membership on the Party rolls.

Campaign Drive to Win Thousands of New Members.

With the first six months of 1924, showing 5,000 new members joining the Party without any extraordinary campaign for membership, the last six months of the year are expected to show double and treble that number of new members gained thru the organized campaign which is now under way.

All the branches of the Party are being mobilized for systematic work to increase the Party membership and to secure subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER.

Each member of the Party has been given the task of securing one new member and one new subscriber for the DAILY WORKER. Special combined cards are in the hands of all of the branches of the organization.

The fact that the Party won 5,000 members during the first six months of the year, should be an inspiration to every member and branch of the Party to carry on an energetic campaign to secure new members during the membership drive. These five thousand new members show the possibilities for our Party. If we organize ourselves for this work and make an effort, our Party strength will be greatly increased during the next six months. A Party of thirty-five to forty thousand members is well within our reach before the end of 1924. That possibility can be made a reality thru hard and efficient organized work to stir the enthusiasm of the whole Party for the membership drive now under way.

ORDERS POURING IN FOR SPECIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Arsenal of Facts for Election Battle

There will be enough campaign ammunition in this Saturday's Special Campaign Edition of the DAILY WORKER to blow the capitalist ideology out of the minds of the workingclass. The problem is to get this material to the workers.

That problem is now being solved as well as can be expected. Numerous large cities have ordered thousands of copies. They have sent in the orders and the money, too. That's the way to talk.

Expect Flood of Orders.

Between now and Friday night we expect the flood of orders to increase. Orders are coming in from all over the country. From country towns as well as from the great industrial centers.

The Labor Day issue of the DAILY WORKER is the first Communist Campaign issue of any paper ever issued in the United States. It is the first Communist Campaign Issue ever issued by a daily in the English language. It marks a milestone in working class revolutionary history.

Can't Afford to Miss It.

Who can afford to miss this historic number?

The best writers in the Workers Party have co-operated to turn out a well written mass of material that will enable our agitators to turn the tables on their wily capitalist opponents in argument. It will give the records of the capitalist candidates, what they have done for the capitalists and what they have done against labor.

The workers in the factories who have been bamboozled by the drivel peddled out in the capitalist press, will be glad to get a refreshing draught of common sense in the DAILY WORKER Campaign Issue.

It will not show pictures of Foster handing a sap bucket to Henry Ford, or Ben Gitlow presenting a fur coat to a shivering Zulu. None of the bosh in that gives an intelligent worker a nauseating sensation in his intellectual stomach will be spread before the readers of the DAILY WORKER. Our de-bunking specialists will take care of that.

Here are a few of the orders that have come in as we go to press:

MacDonald, Pa., 100; Carnegie, Pa., 100; Cheswick, Pa., 100; Bentleyville, Pa., 100; Maynard, Pa., 200; Denver, Colo., 500; Omaha, Neb., 100; Collinsville, Pa., 50; Boston, Mass., 100; New York (one branch), 200; St. Louis, 200.

Use Blank on this Page.

Send in your orders now. Orders will be accepted up until 6 o'clock Friday. That is the dead line. Order by mail or by wire and make it snappy. This is an election campaign.

The campaign number sells for five cents and costs 3½c in bundles. Order from the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Use the blank on this page.

CROWE STILL HOWLS FOR THE BLOOD OF LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Robert E. Crowe won't be satisfied until the judge hands down the decision against the two young murderers, Loeb and Leopold, which will mean their hanging.

Crowe yesterday pointed out that life imprisonment did not really mean what it seemed to mean. In Illinois the law allows for pardons and paroles at the discretion of the governor, and if the death penalty is not given it is likely that another ten years or even less may see the two reprobates free.

With these facts in his hands, Crowe raises a long and loud yell for the noose.

MINERS' PAPER ATTACKS SPLIT PLAN OF O. B. U.

McLachlan Calls Halt to Dualists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, August 27.—The fight of the members of the Communist Party and the Trade Union Educational League against the O. B. U. secessionist propaganda which has been carried on in this district for some time has began in earnest with the publication of an editorial in the current issue of the Maritime Labor Herald denouncing those who suggest that the miners have anything to gain by running away from the fight against the Lewis machine in the United Mine Workers' Union by means of a split.

The editor of the paper, Jim McLachlan, veteran leader of the miners, draws upon the ten years bitter experience of the miners of the district with dual unionism prior to 1919, for examples as to what is in store for the miners if they split the solidarity of the rank and file of the district.

Adhere to T. U. E. L. Program.

The adherence of the militant miners to the policy of the Red International of Labor Unions and the Trade

(Continued on page 2)

For Minneapolis Labor Temple.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 27.—Stock is being successfully sold here to labor unions and individuals to finance the erection of a labor temple.

LAFOLLETTE IN AUTOCRAT RULE OVER NEBRASKA

Green Threatening to Kick Over Traces

By THOMAS MATTHEWS
(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 27.—Disruption is still growing apace in the "LaFollette movement" in Nebraska. Altho the progressive party in this state was murdered in appropriate style by the LaFollette forces in their "state convention" at Grand Island on the 19th, State Secretary W. H. Green refuses to have the coffin lowered. In fact, Green threatens to carry the case before the "court of public opinion."

Green went to Russia last fall and was elected to the presidium of the Peasants' International. This, of course, places him "beyond the pale" with the LaFollette politicians, who would like to get Green out of their way at the least possible cost to themselves. Green has refused to resign as state secretary of the progressive party, and insists that his organization will have a full state ticket in the field whether LaFollette and Wheeler will so or not. So the battle goes merrily on.

Local Republican papers, meanwhile, are making the most of the LaFollette-Bryan deal, by which this crowd hopes to put "Brother Charley" Bryan in the White House by minority vote. The "Omaha Bee," local Republican organ, states in its issue of August 23rd that:

"... it seems certain that in Nebraska at least, where the Bryan tactics are fully understood, there will be enuf democratic votes cast for Coolidge and Dawes to 'make sure' of Coolidge and thus block the scheme to make Bryan president thru the back door of the Senate."

LaFollette Skullduggery.

It has come to light that after the Grand Island LaFollette meeting, a "hand-picked" meeting of the newly elected state committee was held, attended by seven out of thirty members, and this the first meeting of the committee. The bosses in control proceeded to name their permanent officers, but this was too raw for Anson H. Bigelow, labor attorney of Omaha, who walked out after protesting against the methods used to ram down "what LaFollette wanted." This, it must be admitted, required some

(Continued on page 6)

STRIKE REPORTED AND DENIED

The press today carried a story telling of a possibility that Chicago would have another strike of the ladies' garment workers, to be called on Labor Day. Meyer Perlstein, vice-president of the International and in charge of the Chicago office, is said to have stated today that the new strike would assume much greater proportions than the one staged by the union last year.

Asked to comment on the news item, Mr. Rappoport, secretary of the Joint Board, stated that no strike action had been contemplated.

WILD RUSH MADE BY 34 WORKERS FOR ONE JOB IN MASON CITY

MASON CITY, Ia., Aug. 27.—The prosperity that has hit this town may be judged by an announcement that appears in the local paper. It refers to an advertisement that had been inserted for a truck driver and warehouse man for an all year around job, and remarks that the placer of the ad informed the newspaper that with only one insertion of the ad 34 replies had been received by noon time.

This is an indication of the state of unemployment in Mason City, as well as thru the entire West.

RAID ITALIAN DAILY; CHARGE LOTTERY DEAL

Badillo and Candela Are Arrested

Ten postoffice inspectors and plain clothes men yesterday bore down upon the Workers Party headquarters and arrested Louis Candela, secretary of the Italian Federation of the party and Alvaro Badillo, business manager of the Italian Communist daily, Il Lavoratore, for alleged violation of the federal postal regulations.

Charge Postal Violations.

The charge was made that lottery tickets had been sent thru the mails in violation of the law but Comrade Candela today explained how the difficulty arose.

Some time ago, a number of persons forming a local committee had begun to circulate a lottery for the benefit of the weekly predecessor to Il Lavoratore, Alba Nuova, but soon abandoned the project. Comrade Badillo, ignorant of the postal regulations, decided to revive the lottery and turn the money over to Il Lavoratore. He did this without the knowledge of the management of the paper or the executive committee of the federation.

Takes Responsibility.

On being questioned by federal agents yesterday at the postoffice, Badillo assumed sole responsibility for having sent out the lottery tickets. The two comrades were released in the hands of their lawyer, Isaac E. Ferguson, until the time when they will be called again.

The presence of department of justice agents may complicate matters, since they demanded more than information about the lottery. Minutes of various committees were requested, but the dicks were unsuccessful in getting them. It is not expected that the lottery case itself will develop into anything serious.

Two Labels Now

NEW YORK, August 27.—Beginning with September all ladies garments made under union conditions will have both the union sanitary label and the subsidiary trades unio nlabel, the International Ladies Garment Union announced.

BUTLER'S FINKS SWARM IN ALL TEXTILE UNIONS

Helped Coolidge Smash Police Strike

(Third Article)
(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The biggest men in the republican party are engaged in a conspiracy against the workers. Yesterday we told how former U. S. Senator P. J. McCumber, author of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill, one of the old guard surrounding Coolidge, used private detectives to discredit an opponent in the elections.

We told how William Morgan Butler, textile multi-millionaire, who is now chief financial backer of Coolidge and chairman of the republican national committee, had hired a swarm of stool-pigeons to worm their way into the confidence of the textile workers of New Bedford.

We told how the Sherman Service had in their pay as a stool-pigeon, John Silver, Secretary of the Dofers' and Spinners' Union and Secretary of the Textille Council.

Finks Backed Coolidge.

The Sherman stool-pigeon Service is closely connected with the republican party and its standard-bearer in this campaign. It was backing Coolidge as a strike-breaker while he was

(Continued on Page 6)

WAR-MONGERS IN JAPAN COUNTER U. S. "WAR DAY"

"National Drill Day" to be Oriental Reply

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Aug. 27.—The military reservist organizations today officially launched an agitation for a "National Drill Day" on October 23 to be held all thru Japan with the obvious purpose of countering the imperialist maneuvers in the United States on "Defense" Day.

Government officials have not yet given sanction to the plan but it can already be seen that the day will be observed by the inspired statements that are being issued to the effect that there is no connection at all between the Japanese and American day.

Defense Day for War.

That the Communists' interpretation of Defense Day here as the first big post-war step towards open preparations for a new war over the control of Pacific treasures, is seen in the protest against September 12 to President Coolidge by American missionaries in Japan who realize more acutely why the mobilization of America's military strength is about to take place.

K. K. K. SPANKED FOR RELIGIOUS ATTITUDE NOT ON LABOR STAND

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Following the new lead set by its presidential candidate, the democratic party of this state, at its convention today adopted a platform declaration on the Ku Klux Klan which attacks the organization as rasing the standard of racial or religious belief as a test of fitness to the spirit of the American constitution.

Not a word is said about the Klan's anti-labor attitude, and it is certainly not condemned for it. The democrats see the waning influence of the Klan as depicted in the losses they suffered in the recent primaries in Oklahoma and Texas, and they are making the attempt to ride the wave of reaction against the Hooded Hoodlums dressed in Kute Knighties.

DAWES ARDENT SUPPORTER OF OPEN SHOPPERS

Million Copies of Talk Being Circulated

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Featured as a keynote utterance, in the middle of the front page of the "tenth annual open shop number" of the Detroit Saturday Night, of which the U. S. Chamber of Commerce is alleged to have purchased a million copies for campaign purposes, is an attack on the union shop by Chas. G. Dawes.

"Dawes On Union Rule."

"Dawes on Union Rule" is the headline given this statement by the Coolidge running mate, which was part of a speech before the Union League Club of New York, Feb. 22, 1923.

"The American citizen," said Dawes, "has come to know that the only antidote for the lawless methods of minority organizations is to enforce law and order under the constitution of the United States, and to establish a new bill of individual rights against these minority organizations.

"This bill of rights is not new in its definition of those individual privileges which are inalienable, but new because respect for these rights is now demanded from labor organizations, and other organized minorities whose power has risen in place of the power of kings and princes of old.

Wants Issue Drawn

"In the next contest, one of the great parties, in clean cut language and without evasion, must take its stand for the new bill of rights against minority organizations. The American citizen demands that this issue be drawn."

The date of delivery of this speech very closely precedes the date when Dawes and his friend Harry Daugherty went to Florida to make Mr. Harding see that his campaign for re-election should be made on the open shop and pro-injunction issue.

The Minute Men

The editor gives a two-column boost to Dawes' Minute Men of the Constitution, explaining "Technically the Minute Men are not committed to the open shop, actually it would seem that they are, for one of their planks aims at 'maintaining the right of a citizen to work is as sacred as the right of a citizen to cease work, irrespective of whether he is or is not a member of a labor or other organization.' That is one of the cardinal principles of the open shop movement; its very cornerstone, and its translation into actual fact everywhere would mean the universal adoption of the open shop, all theorizing about the legal rights of men to bargain collectively with their employers for a closed shop notwithstanding."

GITLOW SPEAKS IN BUFFALO ON FRIDAY, AUG. 29

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Benjamin Gitlow, candidate of the Workers Party of America for vice-president of the United States, will speak Friday, Aug. 29, at Labor Lyceum Hall, 376 William Street, at 8 p. m.

Gitlow is a fearless worker who has fought well against Wall Street dictatorship.

He is a powerful speaker and will deal with the facts of "Teapot Dome" government, Labor injunctions, the open shop, strike breaker policies, present unemployment and coming of the war.

Every worker in Buffalo interested in the welfare of his own family, should come and hear Benjamin Gitlow. There will be no charge for admission.

New York Youth to Hold I. Y. D. Meet On September 5th

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The Young Workers League of New York will demonstrate on International Youth Day at the large Central Opera House, Friday evening, September 5th.

This is the 10th International Day of Youth and is of great significance due to the dangers of new wars. In our own country, the president of the United States has ordered a day for mobilization exactly a week after our celebration. The Young Workers League is going to make International Youth Day the beginning of a demonstration against Mobilization Day.

Tickets can be obtained from Y. W. L. members or from headquarters, 208 E. 13th St. Rally to the meeting.

BRITAIN'S ROYAL HEIR MAY OFFICIALLY TIE HIMSELF TO ONE WIFE

MANCHESTER, England, August 27.—The Prince of Wales, bachelor heir to the British throne, may announce his intention of entering matrimony, after his return from America, according to the Daily Dispatch today. This newspaper said that, while the Prince has no desire to marry, "it is probable that after his present trip he will accede to the choice of King George and Queen Mary as to a bride."

NAB INSPECTOR ON $2,000,000 MAIL ROBBERY

Fahy Called Brains of Numerous Holdups

William F. Fahy, postoffice inspector in Chicago, has confessed to complicity in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery, said Chief Postal Inspector C. H. Clarahan of New York today.

Fahy was held yesterday in one of the most sensational stories of inside robbery yet known. He is alleged to be the "brains" of a well chosen gang of mail robbers whose technique has been recognized in many cases.

Examining Robberies.

For this reason every mail robbery of the last three years in the midwest is being closely studied by the corps of inspectors who are at work on the case for resemblances to the Rondout raid, and the other major stunts pulled up, it is believed, as links in the long chain of carefully planned and cleverly directed bandit exploits.

According to Clarahan, the evidence against Fahy is complete and "absolute." "You may be sure that the postoffice authorities would not have arrested and charged Fahy unless they knew they had the goods on him," he said.

The Same Brain.

"We are convinced from evidence we have obtained that the same brain that planned the Rondout robbery schemed the others in this part of the country.

"We are convinced also that Fahy framed Big Tim Murphy in the Union Station robbery, and government inspectors who are now en route to Leavenworth will try to get Murphy to tell all he knows about the 'man higher up.'"

Fahy came to the Chicago branch of the postoffice with an excellent record from Philadelphia. He was detailed here to go after mail robberies. He did.

EASING UNITED STATES INTO THE WILSON LEAGUE

Hughes Method Is Slow But Pleases Bankers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.— Calvin Coolidge and Charles Evans Hughes are easing the United States into the League of Nations by slow stages.

Added proof of this tendency was given here today by the announcement at the state department that the United States will accept the invitation of the League of Nations to send a representative to sit with the disarmament commission to be appointed by the league assembly.

Got Woodrow's Scalp.

Woodrow Wilson signed an arms control agreement at St. Germain after the world war. It failed of ratification by the senate. Because of his espousal of the League of Nations, Wilson was driven from public life and the next election saw the republican party romping home with the bacon.

Unknown to the people of the United States, ambassadors and consular officials have been co-operating with the League of Nations and Mr. Hughes believes the time is now ripe, to walk openly into the league.

Hugh Gibson, minister to Switzerland, will be directed by secretary Hughes to go to Geneva to represent the United States on the disarmament commission.

Want One-Man Cars

MACON, Ga. Aug. 27.—The local street railway company has petitioned the city council for permission to operate fifteen one man cars claiming that the use of automobiles has made inroads in the company's revenue. The company claims that in July, 1920, approximately 772,000 passengers rode street cars, while in July of this year only 500,000 had dropped their seven cents in the palm of the conductor. The local labor unions will fight the request.

CAPITOL HEARS COMMUNIST TALK BY BEN GITLOW

Said LaFollette Has Betrayed Workers

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidate for president of the United States, made a smashing attack on the capitalist candidates in a speech delivered here Sunday night before a good sized audience.

The meeting was scheduled to be held in a hall controlled by a local branch of the Elks, but thru the action of a United States marshall, the owners of the hall were intimidated so the meeting had to be held elsewhere.

Hard Hears Gitlow Talk.

Several prominent Washington reporters were present, among them William Hard, special writers for several capitalist dailies.

Gitlow exposed the anti-labor records of the leading capitalist candidates, Coolidge, Dawes and Davis. He then turned his heavy artillery on Robert M. LaFollette.

Meeting Creates Stir.

"LaFollette is betraying the wage earners of the United States into the hands of the capitalists. He has smashed the healthy movement for a Farmer-Labor Party," said Gitlow. He compared LaFollette to MacDonald of England and Herriot of France, who are all out to betray the workers.

The meeting created quite a stir in Washington.

William Z. Foster, candidate for president, begins his next series of meetings in Sioux City, Iowa, next Friday. Full list of meetings of both Workers Party candidates on page 4.

BANKS PLANNING REORGANIZATION OF WILSON & CO.

Receivership Planned for Packing Firm

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday issued an auxiliary receivership on Wilson & Co. in Illinois, naming Thomas Wilson, president of the firm; Julius H. Mayer and General Abel Davis as receivers.

The action follows the temporary receivership given in New Jersey to the first two mentioned and Robert C. Morrell, an attorney, on the plea of John Eisner, a creditor, with a claim of $5,943.

Turmoil in Cattle Buying.

The news of the receivership caused a turmoil in the chief live stock markets, and the big packing company suspended its buying of live stock in the Chicago, Kansas City and Oklahoma City markets, a move taken pending a decision on the New Jersey suit.

Behind the receivership is said to be an attempt to reorganize the company on a larger scale, with the intention of squeezing out some of the small fry and solidifying control of the packing industry in the hands of a few men.

This belief is given credence by the statement of Frank O. Wetmore, chairman of the committee representing the bank creditors of Wilson & Co.

Banks to Control.

"The receivership has the approval of the committee of bank creditors representing over 95 per cent of the company's bank debts. The receivers were appointed with full powers to continue the operation of the company and to preserve its business. All those interested in the affairs of Wilson & Co. hope that it will be possible to work the company out of its difficulties without receivership, and substantial progress had already been made in the direction of a voluntary plan of readjustment."

Wetmore represents the First National Bank of Chicago, and it is believed that the banks will now take over actual control of Wilson & Co. as the next step toward control of the packing industry.

Repair Shops Reopen.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 27.—Advices from Mobile, Ala., state that the repair shops of the Mobile & Ohio railroad, which closed July 14, throwing 200 men out of employment, have reopened on a full time basis.

Shot On The Fly

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 27.—Two Spanish military aviators were critically wounded on the Moroccan front today when their plane was shot down by Riff tribesmen. The plane carried provisions.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

CROWE IN HYSTERICAL ROAR FOR THROATS OF LEOPOLD AND PARTNER

Centering his attack mainly on the very effective speech of Clarence Darrow in the defense of Loeb and Leopold, State's Attorney Crowe made a vigorous plea for hanging of the two murderers of young Robert Franks.

He sneered at Darrow's statement that the two young men were burdened with riches and that if they had been poor they would never even be considered for the noose. He slammed Darrow's humanitarism and denied that capital punishment had been a failure in preventing crime.

Darrow, in his plea, was, irrespective of the merits of the case, clear as to his method of approach, while Crowe, the notorious anti-labor skate, raves around hysterically by the hour.

A sentence is expected in the early part of September.

COMMUNISTS IN REICHSTAG WAR ON LONDON PACT

Nationalists Show Signs of Weakening

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—The battle over the Dawes plan still rages in the reichstag. Rumors are current that the London agreement will receive the necessary two-thirds majority.

The nationalists are only making a half-hearted fight against the pact. Herr Hergbt is reported to have conceded victory to the government. This shows that the nationalists are not sincere in their opposition to the Dawes scheme.

The only real opposition is coming from the Communists. Since the last session of the reichstag opened they have carried on a vigorous filibustering campaign. The president was obliged several times to adjourn the sitting.

The Communists are conducting a fight for the release of political prisoners, thousands of whom are in jails all over Germany. Today, a democrat, Herr Brod, was given a thrashing for deffering a vicious attack against amnesty for the class war prisoners.

• • •

Herriot Upheld.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Premier Herriot's policy on the Dawes plan was approved last night in the senate after a debate between the premier and Raymond Poincare. As predicted in previous dispatches, Poincare's opposition was merely for the sake of keeping up appearances. He agreed with Herriot on the main issue, acceptance of the Dawes plan, but he differed on the question of evacuation of the Ruhr.

• • •

Snowden Fights MacDonald.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the MacDonald cabinet, is leading the fight against the Dawes plan on the ground that it will give France an unfair advantage over British industries.

He secured the backing of the London Chamber of Commerce and today the miners' union issued a statement opposing the plan for the same reason given by Snowden.

WOMEN CANNERS WORSE TREATED THAN COOLIES

Illinois Canneries Pay 17½ Cents an Hour

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 27.—At the Sear and Nichols Canning Company the worst slave driving hole in this city, the women workers were given a wage cut of 2½ cents an hour which brings their wage down to 22½ cents an hour. Even these miserable wages could not stir the slaves out of their lethargy.

The miners' wives quit, but the rest of the slaves remained on the job as they watched a flock of new workers quickly filling the places left open by the miners' wives.

NO DOUBT TO PLAN NEW ATTACKS ON MEXICAN REPUBLIC'S ASPIRANTS

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The newly appointed American ambassadors to Japan and Mexico—Edgar A. Bankcroft of Chicago, and James R. Sheffield of New York—will come to Washington within the next few days for conferences with President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes before leaving for their foreign assignments, it was announced today

U. S. Army and Navy Will Always Do Wall Street's Bloody Work

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the naval arm of the giant "Force!" always at the command of the American dollar, for the crushing of labor at home, and the subjugating of colonials abroad, is twitching under jabs received during the sessions of the Institute of Politics, at Williamstown, Mass.

The attack on the navy was made by the harmless pacifist, Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the liberal weekly, The Nation, who is now in LaFollette's camp, politically, as the result of following out his policy of trying to fight reaction on the one hand and revolution on the other.

• • • •

While sticking to his subject of the "Ethics and the Export of American Capitalism," Mr. Villard charged the United States government with aiding American bankers and capitalists to exploit weaker countries, especially in Latin America, by supporting loans and investments with the use of military forces "controlled by politicians without principle."

All this is known to any intelligent human being at all conversant with developing events in the world. It is known to all except admirals of the navy who do the bloody work of Wall Street. In the navy, as in the army, discipline demands unquestioning obedience to orders. When the command to murder comes, whether it be for the slaughter of men, women or children, it is not for the killers to ask the "why" or the "wherefore."

• • • •

This is the only explanation that can be offered for the vehemence with which Rear Admiral Harry McL. P. Huse, retired, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, also retired, excitedly assailed Villard's charges that, "The blood of the 3,000 Haytians slain by our American marines and of the 400 dead in Vera Cruz, mostly women and children, dishonors our good name, especially when involved with so sordid a business as debt collection."

In defense of the murder business of the armed forces of capitalism, Rear Admiral Huse claimed that, "I have been 50 years in the navy and have never known a case where the navy was sent to collect a debt."

To be sure the rear admiral hasn't yet learned, nor will he ever learn, that American participation in the late world war was largely due to the desire to protect Morgan's loans in Europe. Nor will it ever seep into his ivory brain that Premier Herriott, of France, stated only the other day that the United States is now morally bound, thru the action of the London Conference upon the Dawes Plan, to come to the aid of the French capitalist government in collecting her debts from Germany, money due in great part to Morgan. Here is the basis for American entry into new money collecting European wars.

• • • •

"We did not kill women and children in Vera Cruz," declares the innocent Huse, hunting the name of the naval official who gave Villard his information, and threatening to have the offender court-martialed. To tell the truth about American capitalism is sedition and treason, in the navy, as in the army and in private life. The trouble is that there are people who refuse to be as blind to facts as the rear admiral.

• • • •

But poor Mr. Villard urges that the only "ethical policy" for the United States government, that he is so anxious to conserve, is to serve notice upon American bankers and investors that they go abroad at their own risk, "that the American fleet did not follow the American bankers, and that the military forces of the United States could not be used to collect private debts."

Evidently Mr. Villard does not care if the bankers and industrialists organized their own police force to kill Haytians and Mexicans, as long as he could keep the hands of the government clean. And it is a "clean" government that LaFollette wants, and all he wants.

• • • •

But the capitalist dictatorship, at Washington, under which we all live at present, has been built up to protect private property. That government is in the hands of the most efficiently and best organized private propertied interests, the big banks and the big industrialists.

LaFollette may shriek, and Villard may squeal, but the army and navy will serve the big capitalists, in the future as in the past, as debt collectors, or in any other capacity desired. Of course, those who will be compelled to do the bloody work will be marines, soldiers and sailors drawn from the working class.

This condition will not change until the capitalist social system of running the affairs of the world is overthrown, and the rule of the workers enthroned. LaFollette and Villard, no more than Morgan or his rear admirals, will ever see it that way.

KLUXER, FREED BY COAL KINGS, FORFEITS BOND

S. Glenn Young Double-Crosses Friends

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 27.—With nine bonds of S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan raider of Southern Illinois, aggregating $39,000, ordered forfeited by City Judge E. N. Bowen in the Herrin City Court, forfeiture of five other bonds in Young's cases still on this week's docket, was delayed today by the trial of some of Young's associates on other charges arising out of the raiding here February 8, last.

In the meantime panic reigned among Young's sureties who had put up millions of dollars worth of valuable Southern Illinois coal lands as security for Young's bonds and those of other Klansmen indicted by a special grand jury investigating Young's Fascist activities.

Young's bonds total $205,000, including the cases pending in the circuit court of Williamson County at Marion, Ill.

Miners Paper Attacks Split Plan of O. B. U.

(Continued from Page 1.)

Union Educational League on this continent is the great obstacle that the O. B. U. propaganda cannot overcome in its attempts to split the ranks of the miners. Disgusted as the miners are with the strike-breaking tactics used against them by the Lewis administration last year, they are not favorable to the O. B. U. policy of running away from the reactionaries in the U. M. W. for the sake of peace in a so-called radical union.

Ben Legere, who was sent to Nova Scotia to swing the miners into the O. B. U., finds his advocacy of a split falling on deaf ears because of the firm stand against dualism taken by the militants of the rank and file of the miners.

Lewis Aids Welcome Split.

As usual, the reactionary creatures of Lewis composing the "provisional government" in the district since the district officers were deposed last year have not raised their voices in opposition to the O. B. U. propaganda.

These labor fakers have been silently waiting, hoping that the miners will split so that their jobs will be extended for another few years.

PATERSON SILK STRIKE IN ITS FIRST VICTORY

Twenty Bosses Sign Up with Union

(By The Federated Press)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 27.—The Associated Silk Workers' Union, which is conducting the strike of 10,000 silk workers here, scored a preliminary victory when 20 bosses, employing 500 weavers, signed agreements conceding substantially all the union's demands.

The workers gain a 15% wage increase, a 44-hour week, with five eight-hour days and four hours on Saturday; the abolition of the three and four loom system which overtaxes the strength of the weaver and creates unemployment; complete recognition of the union and the right to organize.

Negotiations Progress.

Tho approximately 9,500 workers were not affected by these settlements, indications point to further victories. Negotiations in 80 plants between employers and strike committees have been progressing favorably. All settlements must be passed on by the settlement board, which sees that they measure up to the union's standards.

Union officials declare that this early victory justifies the decision made last week to allow separate settlements. This policy, which splits the more conciliatory bosses away from the die-hard employers, was not followed in the big 1913 strike.

Financial Aid Assured.

Strikers returned to work under agreements will contribute part of their wages to the strike fund. Additional financial help is also assured from the ribbon and hatband departments of the Associated Silk Workers, which have indorsed the strike of the broad-silk weavers. Money is also raised at motion picture showings and by contributions from sympathizers. The union declares it can carry on until the Paterson Broadsilk Manufacturers' Association, which is the stronghold of the employers' opposition, comes to a more reasonable frame of mind.

Fred Hoelscher, secretary of the union, has issued an authorized call for mass picketing at the intention of bringing the picket force up to 2,000 on Mondays and other critical days. Further discipline is being brought into the picketing by a new set of union picket rules calling for two leaders for each picket group.

The strike is now largely confined to the weavers, but the union is appealing to all warpers, loom fixers, twisters and other craftsmen to join the fight.

RUSSIAN FILM ATTRACTS BIG CROWD IN N.Y.

Special Musical Program at Evening Performance

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—This week's performances of the new feature film from Russia, "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," entertained a great number of people at Lenox Theatre, 111th St. and Lenox Ave. Additional performances of the picture were run in order to accommodate the thousands who wanted to see the new film. Even then many hundreds were turned away.

Concertina Player in Musical Numbers.

As a special feature, the management has arranged for the well-known virtuoso concertina, Gregory Montesevitch, who will play Russian selections, at the evening performances, in addition the Russian tenor, Anton Tyro will render a selection of folk songs.

Because of the great number who were unable to get in, you are requested to come early for the performance which starts promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Youth Day in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—The Young Workers' League here will hold a mass meeting and entertainment on International Youth Day, Friday, Sept. 5, at Symphony Hall, 232 South Hill Street, Los Angeles, Cal., to protest against war. Come and help make the meeting a success.

The Walkout of the 400.

ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 27.—Four hundred hat makers walked out of the shops of F. Berg & Co. Their chief grievance is the firm's present[illegible] tice of sending work to D[illegible] one Conn., thereby throwing Oran[illegible]an use ers out of their jobs. Only [illegible] hide his work is done in the Berg [illegible]

Send in that Subscripti

PRO-WAR STAND OF LAFOLLETTE NOW DISCLOSED

Bob Voted for 55 Out of 60 War Measures

By JAY LOVESTONE.
(Tenth Article.)

The United States was officially drawn into the imperialist holocaust on April 6, 1917. When we look into LaFollette's voting record on the sundry war measures considered and enacted by congress from this date to the conclusion of the war we find that he voted for fifty-five out of sixty such measures.

Our detailed examination of LaFollette's war record follows:

LaFollette's Pro-War Record.
April 6th.

"Battling Bob" voted for the appropriation of $163,841,400 for the general deficiency, one hundred million of which were immediately placed at the disposal of the president for any war purposes he might decide upon.

April 11.

The Wisconsin senator supported a bill to appropriate $147,363,928 for "sundry and civil expenses of the government."

Voted for an appropriation of $1,344,896 for the military academy.

Supported the 1918 army appropriation totalling $273,046,322.

April 17.

LaFollette voted "YEA" on "An act to authorize an issue of bonds to meet expenditures for the national security and defense, and for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution of the war, to extend credit to foreign governments and for other purposes." The total amount voted at this time was $5,063,054,460. Three billions went to the Allied imperialists as loans.

April 20.

Supports the measure to increase the midshipmen of the navy.

Votes for raising the age limit for officers of the naval reserve from 35 to 50 years.

Favors an act providing for the issuance of rifles and equipment to the home guards.

April 28.

LaFollette votes YEA on an amendment to draft bill for volunteers to protect the border and on an amendment to call for 500,000 volunteers and draft any deficiency after ninety days.

April 30.

Supported a resolution empowering President Wilson to take over the German and Austrian ships in American harbors.

May 9.

Votes for the Administration's amendment to the Federal Reserve Act.

May 14.

Tho voting against the Espionage act, LaFollette supported an amendment to the Espionage act, giving the president power to make rules preventing the disclosure of movements of vessels and other war activities, but providing that this should not be construed as preventing the criticism of the act or policies of the government.

May 15.

Votes for proposal to increase the enlisted strength of the navy, from eighty-seven to one hundred and fifty thousand, and the marine corps from 17,400 to 30,000.

Supports McCumber amendment to organize a board to devise ways and means of guarding against submarine attack.

May 16.

Favors a resolution permitting the Red Cross to erect temporary buildings in Washington.

May 19.

Supports a bill appropriating $3,281,094,541 for war expenses. This was the largest appropriation ever made up to that time by any government in the world at one time. Of this sum, $405,000,000 was for building a shipping fleet.

May 22.

LaFollette supports an act to increase power of interstate Commerce Commission in respect to car service. Favors an act appropriating $45,150,000 to insure vessels and their cargoes.

Votes in favor of naval appropriations as provided for in H. R. 10,854. The bill was unanimously agreed to. In order to secure better control of transportation during the war, LaFollette favored a bill to increase the personnel of the Interstate Commerce Commission and also for an amendment to prevent the increase of railroad rates until approved by the Commission.

May 29.

Votes in favor of an act to encourage retired officers to re-enter the army in the engineering corps.

June 2.

Votes for the Food Survey Bill, carrying appropriations of $11,336,000 for sundry purposes.

June 15.

Votes for bill providing for condemning land for military purposes.

June 16.

LaFollette favors bill giving president power to direct that war shipments should have priority over all other shipments.

June 18.

Favors bill granting officers of the Public Health Service serving on coast guard vessels in time of war, or enlisted in the navy or army, the same pensions as army or navy officers.

June 21.

LaFollette supports measure for National Security and Defense by stimulating agriculture and appropriating for same $11,346,000.

June 26.

LaFollette allows the senate to pass measure providing for the drafting of the state militia and the National Guard into the Federal service, without a roll call.

July 14.

Supports the establishment of a permanent aviation station for military and naval forces in the harbor of San Diego.

July 21.

Votes for the Food Control Bill, appropriating $162, 500,000.

Supports an appropriation of $640,000,000 for aviation.

July 23.

Favors a bill to relieve entrymen of desert land when they enter the naval or military service.

July 26.

Asserting that money is more needed for war purposes, LaFollette votes against the River and Harbor Appropriation Bill, during the war.

Supports amendment giving president power to limit expenditures on rivers and harbors during war, to actual necessities. Amendment defeated.

August 22.

LaFollette supports a bill to provide an air craft station for the navy at the cost of $150,000.

September 11.

Votes for an act to secure the secrecy of patents on war inventions during the conflict.

September 12.

Favors the organization of an air craft board and a hundred thousand dollar appropriation for the same.

Supports an act called "The Trading with the Enemy Act" making it unlawful to carry on business with an alien enemy.

September 13.

Supports an act providing for the appointment of twenty chaplains at large for the army.

September 15.

Votes for the bill authorizing the second bond issue giving the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, the power to borrow $7,558,945,640 for war expenditures, and to issue other certificates of indebtedness, up to four billion dollars and war saving stamps up to two billion dollars.

Several amendments proposed by LaFollette to limit the rate of interest to four percent, to issue bonds in sums of twenty dollars or multiples therof, and to tax incomes derived from bonds were defeated.

September 25.

LaFollette supports the second big appropriation for the war, totalling $5,356,666,016.

October 4.

Supports bill permitting public land affidavits to be taken before military officers.

Votes for act providing insurance for military forces and for injured soldiers and dependents involving an appropriation of $176,250,000.

October 5.

Supports a measure providing for commissions in the army for medical and dental corps.

Votes to fix commutation price of the navy ration.

Votes to establish ratings for artisans in the army.

Supports an act empowering the president to use cavalry as artillery regiments.

Favors a bill permitting vessels of foreign registration engaged in coastwise shipping to be admitted to American registration.

Supports an act granting six months' pay as a gratuity to families of deceased officers and making same applicable to all retired officers reentering active service.

Favors act extending morality and liquor sections of army draft law to the navy.

October 6.

LaFollette supports a bill facilitating the purchase of land for the Ordnance Department.

From the close of August to about mid-September, 1917, Congress was busy with the war revenue measure.

During all this time LaFollette was busily at work in an effort to raise the maximum sum of money with which to wage the war on the basis of levying higher tax rates on war profits and big incomes rather than on the incomes of the middle and lower groups of capitalists. LaFollette's proposals in this direction were of course, defeated by the spokesmen of the uppermost crust of the capitalist class. But none of "Bob's" amendments aimed at preventing the imperialists from getting war finds. He aimed only at transferring the burdens of war to the biggest capitalists from the lower group of exploiters.

LEGION AND A. F. L. FAKERS JOIN HANDS IN N. Y. LABOR MEET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 27.—"The aims of the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor are the same, namely to fight radicalism," said the state commander of the legion at the opening session of the State Federation of Labor convention here in Redmen's Hall.

President James Holland, in opening the convention, eulogized city and state officials for their great support to labor, which they still maintained was not a commodity, and to the child labor amendment.

A fight developed over the seating of the notorious Brindell building trades council, and altho they are not affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, they won the right to seats.

COMMUNISTS TO HAVE COMPLETE TICKET IN N. Y.

State and Local Slate Now Chosen

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The Workers Party of New York has nominated a complete local and state ticket to contest the elections this fall in opposition to the socialist party-LaFollette-labor faker concoction, the democrats and the republicans.

The petitions for signatures will be ready in a few days. Each branch manager must immediately get in touch with the district campaign manager for petitions for his district and also instructions in order to finish the tremendous task of getting 50,000 signatures during the coming month.

Unions Endorse Ticket.

A special conference has been called of all sympathetic unions, Workmen's Circle branches, and other fraternal organizations, the Kranke Kasse and co-operative movements to ratify and endorse the Workers Party ticket.

Plans are rapidly going ahead with the formation of cloakmakers, furriers, capmakers and other committees from the various industries in support of the party slate (printed in another column).

Several amendments proposed by LaFollette to limit the rate of interest to four percent, to issue bonds in sums of twenty dollars or multiples therof, and to tax incomes derived from bonds were defeated.

September 25.

LaFollette supports the second big appropriation for the war, totalling $5,356,666,016.

October 4.

Supports bill permitting public land affidavits to be taken before military officers.

Votes for act providing insurance for military forces and for injured soldiers and dependents involving an appropriation of $176,250,000.

October 5.

Supports a measure providing for commissions in the army for medical and dental corps.

Votes to fix commutation price of the navy ration.

Votes to establish ratings for artisans in the army.

Supports an act empowering the president to use cavalry as artillery regiments.

Favors a bill permitting vessels of foreign registration engaged in coastwise shipping to be admitted to American registration.

Supports an act granting six months' pay as a gratuity to families of deceased officers and making same applicable to all retired officers reentering active service.

Favors act extending morality and liquor sections of army draft law to the navy.

October 6.

LaFollette supports a bill facilitating the purchase of land for the Ordnance Department.

From the close of August to about mid-September, 1917, Congress was busy with the war revenue measure.

During all this time LaFollette was busily at work in an effort to raise the maximum sum of money with which to wage the war on the basis of levying higher tax rates on war profits and big incomes rather than on the incomes of the middle and lower groups of capitalists. LaFollette's proposals in this direction were of course, defeated by the spokesmen of the uppermost crust of the capitalist class. But none of "Bob's" amendments aimed at preventing the imperialists from getting war finds. He aimed only at transferring the burdens of war to the biggest capitalists from the lower group of exploiters.

IOWA UNION COAL LOSING IN FAVOR OF SCAB PRODUCT

Miners Losing Jobs by Manufacturer Scheme

(By Federated Press.)

DES MOINES, Aug. 27.—Discrimination by Iowa manufacturers against Iowa union-mined coal is charged by a committee of the United Mine Workers local at Des Moines. This discrimination, the local says, has been going on for three years.

Coal From Scab Fields.

"Before the unaccountable discrimination set in," says the committee statement, "Iowa produced an average of 7,000,000 tons of coal. During 192- state mines produced about 4,000,000 tons. The state's consumption is somewhere around 40,000,000 tons. Eastern coal is bought in the Chicago market at prices greater than Iowa coal. The coal has frequently been mined in West Virginia and east Kentucky, both strong nonunion fields. Union mined coal, however, is also bought.

Miners Losing Jobs.

"If discrimination keeps up, the miners will lose all work and the operators will be forced to shut down their mines. About 400 out of the Des Moines miners are working half time; the rest are working about one day a week or less. This discrimination is directed not against the Des Moines miners, but against all Iowa miners, numbering some 12,000 men, or figuring on the basis of four to a family, some 48,000 persons."

According to President J. H. Harris of the Iowa District 13, over $42,000,000 is pent by Iowa people each year for coal mined out of the state.

First Woman To Swim Channel.

PARIS, August 27. — Thomas Burgess, first man to swim the English channel, predicts that Miss Lillian Harrison, champion girl swimmer of Argentina, whom he is training, will be the first woman to turn the trick.

SOLEMN AMERICAN DIGNITARIES — YELL AS CALVIN IS NOTIFIED; G. O. P. OLD GUARD STAYS HOME

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, August 27.—Radio audiences, listening in Coolidge's acceptance speech, wondered at the persistence of a wolfish howl which started the volleys of applause from time to time, in sately Continental Memorial hall. They must have wondered, too, at the starting of the applause on the most inconsequential phrases amid the labyrinth of platitudes.

Had they been in the hall, where Butler, Weeks, Gillett, Stearns, Greene and the rest of the Massachusetts bloc—excepting only the disabled Lodge—dominated an audience composed of government employes and their relatives, they would have discovered Frank Mondell had provided them with a professional cheer-leader.

The Rah-Rah Boys.

This cheer-leader, a short, fat, red-faced man with horn-rimmed spectacles and high-tension energy in his pudgy arms, sat on the middle aisle, front row, just under the speaker's desk and in front of Chairman Butler and Lameduck Mondell. He watched anxiously a source of inspiration which appeared to be the Wyoming derelict, and at every possible chance he leaped to his feet, thrust his arms out over the crowd as tho to yank them from their chairs, let out his awful yell, and began the pumping gestures that mark the cheer-leader at a football game.

Charles, the Baptist, Also.

At the end of three minutes of the first serious outbreak by this professional enthuser, Hughes stepped forward and called for three cheers for Coolidge, which were given to the graceful waving of his left arm. Hughes seemed to think that he had established decorum, but he was soon disabused of that notion. Cal smacked his lips over the phrase "stupendous sum" and the madman was up again.

A few minutes later Cal paid tribute to Hughes, Mellon, his pension vetoes, and proposed to keep America American. At each of these points the signal which seemed to come from Mondell and to reach the cheer-leader by means of a tack under his seat, sent the fat arms pumping over the heads of the first two rows, while grimaces that would excite the envy of the hunchback of Notre Dame enlivened his features.

A Significant Silence.

When Cal mentioned honesty in government, the one-man demonstration was asleep, but the tack, or whatever it was, woke him with a bound, and turning in midair to face the audience he let out a whoop that caused even the hardened Jim Watson to lift an eyebrow. And so it went thru the entire performance.

The G. O. P. old guard was not present.

The Old Familiar Faces Gone.

Where were Pepper and Smoot and Wadsworth and Moses and Lenroot and the rest of the boys? Where was Cummins? Where were Newberry and Denby and Fall and Daugherty and the rest who notified Harding, four years ago? What had happened to Poindexter and Kellogg and McCumber and McCormick and where was their safe majority in the house and the senate?

CANNON HEADS TICKET OF WORKERS PARTY IN STATE OF NEW YORK

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

NEW YORK, August 27.—The following state and local ticket has been selected by the Workers Party nominating convention held here:

For Governor, James P. Cannon, Long Island.
For Lieutenant Governor, Franklin P. Brill, Buffalo.
For Secretary of State, Lilly Lore, Brooklyn.
For Comptroller, Edward Lindgren, Brooklyn.
For Treasurer, Abraham Epstein, Bronx.
For Attorney General, Arthur S. Leeds, New York.
For State Engineer & Surveyor, Richard J. Verhagen, Schenectady.
CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS IN MANHATTAN
12th Dist., Harry Winitsky, against Jacob Panken, Socialist.
13th Dist., Rose Pastor Stokes, against Ferrari, Socialist.
14th Dist., Ludwig Lore, against Meyer London.
20th Dist., Juliet Stuart Poyntz, against La Guardia, "Republican-Socialist".
22nd Dist., Harry M. Wicks, against August Claessens.
CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS IN BROOKLYN
7th Dist., Joseph Kucher.
10th Dist., Alexander Trachtenberg.
ASSEMBLY DISTRICTS IN MANHATTAN
2nd Dist., Dr. Abraham Caspe.
4th Dist., Meyer Loonin.
6th Dist., Rubin Saltzman.
7th Dist., Carl Brodsky.
17th Dist., William Weinstone.
18th Dist., Dr. Abraham Markoff.
ASSEMBLY DISTRICTS IN BRONX
1st Dist., Louis Baum.
2nd Dist., Joseph J. Padgug.
4th Dist., Samuel Darcy.
5th Dist., Rebecca Grecht.
7th Dist., Emanuel Elston.
ASSEMBLY DISTRICTS IN BROOKLYN
6th Dist., Paul Scherer.
14th Dist., Sam Nesin.
22nd Dist., Benjamin Lifshitz.
23rd Dist., Fannie Warshafsky.
SENATORIAL DISTRICTS IN MANHATTAN
14th Dist., Mossaye J. Olgin.
15th Dist., Esther Wilson.
SENATORIAL DISTRICTS IN BROOKLYN
5th Dist., George Primoff.
11th Dist., Dr. Charles Brower.

NEW YORKERS TO GO WITHOUT THE JOYS OF MOVIES

Operators May Strike on September 1st

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—If New York folks want to see their favorite movie stars on and after September 1, they had better put pressure to bear on the managers to concede the union's demands for the two shift system and higher wages. At an enthusiastic meeting in Beethoven Hall, the membership of the Moving Picture Machine Operators Protective Union voted overwhelmingly to strike at the end of the month unless the bosses yield.

Confident of Victory.

The union is assessing its members $200,000 defense fund and is confident of a clean cut victory. Members of the General Executive Board pointed out to the Federated Press that the New York workers have a record of avoiding scab places once pickets have given them the facts. In addition, they say that the union has a near monopoly of the skilled operators in the industry.

Before authorizing a strike the union agreed to submit its demands to arbitration. These demands call for the two-shift system with a maximum of six hours and a minimum of four and a wage increase of 30 per cent. The scale now runs from $1.18 to $2.04 an hour. At the last moment the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce refused to negotiate the new wage scale and the strike vote was precipitated.

Shorter Day Demanded.

The union finds it necessary to cut hours to a double shift system because of the danger to health of operators who inhale the carbon monoxide fumes of the projection booth for any length of time. The shorter workday per operator is also made necessary by the unemployment in the industry. Under the two shift system a large part of the unemployed members will be put to work.

Will Advise Him To Quit.

TOKYO, August 27. — The Argentine minister here will advise the Argentine air racer, Major Zanni to quit world flights when he reaches Tokyo. The season is not conducive to high fliers.

INJUNCTIONS GET NASTY WALLOP IN NEW YORK COURT

McCrate Raps Bosses For Request

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The labor injunction got a rap in the court room of Supreme Court Justice McCrate in Brooklyn when he rebuked Gottlieb & Shiff, ladies' garment manufacturers for asking for a restraining order against the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, which is picketing the plant, before the police had found it necessary to make any arrests.

McCrate said that from his experience with the police he knew they would have made arrests if there had been any disorder. Morris Hillquit, counsel for the union, declared that there had been no violence. His legal opponent, John C. Osborne, representing the employers, attempted to emphasize the importance of some affidavits of employes who swore they were satisfied with their jobs but the Judge discounted such assertions as irrelevant.

He reserved decision on the injunction.

Lowden Dame Hitching Up.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., August 27.—Hundreds are being invited to tea this afternoon in honor of the hitching up of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden and the son of John B. Drake, sr. A good time will be had by John.

Divers Recover Dough.

LONDON, August 27.—With the exception of a few bars, the entire seven million pounds sterling of gold bullion that went down with the Laurentic when a German submarine torpedoed her has been recovered by divers, togethr with sundry jewelry.

10-HOUR DAY IN VOGUE IN STEEL MILLS

84-Hour Week Not All Eliminated Either

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The extent to which the eight-hour day has been installed in the steel industry has been greatly exaggerated, the Federal Council of Churches shows in an analysis of reports made by the U. S. Department of Labor and by S. Adele Shaw, an investigator for the Cabot Fund.

The 10-hour day is common and the 84-hour week has not been entirely abolished.

Unskilled Suffer Worst.

Laborers, the men who do the hardest work at the least pay, are the worst sufferers. Seventy-five per cent of the laborers in the blast furnaces work 60 hours a week and more. Of the laborers at the fiery open hearth furnaces 55 per cent work 60 hours and more. The number of men having the 48-hour week is almost negligible: only 8 per cent of the total blast furnace employes, skilled and unskilled, have their toil at this exhausting work limited to 48 hours, and just 4 per cent of the open hearth men. Conditions are slightly better on the Bessemer converter jobs.

There is a difference of observation regarding the seven-day week. Cabot Fund probing found it still prevailing, but the presidents of the U. S. Steel Corporation's manufacturing subsidiaries have just asserted that it has been abolished.

Where the eight-hour shift, with three shifts a day, is used, the workers get only eight hours' rest every other week-end, while shift time is being changed. The alternative week they get 32 hours' rest, which, however, is four to eight hours less than is given eight-hour men in other occupations.

Gary Forecast Untrue.

The gloomy forecasts of Judge Gary and other steel chiefs of higher costs under the shorter workday system have been borne out by production reports. In the rolling mills where 12-hour men have been put on ten-hour shifts on tonnage rates, production is as great in two ten-hour shifts or 20 hours as it formerly was in 24 hours. Since tonnage has actually increased on blast furnaces work, the same condition largely prevails.

The reports show a large influx of Negroes and Mexicans to take the place of the European immigrants on whom the industry formerly depended for its fresh labor supply.

CLEVELAND W. P. TO HOLD PICNIC ON LABOR DAY

Party Preparing for Gitlow Meeting

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 27.—The last picnic of the season by Local Cleveland, Workers Party, will be held on Labor Day, at Russick's Farm. All party members should arrange to spend the day at this picnic in order to help make this last affair a rousing success.

The program of entertainment includes sports, dancing, and a speech by Comrade Brahtin, Candidate for Congress from the 21st Congressional District. Comrade Brahtin is one of the best-informed comrades in the Cleveland Local and his talk will be well worth the hearing.

The sports will include a Potatoe Race, Tug of War, Sack Race, and Running Race for Men, for Women, and for Children.

Take the West 25th car to the end, then the State Road car to the end; ¼ mile west of the car line is the picnic ground, on Russick's Farm. Automobiles take the Ridge Road to Bean Road, left on Bean Road to State Road, left on State Road to Russick's Farm.

The Collinwood Branches are holding street meetings at the corner of School and Ross at 7:30 p. m. All members and sympathizers in that section should turn out and help make these meetings successful; held on Saturday night, at 7 p. m.

Preparations are being made for a large crowd to hear Comrade Ben Gitlow, candidate for Vice-President, when he speaks here Sunday, Sept. 7, at 7:30 p. m., at the Bricklayers Hall, East 21st St. near Prospect. Admission will be 25 cents. Reserve this date, and advertise it among your friends and at your union or fraternal meeting.

Sheffield To Mexico

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—James R. Sheffield, New York lawyer, is under consideration for appointment as United States ambassador to Mexico, it was learned today.

Take a Vote in Your Shop

HOW do the workers in your shop stand in this presidential election campaign?

How many of your shop mates are still so backward that they accept the leadership of Coolidge and Davis?

How many of your fellow workers have been fooled by the specious pleas of LaFollette and adopt this middle-class saviour?

And, above all, how many workers are there in your shop who understand that the working class must have its own party, its own policy, and its own candidate—and who therefore stand for William Z. Foster for president?

Take a vote in your shop. Send it in to the DAILY WORKER. We will compile it along with all the other shop votes and give you a picture of how the workers are thinking about the election issues and candidates.

WORKERS' STRAW VOTE

THE DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

The workers employed in the shop of.....

.....have taken a straw vote on the presidential candidates, and the vote was as follows:

FOSTER ..... votes; LaFOLLETTE ..... votes;

DAVIS ..... votes; COOLIDGE ..... votes.

I certify that this report is correct:

Name: .....

Address: .....

Views of Our Readers

Capitalist System Ethics.

To the DAILY WORKER—I wish you would publish this letter in your paper to give your readers one example of the honesty of the industrial capitalist class.

A year ago, thru an advertisement in the Rural New Yorker, which claims it guarantees all its advertisements, I purchased a garden tractor from the Centaur Tractor Company of Norwich, Ohio, paid $412 for it in cash and received a guarantee from the company that they would take the tractor back and refund my money if it did not prove satisfactory.

So I had "two" guarantees. I tried out the tractor and found it was no good—it did not do the work guaranteed in the contract. I wrote the company and explained in detail. I asked them to take the tractor back and return my money. They refused to do it, and I have a tractor which is of no use to me.

It has cost me $412 to learn what the Rural New Yorker guarantee advertisements are. An expensive lesson you will agree.—Joseph Carosilli Holly, N. Y.

Send in that Subscription Today.

MUSICIANS ATTENTION!

Cornetists, flutists, clarinetists, and other wind instruments, also cellists and drummers

WANTED

By the Young Workers League Orchestra

Come and join the only revolutionary working class orchestra in Chicago. Friday, 8 p. m., 823 Kimball Hall Bldg.

The Workers Party in Action

DEFENSE COUNCIL TO HANDLE ALL W. P. COURT CASES

Roger Baldwin Endorses New Policy

The Labor Defense Council, which raised over $100,000 for the defense of Foster, Ruthenberg and the other Communists indicted in Michigan, will henceforth handle the defense of all members of the Workers Party who are persecuted for their political activities involving the rights of free speech, free press and assemblage.

This step, which will add enormously to the responsibilities and requirements of the Labor Defense Council, was proposed by the local executive committee; approved by Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, and unanimously decided upon at a meeting of national committee members in Chicago last week. In addition to the Michigan cases, the L. D. C. will now take over the Farrell cases, the Pittsburgh cases, the New York cases and various deportation cases now on, as well as any new case that comes up. Just yesterday a new deportation arrest was reported, in Superior, Wis.

Need for General Defense.

The Labor Defense Council, will of course, retain its non-partisan national committee, headed by C. C. Wertworth as chairman, and Eugene V. Debs and Rev. John A. Ryan as vice-chairman.

Many supporters of the Labor Defense Council have expressed recently the need for a general Workers Party defense organization and, altho not party members, have pledged their support in the interest of free speech. The "National Defense Committee" formerly existed for this purpose, but it practically ceased functioning at the time the Labor Defense Council was formed—due to the absorbtion of the defense energies of the party units into the work of the Labor Defense Council.

Baldwin's Letter.

Roger Baldwin who has been a member of the national committee since its formation, sent the following communication to the Labor Defense Council office regarding the change of policy:

"Regarding your proposal to extend the work to include all the cases of the Workers Party members prosecuted in the exercise of their civil rights, let me say that I am in entire accord.

"As the situation stands today throughout the country, the I. W. W. has its own defense organization (General Defense Committee), the Negroes have their defense organization in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and various other groups have their own organization defense machinery. Cases of persons outside of these organizations are handled by the Civil Liberties Union in addition to its general propaganda work in behalf of free speech.

"But there is no organization at present handling Workers Party cases on a national scale. Such a piece of machinery is needed and the Labor Defense Council is obviously at hand to it. There would be an advantage in having the work handled by a non-partisan agency free from control by the Workers Party, but working virtually under contract with it and in close co-operation. It would be possible, of course, for the Workers Party to organize its own defense machinery composed of its own members, but it would not be as effective a piece of work from the point of view of their right to agitate in court as if organized under a representative and non-partisan committee, as is the Labor Defense Council.

"I can see no reason why those who are committed to the principle of free speech for every group and party should not be willing to participate in getting free speech for a particular party, without committing themselves in any way whatever to that party's propaganda.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) Roger N. Baldwin, Director, American Civil Liberties Union."

Secretary George Maurer, calls attention to the fact that the change in policy brings with it a greatly increased need for funds. Sympathizers are asked to redouble their efforts to help make effective the demand that there be free speech for Communists in America. Send all contributions to the Labor Defense Council, 166 W. Washington St., Chicago.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.
645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 6th Ave.
1437 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

Store for Sale.
8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.
Guaranteed business over $90.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer & Depot.
P. MANUSOS
3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

BELL'S HOTEL,
1921 W. Park Ave.
Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0681.

Our Candidates

FOSTER'S DATES

Sioux City, Iowa—Labor Lyceum, 808 Jennings St., Friday, August 29, 8 p. m.

Des Moines, Iowa—Grotto Hall, 721 Locust St., Saturday, August 30, 8 p. m.

Omaha, Neb.—Eagles Hall, 17th and Cass Sts., Sunday, August 31, 8 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo.—Musicians' Hall, 1017 Washington St., Labor Day, September 1, 8 p. m.

Ziegler, Ill.—Pavilion Park on Wednesday, September 3rd, 8:45 p. m.

Springfield, Ill.—Carpenter Hall, Adams and Seventh Sts., Thursday, September 4th, 8 p. m.

St. Louis, Mo.—Triangle Park, 41 South Broadway, Tuesday, September 2nd, 8 p. m.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Turn Hall, 725 High St., Wednesday, September 10, 8 p. m.

Newark, N. J.—Labor Lyceum, 704 So. 14th St., Thursday, September 11, 8 p. m.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Musical Fund Hall, 8th and Locust Streets, Friday, September 12, 8 p. m.

Allentown, N. J.—Salvitia Hall, 56 Van Houton Street, Saturday, September 13, 8 p. m.

GITLOW'S DATES

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

Buffalo, Friday, Aug. 29.

Rochester, The Labor Lyceum, 580 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Dalsytown—Sunday, Aug. 31.

Canonsburg—Monday, Sept. 1.

West N. Y., N. J.—Floral Hall, 11th and Polk Streets, Wednesday, September 10th, 8 p. m.

Canton, Ohio.—Canton Music Hall, 810 Tuscarawas St., E., Friday, September 5th, 8 p. m.

Akron, Ohio.—Perkins School Auditorium, Exchange and Bowery Sts., Saturday, September 6th, 8 p. m.

Canonsburg, Pa.—Labor Temple, Monday, September 8th, 8 p. m.

Bellaire, Ohio — Mineral Temple, Wednesday, September 3rd, 7:30 p. m.

Providence, R. I.—A. C. A. Hall, 1753 Westminster Street, Monday September 15th, 8 p. m.

Daisytown, Pa.—Muffet Field, Walkertown, Pa., Sunday, August 31st, 1:30 p. m.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, William and Jefferson Sts., Friday, August 29th, 8 p. m.

C. E. Ruthenberg executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Two of these meetings already arranged for are:

Boston, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1, Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.

New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St., 8 p. m.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

BRANCH MEETINGS.

Thursday, August 28.

Enlarged City Executive Committee—Room 307, 166 West Washington Street.

Eleventh Ward Italian—2439 South Oakley Blvd.

Scandinavian Karl Marx—2722 Hirsch Boulevard.

Scandinavian, West Side—Zelch's Hall, Corner Cicero and Superior.

Scandinavian, Lake View—2206 North Wilton Street.

Friday, August 29.

Scandinavian, South Chicago—641 East 61st Street.

U. W. S. S. Membership Meeting—Workers Lyceum, 8 p. m.

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.

Thursday, August 28.

62nd and Halsted Sts., auspices Englewood W. P., speakers Louis Engdahl, A. Henderson, Maurer and K. Harris.

47th and Ashland and Gross, auspices Polish branch, speakers, C. Miller and Polish comrade.

Friday, August 29.

North Ave. and Rockwell St., auspices N. W. English branch and Maplewood Y. W. L., speakers D. E. Early, C. Miller and others.

Lawrence and Sawyer, auspices Irving Park Y. W. L. and W. P., speakers, Hammermark and others.

Roosevelt and St. Louis Ave., auspices Robey Y. W. L., speakers, Wm. Kruse and M. Luryo.

14th and 51st Ct., auspices Cicero branches, speakers, Maurer and Italian comrades.

Saturday, August 30.

North Ave., and Mohawk, auspices German W. P. and Hungarian Y. W. L., speakers, D. E. Early and C. Miller.

Division and Washtenaw, auspices N. W. Jewish branch and Y. W. L., speakers, Mr. Gomez, S. Hammermark and Jewish comrade.

Division and Michigan, auspices Pullman section W. P., speakers, Louis Engdahl and Tom O'Flaherty.

Halsted and Arbor Sts., auspices Greek branch W. P., speakers F. Buckley and Greek comrade.

30th St., and State, auspices South Side W. P., speakers Joe Manley and Gordon Owens.

Dickson and Division, auspices Polish branch, speakers, Max Salzman and Polish comrade.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.

Party units and friendly organizations do not set conflicting dates.

Monday, Sept. 1—T. U. E. L. Picnic, Altenheim Grove.

Sunday, Sept. 7.—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.

Sunday, Oct. 12—Foster-Gitlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).

Saturday, Oct. 18—John Reed Memorial Meeting.

Saturday, Oct. 25—Freiheit Ball, Ashland Auditorium.

Friday, Nov. 7.—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Nov. 15 — Young Workers League Ball.

Nov. 27-30—Daily Worker and Labor Defense Council Bazaar.

Wednesday, Dec. 31—T. U. E. L. Dance, West End Hall.

Wednesday, Jan. 21 — Lenin Memorial Meeting, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Feb. 28—Red Revel.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

BRIDGEMAN RAID TEST CASE SET FOR OCTOBER

Defense Council Calls for Financial Aid

The appeal of C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party of America, will be heard by the Michigan Supreme Court in the fore or second week of October.

After nine months of inexplicable dilly-dallying on the part of the prosecuting attorneys, during which the date of the hearing was repeatedly announced, and time after time postponed, formal preliminaries have at last been compiled with, making it certain that Ruthenberg's appeal from conviction under the Michigan Criminal Syndicalism Law will come up early in the October term of court. Assignment to the October term has already been made by Judge White, following the filing of the Bill of Exceptions in the case last week.

Owing to numerous delays on the part of the prosecution, it is expected that Assistant Attorney General O. L. Smith of Michigan has been working up some sort of surprise or other legal trick by means of which he hopes to defeat the appeal and railroad Ruthenberg to jail. However, the defense has been making good use of the extra time, too; the Labor Defense Council, which is conducting the appeal, has been collecting funds steadily from working class sympathizers, with the result that only a few thousand dollars are now lacking to assure Ruthenberg the benefit of every available legal resource.

Funds for the defense should be sent in at once to the Labor Defense Council, 166 W. Washington Street, Chicago.

What makes the Ruthenberg appeal especially important to all interested in free speech, is the fact that the court will be asked to pass upon the constitutionality of the Criminal Syndicalism law. Radicals and militant labor leaders have been arrested in more than a score of states under hysteria laws closely resembling the Michigan statute.

Armenian Section Holds Convention in N. Y. Saturday

The Armenian Section of the Workers Party will hold a Convention beginning Saturday, August 30th, in New York City. The meetings will be held at the club rooms of the New York Armenian branch, 407 Fourth Avenue.

For nearly a year now there have been difficulties in the Armenian Section due to controversies between various groups.

Federation and Party Unite.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has endeavored to settle the controversy and build up a functioning organization. To achieve this, it united the Armenian Workers Party and the Armenian Federation, both of which were accepted as affiliated groups of the Workers Party at the Boston Convention, held in the spring of this year.

A temporary Bureau for the combined organization was appointed by the Central Executive Committee. This Bureau has been carrying on the work with some difficulty due to the feeling aroused by the factional controversy.

Start Constructive Work

Thru a joint action of the Bureau of the Armenian Section and the Central Executive Committee of the Party, the Convention which is to begin Saturday was called at which all the problems of the Armenian Section will be taken up and a Bureau elected by the delegates present.

The work of the Armenian Section has been improving for some time and it is expected that this Convention will mark the ending of the factional controversy and the beginning of constructive work among the Armenian workers of this country for the Communist movement.

Births in Decline For Year of 1924 In City of Berlin

BERLIN, August 27.—The number of births in the German metropolis is lagging more and more behind the number of deaths, according to statistics recently published by the Berlin health office. In 1920, right after the war, there were slightly more births than deaths. Thereafter was a decline, which reached 2.8 per thousand of deaths in excess of births by 1923, and even 4.4 per thousand during the first quarter of 1924.

This was largely due to the terrible poverty of the German masses who are dying off by the thousands.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR WORK LAID IN BOSTON DIST.

Balanced Program Being Carried Out

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—Plans for extensive work in District No. 1 of the Workers Party have been laid out, according to the bulletin sent out to the membership by District Organizer John J. Ballam.

New district headquarters have already been secured at 158 Broadway, corner of Shawmut Ave., containing a large hall, and branches are urged to send in donations in order to make it self-sustaining.

Educational Work.

A complete curriculum for educational work in the fundamentals of Marxian science, the labor movement, public speaking, American politics and a trade course has been laid out to be run thru the old Boston School of Social Science, which has been reorganized as a party institution, with Comrade Stevens in charge.

The T. U. E. L. is being reorganized and the DAILY WORKER membership drive is being pushed with renewed vigor. Members are also being urged to aid in the organization of Y. W. L. branches wherever possible.

The district organization furnishing any necessary speakers.

The Foster-Gitlow campaign is being combined with the Massachusetts political drive, and all efforts are being made to get our candidates on the ballot. Altho Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont will have no state tickets this year, Communist campaign meetings will be held in whatever cities it is possible to do so.

COP WHO USED TO CRUSH STRIKERS DESIRES PENSION

Wakefield Notorious in 1913 Garment Walkout

(By the Federated Press)

NEW YORK, August 27.—Captain George R. Wakefield has applied for retirement on pension after 28 years in the police department. Wakefield is said to be aggrieved because Commissioner Enright reduced him from a deputy inspectorship. This job grievance of Wakefield's brings to mind his activities during the famous garment strike of 1913 when as captain of the old West Seventeenth Street station in the heart of the strike district he did all he could to crush the efforts of the white goods workers to improve their own job conditions.

Mass arrests of peaceful pickets were made. Wakefield was a specialist in letting the bosses' thugs finish their job of beating up the girls and then having them rushed to the police station in patrol wagons. Pat Colonna told newspapermen, among them a reporter now on the Federated Press, that they were acting under orders from Wakefield when they made these wholesale arrests which they regarded as unnecessary from the standpoint of law and order. They added that Wakefield was understood to have been "fixed" by the manufacturers.

Even Pinched Suffragettes

The gallant officer had the suffragette leaders who assisted in the picketing dragged into the police stations and hailed before police judges. His arresting efforts paused only before Miss Fola LaFollette, the senator's daughter, whom the captain considered ill good tactics to avoid, tho he insisted to newspapermen that he would take her in if she stopped moving.

NEW YORK CITY Party Activities

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

Time, Place and Speakers.

Friday, August 29.

Jefferson and E. Broadway—Harry Hartman.

10th St. and 2nd Ave.—W. W. Weinstein.

106th St. and Madison Avenue—J. S. Poyntz.

183rd St. and S. Blvd.—Rebecca Grecht and Simon Felshin.

138th St. and Brook Avenue—John Marshall.

Grand and Roebling St., Brooklyn—I. Potash, B. Davidson.

Stone and Pitkin—Joe Brandy.

Graham and Varet Sts., Brooklyn—Jewish speakers.

5th Ave. and 52nd Sts., Brooklyn—Whitney, Undjus.

11th Ave. and 42nd St.—S. Darcy, S. Plason.

25th St. and Mermaid Ave., Coney Island—L. Landy and others.

New York City Take Notice.

BRANCH ONE (Bronx English) and BRANCH SIX (Harlem English) of the Y. W. L. comradly request the YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE and the WORKERS PARTY Branches, in New York, to refrain from arranging any affair on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1924, because we have already arranged a large affair for that evening at PARK VIEW PALACE, 110th St. and 5th Ave., N. Y. C. Profits will be shared with the D. E. C. & N. E. C. Co-operation will tend towards a successful affair.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

FRENCH AND BRITISH LIBERAL LABOR GOVERNMENTS SUPPRESS COMMUNIST PAPERS IN GERMANY

By CHARLES ASHLEIGH
(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—(By Mail.)—For the anti-war week in Britain, organized by the Communist Party of Great Britain, Comrade Stoecker, a Communist member of the German reichstag, representing the industrial constituency of Dusseldorf, came to Britain as a representative of the German Communist party.

Your correspondent had an opportunity of speaking with Comrade Stoecker, who was most anxious for the workers everywhere to have the facts of the conditions under which the class conscious workers' movement is compelled to function in the occupied areas.

Occupation Halts Revolt.

"Since the occupation," said Comrade Stoecker, "the revolutionary class-conscious movement in the occupied territories has been greatly hindered and suppressed. The Communist Party has had particularly to suffer, in this connection. In all the occupied areas, and especially the French, the party has been continually persecuted by the occupational authorities. Hundreds of officials and members have been arrested, and held for varying periods in prisons, some being sentenced to lengthy terms. Large numbers of the leaders have been deported, from both British and French controlled areas.

Suppress Red Bulletins.

"Then ten Communist daily papers in the occupied areas are continually being prohibited for varying periods. The Communist daily paper, "Die Sozialistische Republik," has been forbidden to appear seven times, by the British authorities, in most cases the prohibition lasting several weeks. On August 1, the Communist daily paper in Aachen, the "Aachene Arbeiterzeitung," was again closed down, this time for a period of four weeks."

"And has there been no diminution of this since the Labor government came to power in Britain, and the French Republican-Socialist bloc achieved their electoral victory?" I asked.

"None at all," replied Stoecker. "In fact, on August 3, all anti-war demonstrations, organized by the German Communist Party, in the occupied areas were summarily forbidden, both by the French and British authorities. And the Communist member of the Reichstag, elected from Cologne, Florin, has been deported for some time, and the ban has not been lifted. Thus, he is not only unable to visit his family in Cologne, but he cannot even return to the constituency which he represents in the Reichstag, to confer with his electors. This should strike the public as being a most curious interference with the workings of parliamentary democracy, by authorities who are supposed to be controlled by a democratic labor government.

Communists Successful.

"The Communist Party has had great success in the elections in Rhineland and Westphalia. Large numbers of workers have rallied to its colors. Thereupon the persecution of the party by the occupational authorities became still more intensified. The German Communist Party desires that the proletariat of the world should know of these matters, and should add their protests to the voices which have already been raised against this arbitrary terrorism exercised by the occupational authorities against the working class movement of these areas."

BIG SHIFT IN U. S. DIPLOMATIC CORPS EXPECTED

Minister to China May Go to Persia

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, August 27.—A big shift in the American diplomatic corps to fill existing vacancies in Japan, Mexico and Persia, and possible vacancies in Rome and China, may be expected shortly, it was learned at the state department today.

Since his return from Europe ten days ago, Secretary of State Hughes has been busy looking over the diplomatic field with the result that President Coolidge will have the opportunity in a few days to approve the schedule of appointments and changes contemplated.

Important Posts.

The most important ambassadorial posts which have to be filled are those at Tokyo and Mexico City, vacant since the retirement of Cyrus E. Woods and Charles Beecher Warren.

Under consideration for appointment as minister to Japan are Edgar A. Bancroft, Chicago attorney, and Jacob Gould Schurman, American minister to China, who is no enroute to the United States for conferences with state department officials.

It was also reported today that Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, former under secretary of state, more recently American minister to Belgium, and now the ambassador to Italy, would be transferred to Mexico City, a diplomatic post which he held before being assigned to the state department.

To Become Rabbi.

The Persian vacancy comes about thru the resignation of Minister Joseph Saul Kornfeld, who is returning to the United States to become the Rabbi of a Jewish synagogue in Toledo, Ohio.

It is possible that Minister Schurman may be transferred to Teheran to succeed Kornfeld in view of the tense situation now prevailing in Persia, following the assassination of Major Robert Imbrie, the American vice consul.

Would Deny Fighters for "Democracy" Right to Vote in America

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Aug. 27.—More than 200 patients of the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Fort Whipple, near here, are incensed at the action of John E. Russell, local attorney, in his demand upon the county recorder that their names be stricken from the registration lists and they be denied the right to vote in the coming election.

The demand is based upon the assumption that Fort Whipple patients are not residents of Arizona, or Yapavai county, but are living on a government reservation.

Local attorneys claim that there is no basis for the action, as Fort Whipple is not an army reservation, having been turned over to the veterans' bureau more than four years ago. The action will be bitterly contested, it is said.

ILLINOIS BOSSES WILL USE RADIO AGAINST WORKERS

Plan Talks on Patriotic Subjects for Fans

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

Organized radio propaganda is about to be added to the Illinois Manufacturers' Assn. program for making the 800,000 industrial workers of the state more docile. Daily noontime programs will be broadcasted by station WMAQ Chicago beginning Nov. 11. In the meantime the packers and manufacturers thruout the state are preparing to install radio receiving sets in their plants so that employes can be regaled with employer propaganda spiced with music during their lunches.

Americanization Bunk.

Americanization, interest of employe in total manufacturing output, importance of factory employe to the community, efficiency, wages and production, health and accidents, thrift and home ownership, sports, taxation and legislation, the popular man in the factory, safety, mutual interests of capital and labor, successful manufacturers who started at the bottom, etc.

Another Opium Can.

Employers see that the radio invention has given their class another means, supplementing the colossal power of the capitalist press, to standardize the mental attitude of the masses of the people. They are planning to use it like the press to maintain proper wage-slave psychology.

An Aid to Illiteracy.

The average number of years a pupil attends public schools in the States varies from 4.05 and 9.08 years. Illiteracy is highest in those states where the average years of public school life is shorter according to statisticians of the United States Bureau of Education.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

NAME ELECTORS ON PARTY SLATE FOR BALTIMORE

Push Drive for Foster in Maryland

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27.—Baltimore is on the Communist bandwagon. Petitions are now circulated to place Foster and Gitlow on the ballot.

Members of the Workers Party pledged to contribute a day's wages to the election campaign. Meetings, including a Foster mass meeting, are being arranged. The poisonous La Follette propaganda is being counteracted.

Duffy Heads Ticket.

Leading the list of eight state electors on the Workers Party ticket is John H. Duffy, a colored comrade, an unusual event in this half southern, anti-Negro town. The other electors are: Thomas Sepp, carpenter; Frank Bernat, tailor; Albert A. Mauck Jr., basket maker; Clement Loskot, stationary engineer; Frank Heyduk, tailor; Isadore Samuelson, portrait artist; Joseph Highkin, dental mechanic. The working class character of the Workers Party as compared with the local LaFollette ticket is evident in the comparison of occupations of the W. P. and the "Progressive" electoral ticket. A former judge, a minister, a college professor, are featured as the saviours. The "Progressives" decided not to place a negro on the ballot because it might harm their cause. The only workers on the ticket are two highly skilled craftsmen, a locomotive engineer and a patternmaker.

Baltimore Turns a Leaf

Altho the Baltimore local has not been sufficiently active for a long time, it is now turning a new leaf, with the assistance of the District Organiser, Comrade Jakira. Further steps to improve local activity will be taken at a general membership meeting on August 29th. The meeting will be held at the Finnish Hall, 701 S. 16th street. The problems before the local are, the reorganization of the T. U. E. L., the increase of circulation of the party press and a more effective English branch. The plan under consideration here, is the transfer of English speaking members of the federation branches to the English branch.

Membership Meeting of Czecho-Slovaks to be Held Friday

All members of the Czecho-Slovakian branches of the Workers Party in Cook County are instructed to be present at a general party meeting Friday, Sept. 29, at Novak's Hall, Homan ave., and 25th. A program of organization and press will be presented there and all Czecho-Slovak comrades should make it their business to be present and participate in the discussions.

Postal Clerks Discuss Wages.

George Reiter, Hugh Long and Martin Callahan were sent as delegates from the Chicago Postoffice Clerks' Union to their national convention to be held in Minneapolis, beginning Sept. 3, and to last three days. The convention will act on the president's veto of the demand for increased salaries.

Killed Hopping a "Fly."

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., August 27.—Joseph Zudor, 17, of Indianapolis, was killed here today in an attempt to hop a train while "on the fly" to St. Louis to visit two aunts. He was crushed by the train's wheels.

EDUCATE YOURSELF FOR THE STRUGGLE

Class in English (for foreign-born workers) begins September 10; tuition fee $2.00.

Class in Trade Union Tactics begins September 11; tuition fee $1.00.

Enroll Now at Local Chicago Office, 166 W. Washington St. (Phone State 7986).

Shoe Workers and Friends Are Cordially Invited to Attend
Annual Picnic
Given by
JOINT COUNCIL No. 3
Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America
ATLAS PARK
5025 N. CRAWFORD AVENUE
Crawford Ave. Cars Stop at Grove
SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND EVENING
August 31, 1924
Tickets 50c a Person
Baseball — Dancing — Racing — Games
Music by Jansen's Orchestra

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

UNEMPLOYMENT DANGER TO LABOR CATHOLICS STATE

Unionize Unorganized is Appeal

(By the Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—"The outstanding danger to the labor movement is the threat of widespread and grave unemployment," says the Labor Day summary issued by the social action department, National Catholic Welfare Council. "This is still a matter of the future except in the coal industry, and in the cotton and woolen industry in New England. In some sections the Ku Klux Klan is working havoc to local unions and local labor federations.

Organize Unorganized

"One of the greatest needs of the labor movement is the organising of the unskilled and the office workers, especially women, immigrants, and Negroes. Women workers are now unprotected by compulsory minimum wage legislation. Except during the war time, more of them are now in industry than ever before. They see the need of organization more than before.

"The number of immigrants coming in has declined and most of the immigrants have been long enough in the country to know the language and customs. The time is suitable now for a campaign to organize them.

"Negroes have moved north in great numbers. They are entering industry in competition with whites. They are a part of the 'labor market.'"

Oriental Merchants Prepare to Enter in Nijni-Novgorod Fair

(Rosta News Service.)

MOSCOW, July 1 (by mail).—In view of the approaching date of opening of the Nijni-Novgorod Fair, a number of conferences have been organized by the Russo-Oriental Chamber of Commerce with the participation of Western Chinese, Afghan and Mongolian merchants.

The Mongolian Union of Co-operative Societies proposes to send to the Fair a large quantity of wool and raw hides. The same products have already been sent also from Western China, according to latest advices received by the Chamber.

CUSTOM TAILORS
Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing of All Kinds
PARIS QUI CHANTE
E. Abboti and V. Cardillo
1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

MINER'S HEADS DON'T DARE URGE CUT

(Continued from page 1)

which in turn, is in the hands of Wall Street.

A Huge Mine.

The Burlington Railroad mine is one of the biggest soft coal mines in the state and therefore in the world. It produces around 6,000 tons of coal every day, and employs more men than any other mine in the world, about 1,800.

After a long period of unemployment the mine started work this spring, keeping open an average of three days a week. But with the passing of the unemployment spectre other problems cropped up. The experience of the miners at Valier are the everyday experiences, with some variation, of every miner in every coal mine in the world. They are the daily skirmishes of the class struggle, which have hardened the coal miner, and made him as used to fighting for his rights as he is to eating his meals.

Many Men Employed.

"The Burlington mine hires about twice as many men as they need," Marko Tinuna, an old resident of Valier told me. "There are so many men working down in the mine that they get in each other's way. Each miner has only a small place to work, and consequently the individual output is so small that on our piece rate scale we make only a trifle more than the non-union miner. We only average four or five dollars a day when we work, and we don't make quite enuf to pay our living expenses. We are going in the hole even when working, and this is one of the best mines in the state."

The miners in Valier are fighting against these unjust conditions, and they have a lot to fight about. The mine manager, Charles Anderson, is accused by the miners of neglecting to provide for the safety of the men. Anderson, at present, is out on $2,000 bond, charged by the mine examiners with forcing the men to work under unsafe conditions.

Mine Filled with Gas.

"There is a lot of gas and dust in this mine anyhow," Martin Boravoc, another Valier miner, told me. "The rate provides that this mine shall have a certain number of mine examiners. Contrary to this law, and contrary to the rules of the United Mine Workers Union, Anderson, the mine manager, discharged nine mine examiners. The mine examiners, claim that it was an impossibility for the remaining few examiners to safeguard the lives of the miners, arrested Anderson, charging he broke the mine laws. Anderson was tried in Benton, by the County Court, the result being a hung jury. Eleven men were for acquittal and one declared Anderson guilty. It is said intimidation of the jurors brot this result.

Anderson is scheduled to be tried before the Illinois State Mining Board on September 8. The mine examiners which he unlawfully discharged are: James Sneddon, Don Dannington, R. H. Pharis, Ed. McNarum, I. Winn, Thomas Winn, Fern Everett, Thomas Prosser, and Valle Ras. James Sneddon, one of the discharged examiners, explained to me that the mine examiner enters the mine and explores it with safety lamps before any miners are allowed into the different rooms of the mine. When it is remembered that it takes six days already walking to enter all the chambers in one of the big mines in this county, it will be seen how many mine examiners are needed.

"After we had been discharged," Sneddon told me, "the other examiners were unable to visit all the portions of the mine, and when the miners entered they took chances of being overcome by gas or dust. Recently Anderson took back the examiners he discharged."

Sneddon hinted that the charges, which were filed by the pit committee of the Valier mine, would not be pressed in the county or appellate court against Anderson. He hinted that a compromise had been effected, but would not tell what it was or why the charges will not be pressed. He was forced to admit to me, however, that the pit committee is the only body which can withdraw the charges, and refused to state why they would do so. This is illustrative of another fight which the coal diggers have to face. As soon as aggressive action is taken in their behalf, the hedging of petty officials, the politics played by the petty aristocracy of the unions, defeats justice to the actual coal diggers.

Eat Their Gardens.

When I was in O'Fallon I asked Andrew Young, "How do the coal miners get something to eat when the unemployment continues for so long?" He told me that most of the miners depend almost solely on their backyard gardens.

But in Valier there are no gardens. Nothing but grape vines which bear no grapes. "There is no use planting gardens here," William Potesak, a Valier miner told me. "Nothing will grow in this climate but a few early tomatoes and some radishes and lettuce. Even these generally dry up. In Christopher and West Frankfort it is possible to have gardens if you have a hose and are continually watering your plants, but there is no running water in Valier."

Valier is perched on hard, dry, rolling prairie. The rich soil in dry weather throw up a cloud of black, choking dust. When it rains, none but the most foolhardy would attempt to pass over them. They are of course, no trees. The tiny one-story houses, built of plain boards, are entirely exposed to the relentless glare of the sun.

Valier Typical.

I have dwelt on these conditions at Valier because Valier gives the picture of every mining camp in this section of the state. Valier is an average mining camp. It does not have the monotonous rows of ramshackle company houses which I will devote a story to soon, and the inhabitants are at least partially employed. But the miners in Valier are going in the hole even while working. They are hard-pressed for food, and due to the compact clay sub-soil and the climate, do not get fresh vegetables. The women are inured to suffering and are too inert to complain. The men, lacking inspiration, drink moonshine.

But harried as they are with crude living quarters, with slim pay envelopes and with the treachery of promising union officials, the Valier miners, and the miners of the entire Southern Illinois district are determined to resist a wage cut.

They are too battle-scarred, too experienced veterans in the class war to be taken in by the coal operators and the union officials now advocating class collaboration.

Dallas Skyscrapers Cost One Worker's Life Per Building

(By Federated Press)

DALLAS, Texas, August 27.—The erection of each skyscraper in this city in the past two years has cost the life of at least one worker. The latest victim lost his life when a fire escape collapsed in wrecking the old Oriental Hotel. A week previous two men were killed when an elevator cable broke, while carrying a truck load of material to the upper floors of the Santa Fe terminal building.

K. K. K. Picnic Brings Injury.

BELEVIDERE, Ill., August 27.—Henry Frazer, 11, was suffering injuries today as a result of an explosion of some large fireworks bombs left here following a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan. Henry found the bomb, lit the short fuse, and it exploded before he could throw it down

Send in that Subscription Today.

BENEFIT CONCERT FOR COMPOSER BY SINGING SOCIETY

Wrote "Internationale," Now in Poverty

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 27.—Peter Deyzeter, composer of the music for "The International," like many others who have contributed their best to the music, art, or literature of the working class, is in need of assistance.

Almost forgotten by many who formerly knew him and unknown to the bulk of the modern Labor Movement, author of Labor's most inspiring hymn has suffered in silence.

Aitho "The International" is sung and played thruout the world, and altho class conscious workers of every race and color are familiar with its tune and words, very few are aware that the 70 year old creator of that masterpiece is stricken with poverty in the last days of his life.

Attention was drawn to the plight of Comrade Deyzeter, thru his request to be allowed to sell some small article at the last Convention of the Communist Party of France.

The G. Adolph Uthmann Singing Society, in recognition of the debt that the International Labor Movement owes to Comrade Deyzeter, has decided to arrange a Concert and Ball, the entire proceeds of which will be devoted to the relief of our Comrade Deyzeter.

This affair will take place Saturday, September 27th, beginning at 8 p. m. at Maennerchor Hall, 203 East 56th St., New York City. The Federated Hungarian Workers Singing Society will assist.

All organizations that are in sympathy with the principles of International Workingclass Solidarity, and are willing to co-operate with us in making this affair great from both a moral and financial standpoint, are requested to get in touch with the G. Adolph Uthmann Singing Society, Room 4, 240 East 81st St, telephone Lenox 6878.

All who have heard the opening words of the "International": "Arise! you prisoners of starvation, Arise you wretched of the earth," should realize that the composer of that tune is now a prisoner of starvation, and help us make his remaining days free from the wretchedness that is the lot of most of those who contribute their talent and ability to their class rather than sell it to the enemies of labor.

Negro and White Kids Can't Play Together, Hylan

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, August 27.—Mayor Hylan won't let Negro and white children play together at the Greenwich Village Theatre in the first scene of O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Wings," tho black and white children play together in the streets of Harlem.

The mayor's decision was suddenly announced before the second night's performance of the play. It impairs the artistic value of the production which has to forego an introductory scene the author considered important.

Russia Negotiates For Direct Service To U. S. via London

(Rosta)

LENINGRAD, July 7 (by mail).—The State Baltic Shipping Board jointly with the State Commercial Fleet, is engaged in negotiations with a number of shipping companies in London re the establishment of a direct service between the USSR and America via London.

Packers In Wise Scheme.

NEW YORK, August 27.—Not much importance is being attached here to the receivership proceedings against the Wilson & Co., packing concern. It is said to be a plan for the reorganization of the firm in order to squeeze out some of the smaller fry.

STRENGTHEN THE CO-OPERATIVES IS CALL OF THE ALL-RUSSIAN CONGRESS OF THE COMMUNISTS

By ANISE.

(By The Federated Press)

MOSCOW.—(By Mail.)—The All-Russian congress of the Communist party, which was chiefly featured in the American press as the occasion of differences between Trotsky and Zinoviev, has as its chief result a program for capturing the retail trade of the nation.

Strengthening the co-operatives is the slogan for the coming year. And another slogan which goes with it is Get Next to the Peasant.

State Industry Progresses.

Last year the increase of industry was the main problem, on which Trotsky prepared the program. State industry has been forging ahead. In some of its branches, such as leather and chemicals, it surpasses the prewar output. In textiles it is close to pre-war. It lags behind in the heavy industry.

Immediately after Lenin's death, when Rykov was chosen chairman of peoples commissars, Djerjinsky stepped into Rykov's job as head of state industries, and proceeded to carry out the orders of making a nation-wide policy felt in industry. For instance, when the coal in the Donetz was seen to be seriously hindered in production because of lack of large scale orders, all government factories were given a thorough inspection to see where coal could be introduced instead of wood and oil. As a result, coal is moving now on the Donetz and will probably never stop again.

Still Have Difficulties.

But while the way ahead is relatively clear in industry, it is a different matter in commerce. By the beginning of this year, internal trade in Russia was 64 per cent. in private hands, and 36 per cent in government or co-operative hands. The government had the greater part of the wholesale trade, but the private traders had between 50 and 90 per cent of the little village stores. Till now the state syndicates and co-operatives have not been able to compete successfully in this field, as their attention has been elsewhere, and their apparatus has been too heavy and bureaucratic.

In attacking this new front, careful consideration was given to the relative merits of co-operatives and government chain stores. The decision was in favor of co-operatives, with government chain stores only in places where, temporarily, no co-operatives are possible.

Co-operatives Step Ahead.

The reason for preferring the co-operatives was that "they are already a socializing organism, based on voluntary goodwill of the peasants' and are less bureaucratic. Other measures in favor of the peasants were that the taxes, which have recently shown a tendency to become complex, as town, county and province added their bit to the central federal tax, should be combined into one, assessed at one time in the year on a definite basis, so that the peasant may know exactly what he has to count on

Deny Russ Building Trades Unions Entry into International

(By The Federated Press)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 27.—The Building Trades International, affiliated with the International Federation of Trade Unions of Amsterdam, at its recent international congress in Stockholm decided not to admit the Russian building trades unions affiliated with the Red Trade Union International. The delegates from Switzerland, England and Czecho-Slovakia favored the admission of the Russians but were outvoted.

Farmers Lose Money.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—American farmers have not realized a commercial interest return on their investment since 1920, according to an economic survey made public today by the Department of Agriculture.

The survey showed that the farmers' return was 6.2 per cent in 1903-05; 1.6 per cent in 1920-21; 1.4 per cent in 1921-22; 3 per cent in 1922-23 and 3.23-24.

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Your Union Meeting

Fourth Thursday, Aug. 28, 1924.

No.	Name of Local and Place of Meeting
	Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Joint Board, Chicago, 408 S. Halsted St.
548	Barbers, 180 W. Washington St., 8:45 p. m.
576	Barbers, 3010 E. 92nd St.
342	Bakery Workers, 180 W. Washington St.
344	Bakery Workers, 180 W. Washington St., 2 p. m.
454	Boiler Makers, 75th and Drexel.
480	Boiler Makers, 18th and Ashland Ave.
121	Brewery Workers, 1700 E. 21st St.
8	Brick and Clay, Leavitt and Barry.
203	Brick and Clay, Chicago Heights.
214	Brick and Clay, Manteno, Ill.
83	Bridge and S. I., 180 W. Washington St.
13	Carpenters, 113 S. Ashland Blvd.
62	Carpenters, 9416 S. Halsted St.
541	Carpenters, 3444 Emma St.
434	Carpenters, South Chicago, 11037 Michigan Avenue.
504	Carpenters, Ogden and Kedzie.
1027	Carpenters, 180 W. Washington St.
15136	Commission Merchant Helpers, 126 W. Randolph St.
865	Cooks, 166 W. Washington St.
793	Electrical R. R., 9456 S. Wentworth Ave.
794	Electrical, M., 71st and Cottage Grove.
115	Engineers, 9223 Houston Ave.
586	Engineers, Morrison Hotel.
538	Firemen and Enginemen, 9118 Commercial Avenue.
59	Firemen and Enginemen, 5058 Wentworth Ave., 7:30 p. m.
715	Firemen and Enginemen, Ogden and Taylor Ave.
17010	Gas House Workers, 180 W. Washington St.
33	Garment Workers, 311 S. Ashland Ave., 5 p. m.,
78a	Hod Carriers, 814 W. Harrison St.
18	Ladies' Garment Workers, 328 W. Van Buren St.
473	Maintenance of Way, 318 W. 63rd Street.
253	Machinists, Roseland., 11405 Michigan.
1528	Machinists, R. R., 113 S. Ashland Ave.
12755	Office Employes Assn., 166 W. Washington St., 8:30 p. m.
	Painters' District Council, 1446 W. Adams St.
371	Painters, Dutt's Hall, Chicago Heights.
266	Plasterers, 2045 W. North Ave.
297	Printers, 200 W. Randolph St.
753	Plumbers, 417 S. Halsted St., 8:30 p. m.
307	Printing Pressmen (Paper Box Makers), 180 W. Washington St.
301	Railway Clerks, 949 W. Washington St.
578	Railway Clerks, 57 E. Van Buren St.
668	Railway Carmen, 5445 S. Ashland Ave.
964	Railway Clerks, 19 W. Adams St.
991	Railway Clerks, C. M. & St. P. R. R., 2703 W. North Ave.
424	Railroad Trainmen, 127 N. Franklin.
115	Sheet Metal, Ogden and Taylor.
121	Stationary Firemen and Taylor Sts.
17	Switchmen, 9202 S. Chicago Ave.
753	Teamsters, Ashland and Van Buren
742	Teamsters, 9206 Houston Ave.
1121	Upholsterers, Ogden and Taylor.
15793	Watchmen (Mun.), 113 S. Ashland
17618	Watchmen, Employers, 180 W. Washington St.

(Note—Where otherwise stated all meetings are at 8 p. m.)

SICK & DEATH BENF. SOCIETY

MEETING TONIGHT.

German-Hungarian—634 Willow St. John Freifogel, Sec'y, 3741 Seminary Ave.

Brother Dawes Leaves.

Rufus C. Dawes, brother of Hell an' Maria, and a prominent Chicago business man, leaves soon for Europe in order to help put the plan signed by his cussing brother into effect. It is expected that he will be met in the proper manner by the German workers.

MINERS OF WORLD HOLD CONCLAVE IN CHECKO-SLOVAKIA

British Want the Russian Unions Included

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—Representing 13 coal producing countries and a union membership of 1,972,150 miners, 122 delegates assembled here for the 27th Miners' International congress. The International Miners' Federation have held these meetings since 1890, interrupted only by the war.

United States Represented

The United Mine Workers of America were represented by International vice-pres. Philip Murray; Thomas Kennedy, president of Dist. 7; and Walter Nesbit, secretary of Dist. 12. The president of the International Federation is Herbert Smith, president of the British Miners' Federation.

The absence of Russian delegates caused a storm in committee. The British delegates denounced their exclusion and demanded that the Russians be invited to all international trade union meetings.

The American delegates contributed nothing to the discussion of international problems except in technical question of accident prevention. Philip Murray told of America's high accident rate.

Watch Dawes Plan

Thomas Kennedy told of the American miners' conception of a "saving wage," and described the success in resisting the reduction of wages since the war. He did not, however, reveal how the latest victory of the three-year agreement is being used to crush the heart of the miners' union, the 100 per cent organized Illinois field of 100,000 miners. Delegates from all countries were awake to the danger to their standards from the application of the Dawes plan and the lengthening of the German miners' times to 10 hours a day. Delegates from England, France and Belgium agreed to use their influence to prevent the payment to their countries by Germany of coal as reparations in kind.

Will Their Leaders Strike?

On the question of war, the French suggestion of a 24-hour strike in case of a declaration of hostilities was opposed, especially by British and American delegates, as impractical. The matter was settled by a resolution agreeing to carry on anti-war propaganda, to join in "No More War" demonstrations, and to ask that the executive committee meet in case any country threatened war for the purpose of then taking such action as seemed best.

FURNISHED ROOMS, APARTMENTS AND BUNGALOWS.

REDS COMING TO WASHINGTON, D. C.
Furnished Rooms, $10 to $25 a Month. Apartments, $25 to $80 a Month. Bungalows, $45 to $75 a Month.
Mrs. Bateler, 32 G Street, S. W. Washington, D. C.

ED. GARBER
QUALITY SHOES
FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN
2427 LINCOLN AVENUE
CHICAGO
Telephone Diversey 5129

Second Russian Co-operative
Restaurant
760 MILWAUKEE AVENUE
Near Ogden Blvd. and Chicago Avenue
Phone Monroe 1239
Fresh Food at Reasonable Prices
Owned and Controlled by
THE RUSSIAN WORKERS CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A DAINTY NIGHT DRESS.

A PRACTICAL UNDER GARMENT.

4833. Batiste, nainsook, crepe, silk and crepe de chine are good materials for this garment. Bands of embroidery, lace or insertion may be used for trimming.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 5¼ yards of 36-inch material for the gown with long sleeves. With short sleeves ¼-yard less is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

And 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Use a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition Saturday, August 30.

4714. This style may be finished with shaped shoulders or a camisole top, and straight or knicker leg portions. Muslin, cambric, crepe, sateen, flannelette or crepe de chine may be used for this model.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. A 12-year size requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS.—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded to the DAILY WORKER every day they are received, and they are mailed by the manufacturing firm to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year	$3.00—6 months	$1.50—3 months
By mail (in Chicago only):
$8.00 per year	$4.50—6 months	$2.50—3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE — Editors
MORITZ J. LOEB — Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

Nova Scotia Miners Reject O. B. U.

The current issue of the Maritime Labor Herald, organ of the Nova Scotia miners, faces the issue squarely that has been raised by the so-called One Big Union of Winnipeg. It declares against the old and discredited policy of secession from the United Mine Workers of America. It sets its face firmly toward the policy worked out by the revolutionary experience of the world, the policy of winning the masses for revolutionary struggle, inside of the established unions.

Thus have the Nova Scotia miners shown to the whole labor movement that they have become mature revolutionists. The infantile sickness does not infect them. They have learned to look behind surface arguments to the realities of the class struggle; and therefore know that projects of finding a short-cut to the revolution, lead only to the swamps of opportunism and confusion. They see their revolutionary duty clearly, and have shouldered it without flinching.

The maturity of the Nova Scotia miners has been brought about mainly thru their own bitter experience. But credit for the solidifying of their ranks, and the clarification of their ideas, goes in a considerable degree to the Communist Party of Canada, on the executive committee of which Jim McLachlan, of the Nova Scotia miners, is a member. It promises well for the future of the Canadian movement.

Join the Workers Party and subscribe to the DAILY WORKER!

Getting the Party Into Action

That the Workers Party membership is getting into action in the present political campaign is evidenced by the New York comrades' action in mobilizing the whole party for distribution of the Special Campaign Issue of the DAILY WORKER on August 30. With every member of the party doing his bit, as outlined by the party organization in that city, the campaign will start off with a spirit and fire that will push it well on the way toward a creditable achievement. New York has shown that it understands the needs of the movement at the present time.

The Chicago organization, not content with concentrating only upon the special editions for widespread distribution, is taking thousands of copies of the DAILY WORKER each week, reaching as many workers who have hitherto been untouched by the message of Communism. The Special Campaign Issue is going across big in Chicago also. Probably there are larger circles of new readers being reached at this time, by many fold, than ever before in the history of the movement. This is the way it should be, for never was there a greater opportunity. Is your party unit on the job?

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

Newspaper Lies

Capitalist newspapers have reduced lying to a science. Particularly in dealing with labor and revolutionary subjects, their methods range from the deliberate establishment of lie factories, that manufacture stories out of whole cloth, thru the subtle distortion of actual facts, to the delicate manipulation of opinion thru headlines. A prize sample is to be found in the New York Times of August 25, in connection with a story from Russia by Walter Duranty.

"Speeding up Labor Under Soviet Rule," reads the headline in the Times. What a picture this immediately raises in the mind of the innocent reader! A sweating system, slave-drivers cracking the lash over trembling victims at the machine and bench—all the vicious and horrible practices of American industry under its "speed-up systems," plus all the added oriental horrors that come from the occidental imaginations of a capitalist propagandist. Such is the intention of that headline.

But what is the story? Duranty starts out one of the most optimistic surveys of Russian industry that has ever appeared in a capitalist paper in America. He says: "The Bolsheviki appear to have taken a step forward overcoming what are perhaps the most serious obstacles in the path of the Socialist state, low productivity of labor, lack of initiative and the bureaucracy which generally characterize State-run enterprises."

While Duranty's story is filled with all the bourgeois prejudices against socialism and against the Communist Party, his facts substantiate those brought back by William Z. Foster from his recent trip to Russia and printed in the DAILY WORKER. And the improvement in the conditions of the Russian workers is brought out in a bright, clear light, by one sentence of Duranty's: "It must be remembered that the work-day (in 1913) was then twelve hours long and is now eight."

In spite of the reduction of hours of labor by one-third, Russian industry is being so well organized and re-established under the Soviets that production approaches four-fifths of pre-war figures. This is accompanied, step by step, with a proportional rise in the living standards of the workers. But the capitalist headline writers know how to turn this great news for the workers of the world into a threat and a warning against the revolution—thru the simple expedient of a misleading and lying headline.

Send in that Subscription Today.

More About Farm Prosperity

Present indications point to a substantial collapse of the recent wheat boom. Canadian reports show very much less of a reduction of the wheat crop than was expected a few weeks ago. Corn has also suffered a decline owing to the fact that the hot weather necessary to save the crop in the middle western states has appeared. Thus the farmers will have more corn to sell than it seemed at first. Consequently, they will have to sell it at a lower price.

As we have seen, the maximum net advance in wheat and corn prices totalled two hundred million dollars. Most of this sum has gone to bankers, mortgage holders, bond sharks, and machinery owners. Then, within the last three months the wage workers who buy a substantial portion of the farm crop have lost no less than six hundred million dollars in wages and purchasing power. We need not emphasize the point that this gigantic loss of the workers more than counter balance the gains that the farmers might have made from the wheat and corn spurts.

And now we have the survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, showing that the American farmer is receiving a totally inadequate return for his personal labor as well as his investments. The findings of the official investigation covering a period of five years indicate that in most cases the farmers make no profit at all and that in those cases where there is a slight profit it is more than eaten up by burdensome interest charges which must be paid to the capitalists.

From 1920 to 1922 the interest paid on the total farm indebtedness consumed all the capital earnings of the crops. Today the earnings of farms are estimated at 3.1 per cent on the invested capital and wages for the average farm operator and his family.

The gross income of the American farmer has been declining definitely within the last five years. For instance, from 1920 to the present day good plow lands in Iowa, the banner farming state, shrank from two hundred and fifty-seven dollars to one hundred and sixty-nine dollars per acre.

We wonder whether the railway magnates, spending February in Palm Beach and July in Europe, could vacation these months in those whereabouts on such dividends. Of course, we do not ask how long they could live on the fat of the land for the remuneration they are worthy of on the basis of working as hard as the average farmer does.

Send in that new "sub" today!

Those Shop Nuclei

There are still some members of the Workers Party who think of the shop nucleus problem as an academic subject, interesting to specialists on organization but rather dull matter for the ordinary rank and file. How far from the truth this is, may be realized by reading the enthusiastic words of our comrades who are actually establishing shop nuclei, and who are therefore learning what a broad field of struggle and achievement it opens up for the party.

"Here is a resolution endorsing Foster and Gitlow," writes the secretary of a shop nucleus, "adopted by the unanimous vote of the workers of our shop. It is an organized shop, and all the men employed are members of the Machinists Union, and has always been considered "radical." But it was always very vague radicalism and nothing came from it—until we organized our shop nucleus. Since then we have gained the complete leadership of the men in the shop, have put new life and spirit into the union members, have taken control of the internal life of the shop, and have crystallized the vague radicalism into concrete decisions of policy on all questions that come up. Thus, on the presidential election, our entire shop of 23 workers voted unanimously for Foster and Gitlow. We are making progress in every direction. When the rest of the party wakes up to the possibilities of the shop nucleus, our whole movement will forge ahead. Help wake them up!"

The letter is proudly signed by the "Chairman and secretary of the Shop Nucleus, ——— Factory."

These comrades have just begun to taste of the shop nucleus and we find them more enthusiastic about its results than even the most ardent nuclei organizer in the party. Truly the Communist International has demonstrated again the high quality of its leadership when it insisted that every Communist Party in the world must reorganize upon the basis of shop nuclei. It is the only road to a mass Communist Party.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Many willing hands make the big jobs easy. Get new members for the Workers Party.

Sillinsky Versus Sweeney

By JOHN DORSEY.

THE election in the Journeyman Tailors Union, for General Secretary-Treasurer, is now on. Most of the locals will vote in the early part of September, hence the militants who are backing Max Sillinsky of Cleveland, must work intensively in the next few weeks. Nothing must be left undone to gather together and register in the election the progressive elements. Sweeney, the present G. S. T., is continuing to use and misuse every force at his command to stave off the defeat which seems inevitable so great is the surge of rebellion against the further continuance in office of the "old man of the sea" whose burden has held back the tailors rather than his strength advancing them. If Sweeney wins, it will be not only because of the dirty tricks he is playing, but also because the spirit of rebellion fails to become crystallized into votes for Sillinsky.

Max J. Sillinsky is the choice of the left wing for General Secretary of the Journeymen Tailors Union. He is not a Communist, but has the support of the Communists because of his progressive record and platform upon which he is asking endorsement of the rank and file.

Sweeney has been touring his self-appointed organizers at the expense of the Union, in order to build up his political fences. He almost monopolizes the columns of "The Tailor" with long editorials, rambling replies to letters from members, articles by his friends which read like a gypsy card-reader, boosting his candidacy.

The issue in this election is clear-cut between Sweeney the reactionary, and Sillinsky the progressive. What does Sweeney care if the Union embraces but a fraction of the workers eligible to membership, and even loses members it once had, so long as enough members are kept to provide dues for salary and expenses, and keep up a machine for use in the next election. (If the membership decreases too much, there is always the possibility of getting the dues raised, so why worry.)

Tens of thousands of tailors, cleaners, dyers and pressers ought to be gathered into the J. T. U. of A. Will Sweeney bring them in? He even lost the Chicago Local of the Cleaners and Dyers by neglecting their interests. The conditions of the organized tailors are none too good. Will Sweeney fight for improvements? He believes in compromise rather than fight. He permitted the Pittsburgh tailors to give up the struggle for week-work and accept a paltry and insignificant increase in the piece rate.

Unemployment Widespread.

Millions are out of work, and a permanent army of the unemployed is a certainty. No work, short time, uncertainty, irregularity, confront the tailors. Is Sweeney doing anything to strengthen the power of the workers, so that they can force the employers and the government to pay unemployment benefits; to bring about a general reduction in hours? What is Sweeney doing to further the Amalgamation of the Craft Unions into bodies powerful enough to meet Capital on something like its own terms? What is he doing to help in the establishment of a Labor Party to provide the workers with a weapon to exert in political affairs the influence which the producers of wealth ought to exert? Sweeney will not do anything to help these progressive movements; he has had his chance, and failed miserably.

The members of the J. T. U. of A. should bestir themselves. This election is not merely a personal contest. Vital principles are involved. Sillinsky has come out unequivocally for a progressive program, for extension of the organization, for a militant fight for improved conditions, for Amalgamation, a Labor Party, Recognition of Soviet Russia. His record shows him to be a militant fighter against the bosses.

Sweeney Votes With Reactionaries.

Sweeney showed where he stands when at the Portland Convention in the A. F. of L., in 1923, he voted to unseat Wm. F. Dunne, the Communist, and at the same convention, he applauded the American Legion whose anti-labor principles and record are well-known to all militant workers. The El Paso Convention of the A. F. of L. is coming. Do you want the Portland performance repeated—alliance with the enemies of Labor, expulsion of delegates, because they are militant fighters against the capitalist class? Or do you want to take a stand for a united front of all workers, regardless of political differences against the power of the capitalist class?

The El Paso Convention will without doubt be thoroly reactionary, but the Journeyman Tailors Union, whose members (if not its official) have long had the reputation of being among the most progressive, can at least save itself from the disgrace of assenting to reaction by electing progressives as delegates. At the Portland Convention, Sillinsky was one of the small handful who voted against the outrageous unseating of Dunne. He should be sent to El Paso.

The Sweeney machine will be working overtime in this election and the militants must neglect nothing to counteract its influence. An old trick is to gather up votes in the shops, for Sweeney of course. No one should believe, to vote unless he comes to the meeting, and the progressives must get every Sillinsky vote to turn out to the election. Then it is necessary to see that the vote is correctly counted and properly mailed to the headquarters. A few hundred votes will decide this election and if Sillinsky loses, any militant who neglects his duty will be responsible.

Butler's Finks Swarm in Textile Unions

(Continued from page 1.)

still governor of Massachusetts. During a strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in Philadelphia, when an organizer criticised the brutality of the Philadelphia police and mentioned that the Boston police had been organized, even if Colidge had broken their strike with troops, the Sherman stool-pigeon who covered the meeting, reported what was said and what was done about it as follows:

"Such statements as were made by this individual you can see are extremely radical, particularly in reference to the police strike in Boston. No time has been lost in counteracting the effect that might have been made on the minds of the workers, by advising them that Governor Coolidge was again elected for another term after he had thrown the striking police officials out of their jobs. Everything possible is being done to discredit these radicals."

The "Open Shop" Gang.

The chairman of the Republican party, Mr. Butler, introduced Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes to the audience which gathered at Evanston, Illinois, on August 19, to listen to "Open Shop" Charley denounce the "radicals." Back in New Bedford, Massachusetts, Butler was planting finks in the ranks and even in the highest offices of the unions. Dawes assaults labor unions from the outside (sometimes) with "open shop" cards and his "Minute Men of the Constitution." Coolidge calls out troops against unions. Butler employs stool-pigeons to spy upon the union mebers, to get control of the union and betray its interests. They all denounce "radicals."

A Sherman spy reporting upon union radicals told of his actions as follows:

"Conditions prevalent in Europe, due to the soviet form of government and the activities of the Bolsheviks, have been emphatically brought to their (the workers') attention for the purpose of convincing them that a democratic form of government was the only one which proved successful (for stool-pigeons and republican millionaires, yes—Editor). That underground Bolshevik line and endeavored to bring about a normal state of conditions, there would be considerable hardship among the workers in this country.

Workers should suspect anyone who gets so internally "practical" that he urges co-operation with the boss to increase output or cut costs, save time and money—for the boss. This work was carried on right in the New Bedford Textile Council by the stool-pigeons of the Sherman agency who took orders from W. M. Butler as to what they were to do in the union. Besides the Secretary of the Council, Silver, its president, Abraham Binns, was also a Sherman spy, who sat as a delegate from the Weaver's Union of which he was secretary. With them as a member on the Council was a Portuguese named Silva.

Butler's Stools Flood Union.

One would think that the Sherman Service would feel satisfied with this delegation on the New Bedford Workers' Textile Council. But Mr. Butler, who was in training for controlling the Cleveland convention and putting over a strike-breaker for president, thought that more finks were needed. So he decided, after consultation with the Sherman superintendent in Boston, to have the stool-pigeons already in the Textile Council, start a new craft union for the Spinners so that another fink could get into the Textile Council as a representative from the Spinners' Union. Mr. Butler, you will observe, started this union by this means. Capitalists are favorable to unions they can control with stool-pigeons or officials who denounce radicals, expel Communists and talk for "more output," "increased production" and "co-operation with the company."

William Morgan Butler, president of vast textile corporations, would not, of course, do anything worse against labor than plant swarms of stool-pigeons in labor unions to betray faithful members to discharge and blacklist and talk defeatism to workers who wished to struggle against Mr. Butler's wage reductions. But if his bosom friend, McCumber, was using spies to try to tag a political opponent as a conspirator with the supposedly seditious I. W. W., Butler himself did not hesitate a moment to have his own stool-pigeons join the I. W. W. and become active therein.

In All Unions Impartially.

The spy, Edward Valley, who was brought into the Textile Council was also a very prominent figure in the I. W. W. in the textile district. He covered a great deal of territory and joined several unions, and was actively engaged with the Amalgamated Textile Workers. We will deal with other members of this union who were in Butler's pay while holding union office, in the next issue of the DAILY WORKER.

LaFollette in Autocrat Rule Over Nebraska

(Continued from page 1)

little assumption on Bixelow's part, as he must depend upon the fakers in the local unions for his livelihood.

Taylor to Bat.

W. J. Taylor of Merna, Jesse Jandy, and others protested against the La Follette-Wheeler policies. Taylor, who tried to battle the Communists at St. Paul, stated that "if LaFollette is to be king, then not much support can be expected from the farmers in Nebraska." Taylor put up a lone fight against the hand-picked "LaFollette Convention" for his program of a state ticket, and endorsement of La Follette's right-hander, Senator Norris. He was doomed to defeat, since Taylor's ideas would interfere with the LaFollette-Bryan swindle.

Fakers After Theirs.

It is reliably reported that a "deal" is on between leaders of the Nebraska Conference for Progressive Political Action (alias for railroad brotherhoods) and A. C. Townley, discredited head of the old Nonpartisan League, whereby a slate of candidates will be endorsed, and thrust upon the workers and farmers of this state as the "candidates favorable to LaFollette and Wheeler."

This scheme, if it goes thru, will mean an enlargement of the LaFollette-Bryan swindle to read: "LaFollette-Bryan-Norris," —a three - way straddle from Republican Party, to Democratic Party, to LaFollette. The mouths of the local Labor fakers water richly at this shot, for it will mean political pie in heaps if the "deal" goes thru.

To Communists, this may seem a dry account, but remember that the LaFollette movement, so-called, has produced such political trickery and skullduggery thruout the nation, that the Nebraska movement is not one of the masses of workers and exploited farmers, but simply a feeding ground for political vultures and labor fakers of the most discredited type. Into the LaFollette movement are flocking the birds of prey, and when they have picked dry the bones of the suckers—the workers and poor farmers who are deceived by the LaFollette siren song—they will fly away to other fields, leaving only the mangled corpses of the innocent.

Yet, if the LaFollette-Bryan swindle succeeds, and "Brother Charley" enters the White House as president of the United States, what will the workers and exploited farmers of this country gain? They will gain just as the workers and farmers of Nebraska have gained from Bryanism—anti-picketing and criminal syndicalism laws, injunctions by the labor injunctions, and corporation rule bankrupting the farmers. And when the great masses of the exploited rise in protest against the rule of this Main Street politician, they will learn that he wears not only his skull cap, so prominently pictured in Wall Street's Democratic press, but thew will learn that behind his cunning pretense to progressivism is concealed the black shirt of Fascism, ready to be revealed whenever the protests of an outraged working population become too outspoken.

For Charley Bryan is the ideal personification of small-town American fascism. Typically middle-class in his ignorance and mode of living, typically narrow in his narrow conception of those who get in his way, Charley Bryan is nevertheless a politician of the type (the result no doubt of his brother's training), who will extend his right hand to organized labor and slap it with a vicious anti-picketing law in his left.

Charley Bryan is a politician who preaches "law enforcement" and then fires, openly and unscrupulously, any appointee who dares to enforce the state's female labor regulations to the dislike of large department stores. Such is the character of this Main Street politician whom LaFollette and Wheeler would thrust upon the workers and farmers of this country as their "President."

Against the LaFollettes and Wheelers and Bryans the Communists alone raise the struggle of revolutionary class struggle. Foster and Gitlow are the only candidates who stand up staunchly for the interest of the workers and exploited farmers and refuse to be a party to any of the "deals" such as only middle class politicians so ably manipulate.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'Flaherty

(Continued from Page 1)

of the British will walk in. As soon as the Spanish troops are driven from Morocco King Alfonso will be buying a one way ticket to London.

* * *

MAJOR-GENERAL J. G. HARBORD, former Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, and head of the Radio Corporation of America, believes in peace so much that he is willing to fight for it. In his opinion the best guarantee of peace is a military machine so stupendous that all other nations would be scared stiff of us. This was also Germany's idea before the world war, but all other nations happened to have a similar idea. On the other hand lack of preparedness does not prevent war. Portugal was so unprepared that its troops went into battle minus shoes and. Nothing can prevent war under capitalism.

* * *

SPEAKING before the Moscow Soviet, Rakovsky drew a burst of laughter when he informed his audience that Lloyd George, who attacked the Anglo-Soviet treaty in the House of Commons after it was signed, was ready to attack Ramsay MacDonald for failure to secure a treaty when the prospects of success were very dim. This sample of political trickery in a capitalist country was considered highly amusing.

CAPITALIST reporters expressed surprise over the wholehearted approval given to the treaty by the workers. A correspondent makes the following comment:

"It is quite easy for outsiders to say that there is no public opinion in Russia and that the masses blindly obey Bolshevik tyrants."

"The Moscow Soviet is composed of 85 per cent Bolsheviki and 15 per cent of their close sympathizers. That is they are not the 'masses' in the sense outsiders use the word. But each delegate is in far closer touch with his electorate—and with the grumbles of that electorate—than any American congressman or member of the British parliament.

* * *

HOW was it that the Moscow electorate and its deputies cheered Rakowsky and Tchitcherin? It was because from the moment that the Communist Party leaders decided to accept the British terms, every factory in Moscow became the scene of a series of addresses by Communist speakers arguing that the British agreement would be good for Russia." Unlike the United States the representatives of the Russian workers are close to the masses. Here we have lawyers, bankers, brokers in our city councils, state legislatures and national congress. They are far removed from the masses, yet they have the impudence to say that in Russia where the workers have real representation that there is tyranny.

* * *

THE PRINCE OF WALES is reported to be very nervous after a hard year's work among the pleasure resorts and gambling dens of Europe. On board the palatial steamship Berengaria, he is the object of solicitude on the part of newspapermen because he does not eat much. He only eats grouse, lobster, caviar, rolls, butter and coffee. The girls are also very disappointed because the Prince appeared in the ballroom in his street clothes. Even a prince cannot satisfy some people.

* * *

MR. THOMAS JOHNSON, secretary of the Irish Labor Party and Trades Union Congress, delivered a speech at the recent annual conference of that party. He said he did not believe in revolution for its own sake. "If revolution is necessary," he said, "it is only a means to an end, that end being the uplifting of the common people." Mr. Johnson does not want revolution either as an end in itself or as a means to an end. He is one of those clever fakers who [illegible] revolutionary phraseology to [illegible] reactionary actions.

YALE UNIVERSITY
NOV 1924
LIBRARY

THE DAILY WORKER RAISES THE STANDARD FOR A WORKERS AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT

THE DAILY WORKER

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Vol. II: No. 139. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 3 Cents

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

HENRY FORD has come out with a broadside in favor of the Ku Klux Klan. It may be more than a coincidence that Ford's Klan statement was made shortly after the flivver manufacturer had a conference with Coolidge. "If the truth were known about the Ku Klux Klan, it would be looked up to as a body of patriots," said Henry. There may be methods in Henry's madness. It is known that many flivvers are used by the hooded Kluxers when on their tarring and feathering crusades. Perhaps Henry intends to go into the tar business. Several millions of Kluxers would provide him with plenty of customers.

• • •

PACIFISTS and militarists are fighting it out at the Institute of Politics, Williamstown, Mass. Oswald Garrison Villard, the good natured liberal, who never seems to realize what battleships were built for, threw the apple of discord among the celebrities present when he lectured on "Ethics and the Export of American Capital." He charged the government with aiding bankers and investors in exploiting weaker countries and said that the blood of 3,000 Haitians and 400 in Vera Cruz was a blot on the honor of the American navy. Grizzled admirals and rear-admirals went for the pacifist. They denied that the navy was ever used to collect debts. Villard knows it does, but apparently does not know that is one of its chief functions.

• • •

A VERY interesting raid took place here in Chicago a few days ago. The raiders were Federal officials. They raided the federal building and walked away with the leading federal secret service operative who had charge of the work of rounding up evidence for use against the hold-up men who participated in the sensational mail robbery at Rosedount, Wisconsin, when $2,000,000 in money and securities were taken from the train. The arrested man, William F. Fahy, had a reputation second to none, for locating postal thieves. He it was who secured the evidence against "Big Tim" Murphy in the Dearborn station robbery. Fahy-might well say that he was only following the leadership of his chief, Harry Daugherty, and the rest of the grafters in the Coolidge administration. If Fall, Denby and the rest of them could sell out the country to oil pirates and get away with it, it was worth taking a chance on $2,000,000.

• • •

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN announces that the Prince of Wales may announce his intention to get married after he returns from his American tour. The Prince is causing considerable anxiety among the best American families who have marriageable daughters and lots of money to purchase a title. Here is a big prize. American millionaires have purchased kings, princes, dukes and other aristocrats before this, but an heir to the British throne does not happen along every day. Peggy Joyce could vamp a Swedish count, but it takes real money to buy a young British king.

• • •

STATES ATTORNEY CROWE is nothing if not inconsistent. After making a vulgar display of his professed belief in God, and attributing the discovery of the clue that led to the arrest and confession of the murderers, he referred to the case of the young man, Fitzgerald, whom he sentenced to death when a jurist, the criminal entered a plea of guilty. Crowe said that he sentenced Fitzgerald to death tho he was "of my own race and faith." It is just as illogical to blame the Catholic religion for the murder of which Fitzgerald was guilty as it would be to charge Leopold's criminal tendencies to the fact that he is a professed atheist. But Crowe is a cheap, self advertiser and cares nothing for logic or consistency.

• • •

THE only thing we can think of that may be to President Coolidge's credit is that he does not play golf. But it appears that he is not addicted to this vice, because of a healthy instict. He has a religious reason for not being a golfer. When asked if he plays golf on Sunday, the president said: "My grandmother was a Baptist." He evaded such a trifling question.

• • •

THE only issue between the Democrats and the Republican in this campaign is one of honesty. The Democrats say in effect: "During the past four years that the Republicans had charge of the national interets they were unfaithful to their trust. They robbed and grafted. We are honest. Give us a chance to prove it." No fundamental difference over policy is stressed. The old tariff bogey is dead. On the question of joining the League of Nations, the Democratic candidate is for open participation. The Republicans are practically participating, but not officially.

DAWES PLAN HITTING ROCKS

Chicago Speeds Campaign Work

PUSH PETITIONS, NEW SUBS AND PARTY MEMBERS

Much Interest Is Shown in Straw Votes

Drive forward for the biggest smash at capitalism yet registered by the Communist forces in the United States!

This was the spirit of the enthusiastic gathering of the Chicago membership of the Workers Party addressed by Joseph Manley, the party's campaign manager, and Earl R. Browder, member of the party's Central Executive Committee.

Three Big Party Tasks.

Three big important duties for the moment were given thoro and successful consideration as follows:

First—The gathering of thousands of signatures to put a complete ticket on the ballot for the first time in a national presidential election.

Second—The getting of thousands of subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER, so that it can carry the Communist message daily into hitherto unreached fields.

Third—The winning of tens of thousands of new members for the Workers Party, from among the millions of America's working class.

Straw Votes in Favor.

The plan of taking straw votes among the workers in the mines, mills and factories, was also greeted enthusiastically and will be pushed energetically. These straw votes are the only votes that will indicate the real trend of working class sentiment in this campaign. They will be published regularly in the columns of the DAILY WORKER. A blank for this purpose appears on another page.

Ways and means for immediately mobilizing the whole membership of the party for activity in these major tasks were presented by Manley and Browder, and also by Martin Abern, chairman of the meeting, who led the discussion on how to get signatures. Browder took up the question of DAILY WORKER circulation, the new membership drive and straw votes in the factories, while Manley reported progress made in the political campaign to date.

All Must Be Active.

Abern stressed the importance of getting every member in the party busy at once to bring in these signatures, if we are to place our candidates on the ballot this election. He gave a report on the progress made in each district. He particularly stressed the need of more activity by the members of the Young Workers League for this work.

The secretaries of all branches were instructed to call special meetings at once to organize their committees for this important task.

Browder Demands More Readers.

Browder stressed the need for greater activity in Chicago to get readers for the DAILY WORKER.

A new subscriber for the DAILY

(Continued on page 3)

LOEB AND LEOPOLD DESERVE NO MERCY SAYS BOBBY CROWE

"Loeb and Leopold deserve no mercy," yelled Robert E. Crowe, prosecuting attorney in summing up his case. Crowe invoked the spirit of the famous highbinder, Theodore Roosevelt, to show that Teddy was not in favor of commutation of the death sentence of one John W. Burley.

Crowe insisted that Darrow's speech had been a mass of sophistries and that only he, Crowe, knew what he was talking about. He maintained that the murder of Robert Franks had been committed for the money involved and not because a pituitary gland had sprung a leak.

Judge Caverly will take a few weeks off to digest all the evidence before rendering his decision, the date for which is set on September 10.

MINERS READY TO MEET FIRE OF KU KLUXERS

Angered by Murder of Mexican Digger

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

DOWELL, Ill., Aug. 28.—Despite the fact that Mayor Gus Blair, of Murphysboro, has come to the aid of the Klan, and that deputy sheriffs in town have received threatening letters signed K. K. K., the citizens of this town are armed and prepared to protect their homes from further Klan outrages.

They declare they will resist the invasion of their homes, the shooting of their citizens and the terrorizing and gun-toting which the Ku Klux Klan has been practicing here for the past two weeks.

K. K. K. Shoots.

Mrs. Louis Gomer, wife of the man murdered by the Klan last week, interviewed and photographed by the DAILY WORKER, today, said she has no money. Louis, her husband who was shot by Tom Reese, a cowardly Klansman, had paid $600 toward the tiny home he had provided for his family, but Mrs. Gomer said she has no money with which to keep up payments.

"I have been lying around the house, bewildered," Mrs. Gomer said. "Louis never did anyone any harm. My baby is sick and I don't know how I am going to provide food for them."

"Louis Gomer was a Mexican, true enuf," said Joseph Stimebiegel, deputy sheriff of the town. "But he was a naturalized American citizen, a veteran of the Spanish American and of the World War. Louis was a good lad, who never did anyone any harm and

(Continued off page 5)

ORDER BY TELEGRAPH Before 6 O'Clock Tonight

FOR THE COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

For the enclosed $..... send me ..... copies of the First Special Communist Campaign edition of the DAILY WORKER, to be dated Saturday, Aug. 30, at the special rate of 3½ cents per copy, or $3.50 per hundred. I want to help raise the standards of Communism in this campaign for the Workers Party ticket—Foster and Gitlow.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY..... STATE.....

EXPOSE SECRET INSTRUCTIONS TO SHERMAN SPIES

Absolute Secrecy in Manipulations

(Fourth Article.)
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Brigadier General Charles Cates "Fascist" Dawes made a speech the other day in which he was supposed to have condemned "secret organizations."

But that was only the way the capitalist newspapers put it—actually, he endorsed any secret organization providing only that it fight organized labor.

This open shop vice-presidential candidate on the republican ticket could not denounce secret organizations as long as they fight the workers. The whole national republican committee is an organization whose inner machine wraps its motives and intrigues and financial affairs in profound secrecy. The national committee of the republican party conceals from the people as a whole and from the workers in particular the huge campaign donations made by big business.

Secret Organizations of Big Biz.

Even the request made by the United States senate upon the republican national committee to disclose how much the Big Five meat packers have handed the republican party since 1920 is ignored—and the amount kept secret. These conspiracies of capital against the organized and unorganized workers are the stock in trade of the

(Continued on page 3)

NICARAGUA AGENTS OF WALL STREET CALL FOR UNITED STATES MARINES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 28.—The state department today received a request from the conservative forces in Nicaragua for the sending of a detachment of United States marines to the Central American republic to preserve order during the forthcoming election.

DAILY WORKER SPECIAL ISSUE OFF TONIGHT

The Special Communist Campaign Edition will be running off the presses tonight: After 6 p. m., unless you have your order already in, it will be too late and you will not have taken advantage of the great opportunity to strike a nail into the coffin of capitalism or do your share in preparing the minds of the American workingclass for the coming of the Soviet Republic of the United States.

Orders Coming In.

City Centrals, branches and individuals are sending in orders and not alone party members are ordering bundles but sympathizers.

All branches of the Workers Party have not yet done their duty, however. This is the last day to act. Send in your order by wire.

The capitalist parties have plenty of money to spend on radio broadcasting. They can shoot their bunk over the ether into the homes of the workers. Coolidge, Davis, Dawes and Bryan, LaFollette and Wheeler, can afford to pay high prices to the radio trust for sending out their nostrums. The Workers Party must depend on the voluntary assistance of its members.

Order now! The campaign number sells for five cents a copy. Bundle orders sell for 3½ cents. Wire your order to The DAILY WORKER, 1113 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill. Orders will be taken up until six o'clock this evening.

TRANSPORT WORKERS' INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPS STRONG BRITISH-DUTCH LEFT WING AT HAMBURG CONGRESS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HAMBURG, Aug. 7 (By Mail.)—The International Congress of the Transport Workers' Unions was opened today with representatives from 56 unions, of 28 countries, representing over 2,000,000 members.

The opening speech was delivered by the general secretary of the Transport Workers' Union of Great Britain, Robert Williams, who severely condemned the Dawes plan.

Dawes Plan Denounced

Robert Williams said: "This Plan has been devised to protect the interests of finance capital and when enforced will lead to the further ruination of the working masses. The so-called stabilization of the European economic system will be paid by the workers with a terrific price."

Continuing the speech Williams expressed an emphatic protest against the attempt to denationalize the German railroads, against the plans to cut the wages of the German railroad workers, and in general against the enslavement of the workers of Germany by international capital. These protests by Williams were heartily approved by the delegates.

In conclusion, Williams remarked: "But it is only to be wondered at how the leaders of the international labor movement could so readily accept the Dawes Plan."

Favors Admission of Russia.

Speaking about the Russian transport workers union joining the international organization, Williams expressed the hope that in the very near future the Russian unions will establish close connections with the Transport Workers International, in accordance with the resolutions passed by the Vienna Congress of the Amsterdam International.

Regarding the invitation to the International Propaganda Committee of

(Continued on page 2)

SIX POWERS WATCHING BIG NEGRO MEET

By ROBERT MINOR
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 28.—Liberty Hall, the rambling one-story frame building with a seating capacity of 5,000 which has become known far and wide as the meeting place of the Universal Negro Improvement Association convention in New York, is today the center of a concentrated fire of the diplomatic guns of at least three great world powers, if not six of the most powerful governments of the world.

The startled fear with which the great capitalistic governments view any organized movement among the suppressed colored races anywhere in the world, is illustrated with almost ludicrous sharpness when the combined French, British, and American governments—with perhaps the Belgian, Spanish and Italian governments lending a hand—under cover of the name of the consul-general of the little Negro state of Liberia, are issuing diplomatic documents denouncing the Negro convention in New York as "incendiary."

Issue Inspired Note.

A diplomatic note just given out at Washington, on the face of it inspired by the Great Powers but signed by

(Continued on page 2)

SILK STRIKERS DENOUNCE S. P. DAILY FORWARD

Strike Committee Hits Yellow Sheet

By H. M. WICKS
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 28.—True to its record of betrayal of that part of the working class that falls under its influence, the notorious Jewish Daily Forward, controlled by the rabid Bolshevik-baiter, Abe Cahan, endeavored, in a recent article, to create division in the ranks of the Paterson silk strikers by raising the anti-Communist issue.

Its failure to injure the strike was as humiliating as its effort was contemptible.

This time its yellow appeal to ignorant prejudice acted as a boomerang, as the strike committee of the Paterson silk workers, in a hot retort, correctly aligned Cahán and his whole crew with the lowest of capitalist pen prostitutes.

The reply of the strike committee told Cahan: "If you are not paid the same as any other paper that slanders the workers when they are engaged in a desperate struggle against the avarice and greed of the capitalists, you are scabbing upon the paid capitalist editors."

S. P. Tried to Butt In.

In the long, tedious preparation for the silk strike, during which period the Communists of Paterson were most active, the socialist party politicians were never heard from, because most of the remnants of that party in Paterson are petty bourgeois manufacturers whose interests are opposed to the interests of the mill slaves. They covertly tried to belittle the efforts of the Associated Silk Workers' Union to prepare the workers for a strike against the multiple-loom system, because most of them were sweating their slaves under this identical system.

But when the strike was called and the response was such as to insure its success, and when the Communists, who had worked day and night during the arduous preparatory work, took prominent places on the strike committee, the yellow socialists then tried to sneak into the committee by glowing promises that the Jewish Daily Forward organization would use its wealth and influence in the interest of the strikers.

A group of small capitalists, carrying credentials from the local socialist party, appeared before the strike committee and boasted of the great opulence of the Forward and assured the committee that their organization would assist the strikers. But just before leaving, the spokesman said there was just one little thing he had forgotten—the fact that the socialist party should be permitted to have three members seated on the strike committee.

This request was refused point blank.

Yellow Rats Enraged.

Infuriated at the failure of its political henchmen to impose themselves

(Continued on page 3)

UNITED STATES WARSHIPS WILL SHOOT CHINESE FOR U. S. BANKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 28.—Preparations were being made at the navy department today for the concentration of naval forces in the Far East for the protection of American interests in China during the revolution now directed at Shanghai.

COMMUNISTS EXPELLED IN GERMAN ROW

Dawes Plan Caught in Political Whirlpool

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—So vigorous and effective is the Communist opposition in the Reichstag to the Dawes Plan that a squad of detectives entered the House to compel the Communists to leave the building.

This is the first time in the history of the Reichstag that such action has been taken, and shows to what extremity the government is driven in its efforts to put the Dawes Plan across.

While the plain clothes men were swarming into the chamber, the Communists sang the Internationale.

The government lost out in the first vote on the Dawes Plan, when the banking, industrial and railroad bills, included in the Dawes Plan, failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote.

Owing to the opposition of the Communists who continued to press their amnesty bill, further balloting was postponed until tomorrow. There is scant hope that the Dawes Plan will be passed in the Reichstag. The government threatens to sign the London agreement whether the House passes it or not.

It is expected final action will be taken on the Dawes Plan tonight.

LEGIONAIRES FEAR FOSTER'S IOWA MEETINGS

No Violence Against Him Now, They Say

William Z. Foster, who left last night on a trip thru Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, and southern Illinois, to carry the message of Communism in the presidential campaign, has received notice from the American Legion that they are watching him.

"Reddest Red is Coming Here to Talk Sovietism," is the headline in the "Iowa Legionaire," publication of the American Legion in Des Moines.

Legionaires Worried.

"All loyal citizens realize the danger to society from even a few converts to the insanity he preaches," says the Legionaire.

In view of the traditional methods of mob violence and Fascist action by the Legion in the past, against those whom it considers "dangerous," there was some talk about attempts being made to prevent Foster from speaking. But the officials of the Legion have denied that such things will happen.

"No effort will be made," says this paper, "to keep Foster from coming, but the effects of his visit will be watched closely."

Question Cautious Attitude.

Whether this cautious attitude expresses a fear that to act against Foster would arouse more support for Communism, or whether it is merely to establish an alibi, while the rough stuff is pulled off by the rank and file, remains to be seen.

While the Legion fumes and fusses, the interest in Foster's meetings continues to grow. Large crowds are predicted in all the mid-western cities where Foster speaks in the next few days.

MILITANTS IN ENGLAND FORM ORGANIZATION

National Minority Meet Is Successful

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, August 28.—Two hundred and fifty delegates, including 73 from the provinces, met here today at the "national minority" conference, held under the auspices of the Red International of Labor Unions, British Bureau.

Tom Mann, well-known figure in the British labor movement, for many years head of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers (machinists) and member of the executive committee of the R. I. L. U., presided at the conference.

To Follow T. U. E. L.

At today's session it was decided to create a national organization for the purpose of co-ordinating the work of the minority movements within the various unions so that revolutionary activities can be more successfully carried on. The organization will largely follow the lines of the Trade Union Educational League in America. This is the first attempt to create and perfect such a national movement.

That the chances for a revival and growth of the movement for making revolutionary organisations out of the present unions in Great Britain, which are now under the control of "His Majesty's Labor Opposition," are very great, can be seen by the increasing dissatisfaction of the rank and file of the unions with the leadership of the labor fakers. Unofficial strikes, condemnation of officials who are betraying the workers' ideals, the greater influence of the Communists among the workers are some of the symptoms which mark a revival of militant activity. The election of J. A. Cook, left-winger, as head of the miners' union, is another sign.

Have Noted Leaders

Under the leadership of such noted left-wing leaders as Tom Mann, Willie Gallacher, and Harry Pollit the "national minority movement" of the R. I. L. U. is expected to become a power that will soon prove itself in the councils of the workers.

Greeks Demand Satisfaction.

ATHENS, Aug. 28.—Greece sent a note to Sofia today demanding satisfaction from Bulgaria for the killing of a Greek frontier guard during a clash on the border.

Greece claims that Bulgarian troops made a raid over the border. Bulgaria contends the trouble arose from a foray of Comitadjis (irregulars), over whom the government has little control.

FAHY DOESN'T GIVE BOND; SLEUTHS IN HUNT FOR THE LOOT

William F. Fahy, star postal inspector and recently arrested as the alleged head of the major postal robberies of the year, is making no effort to be released on $50,000 bonds.

Feeling that he has the money hidden, imported government Sherlocks are hot on the trail for the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery loot which they believe is secreted some place in Chicago.

It was said also that the arrest of two more principals in the robbery is expected momentarily. Inspectors are saying that they believe Fahy will not try to make his bond for fear both of implicating others and of having revealed the place where the money is hidden.

JOHN EDWARDS BACK FROM SOVIET RUSSIA WILL SPEAK TONIGHT AT T. U. E. L. MEET IN NORTHWEST HALL

One of the most interesting meetings ever held by the Chicago Local of the Trade Union Educational League will take place tonight in Northwest Hall, corner of Western and North Avenues.

It is one of the regular monthly meetings of the T. U. E. L. and is open to the public. The principal attraction this evening will be lectures by John Edwards, member of the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers' League, who has recently arrived from Russia, where he attended the sessions of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International.

Comrade Edwards will speak on "Youth and its Relations with the Trade Union Movement."

Comrade Earl Browder, editor of the Labor Herald, will give his usual monthly report on the progress of the revolutionary movement in the trade unions here and in other countries. The recent swing to the left wing in England and the activities of the left bloc in the Amsterdam International are of tremendous significance to the workers of America. The meeting will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF LEGERE'S ONE BIG UNION KICKS BUCKET

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 28.—Lawrence Labor, official organ of Ben Legere's private dual union, the One Big Union, has suspended publication, according to the Lawrence unit of the union, due to lack of financial support and the resignation of the editor, Bert Emsley.

ATTENTION!

All Literature and DAILY WORKER Agents should be present at the DAILY WORKER office, 1113 W. Washington St., Saturday, Aug. 30, 3 p. m. Branches not represented will be notified of the failure of agent to attend.

SIX POWERS WATCHING NEGROES

(Continued from page 1.)

Edwin Barclay, secretary of state of Liberia, reads as follows:

"The government of Liberia, irrevocably opposed both in principle and fact to the incendiary policy of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, headed by Marcus Garvey, and repudiating the improper implications of its widely advertised scheme for the immigration of American Negroes into the republic under the auspices of this association, which scheme, apart from not having the sanction of the Liberian government, does not appear to be bona fide and has in addition a tendency adversely to affect the amicable relations of the republic with the friendly states possessing territories adjacent to Liberia, desire to place on record their protest against this propaganda so far as it relates to Liberia, and to express their confidence that the government of the United States will neither facilitate nor permit the emigration under the auspices of the Universal Negro Improvement Association of Negroes from the United States with intent to proceed to Liberia."

"Free" Negro Republic Small.

The "free" Negro republic of Liberia, settled a century ago by American Negroes, is but a tiny patch on the west coast of Africa, but as a landing place on the African continent out of their control, the European colonial powers have long considered it dangerous. The Great Powers have for many years been slowly stealing mile after mile of her territories, bulldozing and threatening with armies and navies when the weak little republic protested.

England is now fighting armed rebellion in the Sudan. Spain is suffering military defeats in Morocco; the Spanish army has almost been driven from African soil by the great independence movement among African natives. Africa has, since the world war, because one of the main sub-soils into which the weakened capitalism of Europe is trying to sink fresh roots of colonial imperialism. The new post-war French empire has become utterly dependent on holding and strengthening the conquest of a great hinterland in Africa. An English warship rushing to Egyptian waters testifies that the British empire cannot withstand the shock of an epidemic of native nationalism in Africa.

Those who cannot see a spark until it becomes a bonfire might smile over a mere meeting of Negroes in a one-story Harlem shack; and even wise men will smile over the fantastic "emancipation of Jesus as a Black Man of Sorrows," and at the equally fantastic and cruelly fraudulent idea that the American Negroes' troubles will be solved by a wholesale transfer of the black portion of the American population to African soil.

But the colonial offices in London and Paris, and their allies in the Washington state department cannot afford to smile about the slightest touch between the African continent and any Negro nationalist movement, not even in the fantastic garb that this one carries. The result is that the Great Powers, disguising their voice behind the person of Edwin Barclay, secretary of state of Siberia, of which government they have gained control thru military threats and financial pressure, have dred this latest shot at the Negro convention.

Thru 40 Years' Struggle.

Particular attention should be directed to the words in the document: "a tendency adversely to affect the amicable relations of the republic (of Liberia) with the friendly states possessing territories adjacent to Liberia."

The "friendly states" referred to are the British empire and France. It will be remembered that for nearly forty years the little Negro republic has been struggling to prevent its extermination by France and England. About 1907 France stole 2,000 square miles of the best of Liberia's territory and compelled the Liberian government to surrender its claim. Since the world war and the subsequent wave of unrest in Africa, these Powers have taken every possible step to keep the "independent" Negro state of Liberia (as well as that of Abyssinia on the other side of the continent) as weak as possible, as an example to all African native peoples of the "inherent disability" of Africans to govern themselves, and therefore the necessity to depend on the colonial control of European governments.

In 1923 the Universal Negro Improvement Association, with headquarters in New York, was frowned upon by the Great Powers as an organization spreading in the West Indies, South America, Liberia and the United States a sort of "pan-African nationalism" which it was feared might "adversely affect" their colonial rule over 40n black peoples. The United States government in 1923 suppressed the convention of the U. N. I. A. by arresting the president of the organization and keeping him in jail until the intended period of the convention had passed. I don't know whether Marcus Garvey was or was not culpable, but I will not take the word of the United States government for it. Many Negro leaders whose sincerity cannot be questioned, in addition to nearly all of the white "liberal" intellectuals who take an interest in the Negro movement, as well as the most reactionary political circles, declare that Marcus Garvey, president-general of the organization, was justly convicted of misuse of the mails in his methods of collecting money.

But a glance at the record shows that any man guilty of getting a lot of money by dishonest means—be it by bootlegging or by bribing the members of the president's cabinet—does not get convicted as long as he has any of that money. To put it mildly, the writer has never seen any evidence that the federal authorities prosecute anybody for swindling.

Garvey Cringing.

However, casting aside all the charges of the "dicks," there are far worse charges which the "dicks" would only smile upon. The efforts of the Negro leader to "keep out of trouble" by catering to the most reactionary elements of the white capitalist class present a record so damaging to Garvey as to overshadow all of the specious charges of the federal "dicks." I have in my possession a letter purporting to be signed by Garvey, addressed to a reactionary white capitalist in subservient tone, suggestively referring to the "friction" that is caused by the Negro's attempts to gain political rights and "social equality" in the United States, and broadly hinting at the desirability of white millionaires giving financial assistance to a movement that will turn the Negroes' attention to Africa and away from such ambitions in America. (I will treat this more fully in a later article.) Even worse, and more concretely dangerous to the Negro, is the circumstantial evidence to show that Garvey has extended exactly the same sort of plea toward the Klan terror organization—that is, that if this Negro-burning organization will tolerate Garvey's operations in the United States, Garvey will relieve the Klan of the hated black man's striving for liberty in America by turning the Negro's attention "back to Africa."

Of course the idea that the twelve million Negro people in the United States (who are as much "American" as anybody here) could be bodily transplanted into Africa, is on its face phantasy. None but the most foolish take it literally in this way, and Garvey himself does not exactly claim to do that; his pleas to the white millionaires are rather put on the basis that he will take the Negroes' hope of freedom away from America, thus that he will take the Negro population away in toto.

This convention is coming to a close with Marcus Garvey appearing more distinctly each hour in the dastardly role of the one Negro leader (outside of a few Negro professional and business men) who cringes before the Negro's bushers, asking he wants "to keep out of trouble."

Tyrants Are Trembling.

But at the same time the echoes from near and far show that the powers of oppression are trembling before the coming dark tornado that swirls now in eddies around Liberty Hall within the segregation dam in New York city, and which is destined to break hard upon the coast of Africa and that of Asia, and to help to sweep a capitalist-imperialist world into a world of revolution. The phenomenon of organization of Negroes is here. It is beginning to take its rightful place in the struggle of the oppressed weaker nationalities against international capitalist imperialism. It will stay. It will grow. The hope of freedom for the world, for Harlem, for Senegal, for Georgia, Oregon, Abyssinia, France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Texas, England—the hope of the revolution for all the oppressed of the world is brighter because of this beginning of the organization of the most oppressed part of the American proletariat, with international connections. Garvey may destroy himself by fawning in the organization's name before the cowardly Ku Klux Klan; but with one set of leaders discredited and disgraced, the organization will go on nevertheless and will find leaders who are not afraid.

KU KLUX KLAN IN ATTEMPT TO STOP WORKERS' STRIKE

Taylorville, Ill., Picket Is Beaten Up

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 29.—The local chapter of the Ku Klux Klan has shown its true color as a fascist organization ready to lend active services to help suppress the organized workers.

The International Union of Retail Clerks is at present conducting a drive to organize the white collared workers in the stores of this little city. It is receiving the active support of the United Mine Workers Sub-district No. 5. One part of the organization strategy has been the calling of a strike, with members of the miners' locals doing picket duty.

Banker Leads Kluxers.

A few days ago the local chapter of the hooded brotherhood, under the leadership of a local banker, went on record condemning the attempts made to organize the white collared slaves condemning the labor movement in general and the assistance given by the mine workers in particular. Coming from the meeting where this action was taken, several of the Kluxers assaulted and beat up one of the coal diggers on the picket line.

GLENN YOUNG, KU KLUX HERO, GIVES COURT THE AIR

Judge Busy Forfeiting His Bail Bonds

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 28.—Efforts to locate Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan raider of Southern Illinois, who is at liberty under bonds aggregating more than $200,000, proved futile today after his mysterious disappearance from a leading Atlanta hotel.

Altho Young declared to the last minute that he would enter an Atlanta hospital for a "major operation," a check today failed to show his registration at any of them. Employes of the hotel here said he "failed to leave a forwarding address," adding that they had no idea of his whereabouts.

Young came to Atlanta from Herrin, Ill., last week in order to undergo the operation, he said, which was necessary because of wounds received when an assault was made upon him several months ago in Illinois.

* * * *

HERRIN, Ill., Aug. 28.—Belief was expressed here today that S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan raider, who was reported to have disappeared with his wife from an Atlanta, Ga., hotel yesterday, was on his way to Herrin to surrender himself to the court here where fifteen of his cases arising out of the February 8 rioting here, were on the docket this week.

Bondsmen Rattled.

City Judge E. N. Bowen has already ordered forfeited nine of Young's bonds, aggregating $39,000, on account of Young's non-appearance when his cases were called for trial, despite affidavits presented to the effect that Young was unable, physically, to travel. This action is said to have scared the Kluxer's bondsmen.

It became known today that Young was in long distance telephone communication yesterday afternoon with Arlie Boswell, his attorney here.

Sheriff George Galligan was reported to be preparing to swear in extra deputies to preserve order, following voicing of threats against Young.

MUSIC SUPPLIES ATMOSPHERE TO RUSSIAN FILM

Workmen's Circle Orchestra Big Favorite

An extraordinary feature for the showing of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," which has had astounding success, is the 25-piece Workmen's Circle Mandolin Orchestra. This orchestra has been in existence many years and has tremendous popularity among the 100,000 members of that organization, as well as among the many other workers for whom they have played on various occasions. The mandolin orchestra has prepared special musical selections for this occasion.

Because of the great number of people that have been unable to get into the theater since the opening of the show, all are urged to come promptly at 7:30.

Don't Come Late.

This picture is being shown at the Lenox Theater, 111th St. and Lenox Ave., New York, with a continuous performance from 7:30 p. m. until 11 p. m.

Fahy, Ace of Postal Sleuths, Had Many Examples to Follow

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, William F. Fahy, heralded as "the ace of postal sleuths," is spending his time in a cell in the Kane County jail, near Chicago. It is claimed that Fahy got a big hunk of the proceeds of the $2,000,000 mail robbery loot taken, in the nation's most up-to-date train hold-up, at Rondout.

If "Bill" Fahy is guilty of all the charges now levelled at him, it would be nothing unusual. It would only be another instance where a public official had used his office for his own benefit. That is a common feature of public and private business under capitalism. According to capitalist ethics anyone who doesn't do it is "a fool."

* * * *

Fahy knew all the ins and outs of the postal service. He knew of the great wealth, in negotiable securities, that was being transported daily thru the mails. Why not get some of it? That was a very logical question.

The Rondout mail robbery helped push the Teapot Dome scandal, for a day, on an inside page. It had been shown, at Washington, that public officials, democrats and republicans alike, of all shades, could be bought for a sum.

Harry M. Daugherty, as head of the department of justice, had made everything pay, according to charges, from graft in aircraft to bootlegging. Daugherty had been raw about it. He sold pardons, for instance, like groceries, over the counter, or jobs as federal judges.

In other cases it was more politely done. William Gibbs McAdoo, an aspirant for the presidency, was more genteel about it. He just got $250,000 as a professional retainer, with promises, if not the actual turnover of a million.

* * *

Or another way of doing it; a very old method in politics. Len Small, the republican governor of Illinois, and La Follette's candidate for re-election, stands charged with pocketing the interest on public moneys that had been farmed out at the governor's discretion. Secretary of the Treasurer, Mellon, allows his rich friends to escape their taxes. Another good method. The son of General Leonard Wood, America's arch militarist, gets friendly tips from Wall Street. Wins big sums in stock gambling.

Fahy had all these examples to follow. Fahy evidently did not think of getting his in a genteel way. At the Rondout robbery, the bandits were attired in gas masks, carried hand grenades that they used effectively, and it is claimed that the loot was taken away in an airplane. That is more adventuresome, but not as effective perhaps, as John D. Rockefeller arbitrarily boosting the price of gasoline a cent or two, or Armour giving a little upward shove to the cost of meat.

* * * *

Fahy, in his government position, had a good lookout during the war, on all the successful attempts of big business in looting the people of the nation, in addition to the government treasury.

The steel trust got its million dollar a day in profits. The powder trust was in the heyday of its glory. The food profiteers never before had found plundering the people such an easy matter. Extortionate prices, rather than gas masks and hand grenades, proved themselves more successful and more up-to-date means of picking the pockets of the nation's population.

With all these examples before him, it is charged that Fahy did pretty well, nevertheless. It is claimed that he succeeded fairly well in achieving the most laudable ambition under capitalism, which is, "Get Yours!"

* * * *

Under capitalism, where the greatest struggle is the struggle to win the necessities of life, to keep alive, the motto of success is "Steal All You Can!" The only crime is in getting caught. Such a rotten social order must crumble into dust as a natural sequence of its own gradual decay. It must be followed by a better social order that recognizes not only the right of all to live, but also the right to enjoy life, without plundering his fellow man to secure the necessary means.

Capitalism has created chaos, with its consequent crimes, among the people of the earth. Communism will bring order out of this chaos, where no man will be compelled to stick a gun in the face of his fellow man in order to keep from starvation; where there will no rich to fatten off the abject and helpless many.

TRANSPORT WORKERS' LEFT WING

(Continued from page 1)

be Profintern among the transport workers to come to Hamburg for a joint conference with Transport Workers Federation, Williams reported that the Executive Committee of the Federation could not agree on this point. He expressed his conviction that in the coming years the Russian unions and the International Transport Workers Federation will no doubt come to a complete agreement.

French Delegation Reactionary

Upon the conclusion of Williams' report, the French delegation entered a motion to postpone the report of the Executive Committee of the I. T. W. F. until the arrival of the representatives of the Bureau of the Amsterdam International. In reply, Williams remarked that the representatives of the Bureau will be admitted to the Congress as guests, but not as dictators. The French proposal was supported by the German delegation. The English delegation voted against it. The French motion was carried and the report of the Executive Committee was postponed until Aug. 8th.

Fimmen Calls for Class War.

At the evening session Fimmen made a report on the international situation. He expressed himself categorically against the illusions arising among the masses as a result of the labor governments coming into power.

Fimmen said: "These labor governments have made capitalism much stronger than it ever was before. All socialist and semi-socialist are nothing else but a wall of protection, behind which the bankers, industrialists, and agrarians, are continuing their old doings. The London Conference is bound to destroy many of these illusions. The Dawes Plan is dictated merely by fears of German competition. Only fools and knaves can greet this Dawes Plan. It seems that many labor leaders have forgetten everything and have not learned anything. They even forgot the terrors of the last world war."

In conclusion, Fimmen said: "In case of a new war, the working class must offer the most active resistance. The working class will have to transform the imperialist war into a civil war."

These last words of Fimmen called forth severe remarks from the French and German delegations, who said: "Fimmen speaks in favor of Moscow, and not Amsterdam."

YOUNG WORKERS WILL TAKE TO THE WOODS SEPTEMBER FOURTEEN

The Young Workers League of Chicago will finish a week's campaign against the Mobilization Day scheme of the militarist government with a hike into the Milwaukee woods, on Sunday, September 14.

All those wishing to participate in the hike are requested to meet at the end of the Milwaukee Avenue car line at 11 a. m.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

GITLOW MEETING HELD IN SPITE OF INTERFERENCE

Washington Hall Owner Intimidated

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 28.—At last the government of Silent Cal has spoken, using a United States Marshal as its mouthpiece. At least so states the proprietor of Knights of Pythias Hall, in this city, which hall had been engaged for the mass meeting to be addressed by Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for Vice-President on the Workers Party ticket. The meeting had been vigorously organized and largely advertised.

Three hours previous to the time of the address, the hall proprietor telephoned to the chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting and stated that a United States Marshal had informed the proprietor that Gitlow must not be allowed to speak. The right to use the hall was cancelled and another instance recorded of the tactics of the White Terror in America. All may speak but those who actually represent the exploited workers.

There were rumors that the meeting would be raided by agents from the "Departure from Justice," but this good fortune did not occur.

Shunting Off Audience.

Representatives of Washington local remained at the entrance to the hall and directed those who came to hear Gitlow, to the regular meeting hall of the Workers Party in Washington, where the meeting was held. Despite the fact that a heavy rain was falling, the hall was crowded to capacity by an enthusiastic audience that welcomed the opportunity to hear Ben Gitlow expose the fallacies of the platform and candidates of the republican, democratic and progressive parties and to listen to an explanation of the principles of International Communism, the only hope of the working masses of America.

Comrade Gitlow was introduced by Comrade Roy Leman, chairman, who delivered an interesting, tho brief, account of his experiences in Russia, where he participated in the ceremonies at the burial of Comrade John Reed.

POLITICS IS DEBATE TOPIC AT LABOR MEET

"Fatty" Arbuckle and Phil LaFollette to Speak

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 28.—The Indiana Federation of Labor was this afternoon turned into an open forum for the discussion of political issues, despite the opposition of many of the delegates to the plan which had the sanction of the executive committee, headed by President J. N. Taylor, a supporter of LaFollette and Wheeler.

LaFollette Jr. to Speak.

It was understood that Phillip La Follette, son of Robert LaFollette, the presidential candidate, would arrive here at noon and that he would be one of the speakers appearing before the convention.

Because of the victory of the open forum faction, it is expected that the convention will follow the lead of the American Federation of Labor and endorse the candidacy of LaFollette and Wheeler. A lively debate, however, is probable before the endorsement takes place.

"Fatty" To Do His Stuff.

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, film actor, in South Bend this week, is expected to be one of the speakers before the convention this afternoon at the request of Louis Hasse, vice-president of the State Building Trades Council, a resolution declaring Arbuckle has been "unjustly persecuted by the press and others" was adopted late yesterday. The resolution asked Arbuckle to address the convention.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

Appoint Sheffield Mexican Ambassador "In Spite of" Wealth

(By the Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Another illustration of the truism that poor men are not given high diplomatic posts under old line party administrations was given when a wealthy New Yorker, James Rockwell Sheffield, was appointed ambassador to Mexico, to succeed Charles B. Warren, who has resigned. As member of the law firm of Betts, Sheffield, Bentley & Betts, the new envoy has handled some highly lucrative corporation practice. One of the juicy plums which fell to him from the federal courts was the receivership for the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, the holding company for the Interborough Rapid Transit and other transit lines. He is a former president of the Union League Club, leading place of the financial aristocracy and of the National Republican Club.

MINE BOSSES FAIL IN PLAN TO CUT WAGES

Miners Absent From Herrin Meeting

By TOM TIPPETT
(By The Federated Press)

The cleverly laid plans of the Illinois coal operators to bring consideration of a wage reduction before the Illinois mine workers failed insofar as the public meeting arranged by them to discuss that question in Herrin on Aug. 20 is concerned.

The purpose of the meeting fell flat when the mine workers officially refused to participate in the gathering. The operators were there in full force as were representatives of the railroads, public service corporations, corporation lawyers and others who feel a pinch in their pocketbooks because of the unprecedented unemployment in the mining industry in Illinois.

All for Wage Cut.

Every speaker openly advocated or implied that the coaldiggers must take a cut in wages to remedy a "deplorable situation." It was made plain that neither the operators, railroads nor public service companies could be expected to lower their own profits. The miners alone must stand the cut.

The August 20th meeting is the aftermath of an excursion from southern Illinois into the non-union fields of Kentucky a few weeks ago. This trip was ostensibly organized by the Lions' Club, a business men's organization at Herrin. Mineworkers, business men and operators made up the party. Glowing accounts of flourishing business in the neighboring scab fields were released when the excursion returned. Then came the meeting referred to above. Mineworkers who at first agreed to participate in the round table discussion were led to believe that a reduction in freight rates would be considered as one way to obtain cheaper coal to compete with the non-union product mined across the Ketucky line. They refused to take part in the meeting when they learned that wage reductions would be discussed.

Wants to Bust Union.

Dr. F. C. Honnald, of Chicago, president of the Franklin-Williams Coal Operators' association, was the chief spokesman for the operators. His speech was rather to inspire others to demand a wage reduction than to do so himself. He called the miners' union a failure and said that some other machinery would have to be created to handle the present problem. He was quick to add that he did not wish to destroy the miners' union and then he called upon the rank and file in the miners' organization to force their officers to save them from economic ruin. They weren't going to break the contract, he said, and then reminded the miners that the two increases in pay had been forced by them between contract periods. (This was during the war and right after when the miners were notoriously underpaid.) Honnald "did his stuff" poorly.

Let's Cat Out of Bag.

Following speakers let the cat out of the bag by openly declaring with emphasis that the miners must take a wage cut. Herbert Taylor, head of the Taylor coal company in southern Illinois, said the coaldiggers must take a wage reduction or the mines would remain closed. Walter Williams, Benton, Ill., a corporation lawyer, was invited by the chairman, County Judge A. W. Morgan, vice president of the Herrin Lions' Club, to address the assembly. Williams made the key note speech. It was for a reduction in miners' pay. He drew a graphic picture of the situation with non-union Kentucky only 48 miles away. The whole remedy, he declared, was a lowering of the miners' wages. Williams is an ex-coal operator. He failed to meet a payroll at his mine in 1914, according to Benton coalminers, and his mine was closed. The "deplorable situation" that he stressed here was not a factor then.

Representatives of the Burlington and Illinois Central railroads were present and notified the gathering that their freight rates could not be lowered. They "unloaded" to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In Interest of Public Service.

The Central Illinois Public Service company was represented by its vice president, J. P. Clayton. He made the most of the meeting to advertise the virtues of his company and to also notify it that the price of power his company sells the coal operators, which is an essential item in the cost of coal production, could not be lowered.

The Central Illinois Public Service company sells electric energy to 40 southern Illinois towns. Practically all coal mines are operated by its power. Clayton gave some illuminating figures on this privately owned super-power corporation. He said that operators were producing coal from 6 to 12 cents per ton cheaper with super-power than with the old steam method. He did not account for this saving but since mineworkers have been given no increase it follows that this item went into operators' profits.

Since 1918, Clayton said, his company had spent $9,000,000 in extending their properties and since that development it was possible to generate one kilowatt hour of electricity with two lbs. of coal. Before super-power from 12 to 16 lbs. were required. Obviously a grand saving in coal has been accomplished when the size of the corporation is considered and the extent of its activities. Clayton called such a saving a "blessing" but he did not say to whom. He made it plain that there could be no reduction in the price of electric power. The other cost factors, he pointed out, were freight and labor. Freight rates could not be reduced. The railroad representatives themselves had said so. He then implied that the miners ought to take a cut in pay. The poverty of this corporation can be appreciated by considering that Clayton said that $9,000,000 had already been spent by it and that his company was ready to expend that much more to develop as circumstances require.

Only Miners to Be Cut.

It was made plain that the miners alone must take a wage reduction so that business men, lawyers, coal operators, railroads and billion dollar public service companies can live.

The meeting was attended by about 65 Illinois coal operators, 100 business men and approximately 50 coaldiggers who sat silently thru the first propaganda meeting staged by the coal operators to reduce their wages. The capitalist press was on hand. Special correspondents from Chicago as well as St. Louis were there to dash off the welcome news. They all lost in the first round, according to Wm. Daech, President of Subdistrict No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, who was an observer at the meeting and who furnished the material for this article.

Unemployment Acute.

The unemployment situation in the Herrin field is acute. Out of a membership of 14,000 miners 9,170 were unemployed in the past three months. Only 17 of the 42 mines in that locality are working and only three of them are working more than a few days a pay.

Ignores Deflation Problems of Farmer In Irrigation Plan

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Dr. Elwood Mead, the new commissioner of the bureau of reclamation, has reported to Secretary of the Interior Work on a study of government irrigation projects thruout the west that settlers henceforth must have more capital and adaptability to the conquering of desert land. At least $1,500 of ready capital should be required of the man who undertakes to develop a 40-acre tract on an irrigation project.

He admits that the extreme depression in agriculture has hit the irrigation farmers hard, but declares this is a "temporary" factor which "may be ignored" in dealing with the main problem.

Captain, Crew, Schooner Gone.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 28.—Captain Miller and his crew of five lost their lives when their schooner, the Prince Edward Island, crashed on the rocks at Kitty Witty shoals, 20 miles from Halifax.

SOLIDARITY WINS MEXICAN TEXTILE WORKERS' STRIKE

MEXICO CITY.—The general solidarity strike of Orizaba which was called in order to support the demands of the textile workers succeeded in obtaining the minimum demand of $2 a day in the whole industry.

Another solidarity textile strike that was called to support 250 workers who had been locked out by one of the seventeen large textile mills operating in the state of Mexico, is being settled satisfactorily to the workers. The 250 are to be returned to their work with wages paid for the seven days on strike.

PITTSBURGH WORKERS IN MOVE ON SPY

T. U. E. L. Brings On Speedy Action

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., August 28.—At last the Pittsburgh labor movement is going in the right direction to rid itself of the notorious stool-pigeon and labor spy, Robert W. Beattie, now president of the labor bank here and secretary of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union.

But this was not done until the local branch of the Trade Union Educational League had written a leaflet asking the rank and file how long it intended to have in offices men who were in the paid employ of their worst enemy, the boss.

Decides to Resign.

After three hearings of the trial board, Beattie decided to resign and escape expulsion and the publicity the case might receive in trade union publications. This was too much for the delegates to swallow, although Hickey, president of the Central Labor Union, and Nelson, acting secretary, did their best to have the resignation accepted.

In the discussion that followed delegates stated that they were under instructions from their local unions as a result of the T. U. E. L. leaflet, add that the membership demanded action. It was pointed out that not only Beattie, but the labor movement of Pittsburgh was on trial before the workers of this country. Nelson did not listen.

Nelson an Old Faker.

He is the same gentleman who represented the carmen in the last strike in May, when the mayor got $25,000 to put down the strike by tear bombs riot guns and other war implements and when Nelson was shown this strike-breaking paraphernalia he went back and demanded that the men call off the strike.

On the motion to defer action on Beattie's resignation until the executive board reports on the charges, his reactionary friends did not have the courage to vote for it. The trial so far has cost the workers nearly $1,000, but it will be worth a million to them to discover and throw out spies who have stuck to their backs like leeches and torn down what it took painful years to build up.

Bare Secret Instructions to Spies

(Continued from Page 1.)

republican party. The chairman of the national committee of the republican party is exposed as having hired scores of private detectives, stool pigeons and to have secretly conspired to have them worm their sneaky way into the textile workers' unions of New Bedford, Mass.

If Open Shop Dawes does not approve of secret organizations against the workers, why doesn't he denounce William Morgan Butler, the real head of the republican party machine? Butler, in order to compel the workers in his textile mills at New Bedford, Mass., to accept one wage reduction after another, paid out tens of thousands of dollars to sneaky stool pigeons, held secret conferences with them, conspired with them as to how to control and wreck the unions, and put some of these "under-cover men" at the head of the unions of New Bedford.

The nefarious business of putting across this secret attack to effect a wage-slashing campaign without strikes was directed by Butler thru the "Sherman Service, Incorporated," which is in the conspiracy business for the jack it collects from great industrial concerns. If any one thinks that the Sherman Service is an open, above-board concern, dealing as it "claims" to deal, with "engineering" and "changing the motives of employes," then read the following instructions given by the "service" to its agents:

"How to Spy on Workers."

"As our employe you will be known and called 'representative.'

"You will be designated by a number under which you will be known to us only, and which you will employ when signing communications, expense accounts and all other documents.

"As your mission is to be considered confidential absolutely, you must follow our directions relative to divulging your real vocation to any one.

"The rules and regulations of our organization exclude even one's closest friends and families from any knowledge as to the details of any assignment a representative may receive.

"In referring to any worker (being spied upon) give that person's name or working number, otherwise give a detailed description of him so as to aid us in identifying him. (So he can be fired and blacklisted.—Editor.)

"You will receive frequent instructions from us relative to the work you are doing, which instructions you are to mail back to us, together with envelope in which it was sent you. You are not to destroy them or keep them on your person over twelve hours.

"You are not, under any circumstances, to use the telephone in connection with this business from the town in which you may be employed, unless it has over 50,000 population. Otherwise you are to proceed to a nearby city or town of reasonable size, and at least five miles beyond the outskirts of the town in which you are employed. Should it be necessary to phone frequently, you are not to use the same telephone station, and at no time are you to talk over an open phone.

"In mailing your daily communications to us, you are to take care that no one observes you and that the post-office clerks do not see the specific letter which you yourself deposit.

"The rules and regulations of our organization forbid you to make known to ANY ONE your connection either with us or in this business, unless under specific directions.

"Our work frequently requires that many representatives, unknown to each other, are engaged in the same factory at the same time. Should you know them to be representatives, you must not indicate that you know who they are, neither must they indicate that they are aware of who you are, unless specifically directed to do so by your official.

"Get a room for yourself. Do not share it with others, as the presence of an outsider would materially interfere with the writing of you confidential communications and the making up of your expense accounts."

All to Cut Workers' Wages.

This is the secret organization that the head of the republican party, William Morgan Butler, engaged to spy upon and work in the textile unions of New Bedford. Besides Silver and Binns, secretary and president of the Textile Council, Butler got these stool pigeons to install two more, Silva and Valley, on the council, so that it was completely under the secret control of Butler. And what for?

Butler wanted to reduce wages. Girls in his factories getting $14.22 per week are getting too much to suit the head of the republican party. Weavers in his mills are getting the 1913 wage of $6.39 a week, and the $23 weaver would be cut in wages to his 1913 wage of $9.72 a week. Blessed be the name of "normalcy." The stool pigeons of the Sherman Service, Incorporated, shall inherit the earth.

Silk Strikers Denounce Socialist Daily

(Continued from page 1)

upon the strike committee, the Forward, on last Saturday, published a vicious diatribe against the alleged "Communist influence" in the strike. Cahan's publication "warned" the strikers against political enemies and cried that the "Communist provocateurs must be smashed."

The socialist Forward took particular exception to the activity of the Communists who exposed the fact that many members of the Jewish Workmen's Circle were playing the parts of yellow rats and doing work for the struck shops under sweatshop conditions. As a matter of fact it was the "cockroach" supporters of the Forward that prevented the complete shutdown of the broad silk industry in Paterson. Every large mill was closed, but these small family concerns, hid away in obscure places, stubbornly resisted the efforts of the strikers to get them into the street.

When their political bosses in New York perceived the growing influence of the Communists in Paterson, who, by their self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of the workers, had won their places of leadership in the strike, the local socialists were told to sneak in for the purpose of sowing suspicion and distrust against the Communists and to try to control the movement they had scorned a few weeks before.

Many of the Forward gang approached non-Communist members of the strike committee and tried to align them against the Communists, but to no avail. They were contemptuously ignored.

The next move of the discredited crew was the attack in the Forward, under the guise of giving fatherly advice to the strike committee. The committee resented this sort of impudence and drafted the following reply, which we print in full:

"Editor Jewish Daily Forward, New York City:

"Our attention has been called to a translation of an article that appeared in your paper on Saturday, Aug. 23 containing a series of statements, accusations and innuendoes that are wholly uncalled for and unfounded in fact.

"You say, in effect, that Communists are playing politics in the strike, and base your accusations upon alleged statements accredited members of the Workmen's Circle. Thus far your publication is the only one that has even mildly suggested that the strike was being utilized by any political group. Not even the enemy press of Paterson has resorted to this sort of subversive propaganda against the strike. You profess to have the welfare of the strike at heart. But your savage attack upon some members of the strike committee, which is a back-handed slap at the whole committee, belies your pretenses. Your attack plays into the capitalist press; in fact, you outdo them in vicious mendacity.

"There is not one word of truth in your story. In the first place, you say that one 'Comrade Dubrov' appeared before the strike committee to investigate alleged slanders against the Workmen's Circle. This is not true, for no one has appeared for any such purpose. Nor has the question of the Workmen's Circle ever been discussed, except to point to the number of members of that organization that are working while the strike is in progress. The fact that they are 'cockroach' capitalists who do most of their own work is no excuse for their working at this time, especially when we called for a hundred per cent shutdown in the industry here.

"As to your charge of certain people bringing in political questions, we desire that you be clear on this matter. The following little incident may serve to enlighten you regarding the tricks of certain politicians, who draw their inspiration from the Jewish Daily Forward:

"At a meeting of the strike committee, held Aug. 10, a committee with credentials from the socialist party branch of Paterson appeared and stated that their party was interested in the strike and that the Jewish Daily Forward, described as a rich concern, was willing to donate assistance. This all sounded very well but before your committee left they added that there was just one little consideration they wanted incorporated along with their generous offer That was that they be permitted to have three members on the strike committee. Their proposition had just this one little string tied to it This being an unusual, not to say unheard of, procedure, the committee considered it and adopted the following motion:

"'We fully appreciate the offer of assistance, but the strike committee cannot see its way clear to seat representatives of a political party.'

"This is the beginning and end of the one and only attempt on the part of any one to use the strike for political purposes.

"On the strike committee are avowed Communists, but they were not selected as Communists, but as strikers and fighters in the ranks of labor. Likewise there are members of the socialist labor party, who are there as fighters in the ranks and not as representatives of their political beliefs. No one from either of these groups has endeavored to impose himself upon the strike committee. That distinction is the exclusive effort of the socialist party in this strike.

"If we must purchase your support by becoming pawns of your political machine, we respectfully decline your generosity, and the favor your wealth affords you, with thanks. Your much vaunted wealth that your representatives promised to bestow upon us is no temptation, much as we desire support, when it must be purchased at the price of deviating from our fixed policy to play no political favorites. Also your undoubted service to the enemy class may account for your great wealth. If you are not paid the same as any other paper that slanders the workers when they are engaged in a desperate struggle against the avarice and greed of the capitalists, you are scabbing upon the paid editors of the capitalist press.

"Now as to the facts regarding the local Workmen's Circle. The strike committee, in one of its regular meetings, appointed a subcommittee for the purpose of lining up the Jewish workers. This subcommittee had full power to carry on organization work. They arranged a Jewish mass meeting and at that meeting elected a larger committee of 25 to aid in this work and also adopted a resolution calling upon members of the Workmen's Circle who were working to close out on strike. A few days thereafter that enlarged committee reported facts and figures to prove that about 150 members of the Workmen's Circle, known as 'cockroach' bosses were doing work for manufacturers whose places were struck. Further more, these members were running three and four looms, which is a violation of the two-loom demand of our union, and is the main cause of this strike. Also, our committee proved that some of the Workmen's Circle members had ordered their jackey foremen to ask the police to arrest strikers who were doing peaceful picketing.

"If there is a scintilla of decency in your publishing organization and the political party you speak for, you will publish this reply in full and without distortion.

"(Signed)
"ASSOCIATED SILK WORKERS,
"Per Strike Committee."

Members of the strike committee, commenting upon the reply to the yellow Jewish Daily Forward, declared they were aware of the policy of Cahan and his henchmen to rule or ruin organizations of labor having large blocks of Jewish members. They referred to the gangster terrorism that prevails in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the furriers and other New York city and Chicago unions, and asserted that this blight upon the labor movement would never be permitted to penetrate Paterson and wreck the organization here in the silk industry.

The reply to Cahan is ample evidence that the Paterson silk strikers mean what they say in reference to the professional union wreckers organized around the Jewish Daily Forward.

Send In that Subscription Today.

CHICAGO SPEEDS CAMPAIGN WORK

(Continued from Page 1)

WORKER and a new member for the party is our big task in this campaign.

Browder told the gathering that, with practically no campaign whatever from January to June, our membership has increased by 5,000.

"If we can get such results without a campaign, just think what we can do with a well organized and systematic campaign," he said.

Find Potential Readers.

Browder, in making his plea to the members to work hard within the next few months to get new readers for the DAILY WORKER, said:

"The getting of new members goes hand in hand with the getting of new readers to our daily paper. And the straw vote in the shops can be used to make new readers for The Daily. A man who will cast a straw vote for Foster is a potential reader of Our Daily. For one can see these straw votes putting new life into our party."

He urged the comrades to take their paper more seriously. The Chicago circulation can be greatly increased with only a comparatively small amount of work. The branches must get on the job and put more energy into getting subscribers and readers for the Daily. Every means should be utilized in this work. Street meetings should be used to good advantage for getting subscriptions.

Manley told what is being done nationally to get the entire party into the political campaign.

Comrades Working Hard.

"The biggest and most important job just now," said Manley, "is getting those signatures. Everywhere the comrades are working hard and we have some excellent reports of progress. The task in Illinois is comparatively easy alongside what it is in some states. For instance, in Illinois we need 2,000 as against 20,000 that are needed in Ohio.

Manley reported that the Foster-Gitlow meetings were doing remarkably good work. They attract big crowds, they get an enthusiastic response, forcing their way in big publicity-on the front pages of all the capitalist newspapers, and in general putting the Workers Party in the position of an important political party in this country.

"These meetings are very important. We must organize to make them a tremendous success. The Chicago meeting must be made the greatest meeting of the entire campaign, and we should work to pack the biggest hall in Chicago.

"We have not given our imagination enough play with the tremendous possibility of these meetings, comrades," he said. "Everything our candidates say is broadcasted in the newspapers thruout the country. Think what significance this will have in building our party.

"I can report to you that Massachusetts has already succeeded in getting the necessary signatures and will be on the ballot. Rhode Island is on the ballot. New York has a tremendous job, but the comrades are working hard. They need 12,000 signatures. New Jersey and Pennsylvania will go on the ballot. Getting Pennsylvania on the ballot is a big victory for the party when you consider what a fight we have had in the coal mining districts of the state. Maryland will go on the ballot. Thru the activities of Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor, Colorado is being swung into line and we expect that state to report soon that we will be on the ballot. Washington state is on the ballot."

"And do not forget that the DAILY WORKER is the real force in this campaign. Every comrade should buy a bundle of the campaign issue, get them into the shops and factories and give them the widest possible distribution."

WM. Z. FOSTER

What do you know about him?

When speaking to your neighbors, friends and shopmates and urging them to support and vote for William Z. Foster, the working class candidate for president, at the coming election, you will have to tell them what Foster has done for the labor movement. For this we recommend Foster's book:

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY
"THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE AND ITS LESSONS"

The story of the steel workers, fight for organization and recognition, led by William Z. Foster.

AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY
of this wonderful story sent to any address for $1.00

Regular price of this book is $1.75. Order at once, while the supply last! Remember: AN AUTHOGRAPHED COPY.

Literature Department,
Workers Party of America
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

MURINE FOR YOUR EYES
Night and Morning to keep them Clean, Clear and Healthy
Write for Free "Eye Care" or "Eye Beauty" Book
Murine Co., Dept. H. S., 9 E. Ohio St., Chicago

E. W. RIECK LUNCH ROOMS

Seven Places

62 W. Van Buren | 42 W. Harrison
160 N. Clark | 118 S. Clark
66 W. Washington | 167 N. State
234 S. Halsted

PHONES, HARRISON 8614-5
Specialties: Rieck's Famous Baked Beans and Brown Bread
Fine Soups and Fresh Made Coffee
Commissary and Bakery:
1612 Fulton St. Phone West 2549

DO YOU ROOM OUT?

I want to rent my room as I am leaving the city in a few weeks, and would like someone to have it when I go because I can RECOMMEND IT AND ITS LANDLADY SO HIGHLY. It is suitable for one or two. For more particulars call Monroe 4712, between 9:00 a. m. and 6:00 p. m.

SPEAKER
J. Louis Engdahl
Editor of THE DAILY WORKER, and Workers Party Candidate for U. S. Senator.

ADMISSION 35 CENTS

HOW TO GET THERE—Take Forest Park "L" to the Grove, or Madison St. car and transfer to Suburban Line.

Great Labor Day Demonstration
FOLLOW THE CROWD TO THE
T.U.E.L. PICNIC

SEPTEMBER 1
Altenheim Grove
FOREST PARK, ILL.
(German Old People's Home)
UNION ORCHESTRA—FREE DANCING—SPORTS

EXPOUND PEACE, BUILD MILITIA, "BOB'S" SCHEME

Badger State Leads in Militarism

By JAY LOVESTONE
(Eleventh Article.)

LaFollette's proud boasts of being an opponent of militarism and capitalist wars have no firm foundation in fact.

Wisconsin, the state which "Bob" always holds up as an example of what a government ought to be to and for the working and farming masses, is one of the leading militarist states in the Union.

The Wisconsin National Guard is one of the biggest in the country. In this "Model Commonwealth" military expenditures have risen at a terific pace.

And when an effort was made to do away with the state military organization, Senator LaFollette cried "Halt" and threw back the forces opposed to the maintenance of this institution. In preventing the abolition of the National Guard of his state, LaFollette fought against the demands of the workers who have always been hostile to the National Guard because of the frequent use made of its forces by employers in time of industrial disputes.

Finally, crowning the militarist infamy flourishing under LaFollette's much-vaunted "Wisconsin Plan," is the strong record made by the Badger state in helping the capitalists plunge the country into and wage the last imperialist world war.

Militarist Strides in Wisconsin.

On examining the annual reports of the Chief of the Militia Bureau we find that only two states in the Union, Indiana and Wisconsin, have doubled their National Guard strength between 1915 and 1922. In 1915 there were 3,291 in the Wisconsin National Guard. By 1922 the number rose to 6,900.

The Capital Times, a LaFollette mouthpiece, published at Madison, Wisconsin, tells us editorially in its issue of April 5, 1923: "Wisconsin is one of the leading militarist states in the nation." We base this statement on the number of men in the National Guard in this state and on the amount of money spent here for the maintenance of military establishments.

"The figures show:

"That Wisconsin is one of the four states that has gone even further than required by the National Defense Act."

When, as a result of the post-war reaction, the Wisconsin National Guard was losing numbers, a special recruiting campaign was put on for two months. On December 10, 1923, Adjutant General Ralph M. Immel, appointed by Governor Blaine, announced officially that this militarist drive netted more than six hundred new members to the state guard.

More Armories.

This campaign to maintain Wisconsin as a pacemaker in militarism is further shown in the quarterly report for the period ending December 31, 1923, made by State Engineer, John G. D. Mack. Here we learn that four new Wisconsin armories have just been completed and located at Abbotsford, Clintonville, Milwaukee, and Hudson.

Describing this mushroom growth of militarism and its effects in LaFollette's political satrapy, Mr. William T. Evjue said editorially in the Capital Times, July 28, 1924:

"Up at Camp Douglas the annual fan-fare of Wisconsin's military display is in progress. Thousands of young men are marching. The bands are playing. The guns are booming. The reviewing stands beam as the boys go marching by.

"Well, why not?

"Do you know, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen of Wisconsin, that Wisconsin is today the seventh state in the Union in militarism? Do you know that in spite of the big cut made in appropriations in the last legislature that there are only six states in the Union having a larger national guard than Wisconsin's?

"And this in a state that is overwhelmingly committed to peace! This in a state controlled by progressives who have made attacks on militarism one of the cardinal points in their platforms!"

But in the appropriation of funds for militarism, Wisconsin ranks even worse. The last available annual report of the Chief of the Militia Bureau reveals the fact that in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, only three states appropriated more money for their National Guards than Wisconsin did. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, only four states, Michigan New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, spent more than Wisconsin for the national Guard.

Pacemaker in War Preparations.

When Woodrow Wilson called upon the American workers and poor farmers to shed their blood in order to make the world safe for capitalist democracy, LaFollette's state, Wisconsin, rallied to the imperialist colors and wantonly sacrificed the lives and dollars of the working masses.

Let us listen to a glorification of Wisconsin's war efforts by John M. Nelson, now national director of La-Follette's presidential campaign, as he delivered it to Congress on behalf of the Wisconsin delegation, on July 15, 1918:

"The President, as Commander-in-Chief, has had our unanimous support on all war issues. When he asked for appropriations, we gave him all he asked; when he asked for authority to issue bonds, we gave it to him; when he asked for authority to control our food, fuel, railroads, telephones, telegraphs, mines and factories, we gave him the authority; indeed, we did not hold back as a delegation when he asked for power over our liberties and our lives . . .

"Once war was declared, I accepted the majority decision for war. I recall only three votes out of about 120 since war was declared upon which I was not in full accord with the Administration . . . It has been stated that I voted against conscription. This is a base falsehood."

Support War Loans.

And from the Milwaukee Journal of October 10, 1918 we learn of the strong support accorded the various war loans in the home of LaFollette, now seeking workingmen's votes as an anti-war candidate. We quote:

"Total bond sale is $102,000,000."

The forty-five counties in Wisconsin in the Chicago Reserve Bank District have bot $102,000,000 worth of bonds compared with a quota of $100,000,000. Since subscriptions are still being tabulated, the final total will be still higher. Twenty-seven Wisconsin counties are over 100 per cent, Kenosha leading with 142 per cent. Milwaukee is eighth, with 105 per cent of quota, according to the present tabulation.

"Milwaukee county has subscribed $35,904,000 to the Fourth Liberty Loan, which is more than $3,000,000 over the quota. Among subscriptions are $100,000 by the church committees, $38,000 additional from federal employes, $79,000 from county employes, $70,000 from city employes, and $30,000 from the police department."

The total amount of war bonds sold in the 71 counties of Wisconsin, according to Plehn in "Wisconsin in the World War," is about $335,900,720.

Workers Used as Cannon Fodder.

LaFollette's progressive, peace-loving state was as lavish with the workers' lives, as it was with their money in the last capitalist world war. On page 36 of the Report of the Adjutant General of Wisconsin, for period ending June 30, 1918, we find:

"To date of this report there have been forwarded to the different camps under the calls as made by the War Department:

". Selected men to number approximately	90,000
"Wisconsin National Guard to Camp McArthur	18,000
"Enlistments	10,000
"Total furnished Army and Navy since the beginning of this war	118,000"

Finally, in the announcement by Governor Blaine, August 2, 1924, on the proposed Defense Day plans, we are told that the number Wisconsin sent to the front reached a grand total of 124,814. LaFollette's gubernatorial candidate then goes on to declare proudly:

"Wisconsin's military record recalls the major components of the Iron Brigade and the major components of the Thirty-Second Division. It recalls the fact that in no war during its history had Wisconsin failed to answer the call for national defense or within its own boundaries known industrial or military disorders, and the fact that on July 4, 1918, when American arms stemmed the tide in the second battle of the Marne, one out of every fifteen soldiers wearing the American uniform in France came from Wisconsin."

Hate Wisconsin Militarism.

The workers of Wisconsin have at no time had any illusions as to the extensive military preparations going on in the state. The following appearing in the Milwaukee Leader of May 12, 1921, shows the misgivings of the workers aroused by the record-breaking military appropriations voted in the state:

"The efforts to increase its personnel and give greater power to the National Guard are viewed in labor circles with mistrust and open declarations that it is not done with an eye to an outside foe, but to prepare to put down labor.

"Labor men claim that Fort Sheridan was located midway between Chicago and Milwaukee by the capitalistic interests that guide the military policies, so that regulars will be on hand to meet labor troubles."

The great service Wisconsin National Guard is to the Badger state bosses can be seen from the fact that, under the usual pretense of riot and violence, several companies of troops were rushed to terrorize the workers into submission in the Cudahy strike of August, 1919.

In the strike of the meat cutters against the Cudahay Packing Company, one of the beef trust firms, Governor E. L. Philipp of Wisconsin rushed three companies of National Guardsmen from Camp Douglas, fully equipped and prepared to stay for an indefinite time, in order to "mediate the dispute" against the workers. .

Supports Wisconsin Militarism.

Robert Marion LaFollette has been a consistent supporter of the military system in Wisconsin. In his message as governor he declared in 1905:

"The people of Wisconsin should recognize their importance and take just pride in maintaining the Guard . . . The model of efficiency in the military service in this country is the United States Regular Army; and every effort should be made to bring the militia as near this standard as possible."

Then, in February, 1923, an effort was made, because of the strong labor opposition to the rapid strides in militarism in Wisconsin, to weaken, if not to abolish the National Guard. Even Mrs. LaFollette lent support to this movement. Senator LaFollette then came upon the scene and led a vigorous opposition to this effort to abolish the Guard.

The bill to do away with the state militia, hated by the workingmen, had passed the assembly. Preparations were afoot to fight for its adoption by the state senate. But LaFollette, the self-styled anti-militarist, soon entered the fight against the Wisconsin workers, lined up with all the enemies of organized labor, joined with all the open shoppers and killed the move to disband the state militarist organization.

MILITIA RULE IN WISCONSIN

WISCONSIN is one of the leading militarists states in the union.

LaFollette's peace-loving commonwealth is one of the four states that have gone even farther in military preparations than required by the National Defense Act.

There are only six states having a bigger National Guard and only four states spending more money for militarism than Wisconsin.

In the war to make the world safe for plutocracy, Wisconsin sent nearly 125,000 workers and poor farmers to the front and gave about $350,000,000 to the various campaigns to raise funds with which to buy cannon, machine guns, battleships, aeroplanes and poison gas.

The workers have no illusions about the Wisconsin military machine which has been used against them by the bosses, as in the strike of the meat cutters against the Cudahy Packing Company, one of the strongest units of the Beef Trust.

And when the Wisconsin workingmen organized to abolish the state militia, it was LaFollette who robbed them of their victory and saved the day for the militarists and open-shoppers of his state.

BIG ANTI-WAR MEETINGS IN KIEV, RUSSIA

Demonstrate Against Imperialism

By ISRAEL AMTER
(Special to the Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, Aug. 4 (By Mail.)—August 3rd was the climax of a mighty week of propaganda and demonstration thruout Soviet Russia against imperialist war.

Hardly a worker or a peasant in the villages but was reached by the big army of propagandists who went out to tell the Russian workers and peasants the oft-told and by historical events clearly proven cause of imperialist wars.

Russia's workers and peasants have felt the horror of imperialist war on their own bodies; they have experienced the horror of imperialist intervention, the ravages of counter-revolutionary plotting and demolition at the behest of imperialist masters. But Soviet Russia's workers and peasants have the power now and fear no imperialist. The workers of the western part, of the world, of Europe, America, and of the East, face a new imperialist conflagration, which, in its glaring circle, is bound to draw in the state of the workers and peasants. So Soviet Russia's mighty voice was raised against the coming disaster—the approaching imperialist war coming out of the west.

Gathering of Workers.

Kiev was the center of a mighty demonstration on August 3rd. All Kiev was on its feet: workers and peasants —men and women—young workers, children and the Red Army. It was a splendid demonstration, the factory workers gathering in their districts and waiting till the Communist speakers came to greet them, and then marching thru the city to the City Soviet, where also the headquarters of the Communist Party are located. Passing the stand in front of the Soviet, they filled the air with shouts of "Long live the Communist Party," "Down with imperialist war," "Long live the Communist International," "Long live the proletariat of the world!" It was a splendid day. The streets were lined with people to witness the procession of 100,000 workers and peasants, out to pledge their all to put down another imperialist war!

Praying for Rain.

Kiev is one of the oldest cities in Russia. It contains the famous opera house where Stolypin was shot. It also contains the famous convent "Lavra," to which good Christians journey thousands of versts to pray, cross themselves and ask of their Creator the good things of life—in that heathenish castle of splendor and wealth.

A girl walked to Kiev a distance of 1,000 versts, barefoot, with some straw fastened under her foot, to be allowed to pray on the steps of the cathedral. And only a few days before, the peasants gave their last grain to the priest to bring the rain, of which not much has fallen this season in the daitrict. The faker promised them much, just as the church promises a white heaven—for the rain fell. This story is centuries old, but now the Communist Party is carrying on a campaign of education, and little by little, this stout pillar supporting the ignorance of the peasants is crumbling—of which Americans should take note.

Kiev was the home of pogroms, the frenzied slaughter of the Jews by the Black Cossacks, by Denikin, Petlura, Hetman and the other White generals who carried out the tasks assigned them by England, America and France. On the way to Kiev I met a young Jewish worker who told me another story of the destruction of life and property these hordes were guilty of, at the order of their imperialist employers. Seventeen times the government changed hands in Kiev, until finally the Soviet power was firmly established and capitalist rule was for ever banished from the soil of the Ukraine—and imperialist hopes were blasted.

Fought Against Semenoff.

I also heard the story of a young Communist whom Denikin was going to shoot, but had to leave hastily, because the Red Army entered and took possession of Kiev. No other state of Soviet Russia was so bitterly fought over as the Ukraine; none suffered the ravages of the war as did the Ukraine. There are Communists heading the Kiev government who led the fight against Semenoff, the Czechoslovaks and other counter-revolutionaries in Siberia, until the red flag was raised here, not to be lowered again. These are stern, strong men, drawn out of the crucible of the class war; men who are loved by the whole population—except the nepmen. Every one of these men has a brilliant war record—they have tales and anecdotes to tell that breathe of the romance of the last century.

Religious Worker.

The attitude toward the Communist Party is best exemplified by the following incident which took place a few days before I arrived in Kiev: A worker had applied for admittance to the Communist Party, but before being accepted sent a letter to the party asking that his name be stricken from the list as he intended to be married in church—to please his bride. Of course, this is forbidden to members of the party.

The young man was called before factory meeting, where the non-party members demanded that he also be expelled from the union for the outrageous act of renouncing the party for the sake of "petticoats." It took the combined efforts of all the Communists present at the meeting to make the workers understand that, altho as a matter of course, the worker could not join the Communist Party, still he could not be excluded from the union. Nevertheless they persisted, and the matter is not yet settled.

Organizing Ability.

August 3rd demonstrated the organizing genius of the Russian Communists, the Young Communists and the Young Leninists (the Pioneers), for upon them rested the organization of the demonstration. It was a demonstration full of revolutionary enthusiasm, as only Russian workers and peasants manifest it. Behind this enthusiasm is the determination of the Russian workers to be "ever ready," as the Young Leninists proclaim. Workers, peasants, soldiers, clerks, young workers and children—old men and women, and young ones, yet determined to defend the Revolution to death—and to heed the call for aid from the west or east, when the workers of the capitalist countries are ready to overthrow capitalist rule.

The Kiev workers are only specimen of what Soviet Russia thinks and does. Let the workers of other countries but demonstrate the spirit and the will to power that the Russian workers and peasants display, and capitalist power will soon meet its end.

EDUCATE YOURSELF FOR THE STRUGGLE

Class in English (for foreign-born workers) begins September 10; tuition fee $2.00.

Class in Trade Union Tactics begins September 11; tuition fee $1.00.

Enroll Now at Local Chicago Office, 166 W. Washington St.
(Phone State 7985)

Our Candidates

FOSTER'S DATES

Sioux City, Iowa—Labor Lyceum, 508 Jennings St., Friday, August 29, 8 p. m.

Des Moines, Iowa—Grotto Hall, 721 Locust St., Saturday, August 30, 8 p. m.

Omaha, Neb.—Eagles Hall, 17th and Cass Sts., Sunday, August 31, 8 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo.—Musicians' Hall, 1017 Washington St., Labor Day, September 1, 8 p. m.

St. Louis, Mo.—Triangle Park, 41 South Broadway, Tuesday, September 2nd, 8 p. m.

Ziegler, Ill.—Pavilion Park on Wednesday, September 3rd, 5:45 p. m.

Springfield, Ill.—Carpenter Hall, Adams and Seventh Sts., Thursday, September 4th, 8 p. m.

Elizabeth, N. J.—Turn Hall, 725 High St., Wednesday, September 10, 8 p. m.

Newark, N. J.—Labor Lyceum, 704 So. 14th St., Thursday, September 11, 8 p. m.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Musical Fund Hall, 8th and Locust Streets, Friday, September 12, 8 p. m.

Paterson, N. J.—Halvitia Hall, 56 Van Houton Street, Saturday, September 13, 8 p. m.

GITLOW'S DATES

Comrade Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, will address meetings at the following places:

Buffalo, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, William and Jefferson Sts., Friday, August 29th, 8 p. m.

Rochester, N. Y.—The Labor Lyceum, 580 St. Paul St.—Saturday, Aug. 30.

Daisytown, Pa.—Muffet Field, Walkertown, Pa., Sunday, August 31st, 1:30 p. m.

Canonsburg, Pa.—Labor Temple, Monday, September 1st, 2 p. m.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St., Tuesday, September 2nd at 8 p. m.

Bellaire, Ohio — Miners Temple, Wednesday, September 3rd, 7:30 p. m.

Warren, Ohio—Thursday, September 4th.

Canton, Ohio.—Canton Music Hall, 810 Tuscarawas St., E., Friday, September 5th, 8 p. m.

Akron, Ohio.—Perkins School Auditorium, Exchange and Bowery Sts., Saturday, September 6th, 8 p. m.

Cleveland, Ohio—Bricklayer's Hall, E. 21st St. and Prospect Ave., Sunday, September 7th at 7:30 p. m.

C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, will make a series of campaign speeches in the New England States. Meetings already arranged for are:

Boston, Mass. — Monday, Sept. 1, Paine Memorial Hall, 7:30 p. m.

Providence, R. I.—September 4th.

New York City—Central Opera House, Tuesday, September 9th, 8 p. m.

New Haven, Conn.—Saturday, Sept. 6, Hermanson's Hall, 158 Crown St., 8 p. m.

LEWIS' PIECARD ARTISTS HOOKED ONTO LAFOLLETTE

Pittsburgh Gang Swing to C. P. P. A.

By PAT. H. TOOHEY.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28.—The reactionary and corrupted officialdom of District No. 5, U. M. W. of A. after squandering thousands of dollars of the miners' money, finally depleting the treasury to such a degree that they now have to send "organizers" around to the more prosperous locals bumming enuf to pay the salaries of the corps of pie-card artists, in order that they may continue their life of luxury and extravagance and hold onto union at the cost of the long betrayed miners, have again betrayed the rank and file, this time politically, by their endorsement of the Wisconsin faker and definitely aligning with the C. P. P. A. at the Southwestern Penna. Conference held here recently.

Rank and File Absent.

The "conference" was dominated by the representatives of the transportation brotherhods, bureaucratic labor leaders and the gone and forgotten socialist party. The entire District Executive Board of the miners was present as "delegates" (they of course representing no one but themselves.) The rank and file were conspicuous by their absence.

The "district gang" as they are affectionately (?) known to the membership, entering politics, is a new one to everybody.

It is clearly remembered, that when the P. P. C. of Washington County began their first drive to affiliate the organized workers into the county organization, shortly after the formation of the F. F.-L. P. and when many local unions of U. M. W. A. applied for affiliation, the entire machinery of the district organization sought by threats of revocation of charters, intimidation, etc., that the locals withdraw, giving as their reason that, units of the U. M. W. A. were forbidden to pay per capita tax to any or all dual organizations.

Fagan Was at Democratic Meet.

P. T. Fagan, District President, says loud par excellence, was also a delegate to the conference. It is the same Fagan who was a delegate to the Democratic prize fight in New York recently, who consistently voted for Al Smith. I asked Fagan what was he doing there among that bunch of crooks in New York and why did he vote for Smith. His answer was "that I was there protecting the interests of labor, and that Smith is one of the greatest friends of labor living." Naturally we all must agree. Incidentally I might mention that Fagan is a rabid anti-Catholic, probably that is where he gets his conception that Al is for the workers.

It can be said that when the district gang O.K.'d the trust buster, they drove away more votes than they will be able to corral in the next century, for their experience the miners of the Pittsburgh district shun all movements in which the officials participate, for the prevailing opinion is that their presence is akin to contamination.

Miners for Foster.

Appearances indicate that generally the membership will support Foster and Gitlow, for they can distinguish the difference of the platform of the trust buster and the Workers Party. They know further that LaFollette will perpetuate the capitalist system, and that the Communists stand for its abolition, and for the establishment of a Workers and Farmers Government.

Helene Wolf to Teach W. P. Course in English

An English class which is designed to help foreign comrades get a better command of the English language in order more ably to carry on party work is to be started Sept. 10 in Chicago, under the direction of Comrade Helene Wolf. The class will meet twice a week and is prepared to give an intensive and interesting course to party members and others who want to better their command of the English language so that they can take a more important part in the struggles of the working class. No special qualifications are necessary. Speaking and writing are to be the main topics of the English class.

The class will last about ten weeks and the fee for the entire term will be $2.00. Foreign speaking comrades who wish to perfect their English should take advantage of this opportunity. This is one of the first projects of the new educational program of District 8 of the Workers Party, and a big class is expected. Enroll now at the City Office, 166 West Washington St. (Telephone, State 5959.)

Raise in Printers' Wages.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Printing compositors in commercial shops have received a raise in the basic wage scale from $45 to $51 a week. This opens the way for a similar raise for newspaper compositors, who have been told to wait until the commercial scale was adjusted.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.

Friday, August 29.
North Ave. and Rockwell St., auspices N. W. English branch and Maplewood, W. L. speakers, D. E. Earley, W. Stewart, and others.
Lawrence and Sawyer, auspices Irving Park T. W. L., speakers, Mr. Hammersmark, Maurer and others.
Roosevelt and St. Louis Ave., auspices Ryrov Y. W. L., speakers, Wm. Kruse and Miss Lowry.
14th and 51st Ct. auspices Cicero branches, speakers, Hedaehl, Nat Kaplan and Italian comrades.
Saturday, August 30.
North Ave. and Mohawk, auspices German W. P. and Hungarian branches, speakers, E. Early and C. Miller.
Division and Washtenaw, auspices W. W. Jewish branch and Y. W. L., speakers, M. Gomez, S. Hammersmark and Jewish comrade.
111th and Michigan, auspices Pullman section W. P., speakers, Louis Engdahl and H. Gaspac.
Halsted and Sebor Sts., auspices Greek branch W. P., speakers, F. Soldier and Greek comrade.
24th and State, auspices South Side W. P., speakers, O'Flaherty and Gordon Owens.
Lincoln and Division, auspices Polish branch, speakers, Jos. Manley and Polish comrade.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.

Saturday, Aug. 30—Picnic and farewell party for Comrade Bassett.
Monday, Sept. 1—T. U. E. L. Picnic, Alexander Grove.
Sunday, Sept. 7—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.
Sunday, Oct. 12—Gitlow-Ottlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).
Saturday, Oct. 18—John Reed Memorial Meeting.
Saturday, Oct. 25—Freiheit Ball, Ashland Auditorium.
Friday, Nov. 7—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.
Saturday, Nov. 15—Young Workers Ball.
Nov. 27-Dec. 2—Ball Worker and Labor Defense Council Bazaar.
Wednesday, Dec. 31—T. U. E. L. Dance, Ashland Auditorium.
Wednesday, Jan. 21—Lenin Memorial Meeting, Ashland Auditorium.
Saturday, Feb. 28—Red Revel.

CHURCHES RAISE STEW OVER U. S. IMPERIAL TREND

Think Talking Will Stop American Bankers

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Latin-American and other diplomats here, as well as officials in the state department, are following with keen interest the development of sentiment against American dollar diplomacy in the republics to the southward, as disclosed in the address of Samuel G. Inman at the international relations conference of the Federal Council of Churches at Chautauqua, N. Y.

Our Own Irelands.

Inman, who edits a journal, Nueva Democracia, backed by the Federated Council of Churches and circulated in Latin America, says that "We are piling up hatreds, suspicions, records for exploitation and destruction of sovereignty in Latin America such as have never failed in all history to react in war, suffering and loss of the noblest spiritual ideals." He insisted that in the smaller countries to the south, controlled by our soldiers, our bankers and our oil kings, we are developing our Irelands, our Egypts and our Indias. So far, they have been weak. But as the world of American marines in Santo Domingo, Haiti, Nicaragua, Honduras and elsewhere.

Churches Kicking Flippantly.

This interference of the Federal Council of Churches, representing an association of the national bodies of the leading Protestant evangelical church denominations, in the financial conquest of Latin America is resented by the state, war and navy department staffs. They connect it with the resistance made to Mobilization Day plans by these churches, and to the general anti-imperialist trend of the churches in this country and Canada. Attacks by church spokesmen upon the sending of marines into Haiti to pave the way for profitable loans are regarded as proof that the churches are honeycombed with radicalism just as they are tinged with pacifism.

Secretary Hughes, Secretary Weeks and Secretary Wilbur will take no measures to counteract this tendency, however, until they have consulted President Coolidge and National Chairman Butler.

Correction

In our issue of August 14th we carried a story on a resolution condemning militarism which we credited to the Amalgamated Food Workers of America and which should have been credited to the National Committee of the Amalgamated Metal Workers of America. While we know that the Food Workers are most assuredly entirely in accord with this resolution, we feel that we owe it to the Metal Workers to print this correction.—The Editor.

Hartford, Conn., Meeting

An open air meeting will be held Saturday, Aug. 29th at 8:30 P. M. on the corner of Main and Buckingham Streets. W. Simons of New Haven will be the speaker of the evening.

Send in that Subscription Today.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

THE STORY OF WILMA AND RUTH.

By Karl Reeve.

Christopher, Illinois, Vera and Zora Cernich, 10 and 8 year old daughters of Comrade Victor Cernich, are staunch Foster-Gitlow supporters. Vera and Zora read every issue of the Young Comrade from the first headline to the last period.

Wilma and Ruth Crane, their two inseparable play mates, are daughters of hard shell, Klan Baptists, but that's not the fault of Wilma and Ruth. Recently Mrs. Crane saw her two daughters reading the Young Comrade, and she was very angry that her young daughters should be "Red" sympathizers. Mrs Crane meant well. She tried to get Victor Cernich to send Vera and Zora to Sunday school and to church every Sunday, but Comrade Cernich said it was up to the girls.

Then Mrs. Crane wrote a letter to Vera and Zora, asking them not to "corrupt" her daughters and asking the two "Bolsheviks" to come to church. A few days ago Wilma and Ruth Crane asked Vera and Zora Cernich, "Didn't you get a letter from my mother asking you to come to our Church?"

"Yes". Vera replied. "But religion is the opiate of the people," and she explained to her playmates how the two preachers fool the workers, getting them to think of heaven, while the capitalists skin them on earth.

Now Wilma and Ruth Crane read every issue of the Young Comrade. They like it, and it is getting harder and harder to make them enthusiastic about the Klan teachers in the Baptist Church Jazz.

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

CANADIAN MINERS REFUSE TO TAKE WAGE REDUCTIONS

Point to Huge Profits of Coal Operators

CALGARY, Alberta, Aug. 28.—The Coal miners of District 18 will have nothing to do with the double-dealing Dominion minister of labor, James Murdock, and have told him so to his face. The federal labor minister has been in the district attempting to induce the miners to return to work under terms acceptable to the mine bosses, but the miners' scale committee refused to accept his proposals that the strike be settled on the basis of one-eighth reduction of the wage scale existing last March. When they refused, Murdock accused them of not having a proper regard for the rights and interests of the public and declared the strike was not justified.

Amazing Profits Made

The balance sheet just made public show that the mine bosses have made amazing profits during the past two years. The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. gave out figures for 1922 and 1923 as follows:

Profits from all sources for 1922 were $533,176, as compared with $213,959 in 1922, of which coal and coke operations netted $471,689 in 1923, as against $160,030 in 1922. The company declared dividends amounting to $373,690 and put $14,276 in its surplus account. The operating returns of two subsidiary companies totaled $22,877.33.

At the meeting at which the company's balance sheet was read, the directors feared that the present strike of the miners would seriously cripple this year's dividends and lamented the fact that pressure could not be brought to force them to return to the mines.

Hold Service for Unknown Hoboes in California Fire

(By the Federated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Under the auspices of the International Brotherhood Welfare Ass'n. (the "Hoboes' Union") memorial services were held in San Francisco for an unknown number of itinerant laborers who were burnt to death when a barn in which they had been used to sleeping near Knights Landing, Yolo county, was set on fire. Twelve bodies were recovered, but is believed that many more were completely destroyed. The funeral services were conducted by Arthur S. Howe, president of the local association, with a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi, and a Protestant minister participating.

PREDICTS DOWNWARD TREND OF WAGES FOR NEXT 10-15 YEARS; LULL IN FALL IS TEMPORARY

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Your wages are due to follow a decided downward trend lasting for 10 or 15 years. That is the prediction of C. J. Hill, of the Babson statistical organization, in an address on "The Labor Outlook for 1925" delivered before the annual Babson business conference. Any improvement in employment conditions and a cessation of wage cuts during the autumn and early winter should not blind labor to the fact that its deflation will continue.

"Already thru the country in a steadily increasing area," said Hill, "wage reductions are being recorded by our statisticians. Last month for the first time in two years wage cuts exceeded in number the wage increases reported. And the recent wage increases have all been more or less confined to two major industries—building trades and transportation. Of course, it is impossible to anticipate the situation during the next few months. It is entirely possible, if business picks up, that this fall and winter may see a temporary cessation in wage reductions and even some wage increases. But these will be only temporary movements."

Want Downward Readjustment.

Hill reflected the employers' point of view when he said that European competition can be met only by lowering production costs and that means in part labor costs, that the Europe which will compete with us is not Europe of low wages and long hours, and that in Europe there has always been found labor which will work long and cheap.

Coolidge's Bunco Game.

The significance of Hill's suggestion that autumn may see a temporary halt in this process of deflating labor is brought out by President Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who raises the question whether big business can bunco labor into supporting Coolidge by engineering an artificial wave of prosperity just before the election.

"Early last winter," he says, "we warned our membership that there would be a depression all along the line and then in the early autumn everything would commence to advance, business would become good, and an effort would be made to sweep the Republican party in on a wave of prosperity. Whether or not it will materialize and whether or not the rank and file of the working people will be bunced by the old slogan that has been worked so many times and called the 'full dinner pail' remains to be seen."

Engineers Warned

Stone warns the engineers not to be carried away by any of these old worn out bunco games that have been played so often on the workers.

Business indicators are beginning to show signs that some such political maneuver is to be attempted. The output of the automobile industry has increased. Detroit employment which has gone downhill pretty steadily since February turned up slightly in the middle week of August, employers in that city adding somewhat over 1,000 workers to their payroll. Similarly the rubber tire industry at Akron talks of taking on 4,000 workers in the near future. Scattered cotton mills are beginning to resume operations with wage rates reduced from 10 percent to 12½ percent. Production in the steel industry is also said to have risen from 41½ percent of capacity in July to 50 percent in August. How far this temporary revival will go it is impossible to say. Probably the huge financial power behind Coolidge can produce some such grand stand play to put him in the White house before resuming the deflation of wages. It wants a good strike-breaking executive in the saddle during the process.

SOUTHERN MILL SLAVES HAVE MORE WORK TO DO THAN NORTH BECAUSE THEY WORK FOR LESS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Why did cotton mill workers in Massachusetts get an average of only 87 hours employment during July while employes of South Carolina mills averaged 218 hours? Because South Carolina mill owners can get 60 hours of work a week out of the average spinning room operative for a total of $13.14, while the Massachusetts competitors pay the same class of workers an average of $18.72 a week and get only 48 hours work at that. So the activity of the cotton industry is steadily shifting to southern states where a class of industrial serfs in the mill towns has as yet failed to join the movement of organized labor against gross exploitation.

Massachusetts, with 11,792,160 spindles, reported fewer spindle hours than either North Carolina, with 5,858,762 spindles, or South Carolina, with 5,263,258. Total spindle hours during July in Massachusetts were 1,020,206,601, compared with 1,097,988,655 in North Carolina and 1,146,745,626 in South Carolina.

Wages Low.

Cotton mill wages have always been deplorably low. In 1193 women workers were earning as low as 11 cents an hour, or $6.29 a week, while the average for the entire industry, men and women employes included, was only 14.8 cents an hour, or $8.52 a week. The average wages of typical occupations in 1913 and 1924, as reported to the department of labor, were:

	Per Hour—		Per Week—
	1913	1924	1913	1924
Speed tenders (male)	$0.145	$0.394	$8.72	$21.39
Spinners, frame (male)	.143	.369	8.07	19.63
Slasher tenders (male)	.212	.467	12.09	24.75
Weavers (male)	.170	.449	9.73	23.71
Other (male)	.151	.347	8.59	18.63
Speed tenders (female)	.153	.411	8.61	21.64
Spinners, frame (female)	.128	.319	7.35	16.94
Weavers (female)	.164	.429	9.30	22.22
Trimmers (female)	.111	.268	6.39	14.12
Other (female)	.127	.292	6.89	15.15
Entire industry	.148	.372	8.52	19.72

South Lower Than North.

These low wages are averages for the country as a whole, combining the coolie wages of the south with somewhat higher wages paid in northern textile centers. According to the Wall Street Journal, wages in southern mills average from 25 per cent to 30 per cent below those paid in the north, giving southern producers a cost advantage of about 7 cents a pound on standard goods. And recent reports indicate that within a month mill wages in the south will have been established on a 10 per cent lower level than has prevailed during the past year.

The situation in this industry illustrates the irresponsible tendency of private ownership to expand the productive power of an industry beyond the possible requirements of consumers and then to give full employment to those wage earners only who will work the greatest number of hours for the lowest wages. Under such a system the workers can never get the benefits which are supposed to come from their increased productivity under modern industrialism.

New Miners' Hall.

BRADY, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Sunday, Aug. 31, will witness the dedication here of the new miners' hall, built to replace the one which was burned by mine guards on the occasion when they shot up the town. A large attendance of miners is anticipated.

SCAB LOSES SUIT AGAINST UNION; DESERTED STRIKE

Court Decision Rules Can't Sue Unions

By MARTIN A. DILLMAN
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28.—Miss Nellie Mays, former member of the United Garment Workers, has lost her suit against the St. Louis local for $10,000 damages, which she claimed was due her because the union ousted her from membership and posted her as "a scab" when she deserted her shopmates during a bitter strike here in 1920. In effect, the ruling in the case handed down by Circuit Judge Killoren, decides that labor unions cannot be sued as organizations in Missouri.

Bosses Help.

The suit was brought upon a statute enacted in 1915, at the instance of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Assn., for the purpose of permitting injunction suits against union officials involved in strikes, Judge Killoren says the statute is unconstitutional because it is indefinite and might cause abuses and miscarriages of justice.

It is expected that Miss Mays will receive ready assistance from big business in carrying her case to higher courts.

CLARK HOLDING GOOD MEETINGS FOR OMAHA W. P.

OMAHA, Nebr., August 28.—Stanley J. Clark has just finished a week of unusually successful street meetings here, and has left for Denver where he expects to be even more successful in reaching the workers, particularly the unemployed, with the message of Communism.

Clark has a winning way which holds a street crowd glued to the spot. "They come to jeer and stay to cheer."

Not Much Excitement.

Clark's stay in Omaha was uneventful, so far as any excitement was concerned, until after his meeting Saturday night, when he was preparing to jump in his flivver and leave for Denver. Two plain-clothes men, who had waited during the entire meeting and using extreme courtesy, advised Clark that the "captain wished to see him at the station." There had apparently been a false alarm, as said captain merely sked Clark where he was from, inquired about the Foster meeting on the 31st, remarked good naturedly that Clark "had a good line of graft," and "ought to line up with Wheeler" (a local Klan faction which is fighting the city administration).

This "ordeal" over, Clark was dismissed and cranked his trusty steed for the "mush" to Denver.

MINERS WAR ON KU KLUXERS

(Continued from Page 1.)

there was no earthly reason why the Klan should have shot him. Today a load of Klansmen stopped their car and told me they were going to get me, but as long as I am deputy sheriff of Dowell I am going to protect the citizens from the rowdy Klan element."

Even Sheriff Attacked.

The deputy sheriff has a crippled arm caused by an attack on him by a gang which he drove away after being shot, fighting with only one arm.

Mabel Sudano, a subscriber to the DAILY WORKER, told how the Klan raided her house, stuck a gun in her face, wrecked the furniture and slunk away before help could arrive.

Steve Kurepa, who was sworn in as deputy sheriff to help ward off the Kluxers who threatened to invade the town, and Louis Joich, who arrived on the scene of the murder before Gomer died, re-enacted the murder for the DAILY WORKER. Both are DAILY WORKER subscribers. They showed how Gomer was crossing the railroad tracks enroute to the Union Colliery Coal company to draw his pay.

Reese, who knew Gomer was hostile to the Klan, waited for Gomer on the tracks, behind some loaded coal cars, with a shot gun. As Gomer was crawling under these cars, Reese from the other side, poked the gun in Gomer's face and fired. His first shot took away half of Gomer's neck and severed the jugular. His second shot dug a hole in Gomer's chest. Gomer was an unusually powerful man and even then he struggled to extricate himself from the freight cars. Gomer backed out from the tracks, turned and staggered toward his home. Some women came to his aid, but he fell and just as his wife ran up from their nearby home, Gomer died, without a chance to fight for his life.

Reese Is Caught.

William Davis and William Green, special deputy sheriffs, caught Reese at his home near DuQuoin, Perry County. They were determined that Reese would not get away on a self-defense plea, as it freed Reese's father, who killed a man in the same cowardly manner two months ago. The elder Reese was freed.

"This morning I received a letter signed K. K. K. which said I was soon going to be killed," Davis told the DAILY WORKER, "but if they kill me a few of them are going to die first."

These deputy sheriffs succeeded in lodging seven men in the Murphysboro jail who participated in a raid on Dowell Thursday night. These seven Kluxers were charged with carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. They were attempting to retaliate on the citizens of Dowell for finding Reese guilty of first degree murder at the coroner's inquest, and lodging him in the Murphysboro jail where he now resides. Mayor Gus Blair immediately supplied the five hundred dollars bail required for each Kluxer, and allowed them to return to their homes.

Assistant State's Attorney Glenn, of Franklin County, rushed to Murphysboro to appear for the rowdies, among whom are Wigter S. Wilson, Clerk of the City Court of Benton, Everett Stewart of Benton, Coy King, Benton, C. B.-McMahon, Benton, Wiley Gordon, West Frankfort, Gary Isaac and Dolva Meler, Benton. They will be tried in September. Most of the seven are members of the American Legion as well as the Ku Klux Klan.

Ku Kluxers Scared.

The seven men, thoroly cowed by the resistance to their violence by the citizens of Dowell, announced they will not return to Dowell for their automobile, but will send someone after it.

When a party of seven Workers Party members who were going thru the town with the DAILY WORKER reporter, arranged to eat dinner at a boarding house here, the housekeeper refused to serve the DAILY WORKER reporter and the party had to go down town to the restaurant.

FARM MACHINERY IS SHIPPED FROM U. S. TO RUSSIA

Shippers Can't See It As Hughes Does

NEW YORK, August 28.—Tho the Coolidge administration refuses to recognize Soviet Russia, the United States shipping board, which needs paying cargo, is freighting 5,000 tons of American agricultural implements to Russia at the instance of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the sole agent in America of the Russian state import and export bureau.

Million Dollars' Worth.

The Soviet agricultural machinery purchases are going out on the steamship Nobles, bound for Novorossisk, on the Black Sea. The shipment includes 1,000 tractors and additional parts, besides plows and other implements. It is valued at about a million dollars.

This is the largest shipment of American tractors destined to Russia. It was hastened by the drought and poor crops in the Volga and other affected regions, and is part of the agricultural restoration work carried on by the Soviet government thru the introduction of intensive farming.

Distributed by State.

The tractors will be distributed by state agencies.

Labor Temple in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, August 28.—The New Orleans Labor Temple will be dedicated Labor day. Among the speakers will be Archbishop John W. Shaw and Jose Kelley, vice president of the Mexican Federation of Labor.

Co-operation Succeeds.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 28.—Thru their co-operative stores the farmers of Oklahoma are securing this season two million pounds of binding twine.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
DR. RASNICK
DENTIST
Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.
645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 5th Ave.
1627 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

Store for Sale.
8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.
Guaranteed business over $90.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer Depot.
P. MANUSOS
3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

BELL'S HOTEL,
1921 W. Park Ave.
Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0641

LABOR TO FIGHT FOR HEALTH BILL DOWNED BY N. Y.

Workers' Health Perils Disregarded

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, August 28.—When the Rules Committee of the New York state assembly killed five occupational disease amendments to the New York Compensation Act, proposed by the Workers' Health Bureau and endorsed by the painters, building trades bodies and central labor council of New York City, it flung a challenge at the labor movement which was taken up at the New York Federation convention that sat in Schenectady from August 20 for a week.

Lives in Danger.

These five amendments would compel employers to pay compensation to many thousands of victims of chemical poisoning and rock dust who now fill so many hospital cots at their own expense or on public charity. The present compensation law of the Empire state gives no protection to industrial victims from the following causes covered in the proposed amendments: Poisoning from benzol and other coal tar compounds; poisoning by chlorine, bromide, or iodine derivitives of petroleum products, such as T. N. T.; poisoning by gasoline, benzine, naptha, etc.; infection or inflammation due to cutting compounds, oils, dust, liquids, fumes or gases; silicosis, or lung injury due to breathing dangerous Silica (quartz dust).

"Tens of thousands of workers" are perishing as the result of silicosis, according to Dr. Frederick Hoffman, a nationally known authority on occupational diseases, in a statement issued thru the Workers' Health Bureau. The condition of silicosis means that the lung tissue has been cut up by fine edges of rock dust. Tuberculosis is the next stage. "Buffer's consumption," striking workers at emery wheels; "miner's consumption," that hits rock drillers, result from the silicosis condition that prevails generally among these classes of workers. The present law gives them no compensation.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

CUSTOM TAILORS
Also Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing at All Kinds
PARIS QUI CHANTE
E. Abboti and V. Cardillo
1852 Ogden Av. near Van Buren

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A SEASONABLE STYLE.

4335. The lines of this model are becoming to slender and stout figures. The side closing is practical. As portrayed gingham and linen are combined. One could use percale in a neat pattern, with repp or linen for the waist and sleeve portions, also for the facings on cuffs and pockets and for the belt. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2¼ yards.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 4½ yards of one material 36 inches wide. For waist, sleeves and cuff and pocket facings of contrasting material, 1¾ yards 32 inches wide is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A SIMPLE PRETTY FROCK.

4251. Jersey cloth in a pretty shade of brown was selected for this design. The stitchery is in black yarn. This style is also good for combinations of material. A very dressy dress could be enveloped from Paisley silk and velvet.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10-year size requires 2⅞ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

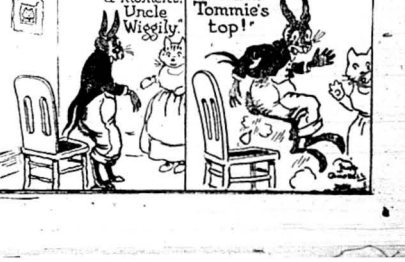
Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER office day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. So not become impatient if your pattern is

Get a member for the Workers Party.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS

A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN



MUSICIANS ATTENTION!

Cornetists, flutists, clarinetists, and other wind instruments, also cellists and drummers

WANTED

By the Young Workers League Orchestra

Come and join the only revolutionary working class orchestra in Chicago. Friday, 8 p. m., 823 Kimball Hall Bldg.

Shoe Workers and Friends Are Cordially Invited to Attend

Annual Picnic

Given by
JOINT COUNCIL No. 3
Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America

ATLAS PARK
5025 N. CRAWFORD AVENUE
Crawford Ave. Cars Stop at Grove

SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND EVENING
August 31, 1924

Tickets 50c a Person

Baseball — Dancing — Racing — Games
Music by Jansen's Orchestra

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:

$6.00 per year $3.50—6 months $2.00—3 months

By mail (In Chicago only):

$8.00 per year $4.50—6 months $2.50—3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors

MORITZ J. LOEB ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1923 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

290 Advertising rates on application.

An Association of Strikebreakers

The republican party is an association of strike-breakers. Heading the ticket is the man who jumped into fame by claiming to have broken the policeman's strike in Boston. Second place is filled by one of the most rabid union-haters in America. Chief of staff in the party organization, Wm. Morgan Butler, is now exposed in the series of articles running in the DAILY WORKER as a fitting associate to the republican candidates. The heads of the organizations are all militant fighters, publicly and secretly, against the working class.

Those same men who spend hundreds of thousands of dollars financing the secret plots of the Sherman Service, who conspire in the breaking of their own laws, who manufacture frame-ups against workers as a matter of routine and at so many dollars per, these are the same men who howl about the "secrets" of the Communists. But while the Communists speak and act before the whole working class, from whom they have nothing to conceal, these enemies of Communism and of the workers have a whole system of spies, provocateurs, thugs and gunmen, turned loose within the ranks of the workers to trick, browbeat, and enslave them.

Now that the workers are becoming aware of the true nature of the republican party, as the party that is personally led and officered by their worst enemies—now it is about time for them to look underneath the cloaks of their so-called friends, also. For lurking there will be found more strike-breakers yet, working under the camouflage of "labor leaders" and "friends." Labor must learn that only a class party can fight its battles.

Reporting the Prince

Complete perversion could hardly express itself more cynically than that of our capitalistic newspapers in their elaborate handling of the Prince of Wales' trip to the United States. The various large newspapers and agencies have counted so strongly upon the servility, stupidity, and idle curiosity of the American middle-class elements who determine the "public" taste, that they establish "news bureaus" on the steamship, and organize relays of reporters to write up in the minutest detail the daily life of this aristocratic vagabond.

The young idler, spendthrift, and generally all-around parasite, who nonchalantly gambles away thousand-dollar bills furnished to him by the "labor" government of Britain, will be the object of all the admiring attention of the American middle class, thru the newspapers especially. There could be no more perfect illustration of the spiritual degradation of this middle class of ours than this very phenomenon. At a time when it is supposed to be getting into politics upon its own hook, in the LaFollette movement, it grows suspicious of its own powers and, with servile slobberings, it fawns upon this "Prince" in order to demonstrate to itself and to the world that it is not "revolutionary," that there is nothing to fear if it is just given a place in the servants' quarters, and allowed to look upon the dance and sports of its "betters."

The middle class is essentially a servant class. It is not happy except when it is worshipping some hero from the aristocracy. It is incapable of producing its own heros and developing a policy of its own. It respects nothing but power and a firm hand, to which it submits itself with joyous protestations of loyalty, no matter how worthless and despicable the upper class wielders of power may be. Such a class can never be anything but the hand-servants of big capital, and it will continue in that role until, in the process of the capitalist breakdown, they are starved into some sense of dependence upon the workers as now occurs in Germany.

MacDonald's Six Months

Six months have elapsed since the British Labor Party has assumed "power."

Considering the fact that England is surrounded by many capitalist countries, we will not ask the embarrasing question: what have the Labor Party leaders achieved for the British working class? We will, however, ask: what have these leaders, the MacDonalds, the Snowdens, the Thomases tried to do for the working masses whose following they seek to hold? What have these Labor rulers done to consolidate the political power of the English working men so as to enable them to take steps towards abolishing the capitalist system of exploitation?

It seems to us that the chief point of anxiety of MacDonald has been to keep the Prince of Wales from falling off his sturdy steed. We know of no other matter that has received graver consideration from the Labor cabinet, unless it be the receptions tendered to the king and queen of Fascist Italy and pogrom-ridden Roumania.

The much-heralded Snowden budget has turned out to be only a cut in taxes for the capitalist class. It has been well said that even from the point of view of the socialism peddled by Sidney Webb and company, the Snowden budget has been less "socialistic" than the budget put over by Lloyd George fifteen years ago when he enacted the Workmen's Insurance Law.

In the realm of foreign policy MacDonald comes mighty close to the old Lord Palmerston, whose career was so well analyzed by Karl Marx. In fact, MacDonald has been vieing with Lord Curzon in haughtiness. When an American exploiter lost his life on the Yangtze River, the British gunboat Cockchafer threatened to bombard the defenseless Chinese town unless military authorities would promise to follow the body with honor to its grave. And the most tangible attempt made by the Labor cabinet to help the unemployed was the order to build five new ten thousand ton cruisers, with which to assure the defense of the far-flung realms of the British imperialists.

Of course, one may cite the recognition of the Soviet government as a sure sign of the socialism of the British Labor parlamentarians. This is nonsense. The conservatives themselves were planning to recognize Soviet Russia, according to Sir John Horne. It is the Red Army on the Indian border that dictated the recognition treaty and not Ramsay MacDonald.

We do not blame the Labor Party leaders for their failure to bring the co-operative commonwealth in six months. In fact, we know that thru the present British parliamentary system, socialism cannot be realized. But we do blame the MacDonalds and the Snowdens for refusing to take a single step to enhance the political power of the working class and for their continued support and defense of imperialist policies at home and abroad.

World War Visions

A New York dispatch tells of a series of articles by Comrade Trotzky now appearing in the Soviet press and dealing with the outlook for the coming world war. The tried and true mouthpiece of our biggest exploiters says: "Trotzky has visoin of world civil war."

The next world war is no longer in the realm of visions. A new capitalist world carnage is an impending, dangerous reality. It is a highly objective fact, growing out of the conditions to which the capitalist system of production and exchange has condemned the laboring and farming masses of the world.

The American imperialists today dominate the economy of more than a dozen countries. Peru, Panama, Hungary, Bolivia, Honduras, Persia, and Salvador are only a few of the victims whose financial resources are in the grip of Wall Street's mightiest men. The Dawes plan will very likely mean a substantial increase in the number of vassal states in the American imperialist empire.

France and Great Britain are already talking of the possible results intensified trade competition between the two may bring. The spectre of a revived German industry haunts the European and American captains of finance and manufacture.

A new capitalist conflagration is being prepared. Europe, Latin America, the Far and Near East, and the Balkans are veritable powder magazines, which only a spark is needed to explode. Under these conditions a new world war is a menacing reality.

And Comrade Trotzky is correct when he declares that: "Soviet Russia is still faced by a world of enemies. But let them be careful, for when they force a struggle upon Russia, we will not fight alone. In each of their countries there will be a party favorable to us, and the time has come to organize it." This is very true. The imperialist war has taught the world working class that there is only one way to abolish the infernal capitalist slaughter. That way is to turn the imperialist wars into civil wars, in which the workers of every country unite to turn the cannons and machine guns on their own exploiters. In these wars, the class wars, the workers of the various countries unite to wage war upon the international capitalist war makers.

Thus only will the system that breeds imperialist wars be abolished. The likelihood of the next world imperialist war being turned into a world civil war, is not a vision but a reality, with flesh and blood, and with promise for successful decisive action. In every country of the world the number of workers and exploited farmers prepared to enter a war to end war forever is steadily and rapidly increasing.

Ben Legere went to Nova Scotia to court the miners, hoping to bring into the world a few more little O. B. U's. But his courtship failed. And at the same time news comes that the child he left behind at home, Lawrence Labor, has died from lack of support. Legere is not a good provider for one who wishes to be so fecund.

A straw vote on presidential candidates in the shops is another good way to develop the class issues, and to crystallize the working class opinion into definite action. Carry the class struggle into your shop!

Miners from America to the International meeting in Prague spent their time talking about technical questions of the industry. The Lewis machine can't see what all the talk about class struggle is for.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

The Pressure From Below

By J. T. MURPHY.

Communist Party of Great Britain.

TWO events of this week serve to show that the working class movement of this country will not tolerate for long the position of accepting things only by the kind permission of the enemy. These two incidents will also make it perfectly clear that the Labor Government of His Majesty George V. is something distinct from the Labor Party.

First, there is the sequel to the famous twenty hours' discussion on the Anglo-Russian Treaty. The lengthy discussion itself was an innovation. Poor Mr. Ponsonby! Poor Foreign Office officials! The hours rolled on. There was not the slightest sign that these pained Russians would ever get tired. Sweat began to roll down Mr. Ponsonby's face. He flung in an ultimatum, but it was no use. Rakovsky side-stepped and plunged him into further discussion. The officials were getting irritable. It was annoying that they should be kept out of bed so long. Would the Russians never stop debating.

A Working Class Issue.

Point after point had been conceded. Heaven only knows how many amendments had been made to the original draft. And then came the famous clause fourteen, the last stumbling block at this stage of the negotiations. The Russians would not give way. Impossible, says Mr. Ponsonby. We cannot give way any further. He was physically beaten. The Russian delegation seemed just as fresh as when they began, smiling, arguing, giving nothing away. They were used to it. What is a twenty-hour session to Russians, anyway? But for Britishers, it is just awful. The stiff collars began to soften. Tempers began to develop. Nerves were on edge. And bang! The conference broke up on the question of compensation for confiscated property. What an issue with which to face a working audience!

Then the sequel. Some foreign office idiot rushed into print with the statement that the conference had broken down and negotiations were ended. But the last word does not, and did not lay with the Foreign Office. The Labor Party Executive met with a number of the labor members of Parliament. Prominent among them were George Lansbury, Dick Wallhead, and Purcell, the chairman of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress. They knew quite well that to face the labor movement with a rupture on the question of the Anglo-Russian negotiations was a serious matter for everyone concerned. They knew quite well that the whole working class movement of Britain was thoroly united against Liberals and Tories alike on this question. They realized that the Labor Government had created many misgivings and much dissatisfaction by its manifest leanings to the bondholders and property mongers. Besides each of them had repeatedly pledged themselves to support the demands of the Russian Workers' Government. They were thoroly annoyed and in no mood for taking any nonsense from Ponsonby or anybody else. They asked Comrade Rakovsky to explain the cause of the break-down. Then they listened to Ponsonby. The Russian formulae and the British formulae were put to the vote and the Russian formulae was unanimously agreed to. To have done any other would have been to desert the entire working class both of Britain and Russia. The decision was communicated to Ponsonby, and Purcell, and Wallhead in addition, threatened that if the government did not at once re-open negotiations and accept this position they would resign their seats and fight a by-election on the issue of the Anglo-Russian negotiations, and Wallhead would appeal to the whole of the I. L. P. to fight the government on the question.

Reverse English.

Within a few hours engines were reversed. The negotiations were re-opened. The treaty was signed and the healthiest fight since the Labor Government was formed, took place against the Liberal and Tory opponents. For the first time since the last general election there was the development of class feeling, a consciousness that a class issue had been raised and was likely to be blazed thruout the country.

Right in the midst of the muddle caused by the Labor Government's too great concern for the people of property came the arrest of the Communist editor of the Workers' Weekly for an appeal to the soldiers, sailors and airmen to stand by their brothers in the industrial army of the working class. Questions were raised in the Parliament. The Communist Party Executive had acted promptly. It not only accepted full responsibility for the articles in the Workers' Weekly but challenged the Labor leaders by means of an open letter to the labor members of Parliament to either line up with us or be exposed as hypocrites before the working class.

The arrest of Campbell had struck a responsive note thruout the whole movement. The fact that he was a wounded soldier and had been thru the worst hells of the war both in France and Gallipoli, and was decorated for bravery, added an immense amount of sympathy to the declarations. Protests began to pour in from every direction. It was obvious that we had proclaimed the right message on the anniversary of the war and that the Labor Government had made a terrific blunder in allowing themselves to be pushed into this prosecution.

MacDonald Sailed Into.

Lansbury, Maxton of the Clyde, Scurr, the pacifist editor of the "Socialist Review," Buchannan and Dickson of the Scottish labor members, Kenworthy of the Liberals, sailed into the House of Commons with questions which made it clear to the Government that they were in for a rough passage. Scurr asked :-

"Why police officers were instructed to raid the offices of the Workers' Weekly, and to arrest the editor; what charges have been made against him; under which statute is he being prosecuted; whether any further arrests are pending and under whose instructions the present proceedings were instituted?"

He discovered that the Attorney General, Patrick Hastings, had employed the Director of Public Prosecutions for the Job and that Campbell was being prosecuted under the "Incitement to Mutiny Act of 1795," one of the worst pieces of repressive legislation introduced by the famous William Pitt, who was scared by the French Revolution.

Kenworthy, the Liberal naval commander, immediately asked:

"Was this Act in force when certain officers in the Curragh were inciting to mutiny before the War?"

This was a delightful bit, recalling the occasion when the Tories, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Edward Carson, led the Ulster people against Irish Home Rule, armed the population and turned the army against the Parliament. The government of the day issued instructions to the army in Curragh Camp in Ulster and the officers refused to obey the orders of the government under the instruction of the two Tory leaders.

Maxton followed with questions and then Buchanan. Then Dickson rose and said: "I want to ask the attorney General if any members of this house who will be speaking in their constituencies next week express similar opinions to that contained in the article in the Workers' Weekly does that men that are are subject to similar prosecution? (Hon. Members: "Yes"). If so, they will probably lose half their party."

Discussion Got Warm.

The speaker rose and put a stop to the discussion. It was getting too hot. But the row did not stop. The agitation went on behind the scenes. The government is in a devil of a fix. The Communists were winning hand over fist. Even the Parliamentary Labor Party was becoming infected. What with the Russians and the Treaty upon one and now their Communist colleagues getting all this publicity, and the masses of the workers feeling that in this appeal to the forces the Communists were right, the Labor Government is in a quandry and looking round for a way out. Instead of extending the prosecutions they are looking for every possible loophole thru which they can get to stop this prosecution.

They know that the Executive of the Communist Party will not give way. They know that we are preparing to subpoena leading members of the Government and the Labor Party into the witness box and they will have to face the music of statements. They know that men like Lansbury, Wallhead, Purcell, all of them holding important positions in the Labor movement will voluntarily come into the witness box and line up side by side with Campbell in the plea of justification. They are feeling the pressure from below with a vengeance. They are preparing to capitulate and to withdraw the charge, charge.

These events are big victories for the working class of Britain, evidence of the fact that the opposition has underestimated the strength of the class instincts deeply rooted in the British workers. The British Imperialists may make tools of the intellectuals, the leaders of the Labor Party, but the great proletarian mass in this country cannot be fooled for long. These two blunders of the Labor Government have done more to cleanse the labor movement of social pacifism and stimulate its class consciousness than any "victories" they have won since the Labor Party was an opposition party.

The Story of Sam Lipman

By JOSEPH M. COLDWELL

THE nomination of Rev. Norman Thomas, for governor, by the socialist party of New York recalls to my mind an incident of the war, that was told to me by a fellow prisoner in the federal penitentiary, at Atlanta, Ga.

Among the many political prisoners "doing time" in that bastile of capitalism was Samuel Lipman. He had been sent down from New York City for the crime of distributing hand bills calling on the workers to protest against the United States waging an unofficial war against Russia. Lipman was a socialist and had been a member of the party in New York City. Lipman and I had many things in common. We were both "left wingers" and of course deeply interested in the progress of that branch of the movement.

Authentic news of the developments in the "left wing" movement was hard to get behind the prison walls. Oft times we would talk together as we walked around the prison yard during the exercise period. Our talks were usually about the movement and its activities. One day Comrade Lipman gave me the best definition of the difference between the "right" and the "left wing" that I had ever heard. The nomination of Norman Thomas has recalled that incident to my mind and I relate it as told to me by Sam Lipman: "During the early days of this country's participation in the war, and before the passing of the "Espionage act," the local police frequently arrested members of the party on various pretexts, usually charging them with violating some city ordinance. One day several of the comrades of the branch I belonged to were arrested while distributing literature. I went to the office of the Civil Liberties Union to see what could be done for them. I was told to go to the home of the Rev. Norman Thomas and ask him to go on the bonds of the arrested comrades, so that they would be at liberty pending trial.

"I went to the address given me and to my surprise it led me to a fine house, in a very good residential district. I walked up the stone steps and rang the bell. A beautiful young woman came to the door. I asked if Mr. Thomas lived there, she said "yes". I asked if I could see him, she said "yes, won't you come in?" I went in the house and this young woman, who was a trained maid, asked me to wait a few minutes, after having ushered me into a large room. As I entered the room my feet sank in the carpet as if I were walking on grass. I sat down in a chair and it was wonderful. I never knew before that a chair could be so comfortable. I looked around the room and admired the beautiful pictures and pieces of statuary. In a few minutes Mr. Thomas came in and I told him my mission. He very cheerfully agreed to go on bonds for my comrades and during the course of our conversation I found that he was a member of the socialist party. The object of my mission accomplished I left the house. Mr. Thomas coming to the door with me.

"As I walked back to the party rooms I was not thinking about my comrades who were in the police station. I was thinking about the beautiful house I had just left and comparing it with the stuffy tenement that I lived in. Like a flash I remembered the fight that was going on in the party between the "right" and the "left" wings. I was a "left" and Comrade Thomas was a "right". Comrade Thomas was playing at socialism, while I really need socialism. I, a fur worker, with work only during certain season of the year, living in small rooms in a crowded tenement, need socialism. That is why I am a "left winger". I want economic security and I want it now. Comrade Thomas can afford to wait for evolution. I can't. I want to help put the 'R' in front of evolution".

Lipman was deported to Russia and I may never see him again. But I am wondering what Sam Lipman would say if he knew that Norman Thomas was running on the same ticket with LaFollette.

Sam Lipman reasoned out so clearly the need of a clear line of demarkation between those who need socialism and those who only wish for it, that I feel certain he would be in the ranks of the Workers Party and fighting for Foster and Gitlow.

Nobody ever got anything simply by wishing for it. You have got to work and fight every inch of the way, and the only fighting party of the working class is the WORKERS PARTY. When you realize that you need socialism you will get out and fight for it.

Foster and Gitlow both need socialism. They both know the meaning of "The Class Struggle", they are in it, they are part of it. It is no theory to them, it is a stern reality.

If you have a political vote this year and if you belong to the working class, there is only one way in which you can make that vote count for the complete downfall of the bosses of the jobs. That way is to vote the ticket of the Workers Party straight. Vote for Foster and Gitlow and all the other candidates of the Workers Party. When you do that you are voting for WORKING CLASS CONTROL and that is the only thing that counts.

International Youth Day

THE wounds of the last war are not yet healed, and already the next war is at the gates of the sham peace erected by the world bourgeoisie. Already our contention that there can be no peace as long as capitalism endures is made clear and evident even to the many whose faith in the imperialist governments of the world has not been shaken in the last episode of international murder caused by the natural workings of the capitalist system.

The wild over the race for armaments goes on—in spite of the gestures of peace made at the Washington disarmament conference. Country after country is rehearsing the military demonstrations of 1913-1914, showing its military strength to its enemy in an effort to frighten its rivals and thereby receive a greater share of the booty. In our own country the president has proclaimed Sept 12 as Mobilization Day. This, in addition to parading the military strength of the United States before the eyes of the world powers, has as its object the strengthening of the jingo spirit among the youth of the country, thus preparing them ideologically for the next war.

It is for this reason that International Youth Day, this year is of greater significance than heretofore. In 1915, in the midst of the roaring of cannon, the revolutionary working class youth held their first International Youth Day on the first Sunday of September. By this they demonstrated that they were thru with the betrayers of the Second and Second and One-half Internationals and were eager and ready to follow their leader, Lenin. And they played a most prominent part after the war in the founding of the Third (the Communist) International. They are today in every country the bearers of the banner of Leninism. At the last congress of the C. I. the youth as a body showed that they recognized the need for Bolshevizing the Communist parties of the world.

The Y. W. L. of New York city will celebrate International Youth Day this year at Central Opera House, on Friday, Sept. 5. This will be a demonstration against the capitalist system, against capitalist militarism, and against Mobilization Day.

It is the duty of every member of the Y. W. L. and of the Workers Party in New York city to make this demonstration the greatest ever seen in this country. We remind the members of the Workers Party that the Communist International has ordered every Communist to make International Youth Day a great demonstration of the revolutionary youth against capitalism. Let every Communist do his duty!

Tickets may be obtained at the office of the Y. W. L., 208 East 12th St., New York city.

THE VIEWS OF OUR READERS ON LIFE, LABOR, INDUSTRY, POLITICS

Prisoner Thanks Comrades.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Will you kindly print the following notice of thanks to the many comrades for their kindly remembrances to me while I was confined in the Idaho State Penitentiary for criminal syndicalism? I am now on the outside, after 7 years behind the bars and in the battle again where I left off, in 1917.

To the Many Comrades:

I, H. E. Herd, want to offer unto you by utmost and sincere thanks and appreciation for your comradship and remembrances while I was confined in the Idaho State Penitentiary at Boise.

My correspondence while in there was very limited by the powers that are. So I could not answer all those welcome cards and letters that came as a breath of life from the outer world. Untom e it was only a clouded dream of the past.

I thank you.

I remain as ever yours for the world,

E. H. HERD, Butte, Mont.

Have You Sent Yours In?

To the DAILY WORKER:—Enclosed you will find a check for $65.82 (sixty-five dollars and eighty-two cents) that was collected in my section as first of May's voices for the DAILY WORKER, from comrades who worked on that day.

Money was collected from the following branches: Estonian, $13.00; Jewish, $17.00; French, $4.82; Spanish, $1.00; South Slavak, $30.00.—Comradely yours, M. Nemeer (Harlem and Yorkville Organizer).

SPECIAL COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN EDITION NUMBER ONE

Communist Candidates
For President:
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.
For Vice-President:
BENJAMIN GITLOW.

THE DAILY WORKER

NOV — 1924 LIBRARY

5 CENTS
Including Saturday Magazine Section.
On all other days, Three Cents per Copy.

Entered as Second-class matter September 21, 1923, at the Post Office at Chicago, Illinois under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. II. No. 140. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In Chicago, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside Chicago, by mail, $6.00 per year. SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1924 290 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price 5 Cents

FOSTER OPENS FIGHT IN WEST

Can't Stop Him!

By Fred Ellis in the September "Liberator."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

EVEN the gods are opposed to prohibition. This became a matter of public knowledge when the Papago Indians held a protest meeting and blamed the shortage of rain on the activities of the prohibition agents who keep confiscating the supplies of "tiswin" an alcoholic beverage with which the Indians propitiate their gods and bring smiles to their own sombre countenances. Saloon keepers were always the best financial pillars of the church, but God is very ungrateful.

• • •

IF the heads of the republican party want to make their candidate for president talk, they could do worse than slip him a cat when he is not looking. He might even learn to swear like General Dawes. One of those fellows who poses as deaf, dumb and sometimes blind for a living, was arrested in a Chicago business office on complaint of a man who suspected him to be a faker. He carried a card which read: "I am deaf and dumb and need $750, to complete my education so as to be self supporting." All efforts to make him talk were unavailing until a cat ran between his legs causing him to swear eloquently.

• • •

THIS is a good bull story. James Medill Patterson, editor of the Chicago Tribune and one of the most famous bull-throwers in the country was at the receiving end of the business for the first time in his life, while riding in a red automobile recently. He was chased by a furious bull, who evidently mistook Mr. Patterson in his red car for a red agent trying to break up the bull's happy time. The great editor escaped with his life. Since then it may be noticed that two days passed without an editorial appearing in the Tribune calling for somebody's decapitation, electrocution or hanging. A few more patriotic bulls might have a soothing influence on the pineal glands of Mr. Patterson.

• • •

HENRY Ford denies that he gave an interview to the Montreal Star eulogizing the Ku Klux Klan. It would not surprise us to learn one of those days that the Imperial Wizard denied he was a member of the hooded order. Henry may not go into the tar and feather business after all.

• • •

GEORGE W. Hinman, who plays opposite to Arthur Brisbane in the columns of the Hearst press, says

(Continued on Page 4.)

CHARGE GARVEY MADE OFFER TO BIG CAPITALIST

Letter to White Urged Humility for Negro

By ROBERT MINOR
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 29.—A letter addressed to a wealthy white American capitalist with a broad hint that white capitalists who may wish to have Negroes taught not to aspire to equal footing with the white race in the United States should give financial assistance to the Universal Negro Improvement Association, and bearing the signature, "Your humble and obedient servant, Marcus Garvey, President-General, Universal Negro Improvement Association," has come into the momentary possession of the correspondent of the DAILY WORKER.

In order that Mr. Garvey or others may judge as to whether the signature is genuine or not, I have had the signature photographed, and it is reproduced herewith.

Garvey Letter Reproduced.

The letter, on the stationery of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and African Communities League, 56 West 135th St., New York, reads as follows:

Dear Mr. ——: I am charged with the duty and responsibility of writing to you on a subject which I feel that you are interested in, because of your high and elevated po-

(Continued on page 2)

CONTENTS OF MAGAZINE SECTION OF THE DAILY WORKER CAMPAIGN ISSUE

The Magazine Section of the DAILY WORKER Campaign Issue contains the following articles dealing with the elections and other subjects:

"For Class Struggle Against Reformist Illusions," William Z. Foster.

"The Road to Freedom," C. E. Ruthenberg.

"Oil and International Politics," Louis Zoobock.

"LaFollette in Congress," Jay Lovestone.

"Revolutionary Unionism versus Weak-kneed Reformism," Moissayre J. Olgin.

"A Communist View of the Election," Alexander Bittelman.

"Trade Unions in the Election," Earl R. Browder.

"Pittsburgh—A Black City," John Lassen.

"The Workers Party in the Elections," Joseph Manley.

"Workers! Give Judge Gary Your Answer," J. Louis Engdahl.

"The Youth in the Elections," Barney Mass.

"Class-War Against Imperialist War," Manifesto of Communist International.

"Presidential Candidates," T. J. O'Flaherty.

"White Mule," Karl Reeve.

Attention, South Side Workers!

Gordon Owens, Workers Party candidate for Congress in First District, and D. E. Earley will speak Sunday evening, Aug. 31st, at the Washington Park "Open Forum," on behalf of the Workers Party candidate for election.

T. U. E. L. Picnic Monday.

T. U. E. L. Labor Day picnic, Sept 1, at Altenheim Grove, Forest Park, Ill. (German Old People's Home). How to get there: Take Forest Park "L" or Madison St. car and transfer to suburban line.

HOODED PARADES OFF IN HERRIN, SAYS GALLIGAN

Sheriff Turns Down His Thumbs on Kluxers

MARION, Ill., Aug. 29.—"There will be no more parades of masked Ku Klux Klansmen in Williamson County," declared Sheriff George Galligan here today, after an all night vigil at the county jail, where he and deputy sheriffs, armed with riot guns and one machine gun, stood guard anticipating an attempt by Klansmen to liberate J. E. Lashbrook of Harrisburg, who was arrested in a Klan parade here last night for wearing a mask. No attempt was made to free the prisoner.

Klansmen Guilty.

Carl Neilsen, reputed exalted cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan, and Carl Winstead were found guilty by a jury in Herrin court yesterday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on George Stover.

Another one of Glenn Young's bonds was forfeited yesterday when he failed to make an appearance when case 271, charging assault with deadly weapons, was called. This runs his total forfeited bail up to $41,000.

Attention, Chicago Comrades!

All Chicago Workers Party and Young Workers League branches running street meetings must have a couple of comrades on hand at their corner by 7:30 p. m., also two or more in addition to sell literature, distribute leaflets, get signatures, etc.

Literature agents, see Hammersmark at National Office, or come in to local office to get supplies.

The Workers' Picnic.

Annual picnic of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, Joint Council No. 3, at Atlas Park, 5025 N. Crawford Avenue, Sunday afternoon and evening. Tickets 50c. Crawford Ave. car stops at Grove.

IS THIS YOUR SIGNATURE, MR. GARVEY?

Your humble and obedient servant,

Marcus Garvey

President-General
UNIVERSAL NEGRO IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

NEBRASKA AND IOWA STIRRED BY COMMUNISM

Tour in Industrial East Next on Program

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Aug. 29.—William Z. Foster, candidate for president on the Communist ticket, dropped off the train here today for his first meeting in this Middle Western state where the agricultural unrest is running high.

To judge from the wailings of the red-baiters here, there is grave danger that Foster may run off with the state, and interest in the meeting tonight is growing.

American Legion Active.

Rumors of American Legion interference have been denied, but propaganda in that direction has not abated.

At the same time that Foster arrived, Brigadier-General Dawes passed thru on his way to Lincoln, with a party of bankers and capitalist politicians, in a special train. Local capitalists were excitedly rounding up reception committees, but the General did not stop to greet them.

"The workers and farmers in Iowa and the other states in the middle-west, particularly, know that Coolidge and Dawes, as well as Davis and Bryan, are hooked up so closely to Wall Street that nothing to remedy the crying grievances of both groups of toiling men and women can be looked for from these camps," said Foster.

All for Capitalism.

"What they have to learn—and they are learning it fast," he continued, "is that LaFollette and Wheeler stand for the same system as Coolidge and Davis. They will not do anything that touches the vital interests of our industrial and financial overlords.

"And nothing can be done for the workers and farmers, except thru the bitterest struggle, against the forces that now rule both the republican-democratic bi-partisan combination, and the LaFollette-Wheeler combination of the tag ends of both parties."

Urges Rule of Labor.

"A government of workers and farmers," was Foster's incisive answer, when asked what the solution was for the pressing problems of the day. "So long as those who toil allow lawyers and capitalist politicians to hold the governing powers in their hands, so long will the workers and farmers be begging for favors from their natural enemies."

"The Communists, organized in the Workers Party, offer the only program that cuts to the roots of exploitation," said Foster. "Only thru class struggle, leading to the overthrow of the capitalist system and the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat, in alliance with the farmers, can the present dictatorship of capitalism, now grinding both farmers and workers, be abolished."

• • •

Fight on in Nebraska.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA, Nebr., Aug. 29.—The political battle here is on in full swing. Today Charles G. Dawes arrived from Chicago, with a party of bankers and politicians that filled two Pullman coaches.

Dawes speaks to night at Lincoln, the home of Charles Bryan. Both Democrats, the fake progressive democrat and the other the tin soldier-banker republican, will vie with each other to show what good friends they are of the Nebraska farmer.

The promising progressive political movement, which for some time has been developing in Nebraska against the bitter opposition of Charley Bryan, has been cut to pieces by Robert M. LaFollette. LaFollette agents have actively engaged in making deals, dickers and horse trades with every fake progressive and job seeker in the state. The result is that confusion worse confounded, brought about by these unscrupulous LaFollette methods, now exists.

Subscribe for "Your Daily," the DAILY WORKER.

Gompers and Dawes; Twin Supporters of Capitalist System

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

IN the Aug. 23 number of the American Federation of Labor "Weekly News Service," official organ of the arch-reactionary Gompers, appears the startling headline, "Dawes and Foster Join Hands to Defend Labor Injunction." What a tasty morsel, if true. But everyone, with the exception of Gompers' hopeless dupes, will see at once that the slander contained in this headline is only one more instance of the desperate and unscrupulous efforts of the Gompers machine to stay the progress of the left-wing movement by carrying on an organized campaign of libel and misrepresentation.

The headline is followed by a screed, accredited to a Chicago nobody by the name of Mr. Wise, inferring that in the recent judicial elections in Chicago I co-operated with General Dawes to secure the election of Dennis E. Sullivan, a notorious injunction judge. This is, of course, a lie out of whole cloth. The facts are these:

In the above-mentioned elections, which occurred about a year ago, John Fitzpatrick, fresh from his collapse at the Federated Farmer-Labor Party Convention of July 3-5, abandoned the policy of independent working class political action and had the Chicago Federation of Labor re-adopt the disastrous Gompers "non-partisan" policy by endorsing 10 judicial candidates on the republican and democratic tickets. This treason to the Labor Party idea was supposed to be for the purpose of defeating Judge Sullivan. But several of the candidates endorsed were themselves almost equally notorious as injunction judges. In this situation the Communist delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor denounced Fitzpatrick for leading the workers back into the old party political shambles and demanded that the Federation stick true to its former Labor Party policy. They pointed out that it was exactly the Gompers non-partisan method which was responsible for the political impotency of the workers and for the presence of such men as Sullivan on the bench. For thus uncompromisingly defending the principle of the Labor Party, which the Chicago Federation itself had advocated for several years, the Communists are now denounced as having helped Sullivan and his backer, Dawes. Can treacherous sophistry go further?

In his lying headline connecting my name with Dawes', Gompers follows out his usual tactics of trying to prove a community of interest between the big capitalists and the Communists as against the unions. What a silly argument. Gompers himself is one of the greatest allies of Dawes and his like against everything progressive in the country and the labor movement. Dawes is a militant defender of the American Legion and so is Gompers, both looking upon this Fascist organization as a valued prop of their beloved capitalist government. Dawes is against the amalgamation of the unions, the formation of a Labor Party, and the recognition of Soviet Russia. So is Gompers; he froths at the mouth when any of these vitally necessary progressive measures are mentioned. Dawes is a supporter of the Civic Federation and the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Gompers is a member of both. Dawes is an ardent "red" fighter and defender of the capitalist system, and in this he is even outdone by the pseudo-leader, Gompers.

The Communists would destroy the industrial and social system which produces the parasitic Dawes. But between Gompers and Dawes there is no real quarrel. They both stand for the same social system and the same exploitation of the workers. They are agreed that the workers must remain in wage slavery. The only difference between them is the degree of this slavery. Dawes would give the workers rough and heavy shackles, while Gompers would make the shackles lighter and polish them up a trifle. That is all there is to the sham battle now going on between them. Gompers and Dawes are props of the capitalist system. Every time that the left-wing moves against that system these two worthies are to be found fighting shoulder to shoulder to protect it. The alliance between the Dawes' and the Gompers' will become ever plainer and more firmly cemented as the class struggle sharpens, until the aroused masses, under the leadership of the Communist party, finally smash it and the system of exploitation behind it.

BUTLER'S FINKS PAID TO STIR RACE HATRED AMONG WORKERS; IS "UNDERGROUND SECTION" OF G. O. P.

(Fifth Article)

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, August 29.—William Morgan Butler, chairman of the national committee of the republican party, employs stool-pigeons to spy upon and betray the workers' unions in the textile mills he owns at New Bedford, Massachusetts. He personally supervises the spying and outlines plots to be carried into effect by Sherman Service detectives occupying official position in the unions. The attraction of Mr. Butler to the Sherman Service may be seen by the following quotation from the advertising this fink corporation puts out to win contracts with bosses:

"A few employers have tried to win co-operation of their employes by giving them something. But they soon found out that when the employer gives his employes something, it does not win their co-operation."

Mr. Butler does not "give his employes something." Excepting wage cuts and stool pigeons for union officials, Mr. Butler taketh away, but Mr.

(Continued on Page 6)

Subscribe for "Your Daily," the DAILY WORKER.

LONDON PACT IS RATIFIED IN REICHSTAG

Nationalists Sell Out to the Bankers

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

BERLIN, August 29.—The Dawes reparations plan was ratified by the Reichstag today after a stormy debate.

The government was able to put across its program thru a compromise with the nationalists. Like their French prototypes, they babbled about "national honor" but they were simply holding out for a higher price.

The Communists alone fought to the last ditch. They opposed the Dawes Plan because it helps to give the capitalist financiers a firmer stranglehold on the German workingclass.

Threatened Dissolution.

Before the balloting began, Chancellor Marx addressed the Reichstag, warning that this body would be dissolved if it failed to ratify the plan intact.

As the Reichstag continued passing the various bills, foreign diplomats rose in the spectators gallery and applauded.

The various bills were taken up and passed separately, not in a group.

The Compromise.

The "covering letter" measure, accepting the London protocol was passed at 4:45 o'clock, after the Reichstag had enacted the liquidation renten-mark bill.

The compromise reached between the German nationalists and the Marx government appears to be an agreement to form a coalition cabinet as soon as the Dawes Plan is put into effect.

COOLIDGE TALKS OF J. CHRIST'S MOUNT SERMON

But G. O. P. Prefers Oil on The Dome

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.— Calvin Coolidge left the smell on the new mown hay behind him and is back here again where the smell of oil is so heavy, that even politicians have to wear nose bags.

The president celebrated his arrival by delivering one of those speeches for which he is famous.

Bored lounge lizards and society debutantes will have something to do during the coming week, to kill time. The favorite indoor sport will be trying to guess what Calvin was talking about.

Got Their Medicine.

The speech was unloaded on delegates to the National Fraternal Congress of America. The babbits deserved it. The president did not talk on the issues of the campaign. The less he talks of his administration the better. He cannot afford to throw any oil on troubled waters. The oil is all sold to Sinclair and Doheny.

Here are some excerpts from the president's speech:

The Piffle Flows.

"The political institutions of this country, are a recognition of a common brotherhood.

"When you minister to the spirit you provide greater security, larger resources and a more harmonious life for all the people.

"At times I have thought we do not place emphasis enough upon the homely virtues, to sufficiently appreciate the common blessings of life.

Pulls Old Stuff.

"The virtues which bring satisfaction to life are industry, loyalty, faith, common sense and humanity.

"A definite and practical standard of action for the promotion of human fellowship was stated in the sermon on the Mount, with a clearness and precision that have never been surpassed.

"The rituals of nearly all fraternal organizations are based upon religion. No true fraternity can rest on any other conception.

"It is for these reasons they are supporters of the true aims of society, strong reliances of ordered government, according to public law able advocates of the cause of righteousness and religion and effective promoters of peace, and good will among the nations of the earth."

This beats the "me for ma" campaign speech of Mrs. Ferguson in Texas.

Watch For This One.

The Workers Party will hold a meeting Sunday, August 31, at 7:30 p. m., in Washington Park "Open Forum." The speakers will be Gordon Owens, candidate for congress, and Dud E. Earley. Pack the park!

Vote Communist This Time!

FOR PRESIDENT

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER, standard bearer of the Workers Party of America, was born at Taunton, Mass., Feb. 25, 1881. He began to work when he was 10 years old, and entered the socialist movement in 1900. After being expelled for membership in the left wing in 1909 he joined the I. W. W. and later left it because of its dualism. He is best known for his leadership of the huge steel strike and for organizing the packing house workers in Chicago. He is a member of the Railway Carmen, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League and chairman of the Workers Party.

Charge Garvey Dickered With White Capitalists

(Continued from Page 1.)

sition in the nation, and because of your humanitarianism, which is felt to be beyond question. The subject is that of the Negro problem as it confronts us, not only in America, but in the world.

There is a deep and earnest desire on the part of some of the world's most forward looking statesmen and humanitarians to make an immediate effort for the settlement of the perplexing and grievous question of race. We in America should not delay the settlement of this great question, because it cannot settle itself.

The Universal Negro Improvement Association, an organization of six million scattered members of which I am president-general, is working for a solution of the problem thru the founding and establishing in Africa of a nation for Negroes, where the race will be given the fullest opportunity to develop itself, such as we may not expect in countries where we form but a minority in a majority government of other races.

There is no doubt that the twentieth century Negro in America is different from the Negro of the last century. Today he is forward looking and ambitious. He is the product of our best schools, colleges and universities. With his training, he is not prepared to be satisfied as a secondary consideration in the social, economic and political life of the nation. By his ambition, he is aspiring to the highest in political office and industrial and social positions. This under the constitution cannot be reasonably denied him, but in the midst of a majority race that is not inclined to allow the minority to enjoy the benefits of the best that the nation affords, we face the great problem that must be solved.

It is not the humanitarians like you of the white race that the Negro fears, nor those who are broadminded enough to consider the rights of man regardless of color, but it is the great mass that does not think in the higher terms of humanity, but who are fooled purely by their economic, social and political relationship to others.

We of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, after having taken into consideration the impossibility of the liberal and humanitarian few to curb successfully the passion of the great mass, are endeavoring to create sentiment among the fifteen million Negroes of America and other parts of the world as to lead them to see that the only and best solution for the race problem, is for us to have a nation of our own in Africa, whereby we would not be regarded in countries like America as competitors of the white race for the common positions in politics, industry and society, but that we would be regarded as a people striving in our own country to present to the world a civilization and culture of our own. Knowing that you must have some feeling on a question like this, the Universal Negro Improvement Association to direct me to write to you, asking for a frank and open opinion of our program. The opinion that you give will be kept private if you so desire. Your wishes on this matter shall be respected in every particular.

The following symposium is therefore submitted to you most respectfully, and we are asking that you be good enough to answer each question in conjunction with this communication, so that we may be able to judge how much sympathy there is among the leaders of the white race in this country as touching the effort we are making for the solution of the vexed problem of race in America, which is very anxiously Symposium.

1. Do you believe the Negro to be a human being?

2. Do you believe the Negro entitled to all the rights of humanity?

3. Do you believe that the Negro should be taught not to aspire to be the best imitation of the white man, but the best product of himself?

4. Do you believe that the Negro should be encouraged to develop a society of his own, that is, for social intercourse and marrying within his own race?

5. Do you believe that the Negro should be taught not to aspire to the highest political positions in governments of the white race, but to such positions among his own race in a government of his own?

6. Do you believe that the Negro should have a government of his own in Africa?

7. Would you help morally or otherwise to bring about such a possibility?

8. Do you believe that the Negro should be encouraged to aspire to the highest industrial and commercial positions in the countries of the white man in competition with him and to his exclusion?

9. Do you believe that the Negro should be encouraged to create positions of his own in industry and commerce in a country of his own with the privilege of trading with the other races of the world?

10. Do you believe that the Negro should be encouraged to regard and respect the rights of all other races in the same manner as other races would respect the rights of the Negro?

11. Should five or six million or any large number of Negroes in the United States of America desire a repatriation to Africa for the peaceful building up of a country of their own, or for the settlement of such countries as are established among Negroes without any serious handicap to the industries of America, would you assist in this direction?

It is felt that you will give deep consideration to this communication, and receive it in the spirit in which it is written—that of a desire to settle amicably a vexed question.

I am forwarding you along with this letter three pamphlets which we ask that you read without prejudice, but with a feeling of broadmindedness and a desire to help settle a trouble-some problem that confronts your race.

Knowing your broadness of vision, and your liberality of soul leads me to feel that you will judge the subject matter of the pamphlets with fairness to my race that has suffered in slavery for two hundred and fifty years, and still confronted with obstacles that seem unsurmountable to overcome.

With very best wishes for your health and success, and hoping for

(Continued on page 3)

Labor Has Duties to Perform in This Political Campaign

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the red flash of the First Communist Campaign Edition of the DAILY WORKER streaks across the American political sky. What a message of hope for the oppressed.

* * * *

It is impossible for the candidates of the Workers Party to reach into every corner of the nation in this campaign. Not even all the speakers of the party can go everywhere.

But the DAILY WORKER, in single copies and in bundles, can penetrate to the smallest post office on the in the hills or among the mountains. No community need be without its vivifying touch.

* * * *

This is an historic issue of our paper. For the first time the standards of the Communist International are carried, thru our DAILY WORKER, among new masses of workers and farmers.

Like all beginnings this beginning is not as large as we would wish. Millions of copies, circulated everywhere, would have kept pace with our ambitions, better than the hundred thousand or more that will soon be run off our press.

But this is a beginning. Plans must be made now for greater things in the future. We ask all of our present readers to join the nation-wide campaign to get new subscriptions, NEW READERS for the DAILY WORKER. Get subscriptions for "Your Daily." That is the best way to help build. With tens of thousands of new readers, there will be hundreds of more orders received for the next Special Communist Campaign Issue.

* * * *

This issue of the DAILY WORKER will be read by tens of thousands of workers and farmers who have never before seen a copy of this only working class daily in the United States.

If you are one of these new readers, just look over this issue carefully and decide for yourself if it does not carry the message that you want to get every day thruout the whole year. The only thing that you can do, then, in your own best interests, is to sit right down and send in your subscription without delay.

* * * *

But this is not all!

We want millions of readers of communist literature.

We want hundreds of thousands of subscribers for our working class "Daily."

But we want more.

* * * *

In order to build permanently, FOR VICTORY, the workers must have a powerful, centralized, disciplined organization. This is the Workers Party, the Communist party, feared by the masters, but a great inspiration for the downtrodden.

Tens of thousands of new Workers Party members means new impetus to the Communist struggle for victory in the United States. It means new possibilities for greater and more rapid progress.

Our DAILY WORKER readers, who have become acquainted with the aims and objects of the Workers Party, thru these columns, should carefully consider the question of joining the Workers Party, of becoming one of its active members.

Our new readers, who are reading the DAILY WORKER for the first time, should get more Communist literature, study the principles of Communism, and fit yourself for admission into the ranks of the organized Communist movement.

Think carefully on all these things: getting new readers for the DAILY WORKER, getting new members for the Workers Party, helping carry on the first Communist campaign.

Think carefully and then act; for thinking is not worth while for a worker if its not followed by action.

THREATEN TWO STRIKERS OUT IN HEGEWISCH

Told to Work; Refuse and Are Arrested

BULLETIN.

John Gimzik and Joe Lesniak, charged with disorderly conduct because they refused to go back to work in the strike against the Western Steel Car and Foundry Company were discharged by Judge Trude.

Two young strikers, nineteen years old, yesterday had charges preferred against them for "disorderly conduct" in the South Chicago police station, presided over by Judge Trude.

The young fellows, John Gimzik and Joe Lesniak, were nabbed by a guard with a drawn gun from the Western Steel Car and Foundry Co., who is also some sort of a town constable, and brought into the office of the superintendent.

Intimidates Strikers.

In the superintendent's office that worthy attempted to intimidate the young strikers by saying: "You blankety-blanks, if you don't go back to work you're going to be locked up." The young fellows were not scared much by this and the charges were then preferred. A decision is expected shortly.

The strike against the car company is going on as effectively as ever and a meeting was held last night to organize the local union of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen. Edmond Hogan, organizer for the union, is determined to unionize the entire Calumet region.

At a meeting of the Pullman unit of the Workers Party it was decided that the party throw its full strength behind the campaign.

JUDGE WILL RENDER LOEB AND LEOPOLD VERDICT SEPT. 10

All eyes now center upon Judge John R. Caverly, chief justice of the criminal court, who will render a verdict on the trial of Leopold and Loeb on Sept. 10.

The judge has retired to his private residence with masses of evidence and testimony under his trusty right arm, and he intends to keep himself in a study of it until he has reached a fair and square decision.

On the day the verdict is rendered the court will be surrounded by squadrons of mounted police so that no demonstrations shall take place. Letters of intimidation are said to have been received by Caverly warning him to pass the death sentence on the two young millionaires, but Caverly thinks them a bunch of piffle.

It is said that Crowe, state's attorney, is taking a long rest after having poured out his lungs in the summing up.

Flappers will mob the entrance to the court on Sept. 10.

Making History

"One advantage possessed by the strikers is that they have an energetic and fearless daily newspaper devoting extensive space to the conflict—THE DAILY WORKER"
—From "The Nation," May 14th.

Nothing that has happened in labor history in many years has meant so much to the workers everywhere as the establishment of

THE DAILY WORKER

America's Great Labor Daily

If you believe we are doing a big work help by getting the workers everywhere to read

The Daily Worker Every Day

Order a bundle of sample copies to give away in your shop, factory or office and among your friends.

Get a supply of Subscription Blanks

THE DAILY WORKER,
1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Enclosed please find $ ..... for ..... months subscription to THE DAILY WORKER.

Name: .....

Street: ..... Flat: .....

City: ..... State: .....

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By Mail—

1 year	$6.00
6 months	$3.50
3 months	$2.00

IN CHICAGO

By Mail—

1 year	$8.00
6 months	$4.50
3 months	$2.50

WM. Z. FOSTER TO HAVE HUGE MINER RALLIES

Illinois Diggers Plan Monster Meetings

By KARL REEVE
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker)

ZIEGLER, Ill., August 29.—Several thousand idle miners from Jackson, Saline, Williamson and Franklin Counties are flocking to Ziegler, applying for a job at the Bell and Zoller mine number one, the only large mine which has started work again within the last few weeks. Yesterday 500 men assembled at the base of the air shaft waiting for the mine manager to come out in order to get work. Only a few were selected.

The day before yesterday one thousand miners were turned away from the Ziegler mine, the mine manager chosing only thirty men to go to work. Herrin, Benton, Christopher, Sesser, Buckner, Wren City, Dowell, and other hard hit mining towns poured out their hundreds who are unsuccessfully trying to get work in the newly re-opened Ziegler mine.

St. Louis on Downgrade.

Reports reaching here from St. Louis, brought from miners who have failed to get work and have returned to Ziegler, show that one factory after another in St. Louis and other large cities is closing down. The East St Louis steel mills are practically shut down, and the consumption of coal is therefore steadily decreasing. It is thought here that the diminishing demand for coal, due to increased factory shutdowns, will cause the Ziegler mines to again shut down before many weeks have passed.

The coal miners here are planning a monster Labor Day celebration, at which the principal speaker will be Joseph Manley of Chicago. William Z. Foster will speak at the City Park here on September 3, and thousands of miners will come in from many miles around to hear the candidate for president on the Communist platform. Foster's audience will be composed of miners not only from Ziegler, but from five other southern Illinois mining counties—Franklin, Saline, Williamson, Jackson and Perry counties.

Immediately after Manley's Labor Day speech in Ziegler, he will be taken by automobile to Valier, where, if connections can be made, he will speak at another Labor Day celebration of the miners. Karl Reeve will also speak at the Valier meeting.

Need Militant Program.

Ziegler is working better than any other town in southern Illinois now that the Bell and Zoller mine has reopened, yet a survey of conditons reveals that the purpose of the militant miners must be immediately put into effect if the United Mine Workers are not to lose their control of their jobs. Conditions in Ziegler demonstrate that even when the miner is working, his condition is not comparable to a bed in Rosea.

Rents are higher in Ziegler than in any other mining town I have visited. For shacks of three and four rooms miners pay $30 and as high as $40 per month. The prices charged for food and necessities are in some cases 25 per cent higher than in other mining towns.

The Bell and Zoller mine No. 1 here claims the record for average daily production, which is well above 6,000 tons per day. But the bosses have raised living costs so highly that the bigger production and slightly higher wages are extracted from the miners in living expenses. They are worse off than some of the miners getting less pay in other camps.

Louis Joich of Dowell, who was hunting a job in the Ziegler mine, told the DAILY WORKER how the few men hired here were picked by their ideas, the mine manager chosing his friends. Known radicals are not hired most. They are the first fired and the last hired. One man was told by the mine manager: "If I remember your face, you'll never get a job from me." Two men were hired who already had part time jobs in other mining camps. No provision has been made by the "official family" of the miners' union to distribute jobs to the most needy, or to equally distribute what little work there is.

Altho there are many other stores in Ziegler besides the Bell and Zoller company store, which runs under the name of the Ziegler Store Company because of the indebtedness and lack of ready money many miners have been forced to deal at the company store. They are allowed to draw supplies which are paid for out of their next week's pay check, but they are charged 25 per cent interest for all supplies advanced.

* * *

CORRECTION.

In the last story from Ziegler by Karl Reeve an error occurred. The story stated that there is Ziegler local union No. 2376. This is the local union number of the East mine at Christopher. Ziegler's local union number is 992.

Subscribe for "Your Daily," the DAILY WORKER.

Gas Workers Vote To Accept 2½ Pct. Wage Increase

Negotiations over the new yearly contract presented by the members of the Gas [illegible] and Coke Company [illegible] for an increase of [illegible] per cent in wages have closed [illegible] accepting a 2½ per cent increase in their wages. At a meeting of the union held at 180 W. Washington St., the officials have been negotiating with the company officials, made the report which was unanimously accepted.

The raise in wages will affect [illegible] employees of the Peoples Gas [illegible] and Coke Co. which includes [illegible] watchmen, engineers and the [illegible]

Join the Workers Party!

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

BENJAMIN GITLOW

BENJAMIN GITLOW, running mate of Foster, has a long record of service to the revolutionary movement and to the working class of America. He was born in 1892 and joined the socialist Party in 1910. He was elected to the New York State assembly on a platform of opposition to conscription in 1917, and aligned himself one year later to the left wing of the party. He was a leading figure in the development of the Communist movement here, thru the Communist Labor Party (united) and the Workers Party. He is at present a member of of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party.

CANNON HEADS TICKET OF WORKERS PARTY IN STATE OF NEW YORK

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

NEW YORK, August 29.—The following state and local ticket has been selected by the Workers Party nominating convention held here:

[illegible] James P. Cannon, [illegible] Island.
For Lieutenant Governor, Franklin [illegible] Hallett, [illegible] Brooklyn.
For Secretary of State, Lilly Lore, [illegible] Brooklyn.
For Comptroller, Edward Lindgren, Brooklyn.
For Treasurer, Abraham Epstein, Bronx.
For Attorney General, Arthur G. Leslie, New York.
For State Engineer & Surveyor, [illegible] Wilhelm Schneerstadt, Brooklyn.
CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS IN MANHATTAN
1st Dist., Harry Winitsky, against [illegible] Republican-Socialist Party leader Hunter Stokes, against [illegible]
2nd Dist., Ludwig Lore, against [illegible] Socialist Stuart Pompt, [illegible] Republican-Socialist [illegible]
3rd Dist., Harry M. Weiss, against [illegible]
CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS IN BROOKLYN
1st Dist., [illegible] Brooklyn.
2nd Dist., Abraham Caspe, [illegible]
[illegible] Brooklyn.
[illegible] Brooklyn.
[illegible] Brooklyn.

FOSTER MEETING IN OMAHA BRINGS GREAT INTEREST

Will Open Up in Home of Brookhart

OMAHA, Nebr., Aug. 29.—Much interest is developing here in the Foster meeting which will be held next Sunday evening at the Eagle Hall, 17th and Cass Sts.

Local trade unionists are becoming so disgusted with the antics of their faker leadership that they are losing all interest in their organizations. The Labor Temple has become as quiet as an undertaking parlor, since the "reds" were cast from it into the darkness.

William Z. Foster, Communist candidate, will present to these workers the Communist plan for reorganization of the unions upon an industrial basis — the only way out for the craft unionists from the difficulties which confront them as the result of the continuance of their outworn form of craft organization.

Foster to Mess Up Bob.

Foster will also have a message of interest for the LaFollette supporters who are rapidly drifting away from the Wisconsin Messiah as the result of the high-handed tactics used by his crowd in jamming the LaFollette-Bryan swindle down the throats of his worshippers.

Foster will speak at Sioux City and Des Moines (Iowa) before coming to Omaha, at Sioux City on the 29th and Des Moines on the 30th. Foster's meetings are arousing unusual interest among the workers and farmers in Brookhart's domain.

MANY AND NOVEL EXPERIENCES AWAIT WORKERS PARTY MEMBERS SEEKING PETITION SIGNATURES

The big job of Workers Party members right now is the canvassing of voters for signatures to petitions to put the party candidates on the ballot for the Fall elections.

This work is new to some Communists. An account of some experiences, therefore, in getting names, may be an aid to others who are on the job for the party.

Get the Signature.

The big thing to put over is to get signatures. The next job is to leave some literature. That is all that can be covered by the comrades on this job. Undertaking to engage in a discussion or debate will do more harm than good to the immediate task in hand.

Bear in mind that you cannot break down in one minute the wall of prejudice built up for years by WRONG education and capitalist propaganda. You have no time to hammer away at this wall while getting signatures. And the door that has opened to you will quickly shut in your face unless you observe a few rules.

Housewife Answers Knock.

You knock at the door and usually a woman greets you. "Are there any voters in your family?" is a good question to approach her with.

She answers in the affirmative and you proceed to enter.

You address those present. "Will you give us your signature to help put our candidate on the ballot in this district? A number of citizens in this district want to vote for him, but before they can do so, his name must appear on the ballot. We cannot get his name on the ballot without signatures from the citizens in this district.

"Signing this petition places you under no obligation to vote for this man. You, no doubt, understand this. Being a voter, you have been called upon to do this before."

This will secure the confidence of the person addressed and the signature without a minute's hesitation. Then assuring yourself as to the person's qualifications as a citizen, you give him a pencil and he signs.

Hand Out Party Literature.

When you leave exchange a few pleasant remarks while handing out party literature. But let the other fellow express opinions. Get an idea of what the man is thinking about, but don't push your views. The most you can do and should do is to raise a question in his mind about the things he is so sure about and let your literature do the convincing.

Instead of setting out with the intention to teach, go out to learn. And you will learn what you are up against to get your story to the workers. Their minds have been doped with capitalist propaganda. They have been fed on the philosophy of hate and prejudice against your idea by the calling of names. Mention of those very names shuts them up tight in fear of contamination.

Recognize "DAILY WORKER."

Here are a few interesting experiences: One man approached on the curb in front of his home shouted to his friend: "Don't you see the girls are carrying copies of the DAILY WORKER What are you asking questions for? Sign, damn you! You are a worker, aren't you?"

We approached a door. From within we heard a phonograph. We knocked. The phonograph was stopped and a man opened the door. Apologizing for hands that were colored from hard labor, and not from being soiled, he grabbed the pencil in his big frat and signed for all he was worth.

"There!" he said, as if striking a wallop at something he hated. "I'm thru with the old parties. I'ya voted democrat and I've voted republican and now I'm thru. From now on I'll do a little voting for myself Jack Johnstone, candidate for congress in the ninth district, is my man. Tell him he'll get my vote."

We piled him up with literature, shook hands with him and told him we hoped to hear from him.

We met a union man who signed because Johnstone is a union man. Upon learning that this union man would vote for LaFollette, I asked him whether LaFollette was a union man. He didn't know. So I said I know that all our candidates were and I asked him to read our literature, which he promised to do after he signed the petition.

New York Women Meet.

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 29.— An important meeting of the women's committee will be held on Thursday evening, Sept. 4, at 208 E. 12th Street at 8 o'clock. All delegates must be present. Branches that have no delegates, will elect two women delegates at once.

Join the Workers Party!

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

STREET MEETINGS IN CHICAGO.

Saturday, August 30.

North Ave., and Mohawk, auspices German W. P. and Hungarian T. W. L., speakers, D. E. Early and C. Miller.

Division and Washtenaw, auspices N. W. Jewish branch and T. W. L., speakers, M. Gomez, F. Hammersmark and Jewish comrade.

114th and Michigan, auspices Pullman section W. P., speakers, Louis Engdahl and H. Ganner.

Halsted and Sabor Sts., auspices Greek branch W. P., speakers F. Buckley and Greek comrade.

39th St. and State, auspices South Side W. P., speakers, O'Flaherty and Gordon Owens.

Dickson and Division, auspices Polish branch, speakers, Jos. Manley and Polish comrade.

DATES OF THE CHICAGO AFFAIRS OF THE WORKERS PARTY.

Party units and friendly organizations do not set conflicting dates.

Monday, Sept. 1—T. U. E. L. Picnic, Altenheim Grove.

Sunday, Sept. 7—International Youth Day, Northwest Hall.

Sunday, Oct. 12—Foster-Gitlow Campaign Meeting, Ashland Auditorium (afternoon).

Saturday, Oct. 18—John Reed Memorial Meeting.

Saturday, Oct. 25—Freiheit Ball, Ashland Auditorium.

Friday, Nov. 7—Seventh Anniversary Russian Revolution, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Nov. 15—Young Workers League Ball.

Nov. 27-30—Daily Worker and Labor Defense Council Bazaar.

Wednesday, Dec. 31—T. U. E. L. Dance, West End Hall.

Wednesday, Jan. 21—Lenin Memorial Meeting, Ashland Auditorium.

Saturday, Feb. 28—Red Revel.

Join the Workers Party!

Banker Embezzles Dough.

MADISON, Wis., August 29.—Henry E. Rohlf, former president of the Hayward (Wis.) National Bank, was under sentence of eight years in Leavenworth prison today, following a plea of guilty in federal court yesterday on an embezzlement charge.

Vote Communist This Time!

War on Curbstone Sheiks.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Aug. 29.—The morals of Rock Island are being safeguarded with the beginning of a drive to keep "curbstone sheiks" off the streets.

Join the Workers Party!

Poles In Debt Agreement.

WARSAW, August 29.—The Polish minister of finance today instructed the minister at Washington to conclude a debt agreement with the United States.

Vote Communist This Time!

ATTENTION!

All Literature and DAILY WORKER Agents should be present at the DAILY WORKER office, 1113 W. Washington St., Saturday, Aug. 30, 3 p. m. Branches not represented will be notified of the failure of agent to attend.

Vote Communist This Time!

TODAY

All rebels should attend the convention of the junior groups of the Young Workers' League which is being held today at 2644 LeMoyne St., at 1:30 p. m.

Indorse Bob; Can Defense Day

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 29.—The LaFollette-Wheeler ticket was endorsed and Mobilization Day condemned in a stormy session of the Building Trades Council of Indiana in its 12th annual meeting here.

MOVIE THEATRE MUSICIANS MAY STRIKE SEPT. 1

Union Demands 46 Week Contract for Men

No agreement has been reached between the representatives of the Musicians' Union and movie theater managers who met to discuss the musicians' new contract. The musicians are demanding a 46 week contract. The managers are holding out for the old system of indefinite term employment.

Managers in the moving picture houses (this excludes the two-a-day picture houses) have been in the habit of employing a number of musicians one week and reducing the number to about half the next week. This has kept a standing line of unemployed musicians.

"There is no reason why a picture house should not estimate the number of men necessary at the beginning of the year and to guarantee each musician 46 weeks in a year," James Petrilla told the DAILY WORKER.

Subscribe for "Your Daily," the DAILY WORKER.

Women Jobless Too.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—More women in Connecticut are looking for work now than at any time since January, according to a report made to the women's bureau of the U. S. department of labor by Miss Charlotte M. Holloway, an industrial inspector in the field. This unemployment is due to the closing of mills and factories. Work in the tobacco fields will absorb much of this labor for a few weeks.

Join the Workers Party!

Banker Embezzles Dough.

MADISON, Wis., August 29.—Henry E. Rohlf, former president of the Hayward (Wis.) National Bank, was under sentence of eight years in Leavenworth prison today, following a plea of guilty in federal court yesterday on an embezzlement charge.

Vote Communist This Time!

War on Curbstone Sheiks.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Aug. 29.—The morals of Rock Island are being safeguarded with the beginning of a drive to keep "curbstone sheiks" off the streets.

Join the Workers Party!

Poles In Debt Agreement.

WARSAW, August 29.—The Polish minister of finance today instructed the minister at Washington to conclude a debt agreement with the United States.

Vote Communist This Time!

ATTENTION!

All Literature and DAILY WORKER Agents should be present at the DAILY WORKER office, 1113 W. Washington St., Saturday, Aug. 30, 3 p. m. Branches not represented will be notified of the failure of agent to attend.

Vote Communist This Time!

TODAY

All rebels should attend the convention of the junior groups of the Young Workers' League which is being held today at 2644 LeMoyne St., at 1:30 p. m.

Indorse Bob; Can Defense Day

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 29.—The LaFollette-Wheeler ticket was endorsed and Mobilization Day condemned in a stormy session of the Building Trades Council of Indiana in its 12th annual meeting here.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1.)

that one of the most dangerous diseases this country is suffering from is laziness. Business men devote more time to golf than to business and the workers loaf on the job. This apphead holds that if the workers worked longer hours and with greater intensity that everybody would be better off. At the present time there are 2,000,000 workers unemployed in the United States.

* * *

IF those who are employed produced more wealth than they are turning out at the present time, it would simply increase the army of labor so much faster. So long as wealth is produced for profit and not for the use of the producers, so long will intelligent workers refuse to speed up and produce more. In Russia where every increase in the mass of production adds to the standard of living of the producer there is no necessity for urging the workers to produce more. They know that greater production brings them more of the good things of life.

* * *

WE are told it requires brains to make money. Perhaps it may be said that Harry K. Thaw is the exception that proves the rule. But there are others, almost as crazy as Thaw, tho it would take an alienist to give the exact location of the particular gland which is responsible for the mental deviation. Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, believes that she was at one time the devoted wife of Tut-ank-Hamen and later on, one of the concubines of Henry VIII of glorious and neurotic memory.

* * *

NOW comes the Vanderbilt family. Two years ago Mrs. Ogden Mills, one of the Vanderbilts, married Sir Paul Dukes, a member of the "Oom" colony and British stool pigeon in Russia. The latest member of the Vanderbilt family to fall under the influence of this strange cult is Mrs. Barbara C. Rutherford Hatch. She married a disciple of "Oom, the Omnipotent," known in real life as Pierre A. Bernard. The business-like cultist was once a barber and no doubt, will trim the bride off of some of her millions before he turns her over to the next faker. But brains! They belong to the barber.

* * *

HERE is a political puzzle. Senator T. J. Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, is up for re-election as senator from Montana, on the Democratic ticket. He has the support of Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, who is running for the vice-presidency of the United States on the LaFollette ticket. Walsh is supporting John W. Davis, the attorney for the House of Morgan. Davis says that Morgan, the Standard Oil Company, the Equitable Trust and other big corporations and financial institutions that he is working for, are all right. LaFollette says that Morgan is one of the reasons why he is running for president. He declares Morgan is a nuisance. LaFollette endorses Wheeler; Wheeler endorses LaFollette and T. J. Walsh, who endorses Morgan via Davis. In supporting Walsh, for senator on the Democratic ticket, Wheeler is supporting Morgan via Davis. In supporting La Follette for president, Wheeler is fighting Davis and therefore, fighting Morgan. What is it, anyhow? A phantasy or an election campaign?

* * *

EIGHTEEN persons including Col. Forbes, are indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government in the Veterans' Bureau. They are now awaiting trial. What a cesspool of corruption this capitalist government of the United States is? "Take away the incentive to accumulate wealth, and civilization would fall," say the apologists for the capitalist system. But it appears that capitalism is coming down thru the action of economic forces, assisted by capitalism's agents who are so anxious to accumulate wealth and "make good" that they rob the institutions they are sworn to protect. No more shameful piece of burglary was ever committed than the robbery of the Veterans' Bureau. And this was done by good 100 per cent patriotic Americans.

* * *

J. C. WALTON, former governor of Oklahoma, and Democratic nominee for senator from Oklahoma, promises to treat the Ku Klux Klan rough when he gets into the millionaires' club in Washington. Walton was elected governor of Oklahoma with the support of the workers, but when he got in, he soon turned his coat. He even joined the Klan, but thieves have a habit of falling out so he was expelled from the hooded order. Mr. Walton will fight for nothing but his own interests. He is one of the most notorious fakers in the United States. He is supporting John W. Davis, the Morgan attorney for president.

CLEVELAND, O., NOTICE

LABOR DAY PICNIC

By LOCAL CLEVELAND, Workers Party

Russick's Farm

DANCING SPORTS GAMES

Speaking by

J. BRAHTIN

Labor Candidate for Congress Workers Party Ticket

Take W. 25th St. Car to end; then State Road car to end.

BELL'S HOTEL, 1921 W. Park Ave.

Rooms by day or week. Wm. Bell, prop. Phone West 0681.

JAY STETLER'S RESTAURANT

Established 1901

1663 W. Madison St. Chicago

Tel. Monroe 2241

PUT YOUR

$ $ $ $ $ $

TO WORK FOR YOU AT CHICAGO'S ONLY LABOR BANK WHERE THE WORKER BANKS

Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank

371 WEST JACKSON BLVD.

Resources $2,600,000.00

BANKING HOURS

Tuesdays . . . . . 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.
Saturdays . . . . . 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.
Other Days . . . . . 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

OPEN A SAVINGS ACCOUNT at the old reliable

Mid-City Trust & Savings Bank

Madison and Halsted Streets

MEMBER OF CHICAGO CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION

Open all day Saturday for your convenience.

Deutche-Hungarian Restaurant

Go to eat where all the rest 100% union men and women go

29 South Halsted St.

Pure Food, Good Service and reasonable prices our motto

CLEVELAND, OHIO

CHIROPRACTIC AND ELECTRO-THERAPY

As intelligent and revolutionary workers you have freed yourselves of the trammels of capitalistic religion and politics. But you probably still adhere to the greatest and most harmful superstition cloaked as a science—MEDICINE. People who know refuse to be practiced upon with knife and powerful drugs. When ill they resort to (drugless) NATURAL METHODS of treatment.

For a speedy recovery and your health's sake see

Dr. J. J. SCHOLTES

2838 West Twenty-fifth St., Cor. Wade

Phone Linc. 5340

VICTORY Restaurant and Lunch Room

Prenos Brothers

1054 West Madison St. Chicago

Tel. Monroe 7281

We Serve Nothing But the Best

PITTSBURGH, PA.

DR. RASNICK

DENTIST

Rendering Expert Dental Service for 20 Years.

645 SMITHFIELD ST., Near 7th Ave.
1437 CENTER AVE., Cor. Arthur St.

MAC'S BOOK STORE

DETROIT

Full line of Sociological and Labor Literature.

Periodicals and Newspapers

27 JOHN R STREET

Mueller's RESTAURANT

A good place to eat.

1010 RUSH STREET

Tel. Superior 7079

Downstairs of National Office.

Furnishings

LADIES' MEN'S INFANTS'

Trade Where Your Money Buys the Most

Martin's

651 West North Avenue East of Halsted St.

Telephone Monroe 2284

Genova Restaurant

ITALIAN-AMERICAN

1238 Madison Street

N. E. Cor. Elizabeth St.

Spaghetti and Ravioli Our Specialty

Special Arrangements for Parties on Short Notice

Dust Proof Slip Covers to protect Your Furniture

Call or Phone.

Illinois Slip Cover Co.

Not Inc.

Warwick Bldg., 551 E. 47th St., Chicago

Telephone Atlantic 0601

Estimates cheerfully given everywhere

Store for Sale.

8 Year Lease; $60 Rent.

Guaranteed business over $90.00 per day. Near car barns, Archer Depot.

P. MANUSOS

3872 ARCHER AVE., Cor. Rockwell.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST TONIC for lowered vitality

makes your blood tingle with joy the minute you taste it. Take a wine glass full of before meals and note the improvement of your health in a few days. Order a bottle by coupon below.

LIPSEY'S BITTERS

LIPSEY PRODUCTS CO.
1133 Foster Ave., Chicago

Enclosed is $1.85. Please send one bottle of LIPSEY'S BITTERS at once.

Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

Money Back Guarantee

HOT FROM THE PRESS!

The New and Vital Pamphlet Everyone Is Talking About

RUSSIA IN 1924

By WM. Z. FOSTER

Chairman of the Workers Party, Secretary of the T. U. E. L., and

Communist Candidate For President

The Capitalist Press and All the Enemies of the Workers Have Been Spreading the Lie That the Russian Revolution "Has Failed"

FOSTER SPENT FOUR MONTHS IN RUSSIA IN 1921 SIX WEEKS IN RUSSIA THIS YEAR

In This Pamphlet He Tells the Story of How the Russian Workers Have Fought Their Way Through All Obstacles to Victory! How They Have Succeeded In Government and Industry! How They Are Free!

32 pages, paper cover, 10 cents—Bundles of ten or more, 7 cents.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

Cleveland, Ohio, Notice

BEN GITLOW

Only Labor Candidate for Vice-President

Workers Party Ticket

Speaks

Sunday Sept. 7, 7:30 P.M.

At

BRICKLAYERS' HALL

East 21st Street, South of Prospect.

Admission 25c

The World of Labor • Industry & Agriculture

MUSSOLINI WAS MURDER MASTER, STATES C. ROSSI

Fascist Leader Squeals on Head Plotter

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, August 29.—Cesare Rossi, prominent Fascist leader, who is being held in jail for his part in the murder of the Socialist deputy Giacomo Matteotti, has in the preliminary hearing, which precedes his trial, accused Mussolini of being the instigator and the personal director of the crime, according to stories published in almost every newspaper in the country.

The report, which is being heralded the length and breadth of Italy, has again thrown the working masses into turmoil. It is expected that this confession to help the opposition frustrate the attempts of the Fascist-controlled courts of Italy to put off the trial of the murderers until April, when public feeling will have calmed down.

It is said that Rossi's move has followed on his realization that Mussolini is planning to keep him and his fellow-conspirators in jail in an attempt to appease the indignation which the crime has aroused among the workers.

Amerigo Dumini and Filippo Filippelli, both of whom are in jail, accused of complicity in the crime, are reported to be willing to present evidence definitely proving the assertions of Rossi. Both of these men held prominent places in the Fascist ranks Filippelli having been editor of Il Corriere Italiano, chief organ of the Mussolini government. Dumini, whose long record of crime is an open book was connected with the Banco Disconto, which in three years has made millionaires of the half dozen officials in control of the country.

The verbal statements of Rossi are in accord with a letter written from prison a month ago, and published in the 11 Soreno, an independent newspaper.

CLEVELAND READERS, ATTENTION.

The DAILY WORKER is on sale daily at Schroeder's News Stand, E. Superior, opposite the Post Office; also by the blind news agent at the corner of the monument on the square. Buy it every day, or better yet, send in a subscription to receive the DAILY WORKER by mail.

Mussolini's Tools In the Murder of Matteotti

Amerigo Dumini — Albino Volpi — Aldo Putato — Filippo Filippelli — Cesare Rossi — Giovanni Marinelli

THE ASSASSIN

BENITO MUSSOLINI
Leader of Black Reaction in Italy

THE VICTIM

GIACOMO MATTEOTTI
Victim of Mussolini Terror

MADRID, Aug. 29.—Five soldiers were killed and 30 wounded in fighting between Spanish convoys and rebels in the Western zone of the Moroccan battlefront.

COAST "MOVIE" OPERATORS' PLAN STRIKE SEPT. 1

All Labor Around The Theaters Involved

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 29.—A theatrical strike is being forced upon the workers in the moving picture theatres by the Portland and Seattle theatre managers. The present agreement between the union and the owners expires Sept. 1.

Stage crafts, musicians, stage hands, motion picture operators, billers, and engineers are involved. Their new contract calls for changes which would better working conditions, and in many cases raise wages and shorten hours. The owners want the old contract, renewed for three years but with twenty reservations to their advantage.

Preparing for Strike.

The owners are listing scabs and preparing for a lockout. The Orpheum vaudeville circuit is involved both in Portland and Seattle. Leadership among the owners rests with Jensen, of Jensen and Von Herberg. This firm controls not only the leading movie houses in Portland, Oregon; Seattle, Tacoma, and Spokane, Wash.; and Butte, Montana; but also many smaller houses, both in the five cities, and in many smaller towns in the Northwest.

Will See Empty Houses.

The result will undoubtedly be that labor trouble in one town on their circuit will soon spread to others, and may easily involve the entire Northwest.

Before this, in Seattle and in Butte the Jensen and Von Herberg theatre syndicate has been fought and beaten by the unions.

Workers in Portland and Seattle are preparing for the fight. They will get behind this strike and show the managers that they cannot put over their crooked deal. They will help the strikers picket and will stay away from the theatres until the strike is won.

With empty houses and actorless and musicianless theatres the managers can look forward to doing a nice quiet business during the strike.

ALL COMMUNIST DEFENSE TO BE DONE BY L. D. C.

Is Unanimous Decision of Nat'l Committee

CHICAGO.—The Labor Defense Council will hereafter assist in defending all cases brought against members of the Workers party, who, in their political activities, are denied rights of free speech, free press, and assemblage. This is the same organization which raised over $100,000 for the defense of Foster, Ruthenberg and others in the Michigan criminal syndicalism cases.

Baldwin Concurs

This new responsibility was assumed at the suggestion of the local executive committee, approved by Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, and unanimously decided upon at a meeting of the national committee recently held in Chicago. The council will immediately take over the defense of a number of cases now pending, including some which involve threatened deportations.

"I can see no reason," said Baldwin, "why those who are committed to the principle of free speech for every group and party should not be willing to participate in getting free speech for a particular party, without committing themselves in any way whatever to that party's propaganda."

BEG PARDON!

In yesterday's issue of the DAILY WORKER it was announced that the junior convention will be held on Sunday, August 30. Since August 30 falls on Saturday, that is when the convention will be held. It takes place at 2633 LeMoyne Ave. at 1.30 p. m.

To Cut Jap Army

TOKIO, Aug. 29.—Military men today agreed to compromise with civilian politicians on reducing the army five divisions. One is to be transferred for imperialist purposes to Corea.

Get a member for the Workers Party.

FACTORIES GROW UP SWIFTLY OVER WORKERS' STATE

MOSCOW.—(By Mail.)—New factories are being built in many parts of Russia. According to the latest reports in Tumen a new tanning factory has been opened with a production of 120,000 sheep hides. In Samara a factory producing matches has been repaired and began production. It was idle for a long period. In Enakievsk a coke-benzoll factory began operation with a production of 117 million puds of coal per year. The "Tulma" textile factory in Yaroslavl almost doubled its machinery and production. In the great Zlatoust works a new rolling mill is being planned with the production of 60,000 puds of iron.

OPEN SHOPPERS' GANG ENDORSES "DEFENSE" DAY

American Planners Say It's Hot Stuff

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29. The infamous American Plan Ass'n, leader of the open-shop movement in this country, yesterday placed its official blessing on Mobilization day and all that it stands for. In a public statement issued by its director (who incidentally is a high army officer,) the open-shop association lauds "Defense day" as "an opportunity for every loyal American to find his place in the country's defense in the event of an emergency."

Old Familiar Faces

The American Plan Ass'n is the same crew that urged the use of federal troops to break the miners and the shopmen's strikes. Its director gets out of his army uniform long enough to denounce labor-unions as "a menace to the safety of the nation." There can be no doubt as to what these open-shoppers mean by such vague phrases as "the country's defense in the event of an emergency" or when "its security is threatened."

Get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER.

Rules for Our Writers.

The DAILY WORKER editorial staff requests all who send in letters and stories to observe the following rules:

1. Write on one side of the page.
2. Leave a margin of one inch at the left hand side of the paper and plenty of space between lines.
3. Whenever possible please use ink instead of pencil.

Attention to the above rules will greatly facilitate matters and assure your story getting into the paper promptly.

JUNKER RULE IN NEW YORK LABOR MEET

Communists Attacked As Anti-Militarists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Junkerism prevailed at today's session of the New York State Federation of Labor convention after Lieutenant Colonel Clarence Ross demanded the support of labor in the militarist Mobilization Day of Sept. 12, and for the Citizens' Military Training Camps.

Attacks Communists.

In making his plea for support of the militarist institutions of the country, Ross launched into a vicious attack upon the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League for opposing militarism.

The colonel was followed by a number of delegates who made more reactionary speeches than he had done. Even Abraham Lefkowits of the Teachers' Union found himself agreeing on the floor with Ross so far as the latter's attack on the Communists was concerned, but he strongly disagreed on the question of militarism.

Will Indorse Day.

Despite Lefkowitz' ardent speech against militarism and imperialism, the matter was referred to the resolutions committee, where it is expected that indorsement of Mobilization Day will be given.

Among the other actions of the convention was the recommendation of the committee on compensation. It proposed that state compensation be increased from $20 to $30 a week and that claim filing time be extended from one to two years.

Nine other committees were appointed today by the convention, at which there are over 300 delegates.

Demand New Agreement.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—German Nationalists today introduced a resolution in the Reichstag demanding that the government negotiate a new reparations settlement with the allies with the following conditions:

1. Germany to secure a reduction of obligations, under the Dawes plan for two years.
2. Germany's capacity for payment to receive further study.
3. A definite amount of German indemnity to be fixed as the final amount due from Germany is not specified in the Dawes plan.
4. Evacuation of occupied German territory to begin January 10, 1925.
5. Germany officially repudiates guilt for starting the great war.

Three Aviators Killed.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Three aviators were killed near Gallarate, Italy, when their machine caught fire and crashed, said a news dispatch from Rome today.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A UNIQUE AND PRACTICAL BATHING SUIT

4678

4678. This model provides Breeches joined to one-half of the waist and the Skirt joined to the other half, both forming the complete design illustrated. The waist portions cross each other in surplice style with a very effective closing. One could use jersey, oil silk, rubberized gingham or silk, as well as alpaca, gingham or satin.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

FASHIONS LATEST BLOUSE STYLE

4342

4342. Charmingly developed in figured silk with bindings of crepe satin in a contrasting color this style shows new and attractive features. It is also a good model for taffeta, printed georgette or voile.

The Pattern is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 2 yards of 36 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE SPRING AND SUMMER 1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Address: The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded to the DAILY WORKER office as soon as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take about 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is not received at once.

Distribute a bundle of the DAILY WORKER'S first Special Campaign Edition, dated Saturday, August 30.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

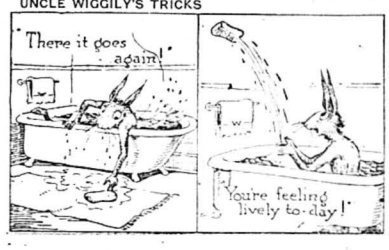
MOSCOW CHILDREN IN WORLD APPEAL

IN connection with the tenth anniversary of the world war, the children of Moscow sent thru the press the following letter to the children of the world:

"To the children of the working class:

"In the name of the Young Leninists we are appealing to the working class children of the world; unite into Leninist (Pioneer) groups, live up to the teachings of Vladimir Ilitch, fight against imperialist wars, which are for the sole benefit of the rich and for the crucifixion of the working class. In order to successfully combat imperialist wars it is necessary to overthrow capitalism. Children! Unite into Communist groups in orded to prepare yourself, to become hardened, disciplined and brave fighters for the interests of the working class.—The Ninth Group of the Rogojsko-Simanovsk District, Moscow."

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRICKS



A LAUGH FOR THE CHILDREN

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.,
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
(Phone: Monroe 4712)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail:
$6.00 per year $3.50...6 months $2.00...3 months

By mail (in Chicago only):
$6.00 per year $4.50...6 months $2.50...3 months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER
1113 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, MORITZ J. LOEB ..... Editors
.....Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 21, 1922 at the Post-Office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

280 Advertising rates on application.

What Is Labor Day?

This day that has been assigned to the workers by their employers, the first Monday in September, and called "Labor Day," is a sign of the enslavement of the working class. It was given to the workers, as the price for abandoning the revolutionary May Day, the original Labor Day and the only day that really expresses the aspirations of the working class.

The exchange of May Day, with all its glorious traditions, for the flat and colorless day in September, was the outward symbol of the inward change that had gripped the American labor movement. It stood for the exchange of the policies of class struggle for the policy of class collaboration; it meant that the labor movement would no longer fight for better conditions and against the exploitation of capitalism, but that it would beg for crumbs from the rich table of rising American imperialism.

In keeping with the servile spirit that introduced this "legal" holiday, the day itself has become a day of fraternization between capitalist politicians and their labor lieutenants. Every labor day celebration in the country that is held under the auspices of the Gompers bureaucracy is a love feast between the labor officials and republican and democratic candidates for office. It is a sort of market day, when the votes of the workers are peddled to the highest bidders, and where the price is not even delivered to the voter, but to his "leaders," in the form of policical patronage if not direct purchase by money.

And so the revolutionary workers of America have no enthusiasm for this so-called labor day, which is really a brand of shame upon the labor movement. May Day, the day that was selected by the workers themselves, and baptised in the blood of thousands in struggle against the capitalist exploiters, is the only Labor Day that arouses the enthusiasm of the revolutionists or that of the working masses.

Many willing hands make the big jobs easy. Get new members for the Workers Party.

Contradictions of LaFollettism

The movement of LaFollette is a strange chaos of conflicting policies and elements. It demands the support of the Farmer-Labor parties—but it proceeds to destroy these parties. LaFollette is violently opposed to the League of Nations, but he joins hands with Gompers, the violent defender of the league. LaFollette's program calls for rigid enforcement of the anti-trust law—Gompers wants to eliminate all such restrictive legislation. LaFollette obtains the endorsement of the C. P. P. A. on the basis of a program—and then abandons that program soon afterward and turns over his campaign in the states to Gompers' machine, scrapping the C. P. P. A.

And so it goes, with the wildest inconsistencies and antagonism tied together, harmonized only by the beautiful eyes of Bob. The socialist party, already over its head in this political sea into which it rashly ventured, still plaintively wails that it is going to get a labor party out of this petty bourgeois melange. If there is anyone still so to believe that such a result is possible it should also be easy for them to repeat the articles of faith of all the religions without stuttering.

The miracles attributed to Jesus, turning water into wine, raising the dead, and little feats of a similar magnitude, would fade into insignificance beside the wonder of anything like a labor party coming out of this LaFollette movement. It may develop many things of which it carries the germs; American Fascism is strongly represented in its ranks, and it might turn in that direction; it might turn into a "liberal" party of American capitalism; it may easily find it possible to retain its present nesting place in the bosom of the old parties; but for it to become a labor party movement is beyond the wildest stretch of probabilities.

The Storm Gathers

The London Reparations conference is now well over. The peace boom that was launched and was waxing while these sessions were on is distinctly on the wane. Worse than that. The after-effects of the reparations gathering are slowly, but surely, taking on a dark outlook.

Already it is obvious to many observers that the peace efforts made by the international financiers in the last London conference were wholly ephemeral. Their objectives are now transparent. In short, the MacDonald-Herriot confab instead of making for the permanent peace of Europe has actually sown new seeds of dissension, has opened new avenues of intense commercial rivalry between the various national capitalist groups.

Herriot has denied to the French Chamber of Deputies that he has undertaken to keep the British government fully informed of all details of the impending Franco-German commercial treaty. MacDonald had, previous to this, declared that Herriot made such a promise to him. The British imperialists are becoming uneasy. They fear that the French interests may use their occupation of the Ruhr as a crowbar with which to force special trade and finance concessions by Germany.

Fearing that the wrath of the British ruling class will fall on his head, MacDonald is panic-stricken. The "Labor" premier has appointed a special committee to study the possible effects of the London treaties on British foreign trade. Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, is even more vigilant in guarding the interests of the English imperialist junta. This so-called socialist financial wizard is now in session with the leading British steel, coal, dyes, textiles, and pharmaceutical corporations investigating the outlook for British trade.

The ruling class of Great Britain entertains serious fears of unfavorable reactions on its role as an outstanding force in the struggle for world commercial, financial and industrial supremacy. Indeed, it is clear that the Dawes peace pact was only a curtain raiser for the eminent war drama that will soon be staged in Europe and elsewhere.

The much-heralded peace plans of the employing class have proved once more that they are only the preludes to new and more infernal wars.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Facts versus Illusions

The cardinal feature of LaFollette's economic program is a return to the state of free competition in which American industry once found itself.

In the face of a century of industrial development this effort of LaFollette to turn back the hands of the clock of economic progress is doomed to instant failure.

Much food for thought over this Utopian attitude towards highly organized production and exchange is afforded by the present marked tendency towards railway mergers. The Interstate Commerce Commission has not yet made public its plans for the consolidation of the railroads into a limited number of systems. Until this plan is announced railway consolidations are prohibited. Yet, since the enactment of the Esch-Cummins law, the trend toward railway mergers has been rather strong.

Under the guise of one section or another section of the Transportation Act, there have taken place such consolidations as the Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville and Nashville taking over the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio rail properties for 999 years. The recent Nickel Plate merger, put over by the Van Sweringen interests, is another railway consolidation which did not take into account the so-called anti-rail trust laws. At the same time the two biggest roads in the country, the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, have been tightening their grip on their numerous subsidiaries.

These conditions are the natural outcome of the evolution of American industry. No law, no LaFollette, no Hillquit-Wheeler alliance can hold back the wheels of industrial progress. But behind the ridiculous LaFollette economic program there lurks a tragic fact. We have in mind the fact that the political program of the Wisconsin senator rests on this fundamentally unsound economic doctrine.

Millions of workers and farmers are being implored by the LaFollette organization to accept a political program based on such economic fallacies. Herein lies the real menace. In the end illusions must yield to facts. LaFollette's thunder will be dissipated at the first flush of his success in national politics. But it is the workers and poor farmers who will pay the price for any practical demonstration of the failure of LaFollettism as a road to their freedom.

Join the Workers Party and subscribe to the DAILY WORKER!

S. Glenn Young was a mighty brave man, when he was shooting up miners in the dark, assassinating workers, and spending the money of the coal operators. The coal operators put up millions of dollars of coal lands, banking upon Young's "bravery" and their own control of the courts. But Young must have got cold feet, and now some bosses are worried.

Another great railroad merger has taken place, with the unification of the Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Hocking Valley Systems. But there is still no news of the great merger of the workers' unions that is so vitally necessary. Amalgamation is still the most burning union issue before the railroaders.

Having established all his reactionary policies in the Illinois labor movement, and made it a province of his kingdom, Sam Gompers is reported to be considering a visit to the state convention in Peoria for the purpose of surveying his additional realm.

After all the newspaper bunk about the establishment of the 8 hour day in the steel industry, it is now disclosed that the 10 and 12-hour day still largely prevails. The only way to shorten the day is to organize working class power.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

Send in that new "sub" today!

Class Struggle Is Sharpening in Germany

GERMAN PRISONS ARE FILLED TO OVERFLOWING WITH COMMUNISTS

By EMILE HOELLEIN, Communist Deputy, German Reichstag

BOURGEOIS "criminal justice" in Germany has never allowed itself to be troubled by either humanitarian or legal scruples when it is a matter of taking vengeance on a class enemy for some attack or other directed against the sacred institution of the capitalist state. Under the rule of the kaisers, Draconian verdicts against honest workingmen often roused the indignation of the civilized world. But everything that happened then seems paltry and inconsequential in comparison with the disgraceful scandals of "justice" which we are witnessing with our own eyes in this new democratic-republican Germany, now ruled by the socialist, Fritz Ebert, and which has seen at its head for a number of years a whole series of social-democratic popes.

At the present time the prisons and the jails of Germany are once more filled, nay, in some cases they are literally jammed, to the extent of holding twice the number of prisoners authorized by law. And, at the doors of the prisons, thousands upon thousands of proletarians await their turn!

The lodging, the food and the treatment of the imprisoned victims are repellant to the most elementary notions of decency and of kindness. After the orgy of swindling arising out of the inflation of her currency, Germany ought indeed to be miserly in her expenditures. But the bourgeoisie refrains from economizing where it could really do so. It does not touch the gigantic and extravagant machine which it keeps for purposes of oppression: the army, the police and the courts. It economizes only at the expense of the weakest: the aged, the invalids, the cripples, the war widows and the war orphans, the unemployed, etc., and above all at the expense of the most helpless of all—the thousands of poor victims of the courts, who are languishing and rotting in the dungeons which are so many sores on the body of the infamous German republic.

What is the reason for this crowded condition of the prisons and the jails of Germany? Is it due to the increase in crime—an increase which is an established fact in all the belligerent countries as a result of the war and of the social deterioration which followed the war? Not at all! And if in Germany, too, the period after the war is to blame for a very great increase in crime, nevertheless the largest proportion of the inmates of the German prisons consists of political criminals—that is to say, of soldiers in the army of the class war, of members of the honest, militant proletariat.

It is a noteworthy fact that at this moment there exists in republican Germany a very clear tendency to leniency toward those who transgress common law, and, on the contrary, a tendency to show excessive and a bitter severity toward political offenders.

Numerous murderers — some of them of the most horrible kind—go unpunished in Germany or are discovered only by accident after the lapse of a number of years. Only call to mind the scandalous case of the homo-sexual murderer, Haarman, who, thanks to the watchful complicity of the police, was able for many years to indulge his murderous sadistic desires!

The same leniency and the same indulgence are under other circumstances used toward political offenses . . . provided that these offenses have been committed by anarchists or Fascists—that is to say, by the enemies of the proletariat and of the German republic. The trial of the Fascist leader, Hitler, in Munich is most enlightening in this respect.

Even more revolting and disgraceful is the attitude of the police and the judges towards the innumerable secret counter-revolutionary organizations which are committing systematic murder and whose members carry weapons; but who not only are never punished, but who actually receive the open protection of the government, the police and the courts—to the extent that anyone who dares to make public the crimes of these secret associations is relentlessly persecuted for treason to the fatherland!

In comparison with the leniency and the indulgence accorded trabsgressors of the common law, and counter-revolutionists, we must note a revolting "administration of justice," vengeful in its motives and terrorist in its method, which is brot to bear on the honest militant proletariat which dares to protect itself actively against the moral and physical murder which the capitalist system inflicts upon it.

The lies told about the armed attack on the seat of the Russian commercial embassy at Berlin and on the neighborhood where live the Communist faction in the Reichstag, all of whose wardrobes and closets were rifled,—the openly avowed determination to save the capitalist state by the use of spies and for this purpose to contrive, according to needs of the police and the courts all necessary crimes, plots and assaults—the violation, becoming every day more open, of the most elementary of the principles of law, which states that the court is under obligation to prove the objective and subjective guilt of each individual defendant—the infamous legal twist which permits the courts to declare collectively guilty a whole political group, for the purpose of depriving the entire Communist movement of its leaders—and finally the more and more frequent seizure of hostages during the course of trials for the purpose of forcing from fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters, etc., testimony incriminating the accused proletarian—all these abominations represent just so many stages in the complete moral and legal prostitution of bourgeois justice in Germany in this fight that is being directed against the proletarian revolution.

How are we to explain this policy of legal and political terrorism against the revolutionary proletariat? The answer is simple: this policy of terrorism is the very obvious expression of the fact that in Germany we find ourselves in the midst of a very highly-developed stage of the class war. The German bourgeoisie fears that its privileges of exploitation and domination are threatened. It neither can nor will give up without making every effort. To the end that it may preserve its class rule over the interior of Germany, it is ready to deliver the entire working mass of Germany into the hands of international finance capital. It is iron in its determination to make its people obey; even at the price of bloodshed, at the command of the foreign capitalist dictators whose interests demand that the social and political status quo in Germany shall not be menaced. That is why, for months, we have been witnessing a campaign of calumny against everything Communist that is without parallel. That is why the government wishes to start a mass prosecution, this fall, against the members of the German Communist Party. Here is the mysterious meaning of the flagrant attacks of these past months. This is the real reason for the terrorism, becoming more noticeable every day, which is striving to apply the "justice" of the bourgeoisie to the working masses of Germany.

(Signed) Emile Hoellein, Communist Deputy in the Reichstag.

IN THE WORLD'S RICHEST COUNTRY

"THE workers and exploited farmers of the United States . . . are able to secure for their labor only the means for a bare existence. Millions of workers must work long hours, under bad working conditions, for low wages. Millions are periodically unemployed as at present with all the consequent misery and suffering for themselves and their families. In order to keep these conditions from growing worse, millions of industrial workers are periodically compelled to go on strike to fight back the greedy employers. Millions of farmers have been driven into bankruptcy and from the land because of inability to earn enough for a living."—From the Election Platform of the Workers Party of America.

Butler's Finks Paid to Stir Up Race Hatred

(Continued from page 1)

Butler never giveth. The New Bedford textile workers suffered several terrible slashes in wages under the stool pigeon regime of the Sherman-Butler-stool-pigeon-republican combine. Not for nothing did the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association pay to the Sherman Service a fee approximating $300,000 to wreck the New Bedford unions and discourage workers from striking against wage cuts—to win "co-operation," as Sherman blithely puts it.

We have already given the names of several of the stool pigeons Mr. Butler, head of the republican party who asks the workers to vote for Coolidge, placed in control of the Textile Council of New Bedford. But there were others. For instance, there was the vice president of the Loom Fixers' Union, George Smith, and working with him in the same union was Herbert Pemberton, its treasurer, an able pair of stool pigeons as ever betrayed the workers into "co-operation with the employers." Another union official fink was Anthony Astershen, secretary of the Amalgamated Textile Workers.

The interest of Mr. Butler in having his puppy dog, Cal Coolidge, for president, may well be imagined from the way he used these "labor leaders" when the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was up in congress. This episode is enough to raise Homeric laughter over the mechanism of our great "democratic institutions so sacred to all capitalists little and big, from Butler to LaFollette. It is also illustrative of the sinister forces behind the class-collaboration policies of many a "labor leader" who preaches that "the union must help the bosses so that the boss can make money enough to pay good wages," etc. In fact, one can detect in such things as the "B & O Plan" of William H. Johnston for "co-operation with the railroads to increase output," the odor of the Sherman skunk.

Here is what the multi-millionaire backer of Mr. Coolidge used his control over the unions for. He fixed it up so that the Sherman stool pigeons in the unions, John Silver and Abraham Binns, went down to Washington and appeared before the senate committee then considering the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill (don't forget that McCumber used stool pigeons in the North Dakota primaries).

In the name of the Textile Council of the New Bedford unions, these finks appeared as the "sturdy sons of labor." Silver and Binns, to depict the horrors which would fall upon the workers of New Bedford if the textile of Mr. Butler were not "protected from cheap foreign labor." Silver and Binns duly went, depicted and conquered. The Fordney-McCumber bill was passed, the finks got their expenses paid both by the union and by Mr. Butler, they got their pay from both the union and the Sherman agency, Mr. Butler got his protection and the textile workers got—several wage reductions.

To get the textile workers "back to normalcy" was the aim of Fink Boss Butler. It meant to get the weavers back to the 1913 wage of $12.09 a week, and the girl trimmers at $6.39 a week. That is the acme of republican party "normalcy." The whole force of stool pigeons was largely engaged in this work, getting "co-operation" of the Sherman Service style. The lower caste stool pigeons would boldly come to the defense of the poverty-stricken mill owners" and would kick about the union "asking too much," grumble about the high dues, etc.

The stool pigeons who were union officers naturally had to go a little slow on this matter. The "rank and file" stool pigeon could openly and freely talk for the boss. If, however, a "rank and file" union man talked otherwise, wanted a raise or wanted a strike, to prevent a wage reduction, the union officials promptly treated him with hostility, he became known as a "Bolshevik" and lost his job or was sat on in the union, or both. By this process the "union officers" were, first, in doubt, then wavered, then became convinced "by the membership" that wage reductions should be accepted because, as they said, "if the mills can't make money, then they'll shut down and we'll all be out of work."

But this by-play is the more pleasant side of Butler's adventures in Stool Pigeon Land. The Sherman Service, despite its Nazarene protestations, is a sinister force for dirty intrigue and crime. Butler knew it when he gave approval to a plot for a squad of stool pigeons, led by Joseph Bocherski, a Polish member of the I. W. W., to break into the I. W. W. offices in New Bedford in the middle of the night, destroy the books and raise havoc generally. This is the kind of a man Mr. Butler, chairman of the republican committee, backs. This is the kind of work the Sherman Service does not advertise, but practices.

In the great steel workers' strike of 1919 when W. Z. Foster, now chairman of the Workers Party, was lead to fight against the steel trust, the Sherman agency, then and now aligned behind the chairman of the republican party, was planting its spies in the steel workers' unions to fight Foster and to break the strike.

Its stool pigeons were given the following orders to precipitate race hatred and possible violence:

"We want you to stir up as much bad feeling as you possibly can between the Italians and the Serbians. Spread data among the Serbians that the Italians are going back to work. Call up every question you can in reference to racial hatrds between these two nationalities."

This sounds just like the Ku Klux Klan. And just like the Klan, these crime inciters of the Sherman agency were not punished, altho its Chicago office was raided by the military intelligence of the federal government and the county authorities. Capitalist government is not built to punish capitalists or their stool pigeons. Butler then as now a big man in the republican party and in the Sherman detective agency, knows it.

The Sherman Service, Incorporated, has been and is the "underground section" of the republican party. It has been and is, along with William Morgan Butler, the backer of Calvin Coolidge, the strike breaker, for president. The Sherman detective service and its stool pigeons have been and are, along with Butler, whose plots against the textile workers you have had in this exposure, against William Z. Foster, worker, steel strike leader and Communist candidate for president.

The capitalist government never has and never will punish either Sherman or Butler for their crimes against the workers. But the capitalist government has even now an indictment and ten-year term of prison hanging over the head of William Z. Foster because he "was present" when other Communists were discussing how to displace the stool pigeons of Mr. Butler and put honest workers in union office. That is "criminal syndicalism." Which will you choose, workers, the candidate Coolidge, backed by Butler and his Sherman stool pigeons, or William Z. Foster, candidate backed by the Communists of the Workers Party of America?

Subscribe for "Your Daily," the DAILY WORKER.

Take a Vote in Your Shop

HOW do the workers in your shop stand in this presidential election campaign?

How many of your shop mates are still so backward that they accept the leadership of Coolidge and Davis?

How many of your fellow workers have been fooled by the specious pleas of LaFollette and adopt this middle-class saviour?

And, above all, how many workers are there in your shop who understand that the working class must have its own party, its own policy, and its own candidate—and who therefore stand for William Z. Foster for president?

Take a vote in your shop. Send it in to the DAILY WORKER. We will compile it along with all the other shop votes and give you a picture of how the workers are thinking about the election issues and candidates.

WORKERS' STRAW VOTE

THE DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago Ill.

The workers employed in the shop of.....
.....have taken a straw vote on the presidential candidates, and the vote was as follows:

WM. Z. FOSTER ..... votes; Workers Party
LaFOLLETTE ..... votes; No Party
DAVIS ..... votes; Democratic Party
COOLIDGE ..... votes. Republican Party

I certify that this report is correct:

Name: .....

Address: .....

"The idea becomes power when it penetrates the masses." —Karl Marx.

SPECIAL MAGAZINE SUPPLEMENT
THE DAILY WORKER

SECOND SECTION
This magazine supplement will appear every Saturday in The Daily Worker.

AUGUST 30, 1924.

THE ROAD TO FREEDOM

By C. E. RUTHENBERG

The platform on which the Workers Party asks support of its candidates, outlines the one road the workers must travel in order to secure a higher standard of life for themselves.

The platform does not represent a plan conceived by some individual or group of individuals as a means of securing relief from the existing evils of the capitalist system. The program offered by the Workers Party is a Communist program rooted in the economic development of the capitalist system and pointing to the new social order indicated by the development of that system itself. The central point about the development of the capitalist system is the development of large scale production which brings thousands of workers together in industry and makes of production a collective work rather than individual work.

So long as our system of production consisted of individuals working alone or some employer working with a half-dozen employes in a small shop, a Communist system of production was impossible.

But capitalism itself creates the basis for the new social order. Capitalism, during the last half century particularly, has been developing greater and greater organizations for production of wealth. In place of a few workmen in small shops producing shoes, we have great shoe factories employing thousands of men who collectively produce shoes. In place of a tailor working alone producing garments, we have great garment factories employing thousands of workers who create clothing.

Sharpens Class Conflict

This development of the capitalist system has created an industrial machine consisting, on one side, of tens of thousands of workers engaged in a particular industry, who work for wages, and on the other side, the relatively few capitalists who own the industries and take the profits from them but who usually have no part in the work of production. They own stocks and bonds which give them a mortgage on the life and work of those who produce wealth in industry, but themselves contribute nothing to the work of production.

Given such an industrial system, there can be no other outcome than the continuous conflict between the workers employed in industry and the owners of industry. The bringing together of a thousand workers in one industrial establishment creates the condition for use of the workers' power against the capitalist owner. The very fact that these workers are forced into close relationship thru the collective processes of producing wealth teaches them to unite in the struggle against their exploiters.

Ten thousand workers scattered over a city or several cities in small shops employing five or ten workers, would find it very dificult indeed to unite for collective action against their exploiters, but bringing these workers together in one great industrial establishment, we have the conditions which will naturally develop solidarity and action as a group against their exploiters.

In other words, the capitalist system creates first the conditions for collective production in industry and at the same time creates the organization for struggle against private ownership of this collective system of production by bringing together masses of workers in industry.

Collective Production and Distribution

If we acknowledge that these are the conditions which exist today in the United States, and surely no one who considers the facts of American industry will dare challenge the statement that this situation does exist, the natural question which follows is, thru what program of action can the workers win the struggle against their exploiters?

We have today private ownership of industry which so far as production is concerned is becoming more and more a collective process of production. This great industrial machine exploits the workers and when they rebel against exploitation brings in the governmental power to maintain their exploitation and adds oppression to exploitation.

What is the workers' solution? Can they say with LaFollette, let us destroy this organization, let us break the trusts and go back to small business?

No one but a fool would make such a proposal.

The great industrial organizations of our time are the result of industrial evolution. It is a logical development of production from individual small scale production to the great mass productive industries of our time. A LaFollette administration, even tho it made a thousand laws, could not stop this development.

The question the workers face is, then what program can they follow in order to solve the problem of the exploitation and oppression of the workers under this system? The answer to that question is indicated in the industrial and economic situation itself. We cannot destroy the great industrial organizations and thus end their power. We should not desire to destroy them even if we could, because they represent a higher level of industrial development. We already have collective production thru thousands of workers cooperating in large industries. All this points to the only possible solution of the problem; that is, that we take the industries out of the hands of their private owners and make the ownership collective as well as the work of production.

This is the central point of the program of the Workers Party. This is the aim and goal of the Communist movement. All its efforts and energies are directed toward abolishing the system of private ownership of the great industries and replacing it by a system of Communist collective ownership of industry. This is the platform upon which the Workers Party asks the support of the workers in the present election campaign.

The Role of the Government.

The role of the government in the capitalist system of society has already been indicated. Thru the control of political power and use of that power against the group which is struggling to emancipate itself from the exploitation of the capitalist system, the capitalists maintain the system which gives them great wealth.

The change in ownership of industry and the workers' control of industry can only be achieved if the workers first take over the governmental power. The first great struggle to achieve the Communist society is the struggle for control of the governmental power.

Once this power is in the hands of the exploited class, it has the weapon thru which it can transform the existing social system. The Workers Party therefore calls upon the workers to join in the struggle to establish a Workers and Farmers Government which will express the rule of the exploited groups against the rule of the capitalist class.

From all the above will be seen that the platform on which the Workers Party is asking the support of the workers this year deals with the fundamental problems of capitalist society. That in place of being a utopian scheme, as is so often charged by the opponents of Communism, all the facts of the existing system point to the Communist program as offering the solution to the problem of capitalist society.

While the forces of economic evolution thus are on the side of the workers, they will not win their victory by a fatalistic awaiting of the coming of the new social order thru the development of the capitalist system itself.

No privileged class in human society has ever given up its privileged position without using all the weapons at its command to maintain its special position. This will be true of the capitalist class as it has been true of other economic groups in the past.

The workers can only expect to win the struggle against capitalism if they organize their power and carry on a militant fight to wrest the governmental power out of the hands of the capitalist class, thus establishing their Proletariat.

To lead the workers in the struggle, to direct the struggle along the right road—this is the purpose of the Workers Communist Party. Its platform in this election campaign is the platform of this revolutionary struggle against capitalism.

FOR THE CLASS-STRUGGLE AND AGAINST REFORMIST ILLUSIONS

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.

IN the present election campaign the Workers Party has a great responsibility as well as a splendid opportunity. Its responsibility is to stand uncompromisingly, in this period of general confusion, for its revolutionary program and to sweep aside the cloud of reformistic poison now befogging the minds of the bewildered workers. The significance of Gompers and Debs joining with LaFollette in a united front, is that the organized masses of trade unionists are tending to break away from the leadership politically of big capital and to accept that of little capital. The task of the Workers Party is to expose the fallacies of the liberal democratic LaFollette movement, with its blatant sophistries and meaningless platitudes about re-establishing the "rule of the people" and giving a "square deal" to everyone. The Workers Party has the imperative duty to sound a clear proletarian revolutionary note and to demonstrate that the LaFollette movement holds no hope for working class betterment, but must lead directly to the perpetuation of capitalism in its worst phases.

With this duty comes a splendid opportunity for the Workers Party. Now the workers are thinking over their grievances and the way to correct them. They are highly receptive to revolutionary education properly to intrench itself in the minds of the masses and to bring large numbers of militant workers into its ranks. In the present campaign every effort must be put forth to enlighten the workers and to develop a big vote for the Communist candidates. But our efforts must not end there. Above all, we must build our party and extend our press. Our election campaign will be a failure if it is not everywhere accompanied by a militant drive to secure new members for the party and new readers for the DAILY WORKER and our other party papers. In this historical situation, let us, therefore, militantly fulfill our revolutionary duty of educating the masses and building the Workers Party.

White Mule

By KARL REEVE

Five miners squat in the grass, their burning cigarettes making reflecting sparks on the two-quart bottle filled with colorless liquid which passes from hand to hand.

Tony spits union made tobacco juice, wipes the stray spray from his furious mustache, passes his hand over the mouth of the bottle, and drinks.

Charlie pauses from bellowing his favorite wobbly song, and drinks. Valie and Joe drink in their turn. Everyone in the circle drinks long drafts except Louis. Louis has tried to his sorrow to mix copious quantities of home brew and white mule and is now sleeping it off, his head half buried in the long dry, dew-less grass.

These men have not worked for seven months. Louis is glad to sleep. He has had bad luck since the war. Returning from the war of Wilsonian Democracy with one eye gone, deaf in one ear and his right cheek bone twisted up directly under his forehead, Louis is not a pretty sight. Altho he was cited for bravery, and was awarded three wound stripes, Louis was heard to complain by the Old Ben coal mine boss and has been put on the invisible black-list.

As the "moon" takes effect, the lusty talk of the miners drifts out over the hedge of long grass in whose shadows they recline and is wafted over the coal-dust road. They squat close to earth, hoping for a little relief from the heat of the pitiless sun—their only heritage these days from the monotonous inactivity of the day.

Charlie's voice sounds cheerfully hardy as he howls, to a tune never heard before, and never to be repeated, the rebel version of, "They're Wild Over Me." But his mind is at the far edge of town, in spite of his smile. Even the white mule cannot erase from his mind his black-haired, heavy wife whom he does not love very much, and his three children who have not had much to eat that day. His conscience pricks him about remaining away from his wife so late into the night. Like a dull unceasing pain the words, "What can I do? There is nothing to do," "The kids have got to eat" weigh down his mind.

Louis groans in his sleep, oppressed by the heat and by dreams of the battle fields of France. Tony is the biggest of the husky men. He has the kindly Slav face which is lent distinction by the long brown mustache. Tony's dirty overalls cannot hide his superior poise. He is the one who always, at the end of the party, quietly goes in and cooks the bacon and eggs and the strong black coffee which is the farewell grace.

Tony has worked under ground for many years. He has a wife in Poland. Twice he has sent her money to come over to him, but each time she has betrayed him. He has heard recently that his wife has two more

(Continued on page 9)

Oil and International Politics

By LOUIS ZOOBOCK.

The imperialist powers of the world have an oil policy. Oil has become the great international issue of the hour. Its importance is such that even the "most solid political alliances" are subordinate to it. There is no discussion of a treaty among the great powers of the world today that can be understood without considering the petroleum conditions of the territory affected. World politics has become the politics of oil. No move is made on that chessboard where imperialist diplomats disport themselves with the fate of nations that is not tinctured with oil.

The situation in the Near East is saturated with oil. Oil rules the fate of Mexico. Every revolution for the last 20 years in Mexico has been instigated by the large oil corporations of the world. Oil made the United States pay Colombia $25,000,000 reparation for the loss of Panama. Oil keeps the British in Messopotamia. Oil ultimately makes frontiers, wars and peace.

"The country which dominates by means of oil," said Elliot Alves, head of the British controlled oil fields "will command at the same time the commerce of the world. Armies, navies, money, even entire populations will count as nothing as against the lack of oil.' Where does oil, then, derive this formidable power? What has made it more precious, more penetrating and more influential than gold?

The Importance of Oil.

Until 1880 the United States was almost the only important producer of oil. After 1880, Russia came into the field. Mexican production began in 1901, but was of little consequence until after 1910. Up to date the United States has produced about 70 per cent of all the petroleum known to have been produced in the world. At present the United States produces nearly two-thirds, and the United States, Mexico and Russia are producing nine-tenhts of the whole of the world's annual production. Persia has recently swung forward to fourth place, and the Dutch East-Indies hold the fifth place.

For half a century oil was used primarily for illuminating purposes; its use was confined to the lamp, and occasionally the domestic stove. And even in this modest sphere it had to contend for mastery with gas and electricity. Between 1900 and 1910, the invention of the gas motor and the prodigious development of the automobile gave it a new lease of life. A few years later a German engineer named Diesel invented the internal combustion engine for heavy oil. Crude oil (mazut) when admitted to the cylinder under high pressure forms an explosive mixture which, without sparking-plug or magneto drives the pistons precisely as in an explosion motor; and since it comes from a worthless by-product (mazut) the Diesel engine can be operated very cheaply.

The Diesel invention produced a revolution in fuel. Oil, confined at first to industries on land, began to conquer the seas. The advantages of the Diesel engine are enormous. With this machine there is no longer any need for boilers, and it takes up less space than a steam engine of the same power. A vessel fitted with a Diesel engine can sail for 57 days without re-fueling, while with a steam engine it could not sail for more than a fortnight. Weight for weight, crude oil furnishes 70 per cent more heat than coal. It is less bulky; it is cheaper. It is easily manipulated, for it flows by itself into the machine, and permits a marked economy in the engine room personnel as well as quicker changes in speed.

Admiral Lord Fisher drew attention to the fact that on the Mauretania the adoption of oil fuel allowed the reduction of the crew by 200 men. Besides, by giving more heat in proportion to the bulk of fuel carried, it enlarges the cruising radius nearly 50 per cent, while making possible, at the same time, a saving of 30 per cent in bunker space.

This last mentioned fact is especially important for armored vessels. As the ships gain considerably in lightness, it is possible to increase the thickness of the armor plate and thus equip the ships with more powerful guns. Moreover, with oil fuel fleets acquire an extreme mobility. Half an hour after receiving the order to raise steam the ship is ready to start.

The imperialist governments understood these advantages. Oil has been introduced into battleships. At present, the British and American dreadnoughts, which keep millions of people under subjection, burn nothing but crude oil. And as for the merchant marine, the most powerful companies have equipped their steamers to use liquid fuel and Diesel engines.

In a word, mazut is dethroning coal. "The nation," as one writer stated "which controls this precious fuel will see the wealth of the rest of the world flowing toward it. The ships of other nations will soon be unable to sail without recourse to its stores of oil. Should it create a merchant fleet, it becomes at once mistress of ocean trade. Now the nation which obtains the world's carrying trade takes toll from all those whose roads it carries, and so has abundant capital. Now industries arise round its ports, its banks become clearing houses for international payments. At once stole the controlling center of the world's credit is displaced. This is what happened already in the eighteenth century when, with the development of British shipping, it passed from Amsterdam to London."

The War and Oil.

The last war, which has just ravaged the world proved the truth of this statement. In fact, Clemenceau sent a supreme appeal to President Wilson. This message all almost made only a single statement the following: At the present moment of the war, when the year 1918 will see military operations of the first importance begun on the French front, the French army must not be exposed for a single moment to a scarcity of petrol necessary for its motor lorries, motor planes, and the transport of its artillery.

"The safety of the allied nations is in the balance. If the Allies do not wish to lose the war, then, at this moment of the great Germ offensive, they must not let France lack the petrol which is as necessary as blood in the battles of tomorrow."

In response to this appeal the allied governments had set up the Inter-Allied Petroleum Conference which supplied their armies with oil. It succeeded because it was able to guarantee the co-operation of the Royal-Dutch and the Standard Oil in the cause of the Entente. "Thanks to the Inter-Allied Conference," as Henry Berenger remarked, "never at any moment, have our soldiers lacked a drop of this spirit which gives them the necessary means of rapid movement and of cornering and defeating the enemy."

This time the military and political importance of oil was apparent to every eye. On the morrow of the Armistice (November 21, 1918), it was celebrated in enthusiastic speeches. And Lord Curzon, the arch-imperialist, was able to declare: "truly posterity will say that the Allies floated to victory on a wave of oil."

The Struggle of the Great Powers.

Now, everybody knows that British imperialism rested upon a foundation of coal. Thanks to the numerous coaling stations which England had scattered over all the steamer lanes of the world, not a single ship, whether of war or commerce, could move upon the seas save by her grace. Her coal, moreover, assured to her vessels a cargo of outward-bound freight which was certain to find sale in any land. British steamers could always sail therefore, with full holds—a fortunate circumstance which enabled them to give lower return rates than the ships of any other country. And British industry benefited correspondingly by this genuine advantage in the purchase of raw materials abroad. This was a great advantage in the campaigns for the conquest of international markets. It may be said that the whole commercial and industrial prosperity of England, for a century past, had rested on this heritage of coal.

But from the moment that crude oil became available for use by steam ships, all this was susceptible of change. England has produced no oil whereas the U. S. furnished some 70 per cent of the world's supply. Luckily for the English, America had no merchant marine; but during the war and immediately after, the U. S. constructed one of the greatest merchant fleets in the world. May not America then, possessing both ships and oil be tempted to wrest from Great Britain her century long role of mistress of the sea?

One can only marvel at the irony of fate and the fragility of empires. For four years England waged a burdensome war with the prime object of destroying the German navy forever. At the cost of enormous losses she gained her end. The only maritime rival that [illegible] had to fear is vanquished; but from the very struggle which destroyed this rival, a new one has arisen, twice as formidable as the first, because America adds to her superiority in tonnage a quasi-monopoly of the fuel which England lacks. American oil in the furnaces of great steamships—may not that be the beginning of the downfall of the British empire?

The British imperialists realized this situation. They made up their minds, and, having made up their minds, they began to act. By clever twists, by silent scheming, by political, commercial and diplomatic maneuvering, they succeeded in acquiring almost all the oil reserves of the world. Prospectors and representatives of British high finance have scurried all over the world, with full consent of the government, in quest of new oil deposits to conquer. The most important oil concerns engaged in active exploitation, except the Standard, were quickly assailed and conquered by British capital. Under cover of various commercial companies, the Shell Transport, the Mexican Eagle, the Burmah Oil, the Anglo-Persian Oil, have added to their number since the armistice the powerful trust of Holland, the Royal-Dutch. Very cleverly the English have, at need known how to associate themselves with American firms by investing capital in the U. S. And, as a result of these maneuvers, British companies are now in exclusive control of 95 per cent of the futurue world production of oil.

The British government learned at least one lesson from the recent war. That is to say, that the nation which controlled the oil industry controlled commerce by sea, in view of the fact that no coal burner can compete with an oil-burning ship. Realizing this, the imperialist government of Great Britain is no longer content today to encourage, favor, and defend its nationals. Better than this, it makes conquests or establishes protectorates having as essential object the reservation exclusively for its nationals of new oil-bearing territories, such as Persia and Messopotamia. It is sufficient to read the Treaty of Sevres to see the underlying motive of British negotiations; the desire to monopolize the oil of Asia, and the anxiety to keep out the U. S.

The British oil policy is not uniform. Sometimes, when it seems possible, she gets possession of proved oil fields. Sometimes, in the case of a country which would hold its own, she negotiates for an advantageous share in the profits—this is what happened by the San Remo agreement,—or she makes contracts ensuring abundant supplies of the precious mineral oil.

In general, when a state does not fall in with her views quickly enough, imperialist Britain does not recoil from any means of pressure. This is what led Admiral Degouy to write: "as a corollary to well-known negotiations with one of the richest countries in oil in the Near East, the British Admiralty has organized and maintained on the Danube a numerous flotilla of gunboats and river monitors."

All this brot the desired result. At present there is not a single oil producing country where the English have not obtained a footing. At present, England has oil stations at all strategic points of the world. She controls the Suez canal at both ends. She has establishments at the Antipodes, in East and West Indies, on the west coast of South America, on the coast of Africa, and at the Azores, etc. Even the Panama canal itself is seriously menaced. The Royal-Dutch Shell has a depot at one end of the canal and another at the entrance to the gulf.

As a result of this activity, "other nations, particularly the U. S. and France, have found themselves out in the cold. The imperialists of this country without losing time began to spread propaganda to make the American people become more "oil minded" than the oil men. Admiral

(Continued on page 11)

WORKERS ALL

By JAMES H. DOLSEN

"Dago," "Hunky," "Chink"—
Each of them, I think,
After all are workingmen like me.
And the "nigger," black,
Really does not lack
Heart and brains, as far as I can see.

Yellow, red, or brown,
May be sage or clown,
Just as white men may be bad or good.
English, German, French—
Put them in a trench,
They will fight as any Yankee would.

Even that chosen one,
Dubbed a "Native Son,"
Is no better parody for the name.
Call a pig a pearl,
Or a thief an earl—
Yet the pig and thief are quite the same.

So let's put aside
Prejudice and pride,
And as brothers all,
Whether it be that of race or birth
Let us stand or fall
In the workers' struggle for the earth.

LaFollette In Congress

By Jay Lovestone

IN his twenty-five years at Washington, Robert M. LaFollette has been the outstanding figure in the fight for but one measure which might be called a labor law in the strict sense of the term. Except for the fight led by him in behalf of the enactment of the Seamans Law, Senator LaFollette has not been directly connected with any noteworthy labor legislation.

It is true he voted for the Woman Suffrage Amendment, the proposed Child Labor Amendment, the establishment of the Department of Labor, and the eight-hour day for government employes. It is true he was against the Ship Subsidy Bill, the Esch-Cummins Act, and the Fordney McCumber Tariff Bill. But these votes could scarcely be interpreted as signs of genuine progressivism, as evidence of unrelenting hostility to the exploiting class interests. Many Republicans and Democrats have voted for and against those measures precisely in the same way as LaFollette did. Yet, no one would on his account call these congressmen and senators progressives worthy of the support of the workers and farmers. Many of those who have voted for the Woman's Suffrage Amendment or the Hoch-Berkley Bill for abolishing the Railroad Labor Board are today ardent advocates of the election of Coolidge or Davis.

Progressivism On Wane

If we analyze LaFollette's attitude towards such pressing questions in Congress as the raising of revenue, the regulation of business and the tariff, we will find that the Wisconsin Senator has not been fundamentally antagonistic to the corporate interests of the country and has not expressed and fought for the needs of the middle and smaller capitalists against the encroachments of the biggests capitalist groups. At no time has LaFollette spoken or worked for the laborers as a class against the employers exploiting them.

Then LaFollette's insurgent group in the House has even less reason to speak of its being genuinely progressive. We have seen that Scar leader, John M. Nelson, now LaFollette's national campaign director, voted for the conscription law. In the feeble effort made to liberalize the rules of procedure in the House and in the half hearted attempts at shifting the burden of honorous taxation from the poor to the rich, the LaFollette progressives acted disgracefully.

When LaFollette first entered congress he was a regular in every sense of the word. His Senate radicalism, whatever there has been of it, is on the wane.

In such questions as the restriction of immigration, the giving of more power to our capitalist government to control the movements of workers, or in the matter of Japanese exclusion, LaFollette has not taken a commanding position to stay the hands of the exploiters in utilizing these occasions to divide and weaken the workers.

Not Against Big Capitalists

In debating the various revenue measures preparatory to America's entering the war Senator LaFollette made it very plain in offering his amendments that he did not relish the idea of being considered a foe of the business interests of the land. Thus he declared, on February 28, 1917, in behalf of his own amendments before the U. S. Senate. "These amendments, embodying as they do a complete scheme of raising revenue without the tax on business and the bond issue, should be voted on bloc."

Continuing to assure the democratic defenders of the big capitalist groups that he was not in fundamental disagreement with them on the basic issues, LaFollette further said: "It is in no spirit of partisanship that I criticize the revenue bill now before the senate but in the hope and belief that that majority is open to argument and will accept amendments to the measure calculated to improve it without encroaching upon any of the tenets, political or economic, of the majority party." (C. Rec. p. 4489, Feb., 28, 1917.)

In general, LaFollette represented the interests of the small business class and the small bankers on this all-important questions of revenue-raising. On August 18, 1917, for instance, LaFollette voted against a bill to put a tax of one cent on checks, drafts, etc. Senator Simmons, the democratic tax expert, thus explained the opposition to the proposal: "It is stated and stated correctly that there was a protest, I might say quite a general protest, on the part of the bankers against this tax, but this protest came chiefly and especially from the smaller banks."

Fair to Business

And on August 24, 1917, LaFollette, in making a plea to the senate for fairness to the business interests against the excessive profit on the following grounds: "As the law now stands, every individual in the country, every corporation, every partnership, every firm in the country, must pay a tax upon the excess profits of the country over and above the average profits of the previous years. That applies to the whole world over for everybody.

"To one exception to that general approval that has been made to which it has entered my mind to object, and that is the exemption of the first $6,000 of the profits of corporations. The theory of exemption of that kind is that the corporations are unreasonable."

Further along in the war, in connection with the Revenue Bill of 1918, LaFollette's attitude was even more favorable to the business interests. Thus he declared: "I am willing to go to the limit in the matter of taxing excessive profits, but I am not willing to go to the limit in the matter of taxing the profits of the country, because the profits of the country must be used in the development of the country, and if you take away from the business men of the country the profits that are necessary for the development of the country you will soon find that you have destroyed the very source of the wealth of the country."

25 YEARS IN CONGRESS HAS PUT BRAKES ON LaFOLLETTE BRAND OF RADICALISM IN POLITICAL ARENA

IN a quarter of a century in Washington, LaFollette has identified himself consistently as an aggressive advocate of only one direct labor measure—Seamen's Act.

The votes on amendments of the Wisconsin Moses in the House and Senate on such questions as taxation, tariff, and foreign policy, show plainly that he is not in fundamental opposition to the capitalist interests.

LaFollette's supporters, who regard him as only a defender of the small and middle farmers, businessmen and manufacturers against the encroachments of the biggest captains of finance and industry.

LaFollette's insurgent group has consistently refused to launch spirited attacks on the reactionary strongholds. In their surrender to the old guard on the question of liberalizing the rules in the House and in their acceptance of the reactionary Longworth Tax Bill—both in the last session of Congress—the LaFollette lieutenants betrayed their total lack of genuine progressivism.

Whatever little progressivism that LaFollette may have displayed at one time or another in his past, is now steadily disappearing.

fare of the small manufacturer and manufacturing group on the part of LaFollette is displayed in the following comment on his amendment to the schedules on wool under consideration in the action on the tariff measure before the senate on June 10, 1909:

"The great manufacturers have their rights, which should be duly regarded. I would not disparage the men who are manufacturing under this wool schedule . . .

"The position on the carded wool industry is such as to invite the earnest attention of congress. It is the last branch of the wool industry which is still accessible to the man with moderate capital. With the American Woolen Company in control of about sixty percent of the output of American woolen cloth, and with the independent manufacturers of worsted cloth organizing into another combination, the carded wool industry, accords the only chance for the small manufacturer."

Similar solicitousness in behalf of the capitalist class was manifested by LaFollette when he voted on October 10, 1921 to provide for free tolls, free transit for American ships thru the Panama Canal.

Was Reactionary In Congress

When LaFollette first entered Congress, and during his six years as a member of the House of Representatives, he was a "regular" in every sense of the word. LaFollette was a member of the House Ways and Means committee which framed the McKinley Tariff Bill in 1890. An examination of the rates on sixty articles in this law shows that on the whole they were practically identical with the rates on the same articles in the Fordney-McCumber Act of 1922. Addressing the House of Representatives on May 10th, 1890, in behalf of the McKinley Bill, LaFollette said:

"Repeal the protective duties and you have stopped the looms, put out the fires, stunted as with the hand of death the busy industries of my state. . . . It is to preserve the markets of this country to our own producers that we have kept the duties like a breastwork, high enough to protect the man who is busy adding to the sum of its wealth from assault from any foreign source."

Then in a speech he delivered at the Schlitz Park Theatre, Milwaukee, on September 20, 1900, LaFollette [illegible] the American declaration of war against Spain and the annexation of [illegible] territory. He advocated [illegible] troops to put [illegible] insurrection in the eastern [illegible] and [illegible] assailed all the [illegible] of the administration. At that [illegible] LaFollette was making his first race for governor.

In denouncing the Bryan proposal to establish a stable government in the Philippines and then withdraw, LaFollette entered into the following [illegible] of American imperialism:

"The market which the Philippines will afford the U. S. while amounting to many millions annually, is unimportant in contemplation of the value which will result from the Philippines as a point of distribution from which American products can command trade in the orient. From that point of vantage, with our harbors at Honolulu and Tutuila, in the Samoan groups, for coaling, watering, and repairing, we will be ready to conquer our rightful share of that great market now opening for the world's commerce. . . . Whatever ensues, under Republican reconstruction of our plain treaty rights we can legally and morally reserve unto ourselves perpetual commercial advantages of priceless value to our foreign trade from time to time."

Champions Capitalist Tariffs.

Though LaFollette is today attacking the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Law as an iniquitous measure, he has for many years been a high tariff advocate. It is true, the Wisconsin Moses has of late been changing somewhat his attitude on the question of highest tariff. Yet, on the whole his practice does not indicate a change, even at so late a date as the consideration of the Emergency Tariff in February, 1921.

In a speech delivered at St. Paul on October 9th, 1909, LaFollette put himself on record in this fashion: "I am a protectionist. . . . I was a member of the committee that made the McKinley Tariff Bill."

Working in close co-operation with Dingley and Payne, LaFollette as a member of the Ways and Means Committee if the Fifty-First Congress advocated a high tariff duty on tin plate in order to build up this industry. The American Tin Plate Company, capitalized at more than fifty million dollars, the Tin Plate Trust, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, is a monument to LaFollette's progressivism on the tariff.

Then, when the Payne Aldrich Tariff Bill was being considered, LaFollette put up an aggressive fight to secure an amendment "to enable the mills now manufacturing print paper in Wisconsin to so adjust themselves with respect to the manufacure of paper not requiring spruce wood, that they could manufacture it economically without changing the location of those plants."

LaFollette has always been a loyal defender of the zinc interests in his state. On June 16th, 1909, LaFollette made a special plea to the senate to lay a duty on zinc "based on the difference in the cost of production in this country and Mexico . . . . a protective duty measuring the difference between the cost of production in Mexico and in Wisconsin and in Joplin as well. . . ."

Votes for High Tariff.

Though LaFollette made a strong plea for a higher duty on zinc than that fixed by the house and a higher duty than that submitted by the senate committee, he asked that he be excused from voting because of his own property interest in zinc. Several years later appearing before the committee conducting hearings on the Maintenance of a Lobby to Influence Legislation, LaFollette made an interesting confession explaining why he refused to ote on the higher tariff rates on zinc, and why he spoke for it. He said in part:

"I own an interest in some zinc bearing lands in Southwestern Wisconsin" I ought perhaps to say that when the tariff on zinc was under consideration, four years ago, I felt as one of the Senators representing the state of Wisconsin in which are located about three counties producing zinc and lead that it was my duty to present to the senate the arguments that it seemed to me should be made from their standpoint. While my interest in the matter was such that I wanted to be excused from voting on the amendment relating to this subject, I felt that those I represented were entitled to have the argument presented and so I made on the floor of the senate what might be called an argument to influence action upon the question." (Pages 190-191)

Scrutinizing the various votes on the emergency tariff, (H. R. 15275,) we find that the Wisconsin Senator voted to change the tariff on wheat from thirty to forty cents, for two cents per pound on frozen meat, the Smoot amendment for tariff on sugar and molasses, a duty of eight cents per pound on butter and substitutes, and a tariff on condensed milk. Mr LaFollette is also recorded as voting in favor of the passage of the bill as a whole. True, these rates were not as high as the ones he voted for in the McKinley Bill, yet LaFollette's votes indicate that he believes in a tariff to protect the business interests of the country.

Progressive Group Shoddy

Senator LaFollette is noted for his ability to fillibuster. On several occasions, in the Senate, LaFollette has held up various measures by his ability to talk the proposals of his colleagues of the opposition to death.

Last June LaFollette had an opportunity to prevent the Coolidge machine from adjourning Congress without being forced to expose its unwillingness and incompetency to meet the needs and demands of the bankrupt farming masses. But LaFollette refused to exercise his fillibustering skill, which in this instance would have struck a damaging blow at the reactionaries. Instead he voted for the resolution of Senator Jones of Washington to adjourn, after making several vain efforts to secure a majority vote for his proposal to stay in session a few weeks longer.

In the consideration of the Tax Bill,

*(Continued on page 10)

The Workers Party in the Elections

By JOSEPH MANLEY,
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

The Workers Party occupies a historic position in the present election campaign. The Workers Party is the only proletarian party that fights against capitalism, represented by Coolidge and Davis—and the left wing of Wall Street, represented by LaFollette.

The Workers Party fights against the interests of this whole combination and stands for the interests of the workers and exploited farmers. Our immediate objective is therefore, to draw into the struggle, the largest possible section of the exploited masses. Our various party units, both in districts and locals, must be mobilized as never before.

We must come thru this campaign with thousands of new members, increased confidence among the masses and having brought them one step nearer the proletarian revolution. Our problem is to organize a mighty machinery before we can accomplish the various tasks that will be necessary to the making of a successful election campaign.

What the Federations Can Do.

In this machinery our federations, being national in scope, occupy a foremost position. The federation papers, thru campaign articles and news items can issue special appeals and give much aid to the campaign. The federation papers can be useful in reaching otherwise inaccessible places with our Communist program. The Federations Executive Committees should hold regular and frequent meetings to discuss and execute the work of the campaign.

The Federations Secretaries occupy a strategic position. They, by interest and effort, can contribute much.

The district organizations, by proper planning and by frequent and careful consideration of the campaign problems in their district can co-ordinate the work of the local units and the district as a whole.

Duties of Local Units.

The local units of our party are the real basis of this political campaign. Never before has our rank and file had such a splendid opportunity for general participation with a Communist program in a great political struggle. Every member of a branch can and must engage in this political campaign to the fullest extent. The real battle must be fought by them. The burden of carrying out the campaign fight is upon their shoulders.

The local campaign committee can reach masses of workers with whom no other party unit comes in contact. Their objective is to strengthen the political influence of the party and spread the message of Communism.

Foster-Gitlow Meetings.

To crystallize the issue—to stimulate the campaign and to appear before the workers as a political party, the Foster-Gitlow meetings must occupy extraordinary effort and interest. The Foster-Gitlow meetings must be viewed from an entirely different angle than the regular mass meetings held by our party. It must be remembered that these meetings are of our Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates. In great political struggles in America, the candidates always give voice to the platform of their party. Consequently, great political significance must be attached to these meetings. Masses, if intelligently approached, can be attracted to a political meeting in the midst of a heated campaign. Special efforts should be made to attract and reach large masses of industrial workers with the influence of these meetings.

Get Signatures for Petitions.

Probably the real drudgery of the campaign is that of securing petition signatures and placing our party on the ballot in the various states. This is of fundamental importance. It must be successfully carried out—otherwise we cannot function as a political party in this campaign.

The Campaign Needs Money.

The raising of adequate finances is of equal importance. The campaign cannot be successfully conducted without money. The vigorous solicitation of campaign funds will add to the strength of the party as a whole, national, district and local.

The workers are now interested in political questions. Special campaign literature will carry our Communist message to places hitherto not penetrated. This will increase the understanding of our party aims and create for us a wider standing and prestige. The same applies to our general party literature, which in this campaign should be specially pushed. The general party literature, if widely distributed, will help to clear up much of the confusion which now exists in the minds of many, otherwise intelligent workers, as to political questions.

It should be continuously pointed out that we are the only political party that fights against capitalism. The revolutionary workers, who are anxious to join in this fight, must be drawn into our party. At all our campaign meetings, special appeals should be made for new members.

Spread The "DAILY WORKER."

Hard as the election campaign may be, it would be still harder if not for our American Communist newspaper—The DAILY WORKER. The special campaign issues of the DAILY WORKER should be widely distributed. They will make an appeal all their own. The DAILY WORKER must be placed where it can bring its appeal to millions of American workers in their own language.

A principle consideration in this campaign is to reach large masses of workers. This problem deserves special attention from our local units. Many are inclined to be content with efforts that only reach that sympathetic fringe always more or less close to our party and that generally accepts its leadership. We must mobilize all of our sympathizers. Committees of sympathizers supporting the candidacies of Comrade Foster and Gitlow, and accepting our election campaign program, must be organized.

The development of finance capital and the trustification of industry in America lead inevitably toward a political solution of the various industrial problems confronting the American workers. Campaign propaganda must emphasize the industrial problems and suggest the political solution which our party fights for. Our immediate program must be stressed when speaking and appealing to industrial workers.

Above all, this campaign offers us a tremendous opportunity to educate the masses to the need for a real fight against American imperialist capitalism. It can now be made clearer than ever before that the mechanical development of industry with the consequent trustification promoted by finance capital and protected by an ultra-capitalist state, make the carrying out by the workers of an international revolutionary program the only escape. The class struggle in America becomes ever sharper. To be the vanguard of this struggle is our role.

Our party must emerge from this campaign with an increased revolutionary spirit. Our militant election campaign must drive home to workers everywhere, at the grass roots and in the mines, the burning necessity for the organization of Soviets and the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship. We must answer Imperialist America with Soviet America.

Presidential Candidates

By T. J. O'Flaherty

POLITICAL parties are judged by the records of their leaders as well as by their platforms.

The Republican Party as befits the favorite political tool of the dominant wing of American capitalism has nominated as its candidates for president and vice president of the United States two notorious labor haters and strikebreakers, one of them Calvin Coolidge, having become a national figure when he succeeded in breaking the Boston Policemens' Strike in 1919. Whether he broke it or not he claimed credit for it. There is no doubt but his heart was in the right place for capitalism.

General Charles G. Dawes, or Hell an' Maria, as he is more popularly known, has not a broken strike to his credit, but he is the founder of an organization known as the Minute Men of the Constitution, the main object of which was to protect scabs and smash labor unions. The organization started with a fanfare of trumpets and much advertising but it was a miscarriage and the General takes pains now to keep its name out of his vocabulary. A fitting pair to represent the Republican Party!

Then we have the leading candidate on the Democratic ticket, an attorney for the House of Morgan and for several other big financial interests including the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Davis has spent his life in the service of Big Business. He has been employed at various times by big corporations to fight labor unions. And when this fact was published after his nomination he claimed that he defended Mother Jones, organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, to show how impartial he was. But facts contradicted him and the DAILY WORKER is able to publish the story of his connection with the prosecution of Mother Jones and several other mine leaders 20 years ago. A typical lackey of Big Business is John W. Davis.

Charles W. Bryan, vice-presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket is a political accident. He was selected to occupy the tail end of the Davis bandwagon only because the Democratic strategists feared that his brother William would bolt the ticket unless the family was given a sop. Charles W. is the bone thrown to the so-called liberal Democrats. He will do his master's bidding and has no record behind him that means anything one way or the other.

Robert Marion LaFollette has been a political stormy petrel for decades. While he oftentimes disagreed with the Republican Party he stayed within its folds and did not even follow Roosevelt in 1912 when Terrible Teddy threw the harpoon into Taft and paved the way for Woodrow Wilson to land in the White House. LaFollette was the bosom friend of Boise Penrose, the most reactionary man in the Republican Party. His anti-war attitude, mild tho it was, brot him into disfavor with the plutes and it is this incident in his career more than anything else that has given him the reputation of being a radical.

Burton K. Wheeler is an ambitious lawyer whose sole claim to progressiveness is his refusal to join in hounding radicals in Butte, Montana during the war. His prosecution of Harry Daugherty before a senate investigating committee got him into the limelight.

Even the so-called liberals among the six prominent capitalist candidates above named have never done anything constructive in behalf of the working class. They believe in the capitalist system and want to preserve it. They would clip its claws, perhaps, and endeavor to make it more bearable, but overthrow it they would not.

Let us compare the records of the capitalist candidates to those who are carrying the Communist banner in these elections, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow.

Foster has been active in the revolutionary and trade union movement since he was twenty years old. Born of working-class parents he was obliged to go to work when ten years old and has followed several occupations such as, type founder, steam engineer, railroad brakeman and railroad conductor.

He joined the Socialist Party in 1900 and was expelled with the left wing from that organization in the State of Washington in 1909 by the reactionary officialdom. He joined the Industrial Workers of the World, went to Europe to study conditions there and on his return announced his conviction that the I. W. W. policy of dual unionism was wrong.

Every step in Foster's career was directed by his desire to help the working class. Having reached the conclusion that dual unionism strengthened the reactionary elements in the labor unions and separated the radicals from the masses, Foster proceeded to organize the radicals for effective work inside the trade unions.

In 1917 he was secretary of a committe that organized 200,000 packing workers. After that he was secretary of a committee that organized 250,000 steel workers and led a strike in which 400,000 of Gary's steel slaves participated.

Comrade Foster has been to Russia three times since the Soviet Republic was established and has written several books on labor topics.

Foster has devoted his energy, his ability and his life to the interests of the working class and the hatred which the capitalists bear towards him is a testimony to his fidelity to the working-class movement.

Benjamin Gitlow has been an active member of the trade union movement since 1913. He is a member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Gitlow joined the Socialist Party in 1910. In 1917 he was elected on an anti-war program to the New York legislature. He associated himself with the left wing of the Socialist Party and was co-editor with John Reed of the Revolutionary Age in 1918-19.

He was arrested on November 8, 1919, and was the first in the United States to be placed on trial as a Communist. He served three years of the ten year sentence imposed on him and is now indicted on a criminal syndicalism charge in the state of Michigan.

The records of the two Communist candidates speak louder than words. While their capitalist opponents have shown by their every act, that they stand for the present robber system that breeds wars and misery for the masses, Foster and Gitlow are devoting their lives to the task of throwing the capitalists off the backs of the workers, and to establishing a Workers and Farmers government that will begin to lay the foundation of a Communist society.

MY COMPLIMENTS TO
THE DAILY WORKER
DR. M. WISHNER
DENTIST
800 W. North Ave., Cor. Halsted St.
Lincoln 9010

Meet us at the Prudential Restaurant
752 NORTH AVE.
The only place to eat.

George E. Pashas
COZY
LUNCH
2426 Lincoln Avenue
One-half block from Imperial Hall
CHICAGO

Revolutionary Unionism vs. Weak-Kneed Reformism

A few remarks on the Congress of the Red International of Labor Union (Profintern.)

By MOISSAYE J. OLGIN.

THE "respectable" philistines, bourgeois by social position and bourgeois by the grace of social reformism, calls us Communists, utopians, dreamers. This is what the Russian philistines called the Russian revolutionaries twenty years ago here, in this estate of the tzars, in this "holy" Moscow where most of the graves of the one-time "respectable" and "practical realists" (graves, physical and political) are now rotting away in ignominious oblivion. When you travel the width of U.S.S.R. Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (It's about time we knew what these initials mean) and observe the new forms of free proletarian life sprouting on virgin revolutionary soil, you laugh derisively at those clever ones who deem to annihilate you by the bombshell dreamer. But if you were to spend two weeks at the Congress of the Profintern (Red International of Labor Unions—R. I. L. U.) with its detailed reports and masterly analysis of the world trade union movement, you would say that it is the "respectable" social reformists of the Amsterdam International who are the actual utopians, whereas the movement represented here, in this Hall o Columns of the House of the Unions is a movement of shrewd and circumspect practicians who study the social forces of post war society, understand the trend of history, know the nature of the approaching enormous conflicts, and prepare the working masses for the role allotted to them by the development and decay of capitalism,—the inevitable and unavoidable struggle for power.

There, lazy acquiescence in imperialist machinations, in most cases actual aid to the forces that are robbing the working class of its subsistence minimum and preparing a new horrifying world catastrophe; at best a pious hope that only "democracy" will turn a cure-all for the "evils" of society and lead us painlessly and suavely, into the haven of socialism. Here, a pitiless search for the truth, a keen application of past experiences to the solution of complicated problems, a courages facing of consequences, however difficult, a readiness to fight in a world where nothing can be gained without organized, consistent social warfare.

Who are the dreamers?

In certain respects the Profintern congress, less numerous and less sparkling than the great world congress of the Communist International was even of a more fascinating nature than the latter. Here was a dealing with the everyday actualities of the workingmen's life. Here was felt the breath of that incessant struggle which the industrial worker is compelled to lead for his daily bread, a struggle that is the daily bread of the working class. There were mostly men from the ranks of the labor unions, men who went thru the hell of shop work, strikes and lockouts for years and decades. Here the question of the united front of labor assumed a more vivid aspect than even in the field of political struggle. And the enemy, the immediate enemy of the working class,—the social traitors who are often more dangerous to the workers because not so easily recognized and not so readily guarded against, than the bourgeoisie itself, appeared here as something tangible, something that stands everywhere between the worker and his accession to power. If one may say so, here was felt more keenly the odor of the earth. A practical application of one of the principles formulated in the Comintern congress, the Profintern discussion were more absorbing in the same way as is every application of a general principle to the unending variety of circumstances in practical life.

Here, as at the Comintern congress, the correspondent is acutely aware of the impossibility to give in an article an honest description of what requires a book for its presentation. It will, perhaps, be best to enumerate the high lights of the congress.

An inquiry among many leading delegates, including members of the presidium, seems to reveal a consensus of opinion that the following points were the most outstanding in the work of the congress:

1. The question of unity with the Amsterdam International;
2. The question of strike strategy;
3. The colonial problem.

Unity with the Amsterdam International would mean a combination of all the forces of the working class in one big organization. It would mean, not only bringing the Russian trade unions into line with the trade unions of western Europe, but it would mean a solidification of the industrial internationals (transport workers, miners, etc.) which are affiliated with the Amsterdam International and which begin to play a role in the labor movement of the world. There is no need of dilating over the importance of bringing all working class forces together, over the enormous vistas which this would open before the world proletariat. There is, however, one little point which has to be considered in relation with such prospects, and that is, "What for should this unity be achieved? What is the use to be made of this consolidation of the world proletarian forces?" The gentlemen from Amsterdam, at their Vienna congress of this summer, made it clear that they would like to have the Russian unions join their International on the basis of its constitution and statutes, i.e. they would like to see the Russian unions as tame, as devoid of the class spirit, as willingly collaborating with the bourgeoisie and as inactive in the class struggle as those "respectable" union bureaucrats have made the organizations under their guidance. This is a prospect unacceptable to the Profintern, and there would have been no need of discussing the problem of unity with the reformists if not for the Amsterdam left wing. The Vienna congress manifested that there is no unity in Amsterdam itself. There is a left wing which, tho timid and half-hearted and far from a revolutionary standpoint (Edo Fimmen, the Dutch leader, some of the British trade unionists), begin to fret under the rule of pure and simple social reformism. The "rebellion" of these leaders, weak and toothless as it may be, is a reflection of deep fundamental changes taking place in the mood of the large masses of the working class. Outwardly all this enormous molecular process expressed itself in an invitation extended by the Amsterdam International to the Russian unions (but not to the Profintern as a whole) to join it on the basis of its program and statutes.

The Profintern Congress, of which the Russian unionists were an important part, had to take a stand. To go or not to go to Amsterdam? How far to go in concessions to the reformists? On what basis to agree to join Amsterdam? What shall be the fate of the Profintern if the Russian unions unite with the unions of the Amsterdam Internationals? What shall be the fate of the International Propaganda Committees (I. P. C's.) set up by the Profintern to work among the Industrial Internationalists? Will we not weaken instead of strengthening the world union movement? Shall the Profintern mark the first step without awaiting formal invitation from the adversary? What effect would all this have on the Communist movement of the various countries?

There was heat in the discussion. There was passion. There was a feeling of historic responsibility which made many a heart throb with anxiety. There was a feverish scrutiny of all the circumstances. The nature of reformism as such, the nature of the left wing, the present galvanization of reformism which makes it appear to be passing thru a period of revival, the situation of the union movement in every country, the particular situation in Great Britain under the "labor" regime of MacDonald, the general trend of the class struggle in the world, the prospects of the revolution,—all this passed review before the mind of the delegates who faced, and were fully aware that they faced, a problem such as is seldom put before a body of revolutionaries. Those days when the question of unity of the world labor movement was before the Congress, may be considered the crucial days of this big and colorful gathering.

But the delegates assembled were Communists, and they were under the leadership and in close contact with the master minds of the Comintern. They had a few fundamental truths to be guided by, and they finally reached decisions which were accepted unanimously. The Profintern wants unity. It declares its readiness to establish unity. This is not a mere maneuver as some fear, and even a few friends, would like to intepret it. The Profintern knows that in a world where capitalism is becoming more organized and more concentrated every day, only an organized and concentrated labor movement can lead the class-struggle both on a national and international scale. The Profintern has no reverence for this or that form of existing organization. Contrary to the Amsterdamers, it does not emphasize the "dignity" of its organization. It will sacrifice this so-called dignity if the interests of the working class and the revolution require it. The Profintern will make the first move toward unity. But it understands unity as meaning a consolidation of the working class forces for the class-struggle against capitalism. It values unity only if it enhances the power of the proletariat and accelerates its revolutionary movement. It will not join under conditions which would prevent the revolutionary elements from conducting a vigorous class revolutionary propaganda among the working masses.

On the other hand, it believes in the revolutionary spirit of the masses. It knows that, however misled and befogged by reformed chieftains, the workers will rally under the revolutionary banner when approached by determined class revolutionary leaders. It is, therefore, not afraid to be in the minority. Moreover, the Congress, as a body of Communists, knew that it is the duty of Communists to seize every opportunity which would open for them an approach to the broad working masses. Unity with the Amsterdam International would offer a large field for revolutionary work among the masses. The Profintern, therefore, says to Amsterdam: let us come together; let us unite the world proletarian forces; but let us do it for the class struggle; we, the Red ones, will abide by majority decisions as far as action is concerned, but we demand the right of free criticism and free propaganda of our opinions; we are for proletarian democracy, and therefore let the world proletariat itself, in Congress assembled, decide upon the practical conditions for unity.

The steps taken by the Profintern and the Russian unions are known. The Russian unions answered the Amsterdam International with a proposal to call a conference of an equal number of representatives from each side to discuss the problem of their uniting with the Amsterdam International. The Profintern is going to write a letter (and by the time this reaches America the letter will probably have been sent) to Amsterdam with a proposal to discuss in a conference of an equal number of representatives the problem of calling an International Unity Congress on the basis of proportional representation.

Thus the question of a united front in the union movement enters a new phase. When this letter is printed new developments will have taken place. One thing must be emphasized, and this was expressed at the Congress as resolutely and as unequivocally as possible. The Profintern, and the Russian unions, will never weaken their propaganda of revolutionary class-struggle. The steps towards unity on the part of the Profintern and the Russian unions are not a move to create a united front from above inasmuch as the unity campaign will be developed by the revolutionary trade unionists, the

(Continued on page 7.)

The Soviet Delegation in London

Ch. Rakovsky E. Preobrashensky

A Communist View of Political Action

By Alexander Bittelman

WHAT I am going to say in this article will sound perhaps a little too elementary. It may even appear as a re-statement of some of the A B C of Communism. But, then, why not? The elements of Communism are its fundamentals, its basic principles and final aims. And if there is ever a time when Communists must have their eyes fixed steadily on their final aims, it is the time when they are engaged in immediate, so-called practical activities.

One might lay down (Lenin did that a number of times) the following tactical directive: The more immediate and practical our tasks the more urgent is the need for keeping before our eyes the final aim of Communism. Why? Because our immediate activities, our struggles for partial demands of the workers, assume a revolutionary character only inasmuch as they are conducted with a view to our final aims. In other words, a policy is correct only if it prepares the workers and our own party for the last struggle for power. And it is from this angle that I am going to discuss political action and the present presidential campaign.

Do We Accept Capitalist Democracy?

By participating in an election campaign, do we or do we not recognize and accept capitalist democracy?

Such questions are still being asked and they have got to be answered. The people that ask such questions are, as a rule, workingmen, former members of political parties, who have become disillusioned and even disgusted with political parties and politics as a whole.

They say: Politics is the game of the bourgeoisie. The latter, thru its press, pulpit, schools, theaters, movies, etc., is assiduously cultivating in the minds of the masses the belief in politics as the only legitimate means for the adjustment of "social grievances." But the rules of the political game have been made by the bourgeoisie and no matter how well the workers may play this game, they are always bound to lose.

Thus runs the argument against politics and political action. It can all be reduced to the single idea that by participating in politics one accepts the existing political order of the bourgeoisie.

Is it really so?

Well, there are all kinds of politics; that is, there are many ways in which the American workers of today participate in politics. There are workingmen and women who take part in politics thru the Republican and Democratic parties. This is one kind of politics about which there cannot be the least doubt that it is a game played in the interests of the capitalists and against the workers. This sort of politics is no good and the sooner the workers break with it the better.

Then there are workers that participate in politics as union men, as members of labor organizations. This is already a better sort of politics, better, that is, than participating in politics thru the political parties of the capitalists. However, it all depends upon how the thing is being done.

Here, for instance, is Gompers. He stands for the idea that organized labor must participate in politics for the purpose of punishing its friends and rewarding its enemies. Which sounds pretty nice. It looks almost as if Gompers favors the participation of labor in politics for the purpose of promoting the interests of labor.

But it isn't so. Gompers has no concern with labor as a class. Gompers rejects the class-struggle. He opposes the formation of a political party of labor or any other action that would lead to a struggle between capital and labor along class lines. Gompers' politics are just as bad (if not worse) as those of the democratic and republican politicians. He who follows the lead of Gompers is following the lead of the capitalists.

Then there is the C. P. P. A., whose politics is practically the same as Gompers' except that the former was the first to unite with the middle classes thru LaFollette in the coming presidential elections. Large numbers of workers will be taking part in politics thru the C. P. P. A. and the LaFollette movement. Which, of course does not alter the fact that the politics of the C. P. P. A. is petty-bourgeoisie politics, substantially of a capitalist nature, which means bad politics for the working class.

Now, to return to the argument against politics in general, one might safely say this: If there were no other kinds of politics possible for the workers to engage in but the ones outlined above, one would be compelled to conclude that there is no way in which the workers can with profit to themselves engage in political action. Which would mean nothing more nor less than accepting the idea that the class struggle is impossible.

The Class Struggle Is a Political Struggle.

This is A B C, therefore, it must be taken as our starting point. He who accepts the class struggle for the abolition of capitalism, must also accept the idea of political action.

Why? Because you cannot start abolishing capitalism before you have destroyed the ruling power of the bourgeoisie and established in its place the ruling power of the working class. Therefore, the aims of the class struggle becomes the seizure of political power by the working class and the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship. In other words, the class struggle is a struggle for political power by the oppressed class against the ruling class.

Now, if this is true, then it follows that to deny the political struggle is the same thing as denying the class struggle. For there can be no class struggle, no real struggle against capitalism, other than a struggle against the capitalist state, against the rule of the bourgeoisie and for the rule of the working class.

Political Struggle and Election Campaigns.

This much will undoubtedly be accepted as true by every member of the working class who hates capitalism and believes in the Social Revolution. The argument that may be made will be directed not against the political struggle but against the participation in election campaigns, the main argument being this:

You cannot abolish capitalism by means of the ballot box.

Perfectly correct. Capitalism will be abolished only after the machinery of the capitalist state has been totally destroyed and a proletarian state erected in its place. But what of it? Merely this that the workers must be educated, organized and trained for the great battles that will result in the seizure of power by the workers. How? By utilizing every possible opportunity for unmasking the sham of capitalist democracy, for winning the masses over to the cause of Communism, and for organizing the advanced sections of the working class into the ranks of the Communist Party.

The only question to be considered is: Do election campaigns offer opportunities for this kind of work? We say, yes. In time of election campaigns the masses are more interested in politics than at any other time, which means that they will listen to us more readily and intently than they might otherwise.

And further. Election campaigns are political campaigns. This is true in the sense that various groups and classes enter the open field of struggle to secure political power for the promotion of their respective interests. Because of this fact, election campaigns offer, as a rule, a very effective means for showing the workers the class-nature of capitalism and the workings of its ruling machinery. In short, we participate in election campaigns for the purpose of developing the classconsciousness of the workers, organizing them into a political party of their own, and training them for direct political struggles against the capitalist state.

For us the political struggle is a much bigger thing than election campaigns. The latter we consider merely one of the phases and forms of the political struggle of the workers. We know that the day will come when the center of gravity of the political struggle will lie not inside but outside of the organs of the capitalist state. And for this day we have got to prepare.

But we also say this: that when we participate as Communists in election campaigns we are thereby building the army, and preparing the weapons for the last mighty struggle for power that will overthrow capitalism and establish the rule of the working class.

Pittsburgh — The Black City

By JOHN LASSEN.

IT is late Saturday afternoon as I arrive here from Cleveland. How black this city is! I alight from the train and find myself confronted by a gigantic mountain.

Twenty paces away from the teeming, colorful streets tall smoke-stacks rear their heads heavenward, vomiting dense clouds of smoke.

I proceed. Swarms of workmen wend their way homeward. Black are the faces, hands and clothes of these people of the black city.

• • •

I see a sign: Public Bath. I am heading in its direction. It is Saturday afternoon. These black people are eager to be clean in the black city. We stand in long queues. When will my turn come?

At last, I am next. My number is called out. I take the shower. The hot water is giving out. People behind the shower railings are shouting: "Hot Water! Hot Water!"

But it seems so futile. The dirt saturates the human pores. It penetrates the skin and forms a thick crust. Neither hot water nor soap can do anything with it. People simply turn black.

"Hurry up!" calls the colored attendant. There are many more people in line.

• • •

By the time I reach the street again it is pitch dark. Deep shadows fall over the streets. Darkly and grimly frowns the mountainside upon the city.

Then, lo, I behold a long moving streak along the highway. A long white streak in the intense blackness. My eyes keep on staring. It is a long white streak creeping on and on. They look like white clouds. A blotch of white in the great blackness. It is the Ku Klux Klan. A fiery cross will blaze atop the mountain height.

• • •

I cross a trestle, the black soot fairly crackling under my feet. Even the earth crackles. My heart is palpitating. I wonder what is in store for me in this black city? I recall a debate I had with a fellow worker in Cleveland.

He has been in America sixteen years but speaks English very brokenly.

"How does it come you know so little English?" I had ventured to ask him.

"'Cause I am a Magyar."

"Surely you don't intend returning to Horthy's Hungary?"

"Of course not . . . but I don't like English, and I don't like the Americans."

"And why not? Did anyone hurt you?"

"I just don't like them 'cause they don't like me."

"That isn't so. Why, there is no one more tolerant than an American. So far I have received nothing but kindness from them."

. . . . He shook his head skeptically.

Is it possible that he was right? And is there nothing but soot and filth in this city. . . . and the Ku Klux Klan? Can this be the real America?

• • •

I wander down to the river bank. I sit down and gaze at the strange, mysterious city. It is twilight. Giant smoke clouds seem to smother the city in mist. The air grows moist.

Directly behind me the smoke stack of the Schonberger Works pour out their black hearts. I sit at the edge of the water.

Presently a lad—certainly not over 18—approaches. He sits down beside me.

We sit in silence for a while, mutely gazing at the rushing stream.

Suddenly he speaks, nodding his head toward the mill:

"Are you on the night shift?"

"No. I just landed in town and don't expect to look for anything before the day after tomorrow. But I may take a temporary job tomorrow."

"Have you been long in this country?"

"Only fourteen months."

"Oh, that'll make it hard for you."

I ask him where he works and what sort of work he does.

He, in turn, inquires about life in the 'old country,' and is greatly astonished when I tell him that over there people figure in billions and that misery is far more rampant than here.

He wears a black working suit. His hands are rough from the soot; his face, too, is saturated with coal dust.

He tells me that he works ten hours a day as watchman. He works hard for little pay. "But such is life," he adds philosophically.

The sun is having a glorious battle with the oncoming night, coal dust and the fog. Its gory disc is weirdly reflected in the river's mirror and for a while lends a crimson hue to the overwhelming blackness.

"I've got to get back," says the boy, thrusting his hands into black pockets. "Where are you going to put up for the night.

"Oh, I'll manage somehow."

"Too bad you can't stay with me. I'd like to have you. There are two of us in one bed already . . . . But here" . . . . and he began fumbling in his pockets . . . 'take this. Sorry that I can't give you more.

He holds out a crumpled dollar bill to me. The sun has vanished. The blackness is deeper than ever. But the heart of this lad seems to shine far into the black night.

"But I don't need it," I protest. "I have more than enuf to pay for sleeping quarters."

He is equally insistent. "You must accept it. I'm happy to let you have it."

And seeing my stubborn remonstrance, he forcibly sticks the dollar into my pocket and scrambles to his feet, saying: "You'll repay it some day: If not to me, to some one else."

The lad is trudging across the hill, back to his toil in the mill.

On all sides blazing electric signs proclaim the triumph of publicity. The power of words defies the heaven.

"Westinghouse Electric Co." "Heinz Pickles" and, deep in the heart of the city, the "William Penn Hotel" tell their respective tales in the air . . . while I make no effort to stem the flow of tears . . . . in the black city.

Ye workers of the world, awake!
No longer be despoiled.
The product of your labor, TAKE!
Too long as slaves, you've toiled!
Ye workers of the world, must wield
ALL POWER IN YOUR HANDS!
VOTE FOR YOUR CLASS AND NEVER WIELD!
REDS SHALL POSSESS ALL LANDS!

I. D. McFADDEN.

Trade Unions and the Elections

By EARL R. BROWDER

SAMUEL Gompers and his rubber-stamp Executive Council of the A. F. of L. have joined with the railroad unions in the Conference for Progressive Political Action and the Socialist Party, in endorsing the personal campaign of Robert LaFollette for president of the United States. The Workers Party has nominated William Z. Foster, with the endorsement of the Farmer-Labor national committee elected at the St. Paul convention. So far as the trade unions are concerned, this will be the line of struggle in the presidential campaign—Foster versus LaFollette.

* * *

For more than 40 years the trade unions have been ruled by the Gompers policy of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies," after they had been selected by the capitalist parties. The Socialist Party was the traditional minority advocate of independent working class action. The C. P. P. A. arose from among the labor bureaucrats who, while not differing essentially from Gompers, had been suppressed by him, and adopted a hybrid program of throwing labor influence into the selection of the capitalist candidates on the Gompers formula, rather than simply choosing between them after selection.

